As I sat near the back of the assembled mass on the floor of Bramlage Coliseum, I settled in to hear some of the greatest names in K-State broadcast history introduce some of the greatest names in K-State — and national — sports history.

And as the festivities were about to get underway, Kenny Mossman, the K-State sports information director, gave me a bit of a prelude of things to come. "Dave," Mossman asked, "have you seen the video yet?"

The video of which Mossman spoke was the highlight reel prepared by Norm Burge of the exploits of each of the hall inductees.

"No," I told Mossman in reply, "I haven't seen it yet."

"You'll cry," Mossman said rather matter-of-factly.

I wasn't sure how to react to that. I'm an emotional person by nature, but to cry at a video of old sporting events seemed a bit odd.

But Mossman did. And so did I.

Midway through the highlights of Dickey's stirring performance in a 1969 win over Oklahoma, I had seen enough. Open the flood gates, here come those tears again.

I'd venture to say I wasn't alone.

The night was special, and so were the performers who made it that way. It was a big, big, big night, and I was proud to have been a part of it.

David Mayes/Staff

Nate Neufeld, Wayne Krause and Derrick McBride wait for time to run out during the 'Cats loss to Nebraska Saturday at KSU Stadium.

'Huskers

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

"(The touchdown) had an impact, and actually it had an impact, which surprised me, on the mood of our football team at halftime," Snyder said. "The mood was a little subdued. It wasn't one of extreme excitement, but I think our kids believed they could do what they were doing."

Carl Straw replaced Watson to begin the second half. The quarterback change, however, could not help muster any offense against the 'Huskers. Under Straw, who played most of the third quarter, K-State gained 25 yards, and Straw threw an interception.

"We didn't have any points on the board," Snyder said. "We just needed a change to see if we could get anything going offensively."

The fourth quarter marked the only other scoring by K-State. Tate Wright hit two field goals, of 37 and 48 yards, but Nebraska scored three touchdowns in four minutes to run the score from 24-5 to 45-8.

"Our offense never got into rhythm in the course of the ballgame. We were struggling on every single snap," Snyder said. "One of our things during the week was that we needed to scratch and claw for every single yard, inch and foot.

"We gifted them 21 points. They earned it by getting the ball in the end zone, but we made the gift by giving them great field position in that four-minute period," he said. "Before they got the last 21, I thought we still had a chance if we could ever get anything going offensively."

STATISTICS

Wildcat Football

GAME IN FIGURES

STATISTIC	KSU	NU
First Downs	14	20
Rushing Yards	40	243
Passing Yards	119	129
Total Offense	159	372
Return Yards	34	177
Att.-Comp.-Int.	34-15-2	20-8-0
Fumbles-Lost	1-0	1-0
Penalties	4-35	7-85

Nebraska	3	7	14	21 —	45
K-State	2	0	0	6 —	8

N — Barrios 33-yard field goal
KS — Price blocks punt through endzone
N — Bostick 5-yard pass from Grant (Barrios kick)
N — Joseph 10-yard run (Barrios kick)
N — Flowers 21-yard run (Barrios kick)
KS — Wright 37-yard field goal
N — Bostick 45-yard pass from Grant (Barrios kick)
KS — Wright 48-yard field goal
N — Hughes 99-yard kickoff return (Barrios kick)
N — Joseph 26-yard run (Barrios kick)

RUSHING —K-State: Jackson 10-30, Watson 14-(-17), Rawlings 1-9, Schiller 5-7, Madden 2-8, Straw 1-(-1), Gallon 3-4. Nebraska: Flowers 16-112, Joseph 8-28, Baldwin 5-25, Haase 1-19, Lewis 3-15, Brown 3-12, Turner 1-11, Grant 6-10, Soto 3-7, Hughes 3-4.

PASSING — K-State: Straw 3-10-1-17, Watson 12-24-1-102. Nebraska: Grant 7-17-0-125, Joseph 1-3-0-4.

RECEIVING — K-State: Smith 4-28, Jackson 7-58, Hernandez 2-18, Madden 1-7, Schiller 1-8. Nebraska: Bostick 3-75, Turner 3-28, Brown 2-26.

PUNTING — K-State: Cobb 11-41.6. Nebraska: Stigge 6-47.7.

A — 35,757.

BUSHWACKERS
· THE · FUNDRINKERY
Comedy Invasion
Mon., Tues., & Wednesday
Bill Engvall
a Tonight Show regular along with Steve Camanetti
18 to enter, 21 to drink
Before 5 p.m. 539-4321
Call for Reservations 531 N. Manhattan
After 5 p.m. 539-9727

October Fiesta!
Tacos 3 for $1.25
(reg. 55¢)
Chili Burritos $1.77
(reg. $2.35)
Good through 10-13-90
TACO HUT
where good friends get together
Sun.-Thurs 11 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri.-Sat. 11 a.m.-Midnight
Overlooking Westloop
2809 Claflin 539-2091

·Candidate Forum·
Kansas House of Representatives
District 62
Katha Hurt, Incumbent
Kent Glasscock, Challenger
District 66
Sheila Hochhauser, Incumbent
Stanley Hoerman, Challenger
2:30-3:30 p.m.
Tuesday, Oct. 9, 1990
Big Eight Room, K-State Union
Co-Sponsored by:
KSU Faculty Senate
KSU Chapter of the AAUP

Diverse

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

newly created full-time position in the fall.

"The reality is that our society, and thus our University, is moving from a monoculture to a pluralistic model," Taylor-Archer said. "We must embrace diversity."

The nation's racial composition is changing rapidly. According to the campaign literature, 40 percent of U.S. population will be African-Americans, Hispanic-Americans, Asian-Americans and Native Americans by the year 2020. All minorities combined will make up the majority of the population.

Rowlett said the K-State administration is committed to the recruitment and retention of minority students and faculty members because these groups represent the fastest-growing population in Kansas and in the United States and because studies at K-State and across the country indicate that these groups, with the exception of Asian-Americans, have the highest attrition rates in higher education.

Mike Lynch, assistant vice president of institutional advancement, considers students to have been retained if they have graduated or are still enrolled after five years. Lynch said that while the retention rate for the overall student body is 56 percent, it ranges from 12-20 percent for racial minorities.

As assistant provost of multicultural affairs, Taylor-Archer said she will focus attention on improving minority retention/graduation rates. She will work with the Human Rights Educational Campaign Committee and the President's Commission on Multicultural Affairs to monitor the implementation of recommendations made by the Task Force on Minority Student Retention.

"We need more numbers. Minority students, undergraduate and graduate, need a greater presence of minority faculty members to create a sense of community," Taylor-Archer said. "But too, the campus environment must be inclusive to all minorities. We are not only concerned with racial minorities."

The "Design for Diversity" is committed to promoting and ensuring equal access to University educational programs, services and other activities for all populations, Taylor-Archer said.

"We need to make sure underrepresented minorities receive their fair share of representation," Taylor-Archer said. "We need to make sure the campus environment enriches the lives of students and does not in any way impede their growth by perpetuating monoculturalism."

Harmony

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

"I took part in the Harmony Walk last year. It was a neat experience," said Ken Schefter, committee student coordinator and director of special projects for Senate Governing Association. "I volunteered for this."

One of Schefter's goals is to have a bill introduced in the Senate that would establish guidelines for campus-wide representation on the committee.

"We are hoping it will be a standing committee," Schefter said.

He said he hopes there will be some kind of long-term financing along with the standing committee. More than 20 organizations have contributed to this year's activities, he said.

"I would like to see funding come from all sectors, a given in the budget," said Mordean Taylor-Archer, assistant provost of multicultural affairs and assistant dean of the graduate school.

"It is important that the entire University community feel ownership, that everyone see the value of this," Taylor-Archer said.

Next year, the Office of Multicultural Affairs may provide the administrative base for the committee, Taylor-Archer said.

"This doesn't mean the flexibility of the committee will change, it only means people will know where to go if they have questions," she said.

The committee meetings have been open to everyone, Cordero said. Flexibility means people come and contribute when they can; they may not be able to be at every meeting.

"We didn't want to lose all that creativity, ideas and energy," Cordero said.

"With old hands and new hands, we now have a good sense of continuity," Davis said. "It's an on-going tradition, but we know we have to keep it going, year-round," she said.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6556

PREGNANT?
NEED HELP?
For confidential help call
Birthright
FREE Pregnancy Tests
103 S. Fourth 537-9180
1-800-848-LOVE

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
CLASS ADS
Kedzie 103 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $3.00, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.25, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.50, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

KANSAS PORK PRODUCERS COUNCIL PROMOTION INTERNSHIP

The Kansas Pork Producers Council's 1991 Promotion Internship will offer a Kansas State University student the opportunity to work with a volunteer agricultural organization in the areas of consumer promotion, education and merchandising.

The intern's duties will include planning specific promotional programs, working with appropriate volunteer committees and assisting in carrying out program plans.

To be eligible, students must have completed 60 credit hours, but still have two semesters remaining before graduation.

The KPPC intern will receive three hours of credit and a $1,000 scholarship. The 1991 internship will begin January 1 and last through December 31. Applications are due October 15 and selection will be made by November 1, 1990.

Selection of the intern is based on applications and interviews. Application forms are available from the Kansas Pork Producers Council Office at 2601 Farm Bureau Road, Manhattan, KS 66502 (913)776-0442.

(Continued on page 9)

RESIDENCE HALL STAFFING POSITIONS

KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
STAFF 1991-1992

Qualifications include:
•Two semesters previous K-State Residence Hall experience
•Junior standing or equivalent
•2.25 cumulative GPA
•Full-time student
•Successful completion of staff class (EDAF 311) offered during spring semester.

Deadline for application:
November 2, 1990

For a more complete list of qualifications and application information, contact your hall director, or visit Rosanne Proite, assistant director of Housing and Dining Services, located in the Pittman building.

TEXTBOOK ALERT!

TEXTBOOK REPORT FORMS FOR SPRING SEMESTER ARE DUE FRIDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1990
MAIL YOURS TO THE K-STATE UNION BOOKSTORE TODAY!
K-State Union Bookstore

Borck Brothers
Announces the arrival of...
BOSTON TRADERS
Basic good looks... casual clothes with the comfort and ease to take you anywhere in smart style.
•Sweaters
•Plaid Shirts
•Mock Turtlenecks
•Rugbys
•Cotton Pants
BORCK Brothers
Fine Menswear
1100 Westloop Place (913) 537-8636
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon.—Sat. til 8:30 Thurs.

RE-ELECT YOUR STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Sheila HOCHHAUSER

I WILL BE AT THE CANDIDATES' FORUM TODAY TO DISCUSS:

THE BASE BUDGET. I will work hard to restore Regents funding. The Margin of Excellence is meaning less without an adequate base budget.

FUNDING AFTER REORGANIZATION. I will oppose attempts to penalize K-State for its response to budget cuts. The University should keep all money freed by reorganization.

MARGIN OF EXCELLENCE. I supported 100% funding for the Margin. I will support continued funding to make our state Universities competitive.

HOCHHAUSER FOR REPRESENTATIVE
YOUR REPRESENTATIVE WORKING FOR YOU

Adv. paid for by Sheila Hochhauser for State Representative, Phil Becker, Treasurer, 1851 Virginia Dr., Manhattan

Your family will love the SUBARU
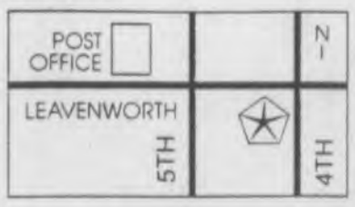
Loyale.®

Loyale® Wagon

$10,798
w/ rebate
4x4-Air
Cassette



THE 1990 SUBARU:
We built our reputation by building a better car.

Your family will enjoy riding in a 1990 Subaru Loyale Wagon. An unbeatable value, this wagon is practical and comfortable. Available in front-wheel drive or "On Demand"™ 4-wheel drive, the Subaru Loyale is perfect for that family ski vacation. It handles great even in less-than-perfect weather conditions.

So head for the slopes in your Subaru Loyale Wagon and have enough money left over for the ski chalet.

Before you buy, see us.

4th & Leavenworth
Downtown, Manhattan
776-4875

GOETSCH➢IRVINE
CHRYSLER PLYMOUTH SUBARU
CHRYSLER Plymouth

(Continued from page 8)

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

RECORDS, CDS, Posters and more at University Inn this Saturday 10/13. Dealers from many states will be selling to the public one day only. $1 admission 10a.m.— 5p.m.

A LOT CAN BE SAID ABOUT A LITTLE BIT OF SPACE:
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ClassADS They Work

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

NEW MUSIC TONIGHT!
$1.50 Wells
ONLY AT Baystreet

Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

By Bob Berry

Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind

Jim's Journal

By Jim

Calvin and Hobbes

By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

SKI
JANUARY SEMESTER BREAK
BRECKENRIDGE JANUARY 2-9 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS from $184
STEAMBOAT JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS from $177
VAIL/BEAVER CREEK JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS from $247
9th ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS
Ski & Beach Sunchase Breaks
TOLL FREE INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial, Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

2 Apartments—Furnished

CUT EDUCATION costs. Family needs college girl to live in this semester and next. Free room and food exchanged for duties. Write P.O. Box 652, Manhattan, Kansas 66502.

ONE-BEDROOM IN a west side complex, gas, heat, $295. No pets. 776-3804.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

ACROSS THE street from campus and Aggieville, one-bedroom, large closet, shower, bay window in dining room, 9' ceilings, ceiling fan, very clean, new carpet and paint. $350. No pets. 537-8274.

AVAILABLE NOW. One-bedroom near campus, $325, year lease, no pets, laundry facilities, central air. Call for appointment 776-3804.

DUPLEX TWO-BEDROOM, stove, refrigerator, near campus. Show by appointment, available Nov. 1. 539-3524.

ONE-BEDROOM CARPETED, available Oct. 1, central air, $270 plus utilities and trash. 776-6166.

ONE-BEDROOM IN a complex near campus. New carpet, gas, heat, $325. No pets. 776-3804.

TWO-BEDROOM NEAR campus, available now. Laundry facilities, central air, $400. Year lease. No pets. 776-3804.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

5 Automobile for Sale

1977 MONZA— low mileage, V-8, good condition. $800. 537-6835.

1978 280Z parts car. $400. 537-1539.

1978 FORD LTD. Good condition, air conditioning, power windows, $850 or best offer. 776-9887.

1981 COLONY Park station wagon, great car, power steering, power brakes, power windows, AM/FM cassette stereo, $700 or best offer. Call 539-8256.

1981 PLYMOUTH Horizon, low mileage, 54,545, good condition. $1,800 negotiable. Melville 532-7212 after 9:45a.m. or 537-4420.

1985 PLYMOUTH Horizon, four-speed, $2,400 negotiable, very good condition. 539-1902.

HURRICANE II Aluminum Mag wheels, for Chevy, like new, $200. 776-0043.

7 Computers

HAVING PROBLEMS with your computer or printer? Need to upgrade your systems memory, monitor or just a larger hard drive? Need a second party book on a certain program? ABACUS Computer and Supply, 539-7007, 1111 Waters.

MACINTOSH COMPUTER and ImageWriter printer. 128K. 537-9479 after 5p.m.

8 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such 'employment opportunity' with reasonable caution.

ATTENTION: EXCELLENT income for home assembly work. (504)646-1700. Dept. P6438.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EARN MONEY typing/ wordprocessing/ personal computing. At home. Full- or part-time. $35,000/ year potential. 1-805-687-6000 Ext. B-9701.

$$ HUNDREDS Weekly $$ (P/T) Completing MIP Refund Policies U.S. Government Program. Call 1-713-292-9131, 24-hour recorded message. Please have pen ready.

IF YOU are free 11a.m.— 2p.m. Monday— Friday and want to earn extra money, pick up an application to join our crew. Long John Silver's.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. Federal, CIA, U.S. Customs, D.E.A., etc. Now hiring. Listings. 1(805)687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

LIBERAL RELIGIOUS group seeks part-time office coordinator, organized, good with people, 20 hours per month, $7.50 per hour. Send resume to Unitarian Universalist Fellowship, P.O. Box 910, Manhattan, Kansas 66502. Questions, call 539-5248.

MALE DANCERS needed. Call for interview try-out dates. $100 a night plus tips. 539-4142.

MODELS NEEDED for local advertising agency. No experience necessary. Earn extra cash. Males and females respond with resume and photo to Box 4, Collegian.

OVERSEAS JOBS. $900— $2,000/ month. Summer, year-round. All countries. All fields. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KSo2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

SPRING BREAK 1991— Individual or student organization needed to promote Spring Break trip. Earn money, free trips and valuable work experience. Call Now!! Inter-campus Programs: 1-800-327-6013.

STUDENT TO enclose garage wall and install overhead garage door. Send qualifications to: Box 3, Collegian.

TIRED OF school? Need a change of pace? Be a Nanny! Go to interesting places, earn good money for a year. Templeton Nanny Agency, Lawrence. (913)842-4443.

TOP DOLLAR paid to graduate level student. Needs background in Statistics and willing to tutor. Call 537-0810 after 5p.m.

WARM NON-SMOKING nanny wanted in White Plains, NY for two kids, 5 and 2, starting December. Excellent live-in conditions, driver's license and experience required. (914)725-3904.

WELL-ESTABLISHED LOCAL business for sale. Excellent opportunity! After 6p.m. (719)576-6789.

9 Food Specials

Every Monday
½ Price Nite
Order any dinner or sandwich and receive the 2nd at ½ price
Evenings 5-8:30 p.m.
The CHEF Cafe
111 S. 4th

Bobby J's
Mondays:
Play Monday Night Football
Every TD pays up to 50¢ on food purchases
$1 Draws
Chicken Fried Steak
$2.49
539-1571

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

A HIDE-A-BED sofa, double size chest of drawers, $50 both. 776-3589.

COUCH WITH matching chair, barely used. Call 539-1452.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: A ferret off Moro. Call 776-8677.

FOUND: BLACK cat with white paws. Call 539-7059. Found at 1021 Fremont.

FOUND (IN Seaton and Cardwell computer labs): Sunglasses, spiral notebooks, two cassette tapes, AM/FM Walkman-type radio, set of car keys. Claim in Cardwell 23.

FOUND: LARGE white rabbit west of the president's house 10/3/90. Claim at 532-6850.

LOST/ BLACK, bi-fold billfold. Several IDs. Lost about one and one-half weeks ago. Call Barry at 537-4268.

18 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1982 YAMAHA 400cc Seca, held over until '86, low miles, just tuned, red, $850. Call Barry at 537-4268.

1986 XT 350 Yamaha Enduro motorcycle. 776-0073.

LADIES PEUGEOT 10-speed touring bike. Excellent condition. Call 776-7260 after 6p.m.

19 Music/ Musicians

FOR SALE: 14 pc. Tama drum set, $1,000. Phone 1-632-5716.

LIKE NEW Hungarian violin. $200 or best offer. Call 8a.m.— 5p.m. 776-6112.

Goya Acoustic Guitar G300
Now $199 w/case
Hayes House of Music
327 Poyntz 776-7983

21 Personals

AKAK TRAVIS— Good friends like you are hard to find— a party with you I'll never mind! Thanx for being you. Love Ya —Lora.

BRENT— HAPPY 23rd Birthday! Chicago was a blast!! Where are you taking me on my B-day? —Your Silk P.J. Escort.

FOOTE, HERE'S to you and here's to me, friends we are.. Happy 21st bud. You're Finally Legal! Love, Schmel.

KKG DOTS: We know something you don't know. But soon you'll know the secret that we've kept so dear. So don't be late, we just can't wait. Pledge Mom/Dot Hunt is finally here!! Love, your Moms.

KKG PLEDGES: Tonight is the night, which will be a delight. The search will begin at exactly half-past eight, so grab your sisters and please don't make your pledge moms wait. Love, the Actives.

PIKE TOM, I've killed before and I'll kill again! Luv, Deb.

PI PHI Michelle, Is it true when you turn 22 that nothing is ever new? Give me a chance and I'll enhance what makes a woman in you! Happy Birthday —Puder.

THERE IS a circulation librarian named Cliff, Whose bilingual ability is terrif. He says, "Hey, amigo, you're late with your libro," And then he flies into a tiff.

TO THE biology major in plaid going to CW Thurs. morn: Want 2 read the comics some more? Guy walking with you.

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

FOR SALE: AKC Registered yellow Labrador Retriever. Female, eight weeks old. $100. Call 1-238-3812.

FREE— FIVE black Lab mixed pups. Must see. Parents on premises. Call 1-456-7247 evenings.

TROPICAL FISH AND AQUARIUMS
PETS 'N STUFF
1108 Waters 539-6694
OPEN Thur. til 8 p.m.

23 Professional Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

Chiropractors add years to your life and life to your years!
Call today for an appointment.
537-8305
Dr. Mark Hatesohl
3252 Kimball Avenue
Candlewood Shopping Center

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— We do more than just type your resume. We create the resume with you, so it reflects your best -- then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for private appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience working in University Career Center.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851. Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100 or 1-456-9642, Wamego.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE: New apartment, Woodway complex, own room. Call or leave message 776-3251.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: Woodway Apartments, own room, $175/ month plus one-third utilities. 537-4966.

MALE ROOMMATE for roomy one-bedroom furnished apartment across street from campus at 922 N. Manhattan #2. $180/ month includes cable/ all utilities. Gregg 776-0172, if no answer leave message.

ROOMMATES TO share three-bedroom house, near campus. Partially furnished. 776-3078.

TWO BLOCKS from campus and Aggieville. Own room, $150 a month. Call Cindy 539-8391.

WANTED ROOMMATE, 1005 Laramie, $120 per month, utilities paid. Call 539-2017 after 5p.m., ask for Jim.

28 Sublease

TWO FEMALE roommates wanted to sublease furnished apartment during spring semester, $125/ month. 776-2076.

29 Tickets to Buy or Sell

TWO ROUND-TRIP tickets. Leaving Kansas City 6p.m. on Oct. 11 and arriving 7:43p.m. at O'Hare. Returning Oct. 14, 6:35p.m. and arriving 8p.m. Kansas City. $156 for both. 776-6155, ask for Pat after 3p.m. Office 537-3726 leave message.

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

ARCHITECTS— 1986 Sweet's Catalog File for sale. Excellent condition. Best offer. 537-4428 ask for Scott.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: 12-speed bike, Fuji Espree, 23-inch frame with Avenir training stand, $200. 776-4042.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

ITEMS— SCHWINN Super Sport racing/ touring bicycle, Nintendo set with five games, Canon A-1 35mm camera with extras, Panasonic electronic typewriter, Carrera Porsche Design sunglasses. Call 539-8729 for information.

SOFA, ONE year old, (mauve, blue, gray), $200; Sears portable dishwasher, butcherblock top, $75. 776-0043.

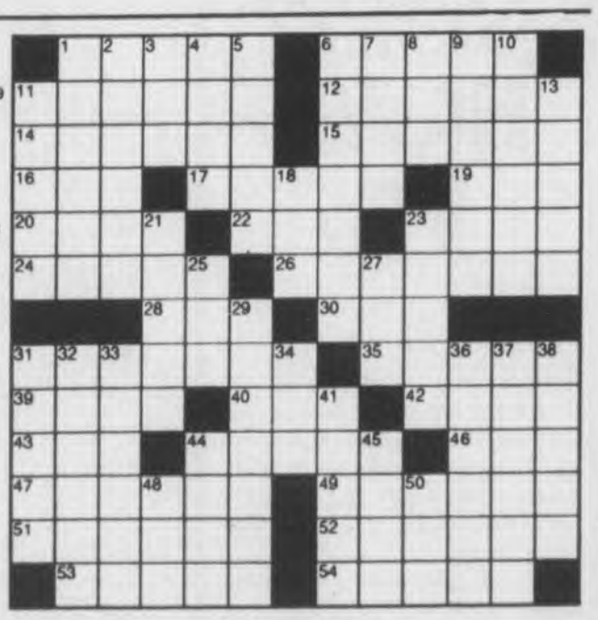
UNUSUAL ANTIQUES for sale: Baby stroller with metal frame, canvas cover, two large and two small wheels, $75; portable Phonola phonograph in wooden case, $50. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m. If no answer, leave message.

33 Tutor

VERY QUALIFIED tutor for Spanish. Affordable rates. Call Leticia 539-6832 after 9p.m.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Actress McFadden
6 Infamous hotelier?
11 William of "Knots Landing"
12 Having a wry twist
14 Rub with oil
15 "Streetcar" role
16 Gumshoe, for short
17 Works in the mailroom
19 River island
20 Tied
22 Neither's mate
23 Behold: Latin
24 Paid attention
26 Pupils' coats?
28 Insane
30 Tippler
31 Minor shortcomings
35 Coffee break time
39 Charity
40 Young reporter
42 Singer Coolidge
43 Lagniappe
44 Craze
46 Pithy saying
47 Got away from
49 Flintstone's pal
51 Luna, to the Greeks
52 Quavers
53 Advertisers' concerns
54 Can't stand

DOWN
1 Rhone city
2 Shore bird
3 Mai — (cocktail)
4 Danube feeder
5 Attack
6 Cafes
7 Liberal course
8 Placekicker's pride
9 Intertwine
10 Quartz or opal
11 Calendar info
13 Actress Phoebe
18 Sinbad's flyer
21 Uses Novocaine
23 Parking lot sign
25 Chum
27 Get too ripe
29 Groups of ten
31 Clotho and Lachesis
32 Dickens hero
33 Antelope
34 Nearby star
36 Spry, like Jack
37 Lagoon surroundings
38 Partners
41 It brings out the child in you
44 Handwriting opener
45 Radiation
48 Sleuth: abbr.
50 Morsel

Solution time: 28 mins.

R	O	B	E	S		N	A	G		P	A	T
C	A	L	L	A		O	R	E		A	L	E
A	T	I	L	T		B	L	E	N	D	E	R
		N	A	U	V	O	O		O	U	R	S
M	A	D		P	A	D		C	R	A	T	E
O	V	E	N		S	Y	N	O	D
P	A	R	A	D	E		E	D	I	B	L	E
			P	A	S	H	A		C	L	A	Y
B	E	C	K	Y		O	R	S		O	W	E
A	L	L	I		B	O	S	T	O	N
B	L	A	N	D	E	R		A	N	D	R	E
A	I	M		A	A	A		S	T	E	A	K
R	E	P		B	U	Y		H	O	R	N	E

Yesterday's answer 10-6

CRYPTOQUIP

10-6

VDLWUEUL BOBDAAK ZDYUO ZCEUK ME RSU ORCTY ZDLYUR HUTDBOU SU SUWVUO SMO HURO.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: TAILOR JUST WANTED TO RESIGN FROM HIS BORING JOB, BUT HE FELT HEMMED IN.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: V equals G

Khmer Rouge guerrillas to attack historic region

By The Associated Press

SIEM REAP PROVINCE, Cambodia — Bolstered by their first shipments of Chinese tanks, Khmer Rouge guerrillas are preparing a major attack to seize an area considered Cambodia's most important cultural and historic region.

After making major gains in rural areas in the past year, the Khmer Rouge now are shifting to conventional military tactics to seize cities and key economic regions, Western military analysts say.

The rebels recently took the key government artillery base at Sre Noi, and now say they are preparing to attack Bantei Srei, the last major government position defending the provincial capital of Siem Reap and the nearby Angkor Wat temples, the symbol of Cambodian civilization.

The rebels have massed tanks, heavy guns and troops to attack government defenses in this northwestern province, according to field commanders and Khmer Rouge fighters interviewed in the guerrilla zone.

A recent 10-day, 190-mile trek through guerrilla-held area near Angkor Wat showed the rebels had overrun important positions and moved freely through villages less than an hour's drive from the Siem Reap provincial capital.

Source: Foreign Student Office Collegian/Gary Lytle

Hispanic

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

adviser of the Society of Hispanic Professional Engineers. "I recognize the reason that the term was developed. It was the government's way to classify all of the Spanish-speaking populations together. It can have a unifying effect.

"But it almost encourages the different peoples to lose their cultural identity. Many people resent it," Cordero said.

Pecina said some people are offended by the term hispanic because it includes such a wide variety of cultures and doesn't adequately describe their heritage.

Some students said they aren't offended by being labeled hispanic.

"You're talking about a wide range of peoples from different cultures," said Gabriel Hernandez, sophomore in electrical engineering. "But it doesn't bother me."

"It solves a lot of problems," said Robert Soria, sophomore in electrical engineering. He said it is more convenient to ask him if he is hispanic than guessing what country he is from. "It doesn't seem derogatory in any way," he said.

Eduardo Arce-Diaz, graduate student in agricultural economics and president of the Organization of Costa Rican Students, is from Costa Rica.

"I have a hispanic origin, and I am proud of it. I want people to know where I come from. I don't try to hide it. I enjoy being hispanic in this multicultural society," Arce-Diaz said.

Hunam Chinese Restaurant
For Delivery
Tuesday - Sunday
11 a.m. to 10 p.m.
539-8888 or 539-0358

Have "You" Had Your Frozen Yogurt Today??
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY.
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers
Aggieville

AIM HIGH
TECHNOLOGY MAJORS – COMPUTE YOUR FUTURE WITH AIR FORCE ROTC.
Add up the advantages of Air Force ROTC as you prepare to study science or engineering – and you'll make some exciting discoveries. You'll see how you can apply for two- or four-year scholarship programs to help pay for that college degree. You'll discover that you can graduate with a commission as an Air Force officer, ready to take your skills into laser, satellite or other technologies.
Call
CAPT ROYER
913-532-6600
AIR FORCE ROTC
Leadership Excellence Starts Here

CLAFLIN BOOKS & COPIES
First Bank Center
Denison & Claflin
NO WAITING FOR
5¢ COPIES
We also do resumés and sell books and cards.
776-3771
OPEN EVERY DAY

village plaza
Sweet Temptations
• YOGURT •
• Ice Cream •
Skinny Dip
537-7676 Next to Home Cinema
305 Anderson

Ad It Up!
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Display Advertising
532-6560
will connect you with one of our sales representatives.

This Coming Sat.
OCT 13TH
The Mid-America
RECORD CONVENTION
RETURNS TO MANHATTAN, KS.
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13TH
10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Ramada Inn • 17th & Anderson
Across From Campus
DEALERS FROM MANY STATES
Every Type of Music • All Price Ranges
ROCK - OLDIES - COUNTRY - JAZZ - SOUNDTRACKS - BLUES
CDs - ALBUMS - 45s - VIDEOS - POSTERS - MORE!
Many Out of Print - Hard to Find - Even One of a Kind
Great Collectables!
DON'T MISS OUT! PLAN TO ATTEND MANHATTAN'S BEST-EVER MUSIC SALE!!
$1 ADMISSION
DOOR PRIZES AWARDED HOURLY
- Great Fun for Anyone Who Likes Music -

Campus Organizations
LINE UP
YOUR MEMBERS
and get your group picture taken for the 1991 Royal Purple
Sept. 17 through Oct. 25
6:30 to 9 p.m.
Fairchild Hall 202
Maximum number of people in one photo is 30. Larger groups will require extra photo. Minimum number in photo is 10 unless proof of smaller membership is shown.
$10 per photo
Schedule appointment and pay for photo
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday
Kedzie Hall 103
QUESTIONS? CALL 532-6555

BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND
THRIFTY THURSDAY
PYRAMID PIZZA rolls back the prices
Only $3.49 for a small pizza (one topping)
(additional toppings are 75¢ each)

Carryout/Dine In Only
539-4888
12th & Moro
Aggieville, USA
COUPON
"THRIFTY THURSDAY"
$3.49 for a Small One-topping Pizza
Good Every Thursday
"We Pile It On!"
PYRAMID PIZZA

UPC
Arts Lectures
Movies
Outdoors
Performances
Travel
ALL ABOARD WITH UPC

SHE'S GOTTA HAVE IT
Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, October 10, 11 & 12
SHE'S GOTTA HAVE IT
Sexy, bawdy, and at times raunchy, Spike Lee's first film is freewheeling and electric, an exuberant collage of staccato montages, still frames, and confidential asides to the camera. At the center of the vortex is the film's most impressive creation: Nola Darling. A free-spirited woman who shares her bed with three men—Nola is too independent to fall for the vanities of male behavior. WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY, 7 p.m., Forum Hall, THURSDAY, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre & FRIDAY, 7 p.m., Little Theatre. Cost: $1.75 with K-State I.D.
k-state union upc kaleidoscope

Oct. 1-12
Fine Arts Exhibition
A showcase of talent from the K-State Union Promotions and Marketing Office.
Now Showing
2ND FLOOR SHOWCASE
k-state union upc arts

Steamboat
Christmas Break Ski Trip
Jan. 7-12, 1991
$252/$290 with ski rental. Trip includes 5 nights lodging at Timber Run Condominiums, 4 days Steamboat lift tickets and a college party pack. Sign up now in the UPC Office, 3rd floor, K-State Union, M-F, 8 a.m.-4 p.m. k-state union upc travel

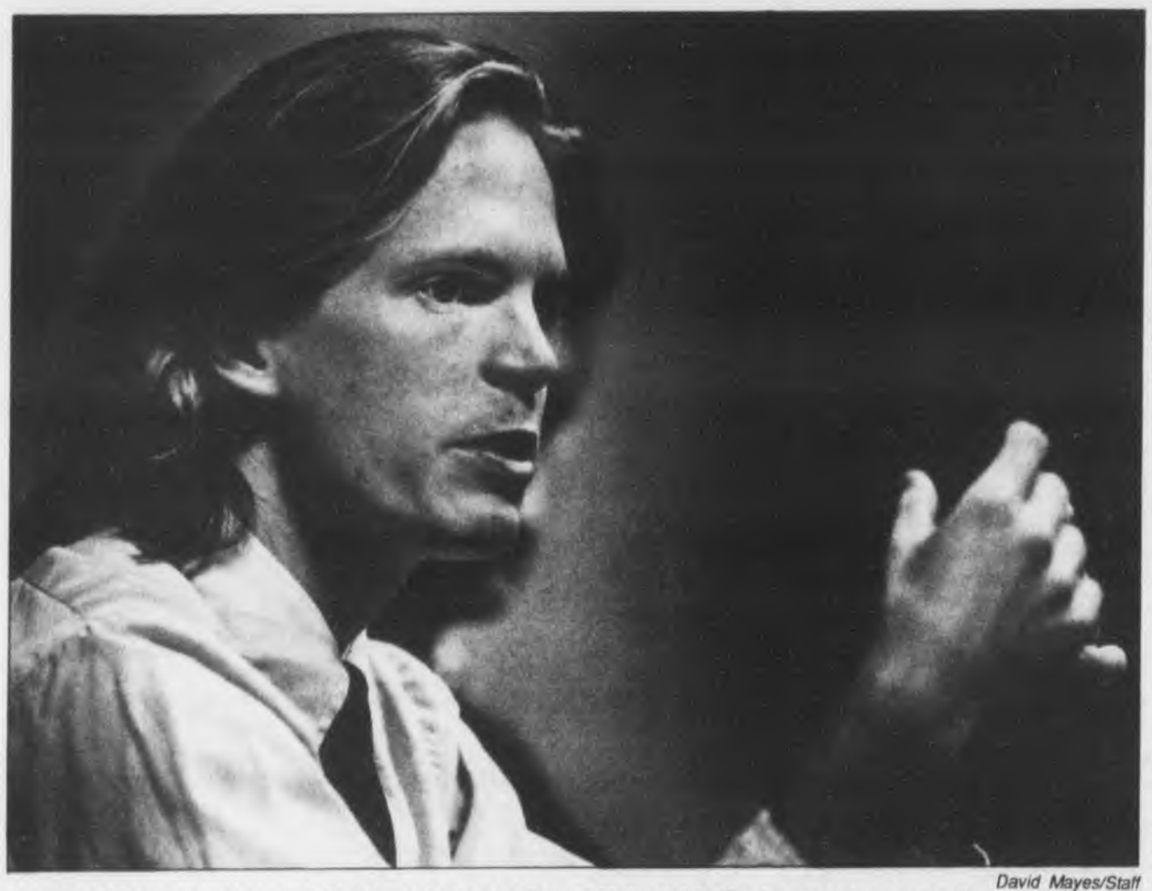
JAZ KNFR
ON SALE NOW
COMEDY ROCKS
Friday, Oct. 12
8 p.m. McCain Auditorium
Ticket Price $3
Tickets are available at the K-State Union Program Council Office or at the McCain Auditorium Box Office.
k-state union upc eclectic entertainmen



K-State Union Art Gallery Exhibits
Now Showing
k-state union upc arts
Oct. 1-Oct. 12
Artwork by Steve Dudek and Lisa Ganstrom

FOX PENN
CASUALTIES OF WAR
Even in war... murder is murder.
R A COLUMBIA PICTURES RELEASE
k-state union upc kaleidoscope
Casualties of War is showing tonight at 7 p.m. in Forum Hall & Tuesday, Oct. 9 at 3 p.m. in Forum Hall. Admission is free. The film is sponsored by the UPC Kaleidoscope Films Committee and Racial and Ethnic Harmony Week Committee as a part of Racial and Ethnic Harmony Week.

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Tuesday, October 9, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 32

David Mayes/Staff

Jonathan Morris, president of Students Acting to Save a Vulnerable Environment, speaks about recycling in Manhattan at a Lou Douglas Lecture panel discussion in the K-State Union Monday.

Pollution concerns discussion subject

By Jenifer Scheibler
Collegian Reporter

University and community involvement with environmental issues and recycling need to increase, according to the panel members who discussed these issues Monday in Union 206.

The discussion was held prior to the Lou Douglas Lecture at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in McCain Auditorium. The lecture, "Negawatts," was originally going to be given by Amory Lovins. Because he is ill, it will be given by Hunter Lovins, his wife and colleague. Her lecture will be "How Not to Parachute More Cats."

Those participating as panel members were Walter Adams, assistant professor of sociology, Jonathan Morris, junior in mathematics and member of Students Acting to Save a Vulnerable Environment and Paul Davidson, junior in social sciences and member of Southwind.

Davidson expressed the need to bring together the efforts of the various environmental awareness organizations to work as one group on certain issues.

"Up to this time, every group has been doing its own thing," Davidson said. "Everyone of them has their own goals and objectives, but there are a lot of things we can all do together."

The panel members also expressed the need for campus groups to be involved with and communicate with the University administration and the city of Manhattan about their plans and expectations when addressing issues of environmental awareness.

Morris said it was important to help people realize the money that can be saved through recycling.

"I think at a time when we are facing reductions in budgets, this is a good time to get involved with the environmental issue, not simply because of the future of our planet but because of our budget," Morris said.

Harmony week promotes unity

By Shannon Meyers
Collegian Reporter

Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week allows the University to deal with the intrinsic problems caused by a blended variety of cultures, said Andrew Cordero, director of the minority engineering program and committee co-chairman of Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week, as he opened the week's kick-off at the K-State Union Forum Hall Monday.

Provost James Coffman said Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week is a positive way to address differences between cultures at K-State.

"We are at a time in history where there is an increased need for diverse groups to reach greater and better understanding," Coffman said.

In response to a study showing that minority retention on campus was 12-14 percent, Coffman said minority scholarships increased 30 percent and $350,000 was reallocated to graduate-program studies.

"The goal is not necessarily to all have a single view but instead have a mutual respect and understanding of each other. This is why Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week is so important," he said.

"A Campus of Difference," was the title of a program presented by Caryl Stern and Brenda Gottried, national spokespersons for the Anti-Defamation League.

The Anti-Defamation League, started 77 years ago in Chicago, is a civil-rights organization with 33 offices in the United States and affiliate international offices.

"The challenge of diversity is one facing all campuses. Minority students leave because of the environment, and as part of the environment, we need to change," Stern said. "Diversity is not a course unto itself — it should be a part of everything we do."

Stern and Gottried presented a three-hour workshop on diversity.

"We give a self-test to make people realize how little they know about cultures outside their own," Stern said. "Diversity can't be dealt with entirely in a one-day workshop, but we try to build enthusiasm and get people to think about it on a daily basis."

Stern said prejudice has not increased, but people seem to be more willing to act on it and is obvious through a marked increase in hate crimes in recent years, she said.

Trends show changing University face

Non-traditional student enrollment increases

Editor's note: This the second installment in a week-long series about diversity at K-State.

By Jana Leep
Collegian Staff

A rapid increase in the non-traditional student population is occurring on campuses nationwide.

The Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education predicts a 23-percent decline in the traditional college-bound group of 18- to 24-year-olds by 1997. According to the FENIX Adult Student Program, 52 percent of students pursuing a baccalaureate degree nationally are non-traditional.

"The term non-traditional is an umbrella term for many categories," said June Ingram, assistant director of the FENIX Adult Student Program. "Non-traditional students are those undergraduate and graduate students who have entered college at an early age, or who are 25 years or older, married, or have children."

K-State has more than 5,000 non-traditional students. This is about 30 percent of the student body. The "Design for Diversity" campaign highlights the non-traditional student population as one that will affect changes within the college environment.

"What makes the non-traditional student different is that they experience all the regular pressures of college life, except that these pressures are compounded by responsibilities and commitments outside of academic life," Ingram said.

"Non-traditional students may experience isolation and alienation. They may need time to adjust socially and psychologically to the atmosphere of a college campus," she said.

"FENIX is a friend. Essentially, we act as an intermediary," Ingram said. "Non-traditional students, especially those that are married and/or have children, have unique needs and problems. They may need financial help because there are extra mouths to feed. They may need tutorial help because they are returning to school after a long time, perhaps after receiving their GED. Or they may need emotional support because of the stress of blending family and school."

Terry Alfonso, freshman in interior design and mother of two children, said, "Sometimes I get frustrated because I try to study but I have a million other things I have to do, so I really don't concentrate on what I am doing.

"I want to change things so that I have more time for my kids. They mean a lot. I used to read to them and work with them a lot, and now I just kind of let them do their own thing while I do mine," Alfonso said.

Terry's husband, Manuel Alfonso, also a freshman in interior design, said, "Splitting responsibilities is the major dilemma. Terry and I are learning to share responsibilities because children are time-consuming and college is time-consuming. It has been tough."

Other problems can emerge.

"There are cases where communication is hampered because of the student's life experiences," Ingram said. "A faculty member's theoretical knowledge and a student's experiential knowledge may cause a clash, may cause miscommunication."

Brinton Everett, sophomore in social work, human development and family studies, said she anticipated such a conflict.

"I thought before I arrived at K-State that the book knowledge may not compare with my hands-on knowledge of working with the mentally ill," Everett said.

"Yet I feel that my experiences could facilitate the understanding of the material because I could bring in a personal perspective," she said.

Rodger Brewer, freshman in parks and resource management, agrees. "As a non-traditional student, I have a wealth of experiences to share. I have made mistakes, have learned from them and now can share my wisdom that has come through maturing," he said.

> "While there are experiential differences and compounded commitments and pressures for non-traditional students, when we all have backpacks slung across our shoulders, we all are essentially the same — we are students." —Brinton Everett, sophomore in social work

Brewer said non-traditional students would make good mentors for younger students and suggested such a program be designed and implemented.

FENIX has developed several programs to meet the needs of non-traditional students:

- The FENIX Leadership program offers four $500 leadership scholarships to outstanding students.
- A Commuter Program enables students who must commute to Manhattan to contact each other.
- The Student Emergency Locator Service for students concerned about being reached in case of emergency.
- Older Wiser Learning Students is a politically active organization for non-traditional students on campus.

Ingram said that with the increase in the non-traditional population, FENIX's outreach program has grown steadily in order to target more of the population.

Both Everett and Brewer said they were scared to come to K-State at first because they doubted their academic ability and doubted their ability to fit in because of the age difference. But both Everett and Brewer expressed surprise over the amount of non-traditional students on campus. Neither expected to see others their age.

"While there are experiential differences and compounded commitments and pressures for non-traditional students, when we all have backpacks slung across our shoulders, we all are essentially the same — we are students," Everett said.

Public initiative may give Kansans power

CAMPAIGN 1990

Gubernatorial Race

The Issue: Public Initiative

By Kelly Berg
Staff Reporter

and

Gregory A. Branson
Government/City Editor

A constitutional amendment that would allow Kansas citizens to directly put issues on a ballot is one of the main issues of Joan Finney's campaign.

Finney, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate, has repeatedly said she wants Kansas to adopt public initiative so Kansans can regain control of their government.

If Kansas adopts a public-initiative program, any Kansas citizen can petition to put a statutory question or proposal for a constitutional admendment or referendum on the general-election ballot.

"It allows the voter to have a say," said Melissa Warren, media director for the California Secretary of State office. "It gives the power to the people to propose amendments to their state constitution or new statutes or amendments to existing statutes."

California was one of the first states to start a public-initiative program. It was used for the first time in the 1912 general election.

"Right now, we're hearing a lot of complaints about the public initiative," Warren said. "But the people seem to be more or less worried about what's happening to it. They don't want to get rid of it altogether."

She said public initiative originally was created to aid grassroots movements and take some of the power away from politicians and large corporations and give it back to the people.

"But now it seems that it's helping the very groups it was created to circumvent," Warren said.

"Unfortunately in California, it's gotten to the point that if you have half a million dollars to spend, you can pay someone to gather you half a million signatures. The process is back in the hands of the people with money," she said.

"Paid circulators are becoming big business in California," Warren said. "These bounty hunters — as we call them — get between 50 cents to $1.25 per signature."

Warren said another problem developing from public initiative is the number of measures listed on each ballot.

"It's really getting crazy," she said. "There will be 28 measures on the November election ballot. 13 of those are initiative measures.

"We're having initiative wars. We often times have up to four competing initiatives about the same issue, each one having been put on it by opposing groups representing all sides of the issue," Warren said.

Steve Goodman, Finney campaign spokesperson, said Finney plans to limit the number of statutory questions on a ballot to five and the number of constitutional amendments to three.

This, Goodman said, should prioritize the issues and eliminate the possibility of initiative wars in Kansas.

Goodman said Finney proposes using a plan similar to California's.

In California, the process starts with a registered citizen drafting a legal proposal. The citizen then submits the draft to the attorney general. The attorney general writes an official title and summary and sends a copy to the budget officer for state legislature and the department of finance.

The proponents of the proposal have 150 days to gather the signatures necessary to put the measure on the ballot.

The petition to pass a statute or amend an existing one needs to have signatures of 5 percent of the number of voters who voted in the last gubernatorial election. The petition for a constitutional amendment must have 8 percent.

A random sample of the signatures are sent to the election officials in each county affected by the petitions where they are verified against existing records. This information is sent to the secretary of state.

If there are enough valid signatures, the measure is qualified to be on the next ballot to be voted on by the people. If not, the measure fails and is dropped.

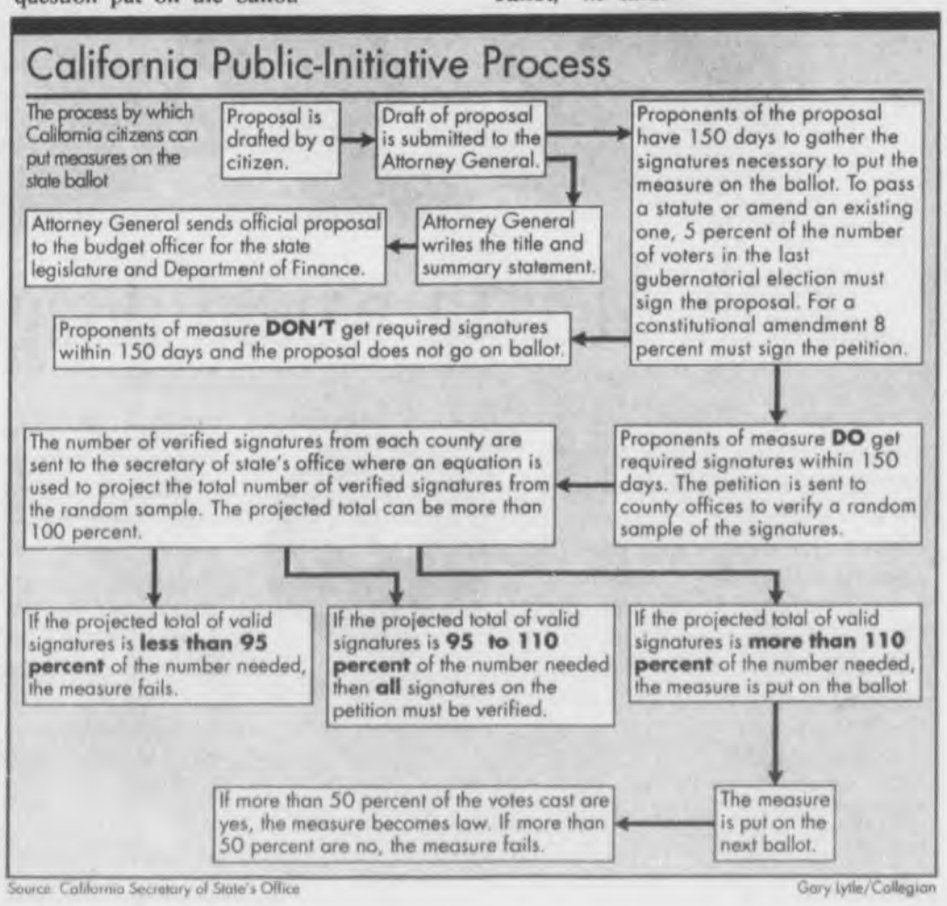
If 50 percent plus one person vote yes on the measure, it becomes law.

North Dakota has had a public-initiative program since 1914, and most people in the state seem to think it works, said John Bjornson, legal counsel for North Dakota's legislative council.

"If people don't feel like their elected officials are doing their jobs, public initiative gives them the chance to say 'We'll just do it ourselves,'" he said.

Gov. Mike Hayden, Finney's opponent, said he supported the public initiative and referendum concept when he was the Speaker of the House.

"I have long supported the idea that the public should be able to bring to the ballot certain questions," he said.



But Hayden said he does not think that a question should be put on the ballot every time there is controversy over the issue.

"On many of those tough issues, you, as governor, are expected to provide leadership," Hayden said.

The resolution Hayden introduced as speaker allowed people to petition to have a question put on the ballot.

The question would then have to be approved by the Kansas Legislature by a simple majority before it is put on the ballot. Under present law, a question must have a two-thirds majority in the Legislature before it is put on the ballot.

"The Legislature is there as a safegaurd so a lot of frivolous questions don't clutter the ballot," he said.

Source: California Secretary of State's Office — Gary Lytle/Collegian

BRIEFLY

World

Jerusalem turns to bloodbath

JERUSALEM (AP) — In Jerusalem's worst bloodshed since 1967, police fired Monday on stone-throwing Palestinians at the Temple Mount sacred to both Jews and Moslems, and at least 19 Arabs died.

The shooting began after Palestinians hurled a barrage of stones from the mount onto thousands of Jews gathered just below at the Western Wall, or Wailing Wall, where the Jews were celebrating the festival of Sukkot. The wall is Judaism's holiest site.

The Arabs were apparently infuriated by rumors that Jewish extremists planned to march onto the Temple Mount, which is under Moslem control.

The bloodbath touched off riots in the occupied territories that killed three more Palestinians.

Police Minister Roni Milo said 19 Arabs were killed in Jerusalem and about 140 wounded. Arab hospital officials at first said 22 were killed, then lowered their count to 18, with 125 wounded — lower than that given by the Israelis.

American doctors win Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two American doctors won the Nobel Prize in medicine Monday for their work in transplanting human organs and bone marrow, revolutionary procedures that have saved thousands of lives in three decades.

Joseph Murray, 71, who performed the first successful organ transplant — a kidney — and E. Donnall Thomas, 70, who pioneered bone marrow transplants to cure leukemia, will share the $695,000 prize.

Most Nobel Prizes in medicine have been awarded for basic research, not for clinical treatment.

Nation

Bush may limit TV viewing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A typical child may watch 10,000 hours to 15,000 hours of television before age 18. At the same time, that child may be exposed to 200,000 commercials.

For some youngsters, that may mean spending more time in front of the set than in school.

That's why a coalition of children's advocates and educators wants President Bush to sign legislation that would require TV stations to pay more attention to the educational needs of young viewers, while at the same time restricting the number of commercials on kids' shows.

Broadcasters say they can live with the measure, a compromise that was passed unanimously by both the House and the Senate.

Man advertises for future wife

SAFETY HARBOR, Fla. (AP) — John Young fears women aren't taking his approach seriously — he's advertising for a spouse with a sign on his car.

"I've had no takers. Absolutely none," the 45-year-old divorced convenience store manager said Monday. "Not even a crank call."

For two months, he's been driving around with a sticker on his car trunk reading "wife wanted" in block letters, followed by his telephone number.

A few women customers at the Pick Kwik noticed the sign and commented that it was unique, but that was it.

"The men scoff at it," he said. "They say things like, 'What, are you crazy? I've got one you can have.'

"I care," he said. "And I'm absolutely serious about it."

Soviet, Cuba face changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — For many Cuban commuters, getting to work these days means riding a bicycle instead of a bus, one of many hardships resulting from declining Soviet oil deliveries to the island.

With economic ties shrinking, and their respective ideologies no longer in harmony, Soviet-Cuban relations are facing greater uncertainty now than at any time in more than two decades, according to U.S. and Cuban experts.

Region

Professor laments open policy

TOPEKA (AP) — A University of Kansas professor told a group of lawmakers and education officials Monday he cannot be a college professor and high school teacher at the same time — a role forced upon him because of the state's open admission policy.

Phillip Paludan, a KU history professor, said a good number of the 300 students who enroll in his American history course should not be there. He said they prevent qualified students from enrolling in the class.

"You cannot help but see the ones who did not understand what you just said," Paludan told the Kansas Conference on Postsecondary Education, sponsored by the Legislative Educational Planning Committee.

Paludan was one of four panelists who spoke on a proposal to create admissions standards for Kansas students entering the state's six universities.

KU students protest holiday

LAWRENCE (AP) — Several student groups at the University of Kansas marched in protest of Columbus Day Monday.

Darren Fulcher, a spokesman for the Black Men of Today, described the holiday as a celebration of the beginning of white world supremacy.

Others protesting the holiday included American Indians and the university's Hispanic American Leadership Organization.

The purpose of the march was to bring attention to miseducation, Fulcher said. He said it was wrong to say that Columbus discovered a land that was never lost, and that students get a one-sided view of history from a white male perspective.

The protest was part of a national campaign, Fulcher said.

Campus

Forensics team 2nd in meet

Members of the K-State forensic team traveled to Creighton University in Omaha last weekend. Sixteen schools attended the tournament and K-State received second place.

"I was happy that we placed second. Hastings took first and they're our big rival. Hopefully the next time we meet up with them again we can beat them." said Craig Brown, director of forensics.

In prose, Jason Brown, senior in speech, received third place and Laura Camien, sophomore undecided, took sixth place. In impromptu speaking, Tom Burns, sophomore undecided, received sixth place.

In extemporaneous speaking, Tim Schultz, freshman in radio and television, took third place and Burns received sixth.

In informative speech, Stacie Schrock, sophomore undecided, took second place, Crystal Harding, sophomore in speech, received third and Terry Lindeman, senior in speech education, received sixth place. Tanya Williams, sophomore in chemistry, took fourth in persuasion and Camien took sixth.

Members of the team will travel to the University of Missouri St. Louis this weekend for a tournament, and K-State will host a tournament on Oct. 20.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

9 Tuesday

■ FENIX Adult Student Program/OWLS will meet from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Union Stateroom 1. FENIX advisers will be available to answer questions.

■ American Association of University Women will meet at 6 p.m. at the Manhattan Country Club.

■ SAVE will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Union 213.

■ Pre-Law Club will meet at 7 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room.

■ Mortar Board will meet at 9:30 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room.

■ Department of Geology will present "Teaching Earth Science as Industry" by Larry Enochs at 4 p.m. in Thompson 101.

■ Society for the Advancement of Management will have a meeting and Royal Purple pictures at 7 p.m. in the Union Little Theater. Southwestern Bell will be the guest speaker.

■ Astronomy Club will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Cardwell 407.

■ Black Student Union will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union 206.

■ Hospitality Management Society will meet at 8 p.m. in the Justin Hall Lobby.

■ Dairy Science Club will meet at 6:30 p.m. at Valentino's Pizza.

■ Sustainable Agriculture Discussion Group will meet at 11:30 a.m. in Throckmorton 313. Richard Black will speak on water-resource depletion.

■ German Club will meet from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. in Eisenhower 123.

■ K-State Sports Car Club will meet at 8 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

■ SPURS will meet at 9 p.m. at the Sigma Chi house at 1224 Fremont.

■ U-LearN and Off Campus Association will meet at 7 p.m. in Holton Hall 16 for game night.

■ New Currents will meet at 6 p.m. in the Union Courtyard. Everyone is welcome.

■ Society of Automotive Engineers will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Durland 129 to work on the mini-Baja vehicle.

■ Hispanic American Leadership Organization will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Union 203. The meeting is mandatory for all members attending the Chicago conference.

■ Alpha Chi Sigma will pledge new members at 7 p.m. in Willard 218.

■ Sigma Delta Pi will meet at 5 p.m. at Last Chance.

CORRECTION

Puerto Rico was inadvertently omitted from Monday's map of Native Countries of K-State Hispanic Students. The Collegian regrets the error.

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, a 50-percent chance for rain or drizzle in the morning. Mostly cloudy. High 45 to 50. Northerly winds 10 to 20 mph. Tonight, clearing. Low in the mid-30s. Wednesday, mostly sunny and warmer. High around 60.

Some people don't think children get abused in our area.

Little Melissa would disagree.

It is the unspeakable. The ultimate trauma. Impossible to think about. But impossible not to.

It is child abuse. Physical. Sexual. Emotional. And some people would rather think it doesn't happen in our area. But it does. In fact, one in four children will be violated or abused during their childhood.

Which is why we need your help.

Member agencies of the United Way of Riley County use your United Way gift to help abused children. It's money well spent. Doing the most good. Right here.

Giving to United Way means your money helps agencies that undergo strict evaluations of their programs, staff, and facility. And that means they are better prepared to give children like little Melissa the help they really need.

When you get your United Way pledge card this year, choose to help Melissa. Let your gift show you care.

United Way of Riley County

"I'll be there... Because we care"

K-State Campus Campaign Oct. 2-19. Use Payroll deduction.

(Sponsored by Circle K)

This Sale Is For THE BIRDS

To guarantee this sale price all season, buy your seasons supply of bird seed now, and we'll store it for you!

Oct. 7 thru Oct. 14

BIRD SEED	5 lb.	10 lb.	20 lb.	50 lb.
Black Oil Sunflower	2.00	—	7.50	13.00
Stripped Sunflower	2.25	—	8.00	14.00
Sunflower Hearts	3.50	—	12.00	—
Safflower	3.50	6.00	13.00	24.00
Thistle (Niger Seed)	3 lb. 4.00	14.00	27.00	49.00
Finch Mix (40% Niger – No Millet)	4.00	—	15 lb. 11.00	—
Basic Bird Mix	—	—	5.50	9.00

FRESHEST BIRD SEED IN TOWN

Bird Feeders
59 Styles Available

20% Off

LARGEST SELECTION IN MANHATTAN

Green Thumb Garden Center
1105 Waters
Across from Alco
539-4751

David Mayes/Staff

Wade Willson, junior in vocal performance and theater, and Jeff Kaufman, graduate in theater, perform a song in "Pump Boys and Dinettes." The musical opens tonight at 8 p.m. in Nichols Theatre with additional performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday and Oct. 16-20.

K-State Players open fall season with 'Pump Boys and Dinettes'

By Stacey Harbison
Collegian Reporter

With the recent hikes in oil prices, it's been a while since people have gotten excited about going to the gas station. "Pump Boys and Dinettes" may change that.

The K-State Players open their 1990 season with the recent Broadway hit musical at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Nichols Theatre.

"Pump Boys and Dinettes" is the musical story of four pump boys who work at a gas station and three dinettes who work at a diner next door. The production combines songs, dances and drama for a multifaceted entertainment experience.

Director Kate Anderson said one of the main reasons K-State Players is doing the show is because it is fun and doesn't have a lot of deep meaning — aside from a positive approach to life.

Anderson, an associate professor of theater, said the show describes the characters' lives and struggles. The fun and affection between the characters is portrayed through the lyrics and dialogue.

Anderson said the show is more like a concert because of the large role music plays in it. The songs give a vivid account of the characters' lives in their small Southern town.

"The whole point of the show is to assemble many different kinds of American styles of music," said Jeff Kaufman, assistant musical director and a character in the play.

Kaufman said the musical styles include country, blues, soul and gospel. There's also Italian-calypso-beach-party music, English folk songs and Jerry Lee Lewis-type music.

"It has a lot of different styles of music," said Kevin Peirce, sophomore in hotel and restaurant management. "It's a lot different than any musical I've ever seen."

Peirce said there is a lot of interaction with the audience and that the dialogues are natural.

Kaufman said "Pump Boys and Dinettes" features lots of dancing, singing, toe tapping and hand clapping.

"It's a celebration of ordinary people having a good time," he said.

The show runs Wednesday through Friday and Oct. 16-20. There will be a matinee Saturday, Oct. 13, at 2 p.m. Tickets are available at the McCain Box Office.

Women's group upset by showing of movie

Film's rape scene starts controversy

By Shannon Heim
Collegian Reporter

A rape scene in a film to be shown as part of the UPC Kaleidoscope Series sparked faculty in the Women's Studies program to sponsor a panel discussion Monday in Union 203.

Women's Studies Director Sandra Coyner led the discussion about "She's Gotta Have It," a film directed by Spike Lee.

"I don't think people see what's going on in the movie," Coyner said. "It (the movie) portrays a message that if a woman's sexuality is out of control, the appropriate thing for a man to do is rape her.

"Rape is a very violent act of power," she said. "It is a legitimate instrument by which men control women. I'm sick of it."

The movie, advertised as a jazzy and casual sex comedy, tells the story of Nola Darling, a graphic designer who lives in Brooklyn and is sexually involved with three men. Nola seems to be in control of her life, including the men she chooses to sleep with, but then she is raped by one of them.

"We're not advocating censorship," said Jeannette McGowan, senior in microbiology. "But there is nothing funny in this movie. Rape is not a funny issue."

Coyner said she wants other women who see the film and feel awful about it to know they're not alone.

"I want women to be able to be in charge and make our own decisions," she said.

The panel members said they thought the movie blamed women for date rape. They said they want women to recognize they do not ever deserve to be raped. It is something that gives the attacker a sense of power over the victim.

Margaret Mara, a staff member in women's studies, said UPC asked the Racial/Ethnic Harmony committee to endorse Lee's movie as part of the week's activities. The committee members denied the request and plan to hand out flyers warning viewers about the stereotypes of blacks and women portrayed in the movie, Mara said.

"We want to stimulate discussion," Mara said. "Men and Women Against Rape are planning discussions after at least one of the film's showings."

"I was horrified by the rape scene," Mara said. "I cannot understand why this movie is advertised as a sex comedy."

Almost all of the movie is in black and white, and it is artfully done, Mara said.

"The fact that it is very well-made makes the message it gives even more so disturbing," she said.

Mara said she hopes that viewers will get information from the flyers that will give them critical-viewing skills and make them more aware of what takes place in the movie.

The movie is scheduled to be shown at 7 p.m Oct. 10-12 and also at 3:30 p.m. on Oct. 11.

A LOT CAN BE SAID ABOUT A LITTLE BIT OF SPACE:
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ClassADS
They Work

Hunam Chinese Restaurant
For Delivery
7 days a week
11 a.m. to 10 p.m.
539-8888 or 539-0888

The Amazing MICRO DIET
Developed & endorsed by international physicians & nutritionists, The Amazing Micro Diet is a proven common sense, full-spectrum approach dedicated "to improve the health and quality of life of all the peoples of this planet."
We have tried the Micro Diet personally - It works.
Sponsored by Horst Pharmacy
Call 1-800-325-4489
511 N. Main Newton, Kans.
or your Manhattan advisor or 537-3840.

De Klerk offers amnesty

By The Associated Press

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — President F.W. de Klerk announced Monday that political exiles can begin applying to return to South Africa, addressing the key demand of the African National Congress.

His statement followed a three-hour meeting with ANC leader Nelson Mandela at which they apparently differed on causes of black factional fighting that has killed about 800 people in eight weeks.

De Klerk said that exiles, many based in Zambia and other southern African nations, could immediately begin applying for amnesty for political offenses.

But he cautioned: "No indemnity for anyone, or for any event or offense is granted automatically." He said any possible indemnity would only apply to acts committed before Monday's meeting.

The move could help resolve one of the major stumbling blocks of peace talks between the white-led government and Mandela's ANC, the largest black opposition movement.

$10 OFF PERMS with
Debbie or Carole
Ray's Hair Maxim
622 N. Manhattan
(Aggieville)
537-8620
Expires Oct. 20, 1990
SORBIE
ROFFLER

Screamer 286 $599!*
The new DFI Racer-286 gives you speedy performance at an incredible introductory price. You get:
•12.5 MHz with 1MB RAM installed
•1.2 MB floppy
•Fast IDE hard/floppy drive controller
•1 serial port, 2nd serial port optional
•1 parallel printer port
•Monographics
•0-wait state RAM
•Shadow RAM/ video BIOS
•EMS 4.0 support
•FCC Class B approved
•One-year on-site warranty
*While current stock lasts. Hurry, they'll go fast!
Price does not include monitor, keyboard or mouse.
Flint Hills Computers
1209 Laramie 776-8869

Prior to delivering the Fourth Dwight D. Eisenhower Lecture on Tuesday Evening,
Russell F. Weigley
Professor of History at Temple University will autograph copies of his books in the
K-State Union Bookstore
Tuesday, October 9, 1990
11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.
Both of his books,
The American Way of War
and
Eisenhower's Lieutenants
are available in the Bookstore.
K-State Union Bookstore

"Eisenhower in Perspective:
Ranking Him Among the Great Military Commanders of American History"
The Fourth
Dwight D. Eisenhower Lecture in War and Peace
by
Russell F. Weigley
Temple University
Author of The American Way of War and Eisenhower's Lieutenants
Forum Hall
K-State Union
Tuesday, October 9, 1990
8:00 p.m.

MCCAIN
Hello, Dolly!
Thursday, October 18, 8 p.m.
The vivacious Mimi Hines stars as the resourceful widow and mischievous matchmaker Dolly Gallagher Levi in this Tony Award-winning Broadway musical. The New York Times notes that in an age of machine-made musicals, Dolly! has the rare qualities of freshness and imagination, hailing it "a musical shot through with enchantment."
"Has eye appeal, ear appeal, love appeal, and laugh appeal. There is no handsomer way to visit Little Old New York." (Time)
Students/ Children: $10, 9, 8
General Public: $20, 18, 16
Senior Citizens: $18, 16, 14
Your One Bank For Northeast Kansas
FirstBank
Presented in part by FirstBank.

McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays.
McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

EDITORIALS

Women reporters have right to interviews

The fight is on.

The professional football season has barely started, and the players and coaches are in the middle of a war with reporters.

Except it's not all reporters — just women reporters.

The question raised is whether women should be allowed in men's locker rooms to interview the players after the game.

The men say no. They don't want to be interviewed by a female while standing in a towel.

The same players don't seem to have any qualms with speaking to male reporters while in the same lack of dress.

To solve the players' distress, coaches have violated the rules that allowed women in locker rooms since 1978 by barring female reporters from the locker rooms.

And when the players do allow them in, the women are verbally brutalized. The last two weeks have been filled with incidents of women reporters who were sexually propositioned and made subject to lewd comments.

The players have taken the cheap way out of a situation women cannot get out of. Short of giving up their sports reporting careers, the women are subject to abuse until something is done about the interviewing process after sporting events.

Cincinnati Coach Sam Wyche was given the largest fine ever for an NFL coach for prohibiting a woman reporter, Denise Tom from USA Today, from entering the Bengals' locker rooms.

Wyche said he thinks the commissioner, Paul Tagliabue, feels that it's more important to fine him than seek another solution.

What is the solution?

Some teams have set up interview rooms, but some of the stadiums are too old to have a room big enough for all of the reporters and players.

The lack of meeting-room space could be solved by following the lead of tennis players and women's sporting events by interviewing the players on the field directly after the game in uniform or after the showers in street clothes (possibly in the locker rooms).

Barring women from the locker rooms while welcoming male reporters keeps women from doing their job and is not the answer.

For years, women have been fighting to get the story just like men have. Returning to gender discrimination on the sports field will not shed a positive light on the football league or the newspapers.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... David Frese
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel,
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koel
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little, Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff, Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

Student Publications Staff

DIRECTOR/NEWS ADVISER ..... Ron Johnson
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR/ADVERTISING DIRECTOR ..... Gloria Freeland
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR ..... Linda Puntney
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Ann Foster
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE ..... Jackie Harmon
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Linda Weatherly
OFFICE MANAGER ..... Pat Hudgins
ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT ..... Connie Fulkerson
INTERIM NEWS PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... David Svoboda
NEWS PRODUCTION ASSISTANT ..... Carla Jones
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Wanda Haynie
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS ..... Tammi Landis, Dana Franklin, Chris Tucker, Britt Owen, Deanna Adams
OFFICE STAFF ..... Shanta Bailey, Matt FitzGerald, Christa South
CARRIERS ..... Joe Cook, Minda Dowdy, John Fulkerson, Norm LeComte, James Seymore

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $30
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $54
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $60

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116. Students will be asked to show their I.D. card upon submission when done in Kedzie 116.

Early memories unclear

Kevin Zwink

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

I've been trying to remember what it was really like when I was a child and what it was really like when I was a teen-ager. Looking back on it now, I find I'm having problems painting a memory that truly represents all the feelings and perspectives I held as a child and a teen-ager. I remember I disliked adults, the "them people." Them people were always so stupid and serious. Why couldn't they just have a little fun? Them people were always involved in exclusive rituals like drinking beer and smoking cigarettes. I knew they wouldn't let us take part in these rituals because then we would know the secret of life. I remember them people always giving us advice that they had learned from not following it when they were younger. I never knew what the hell they were talking about anyway.

I suppose my attempts at remembrance were sparked by a conversation I had with my two budding teen-age sisters. Well, I guess I was giving them a lecture. That's what made me sick. I was telling them about responsibility and choices and the importance of school and uuuggghhh ... "Aw, be quiet Kev, you sound just like Mom."

I felt this dull ache spread throughout my body. My feelings were hurt. Kids can be so cruel.

I tried to remember which of them people I thought was cool. It was the math teacher in grade school who could be sidetracked from schoolwork by asking him questions and getting him to just talk. He always let us have 20 minutes for recess instead of 15.

It was the P.E. teacher who teased us, but it was fun. He always had a way of feeding the bullies and the tough guys their own medicine, and that gave us a real sense of what justice was about.

It was the substitute teachers and spitwads. Them people were always so easy to fool.

It was the baseball coach with his luxuriant paunch — which I now know is the secret behind the beer-drinking ritual. He yelled a lot and gave us good advice that he had never followed, but it was cool because we knew he didn't know what he was talking about.

It was tough being a kid. You would know it's tough if you had to play spin the bottle and had to kiss Kathy, a girl ... bblleecck.

Oh yeah, now I remember another thing that was great. This was funny. Collecting worms that are always so abundant after a rainstorm and putting them in Mary's hair.

When I was 19, I told Tina about this funny grade school memory and she said, "Wow, Kevin, that's reeaall funny." Then I walked around the rest of the day with a sign Tina had taped to my back that said "I love Barry Manilow and think that John Davidson is sexy." I guess we're even, Mary. Maybe not.

Oh yeah ... it was summers of swimming and Gilligan's Island. But in the swimming pool locker room I could never figure out why them people wore those funny strappy underwear under their swimming suits.

Then I grew up and was a teen-ager. It was cool, man. If them people wanted to have short hair and listen to stupid old-fashioned music, who cared. When I turned into one of them, I was going to always like the music of younger people.

Them people must have been pretty boring when they were one of us. They probably told their parents to not drink and smoke and to quit listening to music and to get a haircut. I didn't envy their moms and dads.

I decided I would smoke cigarettes and drink beer if I wanted — well, if I could find some. What made them so special? If Mr. Dingledorf was so with it, what was he doing teaching social studies? Oh yeah right, it was cool, man.

"Now young man, when you get a little older you'll understand. The world isn't a big main street that you can drag in your car with your music blasting."

What did they mean "behavior disorder"? Them people were the ones with behavior out of order. Man, I couldn't wait 'til I was 18, and me and all my friends would change things and maybe get everyone to lighten up a little.

Then all my friends betrayed me and went to weird places and decided that maybe they should just give in and become one of them people.

Then I started wondering why my younger cousin listened to such lousy music. Then I started talking to my sisters.

Now I sit in front of a computer with a plate full of cigarette butts by my side and a lot of good advice that I learned from not following it. Now I'm trying to figure out what kids and teen-agers feel like. Now I call them the "them people." Them people are going to learn. Well, maybe not. Them people are going to forget. I forgot. I used to be one of them.

LETTERS

More smiles needed

Editor,

I believe that the world would be a much happier place if everyone smiled. Furthermore, this campus we all love would be in harmonious plentitude if more people would simply smile and say "hi" as they passed another individual. It saddens me to see someone walking through campus with his head down. It leads me to believe they have no love or lust for the simple pleasures to be found in this one life we have.

I'm sure that everyone has seen the beautiful flowers and tall trees flourishing and reaching for every ray of sunlight they can possibly absorb, just as I try to absorb each and every smile my eyes are blessed to see. I just wish that more of my fellow pedestrians would share a smile with everyone and everything they come into contact with.

I wish I could take away all the prejudice, hate, sorrow, and despair. Perhaps if I had a magic staff I could wave it high in the air and make everyone smile and accept his neighbor as a brother and friend. I wish I could, but I can't — or can I? My father always said "Can't never did nothin' bo."

David Fowler
junior in interior design

Ban the car

Editor,

Pop quiz: Police are hired by the elite to enforce, not make the laws. A) True. B) False. C) Some of the time.

The answer should be A, but at K-State the answer is C.

That finished, I want to congratulate the campus police on a job overdone. Somehow though, I don't feel safer knowing that they are capable of stopping the hordes of rollerskaters, skateboarders, bicyclists and anyone else a police officer feels might be committing an act remotely against their version of the law.

The law, with which the three heroic police officers shown on the front page of the Oct. 4 Collegian were trying in vain to nail the cornered student, bans skateboards from campus. The law is in response to damage done to some of the lovely concrete on campus, and, presumably the potential for injuries to the rider and others by skateboards.

Bicycles are likewise regulated. The environmentally friendly vehicles are barred from the sidewalks necessary to reach the awkwardly placed bike racks and consigned to a secondary role on campus and in society as well.

There is only one incident I can recall involving a skateboard and a pedestrian — the Lawrence accident in which a woman was injured by a flying skateboard. Most accidents involving skateboards and bicycles involve only the rider.

The ban in this town and on campus, however, predates the incident in Lawrence and was based not on humane reasons, but on the hatred of skateboarders and bikers and economic reasons, i.e. greed.

The injustice in this situation, aside from the obvious harassment of the skater, is the fact that automobiles are still allowed on campus. Automobiles cause countless deaths and suffering of the feared bicyclists, skateboarders and pedestrians, as well as damage to the precious concrete and to the air we breathe.

Yet no one, until now, has hollered to ban cars on campus. Can the car. Get rid of the smelly deathtrap. Walk or ride your bike, always demanding the right of way from autos.

Obstruct traffic when possible. In other words, make it easier to walk or ride than drive.

Dean Hargett
senior in anthropology

Letter uncalled for

Editor,

This is in response to the "Comics depressing" letter. While it is obvious Glimpses is too esoteric for Myers to appreciate, her critical remarks are uncalled for.

As a friend of Jeff Gabel, I know him to be an intelligent, sensitive and creative individual. If you find his work to be "ignorant and depressing," go buy your own comic books. Don't ask for something to be censored just because you don't care for it.

David Dragone
graduate student in political science

Candidate meeting scheduled

By Charlie Gatschet
Collegian Reporter

An informational meeting for students interested in being involved with Student Government Association is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. Tuesday in Union Room 207.

"This meeting is for all people even thinking about running for elective office," said Chris Kern, chairman of Student Senate. "It is primarily to inform people who have no idea what Student Senate does."

While senators make up the majority of SGA, the meeting is for students interested in any phase of student government. This includes non-elected offices such as: Senate standing committees, student body president cabinet positions and SGA judicial board.

Members of SGA will answer questions about the functions of student government and will discuss the duties of student senators. Kern said SGA wants to encourage students to run for office, and that it is important for them to know what they're getting into.

This year, Senate has had to replace 14 senators who have either resigned or had a change in government duties, and one position hasn't been filled yet. Kern said he believes the meeting will inform people before they make a one-year commitment to Senate.

"We've had senators quit, and that doesn't provide continuity in Senate," Kern said. "We're not trying to discourage people from running, we just want them to be prepared."

Undergraduate students enrolled in seven or more hours, and graduate students enrolled in six or more hours, are eligible to run for governmental office as long as they don't graduate before November 1991.

General elections this year are scheduled for Oct. 30 and 31. Students running for office must pick up a filing form in the Student Government Services office in the Union and submit it to the Dean of Student Life Office in Holton Hall by 5 p.m. Oct. 16.

Speaker promotes freedom of choice

By Liz Anne McElhaney
Collegian Reporter

Abortion is a necessity in a society unwilling to truly help women avoid pregnancy in the first place, said Sharilyn Young, executive director of Planned Parenthood of Kansas.

"Everyone has the right to make it a choice for themselves," Young said at a Voices of Choice meeting. "Once men get a hold of our fetuses, what do we have?"

Young encouraged K-State students to take action and protect their right of making a choice in Kansas. Young blamed corporate America for unplanned pregnancies.

"We've stimulated the hormones of every adolescent

■ See CHOICE, Page 8

Treat Yourself To A "Triple Whammy"!!
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY.
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Tower
Aggieville

HUNAM Restaurant & Lounge
Mini-Lunch Buffet
$4.50
11:30-2 M-F
1304 Westloop
539-8888 or 539-0888
Open 7 Days
We Deliver

PREGNANCY TESTING CENTER
539-3338
•Free Pregnancy Testing
•Totally Confidential Services
•Same Day Results
•Call For Appointment
Walk-ins Welcome
•Located across from Campus in Anderson Village
Monday-Friday
9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
or by appointment

BUSHWACKERS
• THE • FUNDRINKERY
Comedy Invasion
Mon., Tues., & Wednesday
Bill Engvall
a Tonight Show regular
along with Steve Camanetti
18 to enter, 21 to drink
Before 5 p.m. 539-4321
Call for Reservations 531 N. Manhattan
After 5 p.m. 539-9727

PHI DELTA THETA
12th Annual
Score for Charity
Thank you too all the teams who participated.

Independent Women	Independent Men	Sororities	Fraternities
A Bunch of Girls	Phi Wacka Jacka—Manhattan	ΣΚ	ΛΧΑ	ΦΚΘ
	Phi Wacka Jacka—K.C.	ΠΒΦ	ΤΚΕ	ΘΧ
All proceeds go to ALS	Sigma Phi Epsilon—Alumni	ΑΧΩ	ΒΘΠ	ΦΓΔ
	X—Delts	ΑΔΠ	ΔΥ	Farmhouse
	Blue Dogs	ΧΩ	ΔΣΦ	ΑΤΩ
		ΔΔΔ	ΣΝ	ΣΧ
		ΚΚΓ	ΣΦΕ	ΣΑΕ
		ΓΦΒ	ΑΚΛ	ΑΓΡ
		Kitshickers

Congratulations to the winners: TKE & KKΓ *Thanks to Acacia & ΣΣΣ for your contribution

Racial/ Ethnic Harmony Week
October 8-12, 1990

•Tuesday • Tuesday • Tuesday • Tuesday • Tuesday • Tuesday • Tuesday •

1:30 p.m. "Diversity on Campus and in The Community" An Interactive Forum, Union 212

7:00 p.m. "Coming Out Stories: Gay & Lesbian Experience" Union 205

• Wednesday • Wednesday • Wednesday • Wednesday • Wednesday •

10:30 a.m. "Ethnic Harmony: A Tune We Can All Dance To?" Seminar by Ricardo Garcia, Professor of Education, K-State Union 212

OCTOBER 20th
KQLA 104 103.9 FM
K-STATE VS MISSOURI
ICAT BUS TRIP
To Columbia, MO
DEPARTURE: MEET AT BRAMLAGE COLISEUM WEST PARKING LOT. 7.30AM
EXPENSES: 25.00/PERSON (INCLUDES TICKET)
REGISTRATION: DEADLINE OCTOBER 13TH DROP BY THE ATHLETIC OFFICE OR MAIL CHECK TO MIKE AHEARN SCOLARSHIP FUND (ICAT) 1800 COLLEGE AVE QUESTIONS (JEFF CHAPMAN 539-6910)

YOU'RE INVITED
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20
To Help Us Celebrate!
Memorial Hospital wants to invite you and your family to come and see your new hospital. We've just wrapped up an impressive construction and renovation project and we're eager for you to see the improvements, and to meet the special people who work here. Please join us for a tour of the hospital, refreshments, and health screenings. We think you're going to like what we've got to show you!
MEMORIAL HOSPITAL OPEN HOUSE
1 - 4 p.m.
Saturday, October 20, 1990
REGISTER TO WIN: A 3-day Nassau cruise for two from International Tours Travel Agency of Manhattan. Ship sails April 26, 1991. Bon Voyage!
MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
Yesterday's values, Tomorrow's technology
1105 Sunset P.O. Box 1208 • Manhattan, KS 66502 • 913-776-3300
©1990 Memorial Hospital

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS

Grogan still surprising people on field

New England Patriots/File

Early in his career, New England Patriots quarterback Steve Grogan developed a reputation as a fearless runner as a quarterback — an unusual combination.

Former Wildcat quarterback among NFL's best at 37

By Todd Fertig
Sports Reporter

New England Patriots quarterback Steve Grogan has made a career of surprising people.

As a fifth-round draft choice without much of a resume from his college career at K-State, few expected him to make the Patriots' squad in his rookie season.

As an inexperienced passer who directed the Wildcat option in the early 1970s, few expected him to develop into a polished quarterback capable of beating a team in the air.

And this season, at 37 years old, few expected Grogan to win the Patriots' starting quarterback job and perform on a level comparable to the NFL's elite.

Grogan

But Grogan continues to surprise everyone, himself included.

Today's college students were just learning to read when the scrambling quarterback from K-State began learning to read NFL defenses. Those who have grown up following professional football cannot remember when Grogan was not recognized as one of the top quarterbacks in the league.

Grogan has passed for more than 25,000 yards in his professional career and is possibly the most well-known, most successful professional athlete in the history of K-State.

At 37, and many times in the past few years, Grogan was expected to assume the role of mentor to the Patriots' younger quarterbacks, no longer capable of directing the team's offense. But instead, Grogan won the starting job in training camp and got off to a fast start in the regular season, completing 63.5 percent of his passes and achieving the second-highest rating of AFC quarterbacks after two games.

An inflamed nerve in his neck has sidelined Grogan since the second game and will probably keep him out of action for several games. He said the Patriots are being overly cautious about keeping him healthy and that moving to the bench was difficult because he was playing well.

"It was extremely disappointing for me to come out of the starting lineup when things were going well like they were," Grogan said. "I had earned the starting job going into the season for the first time in three or four years and was playing better than I have in a long time. I really had to fight myself to keep from trying to play hurt, but we decided the smart thing was for me to take a seat for a few weeks to try to get well."

Though Grogan's career ranks with some of the top passers in the NFL, he gave little indication that he would be so successful while at K-State. From 1972-74, the Ottawa native helped direct Vince Gibson's offense that featured the likes of Wildcats' all-time leading rusher Isaac Jackson and future pros Don Calhoun and Henry Childs.

Grogan is sixth on the University's all-time passing list but did not consider himself a good passer while in college.

"I didn't figure I had much of a chance coming out of college as a fifth-round pick," Grogan said. "We ran the option while I was at K-State, and I had a lot to learn about the passing game."

Because of changes in personnel and the ineffectiveness of starter Jim Plunkett, the Patriots found themselves needing Grogan, who got the opportunity to learn on the job. During his rookie season, Grogan split time in the lineup with Plunkett. The Patriots traded Plunkett following the season, making Grogan the full-time starter.

"I was a pretty good running quarterback and could add a lot of mobility to the offense," said Grogan, who rushed for 585 yards while at K-State. "That skill sort of bought me enough time to learn what I needed to about the passing game, and I was able to adapt."

Though he wasn't a great quarterback on a successful team while in college, Grogan said the years at K-State were very important to his development.

"We didn't win much during my years at K-State, and I wasn't great then, but it was a very special time for me that I owe a lot to," Grogan said. "I wouldn't trade it for Notre Dame or USC or anyplace else because it was there that I learned so many things about life that have gotten me to the NFL and have kept me here."

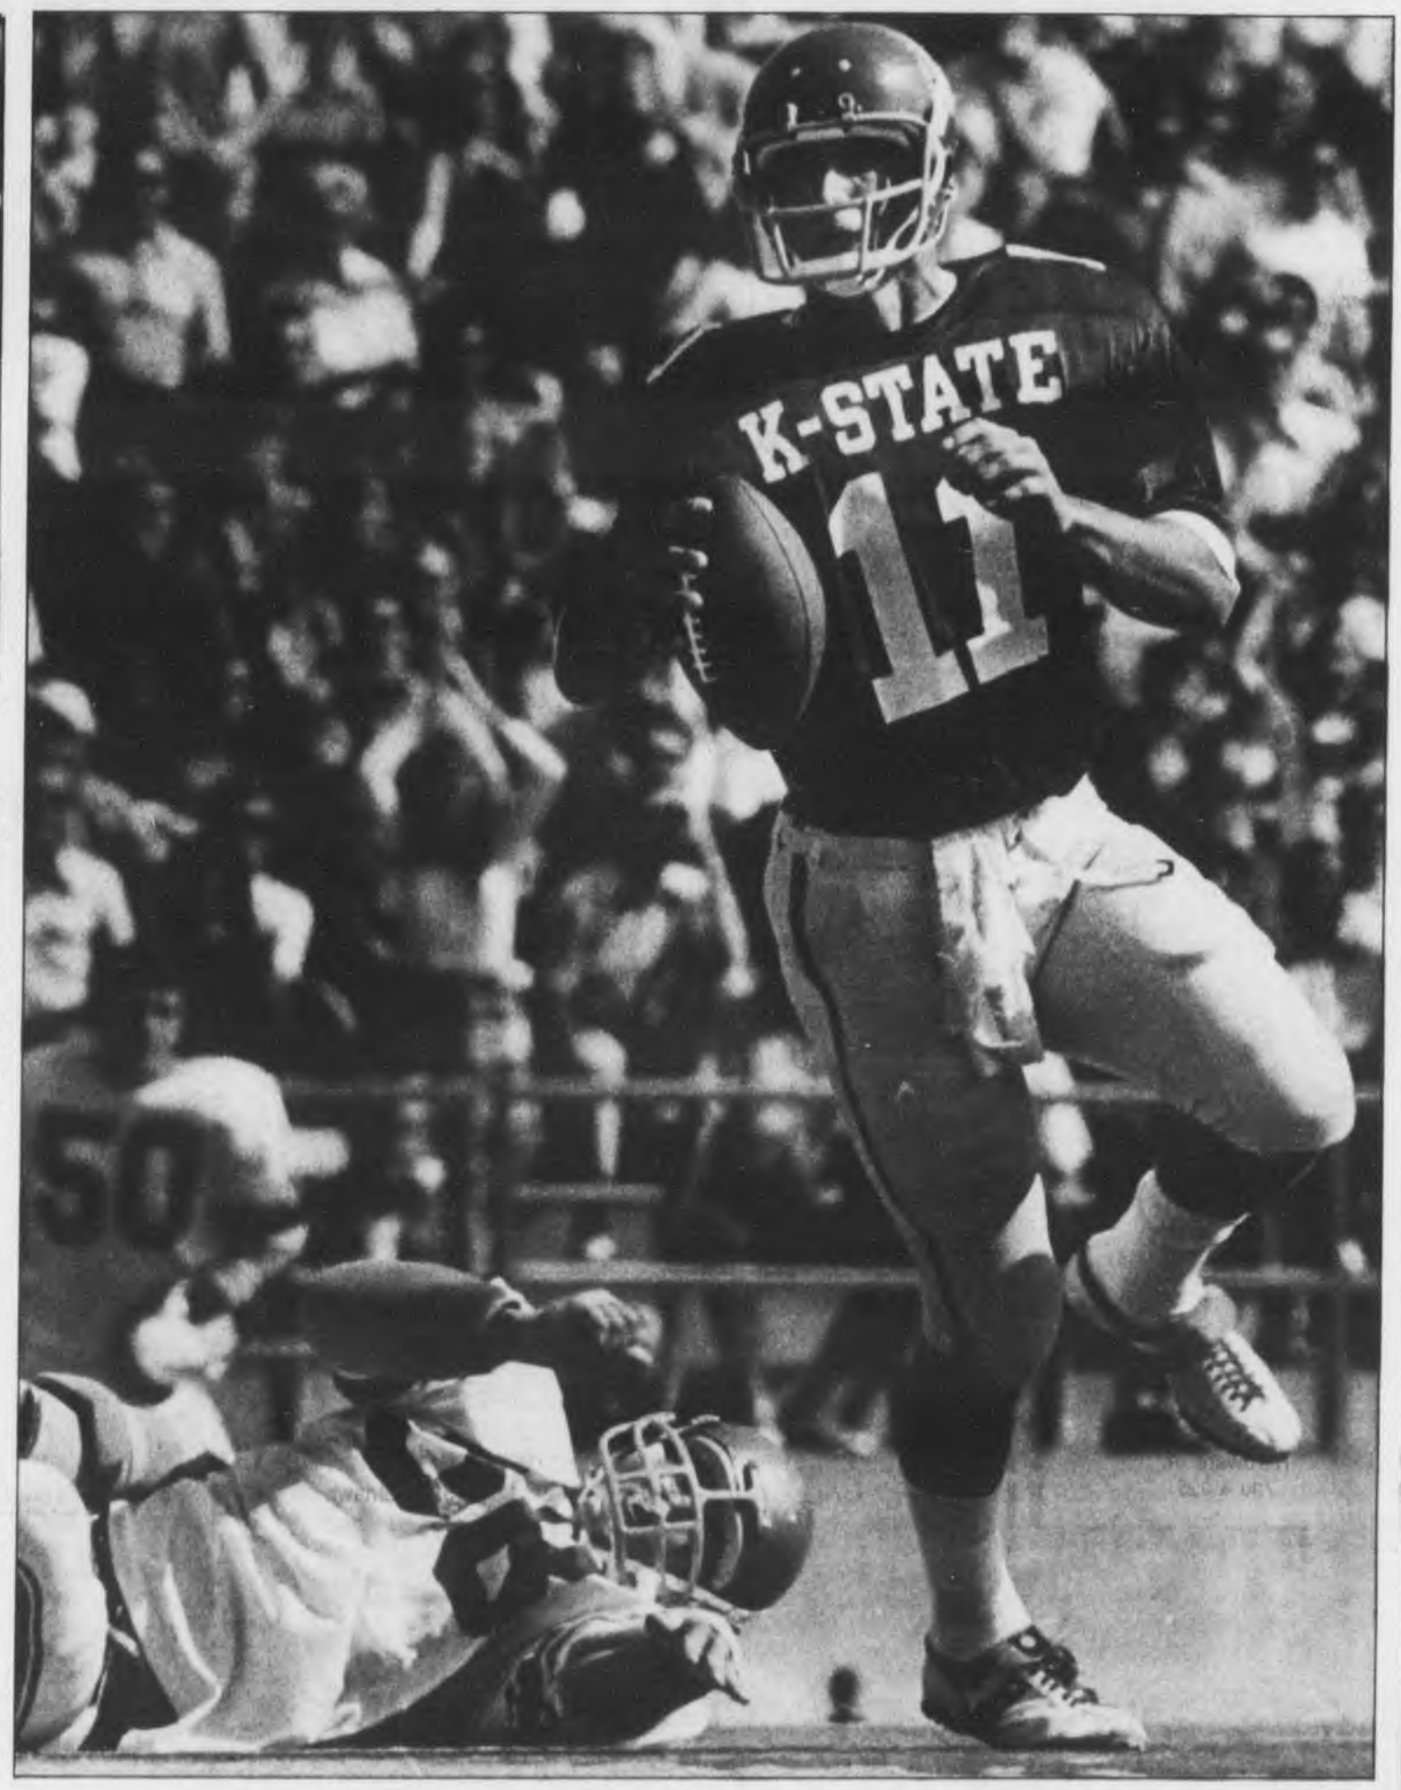
Grogan recalls two seasons as the highlights of his career. The first is the 1976 season, when the team surprised the league following a 3-11 season in 1975 with an 11-3 mark and a trip to the playoffs. In his first season as the club's full-time quarterback, Grogan threw for 1,903 yards and 18 touchdowns while running for 397 yards and a team-high 12 touchdowns.

The other highlight was the 1985 season, in which Grogan came off the bench early in the season to replace an injured Tony Eason. Grogan led the Patriots to six straight wins that sparked the team's drive to the Super Bowl.

Though the Patriots were beaten by the Chicago Bears, the game remains a cherished memory to Grogan. Replacing Eason in the second quarter, Grogan passed for nearly all of the team's total yards and its only touchdown, an eight-yard pass to Irving Fryar in the fourth quarter.

"Going to the Super Bowl was one of the most important and fun things that have happened to me," Grogan said. "It was something I'll never forget. To be part of the buildup and all the attention, it was just incredible."

Physical ability, hard work and good fortune are not the only things to which Grogan credits his lengthy career. His approach to the game and his focus on the team have helped him to persevere in his unpredictable profession.



"A lot of it is that I don't let my ego get in the way," Grogan said. "I've had some ups and downs, I've been benched, I've been written off, and I've had some success. But I just try not to take myself too seriously and don't let things affect how I perform."

His health will probably be the deciding factor in how much longer he stays in the NFL, Grogan said. He doesn't worry about when his career will end, however, and said he takes life in the NFL one day at a time.

"I'm just going to keep giving it all I can until the team decides I'm not able to get the job done or I feel like I can't play like I want to be able to," Grogan said. "I think the amount I play this year will determine how much longer I can go. When you reach this point, you can't take as much. So if I play a lot more this season and get banged around like I was the first couple of games, I don't know if I'll be around much longer."

Grogan doesn't have any definite plans for life after the NFL. He said he and his wife Robbi may return with their three sons to live in the Midwest.

"Hopefully, I'll find something I enjoy doing as much as I enjoy football and will attack it with the same commitment and try to be as successful at it as I have been in this career," Grogan said.

Sports Information/File

Grogan's skills running the football were developed, in large part, at K-State, where he ran an option attack for the Wildcats. The No. 11 that he and K-State hall-of-famer Lynn Dickey wore while playing for the Wildcats has been retired by the University.

The Grogan File

While at K-State:
Fifth all-time leading passer
Fourth all-time total offense
1974 team Most Valuable Player
1973, '74 Academic All-Big Eight
1975 Blue-Gray Game

SPORTS BRIEFLY

Ticket policies announced

The athletic department will begin the sale of student season basketball tickets on Monday. The price is $70.

From 5-7 p.m. that day, members of I Contributed A Twenty will have the opportunity to purchase tickets. On Tuesday, students who purchased football tickets will have the opportunity to purchase tickets.

On Wednesday, all remaining students will be given the opportunity to purchase tickets.

Men's tourney shortened

Due to inclement weather, the 22nd Annual Falcon Invitational men's golf tourney was called after 36 holes. The K-State men wound up fifth in the tournament, played in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Rice won the team title, and K-State was 14 shots off the pace.

Brett Vuillemin led K-State with a 154, finishing ninth. Will Siebert and Richard Laing tied for 18th at 157, Bill Graham shot 159 for 31st, and Chad Judd shot 168 to finish 79th.

Women golfers finish 3rd

The K-State women's golf team finished third in the 11-team Huskie Classic last weekend in DeKalb, Ill.

Illinois State won the team title.

Chris Adams led K-State with a 166, finishing in a tie for third. Adena Hagedorn shot a 167, Valerie Hahn a 171, Theresa Coyle a 179, and Denise Pottle a 193 to complete the K-State scoring.

Rugby club loses first

The K-State/Ft. Riley Rugby Club saw its eight-game winning streak come to an end last Saturday, as the Kansas City Blues downed the club 31-0.

The club will host another home match this weekend, as the club side will face Johnson County and the collegiate side will face the Topeka Rugby Club.

Reds take NLCS lead

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds broke their hitting slump and Zane Smith's magic on Monday to take a 2-1 lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League playoffs with a 6-3 win.

In 10 starts for the Pirates after being acquired from Montreal on Aug. 8, Smith gave up nine earned runs in 75 innings. In Game 3, the Reds got five runs off Smith in five innings. Danny Jackson got the win for the Reds.

Michigan new No. 1

Losses by last week's top two teams lifted the once-beaten Michigan Wolverines to the top of The Associated Press college football poll Monday. It's the earliest a team with a loss has ever been ranked No. 1.

Undefeated Virginia, which didn't play last week, was second with 14 first-place votes and 1,384 points. Once-beaten Miami jumped six spots to No. 3 with six first-place votes and 1,324 points. Rounding out the Top 10 are Oklahoma, Tennessee, Auburn, Nebraska, Notre Dame, Florida and Florida State.

Officials' mistake ends in Mizzou loss

Scott Paske
SPORTS REPORTER

Once again, college football has taught us to never say we've seen it all.

In the past, a kickoff has been returned for a touchdown while a band marched on the field for its postgame show. Players have come from sideline benches to make tackles. One team scored 222 points in a game.

In the latest of odd circumstances, human error cost Missouri its second straight upset win over a nationally-ranked team.

Mizzou, you got screwed.

The Big Eight ruled Monday that Colorado's 33-31 win over the Tigers will stand, even though the Buffaloes' game-winning touchdown came on a fifth-down play that should have never happened. The ruling stated " ... in accordance with the football playing rules, the allowance of the fifth down to Colorado is not a postgame correctable error."

For those not familiar with the scenario, here's what happened. Colorado, trailing 31-27, marched deep into Tiger territory late in the game. The Buffs were stymied three times inside Missouri's 10-yard line.

On what should have been fourth and goal, CU quarterback Charles Johnson spiked the ball to the ground to stop the clock. Change of possession? No. The down-marker still read third down.

Without recognition of the error by officials, Tiger coaches or the Missouri scoreboard clock operator, Colorado got another chance. Johnson took advantage of the extra play by scoring from two yards out with no time remaining.

Television replay showed the touchdown was questionable, as

■ See COLUMN, Page 8

Hispanic students view discrimination

Acts of racism surprise, dismay minorities

Editor's note: This is the second installment in a week-long series focusing on hispanic students at K-State.

By Erica Parker
Staff Reporter

Some hispanic students say they have experienced discrimination while some others say they haven't.

"I don't relate to hispanics only," said Eduardo Arce-Diaz, graduate student in agricultural economics and citizen of Costa Rica. "I try to relate to others, too.

"I understand that this is important because it's like re-creating your home in a way. But we have a very nice opportunity here to be a part of another culture, and we should take advantage of it," Arce-Diaz said.

In a "Racism at K-State" series in the May 2, 1990 issue of the Collegian, several black students expressed concern that members of their minority group stick together.

"When I sit down at the Union, I just want to be with my people," William Coleman, a black student, said in the article.

In the same article, the Rev. Don Fallon, coordinator of religious activities, said, "There is a kind of exclusiveness and a separation that has been happening" among black students.

"You need to share with everybody," said Mariangeli Cintron, junior in preveterinary medicine from Puerto Rico.

She said she doesn't think about what color or race people are when she talks to them. "I have friends from all over," she said.

"It's always nice to see a hispanic face around campus because you know you're not alone. But we don't want to be separate," said Uzziel Pecina, senior in Spanish and president of the Hispanic American Leadership Organization.

> "It's always nice to see a hispanic face around campus because you know you're not alone. But we don't want to be separate.
>
> —Uzziel Pecina
> senior in Spanish
> president of the HALO

"We're here to let other peoples experience our culture. It doesn't matter what color you are. That's what keeps us all bonded," Pecina said.

Incidents of discrimination, however, have occurred in Manhattan. The Bushwackers incident on June 23, 1989, is one example.

The Kansas Commission on Civil Rights recently decided that the Aggieville bar discriminated against Puerto Rican students celebrating San Juan Day.

Since the incident, many hispanic students have boycotted Bushwackers.

"I don't dare go there," Cintron said. "I feel very, very sorry that some of our hispanic people still go there. They don't get it," she said.

She said she never realized racism existed until she came to K-State.

"I was so naive when I got here. I thought racism was history," she said.

She said that in Puerto Rico, people are all different races and are not considered different because of the color of their skin.

Cintron said she has heard of racial incidents since coming to K-State through the Collegian and by talking to friends. One hispanic friend told her about an experience with a racist instructor.

The friend asked the instructor for help. The instructor refused, telling her she didn't deserve special treatment just because she was a minority.

Cintron said discrimination still shocks her.

"I need to be patient and understand that I'm different," she said.

Language can also be a barrier between hispanic and non-hispanic students.

Overcoming this barrier was particularly difficult, Cintron said.

"It was especially hard, even to socialize. I was exhausted all the time because I had to concentrate so much," she said.

Some hispanics say they find ways to get around communication problems.

Juan Monserrat, graduate student in industrial engineering, is from Spain. He said his Spanish accent creates more problems in communicating with others than his knowledge of English does.

"What people don't understand you can say in other words. There are so many ways to get to the same point," he said.

Anita Cortez, HALO adviser, said she agrees.

"I think communication is about more than words. When people see that others are sincerely interested in them and in getting to know them, then words don't get in the way.

"You begin to experiment with each other's words, and you can learn from that. Language is a barrier only if you let it be," she said.

Language can also be a way for people to offend hispanics.

Calling a hispanic woman "Roberto" instead of "Roberta" is like calling someone named Erika "Eric," Cortez said.

"The person making the error perhaps is not familiar with any language other than English — which is another limitation for many of us," she said.

Many foreign hispanic students said they have had positive experiences interacting with non-hispanics at K-State.

"I feel like a citizen of Manhattan. Kansans are very friendly. They make it very easy for you," Arce-Diaz said.

Monserrat also said he thinks students are friendly.

"I haven't had any (discrimination) problems so far. I get along with everybody. I interact very well," he said.

We Take Tips Day or Night
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6556

15 words 5 days $5.50
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
ClassADS
Kedzie Hall 103 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
532-6555

UNITED ARTISTS Theatres
$3.50 ALL SHOWS BEFORE 6:00 P.M.
SETH CHILDS 6 776-9886
Seth Childs at Farm Bureau Rd.
Tuesday Bargain Day All Seats All Day All Movies $3.00 Admission
Ghost (PG13) 6:50 & 9:25
Presumed Innocent (R) 6:50 & 9:20
Funny About Love (PG13) 7:00 & 9:30
Goodfellas (R) 6:40 & 9:30
Postcards From The Edge (R) 7:05 & 9:20
Hardware (R) 7:10 & 9:25

"SPOOKTACULAR SPECIAL"
Wella Perfect Control Perms
only $28 (Spirals $35)
Free Keragenic Conditioner or shampoo with each perm!
While supplies last.
Wed., Thurs., & Fri.
New Customers Only!
Expires Oct. 25, 1990
HIS & HERS

BRYAN TRAVEL COLLEGES "Your Passport To A Career"
Travel Agent • Corporate Travel Mgmt. • Tour Operator
Convention Planner • Hotel & Airline Industry • Car Rental Agent
• Cruise-Line Reservationists • Travel Promotions
24 Credit Hours • Travel Geography • Correspondence Classes
Computer Training • Financial Assistance • Placement Assistance
CALL TOLL FREE 1-800-255-3507
1527 Fairlawn Topeka, KS 66604

OPEN THURSDAY NIGHTS
OPEN SUNDAYS
McCall's Shoes
9 a.m.-5:30 p.m. MTWFS
9 a.m.-8 p.m. THURS., 1 p.m.-5 p.m. SUN.
SALE
QUITTING BUSINESS

ALL SHOES DISPLAYED ON RACKS & TABLES FOR EASY SELECTION-ALL PLAINLY MARKED AS TO SIZE & PRICE
EVERYTHING ORDERED SOLD TO THE BARE WALLS!
PRICES SLASHED AGAIN!
SAVE 20% to 70% AND MORE!

313 POYNTZ McCall's Shoes DOWNTOWN MANHATTAN

From Roots to Wings

You Are Invited to attend a Faculty Autographing
Saturday, October 13
10:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m.
K-State Union Bookstore
We are pleased to honor the following members of the K-State Faculty:
These faculty members will be autographing copies of their recent publications.

Gary W. Clift	Stephan Konz	Benjamin M. Nyberg
Wallace Dace	D. T. MacFarland	James F. Ragan
Bernd Foerster	Paul McCarthy	A. G. Ramm
Richard J. Harris	Betty R. McGraw	Frank E. Saal
Mary F. Heller	Sarah Bishop Merrill	Huber Self
Steve Heller	Tom Murray	Charles A. Smith
Jonathon Holden	E. Wayne Nafziger	Donald C. Stewart
Kenneth M. Jones	Margery A. Neely	Michael W. Suleiman
S. Lillian Kremer		K. K. Tummala

ORDER OF OMEGA
CHALLENGES K-STATE
to participate in
"Operation Turkey"
WHAT: A food drive to benefit the Flint Hills Bread Basket.
WHERE: The red fire truck on the Union Island.
WHAT YOU CAN DO: Bring canned food and money
WHEN: Wednesday, Oct. 10 and Thursday, Oct. 11, 1990 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.
WHY: "Because no one should be hungry."
FLINT HILLS Breadbasket
COMMUNITY FOOD NETWORK

HELP US CELEBRATE OUR EXCITING FIRST YEAR IN MANHATTAN!
BRENTWOOD'S ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION!
ENTER NOW! FOR OUR $500 CLOTHING GIVEAWAY
"We've Got a Gift for You"
If You Haven't Already Gotten Your Mystery Discount, Stop In and Get Yours Today!
You Could Save Up To 50% Now On Your New Fall Wardrobe!

MEN'S & WOMEN'S ANNIVERSARY SPECIALS!
MEN'S BLAZERS Gordon Thomas Special Orders Welcome! Reg. $150.00 NOW ONLY $119.95
All Men's SWEATERS Nautica, Colors, Coogi and Many More! ENTIRE STOCK 20% OFF
Ladies 100% Cotton TURTLENECKS Cross Creek Reg. $22 - $28 NOW 20% OFF
All Men's TOP COATS & RAINCOATS Even Cashmere! Reg. $120 - $275 ENTIRE STOCK 20% OFF
Men's Pinpoint Oxford DRESS SHIRTS Gordon Thomas Unconditionally Guaranteed Reg. $32 NOW ONLY $24.95
All Ladies SWEATERS Nautica, Ou, Spree, Jennifer Reed, Jones N.Y. and Many More! NOW 20% OFF
Men's and Women's Leather BOMBER JACKETS Excellent Quality Reg. $255 NOW ONLY $199.95
Men's and Women's Edwin JEANS Best Fit in the World ENTIRE STOCK $10.00 OFF
All Ladies SCARFS Echo, Ginnie Johansen, Oscar de la Renta Reg. Up To $75 NOW 20% OFF
BRENTWOOD FOR MEN & WOMEN
LAY AWAY
Hours: Monday-Saturday 10:00 a.m.-8:00 p.m., Thursday 10:00 a.m.-8:00 p.m., Sunday 1:00-5:00 p.m.
700 N. Manhattan Ave. • Manhattan, KS • 539-1414

Parents Day Concert
Men's Glee Club
Women's Glee Club
K-State Singers
Saturday, Oct. 13, 1990
8 p.m.
McCain Auditorium
Admission $5
Reserved seats 532-6428
or McCain Auditorium Box Office Noon to 5 p.m.

Column

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

Johnson's backside touched the ground as the ball crossed the plane of the goal line. The linesman ruled it a touchdown, and because it was a judgement call, it cannot be disputed.

But what about the events preceding the game-winning score? How could one play escape the officials, players, coaches and others who were at Faurot Field in Columbia, Mo., Saturday?

The error was brought to the attention of referee J.C. Louderback and his crew after Johnson's touchdown. Because it was uncorrectable, play continued with Colorado attempting the extra point. The Buffs downed the ball. Game over.

In hindsight, Missouri should have won. A fifth down is an error, regardless of when it occurs in a football game. The enormous irony of the situation is that Missouri was taken advantage of on its own field.

I've never been one to harp on officials because I believe they have the most thankless job a person can have at a sporting event. In fact, the veteran, seven-member crew will serve an indefinite suspension because of Saturday's fiasco.

It all falls back to the rules that govern the game of football. When a lineman is called for holding, it is a witnessed act by an official that, in his opinion, is illegal. That's fine.

But judgement had nothing to do with Saturday's eventual outcome. There should be an allowance in the game's rules that deal with exceptional circumstances, allowing for retraction of an undisputable, obvious error during the course of a game.

A fifth down in college football is an exceptional blunder. Just ask Missouri. Ask Colorado. Ask Louderback's crew, which may have trouble finding work around the Big Eight.

Choice

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5

through television and mass communication. Sex has been put on their mind if they are a young person of today's world," Young said.

The goals of Planned Parenthood of Kansas are to focus on providing medical reproductive health care for women, to provide school and community human sexuality programs, to encourage contraceptive research and to be a voice for freedom of choice.

Young said the pro-life movement in Kansas has staged funeral events and abortion photos and will stop at nothing.

Alicia Poteat, junior in political science and pre-law student, organized the Voices of Choice group as a means for people to learn about choice issues on campus.

"I got turned off reading anti-choice editorials. I knew I couldn't be the only pro-choice person at K-State," Poteat said.

She said that pro-choice does not mean pro-abortion. The group plans to march on campus, to lobby state legislators and to picket, Poteat said.

Poteat said that there would be no need for her group if there was better birth control education.

"Nobody wants an abortion," Poteat said.

INDIAN CARRY OUT MENU/LUNCH

Shish Kabob (marinated in spicy Indian sauce)		$2.95
Chicken Tandoori (marinated in yogurt and special spices)		$2.95
Beef Curry (Tell us how spicy you want it)		$2.40
Rice Pilaf (with cashews, raisins and fresh coconut)	large/small	$1.75/$1.00
Dal Curry (lentils cooked with onion and fresh coconut)		$1.00
Porkorahs (deep fried graham batter hushpuppies)		$1.50
Samosa (vegetables, deep fried in a crusty pastry shell)		$1.25
Naan (warm, soft, crusted-edged Indian bread)		75¢
Popper (two - pancake size, wafer thin, crispy bread)		75¢
Namkin (sweet, crunchy mini crackers)		$1.00
Lassi (a blended drink of yogurt, fruit juice and honey)		$1.25
Whole Stuffed Chicken (spiced vegetables-3 hrs. advance notice)		$10.95

Dine-In-Lunch 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.—Dinner 5-10 p.m.
Carry-Out available any time during business hours
The OSAGE HOUSE 776-1234 2605 Stagg Hill Rd.
Osage House

INTERESTED IN STUDENT GOVERNMENT ?
INFORMATIONAL MEETING
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 9
4 P.M. UNION ROOM 207

The Classic Touch

Psst! Want a hot tip? Spend some time with the stylists at the CLASSIC TOUCH BEAUTY SALON! During the month of Oct., they'll give you a new look–for a steal!

Can you believe these prices?

CALL 539-5566

Can you believe these prices?

Perms	reg.$45- $35
Relaxers	reg.$40- $28
Carefree curl	reg.$55- $40
Wave Nouveau	reg.$65- $55
Wraps	reg.$25- $15
Perm. color	reg.$30- $22.50
Semi-perm.	reg.$22- $15
Women's cuts	reg.$15- $10
Men's cut	reg.$12- $8

Shampoo, Blow, and Curl reg.$15.50- $10
ASK ABOUT STUDENT AND MILITARY DISCOUNTS!
SENIOR DISCOUNTS AVAILABLE
WE ALSO SPECIALIZE IN HAIR EXTENSIONS!
EXPIRES OCT. 31, 1990

312 TUTTLE CREEK SUB CENTER Manhattan, Kan.

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special: 3 - 10 in. Pizzas, 1 - Topping, 4 - Cokes, $10.00
Everyday Two-Fers: 2 - 10 in. Pizzas, 2 - Toppings, 2 - Cokes, $8.00
Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

THIS EYEWEAR MAKES THE FUTURE LOOK BETTER.

Every time a L'Amy youth frame is purchased, we make a contribution to World Wildlife Fund. Which means brighter days ahead for endangered animals and plants around the world.

Active in over 16 countries, World Wildlife Fund is the largest conservation organization in the world and able to act quickly when conservation emergencies arise.

So help your kids see a brighter future by introducing them to L'Amy eyewear.

LUNETTES L'AMY PARIS

Perspectives Optical Dispensary & Lab

WWF

300 Poyntz, Downtown Manhattan • 539-5105

RENDEZVOUS WITH K-STATE OPEN HOUSE

The 1991 "All University Open House Coordinating Council" is taking applications for student committee members. These will be the individuals who will help make the All University Open House Program April 6, 1991 a great success:

Media Committee
Student Life Exhibits Committee
Union Courtyard Entertainment Committee
Special Projects Committee

If you are interested in helping in any way as we open the K-State campus to 25,000 prospective students of all ages and their parents, pick up an application in the Vice President for Institutional Advancement, Anderson Hall Rm. 112, and return it by Friday, Oct. 12, 1990. For more information come to Anderson Hall, Room 122.

Curious about law school?

Pre-law Club presents Washburn University School of Law

Professor Ray Spring and K-State graduates in Law School

Oct. 9, 1990
Tues.- 7 p.m.
K-State Union
Big 8 Room

COMPUTER LIQUIDATION SALE

6 MAC SE* $749
2-800K drives
1 megabyte of memory
*Requires Keyboard!

3 MAC II* $1999
40-megabyte Hard Disk
1 megabyte of memory
* Requires Monitor, Video Card, Keyboard

OFFER GOOD ONLY FOR K-STATE STUDENTS, FACULTY, AND STAFF

Available at the K-State Union Bookstore

Authorized Dealer MacSource
The Best Support Team for the Apple Macintosh, Anywhere.

K-State Union Bookstore

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Kedzie 103 CLASS ADS 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $3.00, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.25, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.50, 40 cents per word over 15.

1 Announcements

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial. Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

BEST FUNDRAISER on campus! Looking for a fraternity, sorority or student organization that would like to earn $500 to $1,000 dollars for a one week on-campus marketing project. Must be organized and hard working. Call Jeanie or Ashley, 1-800-592-2121.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

GRAND OPENING

Now taking reservations

The Plaza The Big 8

Aggieville, behind EeGee's

A dance hall, flexible enough to meet your individual requirements.

We also provide party DJs.
To reserve The Plaza; or a Lunar Tunes DJ, call Dan Schirer, 776-9140.

GET THE EDGE

and get your Royal Purple portrait taken.
These groups are scheduled for

Tuesday, Oct. 9

- PUTNAM HALL
- SMITH HOUSE
- SMURTHWAITE HOUSE

There is a $4 sitting fee. If you paid for it at registration, you must bring your Royal Purple receipt.

Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.
Location: K-State Union, Room 209
For an appointment or if you have questions CALL 532-7808

1991 ROYAL PURPLE

THE GREAT MANHATTAN SWEEP OUT.

Keep all prescription and over-the-counter medicines and other household products out of reach and out of sight of youngsters and, preferably locked up when not in use. Medicines on kitchen counters and beside nightstands are very accessible to young children.

MEDICINE...
The Trick Could Be On You

Don't let the trick be on you...On October 31, sweep out your old medicine and bring it to The Saint Mary Hospital between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. for proper disposal.

the saint mary hospital 1823 College Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502 • (913) 776-5522
KMKF 101.7 KMAN

(Continued from page 8)

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

FAST FUNDRAISING PROGRAM

$1000 IN JUST ONE WEEK.

Earn up to $1000 in one week for your campus organization.

Plus a chance at $5000 more!

This program works! No investment needed.

Call 1-800-932-0528 Ext. 50

RECORDS, CDS, Posters and more at University Inn this Saturday 10/13. Dealers from many states will be selling to the public one day only. $1 admission 10a.m.— 5p.m.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

TONIGHT! $1.25 32 oz. Draws only at BAYSTREET

Glimpses

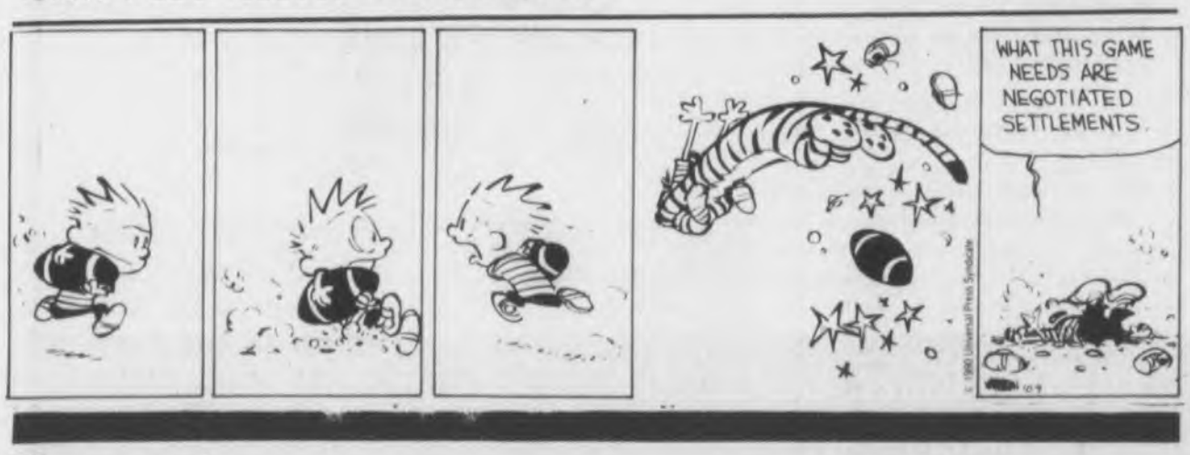
By Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

By Bob Berry

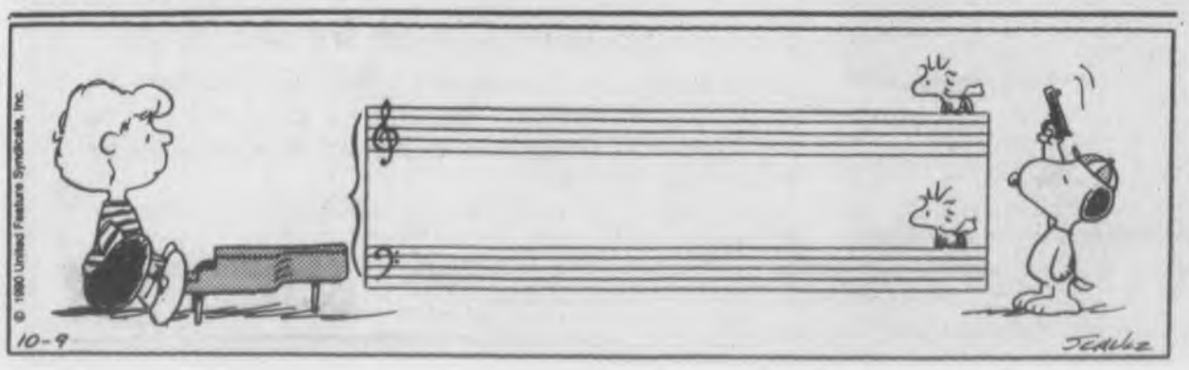
Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind



Jim's Journal

By Jim



Calvin and Hobbes

By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

SPIDER AIRCRAFT, INC.
Learn to Fly:
Introductory Flight—$22
537-3277
Rt. 1 Municipal Airport

HALLOWEEN HAS ARRIVED
AT GREEN THUMB
SPOOKIE DECORATIONS
1105 Waters 539-4751

SU carburetor $250
(for shovelhead) reg. $275
10% off seats in stock
Leather Jackets $150 & $166.95
Free koozie with purchase of $5 or more (excluding above items)
WHEATLAND MOTOR CYCLE CO.
521 N. 3rd • 539-8500

2 Apartments—Furnished

CUT EDUCATION costs. Family needs college girl to live in this semester and next. Free room and food exchanged for duties. Write P.O. Box 652, Manhattan, Kansas 66502.

ONE-BEDROOM IN a west side complex, gas, heat. $295. No pets. 776-3804.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

ACROSS THE street from campus and Aggieville, one-bedroom, large closet, shower, bay window in dining room, 9' ceilings, ceiling fan, very clean, new carpet and paint. $350. No pets. 537-8274.

AVAILABLE NOW. One-bedroom near campus, $325, year lease, no pets, laundry facilities, central air. Call for appointment 776-3804.

DUPLEX TWO-BEDROOM, stove, refrigerator, near campus. Show by appointment, available Nov. 1. 539-3524.

ONE-BEDROOM CARPETED, available Oct. 1, central air, $270 plus utilities and trash. 776-6166.

ONE-BEDROOM IN a complex near campus. New carpet, gas, heat, $325. No pets. 776-3804.

TWO-BEDROOM NEAR campus, available now. Laundry facilities, central air, $400. Year lease. No pets. 776-3804.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

Brittnay Ridge Townhomes
—More Than Your Basic Apartment—
•4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, study room
•Wired for cable, phone, computer
•Hot tubs & volleyball court
•Bus service to campus
•Monthly rent as low as $195
DWC
Dan Weir Co.
2601 Anderson Ave. 776-5599

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

5 Automobile for Sale

1977 MONZA— low mileage, V-8, good condition. $800. 537-6835.

1978 280Z parts car. $400. 537-1539.

1979 IH Scout 2, mechanically sound, body has rust. 776-3757 after 6p.m.

1981 COLONY Park station wagon, great car, power steering, power brakes, power windows, AM/FM cassette stereo, $700 or best offer. Call 539-8256.

1981 PLYMOUTH Horizon, low mileage, 54,545, good condition. $1,800 negotiable. Melville 532-7212 after 9:45a.m. or 537-4420.

1982 DODGE Challenger, air conditioning, automatic, AM/FM, 66,000 miles, $2,500. 537-9434.

1985 PLYMOUTH Horizon, four-speed, $2,400 negotiable, very good condition. 539-1902.

HURRICANE II Aluminum Mag wheels, for Chevy, like new, $200. 776-0043.

7 Computers

HAVING PROBLEMS with your computer or printer? Need to upgrade your systems memory, monitor or just a larger hard drive? Need a second party book on a certain program? ABACUS Computer and Supply, 539-7007, 1111 Waters.

MACINTOSH COMPUTER and ImageWriter printer. 128K. 537-9479 after 5p.m.

8 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such 'employment opportunity' with reasonable caution.

AEROBIC INSTRUCTOR— The City of Manhattan has an opening for an aerobic instructor. Position is seasonal, part-time. $5.50/ hour. Apply at the Personnel Office, City Hall, 11th and Poyntz by Oct. 12, 1990. EOE— M/F/H.

ATTENTION: EXCELLENT income for home assembly work. (504)646-1700. Dept. P6438.

COLLEGE GIRL wanted to babysit two little girls after school on Tuesdays and Thursdays. 776-9653.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EARN MONEY typing/ wordprocessing/ personal computing. At home. Full- or part-time. $35,000/ year potential. 1-805-687-6000 Ext. B-9701.

$$ HUNDREDS Weekly $$ (P/T) Completing MIP Refund Policies U.S. Government Program. Call 1-713-292-9131, 24-hour recorded message. Please have pen ready.

IF YOU are free 11a.m.— 2p.m. Monday— Friday and want to earn extra money, pick up an application to join our crew. Long John Silver's.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. Federal, CIA, U.S. Customs, D.E.A., etc. Now hiring. Listings. 1(805)687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

LIBERAL RELIGIOUS group seeks part-time office coordinator, organized, good with people, 20 hours per month, $7.50 per hour. Send resume to Unitarian Universalist Fellowship, P.O. Box 910, Manhattan, Kansas 66502. Questions, call 539-5248.

MODELS NEEDED for local advertising agency. No experience necessary. Earn extra cash. Males and females respond with resume and photo to Box 4, Collegian.

OVERSEAS JOBS. $900— $2,000/ month. Summer, year-round. All countries. All fields. Free information. Write UC, P.O. Box 52-KSo2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

SPRING BREAK 1991— Individual or student organization needed to promote Spring Break trip. Earn money, free trips and valuable work experience. Call Now!! Inter-campus Programs: 1-800-327-6013.

STUDENT TO enclose garage wall and install overhead garage door. Send qualifications to: Box 3, Collegian.

TIRED OF school? Need a change of pace? Be a Nanny! Go to interesting places, earn good money for a year. Templeton Nanny Agency, Lawrence. (913)842-4443.

WARM NON-SMOKING nanny wanted in White Plains, NY for two kids, 5 and 2, starting December. Excellent live-in conditions, driver's license and experience required. (914)725-3904.

WELL-ESTABLISHED LOCAL business for sale. Excellent opportunity! After 6p.m. (719)576-6789.

9 Food Specials

Bobby J's
Tuesdays:
TACO NACHO NIGHT
39¢ Tacos
Homemade flour chicken or beef tacos
$1.25 margaritas
539-1571

Tuesday Special
RIB-IT NIGHT
All the BBQ Ribs, Fries and Salad Bar you can eat!
$4.95
Every Tuesday 5-8 p.m.
The CHEF Cafe
111 S. 4th
Downtown

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

A HIDE-A-BED sofa, double size chest of drawers, $50 both. 776-3589.

BED FOR sale: Full-size mattress, box spring, frame with wheels. $65. 532-2094 evenings. Kirk.

COUCH WITH matching chair, barely used. Call 539-1452.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: A ferret off Moro. Call 776-8677.

FOUND: LARGE white rabbit west of the president's house 10/3/90. Claim at 532-6850.

LOST/ BLACK, bi-fold billfold. Several IDs. Lost about one and one-half weeks ago. Call Barry at 537-4268.

18 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1982 YAMAHA 400cc Seca, held over until '86, low miles, just tuned, red, $850. Call Barry at 537-4268.

1986 XT 350 Yamaha Enduro motorcycle. 776-0073.

LADIES PEUGEOT 10-speed touring bike. Excellent condition. Call 776-7260 after 6p.m.

19 Music/ Musicians

FOR SALE: 14 pc. Tama drum set, $1,000. Phone 1-632-5716.

21 Personals

BREN— HEY old lady! It's finally here. Happy 21st Birthday! I hope your day is the best of all days, because Pete and I will see that you have a night of all nights. I'm sure you'll have one tonight. I Love You, your booty.

FOOTE, HERE'S to you and here's to me, friends we are., Happy 21st bud, You're Finally Legal! Love, Schmel.

MR. DR. Ruth or Ann Landers: What ever you are going by this week —Thanks. Phase one almost complete and number two is soon to come.

PSYCHO DUDE— Have you lost your way? Well, I've sent a note to find you, so watch your box 'cause I'm blue for you. Forbidden Chick.

THANKS FOR the "recipe for the warm fuzzy." Your thoughtfulness touched me. Please identify yourself!

THERE IS a circulation librarian named Cliff. Whose bilingual ability is terrif. He says, "Hey, amigo, you're late with your libro," And then he flies into a tiff.

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

FOR SALE: AKC Registered yellow Labrador Retriever. Female, eight weeks old. $100. Call 1-238-3812.

FREE— FIVE black Lab mixed pups. Must see. Parents on premises. Call 1-456-7247 evenings.

23 Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— We do more than just type your resume. We create the resume with you, so it reflects your best -- then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for private appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience working in University Career Center.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851. Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100 or 1-456-9642, Wamego.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE: New apartment, Woodway complex, own room. Call or leave message 776-3251.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: Woodway Apartments, own room, $175/ month plus one-third utilities. 537-4966.

MALE ROOMMATE for roomy one-bedroom furnished apartment across street from campus at 322 N. Manhattan #2. $180/ month includes cable/ all utilities. Gregg 776-0172, if no answer leave message.

ROOMMATES TO share three-bedroom house, near campus. Partially furnished. 776-3078.

TWO BLOCKS from campus and Aggieville. Own room, $150 a month. Call Cindy 539-8391.

WANTED: OLDER male student to share two-bedroom mobile home. $250/ month— all utilities. Available 1 Nov. 776-1769.

WANTED ROOMMATE, 1005 Laramie, $120 per month, utilities paid. Call 539-2017 after 5p.m., ask for Jim.

28 Sublease

TWO FEMALE roommates wanted to sublease furnished apartment during spring semester, $125/ month. 776-2076.

29 Tickets to Buy or Sell

FOR SALE— Six Red Skeleton tickets, rows 5 and 6. Call 537-2956, leave message.

TWO ROUND-TRIP tickets. Leaving Kansas City 6p.m. on Oct. 11 and arriving 7:43p.m. at O'Hare. Returning Oct. 14, 6:35p.m. and arriving 8p.m. Kansas City. $156 for both. 776-6155, ask for Pat after 3p.m. Office 537-3726 leave message.

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

ARCHITECTS— 1986 Sweet's Catalog File for sale. Excellent condition. Best offer. 537-4428 ask for Scott.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: 12-speed bike, Fuji Espree, 23-inch frame with Avenir training stand, $200. 776-4042.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

SOFA, ONE year old, (mauve, blue, gray), $200; Sears portable dishwasher, butcherblock top, $75. 776-0043.

33 Tutor

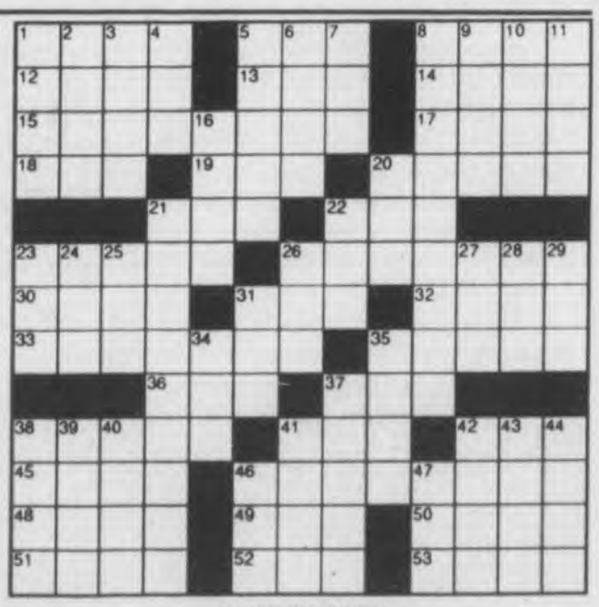
VERY QUALIFIED tutor for Spanish. Affordable rates. Call Leticia 539-6832 after 9p.m.

34 Horses

DRESSAGE LESSONS— Training through 3rd level, beginners welcome too. School horses available. 537-4608 leave message.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Anagram for soar
5 — Guevara
8 Short race
12 Wrinkle
13 Peck or house lead-in 14 Appraise
15 Top of a bongo
17 Soviet river
18 Pindaric work
19 Corn unit
20 Improve
21 Skip stones on water
22 Obscure
23 Sudden gush
26 Prepare and plan
30 Home of the Inca
31 Wield with energy
32 Queen of the gods
33 Bring to life
35 Christmas extra
36 Vast amount
37 Tavern feature
38 Patisserie items
41 Marsh
42 Fish delicacy
45 Jai —
46 Tympanic membranes
48 Of the ear
49 Shot or step lead-in
50 Ripens
51 Polio pioneer
52 Tennis need
53 Serf, once

DOWN
1 Religious calendar
2 Irrational number
3 Chills and fever
4 Ewe's mate
5 "The — Detective" (movie)
6 Listen
7 Football position
8 Parade leader
9 Swiss river
10 Ollie's partner
11 Contained
16 Word with wave or rash
20 Ventilate
21 Fowl part
22 Parched
23 Health resort
24 Kind of pal
25 Swiss canton
26 Pub pint
27 Convent dweller
28 Wilde-beest
29 Dawn goddess
31 School org.
34 He lost to DDE
35 Musical group
37 Pierre's cap
38 New Mexican resort
39 Canadian prov.
40 Shore bird
41 Temple
42 Some are Oriental
43 Portent
44 Being
46 Lo-o-o-ng time
47 "Norma —"

Solution time: 27 mins.

G	A	S			P	A	C		W	E	B	S
A	N	A	I		A	L	A		O	P	A	L
P	I	R	N		L	E	R		O	I	L	Y
E	L	I	D	E		C	O	R	D
			I	L	E		B	E	E	T	L	E
S	N	E	A	K	E	R		S	N	A	I	L
L	I	M	N		L	A	E		I	N	K	S
A	N	I	S	E		S	W	A	N	S	E	A
P	E	R	U	S	E		E	N	D
			M	E	L	T		Y	I	E	L	D
P	L	U	M		U	R	I		A	D	A	R
O	I	S	E		D	I	N		N	E	R	O
D	E	A	R		E	M	S			N	A	P

Yesterday's answer 10-9

CRYPTOQUIP

10-9

IXB MCGIE IJ GCURB VQFZR VJG IXB FBL MTCEYGJQFZ UR UF VQTT RLUFY.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: KINDLY DELICATESSEN OWNER WHO DIDN'T PAY THE RENT IS IN A PICKLE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: F equals N

AIDS

Common Questions About AIDS

What is AIDS?

AIDS is characterized by a defect in natural immunity against disease. People who have AIDS are vulnerable to serious illnesses which would not be a threat to anyone whose immune system was functioning normally. These illnesses are referred to as "opportunistic" infections or diseases.

What causes AIDS?

AIDS is caused by a virus, which has been given different names by different groups of investigators but is now given the standard acronym HIV (human immunodeficiency virus). Infection with this virus does not always lead to AIDS. Many infected persons remain in good health. Others may develop illness varying in severity from mild to extremely serious; these illnesses are designated AIDS-related complex (ARC).

How is AIDS transmitted?

AIDS is spread by sexual contact, needle sharing, or less commonly, through transfused blood or its components. The risk of infection with the virus is increased by having multiple sexual partners, either homosexual or heterosexual, and sharing of needles among those using illicit drugs. The virus may be transmitted also from infected mother to infant before, during, or shortly after birth (probably through breast milk).

Can AIDS be spread through casual contact?

Casual contact width AIDS patients or infected persons does not place others at risk for getting the illness. No cases have been found where the virus has been transmitted by casual household contact with AIDS patients or infected persons. Infants with AIDS or HIV infection have not transmitted the infection to family members living in the same household.

What is the difference between the infection and the disease?

Having HIV infection indicates that you have been exposed to the HIV virus and are carrying antibodies against the virus in your blood. Some of those that demonstrate the presence of HIV antibodies do not develop any clinical signs of the disease. When a person begins to show clinical signs, then they are considered to either have AIDS-related complex (ARC) or AIDS itself, depending upon the clinical signs exhibited and the type of disease complex that is present within that individual.

Who gets AIDS?

Ninety percent of the AIDS cases have occurred with two groups of people: sexually active homosexual or bisexual men, and present or past abusers of intravenous drugs. Another 8 percent has been accounted for by persons who require blood transfusions, infants born to infected mothers, or heterosexual contacts with someone with AIDS.

What are its symptoms?

Many individuals infected with AIDS virus have no symptoms and feel well. Some develop symptoms which may include tiredness, fever, loss of appetite and weight, diarrhea, night sweats, and swollen glands (lymph nodes)-usually in the neck, armpits or groin. Anyone with these symptoms which continue for more than two weeks should see a physician. It must be emphasized that these symptoms are seen with many diseases and by themselves are not indicative of AIDS.

How is AIDS diagnosed?

The diagnosis of AIDS depends on the presence of opportunistic diseases that indicated the loss of immunity. Certain tests which demonstrate damage to various parts of the immune system, such as specific types of white blood cells, support the diagnosis. The presence of opportunistic diseases plus a positive test for antibodies to HIV can also make possible a diagnosis of AIDS.

How is AIDS treated?

Currently, there are no antiviral drugs available anywhere that have been proven to cure AIDS, although the search for such drugs is being pursued vigorously. Some drugs have been found that inhibit the AIDS virus, but these have not yet led to clinical improvement. Though no treatment has yet been successful in restoring the immune system of an AIDS patient, physicians have had some success in using drugs, radiation, and surgery to treat the various illnesses of AIDS patients. Therapeutic agents are needed for all stages of AIDS.

Can AIDS be prevented?

YES! Cases of AIDS related to medical use of blood or blood products are being prevented by use of HIV antibody screening tests at blood donor sites. Personal prevention can also be practiced to assure safety from infection. In simplest terms personal prevention can be practiced in two ways: Don't use intravenous drugs. If you do, don't share needles or syringes. Secondly, don't have sex. If you do, practice safe sex. Safe sex means not having sex with people who may be infected or protecting yourself by taking precautions to prevent contact with the person's body fluids. Further information is provided through materials disseminated at the Lafene Student Health Center, Riley County Public Health, The Counseling Center, or contacting the national referral sources listed below.

STUDENT CONCERNS

1. If a student suspects that he or she has AIDS what should the student do?

If the student is uncertain of his or her medical condition and seeks help, the University encourages the student to get a detailed medical evaluation. Lafene Student Health Center offers confidential testing. If the student prefers, the health center can refer the student to an off campus physician or agency familiar with AIDS for a confidential medical evaluation. In any case the evaluation will include counseling before and after diagnosis.

2. How will the University respond to complaints of discrimination or harassment against students with AIDS or ARC, or who have positive HIV test results, or who simply are perceived to be in high-risk groups?

The University will respond to any conflict or harassment first by using informal means to counsel and eduacte the individuals involved. However, if harassment continues, such conduct will be dealt with as a student disciplinary matter under the established procedures for hearing discrimination complaints. There is a five member Student Discrimination Review Committee that will hear the complaint and report the findings to the President for necessary action. If a student has a complaint of discrimination or harassment, he or she should call the Affirmative Action Office (532-6220) or the Dean of Student Life (532-6432).

3. What are the provisions of the University's student health insurance program that relate to AIDS?

The current contractor, Blue Cross Blue Shield, treats AIDS as any other illness. However, there is a clause prohibition payment for any preexisting condition.

4. What are the guidelines regarding participation in campus activities?

A. Housing: Residence Halls and Organized Living Groups

Residence hall, family housing, and employment opportunities in Department of Housing will be made available to persons with AIDS, ARC, or positive HIV test results under the same conditions as applicable to any individual. In addition, attempts will be made to meet the special housing needs of its residents. The Department of Housing has established guidelines, educational programs, and resources to meet the needs of all residents and employees.

The University recognizes the independent nature of Greek Chapter Houses and offers them the educational, health, and student service resources of the University community in dealing with problems relative to AIDS, ARC, or positive HIV tests.

B. Classrooms and Laboratories

The risk of contracting AIDS in the classroom is considered so unlikely that no particular procedures are recommended. If, in fact, fellow students and classmates have fears and concerns regarding AIDS, it would be in their best interest to obtain information about the disease and to address the issue directly through an educational program.

Should a person with AIDS be involved in a laboratory accident that breaks the skin, the laboratory instructor or anyone who may assist the injured person shold be aware of the situation. In other words, the injured person should inform the people assisting him or her of the circumstances.

C. Athletic Activities

Most sports are contact sports where contact with others is encouraged, allowed, or occurs on a regular basis. Injuries in contact sports may result in wounds to participants. Persons with AIDS, ARC, or positive HIV antibodies should discuss the advisability of participation in sports with their physician taking particular care to avoid contact sports which may produce collision injuries or wounds. When wounds occur to carriers of the HIV virus, a spread of disease conceivably may occur. Should wounds occur, the participant has the responsibility to inform the others of the possibility of contamination.

5. What will be the University's response to a student who has AIDS and as a consequence has difficulty completing the work of a course?

The University will not discriminate against a student because of AIDS. The University's existing policies regarding students who suffer from a medical problem that prevents them from completing their classwork would apply to a student with AIDS.

6. Will a student-employee who has AIDS be permitted to continue working?

Yes, as outlined below under "Personnel Concerns."

PERSONNEL CONCERNS

1. What will the University do if a professor has or is suspected of having AIDS?

The first response to an individual who has AIDS must be compassion. The University will seek to accommodate a faculty member's medical condition to permit the individual to remain actively at work so long as possible. Since casual contact does not cause AIDS, a professor with AIDS, so long as he or she can teach and function in an academic setting, remains eligible to teach and to perform research and other responsibilities. The University's response to concerns of this nature will be to offer education about AIDS, including appropriate counseling and medical information, to those involved.

If a professor has AIDS and is unable to teach a class, arrangements will be made for others to teach the class. The University has personnel guidelines on medical disability; if this professor is totally unable to carry out assigned duties, he or she can be placed on leave. Disability income benefits begin after 180 days of continuous and total disability.

2. What if an employee in a food service has or is suspected of having AIDS?

The University will follow the Center for Disease Control recommendations of "exercising care in the handling of food." Those recommendations state: "All epidemiologic and laboratory evidence indicates that bloodborne and sexually transmitted infections are not transmitted during the preparation or serving of food or beverages," and no instances of HIV transmission have been documented in such circumstances. However, the CDC guidelines do recognize the need for special training and precautions in this area.

It is recommended that all food service workers should follow standards and practices of good personal hygiene and food sanitation. All food service workers should exercise care to avoid injury to hands when preparing food. Should such an injury occur, both aesthetic and sanitary considerations would dictate that food contaminated with blood be discarded. Food service workers known to be infected with AIDS need not be restricted from work unless they havse evidence of other infection or illness for which any food service worker should be restricted. Again, the University will offer education about AIDS and appropriate referral for counseling through the Employee Assistance Program (EAP).

3. How will the University respond to concerns by an employee that his or her co-worker or supervisor has AIDS?

The University will seek to accommodate a staff member's medical condition to permit the individual to remain actively at work so long as possible. Again, it must be stressed that casual contact does not cause AIDS. The University would hope that these concerns would be resolved by counseling and education about AIDS. Unless medically justified, the University will not transfer or change working conditions because an employee has AIDS or because of concerns about a co-worker having AIDS.

4. What will the University do if an employee has or is suspected of having AIDS?

The University will seek to accommodate a staff member's medical condition to permit the individual to remain actively at work as long as possible. For assistance in determining reasonable accommodations the Affirmative Action Office should be contacted. Decisions in all situations will be made on a case-by-case determination, based on the medical facts of each case and with concern for the best interest of all involved. The University will offer education about AIDS and appropriate referral for counseling through the Employee Assistance Program (EAP). The University also can provide counseling and educaton to co-workers to better understand AIDS.

5. What are the provisions of employee health and life insurance policies, including disability and survivorship provisions?

There is no provision in any of the University's current employee insurance policies specifically reguarding AIDS; it is treated as any other chronic illness.

Disability insurance would be paid after 180 days of continuous and total disability. Life insurance benefits would be paid to the named beneficiary. It should be noted that the life insurance program provides that an employee may name any individual as a beneficiary.

6. What office should be contacted if there is a complaint about discrimination?

The Affirmative Action Office handles complaints of discrimination. The Rehabilitation Act of 1973, Section 503 and 504, prohibits discrimination against persons with AIDS (or any communicabled disease).

7. Will the University require that prospective employees be tested for this HIV anitbody?

No.

8. Are employee records confidential?

Personnel who handle records are instructed on the confidentiality issue. It is a violation to University policy for employees to improperly release information from personnel files. The University will not give out confidential information about students or employees except where required by law or when authorized to do so by a student or employee.

If you have any questions about AIDS, HIV, testing, etc., please call Cindy Burke, Health Educator at Lafene Student Health Center, at 532-6595, or Don Fallon, Chair, Communicable Disease Committee at 532-6432. Your calls will be kept in the strictest confidence. In addition, the following off-campus telephone numbers are provided:

Topeka AIDS Project	913-232-3100
Kansas AIDS Information Line	1-800-232-0040
CDC Public Health AIDS Hotline	1-800-342-2437
CDC Public Health AIDS Hotline (Spanish)	1-800-344-7432
Nationally Sexually Transmitted Disease Hotline	1-800-227-8922

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Wednesday, October 10, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 33

Margaret Clarkin/Staff

Russel Weigley, an American military historian, delivers a speech ranking Dwight D. Eisenhower as one of the great military leaders in American history at Tuesday night's fourth Eisenhower Lecture on War and Peace in Union Forum Hall. See related story, Page 3.

Israel closes off Temple Mount

Unrest developing in shooting's wake

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Israel sealed the Temple Mount for a day and imposed sweeping curfews in the occupied territories Tuesday to head off Arab protests about the killing of 19 Palestinians at the hallowed site.

Monday's bloodbath threatened to rekindle the Palestinian uprising and thrust Israel back unto the spotlight at a time when the Persian Gulf crisis had given it a respute from international criticism of its polices.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir rebuffed suggestions of a U.N. Security Council investigation into the violence. "We won't accept it," he told reporters.

While large parts of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip were under curfews and village closures, rioting erupted in three Arab districts of Jerusalem and in Nazareth, a mainly Arab city inside Israel.

In Umm Tuba on the southern outskirts of Jerusalem, two border policemen were stabbed with a screwdriver by Arabs they had stopped at a checkpoint. As the car drove away the policemen opened fire, hitting two occupants, police said. None of the injuries was serious, said police spokesman Uzi Sanduri.

Police also fired tear gas to disperse dozens of activists who blocked roads in Nazareth with rocks and garbage cans, an Arab reporter said.

Masked youths shouting pro-Iraqi slogans smashed a department store's windows and beat shoppers.

Police seized the keys to the gates of the Temple Mount, Islam's third holiest site, and fired tear gas at Moslems who tried to break through their cordon, an Arab reporter at the scene said.

Jerusalem's chief Moslem cleric, 80-year-old Saad al-Din al-Alami, was overcome by tear gas and carried away on a stretcher and hospitalized.

Moslem leaders said the keys were returned after dark to allow evening prayers. They said it was the first time Israel has sealed the Temple Mount, a compound containing the city's two main mosques.

The Mount abuts the Western Wall, also known as the Wailing Wall, and is revered by Jews as the site of their biblical temple. Moslems believe it was from there that the Prophet Mohammed ascended to heaven.

Monday's incident was the worst in Jerusalem since Israel captured the city's Arab sector from Jordan in 1967, and it was swiftly condemned by Arab leaders throughout the world.

The violence also was condemned by Japan, the European Community's executive body and the president of the European parliament. President Bush said Israel should have acted with more restraint.

Challenges meet Puerto Ricans

Editor's note: This is the third installment in a week-long series focusing on Hispanic students at K-State.

By Erika Parker
Staff Reporter

Puerto Rican students — although not foreign — often have similar experiences to students from Hispanic countries.

Puerto Rico is a commonwealth of the United States, but is as far away from the U.S. mainland, about 1,100 miles, as some Central American countries.

Many people do not realize that Puerto Ricans are U.S. citizens, said some Puerto Rican students.

"A lot of people ask me if I am American," said Luis Montaner, fourth-year student in veterinary medicine.

Mariangeli Cintron, junior in pre-veterinary medicine, said people often mistake her for a foreign student.

"They don't know it's a commonwealth," she said.

That status may change, though, when Puerto Ricans vote next summer on whether to become a state of the United States, remain a commonwealth, or become an independent country, said William Boyer, head of the Department of Political Science at the University of Delaware and former head of the Department of Political Science at K-State.

Congress has promised that if Puerto Ricans vote to become a state, it will initiate the process outlined in the Constitution for admitting a state, he said.

But that doesn't necessary mean Congress will keep its promise, especially because the official language of Puerto Rico is Spanish, he said.

Montaner said Puerto Rico should become a state but retain certain rights.

"I would favor statehood with the condition that Puerto Rico retain the right to keep Spanish as the official language," he said.

He said he realizes that when the United States acquired former French colonies like Louisiana, people of the area could not keep French as the official language. But he said Puerto Rico is geographically isolated.

He said Puerto Ricans already pay a commonwealth tax to the United States, which is as much as the federal and state taxes combined paid by people on the mainland.

Puerto Ricans must obey U.S. law, register with selective service and have a social security number. They have a non-voting representative in the House and no senatorial representation, Montaner said.

He said thinks if he has to obey American laws, he should be represented in it government.

■ See CHALLENGES, Page 10

Hispanics face problems

Foreign students find travel, calls costly

By Erika Parker
Staff Reporter

Money is only one of the obstacles some Hispanic foreign students say they must face in gaining an American education.

In fact, money isn't as much a factor as one might expect.

"I got an assistantship, so I didn't have to sacrifice," said Eduardo Arce-Diaz, graduate student in agricultural economics.

Arce-Diaz is from Costa Rica and works as a research assistant at K-State. The Costa Rican government pays for his education and travel costs.

Some inconveniences for all foreign students, though, include long plane trips and expensive telephone calls home.

Fernando Garcia, graduate student in agronomy, is from Argentina. "My phone bill is huge," he said.

It costs Garcia $40 to talk to his family back home on the phone for 50 minutes, he said.

"It's too expensive for me (to call home). I just write letters," said Jose Calle, graduate student in agricultural engineering from Peru.

When Calle does call home on special occasions, it costs him $1 per minute.

Juan Monserrat, graduate student in industrial engineering, agreed that phone calls are expensive. His calls to Spain cost him about $60 per month, he said. He added that it is less expensive for his family to call him than it is for him to call home.

Monserrat said it costs him about $10,000 a year to study at K-State. This figure includes $4,600 for tuition, $2,400 for residence hall fees and $2,000 for two round-trip tickets to Spain, he said.

Calle doesn't pay as much because he is a research assistant and pays in-state tuition.

Foreign students are often separated from their family and native culture for many months, and sometimes years.

Calle said he hasn't flown home since he came to K-State three years ago because plane tickets cost him about $1,000.

Arce-Diaz has been a student at K-State for four years and has been back to Costa Rica twice.

"There is always a sacrifice in your family relationships," he said. "Sometimes it's hard. There is no place like home."

Some foreign students said being part of a different culture hasn't changed them much, although their family might expect them to be different.

■ See HISPANIC, Page 10

Mike Welchhans/Staff

Ramona Douglass speaks about mature multiracial identities Tuesday morning in the K-State Union. Douglass is among many speakers to give presentations during Racial Ethnic Harmony Week.

Tolerance of heritage needed for biracials

By Tammy Rose
Collegian Reporter

Coping with one's own multicultural identity hasn't been easy for many biracial individuals in the United States.

Society does not recognize children of mixed heritage and sometimes people wonder where they fit in, said Ramona Douglass, Biracial Family Network vice-president.

"We need to teach young people to be tolerant and positive to people of multi-racial backgrounds," Douglass said.

Douglass spoke on "Nurturing a Multi-Cultural Identity" Tuesday in the K-State Union as a part of Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week.

She told of her own experiences of dealing with racism because of her Sicilian and native African-American background.

"The only thing I have to give you is a piece of myself," she said.

Douglass said she grew up in New York, and it seemed to be the safest place for her. She attributes that to the diverse mixture of racial and ethnic backgrounds.

Being the only black student during the 1960s at the Colorado School of Mines opened up new experiences for Douglass. Not only did she have to overcome obstacles because of her color but also because she is a woman, she said.

"Golden, Colorado, was a culture shock to me," Douglass said.

Douglass discovered the Biracial Family Network in the mid-80s. The network was formed by six mothers of biracial children. Douglass became involved and is now vice-president of the network.

"The only way to break down barriers is to realize the barriers. In this color-conscious country it basically comes down to who's black and who's white, and we need to get away from that," Douglass said.

"We claim to be a melting pot but we have yet to blend," Douglass said.

Michele Boone, senior in animal sciences, said she attended the workshop to learn more about minorities and their feelings concerning major issues facing them.

"The thing I'll take home with me is that people in this group here today are not the ones that need to hear these issues," Boone said. "It's the people that are not here that need to be brought aware. There definitely needs to be more interaction."

Soviets to limit weapons testing

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — The Soviet legislature on Tuesday followed the lead of the U.S. Senate by unanimously adopting limits on nuclear weapons testing embodied in two treaties from the 1970s.

The Supreme Soviet went beyond the Senate, appealing to parliaments around the world to ban nuclear testing and repeating the Kremlin proposal for global nuclear disarmament.

The significance of the treaties has waned since the 1970s. Today, the superpowers are preparing to seal one pact to cut their nuclear arsenals and another to scale back conventional forces in Europe.

Additionally, environmental protests might force the Soviets to unilaterally suspend nuclear testing. On Monday, KGB border guards boarded a Greenpeace vessel in the arctic after it dispatched environmentalists to go ashore to a nuclear test site.

Earlier this year, public pressure forced the Soviet government to suspend testing at its main site, Semipalatinsk, in Kazakhstan.

Maj. Gen. Anatoly Koltunov, a member of the parliament of the Russian Federation, the largest of the 15 Soviet republics, demanded Tuesday that authorities investigate plans to test nuclear devices at Novaya Zemlya, the independent news agency Interfax reported.

In the Kremlin on Tuesday, Soviet lawmakers voted 347-0, with nine abstentions, to approve the 1974 Threshold Test Ban Treaty, which limits weapons tests to 150 kilotons, and the 1976 Peaceful Nuclear Explosions Treaty, which places the same limits on explosions for engineering purposes.

Adoption of the treaties was slowed because former President Carter wanted a more sweeping ban on testing, and his successor, former President Reagan, did not believe the technology existed to verify compliance.

President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev cleared the way for ratification at their last summit by agreeing to a new set of verification rules.

Supporters say the new verification measures are likely to set important precedents for further reducing or banning nuclear tests.

BRIEFLY

World

Mandela visits prisoners

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — A smiling Nelson Mandela returned to prison Tuesday, this time on a visit with promising news for African National Congress comrades still jailed for anti-apartheid activities.

"It evokes all kinds of memories ... but I'm concentrating on the pleasant ones," said Mandela, who was released in February after 27 years in prison for trying to overthrow the white-led government.

He went to Pollsmoor and Robben Island to tell jailed ANC members about government plans to release political prisoners.

Mandela spent nearly two decades on Robben Island, some of it breaking rocks in hard labor, before his transfer in 1982 to Pollsmoor.

He described Tuesday's meetings as emotional.

"The atmosphere was one of enthusiasm and the spirit of comradeship was so strong that when we meet, the emotions run wild," he said after his visits.

Mandela said he spoke only to ANC members, but that the organization seeks the release of all political prisoners, irrespective of affiliation.

Tipsy man cuts electricity

OSLO, Norway (AP) — A hotel bar cut off service to a tipsy, off-duty electrician, and he returned the favor — stumbling outside and cutting off the bar's power.

Barkeepers at the Skogstad Hotel in Hemsedal refused to serve a local power company employee because he was already drunk, the Oslo newspaper Verdens Gang reported Tuesday.

The electrician, not named in the report, went to the nearest power company switch box, traced the hotel's circuit and plunged the building into darkness Saturday evening.

The blackout was described only as lengthy.

Nation

Detainees get check, apology

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, kneeling before elderly Japanese Americans in wheelchairs, gave checks and letters of apology Tuesday to men and women who were rounded up and kept in World War II detention camps.

Nine Japanese Americans, including six age 100 and older, received $20,000 checks and letters from President Bush at an emotional ceremony to begin a three-year $1.25 billion program to compensate internees.

"By forcing us to reexamine our history, you have made us even stronger and more proud," Thornburgh told the recipients and those who lobbied to win redress for what Congress eventually acknowledged was a grave injustice.

"Your efforts have strengthened this nation's Constitution by reaffirming the inalienability of our civil rights," the attorney general said.

Court rules against couple

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Supreme Court has let stand its ruling that a landlord may refuse to rent to an unmarried couple because of his religious beliefs.

The court Monday denied discrimination.

State Human Rights Commissioner Stephen Cooper sought the rehearing, saying the decision contradicted the state Legislature's intent to prevent discrimination on the basis of marital status.

Cooper said the ruling opened the door to landlords imposing their morality on tenants.

In June 1989, an administrative law judge found that French had violated the law when he voided an agreement to rent a house to Sue Parsons after learning Parsons would live in the house with her fiance. French cited his religious beliefs against sex outside marriage.

Region

Kansas ACT scores improve

TOPEKA (AP) — Kansas high school students scored higher this spring on college entrance examinations than students nationwide, showed a report released Tuesday by the Kansas State Board of Education.

Kansas students' scores this spring were higher than the national average on the American College Testing Assessment for both verbal skills and mathematics.

ACT scores were also higher for students who took college preparatory courses — four years of English and three each of math, social studies and science.

The test results could be used by supporters of a proposal to set higher admission standards at state universities. They contend students will do better in college if they must take such a curriculum in high school to be admitted. Kansas high school graduates need only a diploma to enter a state university.

The issue of admission standards is likely to come up when the Legislature convenes in January 1991.

Under a proposal endorsed by the Kansas State Board of Regents, admission standards would force many students to take college preparatory courses.

Racial pranks point to youths

LAWRENCE (AP) — A small cross was burned and the letters KKK were painted on houses and buildings last week, but police think juveniles, not the Ku Klux Klan, were responsible.

The cross was burned Wednesday night in front of Lawrence Housing Authority's central office. The cross was made from two pieces of wood from a sofa in a nearby dumpster.

About 15 blocks away, KKK was painted on two houses where black people live. In the next two days, KKK was painted on a church, police said.

Police said they did not know positively if the events were related, but department spokesman Chris Mulvenon said they happened in the same part of town at about the same time.

"We have some suspect information," Mulvenon said. "Because of the height of the letters, it is believed the suspects are juveniles."

Finney upset by incest story

LAWRENCE (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Joan Finney became emotional when responding to a question about abortion during an appearance at a Rotary Club meeting on Monday.

The candidate touched off controversy late last month when she said she opposed allowing abortion for rape and incest victims, saying she understood they could get "immediate hospital care" that would eliminate the need for abortion.

Paul Dugan, her state campaign manager, said last week that Finney planned to answer no more questions on the abortion issue.

But at Monday's Rotary meeting, Barbara Ballard, a candidate for the state legislature, asked her to state her stand on abortion.

"Everyone knows my position," Finney said. "I am pro-life."

"A while back, I was in central Kansas and there was a young woman came up to me and handed me a list of poems, a whole — actually it was almost a book of poems," Finney said. "She had been a victim of incest."

"I was so touched," Finney said, then paused. "I was so touched by these poems..."

At that point, her voice broke, and she did not continue with her story, saying, "I just, I am not relaying this right, correctly to the people."

Finney then took and responded to a question on another subject.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

10 Wednesday

■ Alpha Lambda Delta/Phi Eta Sigma will have Royal Purple pictures taken at 8 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

■ The Graduate School has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Yousef N. Ahmad at 3:30 p.m. in Seaton 132. The dissertation topic will be "Analytical Study of a Long-Span, Reinforced Concrete Folded Plate."

■ The Graduate School has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Stephen A. Matthews at 1 p.m. in Bluemont 364. The dissertation topic will be "A Survey of Army National Guard Officer Candidate School Instructors: Their Level of Androgogy and Its Correlation to Student Achievement."

■ Social Work Organization will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 213. Tina Richardson will speak on working with minorities.

■ German Table will meet at 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

■ Math Club will have a book sale from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in Cardwell.

11 Thursday

■ KSU Wildlife Society will meet at 7 p.m. in Ackert 221. The topic will be summer jobs.

■ O.T. Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

■ Entry Deadline for Intramural Cross Country will be at 5 p.m. at the Recreational Services Office at the Chester E. Peters Recreatioanal Complex.

■ K-State Table Tennis Club will meet from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the ECM building on Denison Avenue.

■ Christian Science Organization will meet at at 4:30 p.m. in Bluemont 109.

■ Minority Assembly of Students in Health will meet at 6 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

■ KSU Committee on Religion will meet at 5:30 p.m. in Union Staterooms 2 and 3. The topic will be the role of religion in politics. The committee will also meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Little Theatre for a religious harmony interfaith theological panel to discuss a Jewish, Christian and Muslim dialogue on unity and diversity.

■ Rotaract Club of Manhattan/KSU will meet at 6 p.m. in Union 213.

■ ICTHUS Christian Fellowship will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 212.

■ Parachute Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 204.

■ Pre-occupational Therapy Students will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

■ KSU Rodeo Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Weber 146.

■ Horticultural Therapy Club will meet at 5:30 p.m. in Waters 18A.

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, sunny and warmer. High near 60. Winds becoming southerly at 5 to 15 mph by afternoon. Tonight, clear and not quite so cold. Low 35 to 40. Thursday, sunny. High in the upper 60s.

Some people don't think hunger is a problem in our area.

The Palmers would disagree.

Unbelievable. Disgusting. Not in our area. Not in this day and age.

But, today, men and women and children will be forced to dig through garbage to find their next meal. Right here.

Which is why we need your help.

Member agencies of the United Way of Riley County use your United Way gift to feed the hungry. It's money well spent. Doing the most good. Right here. In one month recently, over 500 people survived on United Way-assisted food.

Giving to United Way means your money helps agencies that undergo strict evaluations of their programs, staff, and facility. And that means they are better prepared to give people like the Palmers the help they really need.

When you get your Riley County pledge card this year, choose to help the Palmers. Let your gift show you care.

United Way of Riley County

"I'll be there... Because we care"

KSU Campus Campaign Oct. 2-19

Use payroll deduction

(Sponsored by Circle K)

Special Student Discount

$1 off TONIGHT ONLY! $1 off

K-State Players & the Dept. of Speech present

PUMP BOYS & Dinettes

Conceived & written by:
John Foley
Mark Hardwick
Debra Monk
Cass Morgan
John Schemmel
John Wann

Oct. 10-13, 16-20

Nichols Theatre—8 p.m.
Matinee Oct. 13—2 p.m.
Tickets: McCain Box Office
532-6428
Sponsored by the Manhattan Town Center

"A nothin' but pure fun, country musical."

Special Matinee—Parents' Weekend Oct. 13—2 p.m.

Lee's film focuses on sex

Subject matter, different handling may offend people

COLLEGIAN
Report Card
"SHE'S GOTTA HAVE IT"
C+

By Stacy Lentz
Collegian Reviewer

Spike Lee's controversial film "She's Gotta Have it" offers the viewer sex, sex and more sex.

The film revolves around the sex life of Nola Darling and never strays far from Nola's bed. She is a confused woman having affairs with three men.

Nola is incapable of having any kind of relationship with these men — or any man — except a sexual relationship that might be termed out-of-control, to say the least.

The three men in her life are stereotypes to the extreme. Jamie is the solid and sensitive one who loves Nola, but becomes violent concerning her affairs with the other men. Greer is a high-fashion model with an oversized chest — and an ego to match. Spike Lee plays Mars Blackmon, who never stops talking or takes off his Air Jordan sneakers, even in bed.

The film takes an almost documentary approach to Nola and her confusion. The film takes a viewpoint that men are foolish, especially when it comes to being strung around by someone as trashy as Nola.

The film was shot in Lee's Brooklyn neighborhood on a $23,000 budget. The majority of the film was shot in black and white and contains a jazz soundtrack composed by Bill Lee, Spike Lee's father. Lee turns it into a family affair — the still photographs in the film were provided by brother David, and sister Joie plays Nola's neurotic best friend.

The acting in the film leaves much to be desired. However, considering the film was shot in 12 days and the cast and crew were fellow New York University graduate students on deferrals, it was not that bad.

Some of the scenes in the film are sexually explicit and raise some controversy over the treatment of women. In one scene, one of Nola's lovers becomes angry with her and rapes her. The film shows rape as the horrible act it is, but Lee's inclusion of the scene is questionable at best.

Lee has a reputation, however, for showing things as they are in the urban community and rarely shows a serious issue in a lighthearted manner.

"She's Gotta Have it" has some valid points. The film was constructed and directed superbly, but may be found offensive and out-of-sync with any film the audience has ever seen before.

Lee's film may leave you with the "I can't believe I'm watching this at the Union" feeling. "She's Gotta Have it" is a low-budget, shot-on-the-run film that will cause many a raised eyebrow.

The movie will be shown as part of the UPC Kaleidoscope series at 7 p.m. today through Friday, and at 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

Speaker ranks Eisenhower third among United States' generals

By Scott Levendofsky
Collegian Reporter

The third greatest military general in the history of the United States was born in Kansas, according to historian Russell Weigley.

Weigley, a well-known scholar of American military history, spoke at the fourth Dwight D. Eisenhower Lecture on War and Peace Tuesday in Forum Hall at 8 p.m.

John McCulloh, professor of history, introduced Weigley as a distinguished university professor at Temple University in Philadelphia and the author of numerous books and articles including The American Way of War and Eisenhower's Lieutenants.

Weigley ranked General Eisenhower behind Ulysses S. Grant and George Washington as the elite three generals in commanding the U.S. military through the crisis of war.

"Eisenhower was one of the greatest American generals and stands alone in military leadership since World War II," Weigley said.

"He stands at the summit, far above even the most masterful and efficient past United States military generals," Weigley said.

The criteria for measuring great generals lies in their ability to handle a magnitude of responsibility and by how much the general accomplished in relation to the resources available to him, Weigley said.

Of all the great generals, Washington had the fewest resources, Weigley said.

"He never had enough men. Washington had no experience and had no personnel around him who had any experience either," Weigley said.

Despite Washington's handicaps, he won the Revolutionary War because he was a strategist, Weigley said.

The second greatest general in U.S. history, Grant, was the first general to have extraordinary technical skills. He had professional skills and a professional attitude towards battle, Weigley said.

"Grant had extraordinary flexibility and his tactics proved it. He was able to end the Civil War in one year instead of dragging it out into a prolonged blood bath," Weigley said.

In discussing Eisenhower, Weigley said that people sometimes overshadow his military accomplishments by concentrating on his abilities as a diplomat.

"Some people gloss over Eisenhower the general by concentrating on his diplomatic ability between the post-war conflicting European nations," Weigley said.

"Dwight Eisenhower was the first professional military man," he said.

Skelton to perform show

By Stacy Lentz
Collegian Reviewer

The multi-talented Red Skelton will appear at 8 p.m. Saturday at Bramlage Coliseum. His performance will be part of the Parents' Weekend festivities.

Skelton will treat fans to a two-hour performance of memorable pantomimes and characterizations. A 22-piece orchestra will help the rubber-faced comedian reprise many of the characters that have made him an entertainment legend. The performance, featuring the characters Gertrude and Heathcliff the talking seagulls, Clem Kadiddlehopper and the Mean Widdle Kid will revive memories for some and will be new to others.

"A lot of college kids are too young to remember his show, but I really think they will enjoy it," said Debby Whorley, Skelton's agent. Whorley is also an agent for George Burns and Bob Hope.

Skelton, 77, began his career by dancing for pennies and has been delighting audiences ever since. In a career spanning 65 years, he has performed for eight presidents and three popes.

"It's the best show in the business, and I'm not just saying that because I'm his agent," Whorley said. "He's one of the few entertainers that make you howl with laughter."

Skelton has also appeared in 48 feature films and has written 22 motion pictures, two of which he plans to produce. Skelton also holds a record for 20 consecutive years on network television.

In his spare time — when he is not doing one of his 75 shows a year — he has written more than 8,000 musical selections and released two albums. He is also a prolific author, having written more than 4,000 short stories and published two books, "Red Skelton in Your Closet" and "Red Skelton's Gertrude and Heathcliff."

After a three-night performance at Carnegie Hall and a brief stop in Chicago, Skelton will arrive in Manhattan on Wednesday for a press conference. He will spend the three days before his concert mingling with the people of the city.

Tickets are $15.50 and $11.50 and may be purchased at the Bramlage Coliseum Box Office, Manhattan Town Center, or by phone at 532-7606.

MIDNIGHT MADNESS
Sunday
October 14, 1990
11:00 p.m.
Cats
—Schedule—
11:00 p.m.—Doors Open
11:15 p.m.—K-State Student Slam Dunk Contest
11:30 p.m.—K-State Student Dash for Cash
12:01 p.m.—Cats Take The Floor

Harpo's
Open 24 Hours
•Citywide Delivery
•537-2526
•Hours: 7 a.m.-1 a.m.
This Week:
Big Deluxe, Lg. French Fries, Lg. Drink—$2.99
606 N. Manhattan

From Roots to Wings
Parents' Weekend
Extended Hours
Shop at the K-State Union Bookstore
--Friday--
7:45 a.m. to 8 p.m.
--Saturday--
8 a.m. to 8 p.m.
--Sunday--
12 noon to 5 p.m.
To serve You better!
K-State Union Bookstore

1990 Parents' Weekend Activities

Friday, October 12

Recreational Activities, Natatorium, 7:30-10 p.m.; Peters Recreation Complex, 6 a.m.-midnight. Parents admitted free.
Women's Volleyball Game, K-State vs. University of Missouri at Kansas City, 7:30 p.m., Ahearn Field House, $1-$2.
Chuck Wagon Buffet, Union Stateroom, 6-7:30 p.m., $6 meal only or $8 with admission to the Kaner Comedy Show.
The Jaz Kaner Comedy Show, McCain Auditorium, 8 p.m., $3; Kaner's humor is tailored for the college circuit.
Pump Boys and Dinettes, Nichols Theater, 8 p.m., $6-$7; K-State Players present a recent off-Broadway musical hit.
Candlelight Walk to Danforth Chapel, 6 p.m., Haymaker parking lot; concludes Racial and Ethnic Harmony Week.

Saturday, October 13

Activity Center, Union Courtyard, 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Obtain a detailed schedule of weekend activities.
Family Portraits with Willie, Union Courtyard, 9:30 a.m. to noon, $5. Capture the memories with Willie the Wildcat.
A Taste of K-State, Dairy Bar, Meat Lab, 9 a.m.-1 p.m.; Shellenberger Bakery, 9 a.m. to noon; free food samples, tours.
Guided Tours of the Konza Prairie, 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.; a fascinating 2.8-mile hike and slide show. Bring walking shoes.
Faculty Book Autographing by K-State faculty authors, K-State Union Bookstore, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Meet over 26 K-State faculty authors.
Special Attractions and Tours, details available at the Parents Activity Center:
Macdonald Laboratory, 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 2 p.m.; see energy research using a 6-million-volt atomic accelerator.
K-State Butterfly and Insect Collection, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; see live insect behavior under extreme magnification.
Campus Arboretum and Tree Walk, self-guided tour. Explore dozens of mature specimens of exotic trees and bushes.
K-State Historic Costume Collection, 11 a.m., 1 p.m., 3 p.m.; includes apparel from the Chinese Imperial Court.
Nuclear Reactor, 9 a.m., 10 a.m., 11 a.m., 1 p.m.; see the research nuclear reactor which is submerged in a pool of water.
Rose Garden and Conservatory, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.; stroll the new formal garden and examine colorful tropical plants.
Planetarium Shows, 9 a.m., 10 a.m., 11 a.m., 407 Cardwell Hall. Learn about the night skies of Kansas.
Architecture's Computer Graphics Design Lab Demonstration, 11 a.m., 1 p.m., 2 p.m., 106K Seaton Hall.
Guided tours of KSU's main campus, 9-11 a.m., leaving every half hour from the Union first floor.
Rappelling demonstration, 9-11 a.m., Military Science Building. Army ROTC cadets defy gravity and "climb the walls."
Multi-Cultural Student Scholarship Brunch, 10 a.m., $5.25, Union Cottonwood Room; honoring scholars and parents.
Brunch and Burger Buffet, Union Bluemont Room, 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., $4.75. Build your own burger and pile it on!
Football Game, K-State vs. Oklahoma State, 1:10 p.m., $16 reserved, $9 general admission, $5 children. For reservations 1-800-221-CATS or 532-6920. Half-time presentation of the 1990 Honorary Parents by Chimes Junior Honorary.
Pump Boys and Dinettes, an off-Broadway musical hit, Nichols Theater, 2 p.m. matinee and 8 p.m., $6-$7.
Parents' Day Buffet, 5-7 p.m., Union Ballroom, $8.95; a special meal for your family. Advance reservations required.
Comedian Red Skelton, 8 p.m., Bramlage Coliseum, $11.50, $15.50. Laugh along with show business' veteran clown.
Concert at McCain Auditorium, 8 p.m., $1-$5; K-State Singers, Men's and Women's Glee Clubs.
Recreational Activities, Natatorium, closed; Peters Recreation Complex, 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Parents admitted free.

Sunday, October 14

Family Worship on Campus, Danforth Chapel, Protestant, 11 a.m., and St. Isidore's Catholic Campus Center, 11 a.m.
Parents' Weekend Golf Tourney & Brunch, Stagg Hill Golf Course, 8:30 a.m., $42/cple. Enter by Oct. 1, call 532-6260.
Konza Prairie Self-Guided Tours, hike either 2.8, 4.7 or 6.1 miles at K-State's Konza Prairie south of Manhattan.
Recreational Activities, Natatorium, 1-5 p.m. and 7-10 p.m.; Peters Recreation Complex, noon to midnight.
Basketball Midnight Madness, Bramlage Coliseum, doors open 11 p.m., men's basketball practice at 12:01 a.m.

For more weekend information contact the ULearN Network at 532-6442.

chimes

K-State Union
Host to the Campus

Thanks to the following 1990 Parents Weekend Sponsors...

Oasis
Mrs. Powell's Delicious Cinnamon Rolls
World Bazaar
Yen Ching Chinese Restaurant
Varney's Bookstore
Carlos O' Kelly's
Brentwood for Men and Women
Wildcat Spirit
Hair Westloop
Haynes' Style Shop and Beauty Supply
Borck Brothers Mens Wear
Pfeifley Jewelers
Kitchens Plus, Inc.
The Book Shop
Kansas State Travel Agency
Sirloin Stockade
Wal Mart
Bonanza
Amigo's
Western Wynde
Alpha Computers
JC Penney
Seiferts
Taylor's Shoes
Mid-America Office Supplies
Reed and Elliot Jewelers
Steve's Floral
Perspectives
Harry's Uptown Supper Club
So-Fro Fabrics
Chi Omega
Pi Beta Phi
Kappa Alpha Theta
Phi Delta Theta
Haymaker Hall
Kappa Delta
Delta Upsilon
Farmhouse
Tau Kappa Epsilon
Sigma Kappa
Sigma Sigma Sigma
Kappa Kappa Gamma
Valentino's
Keck's Steakhouse
Bowinkle's
Alpha Chi Omega
Ballard's Sporting Goods
Lowman's Mens Shop
Krazy Kris' Novelties & Gifts
On the Wild Side
Woody's Ladies Shop
Campus Hairstyling

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

Journalists try to do job responsibly

I've been wondering a lot lately just what exactly it is that the Collegian is supposed to be doing. We get a lot of questions and a lot of criticism around here. Even though we expect that, it sometimes makes me wonder just what it is that we are here to do, and are we doing it?

OK, we're a newspaper. We inform our public, which in our case is the K-State population. They, in turn, inform us. "Why didn't Calvin and Hobbes run last week?" they ask. "Why didn't you cover this? Why did you cover that? Why do you pick on such and such a group? Why didn't you run my letter?" So we obviously make some mistakes in informing our public, and maybe they make some mistakes about what they want to be (or don't want to be) informed about.

So anyway, we do our best, and our best tends to be pretty good, compared with other college newspapers. But we are, after all, only a bunch of students, even though some of us have been here for what seems like entirely too long. We try, in short, to be responsible journalists.

That sounds pretty, but what does it mean? I wish I knew. When in doubt, I always check Webster's, but the definition for responsible is pretty big. "Capable of being trusted or depended on ... based on or marked by good judgement ... answerable for one's behavior" seems to sum it up and be appropriate. Journalism is simply "written material of current interest or wide popular appeal." If I were a journalism major, I'm sure I'd have the same slew of easy answers to the question of responsible journalism as I do to the idea of corporate responsibility as a business major. I'm not interested in easy rote answers today. I'm wondering what responsible journalism means to the Collegian.

You have to answer a lot of questions before you can publish a newspaper. What lengths will we go to get a story? Should we use accident pictures that have victims in them? Do we publish names in cases that involve students? If the Associated Press makes a mistake, are we responsible? What issues are important this week? Where do we stand on them?

Karin Dell'Antonia

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

It takes a lot of questions to write a column, too. What should I write about? Will it be entertaining, informative, amusing ... perfect? Should I make people mad? Does anybody read it, anyway? When I started writing for the Collegian I thought I had a lot of opinions. Shortly thereafter, I discovered that I really only have about five opinions, and one of them I absolutely refuse to write about. I've also discovered that you can both make and lose friends by doing this sort of thing. People take the Collegian very seriously.

So we answer a jillion questions for every story. We try to be fair and equitable and all that stuff. Letters to the editor tell us what we're doing wrong (but hardly ever what we're doing right). Some days we don't have any. As the end of the semester and the time for grades in speech classes nears, we have a lot. And all for what?

So that K-State students can have something to distract them from wasting valuable time listening to their professors lecture. I'm an average reader, I know how it works. We flip to the editorials, read the cartoon, check the letters to see if anyone you know wrote in, and skim the rest of the paper before the professor comes in. Then we fold it over to the back page and read the personals, then the comics (Glimpses always gets kind of folded over) and then try to work the crossword while looking like we're taking notes. (It doesn't work, by the way. Even if you can't see the paper from the front of the room, you're never writing at the right time.)

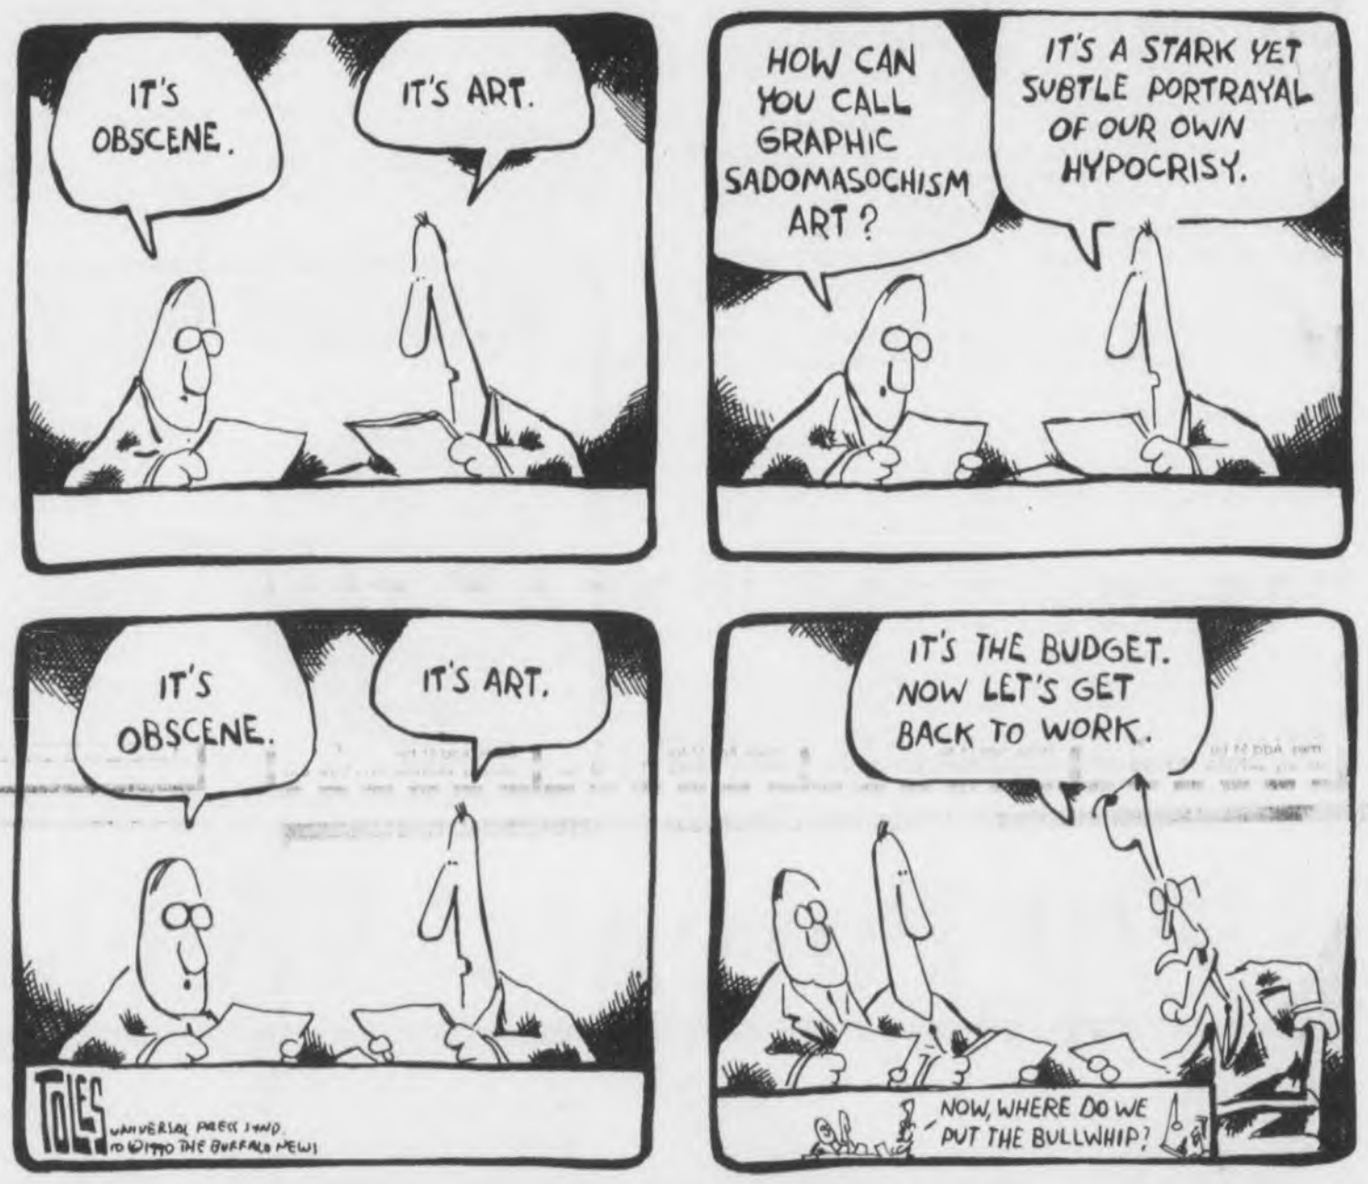
I've strayed from the point. We, as K-State journalists, try to represent the student body. We try to balance national and campus news, and we try to do it responsibly. We try to cover issues without beating a dead horse. You can, after all, only say so much about campus safety, Farrell library, budget cuts and roller blading. I think we reflect our readership pretty well. With about 25 exceptions, K-State doesn't seem to get real excited about the issues. We hear about it, we get worked up for about a week, it dies down, and it's over. You could say that about our whole nation. We all have a really short attention span.

If we want a paper that battles the administration tooth and nail, or writes about issues until something gets done, we need to have that kind of student body. On the other hand, if we want one that never expresses any opinions that no one agrees with, we all need to have frontal lobotomies.

I guess what I'm saying is that the Collegian tries to be the best newspaper it can be and to do it responsibly. We aren't trying to make people angry (although if we didn't, we'd never know anyone was reading us). But when it comes down to it, the Collegian is not an entity in and of itself. It's a bunch of fallible people. But we're trying. Also, the paper doesn't cost anything. Really, on campus entertainment doesn't get much better than that.

EDITORIALS

Budget crisis serious matter for Americans



The closing of national parks and monuments as a result of the budget crisis was one of the best ways to show the American people how serious the situation is.

Formulating the annual budget has become a Congressional nightmare. Allowing popularly elected representatives to come up with a budget that reduces spending is next to impossible. No member of Congress wants to be the one who has to explain to his constituents why their taxes increased or their Social Security benefits decreased. Legislators wait until the last possible second before approving a budget like a sophomore putting off a term paper.

So what better way to illustrate the need to come up with a budget agreement than to hit the American taxpayers where it hurts — their vacation? The media had a field day showing suburban families with their faces pressed up against the windows of the Smithsonian museum or staring dejectedly at the closed gates of a national park in the Rocky Mountains. These were a bunch of angry folks whose vacations were ruined by foolish political whims.

The government had been threatening to shut down "non-essential" areas for the past few weeks. Officials had been speculating on the consequences of the failure to come up with a federal budget. The choice to temporarily close non-essential areas like parks and museums was, in retrospect, probably the only way to get the American public to take notice of the nation's budget woes.

Maybe the complaints of angry tourists will force Congress to put together a budget. If not, the next step is cutting back essential services. Imagine those same people who were slightly upset about not being able to visit the Smithsonian when their mail stops arriving.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... David Frese
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel,
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koel
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little, Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff, Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

Student Publications Staff

DIRECTOR/NEWS ADVISER ..... Ron Johnson
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR/ADVERTISING DIRECTOR ..... Gloria Freeland
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR ..... Linda Puntney
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Ann Foster
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE ..... Jackie Harmon
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Linda Weatherly
OFFICE MANAGER ..... Pat Hudgins
ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT ..... Connie Fulkerson
INTERIM NEWS PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... David Svoboda
NEWS PRODUCTION ASSISTANT ..... Carla Jones
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Wanda Haynie
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS ..... Tammi Landis, Dana Franklin, Chris Tucker, Britt Owen, Deanna Adams
OFFICE STAFF ..... Shanta Bailey, Matt FitzGerald, Christa South
CARRIERS ..... Joe Cook, Minda Dowdy, John Fulkerson, Norm LeComte, James Seymore

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $30
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $54
Summer Session $10

LETTERS

Solution selfish

Editor,

I was angered when I read the letter to the editor from Dean Hargett (Oct. 9) that ignorantly and immaturely calls for civil disobedience by all bicyclists of the laws that regulate the operation of vehicles on campus and city roads.

I have no sympathy for the "plight" of bicyclists. Bicyclists have consistently ignored the laws that govern traffic on campus and city streets even before Hargett's call for action (or inaction) on the part of cyclists. Contrary to many bicyclists' beliefs, stop signs apply to them just as they apply to drivers of motorized vehicles. Bicyclists must also yield the right of way to pedestrians at crosswalks, stop at traffic lights and stay off of the sidewalks, just as motorcyclists and drivers of cars must.

Having been hit by a bicycle while crossing in a clearly marked crosswalk, my blood boils when bicyclists act as though they are above the law and have complete freedom to do whatever it takes to get where they are going. Rather than using poorly placed sidewalks, Hargett should take responsibility for initiating change by choosing a path that will result in the most good for all, not just the quickest and most convenient solution for bicyclists.

The selfishness and egocentrism of the "me generation" obviously has not died. In a time of growing awareness of the need for harmonious interaction between different groups, my sincerest wish is that Hargett will catch on and find a more acceptable way of developing a solution to his "plight."

Suzy Auten
secretary for the vice president of institutional advancement

Campout has rules

Editor,

In light of events that have occurred at past campouts, there have been some rules that have been placed into effect that campers need to be aware of.

Trash is one problem. There are many trash barrels located in and around the camp area. They are to be used for trash only. There is also a trash dumpster located in the driveway in case the barrels are full. Members of the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee will have trash bags to give away in order to help you keep your area clean. If you need some trash bags, please do not hesitate to ask for them.

The committee has the right to throw a group out of the line and will if do so if a group's area is not clean before a roll call.

Remember a roll call can come at any time, so we strongly suggest that your area be kept clean at all times.

There has been a problem with bathroom facilities in the past. As you should be able to notice, there are portable toilets located at the camp area. Seaton Hall is also open 24 hours. If you need to use the showers inside Ahearn Field House, towels and soap are not provided, so please bring your own. In addition, extension cords coming from inside of Ahearn are a serious electrical shock hazard and are not allowed.

Unruly, destructive or malicious behavior is something else that will not be tolerated. As with the trash problem, the committee will throw groups out of line if this type of behavior occurs.

Ticket buying will begin at 8 a.m. Oct. 16. On Oct. 16, the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee will ask that one member from each group get in line to purchase tickets. This will be done in groups of ten spots in line. Once in line, groups will be allowed to purchase as many basketball tickets as they have season football tickets.

On Oct. 17, no group will be able to purchase tickets until its campsite is completely cleared. This means that all tents, trash and any other items in the camp area must be removed or that group will be held up in line. Remember, you do not have to camp out to purchase tickets.

Camping out for tickets to be purchased on Oct. 17 will continue, but at a reduced rate. For example, say your group had three persons per spot in line (3 campers equals a total of 60 tickets to be purchased). Let's say that 27 people had season football tickets, so that leaves 33 people needing basketball tickets. This means that your group only needs two people camping out to enable that group to complete its purchase of 60 tickets. No group will be able to buy more tickets than it camped for. Roll calls will continue until 8 a.m. Oct. 17, when the line will form again.

To determine if a season football ticket was purchased, each person will need a fee card with a hole punch and the season football ticket identification card on the six-pack of single game admission tickets. If the ID card has been lost, please see the committee at 9 p.m. Oct. 15 in front of Ahearn with some type of proof of purchase. The committee will also be there to answer questions. Band members are considered to have purchased season football tickets.

Basketball tickets are $70 for 15 games. If you wish to pay for your tickets by check, the check must be payable to K-State Athletic Department, and it must have a local address and phone number and a student ID number on it.

Students provide must also have a fall 1990 fee card with showing full-time student fees paid to be able to purchase each ticket. There will be no exceptions.

Bill Nelson
senior in political science
chairman of the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116. Students will be asked to show their I.D. card upon submission when done in Kedzie 116.

New office handles proposals for grants

By Ryan Finney
Collegian Reporter

K-State requested $81.6 million in proposals for grants to conduct research last year. It received almost $30 million.

The newly-formed Office of Research and Sponsored Programs will try to increase these numbers by aiding faculty in writing proposals for the grants.

Timothy Donoghue, vice provost for research and dean of the graduate school, said some changes will be made in the process faculty members follow to submit their proposals for grants and contracts to conduct research.

According to a memorandum released by Donoghue, all proposals submitted to extramural sponsors require the approval and signature of the Office of Research and Sponsored Programs as the final step in the University approval process.

"Proposals for grants have been handled in the past by the Controller's Office," Donoghue said. "Now, all matters related to research, research policy and research issues are in control of the vice provost for research and the Office of Research and Sponsored Programs."

Robert Lowman, associate vice provost for research and director of the office, said the purpose for establishing the vice provost position is to have someone strategically thinking and stimulating research that is in the best interest of K-State.

"The vice provost for research has brought a different perspective to the research programs of the University," Lowman said. "He started to ask more questions about how we can encourage faculty members to cooperate with each other across department and college lines."

Donoghue said the office was set up to help faculty members identify potential sponsors for their research.

"We help them make sure that they conform to what the sponsor has as guidelines, and to what the University has as guidelines," he said. "We are trying to be more service-oriented to the faculty than the previous office could be."

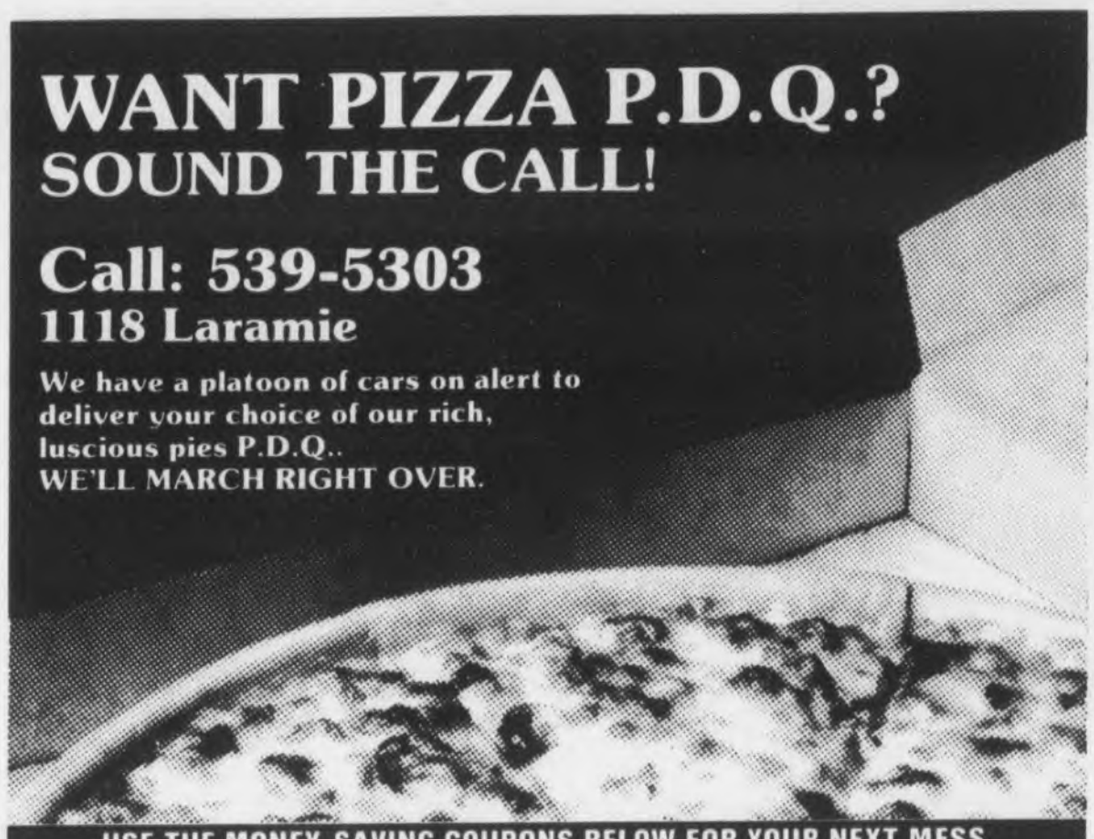
Lowman said that previously those who were signing proposals on behalf of the University had a business perspective.

"They were good people who did a good job, but they couldn't bring an academic perspective to things."

Lowman said a staff has handled research-related activities for quite a few years. However, the research office had never officially existed.

The Office of Research and Sponsored Programs completes tasks including:

- Publishing the newsletter "Research News" to help faculty members locate potential sponsors.
- Planning budgets for faculty members for grant proposals.
- Handling research ethics such as appropriate use of human subjects and laboratory animals.
- Getting involved in congressional relations with Washington D.C.
- Processing proposals faster by revising the forms faculty members use.



Lowman said the office is taking a more active part in advocacy on behalf of the University in Washington, D.C.

"We have found that some of the grant programs and federal agencies are competitive, but political influence also plays a role in the final decision (on who gets the grant)," he said. "Who you have in Congress speaking out for you makes a difference."

Lowman said that students have a misconception about research. He said students believe research is something that pulls teachers away from class and makes them less available for office hours.

"Research plays a major role in this University and often the reputation of our University is made on the basis of research," Lowman said.

WANT PIZZA P.D.Q.?
SOUND THE CALL!
Call: 539-5303
1118 Laramie
We have a platoon of cars on alert to deliver your choice of our rich, luscious pies P.D.Q..
WE'LL MARCH RIGHT OVER.

USE THE MONEY-SAVING COUPONS BELOW FOR YOUR NEXT MESS.

2 Medium Family Pack
One Combo and One Single-Topping
$10.99
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers Limited delivery area and times Add $1 for delivery EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU

Medium All Meat Combo
Beef • Sausage Pepperoni • Ham Bacon
$7.99
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers Limited delivery area and times Add $1 for delivery EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU

2 Medium One-Toppers
Cheese plus one topping on each $8.99
or 2 Large $11.99
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers Limited delivery area and times Add $1 for delivery EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU

$4 OFF Any Large Pizza
or
$3 OFF Any Medium
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers Limited delivery area and times Add $1 for delivery EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU

Godfather's Pizza®

IT PAYS TO COMPARE

THE JOHN ALDEN TAX-SHELTERED ANNUITY COULD BE FOR YOU IF:

*9.25% current interest rate

1. YOU ARE LOOKING FOR ONE OF THE HIGHEST INTEREST RATE HISTORIES IN THE INDUSTRY.
2. YOU WANT AN A.M. BEST A+ RATED COMPANY WITH A JUNK BOND PORTFOLIO OF LESS THAN 1%.
3. YOU WANT A LOAN PROVISION AT A NET COST OF 2%. [subject to contract provisions]
4. YOU WANT A 10% PENALTY-FREE WITHDRAWAL ONCE PER CONTRACT YEAR. [dependent on age there may be a penalty as prescribed by federal tax law]

THE TEXAS STATE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION HAS CHOSEN THE JOHN ALDEN TAX-SHELTERED ANNUITY AS THEIR ENDORSED PRODUCT. IF THE MEMBERS OF ONE OF THE LARGEST TEACHER'S ASSOCIATION CHOSE THE JOHN ALDEN COMPANY SHOULDN'T YOU? FOR MORE INFORMATION PLEASE CONTACT:

GIL M. SABATKA, CLU, ChFC, CFP
227 SOUTHWIND PLACE
MANHATTAN, KS. 66502
(913) 776-4873

* This rate effective 2/90 and subject to change. Minimum guarantee is 6% for 10 years and 5% thereafter.
This rating refers to the overall financial status of the company and does not refer to specific policy provisions, rates, or practices of the company.

FOR MORE INFORMATION PLEASE CALL OR RETURN THIS COUPON:

YES! I WOULD LIKE MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE JOHN ALDEN TAX-SHELTERED ANNUITY.

NAME: _____

ADDRESS: _____

I WOULD LIKE A COMPARISON BETWEEN THE JOHN ALDEN COMPANY AND MY CURRENT TSA COMPANY. _____

From Roots to Wings

You Are Invited to attend a Faculty Autographing

Saturday, October 13
10:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m.

K-State Union Bookstore

We are pleased to honor the following members of the K-State Faculty:

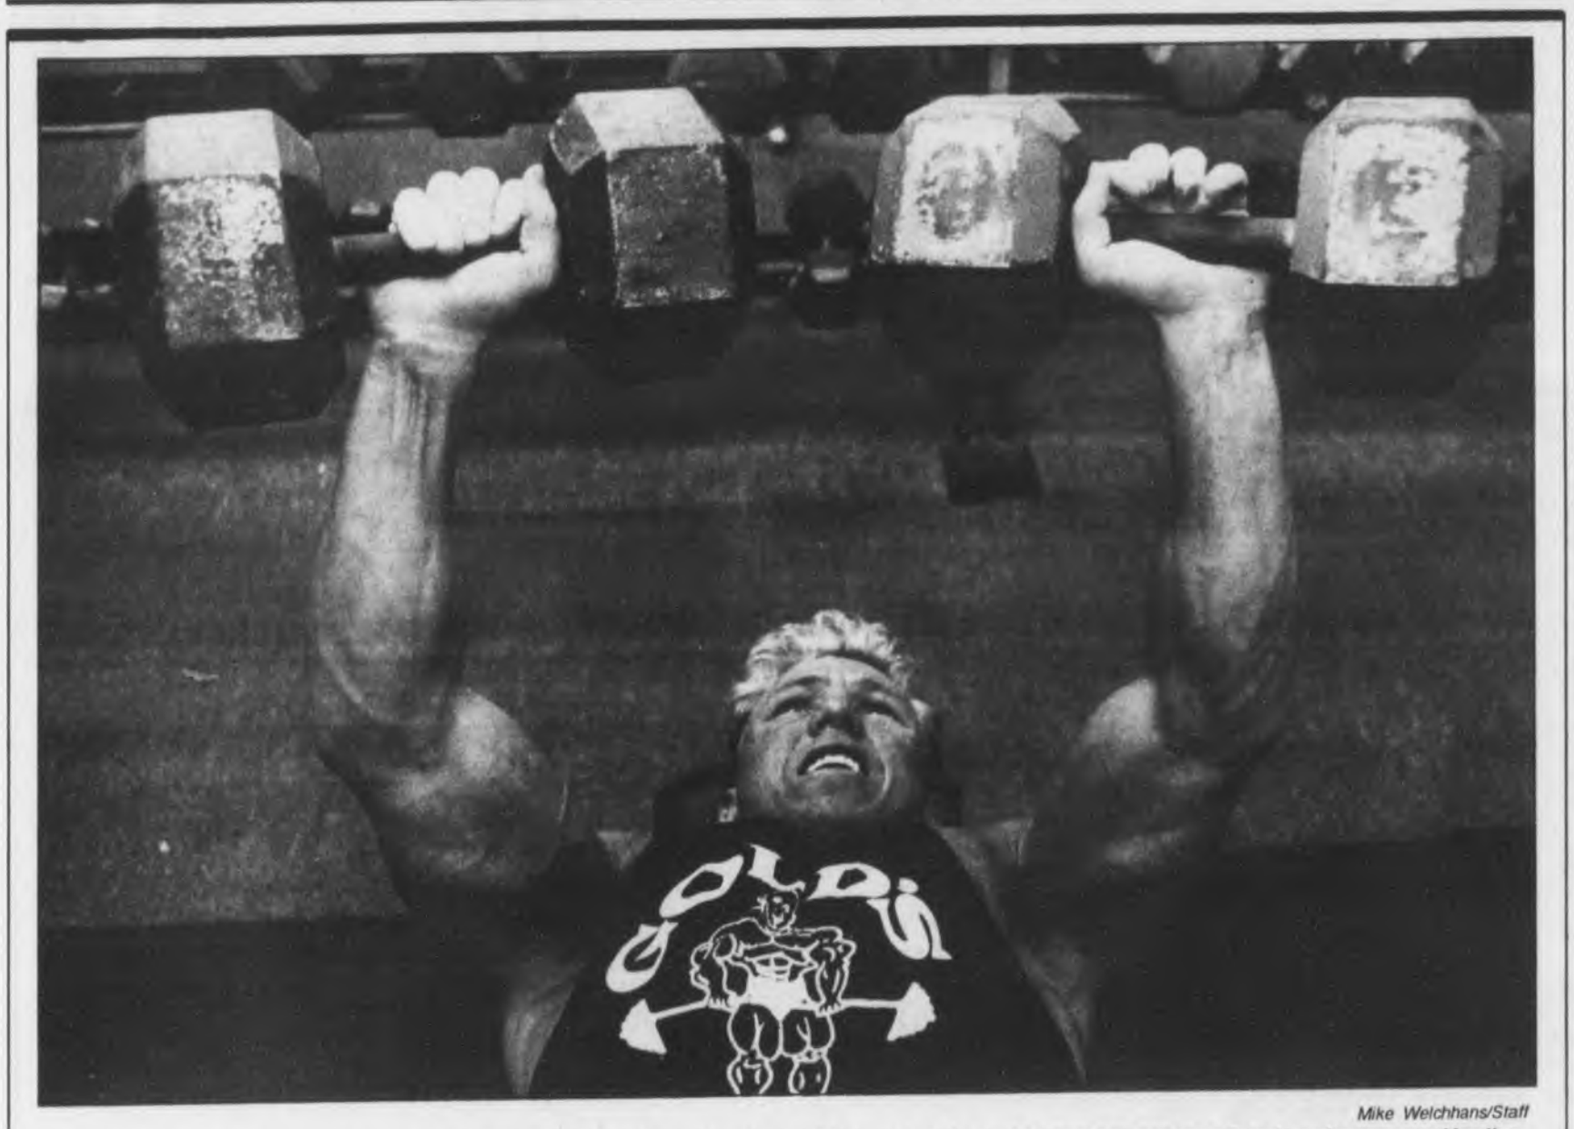
These faculty members will be autographing copies of their recent publications.

Gary W. Clift
Wallace Dace
Bernd Foerster
Richard J. Harris
Mary F. Heller
Steve Heller
Jonathon Holden
Kenneth M. Jones
S. Lillian Kremer
Stephan Konz
D. T. MacFarland
Paul McCarthy
Betty R. McGraw
Sarah Bishop Merrill
Tom Murray
E. Wayne Nafziger
Margery A. Neely
Benjamin M. Nyberg
James F. Ragan
A. G. Ramm
Frank E. Saal
Huber Self
Charles A. Smith
Donald C. Stewart
Michael W. Suleiman
K. K. Tummala

ALL THE mox·ie OF A START-UP COMPANY WITH ALL THE STABILITY OF A FORTUNE 100.

mox·ie \'mäk-sē\ n (1930)
1 : ENERGY, PEP 2 : COURAGE, DETERMINATION
3 : KNOW-HOW, EXPERTISE

Come see and hear what BASF has to offer. We'll provide you with:
- Information on our innovative Professional Development Program (PDP)
- An in-depth interview by our professional staff
- Literature on our organization



BASF has a long-term commitment to the continuous development of our employees. We designed our Professional Development Program, (PDP), with new graduates like you in mind. Our goal is to develop highly flexible career paths and allow you to choose the area where you'll excel. So, if you have a degree in chemistry, engineering, business or the liberal arts, you owe it to yourself to explore the options at BASF.

For more details, contact your placement office. Or, write directly to Manager, Professional Employment, BASF Corporation, 100 Cherry Hill Road, Parsippany, New Jersey 07054. We are an equal opportunity employer.

BASF

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS

Mike Welchhans/Staff

Bobby Smith, junior in exercise science, begins his upper-body workout with an extensive set of dumbell presses Sunday afternoon at Hardbodies gym. The intense daily workouts are in preparation for his trip to the National Physique Committee's National Championships this week.

Bodybuilder set for nationals

By David Svoboda
Sports Editor

Bobby Smith hasn't always wanted to "pump you up." In fact, he hasn't always wanted to pump himself up.

And yet the K-State junior has done enough bodybuilding work during the past five years to be on the threshold of something big in the sport he's decided to make an important part of his life.

This isn't the world of Hans and Franz. This is the world of high-stakes, competitive bodybuilding.

And Smith is right in the middle of the competition.

He will compete later this week in the National Physique Committee's National Championships in Los Angeles, having won the NPC Kansas Middleweight Championship in Wichita two weeks ago.

It's competition that has Smith in the gym four to five hours daily, working various body parts. Refine and define, define and refine — that's the routine.

But it hasn't always been this way. Smith was a senior at Dodge City High School when he decided that bodybuilding might give him the greatest opportunity for future athletic success.

Though he had played football, his relative lack of height was a drawback.

"I played football in high school, and was always undersized," Smith said. "My cousin was a bodybuilder, though, and he was my inspiration. I guess he was the reason I got involved."

During the years since he began bodybuilding, the exercise science major has been through the ups and downs of training for competition.

During the periods just before competitions, Smith spends the aforementioned four to five hours in the gym. During the off-season, it's just two-plus.

While training for competition, Smith is on a "three on, one off" routine. On the first day, he works the chest and back. On day No. 2, the legs and biceps are the focus, and on day No. 3, he works the shoulders and triceps. His day off consists of posing and aerobic exercise.

"It's a fairly intensive schedule," he said. "And off-days really aren't off-days."

During those pre-competition periods, there aren't enough hours in the day, Smith said.

"I work as a personal trainer for a part-time job," he said. "And as far as school goes, your state of mind is off. You're not as focused as you normally would be. You're worried about what you're going to be doing the next day, how you can get better."

One way Smith hopes to be getting better prior to the national competition is through diet. His pre-contest daily meal plan includes the consumption of 25 egg whites, one pound of chicken, one pound of turkey and 400 grams of carbohydrates. The carbohydrates consist of rice, potatoes and oatmeal.

"Most people really don't think of this as a diet," Smith said. "And the food is pretty bland, but it's good for my needs."

The diet and daily workouts allow Smith to achieve his target weight of 176 pounds — the cutoff for the middleweight division. During the off-season, his weight can reach the 200 mark.

"During the off-season, I try to eat pretty good during the week," he said. "I binge on the weekends with chips, pizza, ice cream."

But he's far from binging now. The national competition lies ahead.

"I'm looking at it as mainly just a learning experience," Smith said. "I'm going into it wanting to be competitive, but as far as winning, that's probably not very realistic. But anything can happen."

Smith has qualified for nationals three consecutive years, but this will be the first time he has actually made the trip. A yet-to-be-opened athletic club is footing the bill, which he expects to approach $1,500.

As for life beyond this week's competition, Smith has three goals: getting a degree, turning pro and teaching school.

"I think it's a realistic goal that I might turn pro someday," said the 22-year-old Smith.

"But my main priority is to graduate. And I want to be a physical education teacher, football coach and strength coach."

For now, the bodybuilder, who has won various titles in three different states, is focused on just one thing — competition.

And he's pumping himself up for it.

Volleyball squad to face Kansas in home match

By Russ Ewy
Sports Reporter

The K-State volleyball squad will look to post its first Big Eight victory when arch rival Kansas comes to town tonight for a 7:30 match in Ahearn Field House.

The Jayhawks, second in the conference, enter the match 10-4 overall and 2-1 in the Big Eight.

"Kansas is probably one of the top teams in our conference in volleying," Coach Scott Nelson said. "They do not make very many errors, so they put pressure right back on you. They have excellent defense, so your ability to side-out is always challenged.

"They run a nice offensive system with minimal errors," he said. "So from our perspective, our defensive responsiblities need to be concentrated on quite well to stay with their hitters. I think they're one of the better teams in the conference."

The 'Cats, 5-7 overall and 0-2 in the Big Eight, lost their last conference match Friday night to Iowa State at Ames in five games, while Kansas was swept by the Cyclones in three games Saturday.

Kansas, however, nearly upset the top-ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers in Lawrence a week ago, which has Nelson wondering which side of the team the 'Hawks will bring.

"It's tough to figure, because we played Iowa State to five games," Nelson said. "I'm not sure why (Kansas lost in three games). Iowa State must have played very well. Yet, Kansas played (Nebraska), the No. 1 team in the nation, real close at their place. It's hard to know exactly how they will show up, but with the Kansas match there's a little extra incentive on both sides."

The spikers closed out last weekend by sweeping the Drake Bulldogs, which Nelson says should put the team back on track.

"We played two pretty good matches back to back this weekend, so I think we're gaining confidence in our system," Nelson said. "We're getting to the point where we are competing, not just focusing on adjustments and responsibilities. We're getting to the point where those things become more second-nature. That was a good sign this weekend — to play well most of the time.

"What's critical is for us to continue to improve," he said. "We've seen that basically throughout the year that's been happening. I think our level of play has started to go up because of that. (In) the Big Eight Conference, every game, of course, is a challenge for us."

A's move to verge of 3rd straight title

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — If this all seems familiar, it is. The Oakland A's are winning with ease and are on the verge of another sweep.

For the third straight game, Boston took its obligatory early lead Tuesday. And for the third straight game, the Athletics came back to win — not with home runs, but by combining singles with Red Sox mistakes for a 4-1 victory.

Willie Randolph, filling in for injured Walt Weiss, hit a pair of RBI singles and Dave Henderson, the new Mr. October, made the most of his first start with a sacrifice fly as the Athletics took a 3-0 lead in the American League playoffs.

All previous 17 teams that took a 3-0 edge in a postseason went on to win, 13 by sweeps. The Athletics will get their chance Wednesday when they send Dave Stewart against Roger Clemens in a rematch of Game 1 starters.

The Athletics, who swept Boston in the 1988 playoffs and won last year's World Series over San Francisco in four straight games, have now won nine in a row in the postseason. The Red Sox have lost nine straight, and their seventh consecutive playoff defeats set a new record.

Mike Moore, who struggled all season, shut down Boston on one run on four hits for six innings. Oakland's bullpen then extended its scoreless streak to 6 2-3 innings in the series, with Dennis Eckersley pitching the ninth for his second save.

Mike Boddicker pitched well in defeat as the Red Sox again wasted another strong effort by a starter. Boddicker gave up just six singles, but three errors, three walks and two hit batters hurt him. In this game, Boston's bullpen didn't get a chance to blow it.

The Red Sox were 56-21 when scoring first in games during the regular season, but are 0-3 in the last week. Tom Brunansky's sacrifice fly put Boston ahead in the second, but the Red Sox could not extend it; instead, they extended their hitless streak with runners on base to 17 at-bats in the series.

SPORTS BRIEFLY

Baseball team at home

The K-State baseball team will host a doubleheader against Barton County Community College at 4 p.m. today at Frank Myers Field. There is no admission charge.

Reds take 3-1 lead

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Cincinnati used the strong pitching of Jose Rijo, Randy Myers and Rob Dibble to down Pittsburgh 5-3 Tuesday night and take a commanding 3-1 lead in the National League Championship Series.

Facing elimination, Pittsburgh will send staff ace Doug Drabek, 22-6, against Cincinnati's Tom Browning, 15-9, in Game No. 5 tonight at 7:27.

Pittsburgh spent most of Game 4 battling back, eventually closing the Red lead to 4-3 as the game entered the ninth inning.

In the ninth, Hal Morris' double to start the inning off Pirate reliever Ted Power helped Cincinnati get an insurance run. Later in the frame, with the bases loaded and one out, Luis Quinones lifted a sacrifice fly to center, scoring Morris.

That was all Dibble needed. During the NLCS, the right-handed reliever has dominated, and he did so again, setting the Pirates down in order to end the contest.

Rodeo Club active

The K-State Rodeo Club will challenge Fort Scott this weekend in a combined varsity-alumni rodeo in CiCo Park. The event will take place Friday and Saturday.

The club has been active this semester. Last month, members of the group traveled to Topeka to participate in the annual Kansas Neurological Institute Carnival.

This was the first year the K-State group participated in the carnival for the employees, residents and residents' families. The club hosts a similar event each spring for residents of Manhattan's Big Lakes Developmental Center.

At the KNI Carnival, club members shared their expertise with onlookers while demonstrating how to rope a bale of straw. Spectators were encouraged to try their hand at twirling a loop.

In addition, a trash barrel, with a little imagination, became a bucking bronc, complete with saddle. When these areas of rodeo competition had been mastered, carnival participants turned to goat tying.

Loss shouldn't cloud achievements

Dan Wicker
SPORTS REPORTER

There was probably an aura of disappointment across campus last Saturday afternoon as K-State football fans watched Nebraska turn an eight-point halftime lead into a 37-point conference victory.

But hold back all those derogatory comments you might have about the K-State football program, such as "this team is no better than last year," or "the 'Cats have only won three games because of the caliber of competition."

You know as well as I do that talk like this is just an excuse to ease the hurt caused by Nebraska's second-half dominance. And on top of that, remarks like these are simply not based in fact and not appreciated by strong Catbackers.

Nebraska's defense had only been allowing 5.3 points per game entering the matchup with K-State and had shutout Baylor 13-0 and Minnesota 56-0 this season. At least we have a team that could score against the No. 1 defense in the nation.

"We were hurt by (the loss), but you've got to play 11 ballgames, and you can't let one affect how you prepare for the other ones," Coach Bill Snyder said.

In postgame interviews, Nebraska coach Tom Osborne referred to this K-State team as the best he had coached against in several years.

The Nebraska game came down to one of numbers, and K-State is a bit thin in that department. The K-State defense that had played so phenomenally through the first three quarters, holding the Nebraska offense to only 24 points gradually became worn down with only four plays to rest.

Another strong team the 'Cats faced was Northern Illinois, who, if you didn't realize, scored 73 points in a victory over No. 24 ranked Fresno State last weekend. Northern Illinois had to struggle Sept. 22 to top K-State 42-35 on a last-minute touchdown that capped a 21-point comeback.

The K-State turnaround from last year's squad has resulted in some national attention as well. There has been national coverage in the past seasons, but it was directed at what most of the press labeled, "the worst college football team." The media drawn to Manhattan this season are drawn with complete admiration for what Snyder has accomplished at K-State in only two years.

ESPN and CBS have called K-State Sports Information to request tapes of games to spotlight the team. ESPN used its tape last Saturday on "ESPN Gameday" and voted K-State one of the most improved football teams in the nation.

And you might want to pick up the latest edition of the Sporting News because there was a Sporting News writer present at the Nebraska game.

Before you start ridiculing K-State football such as in the past, wait until the season concludes to pass judgement. Remember a turnaround is not going to happen in one year, but this season is a promising beginning.

Schottenheimer concerned by penalties

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The Kansas City Chiefs are leading the NFL in two important categories, one good and one horrendous.

The good is sacking the quarterback. Topped by second-year linebacker Derrick Thomas' seven, the Chiefs have sacked opposing passers 20 times. Thomas' seven sacks ties him with Miami's Jeff Cross for the individual NFL lead.

But then there's the downside, the league-leading statistic that was so apparent in a 23-19 loss Sunday at Indianapolis.

No team in the NFL has been penalized more than the Chiefs. In five games, they have been flagged 47 times, a pace that would break the NFL record of 149 set last year by the Houston Oilers. Against the Colts, the Chiefs drew 13 penalties.

It seems to be a pattern. Last year, the first season Marty Schottenheimer was in charge, the Chiefs set a club record with 116 penalties.

"Believe me, there is something inside me ... when we lead the NFL in penalties ... I find that very troubling," he said Tuesday at his weekly media luncheon.

The reasons for the rash of yellow flags are hard to pinpoint.

"It just boils down to doing things the way they're supposed to be done," the coach said. "False starts have been the biggest problem. We have mechanics that deal with that. But there were times we didn't use them and we needed to use them."

Penalties were even the subject of a call Schottenheimer made this week to the league office in New York.

"It seems like every time there was a return, the flags were in the air," he said. "I saw the same thing in the (Cleveland-Denver) game Monday night.

"I called and said I have this sense that there are a lot of penalties in the kicking game. Is there anything being done differently from an officiating standpoint? He said no, there may in fact be more than a year ago."

Schottenheimer is not blaming officials for the Chiefs' penalty woes.

"For the most part, they do a good job," he said. "And officiating in the kicking game is very, very difficult."

He believes he knows the main reason behind the Chiefs' affinity for drawing yellow flags.

"Concentration. Concentration. Concentration," he said. "The majority in my mind have been that way.

"We've had a couple of late penalties. And we've had some calls that I think were a little bit suspicious. But those generally even out over the course of a year."

Artists' pastels add life

By Heather Anderson
Collegian Reviewer

The current Union Program Council Arts Committee exhibit in the Union Art Gallery, featuring the work of Steve Dudek and Linda Ganstrom, proves that pastel colors can be exciting.

Both artists are art instructors at Barton County Community College and use subtle techniques to electrify their work.

Dudek, who works in watercolor, uses detailed brush strokes in his paintings of flowers and fish. Although the subject matter may at first appear to be serene — and perhaps a touch boring — this is definitely not the case.

The control Dudek has over his materials is impressive. His bold, strong shapes combine with intricate, detailed strokes to intrigue the viewer. The viewer can't help but continually notice new things in each painting.

His layering of color is also impressive. In the paintings "Three Fish Veils" and "Larry's Fish Bowl #2," the works take on a magical, underwater kind of look.

Many of the comments in the gallery sign-in book echo the opinion that the pictures were repetitious. This may be true, but they do deserve a second look and respect.

Ganstrom's ceramic statues are also simple and repetitious, but are equally hard to ignore.

Ganstrom creates goddess-like statues that feature the shape of the female figure, complete with full hips, buttocks and bellies. The shapes are quite a bit more realistic than the basic female shapes in your basic television beer advertisement.

Ganstrom's goddesses are named as a family of deities, and each of their colors represent their purpose and temperment.

The colors may have muted hues, but the range of deep blue, rust, charcoal and off-white is impressive and breathtaking.

These mostly-headless beauties bring a serene, maternal atmosphere to the gallery. The ones that do have heads resemble ancient statues of African queens, complete with large headdresses.

Etchings that cover the lower half of a couple of the statues are separately convincing. They do, however, distract from the simplistic beauty of the works.

Ganstrom's goddess statues and their titles are interesting to see and ponder over. Coupled with the serene flowers and fish, Ganstrom's work lent an unusual feeling to the gallery. I kept straining to hear the piped-in chamber music that would make the exhibit perfect.

The exhibit contributes a calming, nuturing effect to anyone who enters to view the works. For those who are stressed out, it might make a nice stop between classes. The show runs until Friday.

KSU STUDENT SPECIAL!
$1 OFF COUPON
World's Greatest Haircut
Reg. $7 BUT WITH COUPON ONLY $6
Also on SALE HIS or HER PERM $23
SNIP N' CLIP
MIDWEST'S FAVORITE HAIRCUTTERS
OPEN NIGHTS & SUNDAYS, JUST DROP IN
3035 ANDERSON
V.P. -539-4043
431 POYNTZ - BY K-MART
776-6410
Expires 12-31-90

Plum Tree Restaurant
Homestyle Buffet
All you can eat $5.75, Sunday 5-9 p.m.
Includes soup & salad bar
•Meat Loaf •Roast Turkey & Dressing •Mashed Potatoes & Gravy
•Buttered Corn •Warm Blueberry Cobbler •Includes Soup & Salad Bar
Holiday Inn
530 Richards Drive Manhattan, Kansas 66502 (913) 539-5311

BUSHWACKERS · THE · FUNDRINKERY
Comedy Invasion
Wednesday
Bill Engvall
a Tonight Show regular
along with Steve Camanetti
18 to enter, 21 to drink
Before 5 p.m. 539-4321
Call for Reservations 531 N. Manhattan
After 5 p.m. 539-9727

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13TH
The Mid-America
RECORD CONVENTION
COMES TO MANHATTAN, KS.
RAMADA INN
Easy-to-Find: ACROSS FROM CAMPUS
• 17th & Anderson
10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
PLAN TO ATTEND MANHATTAN'S BEST-EVER MUSIC SALE!!
Giant Selection of Rock - Oldies - Country - Jazz - Soundtracks - More!
CDs - Albums - 45s - Videos - Posters - Out of Print - Collectables!
Door Prizes! ★ DON'T MISS OUT ★ $1 Admission

慶祝中華民國國慶
Celebrating the 79th year of the Republic of China in memory of our country's founder
Dr. Sun Yat Sen
Chinese Student Association

Voter Registration/a.s.k Awareness Week
October 15-20
Register to vote on first floor of Union October 16-18, 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.
The Gubernatorial elections will be held on November 6.
Let your voice be heard for higher education
a.s.k.
Sponsored by Associated Students of Kansas at KSU

Book Sale Today!
Farrell Library Lobby
Wednesday & Thursday
October 10–11 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.
Don't miss it! All kinds of books, most 50¢ to $2.
Free book for members of Friends of the Libraries. Join at the sale and claim your free book. Memberships begin at $5 students, $25 others.
Annual used book sale sponsored by Friends of the KSU Libraries. All proceeds are used to support library resources.

We kept our ears open.

And we heard you loud and clear. You asked for a computer that's real college material. Our IBM Personal System/2s® can handle your college needs—and they're affordable!†

THE PS/2s MADE FOR YOU

IBM PS/2® Model 30 286 (T31)
• 1MB memory
• 80286 (10 MHz) processor
• 30MB fixed disk drive
• One 3.5-inch diskette drive (1.44MB)
• 8512 Color Display
• IBM Mouse
• DOS 4.0
• Microsoft® Windows™ 3.0
$1,649

IBM PS/2 Model 30 286 (U31)
• 1MB memory
• 80286 (10 MHz) processor
• 30MB fixed disk drive
• One 3.5-inch diskette drive (1.44MB)
• 8513 Color Display
• IBM Mouse
• DOS 4.0
• Microsoft Windows 3.0
• Microsoft Word for Windows™*
• hDC Windows Utilities™*
• ZSoft SoftType™
$1,799

IBM PS/2 Model 55 SX (U31)
• 2MB memory
• 80386SX™ (16 MHz) processor
• 30MB fixed disk drive
• One 3.5-inch diskette drive (1.44MB)
• 8513 Color Display
• Micro Channel® architecture
• IBM Mouse
• DOS 4.0
• Microsoft Windows 3.0
• Microsoft Word for Windows*
• hDC Windows Utilities*
• ZSoft SoftType
$2,349

IBM PS/2 Model 55 SX (T61)
• 2MB memory
• 80386SX (16 MHz) processor
• 60MB fixed disk drive
• One 3.5-inch diskette drive (1.44MB)
• 8515 Color Display
• Micro Channel architecture
• IBM Mouse
• DOS 4.0
• Microsoft Windows 3.0
$2,699

IBM PS/2 Model 55 SX (W61)
• 2MB memory
• 80386SX (16 MHz) processor
• 60MB fixed disk drive
• One 3.5-inch diskette drive (1.44MB)
• 8515 Color Display
• Micro Channel architecture
• IBM Mouse
• DOS 4.0
• Microsoft Windows 3.0
• Microsoft Word for Windows*
• Microsoft Excel*
• hDC Windows Utilities*
• ZSoft SoftType
$2,799

IBM PS/2 Model 70 (T61)
• 4MB memory
• 80386™ (16 MHz) processor
• 60MB fixed disk drive
• One 3.5-inch diskette drive (1.44MB)
• 8515 Color Display
• Micro Channel architecture
• IBM Mouse
• DOS 4.0
• Microsoft Windows 3.0
$4,399

IBM PS/2 Model 70 (W61)
• 4MB memory
• 80386 (16 MHz) processor
• 60MB fixed disk drive
• One 3.5-inch diskette drive (1.44MB)
• 8515 Color Display
• Micro Channel architecture
• IBM Mouse
• DOS 4.0
• Microsoft Windows 3.0
• Microsoft Word for Windows*
• Microsoft Excel*
• hDC Windows Utilities*
• ZSoft SoftType
$4,499

Special bonus package!
When you purchase your PS/2 before December 31, 1990, you receive:
• TWA® Certificate good for round-trip ticket for $149 off-peak and $249 peak season†
• Free TWA Getaway® Student Discount Card
• A special deal on PRODIGY®—for only $99, you get a three-month subscription to the PRODIGY service, the PRODIGY Service Start-up Kit, a 2400 bps Hayes® modem and a software connection package.

Check out our printers
• IBM Proprinter™ III w/cable (4201 Model 3) $349
• IBM Proprinter X24E w/cable (4207 Model 2) $499
• IBM Proprinter XL24E w/cable (4208 Model 2) $679
• IBM LaserPrinter E w/cable (4019 Model E01) $1,039
• Hewlett-Packard PaintJet® color graphics printer w/cable (Model HP 3630-A) $799

Stop by Computerland or Connecting Point for details.

IBM®

†This offer is available only to qualified students, faculty, staff, and institutions that purchase IBM Selected Academic Solutions through participating campus locations. Prices quoted do not include sales tax, handling and/or processing charges. Check with your institution regarding these charges. Orders are subject to availability. Prices are subject to change, and IBM may withdraw this offer at any time without notice. *Microsoft Word for Windows, hDC Windows Utilities and Microsoft Excel are the Academic Editions. ZSoft SoftType is the Academic Version. †Valid for any TWA destination in the continental U.S. or Puerto Rico for travel September 16, 1990, through December 19, 1991, at the following round-trip airfares: $149 round-trip for travel from September 16, 1990, through June 14, 1991, and September 16, 1991, through December 19, 1991. $249 round-trip for travel June 15, 1991 through September 15, 1991. Seats are limited. Fare is nonrefundable. Fourteen-day advance purchase required. Blackout dates and certain other restrictions apply. Applicants for TWA's Getaway Student Discount Card must be full-time students between the ages of 16 and 26. Complete details will be shown on certificate. ™IBM, Personal System/2, PS/2 and Micro Channel are registered trademarks of International Business Machines Corporation. Microsoft is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corporation. TWA is a registered service mark of Trans World Airlines, Inc. Getaway is a registered trademark of Trans World Airlines, Inc. PRODIGY is a registered service mark and trademark of Prodigy Services Company a partnership of IBM and Sears. Hayes is a registered trademark of Hayes Microcomputer Products, Inc. PaintJet is a registered trademark of Hewlett-Packard Company. "Proprinter is a trademark of International Business Machines Corporation. Windows and Word for Windows are trademarks of Microsoft Corporation. hDC Windows Utilities (hDC Windows Express and hDC Windows FirstApps) is a trademark of hDC Computer Corporation. ZSoft SoftType is a trademark of the ZSoft Corporation. 80386SX and 80386 are trademarks of Intel Corporation.
© IBM Corporation 1990

RED SKELTON
Saturday, October 13, 1990
8 p.m.
Bramlage Coliseum
Kansas State University
Ticket Prices: $11.50 and $15.50
(plus service charge)
$2 discount for senior citizens and children under 12
Tickets are available at ITR, Ft. Riley; Uptown Entertainment, Topeka; Bicentennial Center, Salina; Manhattan Town Center, Manhattan; and the Bramlage Coliseum Box Office.
For Visa Or Mastercard Orders Call: (913) 532-7606.

THIS EYEWEAR MAKES THE FUTURE LOOK BETTER.
Every time a L'Amy youth frame is purchased, we make a contribution to World Wildlife Fund. Which means brighter days ahead for endangered animals and plants around the world.
Active in over 16 countries, World Wildlife Fund is the largest conservation organization in the world and able to act quickly when conservation emergencies arise.
LUNETTES L'AMY PARIS
So help your kids see a brighter future by introducing them to L'Amy eyewear.
Perspectives Optical Dispensary & Lab
300 Poyntz, Downtown Manhattan • 539-5105
WWF

Learning disabled stress on strengths

Editor's note: This the third installment in a week-long series about diversity at K-State.

By Jana Leep
Collegian Staff

A learning disability is less obvious than physical, visual or hearing disabilities, and yet just as severe, especially in terms of a student's academic performance and career goals.

"As a nontraditional student with a learning disability, I find it an advantage to know my differences. I don't think of them as weaknesses. Instead, I focus on my differences as strengths," said a sophomore in art who wished to remain anonymous. "We all have varying abilities and skills. We have to accept this."

The "Design for Diversity" campaign highlights the population of students with a learning disability, the student said. "Diversity brings us together. It should not separate us. Those that think differences separates us, are speaking from a position of privilege.

"Faculty and students need to recognize this, or they will not be able to change their attitude toward students with different abilities, whether it be students with a learning disability, students with visual or hearing impairments, or students who are differently abled physically," he said.

According to literature from the Office of Services for Students with Physical Limitations, students with learning disabilities are included within the definition of a handicapped individual.

Gretchen Holden, coordinator of the Office of Services for Students with Physical Limitations, said, "Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 requires reasonable accomodations be made for handicapped people enrolled in programs and activities that receive or benefit from federal assistance.

"Therefore, the University has a legal obligation to make such accomodations for students with a learning disabilty," Holden said.

A learning disability is a permanent disorder that affects an individual's ability to receive, retain and express information. It is not a form of mental retardation or an emotional disorder, according to the literature.

Ambiguity concerning the definition of a learning disability is clarified and verified by documentation from a diagnostic testing center.

Holden acts as a liason between the learning disabled student and the instructor.

"I write a letter to the instructor explaining the disorder, its verification and outlining for the instructor a range of compensatory strategies, which may be beneficial to the student," Holden said.

She said services are offered on a one-to-one basis, in accordance with the individual student's needs.

"The most common accomodation for the LD student is extended test-taking time and the use of alternative methods of testing such as taped exams and oral exams, which allow the student to better demonstrate his or her understanding of the course material," Holden said.

Some learning disabled students said they feel uncomfortable receiving differential treatment.

■ See LEARNING, Page 10

CHARLIE'S
NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
Established 1983

The Barnburners
Friday Night!

CHARLIE'S NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
COME SUBMERGE YOURSELF IN OUR COMPANY.
FirstBank Center 776-4111

OCTOBER FIESTA!
Tacos 3 for $1.25
(reg. 55¢)
Chili Burritos $1.77
(reg. $2.35)
Good through 10-13-90
TACO HUT
Overlooking Westloop
Sun.-Thurs. 11 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri.-Sat. 11 a.m.-Midnight
2809 Claflin
539-2091

COMPUTER
LIQUIDATION SALE

6 MAC SE* $749
2-800K drives
1 megabyte of memory
*Requires Keyboard!

3 MAC II* $1999
40-megabyte Hard Disk
1 megabyte of memory
* Requires Monitor
Video Card
Keyboard

OFFER GOOD ONLY FOR K-STATE STUDENTS, FACULTY, AND STAFF

Available at the K-State Union Bookstore

Authorized Dealer
MacSource
The Best Support Team for the Apple Macintosh, Anywhere.
K-State Union Bookstore

GREEK PLAYBOY
KICK-OFF PARTY!

When: Thurs., Oct. 11, 8-10 p.m.
Where: Bushwacker's
Why: To meet the guys!

(Fraternities support your playboy—be sure to come and sign in)

ΑΞΩ
presents
GREEK PLAYBOY '90
sponsored by:
BUSHWACKER'S
POWER FM 94.5
UNIVERSITY PHOTOGRAPHY
BRENTWOOD

Parents Day Concert

Men's Glee Club
Women's Glee Club
K-State Singers

Saturday, Oct. 13, 1990
8 p.m.
McCain Auditorium
Admission $5
Reserved seats 532-6428
or McCain Auditorium Box
Office Noon to 5 p.m.

Religious Harmony
"Unity and Diversity"
Interfaith Theological Panel
7:30 p.m., Thurs., Oct. 11
Union Little Theater

Dr. Gamal Badawi
Prof. of Management
St. Mary's University
Halifax, Canada

Dr. Charles R. Baughman
Professor of Hebrew
St. Paul Sch. of Theology
Kansas City, Missouri

Rabbi Lawrence P. Karol
Temple Beth Shalom
Topeka, Kansas

Theologians explore:
1. Origin of monotheism and the concept of God
2. Prophethood & prophets
3. Human nature and sin
4. Relationship between religion and life

CLASSROOM INTERFAITH PANEL
"INFLUENCE OF RELIGION AND POLITICAL THOUGHT"
3:30-5:00 P.M., THURSDAY
KEDZIE HALL, ROOM 214

DINNER INTERFAITH PANEL
"ROLE OF RELIGION IN POLITICS"
5:30 P.M., THURSDAY
UNION STATEROOM 2 & 3
(Dinner Self-Serve at Cafeteria)

Sponsored by:
K-State Committee on Religion

Live Tonight:
"Be Here Now"
702 N. 11 776-0077 Aggieville, USA

MCCAIN

Hello, Dolly!

Thursday, October 18, 8 p.m.
The vivacious Mimi Hines stars as the resourceful widow and mischievous matchmaker Dolly Gallagher Levi in this Tony Award-winning Broadway musical. The New York Times notes that in an age of machine-made musicals, Dolly! has the rare qualities of freshness and imagination, hailing it "a musical shot through with enchantment."

"Has eye appeal, ear appeal, love appeal, and laugh appeal. There is no handsomer way to visit Little Old New York." (Time)

Students/ Children: $10, 9, 8
General Public: $20, 18, 16
Senior Citizens: $18, 16, 14

Your One Bank For Northeast Kansas
FirstBank
Presented in part by FirstBank.

McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays.

McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

Local politicians debate University funding

By Elvyn Jones
Staff Reporter

Local democrat representatives blamed K-State's budget problems on misplaced priorities while their challengers said lack of leadership by the incumbents was the problem.

In a forum co-sponsored by the K-State chapter of the American Association of University Professors and the Faculty Senate, the local representatives to the Kansas House, Katha Hurt, D-Manhattan, and Sheila Hochhauser, D-Manhattan, and their Republican challengers Kent Glasscock and Stanley Hoerman discussed issues concerning the University.

Both Democratic incumbents said the reason the Legislature failed to fund the base budget recommended by the regents was the $2.7 billion highway program passed by the Legislature in 1989 despite their opposition.

"Education was left to fight over the bones (with social programs and demands for property tax relief)," Hochhauser said.

Hurt agreed and said the $70 million returned to the upper-income brackets in the windfall-tax rebate also decreased the chances of funding for higher education in the 1990 Legislature.

Hoerman, Hochhauser's opponent, said the incumbent failed to provide the leadership in the House that would have helped K-State and higher education.

He said of the 681 bills passed by the Legislature in 1989, not one was sponsored by Hochhauser. She was similarly unsuccessful, he said, in finding support for the amendments for additional funding for K-State introduced in the last Legislative session.

Glasscock said he has past experience of building cooperation with different groups that he could use in Topeka to get things done for K-State, which Hurt failed to do.

"K-State did poorly in Topeka in this last session," he said. "We need to do better."

Hochhauser, Hurt and Glasscock gave brief outlines of what they believe needs to be done to help fund higher education in the future.

Hochhauser said the emphasis should be placed on finding funding for the full regents' base budget.

"Without the base budget, the Margin of Excellence is meaningless," Hochhauser said.

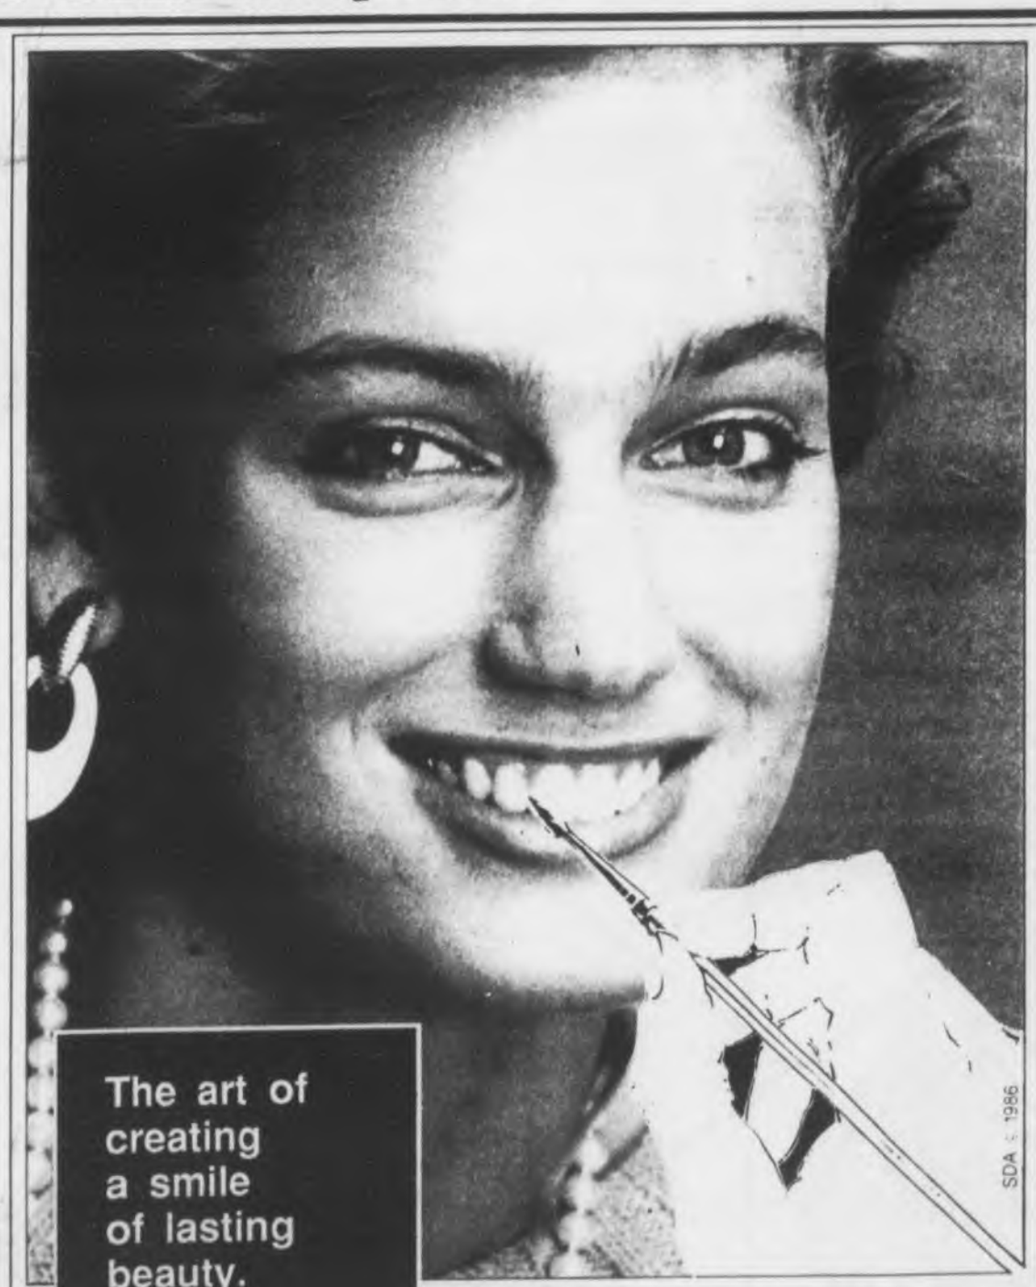
Also, she said the University needs to undertake comprehensive long-range planning and should not be penalized by losing the money it saves by the upcoming

■ See FUNDING, Page 9

We Take Tips Day or Night
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6556

Hunam Chinese Restaurant
For Delivery
7 Days a Week
11 a.m. 'til 10 p.m.
539-8888 or 539-0888

Have "You" Had Your Frozen Yogurt Today??
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY.
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers
Aggieville



CAVALIER CLUB
$2 Pitchers
$1 Longnecks
Open 4 p.m.- 2 a.m.
1122 Moro•Upstairs
776-7726

BoWinkle's A Sports Bar
776-1022
3043 Anderson
Wednesday
Birthday Lottery
8 & 10 p.m.
$600 at 8 p.m.
Pitchers $2.25

WENDY'S
SUPER VALUE MENU
Jr. Bacon Cheeseburger
Biggie Fries
Biggie Drink
16 oz. Frosty Dairy Dessert
8 oz. Chili
Garden Salad
Baked Potato w/sour cream
NOW 99¢ EACH
The best hamburgers and a whole lot more.
Both Manhattan locations:
3006 Anderson 421 North Third

OCTOBER 20th
KQLA 104 103.9 FM
K-STATE VS MISSOURI
ICAT BUS TRIP
To Columbia, MO
DEPARTURE: MEET AT BRAMLAGE COLISEUM WEST PARKING LOT. 7:30AM
EXPENSES: 25.00/PERSON (INCLUDES TICKET)
REGISTRATION: DEADLINE OCTOBER 13TH
DROP BY THE ATHLETIC OFFICE OR MAIL CHECK TO MIKE AHEARN SCOLARSHIP FUND (ICAT) 1800 COLLEGE AVE QUESTIONS (JEFF CHAPMAN 539-6918)

Racial/ Ethnic Harmony Week
October 8-12, 1990
• Wednesday • Wednesday • Wednesday • Wednesday • Wednesday •
3:30 p.m. "A Meeting of Bigots Anonymous" A Skit on Sterotyping with Audience Participation Union 212
7:30 p.m. American Ethnic Studies Lecture "Forbidden Fruit: Interracial Love Affairs in Country Music" Presentation by Stephen I. Thompson, Union 212
• Thursday • Thursday • Thursday • Thursday • Thursday • Thursday •
10:30 a.m. "The Changing Japanese Family" Sociology, Anthropology & Social Work Colloquium Union 208
3:30 p.m. "Influence of Religion on Political Thought and Leaders" Kedzie 214

Smile enhancement by the professionals
Ceramic Laboratory Artisans on Staff
Porcelain and Dicor —bonding — veneers — inlays — crowns — bridges
SAGER DENTAL ASSOCIATES, P.A.
514 Humboldt Plaza Cosmetic Dentistry Department 913-537-9414

In many conflict situations, adults are uncomfortable and often times use passive comments or don't know communication skills that help them make a point. Assertive communication reviews the use of words, actions and a combination of both to help you positively obtain your goals.
ASSERTIVE COMMUNICATION
Join Us For A
NOON LUNCHEON
on Assertive Communication
Given by
Linda Barker, RN
Friday, October 26
Noon to 1 p.m.
Due to hospital construction the seminar will be held at The St. Thomas More Catholic Church.
Pre-registration is required.
Call Susan Noblett, RN, MSN at 776-2855
the saint mary hospital
Member CSJ Health System of Wichita
1823 College Ave, Manhattan, KS 66502

Learning

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

"I feel selfish having attention placed upon me, when other issues and categories of people have more pressing needs than me," said the sophomore in art. "And yet, it seems absurd to categorize everyone with the same criteria."

He said preconceived notions associated with a learning disability can hamper the student-instructor relationship.

"The professor may assume that I am making excuses for being too lazy to study, to discipline myself. I would rather not tell my professors," he said. "If I tell them, I run the risk of having them hold pre-conceived notions of who I am and of my abilities."

A freshman in computer science who also wishes to remain anonymous said he uses the available services because he needs them as a stepping stone.

"I don't really think about having a learning disability. I am capable of academic work, but I have to work extra hard to express myself," he said. "I have had to learn to be resourceful and to adapt easily.

"I don't tell everybody, especially new acquaintances and faculty, about my learning disability because I am afraid they will think that I am slow," he said. "We are all differently abled, not handicapped."

Story

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10

reorganization.

Revenue should be raised by a cigarette tax, some additional funds from the state lottery or a surcharge tax on higher education, Hochhauser said.

She also said some funding could come from the $19 to $32 million in sales taxes transferred annually from the state general to pay for the new highway program.

Hurt said she was also in favor of using those funds to support higher education. She would also support an income tax on the upper-income tax bracket for funding of education.

As a last resort, Hurt said she would look at sales-tax exemptions and some increased sales taxes.

Glasscock said he will work to protect the regents' base budget, to fund the third year of the MOE and to ensure money saved by reorganization at K-State is not swallowed up by other regents institutions.

Questioned by the audience on his priorities, Glasscock said though he was in favor of a highway program, he would support a reduction of the highway sales-tax transfer — prolonging the program from the present eight years to nine or 10 years — if he was convinced the funds would be used for higher education.

Hoerman said he did not think it was a question of higher education or highways. He said he would look to cut spending in other areas.

Challenges

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Montaner said being a Puerto Rican student is like being an out-of-state student. He has the same freedoms to call and fly home as someone from Maine, for example.

Cintron said Puerto Ricans don't need a passport or visa to travel.

"I don't need to get special permission, because it's common to come to the United States. It's just simple," Cintron said.

Another difference is that she comes from a Spanish-speaking area and a different culture.

When she goes home for Christmas and during the summer, her family expects her to be different, she said.

"They expect me to be smarter," she said. "I've been trying not to change too much of the way I am. I'm more mature, but I think that's the same way with everybody."

Hispanic

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

"I was pretty much the same person," Arce-Diaz said about his trip home in June. "They were expecting me to be different. My vision of the world and my vision of life is different, of course. I'm sure they noticed that. They are kind of sensitive to these things."

Garcia said his situation is different. He is married and has children. He hasn't been back to Argentina mostly because of his responsibilities to his own family.

"I don't get as homesick," he said. "I don't write home much."

Monserrat said he goes home for Christmas and in the summer. He said he hasn't changed any more than his friends in Spain have changed.

"When I go to Spain, they are the same, but their lives have changed," he said.

FLOUR SALES
SPONSORED BY
KSU GRAIN SCIENCE CLUB
Flour Sales Every Wednesday
Noon until 4 p.m.
SHELLENBERGER HALL 220 KSU

GET THE EDGE
and get your Royal Purple portrait taken.
These groups are scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 10
◆ VAN ZILE HALL
◆ WEST HALL
There is a $4 sitting fee. If you paid for it at registration, you must bring your Royal Purple receipt.
Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.
Location: K-State Union, Room 209
For an appointment or if you have questions
CALL 532-7808
1991 ROYAL PURPLE

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3 - 10 in. Pizzas
1 - Topping
4 - Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2 - 10 in. Pizzas
2 - Toppings
2 - Cokes
$8.00
Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

15 words
5 days
$5.50
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ClassADS

Pizza Hut®
DELIVERY
Makin' it great!®
CALL THE LOCATION NEAREST YOU.
•AGGIEVILLE 539-7666
•WESTLOOP 539-7447
•3RD & MORO 776-4334

TEXTBOOK ALERT!

TEXTBOOK REPORT FORMS FOR SPRING SEMESTER ARE DUE FRIDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1990
MAIL YOURS TO THE K-STATE UNION BOOKSTORE TODAY!
K-State Union Bookstore

RENDEZVOUS WITH K·S·U OPEN HOUSE

The 1991 "All University Open House Coordinating Council" is taking applications for student committee members. These will be the individuals who will help make the All University Open House Program April 6, 1991 a great success:

Media Committee
Student Life Exhibits Committee
Union Courtyard Entertainment Committee
Special Projects Committee

If you are interested in helping in any way as we open the K-State campus to 25,000 prospective students of all ages and their parents, pick up an application in the Vice President for Institutional Advancement, Anderson Hall Rm. 112, and return it by Friday, Oct. 12, 1990. For more information come to Anderson Hall, Room 122.

UPC Arts Lectures Movies Outdoors Performances Travel
ALL ABOARD WITH UPC

k-state union upc kaleidoscope
SHE'S GOTTA HAVE IT October 10, 11 & 12
Sexy, bawdy and at times raunchy, Spike Lee's first film is freewheeling and electric, an exuberant collage of staccato montages, still frames and confidential asides to the camera. At the center of the vortex is the film's most impressive creation: Nola Darling. A free-spirited woman who shares her bed with three men—Nola is too independent to fall for the vanities of male behavior. WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY 7 p.m., Forum Hall, THURSDAY 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre & FRIDAY 7 p.m., Little Theatre. $1.75 with K-State I.D.

BIRD ON A WIRE October 12, 13 & 14
Mel Gibson and Goldie Hawn light up the screen in this action-packed romantic comedy from John Badham, the director of "Stake-out" and "Wargames." Gibson is a former government witness hiding from the mob whose romance with old flame Goldie Hawn is reignited when she accidentally meets him, exposing his identity and plunging them into a cross-country run for their lives. FRIDAY and SATURDAY 7 & 9:30 p.m., & SUNDAY 7 p.m., Forum Hall. $1.75 with K-State I.D.
k-state union upc feature films

k-state union upc issues & ideas
COLLEGE BOWL
THE VARSITY SPORT OF THE MIND
COLLEGE BOWL (kol ij bol) n. 1. an academic competition for teams of university students. College Bowl pits two teams of four against each other in answering questions ranging from current events to math, and from literature to natural sciences.
Information Meeting: Oct. 11, 7 p.m., Union 208 Sign Up: 8 a.m., Friday, Oct. 12 to 4 p.m., Friday, Oct. 19 Sign up will be in the UPC office on the 3rd floor of the Union on the above dates. Registration requires a $20 entry fee to cover the participants t-shirts.
COLLEGE BOWL II
Sign-up on 3rd Floor of Union in UPC Office between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Space is limited. Sign-up TODAY!!
k-state union upc travel

k-state union upc eclectic entertainment
COMEDY ROCK
ON SALE NOW
Jaz Kaner
PARENTS' WEEKEND COMEDY Friday, Oct. 12
Fri., Oct. 12, 8 p.m., McCain Auditorium
Jaz Kaner is one of the most exciting young comedians on tour today. Jaz's live performance includes a spontaneous volley of characters, impressions and hilarious musical segments that demonstrates his surprising prowess on the guitar. His high energy, rock and roll, no holds barred act will leave the audience asking, "What's he going to do next?" Tickets are available for $3 at the K-State Union Program Council Office or at the McCain Auditorium Box Office.

2ND FLOOR SHOWCASE
KANSAS STATE ART
Oct. 1-12
"Fine Arts Exhibition—A Showcase of talent from the Kansas State Union Promotions and Marketing Office."
UNION ART GALLERY
Oct. 1-12
"Lillies and Ladies"
Ceramic Sculptures and Water Color Paintings by Steve Dudek and Linda Ganstrom. Steve and Linda are art instructors at Barton County Community College in Great Bend.

Steamboat
CHRISTMAS BREAK SKI TRIP
January 7-12 ,1990
$252 / $290 With Ski Rental
(Convenient Payment Plan)
TRIP INCLUDES:
*5 Nights Lodging at Timber Run Condominiums
*4 Days Steamboat Lift Tickets
*College Party Pak:
-Nuts and Bolts Party
-His or Her Gift Pack
-Daily Schedule of Steamboat Events
THINK SNOW
k-state union upc arts

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

CLASS ADS

Kedzie 103 532-6555

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

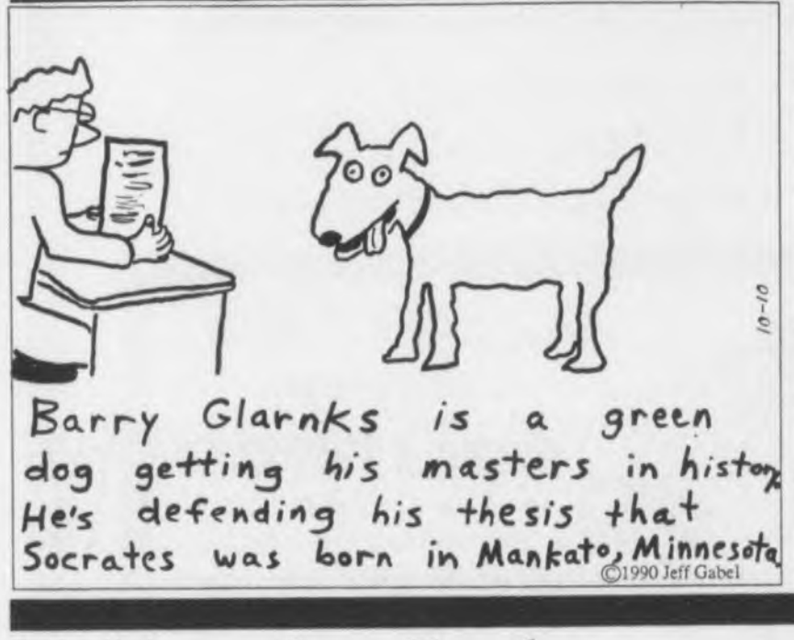
COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

GURDJIEFF— OUTPENSKY, Fourth way forming. Meet Thursday, 7:30p.m., UFM, 1221 Thurston, Manhattan. Info, call 539-3361.

RECORDS, CDS, Posters and more at University Inn this Saturday 10/13. Dealers from many states will be selling to the public one day only. $1 admission 10a.m.— 5p.m.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.



SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial, Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

TONIGHT!
25¢ KAMIS
NO COVER
ONLY AT BAYSTREET

Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

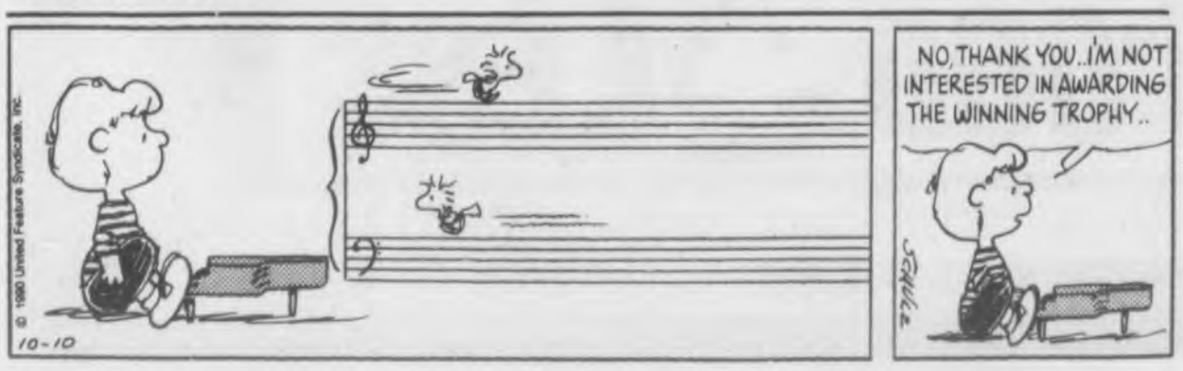
By Bob Berry

Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind

Jim's Journal

By Jim



Calvin and Hobbes

By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Traveler's Limousine Service
Call 539-2284

FAST FUNDRAISING PROGRAM
$1000 IN JUST ONE WEEK.
Earn up to $1000 in one week for your campus organization.
Plus a chance at $5000 more!
This program works! No investment needed.
Call 1-800-932-0528 Ext. 50

2 Apartments—Furnished

ONE-BEDROOM IN a west side complex, gas, heat, $295. No pets. 776-3804.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

ACROSS THE street from campus and Aggieville, one-bedroom, large closet, shower, bay window in dining room, 9' ceilings, ceiling fan, very clean, new carpet and paint. $350. No pets. 537-8274.

AVAILABLE NOW. One-bedroom near campus, $325, year lease, no pets, laundry facilities, central air. Call for appointment 776-3804.

ONE-BEDROOM CARPETED, available Oct. 1, central air, $270 plus utilities and trash. 776-6166.

ONE-BEDROOM IN a complex near campus. New carpet, gas, heat, $325. No pets. 776-3804.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

5 Automobile for Sale

1971 CAMARO, power steering, air conditioning, good heater, runs good, $400. 537-4369.

1974 OLDS Delta 88 conv red, good shape, new top, new tires, runs good. Good deal. 537-8857.

1977 MONZA— low mileage, V-8, good condition. $800. 537-6835.

1978 280Z parts car. $400. 537-1539.

1979 IH Scout 2, mechanically sound, body has rust. 776-3757 after 6p.m.

1981 COLONY Park station wagon, great car, power steering, power brakes, power windows, AM/FM cassette stereo, $700 or best offer. Call 539-8256.

1981 PLYMOUTH Horizon, low mileage, 54,545, good condition. $1,800 negotiable. Melville 532-7212 after 9:45a.m. or 537-4420.

1982 DODGE Challenger, air conditioning, automatic, AM/FM, 66,000 miles, $2,500. 537-9434.

1985 PLYMOUTH Horizon, four-speed, $2,400 negotiable, very good condition. 539-1902.

HURRICANE II Aluminum Mag wheels, for Chevy, like new, $200. 776-0043.

7 Computers

HAVING PROBLEMS with your computer or printer? Need to upgrade your systems memory, monitor or just a larger hard drive? Need a second party book on a certain program? ABACUS Computer and Supply, 539-7007, 1111 Waters.

MACINTOSH COMPUTER and ImageWriter printer. 128K. 537-9479 after 5p.m.

8 Employment

AEROBIC INSTRUCTOR— The City of Manhattan has an opening for an aerobic instructor. Position is seasonal, part-time. $5.50/ hour. Apply at the Personnel Office, City Hall, 11th and Poyntz by Oct. 12, 1990. EOE— M/F/H.

ATTENTION: EXCELLENT income for home assembly work. (504)646-1700. Dept. P6438.

COLLEGE GIRL wanted to babysit two little girls after school on Tuesdays and Thursdays. 776-9653.

CUT EDUCATION costs. Family needs college girl to live in this semester and next. Free room and food exchanged for duties. Respond Collegian Box 1.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EARN MONEY typing/ wordprocessing/ personal computing. At home. Full- or part-time. $35,000/ year potential. 1-805-687-6000 Ext. B-9701.

$$ HUNDREDS Weekly $$ (P/T) Completing MIP Refund Policies U.S. Government Program. Call 1-713-292-9131, 24-hour recorded message. Please have pen ready.

IF YOU are free 11a.m.— 2p.m. Monday— Friday and want to earn extra money, pick up an application to join our crew. Long John Silver's.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. Federal, CIA, U.S. Customs, D.E.A., etc. Now hiring. Listings. 1(805)687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

LIBERAL RELIGIOUS group seeks part-time office coordinator, organized, good with people, 20 hours per month, $7.50 per hour. Send resume to Unitarian Universalist Fellowship, P.O. Box 910, Manhattan, Kansas 66502. Questions, call 539-5248.

MODELS NEEDED for local advertising agency. No experience necessary. Earn extra cash. Males and females respond with resume and photo to Box 4, Collegian.

OVERSEAS JOBS. $900— $2,000/ month. Summer, year-round. All countries. All fields. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KSo2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

STUDENT TO enclose garage wall and install overhead garage door. Send qualifications to: Box 3, Collegian.

WARM NON-SMOKING nanny wanted in White Plains, NY for two kids, 5 and 2, starting December. Excellent live-in conditions, driver's license and experience required. (914)725-3904.

WELL-ESTABLISHED LOCAL business for sale. Excellent opportunity! After 6p.m. (719)576-6789.

9 Food Specials

Bobby J's
WEDNESDAYS: STEAK NIGHT
$3.99 Filet Mignon
$4.99 K.C. Strip
$5.49 T-Bone
with baked potato and salad
539-1571

Every Wednesday
FREE
PIE ALA MODE
with any dinner purchase
Wednesdays 5-8:30 p.m.
The CHEF Cafe
111 S. 4th

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

A HIDE-A-BED sofa, double size chest of drawers, $50 both. 776-3589.

BED FOR sale: Full-size mattress, box spring, frame with wheels. $65. 532-2094 evenings. Kirk.

SEVEN PIECE living room set, $300 or best offer. 537-7110.

WHIRLPOOL PORTABLE dishwasher. Six months old. $300. Carla 537-7560.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: FEMALE cat at 12th and Kearney. 776-5217.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

14x56, TWO-BEDROOM, appliances, nice condition, good location, #24 Green Valley Trailer Court. $5,200. 776-4500, 776-1342.

1973 FLAMINGO 14x70, two-bedroom. Cute kitchen, real cabinets, new bedrooms, wood floor, low utilities. $8,000. 537-4369.

18 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1982 YAMAHA 400cc Seca, held over until '86, low miles, just tuned, red, $850. Call Barry at 537-4268.

1986 XT 350 Yamaha Enduro motorcycle. 776-0073.

LADIES PEUGEOT 10-speed touring bike. Excellent condition. Call 776-7260 after 6p.m.

19 Music/ Musicians

BANJO— OLD (1915) five-string with a nice tone. Two free lessons included. $250 or best offer. Leave message for David, 539-4395.

All Crate Products
25% off
Hayes House of Music
327 Poyntz 776-7983

21 Personals

#55— HAPPY Birthday Q. Yes we got you something new, But get Kel a date, before it's too late, or there'll be nothing for you! Love, 44D and the other one with no friends.

AGR TIM: In response to "The Big Question," Yes! Let's End the Rumors and Break out the Champagne. I Love You! Snoogy-woogy bitsy pookums.

AL MY little Maxi: The only time you hold me is when you hold my head down. The past month has been great. You're the best. Love, Peg/ your little pomegranite.

DIGELS, WE met only a year ago, but I already know that you're the one for me! Happy Anniversary! Love, Pookey.

GUMBY COME home! Your bud misses you.

HEY, SCOTT F., So now you're 22 and don't know what to do. Well here are some thoughts from you know who. We've had a lot of good times together, that I'll never forget. And although we've had some bad times I still think you're great. Sometimes you may act a little strange, but hey, that's OK all of us are a little deranged. Stay cool! Happy B-Day, Your Bro Damon.

I MET her here in a far off place, I hope we have fun, we have so far. Be alert! Love, Tracy.

KKG JENNIFER W.— I'm so happy that I am a Kappa Kappa Gamma Mamma! Our friendship grows and blossoms more than any plant bought in the store. Ha! Love, Lynn.

LAMBDA CHIS and Tri Delts: Bet you can't drink us out of Longnecks this Thursday. We dare you. Charlie's Neighborhood Bar.

MEKO: I don't say it enough, but thank you for being a friend. Love, Stretch.

RODNEY OF Ag Ed: Hope your birthday in the cultural center of the universe includes Hot Available Babes! Your favoritest unHABs, Yolanda and Edwina.

SCOTT— HAPPY 21st Birthday. I have a great night planned. A lot of drinking and a late night stroll around campus. Ha-Ha. Love, BamBam.

SIGMA NU Best Friend, Nothing's better than more time together, so let's make our time last forever. Love You.

STANLEY— OUR special day is near at hand. The time spent writing I can hardly stand. The last six months you've made my heart aglow, and how much I love you, I want you to know. —Your Only Sunshine.

SWEET CHEEKS, Here is your personal that you've been searching for each day. Thanks for always being there for me. You're so special, and I'm glad that you are mine. I love you! Sugarbritches.

THANKS FOR the "recipe for the warm fuzzy." Your thoughtfulness touched me. Please identify yourself!

THERE IS a circulation librarian named Cliff, Whose bilingual ability is terrif. He says, "Hey, amigo, you're late with your libro," And then he flies into a tiff.

U.O.— ROSES 'R Red. The Mailroom's blue. I use 4 eyes, but only have 2.

WANTED: 650 Respectable Men to Enjoy and enthusiastically participate in KSU Homecoming Activities with 650 Respectable Women of Ford Hall. Apply in Person.

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

FOR SALE: AKC Registered yellow Labrador Retriever. Female, eight weeks old. $100. Call 1-238-3812.

TROPICAL FISH AND AQUARIUMS
PETS 'N STUFF
1105 Waters 539-9494
OPEN Thur. til 8 p.m.

23 Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

Sports injury?
Call today for an appointment
537-8305
Dr. Mark Hatesohl
Chiropractic Family Health Center
3252 Kimball Avenue
Candlewood Shopping Center

24 Resume/ Typing Service

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— We do more than just type your resume. We create the resume with you, so it reflects your best – then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for private appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience working in University Career Center.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851. Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7031.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100 or 1-456-9642, Wamego.

WORDPROCESSING/ TYPING— Data sheets, reports, theses, dissertations, letters, resumes, applications, etc. Mrs. Burden, 539-1204.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: Woodway Apartments, own room, $175/ month plus one-third utilities. 537-4966.

ROOMMATES TO share three-bedroom house, near campus. Partially furnished. 776-3078.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Female, three-bedroom house. 537-0631.

TWO BLOCKS from campus and Aggieville. Own room, $150 a month. Call Cindy 539-8391.

WANTED: OLDER male student to share two-bedroom mobile home. $250/ month— all utilities. Available 1 Nov. 776-1769.

WANTED ROOMMATE. 1005 Laramie, $120 per month, utilities paid. Call 539-2017 after 5p.m., ask for Jim.

27 Sports/Recreation Equipment

TWO NAUTILUS Health Club memberships for sale cheap! Call Cliff at 1-437-3744 evenings.

28 Sublease

AVAILABLE SPRING semester. Half block from Justin Hall, partially furnished, one-bedroom apartment. Very low utilities. 776-7734.

TWO FEMALE roommates wanted to sublease furnished apartment during spring semester, $125/ month. 776-2076.

29 Tickets to Buy or Sell

FOR SALE— Six Red Skeleton tickets, rows 5 and 6. Call 537-2956, leave message.

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

SOFA, ONE year old, (mauve, blue, gray), $200; Sears portable dishwasher, butcherblock top, $75. 776-0043.

33 Tutor

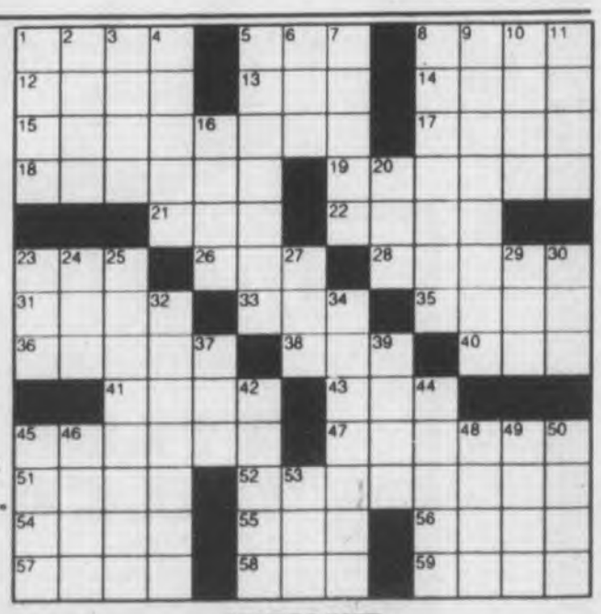
VERY QUALIFIED tutor for Spanish. Affordable rates. Call Leticia 539-6832 after 9p.m.

34 Horses

DRESSAGE LESSONS— Training through 3rd level, beginners welcome too. School horses available. 537-4606 leave message.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 TV's Jack
5 Dear one
8 Editor's "never mind"
12 Teen trouble
13 — pro nobis
14 Eye or whip follower
15 Like most "as is" items
17 Choir section
18 Part of SWAK
19 Commercial vessel
21 Sweet potato
22 River islands
23 Apron top
26 Hebrew letter
28 Hungarian composer
31 Bedouin
33 Cain's land
35 Senator Robert
36 Dissolute men
38 Encore
40 Memo —
41 Being
43 Old French coin
45 Sewed loosely
47 Rids of impurities
51 She loved Narcissus
52 Store worker
54 Expand
55 Goddess of the dawn
56 Wife of Ernie Kovacs
57 Serpent lizard
58 Writer Harper
59 Garden starter

DOWN
1 Fail to bid
2 Yearn
3 Celebes wild ox
4 Heed the RSVP
5 Bandleader Benny
6 Make a blunder
7 Horse blanket
8 On a tilt
9 Discuss business
10 Italian noble family
11 Son of Odin
16 Feeble
20 Trouble
23 Bell or fly lead-in 24 Bank acct.
25 Cookie lover's stop-off
27 Watch pocket
29 — carte
30 Primary color
32 Gives as a gift
34 Deal out
37 Compass direction
39 "Duck — " (movie)
42 Historic auto
44 Strong impulses
45 Pan-handles
46 Farm unit
48 French novelist
49 Cleveland's lake
50 North Pole vehicle
53 Garden implement

Solution time: 21 mins.

O	S	A	R		C	H	E		D	A	S	H
R	U	G	A		H	E	N		R	A	T	E
D	R	U	M	H	E	A	D		U	R	A	L
O	D	E		E	A	R		A	M	E	N	D
			D	A	P		D	I	M
S	P	U	R	T		A	R	R	A	N	G	E
P	E	R	U		P	L	Y		J	U	N	O
A	N	I	M	A	T	E		B	O	N	U	S
			S	E	A		B	A	R
T	A	R	T	S		F	E	N		R	O	E
A	L	A	I		E	A	R	D	R	U	M	S
O	T	I	C		O	N	E		A	G	E	S
S	A	L	K		N	E	T		E	S	N	E

Yesterday's answer 10-10

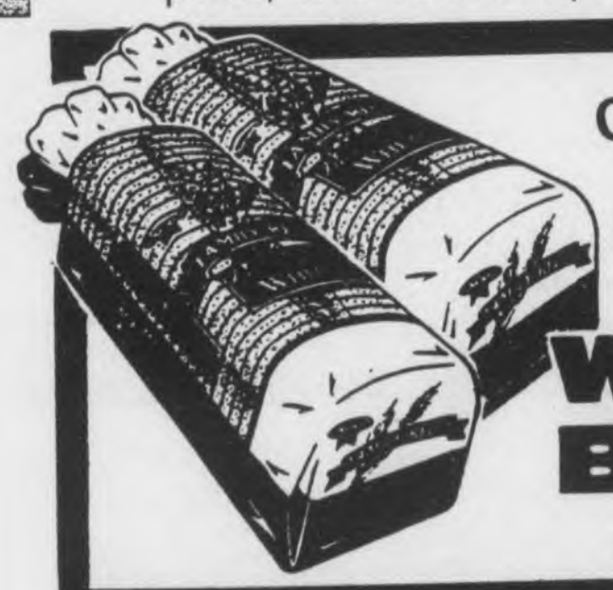
CRYPTOQUIP

10-10

A B U Y G K S W B S G M L B M T F W B I I C M A F I K G G S T F C M L W G W B U G .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: THE PARTY TO RAISE FUNDS FOR THE NEW PLAYGROUND IS IN FULL SWING.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: W equals H



Food 4 Less is having a BIG GRAND OPENING CELEBRATION and everyone is invited!

Our 119th store in Newton, Kansas is opening, and to celebrate we're offering Buy 1, Get 1 FREE specials at all Food 4 Less locations. We have big savings in every aisle on thousands of brand name items, plus, the lowest prices everyday!

Guy's
CORN CHIPS
11-oz. Bag

Buy 1, Get 1 FREE!

Country Farm
Rainbo
SPLIT TOP
WHEAT BREAD
20-oz. Loaf

Buy 1, Get 1 FREE!

American Beauty 24-oz.
SPAGHETTI or ELBO MAC

Buy 1, Get 1 FREE!

Country Farm Dairies™
FRUIT DRINK
Gallon Size

Buy 1, Get 1 FREE!

TYLENOL GELCAPS
50-Count Bottle

Buy 1, Get 1 FREE!

Like you've never saved before.

FOOD 4 LESS

Open 24 Hours 401 E. Poyntz 222 N. 6th 3011 Anderson
Specials Effective Oct. 10-16, 1990. Quantity Rights Reserved.

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Thursday, October 11, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 34

Harmony week sponsors talk show of 'bigots'

RACIAL ETHNIC HARMONY WEEK

By Stacey Harbison
Collegian Reporter

"Bigots Anonymous" met Wednesday afternoon in Union 212 to discuss its hatred of different groups.

As part of Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week, a panel of seven played the role of bigots in the form of a talk show to bring out various stereotypes and prejudices of people.

"It gets to you even though you know they're role playing," said Norman Fedder, speech professor and interviewer of the bigots.

The bigots each hated a particular ethnic group and the members argued among themselves.

They hated such groups as American Indians, Hispanics, Arabs, White Anglo-Saxon Protestants, Japanese, Jews and African-Americans.

Each panel member got a chance to say why they hated a particular ethnic group.

Common reasons quoted for hating people of different ethnic groups were being afraid of them, thinking that they were destroying American civilization, feeling uncomfortable around them and that they were dirty.

"Why do they call us the melting pot then if we're against all the people being here?" asked Kristin Patterson, panel member and senior in journalism and mass communications.

Some of the bigots used derogatory terms about the ethnic groups they hated. Others just put them down.

The audience brought up questions such as the fact that Native Americans were here first and blacks were brought over against their will. They asked the panel to think about history.

One comment made by a bigot was to put up walls in America separating each ethnic group.

A person in the audience reacted by saying that the United States would be taking five steps backward after tearing down the Berlin Wall and reunifying Germany.

"This is a really good way to approach it," said Wanda Mosteller, freshman in speech pathology. "It showed it in a different light to see how everyone reacted."

The role players then discussed why they decided to participate in the skit and talked about their backgrounds.

Nancy Zenger-Beneda, panel member and graduate student in speech, said she could relate to other oppressed groups because she is oppressed as a woman.

The Rev. Susan Sawyer of the Episcopal Campus Ministry, panel member, said she grew up in a bigoted society, which she didn't overcome until she started college. She said she was then able to read without believing every word she read.

David Mayes/Staff

Nancy Zenger-Beneda, graduate in speech, stresses to her fellow acting bigots Dennis Randall, graduate in English, and Rod Ehrlich, senior in sociology, why American Indians should not have equal rights. The moderator of the discussion is Norman Fedder, right, professor of speech. The skit, named "Bigots Anonymous" was presented Wednesday in the K-State Union as part of Racial and Ethnic Harmony week.

Kaiser promoted to interim dean

By Jan Puls
Staff Reporter

Marvin Kaiser was appointed as interim dean for the College of Arts and Sciences Wednesday by Provost James Coffman.

Kaiser fills the dean's position left vacant by the reassignment of Thomas Isenhour to the chemistry department Sept. 24.

"I feel extremely good about Dr. Kaiser's appointment, and I look forward to working with him," Coffman said.

Kaiser was nominated for the position by several faculty members and quickly emerged as a strong candidate, Coffman said.

About 10 faculty members were nominated for the interim dean position. They were evaluated by an advisory committee based on their interpersonal skills, leadership ability, knowledge of the college and communication skills, Coffman said.

Kaiser was one of four finalists. The others were Jack Holl, associate dean for the College of Arts and Sciences, E.J. Phares, professychology and Gerald Reeck, associate dean of the graduate school.

"We had a strong list of finalists, but Kaiser's appointment was made by a strong concensus," Coffman said.

Kaiser came to K-State as an instructor in the sociology, anthropology and social work department in 1977. He was promoted to assistant professor in 1979 and associate professor and department head in 1984. In October 1988, he assumed his current position as associate dean for arts and sciences.

"This is an opportunity to serve the college and the University in a way that maintains the centrality of the College of Arts and Sciences and assists in improving the college through the reorganization process," Kaiser said in a press release.

The process of choosing an interim dean took in a week and a half, said Donald Roufa, advisory committee member and professor of biology.

Gay students feel stereotyped

Solution lies in creation of atmosphere free of homophobia

Editor's note: This the fourth installment in a week-long series about diversity at K-State.

By Jana Leep
Collegian Staff

Sexual preference is an issue of diversity, for as a gay male student said, "Other people can understand the need for sensitivity concerning international students, differently abled students, older students and minority students, but with this group, the gay students, this group is seen as evil, as disruptive."

Judy Davis, director of the Women's Resource Center and a member of the Human Rights Educational Campaign Committee, said, "When a man loves a man and a woman loves a woman, this threatens the system. It threatens the traditional ordering of things."

Dr. Paul Gebhard, director of Indiana University's Institute for Sex Research, said homosexuality involves millions, not thousands, of U.S. citizens.

It is estimated that 10 percent of Americans have a predominantly homosexual orientation, which translates to one child in every five families, or at least 2,000 K-State students, according to diversity campaign literature.

"The odds are that someone you know is gay, and you don't realize it," said a gay male student.

The Gay Activists's Alliance of Washington, D.C. uses the phrase "Someone in your life is gay" on their posters and literature.

But according to the diversity campaign literature, before individuals can talk about what is gay, individuals must talk about what is not gay: the stereotypes and the misconceptions.

"The (fairy), the gay male stereotype, the most visible gay, is the least representative of this invisible group," according to the diversity campaign literature.

"I enjoy dispelling the gay male stereotypes. I don't fit the stereotypes," said a gay male student. "I hope people learn something when they find out I am gay. They are always so surprised."

Another gay male student said stereotypes need to be eliminated.

"The stereotypes of the promiscuous, flighty, limp-wristed gay male exist because those are visible behaviors of a minority within the gay male population," he said. "If only all gay men could become more visible, the public would see that these stereotypic behaviors are not all-pervasive."

Attitudes affect both gay men and lesbians.

"The stereotype that gay men and women are hypersexual is destructive and isolating. We are not totally sexual beings," said a sophomore in education who preferred being identified only as a lesbian. "And too, I would like to dispel the stereotype that lesbians are male-haters. The lesbian experience, the lesbian lifestyle, is not defined by antagonism toward males."

Caryl Stern of the Anti-Defamation League said that one way to dispel a stereotype is to ask yourself the same question you would ask a gay man or woman, but invert the question to refer to the heterosexual orientation.

"It would sound silly if we asked a heterosexual if his or her sexual preference completely defined them," said the sophomore in education. "I have a life not that different from a heterosexual. I have pressures, disappointments, children, work, school and commitment to my lover."

Lydia, president of the Gay and Lesbian Resource Center, said that the organization will be renamed the Bisexual and Gay and Lesbian Organization in order to ensure that the organization includes bisexuals as well as gays.

"The goal of the Bisexual and Gay and Lesbian Organization is to create a comfortable atmosphere free of homophobia, where individuals feel they can be themselves, where gay men and women can meet each other. Gay students need to know they are not alone."

"Homophobia is a common reaction to the gay presence," said the sophomore in education.

According to the diversity campaign literature, homophobia can be defined as the irrational and persistent fear of homosexuality.

"The campus, the students and the faculty must look within themselves and question their knee-jerk reactions, their homophobic reactions to the visible presence of a gay community at K-State," said the sophomore in education.

■ See GAY, Page 12A

Bill introduced in Student Senate to expand, improve rec complex

By Cindy Jeffrey
Collegian Reporter

A bill that proposes adding the recreation complex expansion to the Oct. 30-31 campus ballot will be read tonight in Student Senate.

Senate Bill 90/43 proposes construction and operating improvements on the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex and the L.P. Washburn Recreational Area as well as means for funding it.

The construction and improvement plans outlined in the bill include four additional basketball courts, doubling the size of the current weight and fitness areas, adding a large multi-purpose room for aerobics, a wellness center for counseling and testing, a fitness resource library and additional administrative office space.

The plans also include a one-fifth mile indoor running track, spectator seating in the gym area, resurfacing the handball and racquetball courts, renovating the combative/stretching area and student lounge and air-conditioning for the entire building.

Outside improvements listed are lighting, portable seating and an irrigation system for the playing fields. Resurfacing and relighting the tennis courts and the addition of sand volleyball courts are also a part of the plan.

The bill recommends funding the expansion project by extending the current $22.25 student bond fees for a period of 20 years. These fees are presently used for payments on the interest and principal of bonds issued for the recreational complex, Union addition and stadium.

"The present bonds are due to mature in 1995," said Keith Ratzloff, controller for the controller's office. "Because of the increased enrollment in the past few years, they could be paid off early or retired by the end of 1991.

"By doing that — release of obligations — a new debt may be secured," Ratzloff said.

Projected enrollment for the next 20 years at the current fee amount of $22.25 dictated the amount that could be spent and the time period.

Full-time students now pay $6 for recreation building program and recreational services. The proposed bill has a provision that would increase that fee by $3 for full-time and $1.50 for part-time students.

Student Body Present Todd Johnson said one of the reasons for raising the fee is to offset the minimum wage increase.

"The first year of these fees would pay for an architect which would speed up by a year the building process," Johnson said.

If passed by the student body, building could begin in 1992 and be completed by 1993, he said.

"There will be increased operational costs and the expansion will require more staff, supplies and equipment in some areas," said Raydon Robel, director of recreational services.

The $3 increase will pay for those future operating costs.

The additions and improvements being considered by the Senate are the result of a process that began with the Recreational Services Council more than a year ago.

"The council was getting a lot of feedback from students about not enough facilities especially in the weight room and basketball courts," said Steven Francis, senior in architecture and a council member representing residence halls.

The Council also had input from the management at the recreation complex, Francis said.

"We reported to the council the numbers and comments of users," Robel said. "This past year there were 407,605 users at the complex, an increase from 267,000 the first year it opened in 1980."

To obtain more accurate information, the council requested a needs and assessment survey be done. This survey was done through the Planning and Evaluation Services, he said.

"The survey showed that 78 per-

BRIEFLY

World

Police storm Seol campuses

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Riot police firing tear gas stormed onto two university campuses Wednesday and crushed street protests by dissidents in the latest violence prompted by a government spying scandal.

The newly appointed defense minister said the controversial surveillance of more than 1,300 civilians was an abuse of power and he pledged to make reforms.

Vicious fighting broke out at Seoul's Korea and Yonsei universities after about 2,000 riot police moved in to block students from showing banned movies from Communist North Korea.

Iraqi soldiers looting Kuwait

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iraqi soldiers have turned to looting food from Kuwaiti homes and now bar citizens from hospitals, restricting medical care to military personnel, Kuwait's ambassador to the United States said Wednesday.

At the same time, Iraqis are stripping the invaded country like a stolen car, removing hospital equipment and even traffic lights and shipping them to Iraq, witnesses said at a hearing of the House Human Rights Caucus.

"Anything which is not nailed down has been taken away, as well as some things that are nailed down," said Saud Nasir Al-Sabah, the ambassador. Public buildings, schools and hospitals all have been gutted, he said.

Bhutto's husband arrested

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Police arrested the husband of Benazir Bhutto on kidnapping charges Wednesday, and the ousted prime minister called the arrest another effort by the army-backed government to force her from politics.

Asif Ali Zardari had been expected to be the main target of the corruption investigations against Bhutto's government, which was ousted in August after just 20 months in power.

Police arrested Zardari for kidnapping a Pakistani-born British citizen and extorting $800,000 from him. He was taken into custody and charged with kidnapping and extortion.

At a news conference later Wednesday at her home, Bhutto said she will not be intimidated and blackmailed by gutter politicians.

Nation

Stress may not affect births

BOSTON (AP) — Pregnant doctors in training usually give birth to healthy babies despite 70-hour work weeks, casting doubt on the widely held belief that high-stress jobs are hazardous during pregnancy, a study concludes.

Earlier research has found that pregnant women who work nights, put in long hours or stand a lot are more likely to have premature deliveries.

The latest report suggests that these difficult pregnancies result because such women are often poor, not because of their work.

The researchers based their conclusions on a random sample of young women doctors in residency training at hospitals across the United States. They noted that it would be difficult to find a group of women who worked longer hours, got by on less sleep or were under more stress than these residents.

Florida prepares for storm

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Marco thundered toward Florida's Gulf Coast with increased strength Wednesday evening.

Forecasters said the storm could crash ashore by morning and hit somewhere in the area between Fort Myers and Sarasota before dawn Thursday, Zimmer said.

"We're prepared, as prepared as we're going to be," Sanibel Marina owner Myton Ireland said after hauling nine boats, all 40 feet or longer, onto land. "If we wait too late and then it blows hard, we're in trouble."

Kansan faces New Mexico jury

LAS VEGAS, N.M. (AP) — The New Mexico Supreme Court has ruled that a jury can decide whether a Kansas man should be executed or imprisoned for life for fatally shooting a convenience store clerk.

The Supreme Court on Oct. 1 ruled against an interlocutory appeal filed on behalf of Gregg Francis Braun of Garden City, Kan.

An interlocutory appeal is used to get appellate review of an important issue and is filed midway through a case.

Braun, 28, pleaded guilty but mentally ill to killing Geraldine Chavez during a July 23, 1989, robbery at the Springer convenience store where she worked. He entered the plea April 25.

Braun pleaded guilty but mentally ill earlier this year to armed robbery.

Mother shaves head for prize

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — When Denice Sprowl learned a radio station would give free New Kids on the Block tickets to parents who would do the craziest things, she made a vow.

"I'd do anything. I'd shave my head," she promised.

And that's exactly what she did to win two backstage passes, four tickets, a limousine ride to and from the Nov. 11 concert in Milwaukee, plus an evening at an adult fantasy suite in Northbrook, Ill.

Her 12-year-old daughter, Anna, had been disappointed her mother couldn't afford tickets to the popular rock group's concert at East Troy last year.

Sprowl, 28, of Lake Geneva, heard about the contest on Kenosha station WJZQ. At the contest Saturday, her 38-year-old sister, Debbie DaSilva, clipped and shaved Sprowl's hair.

Region

Erie man faces murder charge

ERIE (AP) — A young man was being held under $500,000 bond Wednesday after being charged in the weekend shotgun slaying of a rural Galesburg man.

Matthew Gensheer, 20, was charged in Neosho County District Court with first-degree or felony murder, attempted first-degree murder and two counts of aggravated burglary.

The charges stem from the slaying early Saturday of Francis R. Semrad, 56, a stockman and farmer, in his rural Galesburg home. Sources said Gensheer had been living in the house.

Edward Van Petten, deputy attorney general leading the prosecution in the case, would not discuss a motive. He said the attempted murder charge stemmed from an earlier attempt to poison Semrad's food but would not elaborate on the allegation.

Van Petten said he requested a large bond because Gensheer is unemployed and has no permanent address. He had lived for the past six months in Parsons and previously lived in Augusta and El Dorado.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

11 Thursday

■ KSU Wildlife Society will meet at 7 p.m. in Ackert 221. The topic will be summer jobs.

■ O.T. Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

■ Entry Deadline for Intramural Cross Country will be at 5 p.m. at the Recreational Services Office at the Chester E. Peters Recreational Complex.

■ K-State Table Tennis Club will meet from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the ECM building on Denison Avenue.

■ Christian Science Organization will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Bluemont 109.

■ Minority Assembly of Students in Health will meet at 6 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

■ KSU Committee on Religion will meet at 5:30 p.m. in Union Staterooms 2 and 3. The topic will be the role of religion in politics. The committee will also meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Little Theatre for a religious harmony interfaith theological panel to discuss a Jewish, Christian and Muslim dialogue on unity and diversity.

■ Rotaract Club of Manhattan/KSU will meet at 6 p.m. in Union 213.

■ ICTHUS Christian Fellowship will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 212.

■ Parachute Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 204.

■ Pre-occupational Therapy Students will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 202.

■ KSU Rodeo Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Weber 146.

■ Horticultural Therapy Club will meet at 5:30 p.m. in Waters 18A.

■ Alpha Kappa Psi pledges will meet at 6 p.m. in Union 207. Members will meet at 7 p.m. in Calvin 102 for pictures and a mixer.

■ Lou Douglas Lecture Series will present "How Not to Parachute More Cats" by Hunter Lovins at 7:30 p.m. in McCain Auditorium.

■ Beta Sigma Litte Sister actives will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Beta Sigma Psi house. Tapping begins at 9 p.m.

■ SADD will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union 205 and and 8:30 p.m. in Union 213.

■ Ag Ambassadors will meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 137. Executives will meet at 8:30 p.m.

■ K-State Young Democrats will meet at 8 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

■ Collegiate International Trade Association will meet at 5 p.m. in Calvin 18.

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, sunny and warmer. High near 60. Winds becoming southerly at 5 to 15 mph by afternoon. Tonight, clear and not quite so cold. Low 35 to 40. Thursday, sunny. High in the upper 60s.

1990 Parents' Weekend Activities

Friday, October 12

Recreational Activities, Natatorium, 7:30-10 p.m.; Peters Recreation Complex, 6 a.m.-midnight. Parents admitted free.

Women's Volleyball Game, K-State vs. University of Missouri at Kansas City, 7:30 p.m., Ahearn Field House, $1-$2.

Chuck Wagon Buffet, Union Stateroom, 6-7:30 p.m., $6 meal only or $8 with admission to the Kaner Comedy Show.

The Jaz Kaner Comedy Show, McCain Auditorium, 8 p.m., $3; Kaner's humor is tailored for the college circuit.

Pump Boys and Dinettes, Nichols Theater, 8 p.m., $6-$7; K-State Players present a recent off-Broadway musical hit.

Candlelight Walk to Danforth Chapel, 6 p.m., Haymaker parking lot; concludes Racial and Ethnic Harmony Week.

Saturday, October 13

Activity Center, Union Courtyard, 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Obtain a detailed schedule of weekend activities.

Family Portraits with Willie, Union Courtyard, 9:30 a.m. to noon, $5. Capture the memories with Willie the Wildcat.

A Taste of K-State, Dairy Bar, Meat Lab, 9 a.m.-1 p.m.; Shellenberger Bakery, 9 a.m. to noon; free food samples, tours.

Guided Tours of the Konza Prairie, 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.; a fascinating 2.8-mile hike and slide show. Bring walking shoes.

Faculty Book Autographing by K-State faculty authors, K-State Union Bookstore, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Meet over 26 K-State faculty authors.

Special Attractions and Tours, details available at the Parents Activity Center:

Macdonald Laboratory, 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m., 2 p.m.; see energy research using a 6-million-volt atomic accelerator.

K-State Butterfly and Insect Collection, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; see live insect behavior under extreme magnification.

Campus Arboretum and Tree Walk, self-guided tour. Explore dozens of mature specimens of exotic trees and bushes.

K-State Historic Costume Collection, 11 a.m., 1 p.m., 3 p.m.; includes apparel from the Chinese Imperial Court.

Nuclear Reactor, 9 a.m., 10 a.m., 11 a.m., 1 p.m.; see the research nuclear reactor which is submerged in a pool of water.

Rose Garden and Conservatory, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.; stroll the new formal garden and examine colorful tropical plants.

Planetarium Shows, 9 a.m., 10 a.m., 11 a.m., 407 Cardwell Hall. Learn about the night skies of Kansas.

Architecture's Computer Graphics Design Lab Demonstration, 11 a.m., 1 p.m., 2 p.m., 106K Seaton Hall.

Guided tours of KSU's main campus, 9-11 a.m., leaving every half hour from the Union first floor.

Rappelling demonstration, 9-11 a.m., Military Science Building. Army ROTC cadets defy gravity and "climb the walls."

Multi-Cultural Student Scholarship Brunch, 10 a.m., $5.25, Union Cottonwood Room; honoring scholars and parents.

Brunch and Burger Buffet, Union Bluemont Room, 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m., $4.75. Build your own burger and pile it on!

Football Game, K-State vs. Oklahoma State, 1:10 p.m., $16 reserved, $9 general admission, $5 children. For reservations 1-800-221-CATS or 532-6920. Half-time presentation of the 1990 Honorary Parents by Chimes Junior Honorary.

Pump Boys and Dinettes, an off-Broadway musical hit, Nichols Theater, 2 p.m. matinee and 8 p.m., $6-$7.

Parents' Day Buffet, 5-7 p.m., Union Ballroom, $8.95; a special meal for your family. Advance reservations required.

Comedian Red Skelton, 8 p.m., Bramlage Coliseum, $11.50, $15.50. Laugh along with show business' veteran clown.

Concert at McCain Auditorium, 8 p.m., $1-$5; K-State Singers, Men's and Women's Glee Clubs.

Recreational Activities, Natatorium, closed; Peters Recreation Complex, 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Parents admitted free.

Sunday, October 14

Family Worship on Campus, Danforth Chapel, Protestant, 11 a.m., and St. Isidore's Catholic Campus Center, 11 a.m.

Parents' Weekend Golf Tourney & Brunch, Stagg Hill Golf Course, 8:30 a.m., $42/cple. Enter by Oct. 1, call 532-6260.

Konza Prairie Self-Guided Tours, hike either 2.8, 4.7 or 6.1 miles at K-State's Konza Prairie south of Manhattan.

Recreational Activities, Natatorium, 1-5 p.m. and 7-10 p.m.; Peters Recreation Complex, noon to midnight.

Basketball Midnight Madness, Bramlage Coliseum, doors open 11 p.m., men's basketball practice at 12:01 a.m.

For more weekend information contact the ULearN Network at 532-6442.

chimes

K-State Union
Host to the Campus

Thanks to the following 1990 Parents Weekend Sponsors...

Oasis
Mrs. Powell's Delicious Cinnamon Rolls
World Bazaar
Yen Ching Chinese Restaurant
Varney's Bookstore
Carlos O' Kelly's
Brentwood for Men and Women
Wildcat Spirit
Hair Westloop
Haynes' Style Shop and Beauty Supply
Borck Brothers Mens Wear
Pfeifley Jewelers
Kitchens Plus, Inc.
The Book Shop
Kansas State Travel Agency
Sirloin Stockade
Wal Mart
Bonanza
Amigo's
Western Wynde
Alpha Computers
JC Penney
Seiferts
Taylor's Shoes
Mid-America Office Supplies
Reed and Elliot Jewelers
Steve's Floral
Perspectives
Harry's Uptown Supper Club
So-Fro Fabrics
Chi Omega
Pi Beta Phi
Kappa Alpha Theta
Phi Delta Theta
Haymaker Hall
Kappa Delta
Delta Upsilon
Farmhouse
Tau Kappa Epsilon
Sigma Kappa
Sigma Sigma Sigma
Kappa Kappa Gamma
Valentino's
Keck's Steakhouse
Bowinkle's
Alpha Chi Omega
Ballard's Sporting Goods
Lowman's Mens Shop
Krazy Kris' Novelties & Gifts
On the Wild Side
Woody's Ladies Shop
Campus Hairstyling

Used book sale benefits Farrell

New database to be purchased

By Jerry Sapp
Collegian Reporter

The mounds of books congesting Farrell Library's lobby aren't the overflow from the crammed stacks — they are used books for the library's annual book sale.

The books, donated by the public, will be on sale today.

"It is a fund-raising event to benefit the library," said Myrna Daly, coordinator of extension publications. "It is an annual fall event people look forward to. This year there will be an emphasis to combine an increase in membership with increased awareness for the need of library support and resources."

The sale, sponsored by Friends of the KSU Libraries, began Wednesday and will continue today from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. in the lobby of Farrell Library.

Last year's book sale raised over $5,000 to help purchase a book saver copier machine valued at $12,000. The copier is a split-level copier which prevents book bindings from being destroyed during photocopying.

This year, Farrell plans to purchase a Multi-Platter bibliographic database system for undergraduate access on the second floor, said Brice Hobrock, dean of the library. The library also needs $40,000 to purchase a new CD-ROM data base that will update and improve research for students. The database is a computerized form of the Reader's Guide to Periodical Literature books.

"This year's book sale will have fifty different categories to choose from," said Barbara Newhouse, associate director for academic programs in the Educational Communications Center and co-chair of the event. "Some of the categories include mysteries, romance, nonfiction, biographies, children's books, text books — almost any subject area."

Prices for the books are $2 for hardbacks, $1 for softcovers and 50 cents for paperbacks.

"This is a good way to support the library and get books at a good price," said Walter Cash, associate

■ See BOOKS, Page 12A

Mike Welchhans/Staff

Students rummage through books in the lobby of Farrell Library Wednesday afternoon at the Annual Friends of the KSU Libraries Used Book Sale. The library plans to purchase a Multi-Platter bibliographic database system for undergraduate access with the money raised yesterday and today.

2-car accident injures 3 people

By Shannon Heim
Collegian Reporter

Three people were taken by ambulance to local hospitals after a two-car accident occurred on U.S. 24 east of Manhattan at about 5 p.m. Wednesday.

An off-duty deputy, who asked to have his name withheld, was driving west on U.S. 24 when he noticed the two cars in the ditch. He said he realized the victims were still in the vehicles and went for help.

Pottawatomie Deputy Greg Riat was the first officer to respond to the call. He said the victims were still in their cars and were still conscious.

"One driver refused treatment at first but then realized he needed it," Riat said. A second ambulance was then called.

Rob Kennedy, an employee of Dick Edwards, said he did not see the accident happen but did hear the crash.

"I ran over to see if I could help," Kennedy said. He walked with the driver of one car over to Dick Edwards to use the phone, he said. The first ambulance had already been called.

"It looked like the passenger of the tan car was hurt pretty bad," Kennedy said. "He hit his head on the windshield."

One victim was treated and released from the St. Mary Hospital,

■ See WRECK, Page 12A

Researcher to examine landfill

Soil used as medium for dispensing grass clippings, papers

By Candace Plett
Collegian Reporter

A K-State scientist is tackling the challenge of reducing landfill waste in an environmentally safe way.

"Soil is very forgiving. The purpose of my research is to use the soil as a medium for dispensing grass clippings and newspapers that make up 60 percent of landfill waste," said Carlyle Thompson, soil specialist at the Fort Hays branch of K-State's Agricultural Experiment Station.

His research began when the city of Hays consulted the experiment station about solving their local landfill problem. Thompson's inspiration came from his use of old newspapers and grass clippings on his home garden for almost 20 years. He said the results have been less weeds and better soil moisture retention.

"I know this can work, but now I have to determine the optimum rate at which the soil can break down the waste," he said. "When we expand the idea around the state and the country, that rate will have to be altered according to soil characteristics and rainfall.

"This should extend the life of the landfill by 60 percent," he said. "That is significant."

Thompson said grass clippings often contain weed seed and have high levels of nitrogen. He said applications would have to be limited so that groundwater mineral levels won't be adversely affected.

Although shredded newspapers help keep the soil moist, heavy applications cause micro-organisms that rot the newspaper to use nutrients needed for growing plants, he said.

Thompson said the process won't require a lot of acreage, depending on the rate of trash being generated.

He said that there will be expenditures for equipment such as a grinder, trench silo and disposal machinery but that these would cost considerably less than a new landfill.

Another way to dispose of old newspapers is as cattle feed.

"It's kind of like us eating popcorn," he said. "It's a filler. That idea came when it was put down as bedding, and the cattle would eat it."

There are problems with using newspapers as feed, said Len Harbers, professor of animal sciences and industry.

"Staples, paper clips and other materials were once taken out with magnets, but now there are a lot of plastic and aluminum materials," Harbers said. "The ink usually doesn't cause toxicity problems, but large quantities cause cattle to have dark lymph nodes, which meat inspectors don't like."

HONEY BUNNY — I'd love a COLLEGIAN Personal. One day is only $3 for 15 words.

BAPP Meeting
Today 4:30
Union 207
Yearbook pictures will be taken after the meeting.

BUSHWACKER'S
· THE · FUNDRINKERY
ΑΧΩ
Greek Playboy
Kickoff Party
Proceeds go to Cystic Fibrosis

ROCKY FORD
TAVERN
THURSDAY
1.50 Pitchers
of OLD MIL
FRI.-SAT.
SUN.
3.25 Pitchers of
Coors Lite & Bud
70¢ Draws
Go North on Barnes Rd.
1 mile from bridge

KRAZY KRIS'
NOVELTIES & GIFTS
Oct. 20, Aggieville
Come try the thrills of shooting a paint gun.
Instuction and target shooting available.
Your Halloween Supply Center
1128 Moro Aggieville U.S.A. 539-4567

KSU Rodeo Team
vs.
Fort Scott Comm. College with Alumni Competition
Friday 7 p.m.
Saturday 4 p.m.
Cico Park
Rodeo Dance Sat.. 9 p.m.-1:30 a.m.
Blue River Pub
For more information call 532-4029

LORDS 'N LADYS
Hair Design & Skin Care Studio
218 S. 4th (V.F.W. Plaza)
776-5651
½ off Facials
½ off Perms
(excluding designer perms)
½ off Colors
½ off Haircuts & Style
Ask for:
Rita
April
Jennifer offer expires
Oct. 31
with this ad

This Coming Sat.
OCT 13TH
The Mid-America
RECORD CONVENTION
RETURNS TO MANHATTAN, KS.
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13TH
10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
Ramada Inn • 17th & Anderson
Across From Campus
DEALERS FROM MANY STATES
Every Type of Music • All Price Ranges
ROCK - OLDIES - COUNTRY - JAZZ - SOUNDTRACKS - BLUES
CDs - ALBUMS - 45s - VIDEOS - POSTERS - MORE!
Many Out of Print - Hard to Find - Even One of a Kind
Great Collectables!
PLAN TO ATTEND MANHATTAN'S BEST-EVER MUSIC SALE!!
DON'T MISS OUT!
$1 ADMISSION
DOOR PRIZES AWARDED HOURLY
- Great Fun for Anyone Who Likes Music -

GREEK PLAYBOY
KICK-OFF PARTY!
When: Thurs., Oct. 11, 8-10 p.m.
Where: Bushwacker's
Why: To meet the guys!
(Fraternities support your playboy—be sure to come and sign in)
ΑΧΩ
presents
GREEK PLAYBOY '90
sponsored by:
BUSHWACKER'S
POWER FM 94.5
UNIVERSITY PHOTOGRAPHY
BRENTWOOD
· FOR MEN & WOMEN ·

Justin Ropers and cowhides.
One pair leads to another.
Between the Original Ropers and Justin cowhides, you've got a pair of boots for every occasion. And each pair is handcrafted from the finest materials for comfort, quality and durability. Justin. The boots for all walks of life.
Justin
Since 1879.
100% American made.
Great boots with personal service at Regularly 139.88
LEE'S PRICE 84.88
LEE'S WESTERN WEAR
913-776-6715
8426 E. Hwy. 24 Mon-Sat 9:00-5:30
Manhattan, Kansas 66502

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

Color not the only aspect of diversity

Jana Leep

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

As a child, my pink playground friends found me, me with full lips and me with a father whose name happened to be Jesse LeRoy. They found me as a girl with pink skin and colored features. They found me and circled me with laughter.

Looking back, slipping into that fragile little girl, my imagination was full of skies and blue, sun and worms, books and food. I would hide beneath the bushes and the teacher would comfort me: "Don't worry, I know and your peers know that you are white and your parents are white. Don't worry."

At the time, I did not understand the implications of what the teacher told me.

I was not hurt by being associated with people of color, but that I could be humiliated because of a quality, born to me, that I had no control over possessing. The words of my teacher anger me now more than my peers.

The words of my father anger me, disappoint me: "Don't worry when you get to be about 16 years old, the boys will start paying attention to you. And when you kiss them, they will all love you because they will love your lips."

I still worry, even though I have always been told not to worry. And I wish instead of prose, that I could finger-paint this column for you. When I think of diversity, color, of course comes to mind, but even more than that, texture and movement, power and vulnerability, vibrance and the supple displays of life.

"In the dark we are all the same." A student of mine wrote this quote when I asked her to write a definition of (harmony). In the dark, we would not see differences, we would hear the voices of human beings. In the dark, we would feel more alone, and each of us would be more likely to reach out to another, no matter the voice, no matter the texture of the skin.

It seems that sensitivity must come from within us, through the experience of being alone and being unique. The transition that moves us into sensitivity will not come from an outside structure such as the "Design for Diversity." The K-State campaign for diversity is progressive and will provide a message to students and faculty that diversity is a priority. The campaign will provide for the campus community an intellectual transition into sensitivity. But the personal transition must occur within each individual. We all have questioning and reconstructing to do upon our own individual terms.

The transition that moves us into sensitivity is that simple stepping into another's shoes, and if you cannot step into shoes, perhaps seeing through another's eyes, and if you cannot see, perhaps concentrated questioning of oneself.

Questioning breaks down what appears to be comfortable and acceptable. And when you put yourself back together, sensitivity and respect exist within you.

I traveled to France this summer. With only a working knowledge of the language, I backpacked around and within that new and intimidating world. I was awkward and clumsy and exhausted. I experienced labeling. "Oh, you are an American. Americans are ... " I don't need to discuss the labels, I do need to discuss the feeling of not knowing anyone, the feeling of not having individuals want to know me. I now understand the difference between being able to speak with an individual and being able to communicate.

After I returned from France, I traveled around the Midwest on a Greyhound bus. A paraplegic man was sitting in front of me. He did not have a partner for his journey. He had not gone to the restroom for more than 24 hours. No one had bothered to help him off the bus, not even the bus driver. As I fed him, and asked others to carry him off and on the bus, I was ashamed of the passengers, the man and myself. I was angry because this individual had virtually become invisible to the passengers that had traveled the entire route with him.

We talked awhile. I wiped his glasses clean. And he told me, "I am an invisible man without a name, without a home. I belong to the earth." It was a queer moment. And then I remembered that I had hidden beneath the bushes, close to the earth, when I had been foresaken by my peers, the pink people. I remembered thinking of myself as part of something larger, and this gave me peace when I wanted to strike out instead.

The paraplegic man, exhausted and dirty, seemed to me a visionary. He was a man, degraded and forgotten, who grounded himself in the earth. He was a man who represented neglected diversity. He was a man who showed me our foresaken humanity.

EDITORIALS

Racist representative needs to be stopped

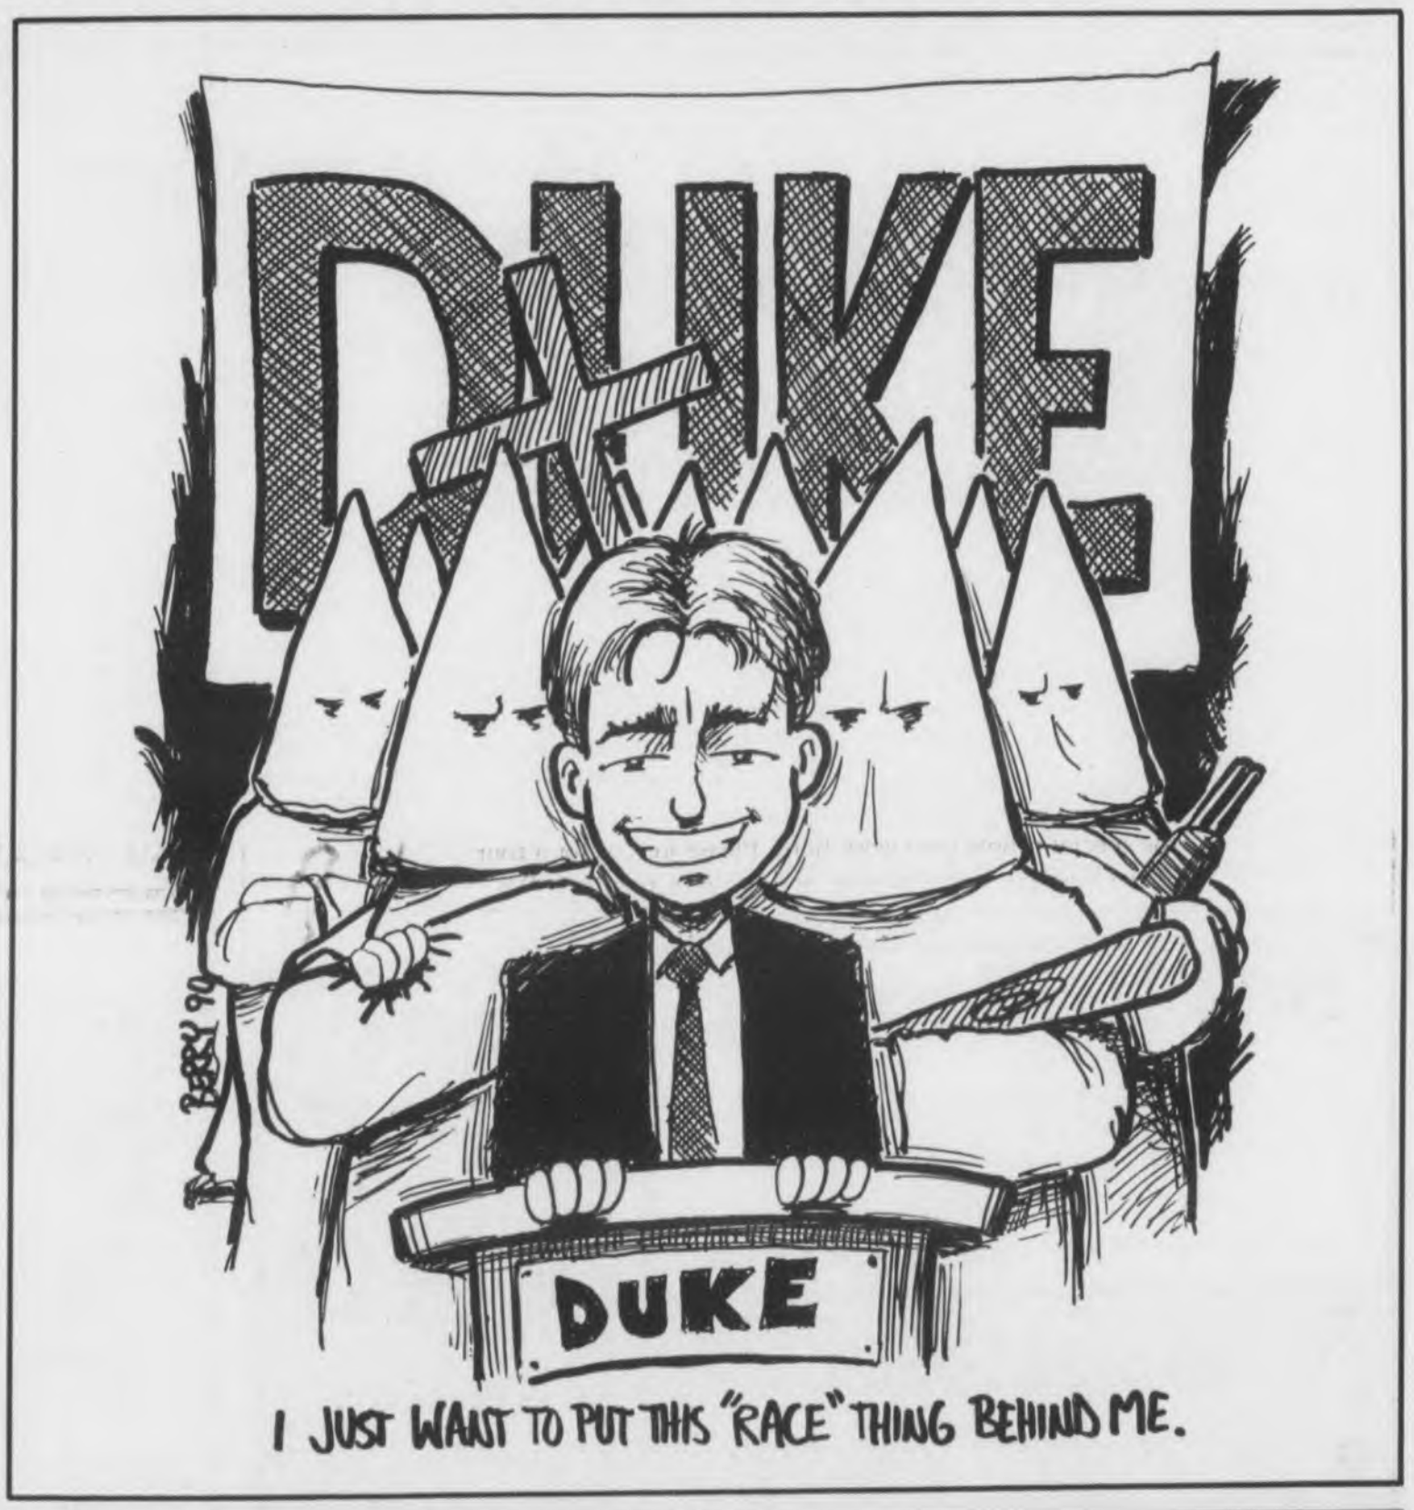
The chameleon was sent scurrying Sunday, but not before it dazzled almost half of Louisiana's voters.

With a resume boasting prior involvement in the Ku Klux Klan, Nazi organizations and groups concerned with advancing white people in the United States, Rep. David Duke, this time running as a Republican after three party switches in three years, ran a campaign in a state that is 27 percent black — and he made it a race.

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, a three-term Democrat, garnered 55 percent of the vote for the victory. But it took a team effort of both Republicans and Democrats to curtail Duke's momentum.

Eight Republican senators, including Kansas Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, switched parties to endorse Johnston. Another Republican that had been in the race and had been considered a long shot, Sen. Ben Bagert, withdrew at the last minute to give Johnston the needed majority to avoid a run-off election.

His actions were those of an impulsive youth, Duke said. Yet only 10 months ago, Duke said that because of genetics, blacks "have more of a tendency to act in anti-social ways." A year ago, the local KKK chapter phone number still rang Duke's home. And just 15 months ago, Duke was selling neo-Nazi literature from his office.



With his four cosmetic surgery operations, Duke's face may have changed, but the man has not. Today his words only thinly veil his prejudice and racism.

Duke, however, may be stronger than ever. He says he may run for governor. His supporters want him to run for president.

The sad truth is that Duke represents what many people want. While Duke has the First Amendment right to speak his mind, it's scary that so many people support his views.

Racism still exists in the United States. A former imperial wizard who looks to Adolph Hitler as a role model can be looked up to as one of our political leaders.

The people have spoken.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... David Frese
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel,
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koel
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little, Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff, Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

Student Publications Staff

DIRECTOR/NEWS ADVISER ..... Ron Johnson
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR/ADVERTISING DIRECTOR ..... Gloria Freeland
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR ..... Linda Puntney
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Ann Foster
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE ..... Jackie Harmon
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Linda Weatherly
OFFICE MANAGER ..... Pat Hudgins
ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT ..... Connie Fulkerson
INTERIM NEWS PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... David Svoboda
NEWS PRODUCTION ASSISTANT ..... Carla Jones
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Wanda Haynie
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS ..... Tammi Landis, Dana Franklin, Chris Tucker, Britt Owen, Deanna Adams
OFFICE STAFF ..... Shanta Bailey, Matt FitzGerald, Christa South
CARRIERS ..... Joe Cook, Minda Dowdy, John Fulkerson, Norm LeComte, James Seymore

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

LETTERS

Article informative

Editor,

Kudos to Erika Parker on her article "Challenges Meet Puerto Ricans" in Wednesday's Collegian. It's unbelievable how many Americans are unaware of the status of Puerto Ricans. Besides not knowing where Puerto Rico is geographically — some think it is off the coast of Spain or Africa — many people think of Puerto Rico as an independent country.

In traveling to that beautiful island, one would find that since it is a commonwealth, the laws are, for the most part, the same as in the United States. They even use American money. As the article states, no visa or passport is needed to travel there.

Of course, Puerto Ricans will vote next summer on whether to remain a commonwealth, to become independent, or, God forbid, to become the 51st state. I pray the Puerto Ricans take into consideration that by becoming a state they risk losing Spanish as the national language and their Spanish heritage and culture — as the Hawaiian Islands did in 1959.

Karla Welch
sophomore in secondary education

Story prejudiced

Editor,

I am writing in response to the article written by Erika Parker on Hispanics facing problems. I am a South Dakota resident and considered to be an out-of-state student. I pay a total cost of $15,200 yearly. This includes $9,400 a year for tuition, $3,600 a year for rent, $1,200 a year for food and $1000 a year for books and supplies, not to mention phone bills and other personal items.

In addition to the financial aspect, I too rarely see my family. Yes, I sympathize with anyone who must be away from their family for a long time, but you chose to come here for your education, as I did. You obviously felt that K-State offered the best education for your particular major. I am in no way belittling the problems faced by those who are Hispanic, but I do not think that their problems should be singled out on the front page of a school publication simply because they are a minority. The problems portrayed in the article are those shared by any out-of-state student coming from a considerable distance. Perhaps the high cost of out-of-state tuition as a whole needs to be addressed. To pick a particular nationality seems, well, prejudiced.

Todd McCracken
second-year student in veterinary medicine

Cyclists abused

Editor,

We're sorry that Suzanne Auten was struck by a bicyclist, and we apologize to her on behalf of the ignorant cyclist who hit her. The flagrant disregard some cyclists have of the traffic laws and the safety of pedestrians must stop.

Auten, however, obviously misread the letter in Tuesday's Collegian from Dean Hargett. Nowhere did Hargett advocate breaking the law, especially when the law involves the safety of pedestrians. In fact, Hargett called for the unity of pedestrians and bicyclists in confronting the selfish users of the car who pollute the air and endanger everyone's life.

The "plight" of the bicyclist, as Auten so poetically put it, involves not only the sidewalks and bike racks. These are but minor irritations. In Manhattan and in the United States in general, it is virtually impossible to ride a bicycle. The design of the town, thanks to the zoning laws and the car, makes it a deathtrap to bicyclists, as any one of them can well testify. The bicycle is treated as a toy for children not yet old enough to operate a motorized vehicle. For kids it is consigned to the sidewalk and for adults to the gutter. The behavior of many motorists reinforces this. It is bad enough to be forced to share the road with a two-ton farter, but cyclists must also put up with constant verbal and physical abuse from the occupants of cars. This harassment includes honking, yelling, spitting, near misses and more.

We bicyclists are sick and tired of this treatment. We will no longer tolerate it, and we will retaliate.

Mark Guizlo
graduate student in geography

Letter refreshing

Editor,

I was impressed by David Fowler's letter in Tuesday's Collegian. In a social atmosphere where "cool" and "attitude" reign supreme, it is refreshing and touching to see such an open expression of innocent good will.

I think we all should follow his advice and be more friendly. Who knows, some of us might actually start enjoying ourselves.

Margaret Schmidt
junior in art

Bad day ruins smile

Editor,

I am writing in response to David Fowler's letter "More smiles needed" in the Oct. 8 Collegian.

Haven't you ever had a bad day, dude?

Jenni Martin
junior in elementary education

Studies show increased cancer rate to farmers mishandling herbicide

By Scott Berg
Science Reporter

Two studies have shown that farmers who have had contact with 2,4-D have an increased likelihood of developing lymphomic cancer.

Case-control studies in Kansas and Nebraska show high chances of non-Hodgkin's lymphoma (NHL) in farmers who use the herbicide 2,4-dichlorophenoxyacetic acid (2,4-D).

Non-Hodgkin's lymphoma is a cancer of the lymph system that causes about 18,000 deaths a year.

"The cancer was caused in the 1950s and 1960s when people weren't using protective gear," said Robert Robel, professor of biology. "Cancer takes many years to form, so what appears now was caused years ago."

Seventy-seven percent of NHL cases among white males in Eastern Nebraska between 1983 and 1986 were associated contact with 2,4-D, according to a report for the area by the National Cancer Institute-sponsored Surveillance, Epidemiology, and End Results program in Iowa, according to an article in the September 1990 issue of Epidemiology.

The report supports an earlier report done in Kansas. The Nebraska report stated there was a substantial increase of NHL in farmers who used 2,4-D. Men who have been exposed to 2,4-D for more than 21 days per year have a risk that is three times greater than that of normal men.

According to the report, the Nebraska results correlated with the Kansas study which indicated that farmers who used 2,4-D had a 600-percent increase in their chances to contract NHL.

This herbicide was chosen for the study because of its widespread commercial use and to check a study done in Sweden during the 1970s, Robel said. The study in Kansas, as in Sweden, specifically looked for three cancers: non-Hodgkins lymphoma, Hodgkins Disease and soft-tissue sarcoma.

"The data-gathering system (for the Kansas study) was totally unbiased, and the Nebraska study was set up the same way," Robel said. "Many checks were made in the results because it was an emotional issue.

"It is important that people know none of the studies say 2,4-D causes cancer," Robel said. "It is associated with a greater incidence for increases in non-Hodgkin's lymphoma. Most cancers are caused by multiple causes, and it could be that herbicides are one."

According to the report, the annual frequency of exposure is more strongly associated with the risk than the years of use because herbicides are used sporadically throughout the year and the amount used varies yearly.

> "The farmers today are more educated on the dangers and are better protecting themselves than 20 years ago."
>
> —Robert Robel
> professor of biology

The Nebraska research showed a 50-percent increase in risk of NHL was found among men who mixed or applied 2,4-D, compared to a control group. Risk increased with the number of days spent in contact with 2,4-D.

According to the report, risk increased substantially the longer the farmers waited to change into clean clothes after handling the herbicide. The farmers who change immediately after use had a lower risk than those who wore the same work clothes more then one day.

"The farmers today are more educated on the dangers and are better protecting themselves than 20 years ago," Robel said. "Classes are given on how to use it safely. It's like driving a car — training reduces the risk of accidents. Protective gear includes goggles, mask, rubber gloves, boots and coveralls."

"2,4-D is used on broadleaf and other weeds in wheat, corn and sorghum fields, pastures and range land," said Dallas Peterson, weed extention scientist.

It is common in many weed killers sold in stores and used by lawn-care businesses, Peterson said, and is one of the oldest herbicides and most popular weed killers used today. It was first used in 1950.

"I don't think agriculture could exist as we know it without herbicides. It makes food cheaper," Robel said. "But it would be naive to believe they're harmless."

Jail plan removed from county ballot

By Shannon Helm
Collegian Reporter

Lack of support for expansion of the Riley County jail has convinced the Riley County Commissioners to remove the issue from the Nov. 6 ballot.

"We decided there was enough unrest with reappraisal that people would vote 'no' on the jail issue on that (tax increase) basis," said Dick Jepsen, county commission chairman.

Jepsen said he did not know when the expansion would be voted on.

"There are two alternatives. We could hold a special election or wait until the next primary election," he said.

A resolution on the law enforcement and detention center was originally prepared for the August ballot. This plan called for a half-cent sales tax, not to exceed $5.9 million, to pay for the expansion.

In an effort to cut costs, the commission proposed keeping the jail on Colorado Street, the present site. Jepsen said this seems to be the best alternative because citizens want to limit costs.

Citizens opposed to expanding the jail in this residential area disagree and have formed Jail CORP, Citizens Organized for Responsible Placement, in an effort to keep the facility out this neighborhood.

Jan Farinelli, Jail CORP chairwoman, said she hopes the commissioners will spend time investigating various alternatives since the issue will not be voted on soon.

"We will continue to monitor the situation," Farinelli said.

The county commission is not under a court order to improve the jail but they recognize an increasing need for space to hold prisoners and for the police investigators

■ See JAIL, Page 12A

YOU'RE INVITED
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20

To Help Us Celebrate!

Memorial Hospital wants to invite you and your family to come and see your new hospital. We've just wrapped up an impressive construction and renovation project and we're eager for you to see the improvements, and to meet the special people who work here. Please join us for a tour of the hospital, refreshments, and health screenings. We think you're going to like what we've got to show you!

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL OPEN HOUSE
1 - 4 p.m.
Saturday, October 20, 1990

REGISTER TO WIN: A 3-day Nassau cruise for two from International Tours Travel Agency of Manhattan. Ship sails April 26, 1991. Bon Voyage!

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
Yesterday's values, Tomorrow's technology
1105 Sunset P.O. Box 1208 • Manhattan, KS 66502 • 913-776-3300

©1990 Memorial Hospital

OCTOBER 20th

KQLA 104 103.9 FM

K-STATE VS MISSOURI

ICAT BUS TRIP
To Columbia, MO

DEPARTURE: MEET AT BRAMLAGE COLISEUM WEST PARKING LOT. 7:30AM
EXPENSES: 25.00/PERSON (INCLUDES TICKET)
REGISTRATION: DEADLINE OCTOBER 13TH
DROP BY THE ATHLETIC OFFICE OR MAIL CHECK TO MIKE AHEARN SCOLARSHIP FUND (ICAT)
1800 COLLEGE AVE QUESTIONS (JEFF CHAPMAN 539-6910)

From Roots to Wings

You Are Invited to attend a Faculty Autographing

Saturday, October 13
10:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m.

K-State Union Bookstore

We are pleased to honor the following members of the K-State Faculty:

These faculty members will be autographing copies of their recent publications.

Gary W. Clift
Wallace Dace
Bernd Foerster
Richard J. Harris
Mary F. Heller
Steve Heller
Jonathon Holden
Kenneth M. Jones
S. Lillian Kremer
Stephan Konz
D. T. MacFarland
Paul McCarthy
Betty R. McGraw
Sarah Bishop Merrill
Tom Murray
E. Wayne Nafziger
Margery A. Neely
Benjamin M. Nyberg
James F. Ragan
A. G. Ramm
Frank E. Saal
Huber Self
Charles A. Smith
Donald C. Stewart
Michael W. Suleiman
K. K. Tummala

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS

'Cats drop 4-game match to KU

By Russ Ewy
Sports Reporter

The K-State volleyball squad lost its third straight conference match last night to Kansas, 3-1, in Ahearn Field House.

Taking over two hours to complete, the match went down to the wire before the Jayhawks, now 10-5 overall and 2-2 in the conference, won 15-12, 15-13, 11-15, 15-12.

K-State coach Scott Nelson saw his team's chances to win the match slip away late in three of the four games.

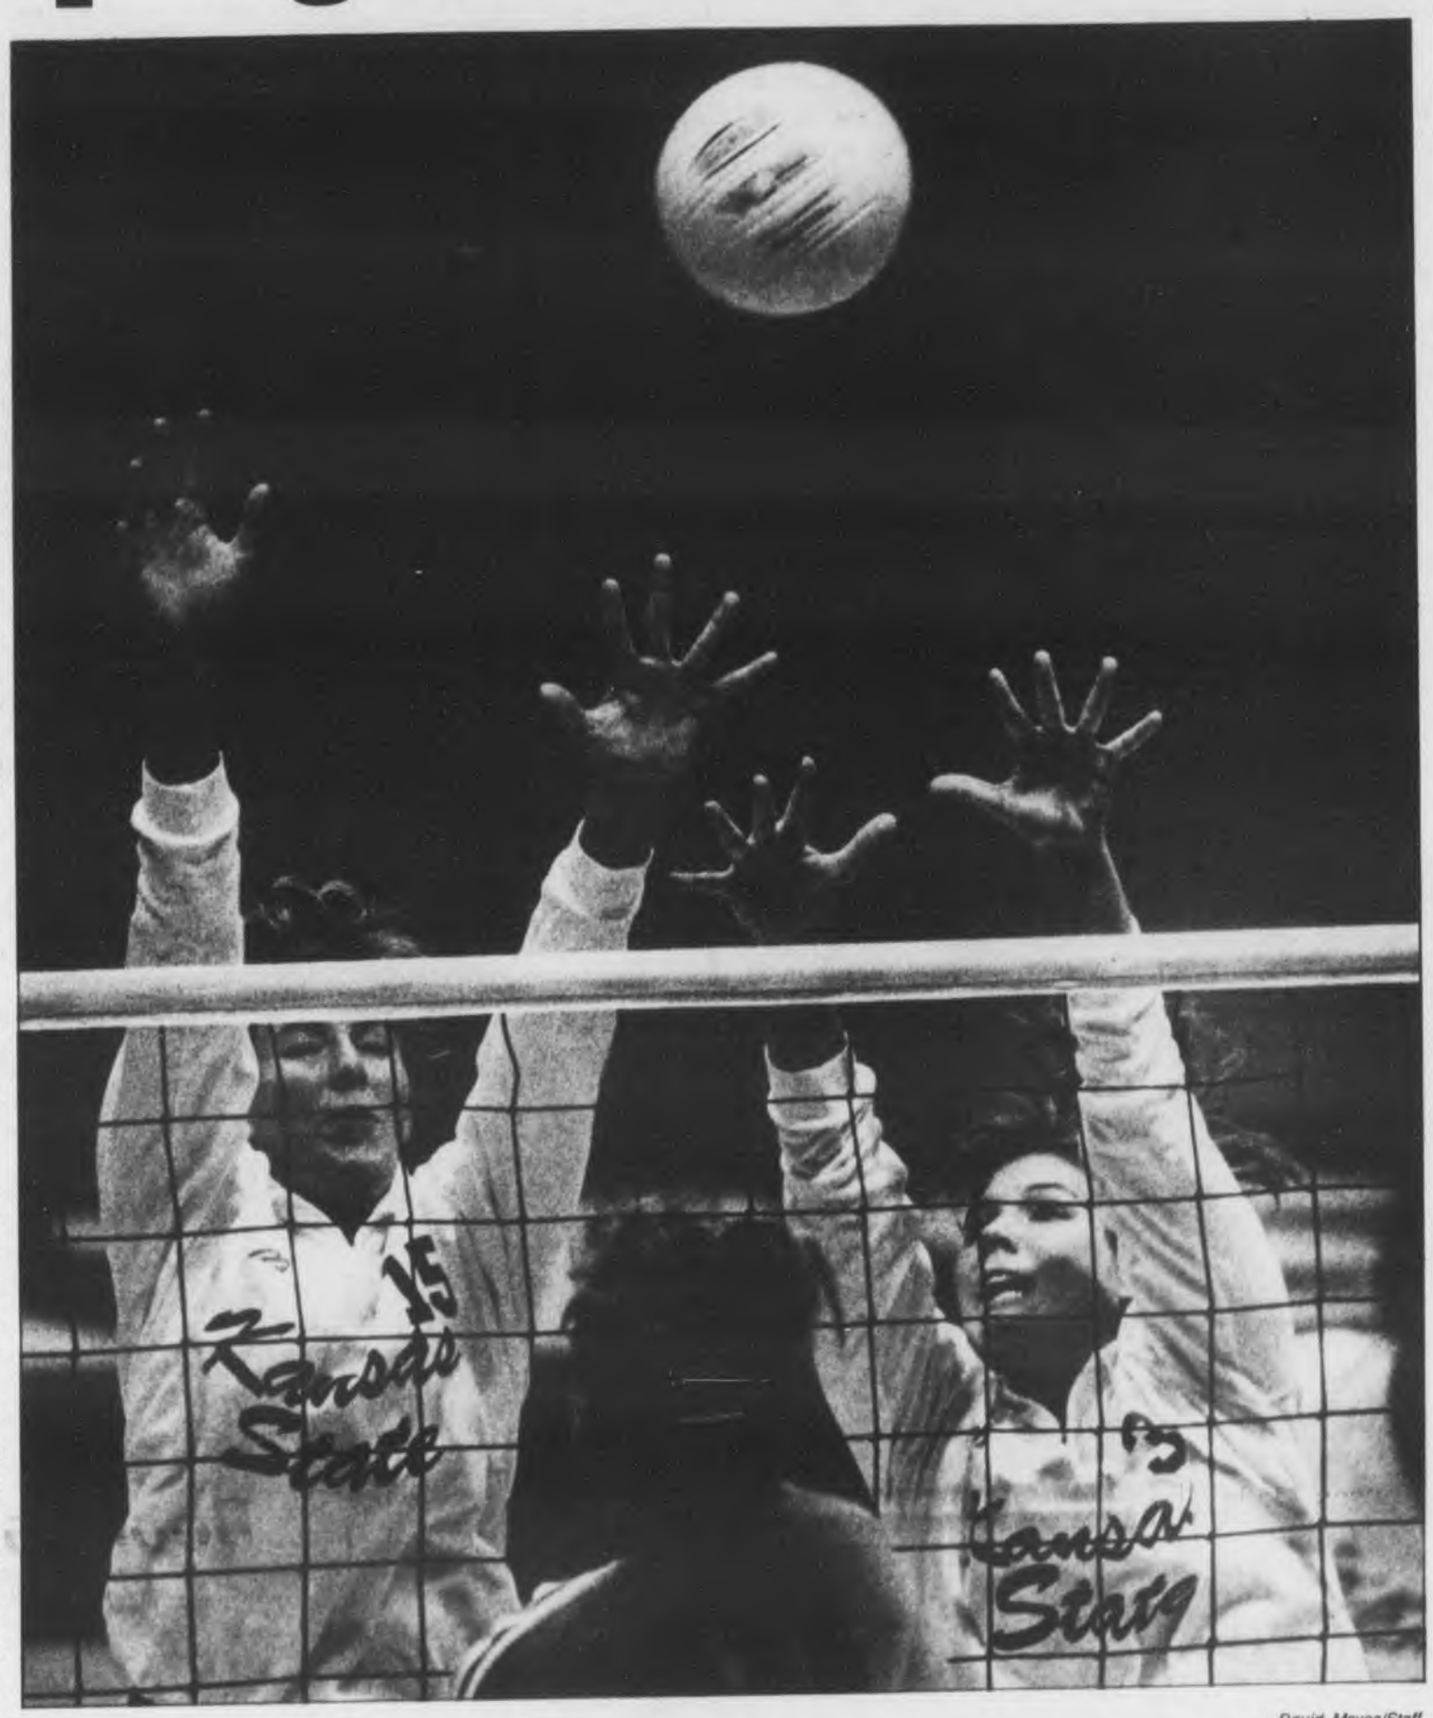
"I actually thought we could win this match 3-0, but it seemed in each of the games we would have a couple of unforced errors late, like in serving or passing errors — something that was unforced — as opposed to a great dig or kill by KU," Nelson said. "I think we gave away more than they took.

"I'm very proud of our effort. We're right on the verge of competing as opposed to just learning the offense and learning the defense. As you compete, and focus more on just winning that point or winning that game, your overall intensity level is sharper and you cut down on your unforced errors. We're right at that level right now and that's why I think we could (have won this match 3-0)."

Despite its loss, K-State had a record-breaking night against Kansas, setting new four-game marks in kills with 79, digs with 117, attacks with 210 and assists with 77.

Freshman setter Alison Murphy set an individual assist record with 73, breaking the previous one of 55 set in 1985.

Middle hitter Betsy Berkley led the 'Cats in hitting with 18 kills and a .342 hitting percentage, followed by middle hitter Valery Roberts, who hit .310 with 12 kills.



Outside hitters Julie James, Kathy Saxton and Rhonda Hughes combined for the bulk of K-State's hitting with 16, 15 and 14 kills, respectively.

"It seemed that in the first part of the match that our offense was hitting well. It seemed that we were getting a lot of kills on our first-ball offense," Nelson said. "Later, as the match went on, their defense got more involved. Our inconsistencies, especially in the serving area, I thought inhibited us from winning, as opposed to KU beating us.

"I think we were a little inconsistent and a little nervous at times."

The spikers are now 0-3 in the Big Eight and 5-8 overall, and will face Nebraska, the No. 1 team in the nation, Tuesday in Lincoln. Nelson, however, says it's not too late for the 'Cats to gain a berth into the conference tournament.

"I think we're in a position where we have to go to Kansas and play great volleyball. We have to steal back the win they got from us," Nelson said. "I still think it's too early (to tell). I say in another week or so we're going to see who's in control of the conference, and then it will be time (to worry about the conference tournament)."

David Mayes/Staff

K-State volleyball players Betsy Berkley and Julie James reach for a block during a four-game loss to Kansas Wednesday night in Ahearn Field House. Berkley had 18 kills and hit .342, while James had 16 kills in the loss.

Robinson to succeed Schuerholz

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Spencer "Herk" Robinson, a 21-year employee of the Kansas City Royals who has been out of the baseball end of the business since 1973, was named Wednesday to replace John Schuerholz as general manager.

At the same time, Royals President Joe Burke denied speculation that the Royals had fired Schuerholz at the end of the most disappointing season in team history. Schuerholz was introduced about an hour earlier in Atlanta as vice president and general manager of the Braves.

Schuerholz, who talked owner Ewing Kauffman into spending more than $19 million on free agent pitchers Mark and Storm Davis, boldly predicted coming out of spring training that the Royals would win 100 games. But they won only 75, losing 20 of their first 30 to finish in sixth place, 27 and one-half games behind Oakland in the American League West.

Manager John Wathan, to the surprise of many fans, was rehired for 1991 in September, one day after the Royals lost their ninth game in a row. Schuerholz, at his last public appearance in Kansas City, was treated to long, loud booing when introduced at a hockey game last week.

Asked why Schuerholz left, Burke said, "In all fairness, John would have to answer that question. I don't think anything pertained to the way this ball club was operated, or with ownership or the people on this staff.

"We told him we'd be very happy to have him and we did not want him to go," Burke added. "Somebody has started the rumor that we fired John, but that's not true."

Robinson, 50, is a familiar figure around Royals Stadium and has worked in virtually every facet of the operation since coming to Kansas City one year after Kauffman was granted an expansion franchise. He was made director of stadium operations in 1973 and since 1981 has been executive vice president for administration.

The Royals are expected to undergo a major personnel revamping, saying goodbye to veterans Bob Boone, Frank White and Willie Wilson, among others.

■ See ROYALS, Page 12A

Runner new leader

Treiber looks for challenges in junior campaign

By Dan Wicker
Sports Reporter

K-State has quietly built one of the most respected cross country teams in the nation by recruiting runners from Kansas.

This season began with K-State again receiving national attention. The women currently have the 16th-ranked team in the nation.

In the spotlight, along with All-American Janet Haskin, is Janet Treiber, a native of Altamont-Labette County High School.

"You give me talent — it doesn't have to be great talent — someone who has a great work ethic and is hungry for success in competition. Those three things combined will give you an athlete that can compete at any division level," Coach John Capriotti said. "(Treiber) covers all those bases and then some."

Besides being in the spotlight with Haskin, Treiber and Haskin are good friends who rely on each other for support, leadership and training.

"We are doing a lot of our training together," Treiber said. "If she has a lab or something, then I will do my workout early or late with her because we run the same intervals at practice."

Treiber began her career at K-State with an immediate impact in the Big Eight Conference. She captured a gold medal for K-State her freshman year in the 3,000 meters at the Big Eight Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

"I'm not down-playing it all because I am proud of it, but it wasn't a very fast time, and the big guns were in other races," Treiber said. "I don't feel like I have stepped back from my freshman year. It was just kind of a rare situation. Hopefully, now I can do that and feel a little bit more like I deserved it."

Last cross country season, Treiber ran in the third spot behind Haskin and Angie Barry for most of the season, and she finished third in the 3,000 meters at the Big Eight Championships.

"She is a lot better in cross country this year than she was last year, so right there is a big jump," Capriotti said. "But there is definitely more there. I believe that she will make it because she is the kind of girl, the kind of athlete, that will do what it takes."

■ See TREIBER, Page 12A

Surprises make for encouraging first half of fall golf campaign

By Scott Paske
Sports Reporter

A freshman fires a near-perfect round of 73 in rugged conditions. Another golfer posts her best finish in a college tournament after considering forfeiting her scholarship.

These are surprises that keep K-State Coach Russ Bunker optimistic about his men's and women's teams one month into the fall season.

Then, there are high scores and disappointing finishes that have plagued the Wildcats in the past. Three top golfers struggle in their opening tournaments. The seemingly endless search for a supporting cast to Brett Vuillemin and Richard Laing continues.

"In some ways, it's a lot like what Coach (Bill) Snyder is facing with the football program," Bunker said. "Things have been so bad for so long that you're trying incredibly hard to make things better.

"While I'm not completely happy, I think both teams are getting closer to where we want to be."

Bunker's squads are coming off their best week of the short season. The men finished fifth in the weather-shortened Falcon Invitational at Colorado Springs, Colo. The women were third at the Huskie Invitational in DeKalb, Ill.

The 'Cat women get a chance to build on their recent success as they open play in Wichita State's Shocker Fall Classic Friday at Reflection Ridge in Wichita. K-State's men are idle until Oct. 29 when they travel to the Hyatt Bear Creek Fall Classic in Dallas.

The women's two-day event includes 18 holes Friday, followed by 36 on Saturday. Top-20 teams Kansas and Texas Tech highlight the 11-team field.

"With those teams playing, and Wichita State playing on their home course, it will be tough for the girls to finish in the top three," Bunker said. "If they can pull it off, they can come back home really feeling like they've accomplished something."

K-State's hopes will be carried by Chris Adams and Adena Hagedorn. Adams, after struggling in the season opener at Iowa State, rebounded to finish in a third-place tie in the Huskie Classic with a 36-hole score of 166. Hagedorn was one shot behind at 167.

Bunker said Ashley Johnson and Julie White will make the trip, competing in the team's fifth and sixth spots. K-State's regulars — Adams, Hagedorn, Valerie Hahn and Theresa Coyle — will also compete.

"We're still looking for someone to fill that sixth spot," Bunker said. "Denise Pottle and Julie White have struggled, and we're looking for someone to step in and help out."

A's sweep series; Pirates narrow gap

Clemens ejected as Oakland clinches

By The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — First the umpires got rid of Roger Clemens, then the rest was easy for Dave Stewart and the Oakland Athletics. They swept the Boston Red Sox for the American League pennant and their third straight trip to the World Series.

Stewart followed up his first-game heroics with an even better effort. He beat Boston 3-1 Wednesday and won for the eighth straight time in head-to-head matchups with Clemens.

The only real question in Game 4 was how long Clemens could hold off Oakland. Pushing his tender shoulder on three days' rest to the bewilderment of much of Boston, the answer was not long at all.

In the ultimate sign of Boston's failure and frustration, Clemens was ejected in the second inning for arguing balls and strikes with umpire Terry Cooney, triggering a wild scene that left water coolers, players and coaches strewn across the field.

The Red Sox were already down 1-0 at that point and without the lone hope, they were helpless, especially against the take-advantage A's. It showed when Mike Gallego met Tom Bolton with a two-run double that sent Oakland to its 10th straight victory in the postseason.

The A's became the first team in 71 years to win a postseason series without hitting a home run, but it didn't matter. They became the first team to reach the World Series three straight times since the 1976-78 New York Yankees.

The Athletics will begin defense of their World Series championship Tuesday night in either Cincinnati or Pittsburgh.

Boston, meanwhile, lost its 10th straight game in the postseason and extended its record of consecutive playoff defeats to eight.

The Athletics, the winningest team in baseball this year, swept Boston from the 1988 playoffs and won last year's World Series in four straight. Oakland's fans are accustomed to such success: By the final inning, a procession of about 100 green-and-gold clad fans carrying brooms marched around the Coliseum stands shouting "Sweep! Sweep! Sweep!"

Drabek pitches Bucs into Game 6

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Doug Drabek provided the Pittsburgh Pirates with some arms control of their own Wednesday night to send the National League playoffs back to Cincinnati.

Drabek allowed two runs and seven hits in eight-plus innings as the Pirates beat the Reds 3-2 in Game 5. Bob Patterson came on with one out and runners on second and third and, after an intentional walk, got a double play to end the game.

The best-of-7 series resumes Friday night at Riverfront Stadium with Cincinnati needing one victory for its first NL pennant since 1976.

The NL winner, of course, will have the honor of trying to knock off the Oakland Athletics. The defending World Series champions have won three consecutive American League pennants and 10 straight postseason games.

If history is any indication, the Pirates may have the Reds right where they want them. In the 1925 and 1979 World Series, Pittsburgh trailed 3-1 and came back to win both.

Drabek, looking for his second complete game of the series, gave up a leadoff single in the ninth to Paul O'Neill, and Eric Davis followed with an infield single off the third base bag. Hal Morris sacrificed the runners to second and third and Patterson relieved.

The Pirates intentionally walked Chris Sabo to load the bases. Jeff Reed then hit into a 5-4-3 double play, started by Bobby Bonilla, to end the game.

Drabek, the loser in Game 2, got off to another shaky start when Barry Larkin led off Game 5 with a double. Larkin moved to third on Drabek's wild pickoff attempt and scored when Herm Winningham hit a sacrifice fly to right field.

During the regular season, the Reds were 39-13 when they scored in the first inning. But the Pirates did some damage of their own in the bottom of the first.

Tom Browning, the winner in Game 2, hit Jay Bell with a pitch and Andy Van Slyke tied the score with a one-out triple to right-center. After a walk to Bonilla, Barry Bonds, who is 3-for-17, hit a weak grounder to first allowing Van Slyke to score the go-head run.

Mid-semester grades soon to be released

By Eric Robison
Collegian Reporter

First-semester freshmen will be able to gauge their academic progress when they receive their mid-semester grades later this week.

The computer that creates the documents computed the grades over the weekend so students should get the reports on Thursday, said Don Foster, registrar.

"This system gives the student an indication if they are doing satisfactory in their classes. If they are not doing satisfactory work, reasons for poor performance such as not attending class, doing poorly on exams or not handing in assignments is listed next to the grade by the teacher," Foster said.

"The old system just gave a letter grade and didn't give a reason for such a performance. The new system seems to work much better," he said.

Mike Lynch, associate vice president to educational programs, said some students are doing better than they actually think.

"This program gives them an actual idea of how they are doing," Lynch said.

William Feyerharm, assistant dean of arts and sciences, said the program was designed to give feedback to the students.

"It will show them what their problems are in time so they can change the situation around before it's too late," Feyerharm said.

One copy of the report goes to the student at their Manhattan mailing address. The other copy goes to the student's adviser, which then goes on to academic assistance. At this point the adviser will call the student and can give them advice and where they can get further help.

"About one-fourth to one-half of the students will respond at this time if they feel their grades are slipping," Feyerharm said. "Incoming freshmen are the most vulnerable and this is formal feedback for them."

Lynch said some faculty members don't have a test by the end of the fifth week and can't grade the students.

"A lot of them are moving their tests up so they can give mid-semester reports," he said.

Foster said the process is long and the office is limited in that it is unable to cover all undergraduate students.

"We feel that the first semester is important to let the students know how well they are doing," Foster said.

Comedian uses music in act

Parents' Weekend performance should appeal to all ages

COLLEGIAN
Weekend Pick
"Jaz Kaner"
8 p.m. Friday
McCain Auditorium

By The Collegian Staff

Jaz Kaner describes himself as a "musical comedian with a passion for surfing."

Kaner will appear at 8 p.m. Friday in McCain Auditorium.

"Bone up on your MTV. There will be a test," Kaner said.

Originally from Hawaii, Kaner was first a funny musician — he played flute, piano, and then bass during the "disco scare" of the '70s.

"Now I'm a musical comedian," he said. "I didn't have to change the job description that way.

"I play the guitar in my routine," he said. "I do a lot of ad-lib and parodies, and many times it's related to music."

Union Program Council advisor Russ Perez said Kaner knows how to respond to an audience and bring it into his act.

"That's the sign of a good performer," Kaner said.

Kaner said he loves hecklers.

"The best are way in back and make no sense. The worst are in the front row and right before the punch line say something only I can hear," he said.

Kaner has appeared on television and in the movie "Ford Fairlane."

"I knew Andrew Dice Clay at the Comedy Store in L.A.," he said. "Hey, I was the star of the show."

Kaner was also an opening act for Rodney Dangerfield.

"I saw Dangerfield naked," he said. "Now that's scarier than night surfing or stand-up comedy."

UPC Eclectic Entertainment chose Kaner for Parents' Weekend because they thought that his act would appeal to all ages, said Raelyn Clark, Eclectic Entertainment chairwoman.

Performers are selected from the National Association for Campus Acts' showcase. There are regional and national showcases. The regional showcase selection committee had more than 175 acts apply for 65 slots.

"We see tapes and get publicity from agents," Clark said. "We also contact other universities where they may have performed for input about how well students liked the act."

Perez saw Kaner's act at the University of Northern Colorado.

"The students loved him at UNC," he said. "There were many requests for him back."

Tickets for Friday night's performance are $3.

1991 Royal Purple
may be purchased for $13
in Kedzie 103

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
ClassADS

Hunam Chinese Restaurant

KANSAS
for information on membership call:
JOY C. LOVIN
MEMBERSHIP REPRESENTATIVE
1-800-365-5222
EMERGENCY ROAD SERVICE

HUNAM
Restaurant & Lounge
Mini-Lunch Buffet
$4.50
11:30-2 M-F
Open 7 Days
We Deliver
1304 Westloop
539-8888 or 539-0888

Treat Yourself To A "Triple Whammy"!!
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY.
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Tower
Aggieville

Clara Wilson-Cook successfully defended her Ph. D. dissertation entitled: A Quantitative and Qualitative Investigation of the Persistence of a Select Group of Reinstated Students at a Four-Year Institution of Higher Education at 10am on Monday, October 8, 1990

Thurs.
No Cover
$2.50 Pitchers
The Ranch SALOON
Manhattan's Premiere Country Western Bar
3 miles east on Hwy 24
539-4989
Manhattan, KS

COUPONS TO CLIP

GOODSON AUTO TRIM
Headlining
Tonneau Covers
Boat Covers
Window Tinting
Convertible Tops
Vinyl Tops
Complete Auto, Truck & Boat Upholstery
201 Sarber Lane
(behind Wal-Mart)
Manhattan, Kansas 66502
Phone 776-7679 Res. 776-7614

IMPRESSIONS
Hair Design & Body Toning
$3 OFF HAIRCUT
$5 OFF PERM WAVE OR HAIR COLOR
Reserve your appointment today with Frank or Sally.
1129 Moro Aggieville
Expires: Oct. 31, 1990
537-1332

FIELDS OF FAIR
Wine Tasting Tours
Kansas Made Gifts
WINERY
Just 20 minutes east of Manhattan on I-70
Exit #333, Paxico, KS
(913) 636-5560

BALLOON BOUTIQUE
Let us custom make the perfect balloon creation for any occasion.
Choose from baskets and mugs with candy, stuffed animals, potpourri, popcorn, Classy Wrap gift in a balloon, and much, much more!
And don't forget the game this weekend. Bring your parents in and pick up some purple K-State balloons to take to the game.
401 N. 3rd
We Deliver
539-0106
M-F 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m.
Sat. 9 a.m.-3 p.m

Book Sale Today!
Farrell Library Lobby
Wednesday & Thursday
October 10–11 9 a.m. to 10 p.m.
Don't miss it! All kinds of books, most 50¢ to $2.
Free book for members of Friends of the Libraries. Join at the sale and claim your free book. Memberships begin at $5 students, $25 others.
Annual used book sale sponsored by Friends of the KSU Libraries. All proceeds are used to support library resources.

AKIN'S GIFT SHOP
Welcomes Parents!
•Tom Clark Gnomes•Spanglers Dragons (Reg. Price)
•Clowns •Fannykins
•Brass •Copper •Lace From Pella
•Storewide 10% OFF •All Frames 30% OFF
•Additional 5% OFF with coupon
2040 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7712
M-F 10-5:30, Sat. 10-5, Sun. 1-5

NEW! HARDBODIES GYM
STAIRMASTER FREE WEIGHTS
HACK SQUAT UNIVERSAL LEG PRESS LIFE CYCLE
SEATED CALF HOT TUB
1125 Laramie
Basement of Laramie Plaza
539-7095

ELECTRICAL AND COMPUTER ENGINEERING STUDENTS
Pre-Enrollment Advising
Begins Tuesday, Oct. 16
EECE Students should make an appointment NOW with Professor Hunt in Durland 261
Students who obtain pre-enrollment advising are given first priority in the department at the time of pre-enrollment.

Joyce's Hair Tamers
WARM & GENTLE PERM....$43 regular $48
QUANTUM PERM.....$35 regular $38
BIO-LAGE.....$40 regular $50
MEN'S PERMS.....$30
All perms include cut & style
Haircuts
Gals $12 Guys $8.50 Kids $6.50
All cuts include shampoo & style
2026 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Call: 539-TAME
JUNGLE TALK
Blush usually looks darker on the face than in the package, so choose a lighter tone.
Chemical-free permanent waves use vegetable proteins and other natural ingredients to curl the hair.
What's new in beauty? See us for old-fashioned skill and new ideas.

CPI photo finish
one hour photo
Save 50%
on color processing & 4x6 prints
Each picture is the best it can be or we reprint it free... now!
4x6 Color Prints
50% off
regular one-hour price
No limit on number of rolls discounted with this coupon. Print length varies with film size. C41 in lab process only, not combinable with other processing and print offers.
Coupon good through Nov. 10, 1990
10102003
11x14 Color Enlargements
$9.95 each
(reg. $13.49)
Free Custom Cropping! 11x14 enlargements from 35mm and 126 negatives only. No limit, not combinable with other enlargement offers.
Coupon good through Nov. 10, 1990
12502003
one hour services: photo finishing • enlargements • reprints • double prints
also available: wallet photos • instant color passport photos • video transfer • copies from prints • cameras and accessories • film
Manhattan Town Center
main entrance by food court

K-STATE'S GREEK COMMUNITY SUPPORTS RACIAL/ETHNIC HARMONY WEEK
LET'S JOIN HANDS AND WALK IN HARMONY

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
HUNAM EXPRESS
1116 MORO
537-0886
This coupon good for
Yu Shiang Shrimp $2.50
not good with any other special, promo, delivery.
Free Delivery with min. $9 order
Open 11 a.m.-1 a.m.
Expires 10/17/90

Hispanic cultures exhibit variety

Editor's note: This is the fourth installment in a week-long series focusing on Hispanic students at K-State.

By Erika Parker
Staff Reporter

The cultures of Hispanic countries are so diversified that it is difficult to describe them collectively. One common characteristic, however, is Catholicism.

"There is more variety (of religions) here (in the United States). There are so many churches and denominations, while in Costa Rica, the majority of the people are Catholic. Issues like abortion is not such a hot thing because everybody agrees," said Eduardo Arce-Diaz, graduate student in agricultural economics.

Fernando Garcia, graduate student in agronomy, is from Argentina. He said 95 percent of Argentineans are Catholic.

"But it doesn't mean that every Sunday everybody goes to church," Garcia said. Religion isn't as strong as in the United States, he said.

Other than religion, Hispanic cultures differ. Food, for instance, varies from region to region.

Many people incorrectly believe that all Hispanics eat spicy-hot spicy food as is common in Mexico, said Luis Montaner, fourth-year student in veterinary medicine. Montaner is from Puerto Rico.

Puerto Rico's agriculture is not based on corn as is Mexico's, Montaner said. It consists mostly of rice and beans, so Puerto Ricans don't eat tacos and burritos made from corn tortillas, he said.

The same is true in South America.

"I never heard of tacos before I came here. American people sometimes think everything south of the Rio Grande is Mexican," Garcia said.

Jose Calle, graduate student in agricultural engineering, said that the people of Peru often eat seafood because they are near the ocean. They also eat rice and potatoes and use more spices in cooking.

Attitudes toward work can also be diverse.

"Americans work harder. We have more fun," said Juan Monserrat, graduate student in engineering. Monserrat is from Spain.

Monserrat said the typical Spaniard works from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., eats with the family and takes a nap, and then works from 3 to 6 p.m. An average Spaniard also goes to bed later than the average American.

Mexican-Americans work harder than the average American, said Robert Soria, sophomore in electrical engineering. Soria is Mexican-American.

"One reason, I think, is because when our grandparents came (from Mexico), they had nothing. They had to work hard," he said.

In Costa Rica, society is not as business-oriented as it is in the United States, Arce-Diaz said. "There is more time for relationships and a personal life."

Monserrat also said that part of the importance of relaxing is spending time with the family.

"We don't like to eat in front of the television. We eat at the table, have coffee and talk. We like to talk a lot," he said.

He also said people live with their parents until they are married unless they are attending a distant university.

The Mexican-American family is also close, said Gabriel Hernandez,

■ See HISPANIC, Page 12A

If you need abortion or birth control services, we can help.
Confidential pregnancy testing•Safe, affordable abortion services•Birth control•Tubal ligation•Gyn exams•
Testing and Treatment for sexually transmitted diseases.
Providing quality health care to women since 1974.
Insurance, VISA & Mastercard accepted.
Comprehensive Health for Women
4401 West 109th (I-435 & Roe)
Overland Park, Kansas
For information and appointments (913) 345-1400
Toll Free 1-800-227-1918

GET YOUR CAR READY FOR FALL
LUBE, OIL (UP TO 5 QTS.), FILTER
MOST POPULAR BRANDS
$15.95
by appointment only
537-1201
1026 Poyntz
Parkside conoco & U-Haul

HOUSEPLANT SPECIALS!!!

Four ft. tall floor plant Easy to Grow!
Bamboo Palms
$14.99! Regular price $19.99
6" pot Devil's Ivy or Fern
Hanging Basket
$3.99!
Regular Price $4.99
Free! Care Data Sheet with every purchase!

Tabletop Plants
Group A 3" Pots → 59¢ or 2 for $1.00 !!!
Group B 4" Pots → Reg. $2.99 NOW ½ Price!
OPEN 9am - 8pm Mon - Sat, 9am - 6pm Sundays!!!
Eastside or Westside Market
East Hwy 24 by Super-8 or West K-18 by Holidome, Manhattan

BURGERS
BY THE BAG
4 Hamburgers
for $2.82
Served with ketchup, mustard, pickle, onion.
Cheese and bacon extra.
LIMITED TIME ONLY!
Vista DRIVE IN Vista EXPRESS
1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Village Plaza Shopping Center

BLUE RIVER PUB
TONIGHT!!
ELITE LADIES
FEMALE STRIPPERS
10-1AM
FRI., OCT. 12
SUITE CHEATER
THIS BAND'S HOT WITH A FEMALE LEAD.
OCT. 19-20
BIG RICHARD
ROCK -N-ROLL
18 TO ENTER 21 TO DRINK

GET THE EDGE
and get your Royal Purple portrait taken.
These groups are scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 11
◆ WEST HALL
◆ OFF CAMPUS
There is a $4 sitting fee. If you paid for it at registration, you must bring your Royal Purple receipt.
Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.
Location: K-State Union, Room 209
For an appointment or if you have questions
CALL 532-7808
1991 ROYAL PURPLE

Plum Tree Restaurant
Homestyle Buffet
All you can eat $5.75, Sunday 5-9 p.m.
Includes soup & salad bar
•Meat Loaf •Buttered Corn
•Roast Turkey & Dressing •Warm Blueberry Cobbler
•Mashed Potatoes & Gravy •Includes Soup & Salad Bar
Holiday Inn
530 Richards Drive Manhattan, Kansas 66502 (913) 539-5311

K-State Players & the Dept. of Speech present
PUMP BOYS & Dinettes
Conceived & written by: John Foley, Mark Hardwick, Debra Monk, Cass Morgan, John Schimmel, John Wann
Oct. 10-13, 16-20
"A nothin' but pure fun, country musical."
Nichols Theatre—8 p.m.
Matinee Oct. 13—2 p.m.
Tickets: McCain Box Office
532-6428
Sponsored by the Manhattan Town Center

PONTIAC ALL-STAR COMEDY CARAVAN

Marc Price
"Skippy" on Family Ties
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1990
8 P.M. MCCAIN AUDITORIUM
$4 admission
($1 donated to SADD for every ticket sold)
Tickets can be purchased at the McCain Auditorium Box Office or at the UPC Office on the third floor of the K-State Union.
k-state union special events
Stop by the PONTIAC EXCITEMENT CENTER in the Union Plaza (between the K-State Union and Seaton Hall) Thursday and Friday, October 18 & 19, 11 a.m. —3 p.m. and check out the latest PONTIAC cars. Win tickets, t-shirts, and enter sweepstakes for a chance to win a PONTIAC Sunbird Convertible. The PONTIAC EXCITEMENT CENTER will be in the Union Courtyard in the case of rain.
U.S. CONCEPTS INC.
PONTIAC. WE BUILD Excitement.
k-state union special events

Campus maintenance removes falling leaves

By Angie Schrock
Collegian Reporter

Leaves fall from the trees every year, and every year something has to be done with them.

Removing leaves is important for management of the grass and shrubs on campus and they are disposed of several ways, said Tom Lee, campus grounds maintenance manager.

Leaves, if left where they fall, will be compacted down by the weather and smother out grass and other plants, Lee said.

"The leaves don't break down and the top layer becomes like a seal and won't allow any oxygen or moisture into the ground," he said.

Grounds maintenance has several different ways to collect the leaves. Machines similar to lawnmowers are used which allow the leaves to be picked up without having to rake them into piles. The other option for collection of leaves is to rake them into piles by hand and use a large truck-mounted machine that acts like a vacuum cleaner.

"They just suck up the piles of leaves," Lee said.

Leaves are taken to a stone quarry in a pasture north of campus on University property.

The process of disposing of leaves is somewhat different for the department of housing, which is in charge of the grounds around residence halls, Jardine Terrace, and Davenport and Pittman buildings.

"We rake up the leaves, put them in bags and dispose of them at the dump by the landfill, or if there's not too many leaves we mulch them with a mower," said Jackie Toburen, department of housing grounds maintenance supervisor.

Collection of the leaves is a process which continues most of the winter.

"We will start picking up leaves probably around the end of this month or when the first killing frost brings them down. The other maintenance jobs fall off in the winter, so most of the crew is able to help," Lee said.

The leaves disposed of in the rock quarry are not used to create a compost but they could be, said Thomas Warner, director of the Forestry Department.

"The dead plant material in the rock quarry may be turned to promote rapid decay into a compost high in natural nutrition," Warner said.

This compost could then be used on campus for flower beds and other plants as a natural additive to the soil as long as grass clippings, leaves, limbs and only natural materials were included, Warner said.

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3 - 10 in. Pizzas
1 - Topping
4 - Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2 - 10 in. Pizzas
2 - Toppings
2 - Cokes
$8.00
Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

NEED A SUIT FOR A JOB INTERVIEW?

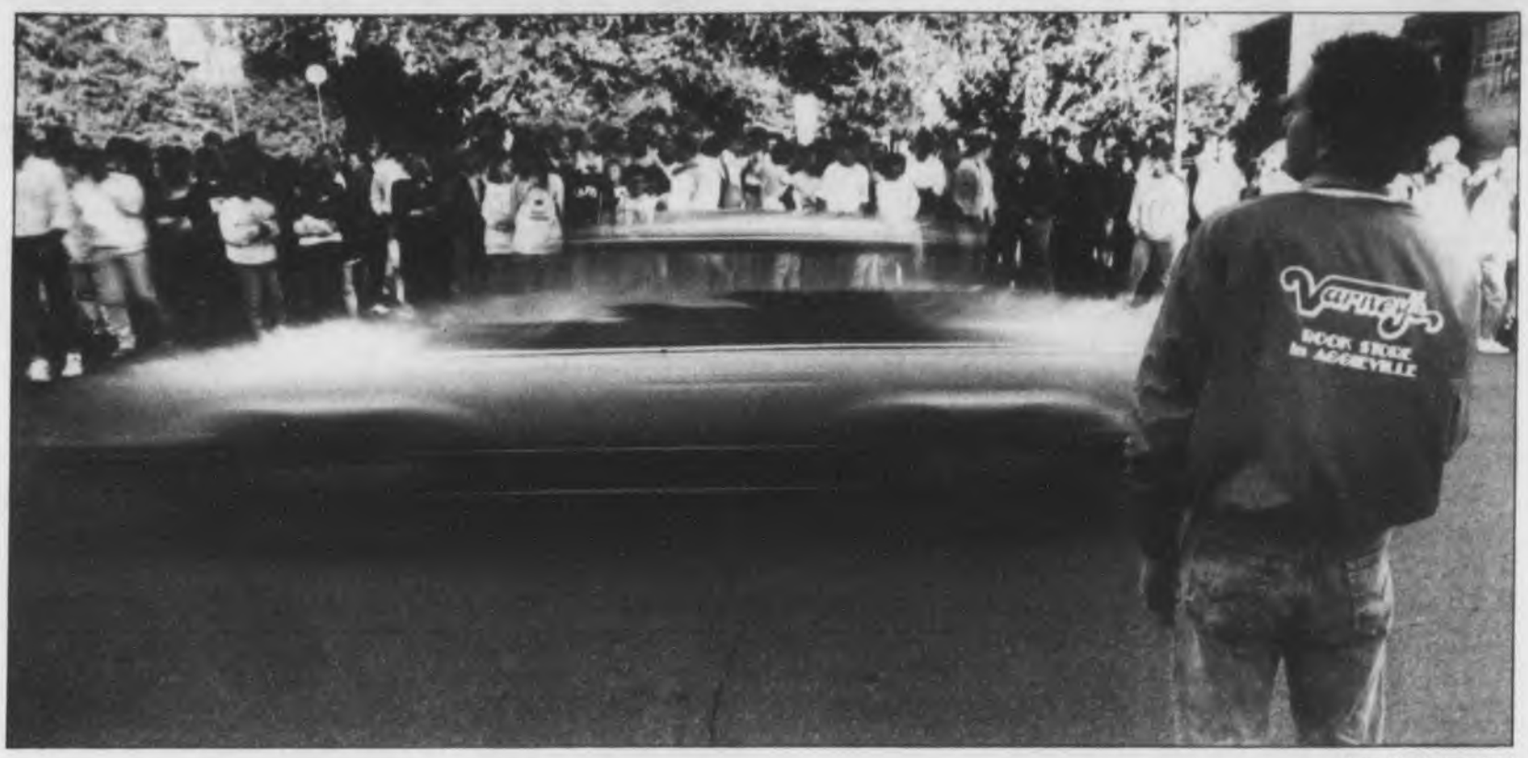
You can buy a suit from anybody. But we're not just anybody...and neither are YOU!
We offer suits in:
• A variety of appropriate solids, patterns and colors
• Pleated pants or plain
• Year-round weights
• 8" drop
plus
•Custom tailoring & alterations
and
•Persona! service including consultation on color and style that's best for you!
Locally Owned
Priced from $245
BORCK Brothers
Fine Menswear
1100 Westloop Place (913) 537-8636
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon.—Sat. til 8:30 Thurs.

COMPUTER LIQUIDATION SALE
6 MAC SE* $749
2-800K drives
1 megabyte of memory
*Requires Keyboard!
3 MAC II* $1999
40-megabyte Hard Disk
1 megabyte of memory
* Requires Monitor
Video Card
Keyboard
OFFER GOOD ONLY FOR K-STATE STUDENTS, FACULTY, AND STAFF
Available at the K-State Union Bookstore
Authorized Dealer
MacSource
The Best Support Team for the Apple Macintosh, Anywhere.
K-State Union Bookstore

Parents Day Concert
Men's Glee Club
Women's Glee Club
K-State Singers
Saturday, Oct. 13, 1990
8 p.m.
McCain Auditorium
Admission $5
Reserved seats 532-6428
or McCain Auditorium Box Office Noon to 5 p.m.

TACO BELL'S GUIDE TO
EXCELLENT EXTREMES
Lesson Number 4
Now A lot More for Less

Taco Salad
Bowl-shaped, fried flour tortilla shell you can eat, filled with refried pinto beans, fresh lettuce, seasoned ground beef, mild cheddar cheese, red ripe tomatoes, rich sour cream, black olive slices, garnished with green onion slices and served with a side of salsa.
TACO BELL
1155 Westport Road
ORIGINAL TACOS ONLY 59¢
AND OUR GREAT TASTING VALUE MENU YOUR CHOICE ONLY 59¢
You can enjoy our great tasting Tostadas, Bean Burritos, Pintos & Cheese or even Soft Shell Tacos.
TACO SALAD
$2.69
Offer expires 10/31/90
Please present coupon when ordering. Limit one coupon per party. Offer not good with any other discounts or offers. Offer good at Manhattan Taco Bell®.
TACO BELL
1/20 ¢ cash value ©1990 Taco Bell Corporation



VS.
Oklahoma State
Oct. 13
1:10 p.m.
(Parent's Day)
Tickets: 532-6920
Reserved Seats-$16
General Admission-$9
Children-$5
Sponsored by: Pepsi Cola

BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND
THRIFTY THURSDAY
PYRAMID PIZZA rolls back the prices
Only $3.49 for a small pizza (one topping)
(additional toppings are 75¢ each)

Carryout/Dine In Only
539-4888
12th & Moro
Aggieville, USA
COUPON
"THRIFTY THURSDAY"
$3.49 for a Small One-topping Pizza
Good Every Thursday
"We Pile It On!"
PYRAMID PIZZA

MEDICINE. . .The Trick Could Be On You.

THE GREAT MANHATTAN SWEEP OUT.
Your child. Explain the difference between using illegal drugs and taking medicines to get well. Get the child involved in following treatment right.
Don't let the trick be on you. . .On October 31, sweep out your old medicine and bring it to The Saint Mary Hospital between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. for proper disposal.
the saint mary hospital
Member CSJ Health System, Wichita
1823 College Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502 • (913) 776-3322
KMKF 101.7
KMAN 1350 am

Brian W. Kratzer/Staff

Bill Nelson, senior in political science and member of the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee, conducts the first roll call of 95 basketball season ticket camping groups Wednesday evening. Nelson stood on the west side of 17th Street while campers crossed when their group was called.

Basketball ticket campout starts

New rules, more roll calls to implement purchasing; students to have fun

By Paul Noel
Staff Reporter

The flag went up at 2:52 p.m. Wednesday, signaling the beginning of the basketball ticket campout.

Bill Nelson, senior in political science and chairman of the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee, said there have been some rule changes placed into effect this year that will make ticket purchasing more fair.

There will be no set place for any group until a lottery is held for positions in line Monday night, Nelson said. It was originally planned for Wednesday at 5 p.m., but the committee decided there was a need to have more roll calls to eliminate people who were signing up for more than one group.

Dave Foster, sophomore in milling science and Lambda Chi Alpha camper, said he thinks the lottery defeats the purpose of camping out.

Although Foster said he is not going to buy a basketball ticket, he is camping out to help his fraternity.

"I wouldn't do it if it wasn't for the good of the house," Foster said. "Tickets are so expensive it's almost not worth the money."

Shane Coyne, junior in political science and FarmHouse camper, said he does not think having a lottery for positions in line is a good idea.

"If there is going to be a lottery, we should just turn in our names and go home and wait until tickets go on sale," Coyne said. "I'd rather camp out, but having both just isn't a good idea."

■ See CAMP, Page 12A

Use of Wildcat Card account offers convenient bill-paying

By Shannon Meyers
Collegian Reporter

Students have the opportunity to use a type of credit card at the K-State Union without being billed later.

The Wildcat Card is a declining-balance account. Students can deposit money and then make purchases anywhere in the Union or at The Bakery in Derby Food Center.

"People do not have to worry about overdrawing their accounts because if the transaction is larger than their balance, the purchase will not be deducted," said Terri Wyrick, Vali-Dine clerk at the Union.

The Wildcat Card program, in use since 1988, can be used by any student, faculty or staff member. A minimum deposit of $5 can open an account.

"One benefit of the Wildcat Card is that it allows students to better budget their money for an entire semester," Wyrick said. "The program may eventually be campus-wide."

Manny Urquilla, freshman in finance, likes the freedom of the card.

"It is more convenient than carrying cash. I have already paid the money, so I don't have to worry about budgeting more," Urquilla said.

Although cardholders receive no financial statements, they can make inquiries about their balances or make deposits at the Union Wildcat Window. Deposits are credited to their account immediately.

"There are some delinquent accounts because we work in cooperation with the Financial Aid Office and allow students to use their cards until they receive their financial aid," Wyrick said.

One problem the Union has encountered is students trying to withdraw cash from their accounts. When people open new accounts, employees emphasize that cash withdrawals are not available, Wyrick said.

If cardholders lose their card, they can contact the Wildcat Operations Office and replace their card for $10. The cards are coded to prevent unauthorized people from using lost or stolen cards.

There are about 5,000 cardholders. The money they deposit is put into one over-all Union account and its interest is considered part of other non-divisional revenue that the Union account receives.

Accounts left during the summer remain open as long as they have a minimum $5 balance.

"Remaining balances are refunded in full during the last two weeks of the spring semester or when a student is graduating," Wyrick said.

Michael Hatch, computer/electronic coordinator, said, "The Wildcat Card's purpose is not to generate profits, it is to promote the use of Union Departments. The Wildcat Card is one part of the Vali-Dine System which supports housing meal plans and a door access program for three of the dormitories."

WOW — FOR $3, you can run 15 words for one day in the COLLEGIAN ClassAds.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
CLASS ADS
Kedzie 103 532-6555

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

GURDJIEFF OUFPENSKY, fourth way group forming. Meet Thursday, 7:30p.m., UFM, 1221 Thurston, Manhattan. Info, call 539-3361.

HEY— 5A.M. (members), Let's get together Oct. 19 and 20 for a great time, great contacts and a great start for your future. RSVP on Wednesday 17th and Thursday 18th at the Union info table.

K-STATE YOUNG Democrats will meet in Stateroom #3 at 8p.m. this evening. Get a free, "Wildcats for Slattery," T-shirt with payment of $5 dues.

RECORDS, CDS, Posters and more at University Inn this Saturday 10/13. Dealers from many states will be selling to the public one day only. $1 admission 10a.m.— 5p.m.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

TO JOB-SEARCH Candidates— Resume Building, The Workshop, is a must! Join us Oct. 16 at 2:30p.m., Union 208, or 7p.m., Denison 124. Career Planning and Placement Center.

HALLOWEEN HAS ARRIVED
AT
GREEN THUMB
SPOOKIE DECORATIONS
1105 Waters 539-4751

GLASS IMPRESSIONS
GREAT PARENT ENTERTAINMENT FOR THIS WEEKEND!
Etched, carved, stained glass and an imaginative collection of gifts.
Glass Impressions Open Sat. 10 - 4

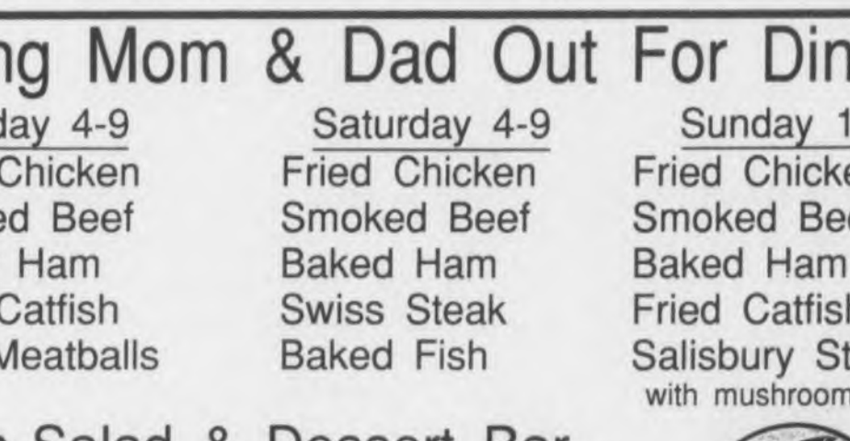
1128 Laramie - Aggieville
Mon. - Fri. 11-6 Sat. 10-4
539-4610

Don't Forget
99¢
Pitchers
Tonight
only at
Baystreet

(Continued on page 11)

From Roots to Wings

Parents' Weekend
Extended Hours
Shop at the K-State Union Bookstore
--Friday--
7:45 a.m. to 8 p.m.
--Saturday--
8 a.m. to 8 p.m.
--Sunday--
12 noon to 5 p.m.
To serve You better!
K-State Union Bookstore



Bring Mom & Dad Out For Dinner

Friday 4-9	Saturday 4-9	Sunday 11-2
Fried Chicken	Fried Chicken	Fried Chicken
Smoked Beef	Smoked Beef	Smoked Beef
Baked Ham	Baked Ham	Baked Ham
Fried Catfish	Swiss Steak	Fried Catfish
BBQ Meatballs	Baked Fish	Salisbury Steak with mushroom sauce

Plus Salad & Dessert Bar
All you can eat-$6.15
Lunch Buffet also available from 11-2
2 miles East of the Mall on Highway 24
Open 11-9 daily
539-1332
KEARBY'S Restaurant

DISPLAY UNIT OPEN
Now Available for
Spring Semester

Don't you deserve the Brittnay Ridge Lifestyle?
—Candlewood Drive—

4 Bedrooms, 2½ Baths
•All appliances (including washer, dryer and microwave)
•Gazebo with hot tub •Recreation area •Eliminate parking problems
•Pre-wired for computer, phone and cable TV
For more information
776-5599
DAN WEIR COMPANY DWC REAL ESTATE
2601 Anderson Manhattan, KS 66502
913/776-5599•Fax 913/776-3805

Who Else But Zenith Could Fit 386 Desktop PC Performance Into Your PC Budget?

ZENITH INNOVATES AGAIN™

Z-386 SX

From the world's number one family of PC compatibles* comes Zenith's Z-386 SX– for faster, more affordable 386 power!

If you're ready for 386 desktop performance, but your budget isn't, then Zenith Data Systems has just the answer– the Z-386 SX.

With the number-crunching power of the Intel386SX™ microprocessor, the Z-386 SX offers special cache memory to give you processing speeds faster than many conventional 386 desktop PCs.

And yet, its SX architecture makes the Z-386 SX about as affordable as a 286 desktop. So you can run high-performance 386 software for advanced financial, scientific and engineering applications…without the 386 price.

Zenith's Z-386 SX also lets you take advantage of thousands of industry standard peripherals…as well as such advanced operating environments as MS OS/2.® It even comes standard with MS-DOS 3.3 Plus® and a VGA video card. And all hard drive models include Microsoft® Windows/386.

So if you've always wanted 386 desktop performance–but at a 286 desktop price–get Zenith's innovative Z-386 SX today!

ZENITH data systems
Groupe Bull

For 386 Desktop Performance On A 286 Desktop Budget, Get Zenith's Z-386 SX Today At:
The computer area, upper level of the K-State Union Bookstore or call 532-6583.
Support the K-State Union. Your dollars help the K-State Union sponsor student activities, programs and services
K-State Union Bookstore

Graphics simulate Microsoft® Windows, a product and trademark of Microsoft Corporation. MS-DOS 3.3 Plus and MS OS/2 are registered trademarks of Microsoft Corporation.
*Source: Dataquest
© 1989, Zenith Data Systems

(Continued from page 10)

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

Hardee's
DELIVERS
537-2526

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial. Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

2 Apartments—Furnished

ONE-BEDROOM IN a west side complex, gas, heat, $295. No pets. 776-3804.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

AVAILABLE NOW. One-bedroom near campus, $325, year lease, no pets, laundry facilities, central air. Call for appointment 776-3804.

ONE-BEDROOM CARPETED, available Oct. 1, central air, $270 plus utilities and trash. 776-6166.

ONE-BEDROOM IN a complex near campus. New carpet, gas, heat, $325. No pets. 776-3804.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

5 Automobile for Sale

1970 PONTIAC Bonneville 455, good tires, runs well, 86,000 miles. Call 539-1845.

1971 CAMARO, power steering, air conditioning, good heater, runs good, $400. 537-4369.

1973 VW SuperBeetle, new engine, new carpet. 776-7938 please leave message.

1974 OLDS Delta 88 conv red, good shape, new top, new tires, runs good. Good deal. 537-8857.

1978 280Z parts car. $400. 537-1539.

1978 JEEP CJ5 307 cubic inch, soft top. 1-348-5893.

1979 IH Scout 2, mechanically sound, body has rust. 776-3757 after 6p.m.

1981 COLONY Park station wagon, great car, power steering, power brakes, power windows, AM/FM cassette stereo, $700 or best offer. Call 539-8256.

1981 PLYMOUTH Horizon, low mileage, 54,545, good condition. $1,800 negotiable. Melville 532-7212 after 9:45a.m. or 537-4420.

1982 BEAUTIFUL black Toyota Supra, 53,000 miles, loaded, good condition. Call Jill, 539-5192.

1982 DODGE Challenger, air conditioning, automatic, AM/FM, 66,000 miles, $2,500. 537-9434.

1985 PLYMOUTH Horizon, four-speed, $2,400 negotiable, very good condition. 539-1902.

HURRICANE II Aluminum Mag wheels, for Chevy, like new, $200. 776-0043.

7 Computers

HAVING PROBLEMS with your computer or printer? Need to upgrade your systems memory, monitor or just a larger hard drive? Need a second party book on a certain program? ABACUS Computer and Supply, 539-7007, 1111 Waters.

HEWLETT PACKARD 16C, good condition, programming, $65. Call 539-5515.

HEWLETT PACKARD 41CV with Advantage and Math Pac, all manuals, $70. Call 539-5515.

MACINTOSH COMPUTER and ImageWriter printer. 128K. 537-9479 after 5p.m.

8 Employment

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ATTENTION: EXCELLENT income for home assembly work. (504)646-1700. Dept. P6438.

BARTENDER (FEMALE preferred) Nifti's Lounge. Begin immediately. 776-4771. 4 to 7p.m.

CUT EDUCATION costs. Family needs college girl to live in this semester and next. Free room and food exchanged for duties. Respond Collegian Box 1.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

FREE SPRING Break vacation in Cancun! College Tours, the nation's largest and most successful spring break tour operator needs enthusiastic campus representatives. Earn a free trip and cash. Nothing to buy— We provide everything you need. Call 1-800-395-4896 for more information.

$$ HUNDREDS Weekly $$ (P/T) Completing MIP Refund Policies U.S. Government Program. Call 1-713-292-9131, 24-hour recorded message. Please have pen ready.

IF YOU are free 11a.m.— 2p.m. Monday— Friday and want to earn extra money, pick up an application to join our crew. Long John Silver's.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. Federal, CIA, U.S. Customs, D.E.A., etc. Now hiring. Listings. 1(805)687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

LIBERAL RELIGIOUS group seeks part-time office coordinator, organized, good with people, 20 hours per month, $7.50 per hour. Send resume to Unitarian Universalist Fellowship, P.O. Box 910, Manhattan, Kansas 66502. Questions, call 539-5248.

MODELS NEEDED for local advertising agency. No experience necessary. Earn extra cash. Males and females respond with resume and photo to Box 4, Collegian.

OVERSEAS JOBS. $900— $2,000/ month. Summer, year-round. All countries. All fields. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KSo2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

STUDENT TO enclose garage wall and install overhead garage door. Send qualifications to: Box 3, Collegian.

TWO NANNIES needed by Jan. 1 for two families in Brewster N.Y. Must drive, swim. Non-smoker preferred. One year commitment. Excellent living conditions plus salaries. (914)279-5963.

WARM NON-SMOKING nanny wanted in White Plains, NY for two kids, 5 and 2, starting December. Excellent live-in conditions, driver's license and experience required. (914)725-3904.

WELL-ESTABLISHED LOCAL business for sale. Excellent opportunity! After 6p.m. (719)576-6789.

9 Food Specials

Bobby J's
Thursdays
Booga Booga Night
Any Burger and Fries Only
$1.99 + drink specials for the ladies
16 oz. Mason Jar of draft $1.25
539-1571

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

A HIDE-A-BED sofa, double size chest of drawers, $50 both. 776-3589.

BED FOR sale: Full-size mattress, box spring, frame with wheels. $65. 532-2094 evenings. Kirk.

SEVEN PIECE living room set, $300 or best offer. 537-7110.

THREE-PIECE FULL-SIZE bedroom set, bookcase headboard. 539-1586. $300 or offer.

WHIRLPOOL PORTABLE dishwasher. Six months old. $300. Carla 537-7560.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: BLUE and white HCCC stuco embroidered jacket. Claim Dept. of Animal Science, Call Hall 139.

FOUND: FEMALE cat at 12th and Kearney. 776-5217.

FOUND: FLOPPY disk outside Kedzie Hall on morning of Oct. 10. Come by 8a.m. to 5p.m. to claim in Kedzie 103, Student Publications Inc.

LOST: PINK binder in Umberger Hall, Friday, Oct. 5. Please call 539-3605 if found.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

14x56, TWO-BEDROOM, appliances, nice condition, good location, #24 Green Valley Trailer Court. $5,200. 776-4500, 776-1342.

1973 FLAMINGO 14x70, two-bedroom. Cute kitchen, real cabinets, new bedrooms, wood floor, low utilities. $8,000. 537-4369.

OWN THIS 12' wid, two-bedroom, $135 monthly for 24 months. Large selection. Countryside. 539-2325.

19 Music/ Musicians

BANJO— OLD (1915) five-string with a nice tone. Two free lessons included. $250 or best offer. Leave message for David, 539-4395.

All Crate Products
25% off
Hayes House of Music
327 Poyntz 776-7983

21 Personals

CHICAGO GET ready for BJ and Graceful and Spunky, look out Denise, here comes Chunky But Funky. Muchas Gracias for making the trip possible. Halo.

HEY HEY, Rucker, UR 21, Let's go out and have some fun. Come Saturday we'll head to Otts, I'll have a Coke while you line up the shots. Love— Spot.

HEY, KATY— I had to tell everyone that I've got the best dot ever! —Love, Joni.

JENNIFER F.— What an awesome dot you are! Our family is lucky to have you and so am I! Love, Mom.

JENNIFER P.— To a very special girl who holds a very special place in my heart. Love— Candy.

KEL 2.5 has been real fine, so Sunday night let's wine and dine. Prepare yourself 'cause this man's ready, bring your toothbrush and your teddy. PES.

KERRY T.— Razerbacks R good, Wildcats R better. Hope U enjoy this personal letter. Pig Sooey. Love, Mom.

KRISTI W.— Ever since Pref night I have wanted this wish that has finally come true— Love your mom— Greta.

LAMBDA CHIS and Tri Delts: Bet you can't drink us out of Longnecks this Thursday. We dare you. Charlie's Neighborhood Bar.

LITTLE KRISTEN Pi Phi— I am so excited! You are the cutest dot ever... and you're mine! Love, Becky.

MARLATT STAFF— Good Morning! Love, West Staff.

NELSON'S NUT, Alana— Good times are now and forever— your mommy loves you! —Julee.

PI PHI Alicia— #1 Dot! Your mom loves you! Love— Kristi.

PI PHI Amy G., I'm so glad that you're my mess. 'Cause your mom thinks you're the Best! Luv, Monica.

PI PHI ANN H.— Just wanted to tell ya you're an awesome dot! Love, Mom.

PI PHI Ashley— I've wanted you for my daughter from the start! You're the best! Erika.

Pi Phi Carol,
Sweetie, you're a great friend
and now you're my dot too.
Remember when you need a hug
Your mom's there for you!
Welcome to the family.
Love, Mom Gari-Ann

PI PHI Carrie R.— Roses are Red, Violets are Blue. Quick, let's find some food! Welcome to the Family! Love, Angela.

PI PHI Cathy P.— Get excited! We're going to have lots of fun in the years to come! Love, Mom.

Pi Phi Christine L.-
The yarn was wound around & around
At the end it was me you found.
They say we look alike a lot,
But of course we do-We're Mom & Dot.
Love, Mom Holly

PI PHI Christine S.— I'm so happy that you're my pledge dot. You are a very special girl. Remember that I'm always here for you. Love in Pi Phi, Mom.

PI PHI Gretchen— What more could a mom want, but a wonderful dot like you! Love, mom.

PI PHI Gwen— I'm so excited to have you as my dot. We have so much to look forward to! Love, Kim.

PI PHI Heather, My favorite dot you will be now that you're part of my family tree. Love, Mom.

PI PHI Janell— You're finally my lil' dot! Cheers to the best mom/ dot team ever— get ready for tons of fun and memories. I Love You, Bridget.

PI PHI Jenny, I'm sooo thrilled to have you as my dot! Good times ahead, and many memories to make. Angel Love, Dana.

PI PHI Jenny C.— I've waited so long to be your man. Now that you're mine, life is sublime. Aren't you glad that I can rhyme? I Luv U —Mom.

PI PHI Katy O.— Pledge morning's over and now you'll see, you have a home on our family tree! Your mom and grandmas love you lots— simply because you're our own special "dot!!" Welcome to the family! Pi Phi Love and Mine— Mom.

PI PHI Kelly— Hey, Buseman! Glad to have you as part of the family. I'm very excited to have you as my dot. I knew all along! Many fun times ahead. Love, your mommy, Karyn.

PI PHI Keri— I can finally relax, the truth is out. We're mom and dot— the best no doubt! Lots of love, Stephanie.

PI PHI Kim W.— I'm a lucky mom! Excited to have you in the family! Kim.

PI PHI Kristine— Welcome to your new family. I love you, my pledge daughter! —Gina.

PI PHI Leah— I'm so excited you're my dot. Fun times will never stop. Luv, Denise.

PI PHI Lisa— You and I will have such fun, as mom and dot we're #1. Congratulations and welcome to the family. Luv, Cathie.

PI PHI Meganne— Welcome to the family. I'm excited that you're my dot! Love, Mom.

PI PHI Melissa— I'm so excited you're my dot. The memories we'll soon share will be quite a lot.

PI PHI Nicole— I wear a smile for you today. My dot, my friend, forever to stay. With you and I and our Pi Phi. Our bond together will never die. Love, Mary.

PI PHIS Amy and Nicole, We're so excited to have our dots. You're the best and we love you lots! Love, Cindy and Anne.

PI PHI Shelley B., What can I say? We're an awesome team! Pi Phi Love— Mom.

PI PHI Shelly H.— It was a surprise to you, but not to me, when yesterday you became part of the family. I hope it was worth the wait, because as mom and dot we'll be great. Love, Heather.

PI PHI Stacy S.— I'm so glad you're my dot. Welcome to our Pi Phi family! Love, Mom Jen.

PI PHI Stacey S.— To my awesome new dot, you are such a studette! This year will be great, one you'll never forget!! Luv ya, AG.

PI PHI Stephanie. You're the best little daughter anybody could ever have! Love, Mommy.

Pi Phi Susan- Through the halls of Wine and blue, wound yarn connecting us two, at the doorway was the final clue, DOT - you have so much ahead of you! Love-Mom Tricia G.

PI PHI Tammy— Roses are red, Violets are blue, Our family is complete 'cuz we have you! Love, Mom.

PI PHI Trista— Aren't you glad I never told you? I'm so glad you're my daughter! Welcome to the family! Love, Mom.

PI PHI Wendy— Last night you turned and twist and got in a tangle. But now 'Lil Pi Phi angel. As mom and dot the fun will be double. Together we'll make lots of trouble. Love, Kristi.

POOKIE— HAPPY Thursday. Thanks for all you do. I Love You! Punkin.

SENORITA SHARILYN, Hola hija. Como estas mi pequena chica? Estoy muy contenta esta te es mi hija. Hablamos mucho espanol, verdad? Pero, mucho amour en alguna langua. Quierdo, madre.

STANLEY— OUR special day is near at hand. The time spent waiting I can hardly stand. The last six months you've made my heart aglow, and how much I love you, I want you to know. —Your Only Sunshine.

THANKS FOR the "recipe for the warm fuzzy." Your thoughtfulness touched me. Please identify yourself!

THERE IS a circulation librarian named Cliff, Whose bilingual ability is terrif. He says, "Hey, amigo, you're late with your libro," And then he flies into a tiff.

23 Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— We do more than just type your resume. We create the resume with you, so it reflects your best -- then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for private appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience working in University Career Center.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851. Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING, CALL Leslie 539-1235.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100 or 1-456-9642, Wamego.

WORDPROCESSING/ TYPING— Data sheets, reports, theses, dissertations, letters, resumes, applications, etc. Mrs. Burden, 539-1204.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: Woodway Apartments, own room, $175/ month plus one-third utilities. 537-4966.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: $142.50/ month plus utilities. Park Place Apartments. Call 537-0509 after 7p.m.

ROOMMATES TO share three-bedroom house, near campus. Partially furnished. 776-3078.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Female, three-bedroom house. 537-0631.

WANTED: OLDER male student to share two-bedroom mobile home. $250/ month— all utilities. Available 1 Nov. 776-1769.

WANTED ROOMMATE, 1005 Laramie, $120 per month, utilities paid. Call 539-2017 after 5p.m., ask for Jim.

27 Sports/Recreation Equipment

TWO NAUTILUS Health Club memberships for sale cheap! Call Cliff at 1-437-3744 evenings.

28 Sublease

AVAILABLE SPRING semester. Half block from Justin Hall, partially furnished, one-bedroom apartment. Very low utilities. 776-7734.

TWO FEMALE roommates wanted to sublease furnished apartment during spring semester, $125/ month. 776-2076.

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

UNUSUAL ANTIQUES for sale: Baby stroller with metal frame, canvas cover, two large and two small wheels, $75; portable Phonola phonograph in wooden case, $50. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m. If no answer, leave message.

33 Tutor

VERY QUALIFIED tutor for Spanish. Affordable rates. Call Leticia 539-6832 after 9p.m.

34 Horses

DRESSAGE LESSONS— Training through 3rd level, beginners welcome too. School horses available. 537-4608 leave message.

Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

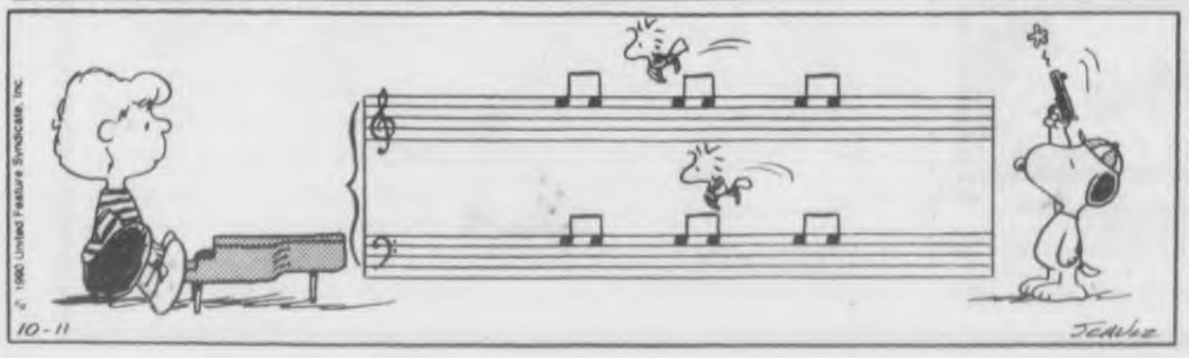
By Bob Berry

Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind

Jim's Journal

By Jim



Calvin and Hobbes

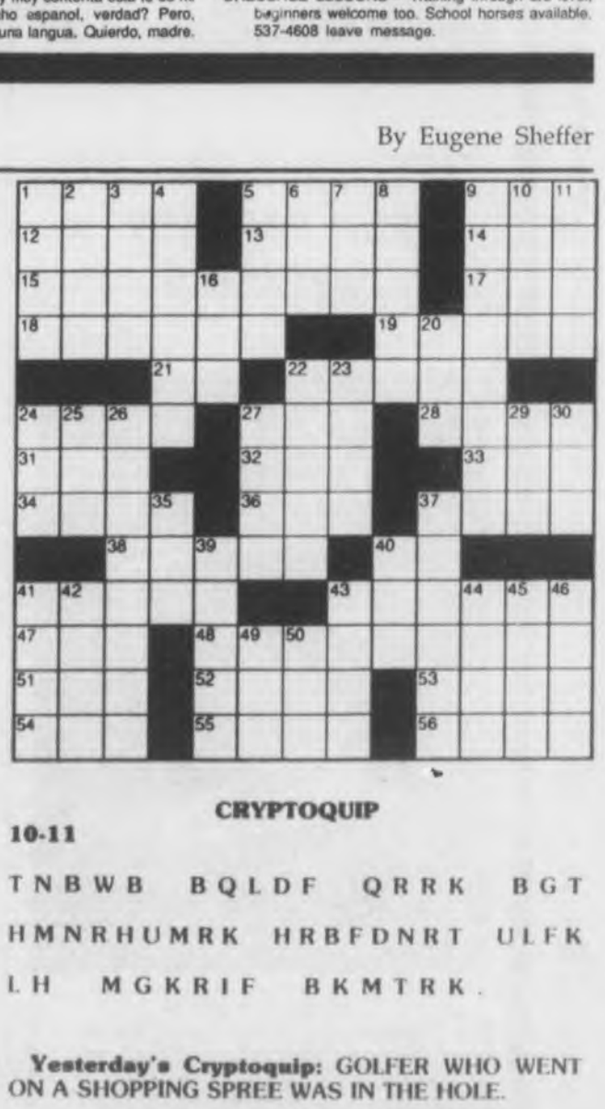
By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 "West Side Story" group
5 Bundle
9 "Great Expectations" lad
12 Livy's love
13 Enthusiasm
14 Frozen
15 Card game
17 Neither's mate
18 Props for Ferrante and Teicher
19 Playing 15 Across?
21 Young ballplayer?
22 Doc
24 Ness or Lomond
27 Male swan
28 Marlo's man
31 Rower
32 Nave
33 Card game
34 Omit
36 "— Impossible"
37 Say it isn't so
38 Cookie quantity
40 Rocky Balboa's remark
41 He has a charmed life
43 Seasonal part-timers
47 Lingerie item
48 Card game
51 Future fowl
52 Actress Albright
53 Do what you're told
54 Catcher's place?
55 Pre-diploma
56 Undraped hurdle

DOWN
1 Breathe with effort
2 Mine, in Marseilles
3 Lopez's theme
4 Seuss' Scrooge
5 Carrots' mates
6 Clay, today
7 Gridlock component
8 Work dough
9 Card game
10 Emblem
11 Combustible heap
16 Ball or doll
20 Backtalk
22 Backtalk
23 Wanes
24 — Angeles
25 Former acorn
26 Card game
27 Fashionable
29 Charged bit
30 Powell costar
35 Stat for Hale Irwin
37 Castle's inner tower
39 Ping-Pong need
40 Chatter away
41 Trucker with a radio
42 Ancient revelry
43 Con job
44 Verboten
45 Scored a 100
46 Terrier type
49 Bagel topping
50 Carte lead-in

Solution time: 22 mins.

P	A	A	R		G	E	M		S	T	E	T
A	C	N	E		O	R	A		L	A	S	H
S	H	O	P	W	O	R	N		A	L	T	O
S	E	A	L	E	D		T	A	N	K	E	R
			Y	A	M		A	I	T	S
B	I	B		K	A	F		L	E	H	A	R
A	R	A	B		N	O	D		D	O	L	E
R	A	K	E	S		B	I	S		P	A	D
		E	S	S	E		S	O	U
B	A	S	T	E	D		P	U	R	G	E	S
E	C	H	O		S	H	O	P	G	I	R	L
G	R	O	W		E	O	S		E	D	I	E
S	E	P	S		L	E	E		S	E	E	D

Yesterday's answer 10-11

CRYPTOQUIP

10-11

T N B W B B Q L D F Q R R K B G T H M N R H U M R K H R B F D N R T U L F K L H M G K R I F B K M T R K .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: GOLFER WHO WENT ON A SHOPPING SPREE WAS IN THE HOLE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: H equals F

Royals

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6A

"I can't stand here today and say specifically we're going to do this, that or the other," Robinson said. "That would be folly. But in general, I think we probably have some ideas of things that might make us a better ball club in 1991."

Burke, who ran the club until Schuerholz was eased into the top spot in the early 1980s, said he would be more involved with day-to-day operations.

Treiber

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6A

Even though it may seem Treiber has accomplished goals that some collegiate runners may only dream about, she believes there is more she can give to K-State and herself in her final two years of competition.

"It feels a little strange that I am a junior. In cross country, I don't feel like I have accomplished anything as far as my goals," Treiber said. "I feel I am going to have to do a lot of stuff in these next two years. I have just done mediocre things, and my goals are a lot higher than that."

"I am glad that she wants to do better, and in my opinion, that is the only way you can get better," Capriotti said. "She sees herself being a lot better, and I think that is one of her strengths. Because of that, I think that she is going to be very successful in the future."

Treiber has also been thrust into a new position on the team this season. She and Haskin have become the leaders of the squad after the losses of Barry, Becky Ives and Marge Eddy.

"It feels really strange to me because in a way I still feel like I am new here," Treiber said. "It's strange seeing other girls that are looking at us for leadership. I try to not get down and do things a little different at practice."

Hispanic

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8A

sophomore in electrical engineering. Soria is Mexican-American.

"One reason, I think, is because when our grandparents came (from Mexico), they had nothing. They had to work hard," he said.

In Costa Rica, society is not as business-oriented as it is in the United States, Arce-Diaz said. "There is more time for relationships and a personal life."

Monserrat also said that part of the importance of relaxing is spending time with the family.

"We don't like to eat in front of the television. We eat at the table, have coffee and talk. We like to talk a lot," he said.

He also said people live with their parents until they are married unless they are attending a distant university.

The Mexican-American family is also close, said Gabriel Hernandez, sophomore in electrical engineering. Hernandez is Mexican-American.

The Catholic religion is probably why the family sticks together so closely, Hernandez said.

The same is true in Peru, Calle said.

"The family is closer. Parents try to keep the family members with them longer — even the married ones," Calle said.

Peruvians are less independent because of this, he said.

Hispanics also tend to be more expressive, said Andrew Cordero, director of minority engineering programs.

For instance, music is always lively and loud, he said.

"I find myself often times more open than my friends who are not from the Hispanic culture," he said. "There's a degree of expression and enthusiasm I think we as a culture tend to have more of on a regular basis," Cordero said.

Montaner also said that he is more open than his non-Hispanic friends. He may greet his Hispanic friends with a kiss on the cheek.

"We hug a lot more. I'm more open about my emotions," he said.

Uzziel Pecina, senior in Spanish, emphasized that the Hispanic cultures are all different.

"American Indian nations don't consider themselves the same. Hispanics come from different countries. We speak the same language, but we're all different," he said.

Gay

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1A

She said she received a significantly lower grade on a paper that was to be a reflection of who you are. The paper began with the four words, "I am a lesbian." She considers this to have been discriminatory because she consistently received high grades on other assignments.

Outside pressure and disapproval affect a gay person's view of self and can determine that person's goals and expectations in life, according to diversity campaign literature.

Lydia said that all people need to consider that the world in which gay men and lesbians live is the world in which the ROTC anti-gay policy is allowed.

"Consider that the larger society is not very kind to gay women and men, and then consider that the college community does not operate in a vacuum," Davis said.

"Somedays, I walk on campus and I feel I have a neon sign across my forehead reading, 'I am gay,'" said a gay male student.

"But I don't allow the society's disapproval of my sexual preference to limit my self-esteem, life goals or relationships," he said.

Camp

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10A

Liz Lampe, sophomore in pre-law and Purple Passion camper, an independent group, said she likes the idea of the lottery because it assures that there are no repeat groups.

Nelson said there are between 90 and 100 groups signed up to camp out. But there are still a few repeat groups left, he said.

The lottery also makes it more fair for people who live further away from campus, he said.

"There are a lot people that hang around Ahearn that wait for the flag to go up," he said.

Nelson said campers can lose their advantage of camping out if they do not follow the rules.

"Officials will have the power to throw groups out of line if they don't have their trash picked up at roll call or if members of a group are being unruly," he said.

The rules have been put into effect to keep the campout fair, safe and fun, he said.

Coyne said this is his third campout and said he looks forward to them every year.

"I enjoy the atmosphere of the campout, it's a chance to get away from the daily routine," he said.

Jail

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5A

to carry out criminal investigations, according to a press release from the Riley County Commissioners.

"It is not an emergency situation, but we can't wait forever," Jepsen said. "We need a jail and law-administration offices.

Farinelli said she feels the intense public interest in the jail issue forced the commissioners to re-evaluate their plans.

The issue is not as urgent as the commissioners originally implied, Farinelli said.

Larry Dixon, facility specialist with the Kansas Department of Corrections, inspected the jail on July 19. According to the summary of the jail inspection report, the facility is not in serious need of replacement. The report listed the jail's recommended capacity at 21 and the number of incarcerated persons at 15.

Another report done by Voorhis Associates in April of 1988 showed that more than 60 percent of all persons booked at the jail are released within four hours and that more than 80 percent are released within 48 hours.

The number of inmates, however, has increased since last year, according to Dixon's report.

One alternative is combining the Riley County jail with Pottawatomie and Geary county facilities into one regional facility.

Dan Harden, county engineer, said that this idea has been discussed but that he is not working on any plans now.

Books

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3A

professor of anatomy and physiology and president of Friends of KSU Libraries. "They could make great Christmas gifts. Plus, it is a good way to show support for the library as well as yourself."

Cash said the book sale is the nucleus for all of the library's fund-raising events, and that fund raising would be impossible without it.

Membership in the Friends of the KSU Libraries costs $5 for students and $25 for non-students.

"The benefits received for being a member is that you get to choose a free book from the general sale table," Daly said. "But, you also get to benefit the library by helping to build programs of interest for people and support for the library."

Wreck

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3A

said a hospital spokeswoman. The other two victims were treated and released from Memorial Hospital.

Three other vehicles were involved in a rear end collision as they came upon a traffic jam caused by the accident.

"Traffic came to a complete stop for about five minutes as a result of the accident," Riat said. "Traffic was backed up at least to K mart."

"I started trying to get traffic through when there was another accident involving three cars," Riat said. An ambulance was not called.

Racial/ Ethnic Harmony Week
October 8-12, 1990

• Thursday • Thursday • Thursday • Thursday • Thursday • Thursday •

5:30 p.m. "Role of Religion in Politics and Policy Making" Dinner & Interfaith Panel, Union Staterooms 1 & 2

7:30 p.m. "Interfaith Theological Panel: Christian, Jewish, Islamic," Little Theatre

• Friday • Friday • Friday • Friday • Friday • Friday • Friday • Friday •

10:30 a.m. "Achieving Racial/Ethnic Harmony: What are our Prospects?," Keynote Address by Julian Earls, Director of the Office of Health Services at the NASA Lewis Research Center, Forum Hall

Noon Luncheon with Julian Earls NASA Lewis Research Center, Cottonwood Room. For reservations call: 532-6436.

MIDNIGHT MADNESS

Cats

Sunday October 14, 1990 11 p.m.

—Schedule—
11:00 p.m.—Doors Open
11:15 p.m.—K-State Student Slam Dunk Contest
11:30 p.m.—K-State Student Dash for Cash
12:01 a.m.—Cats Take The Floor

A $1 donation will go to the United Way and the K-State Library Fund.

United Way

KQLA 104

UPC Arts Lectures Movies Outdoors Performances Travel

ALL ABOARD WITH UPC

TAKE YOUR PARENTS FOR PARENTS' WEEKEND!

Friday, October 12
8 p.m. McCain Auditorium Ticket price $3
K-State Union UPC Schools Entertainment

BIRD ON A WIRE
k-state union upc feature films
October 12, 13 & 14

Mel Gibson and Goldie Hawn light up the screen in this action packed romantic comedy from John Badham, the director of "Stakeout" and "Wargames." Gibson is a former government witness hiding from the mob whose romance with old flame Goldie Hawn is reignited when she accidentally meets him, exposing his identity and plunging them into a cross-country run for their lives. Rate PG-13 (110 min.)
FRIDAY and SATURDAY, Oct. 12 & 13, 7 & 9:30 p.m. and SUNDAY, Oct. 14, 7 p.m., Forum Hall. $1.75 with KSU ID.

THINK SNOW!
$252/$290 With Ski Rental
Trip Includes:
*5 Nights Lodging
*4 Days Steamboat Lift Tickets
*College Party Pak:
*Nuts and Bolts Party
*His or Her Gift Pack
*Daily Schedule of Events
HURRY AND SIGN UP!

k-state union upc travel

Sexy, bawdy, and at times raunchy, Spike Lee's first film is freewheeling and electric, an exuberant collage of staccato montages, still frames, and confidential asides to the camera. At the center of the vortex is the film's most impressive creation: Nola Darling. A free-spirited woman who shares her bed with three men-Nola is too independent to fall for the vanities of male behavior.
THURSDAY, Oct. 11, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre and 7 p.m., Forum Hall and FRIDAY, Oct. 12, 7 p.m. Little Theatre. $1.75 with KSU ID.

WORK YOUR BRAIN!

INFORMATION MEETING:
Thursday, October 11, 7 p.m. Union 208

SIGN-UP:
8 a.m. Friday, Oct. 12
4 p.m. Friday, Oct. 19

THIS AINT JEOPARDY MAN.

COLLEGE BOWL II

k-state union upc arts

ART GALLERY
k-state union upc arts

EXPAND YOUR MIND AND SEE SOME ART!
This week visit the ART GALLERY and view "Lillies and Ladies" exhibit. Also take a look at student work from Promotions and Marketing on the SECOND FLOOR SHOWCASE.

Operation Turkey starts drive

Project to benefit hungry in community by raising funds, food

By Stacey Harbison
Collegian Reporter

Thanksgiving gifts are coming early this year as Operation Turkey, a greek service project to raise funds and food to help the hungry in the community, kicked off Monday.

The food collection drive sponsored by the Greek honorary, Order of Omega, benefits the Flint Hills Bread Basket.

"We look forward to their assistance because the funds that they raise benefit low-income families," said Atina Hanna, Flint Hills Bread Basket executive director.

Hanna said they take the food and store it, then make baskets for about 700 families in Manhattan and Riley County.

Martha Kropf, special projects coordinator for Order of Omega, said, "We're doing this because we believe that no one should be hungry."

The week-long event started Monday with 18 Greek houses missing a meal.

Thirteen houses, divided into teams of four, got together Tuesday to decide on their course of action to collect food from the community.

Everyone was asked to bring a can of food to chapter on Wednesday, and today the teams are going around the community and asking for food donations.

Friday, Order of Omega will be at the Flint Hills Bread Basket from 3 to 5 p.m. collecting all the food the participating fraternities and sororities collected throughout the week.

The team that collects the most food will receive an award, Kropf said.

She said they want the community to participate as much as possible. There will be a booth or a red fire truck from 9:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday in the K-State Union so the community can stop by and donate food.

Don Baker, president of the Order of Omega, said they wanted to get as many people involved as possible.

The number of teams increased from three to four this year since more houses are participating.

"What people want to give is what we want to take," Baker said.

Kropf said they want to exceed the amount of food and funds raised last year.

Actual distribution of the baskets begins Nov. 16 for the Thanksgiving holiday, Hanna said.

This is the fifth year of Operation Turkey, Hanna said.

Students injured in city gang fight

By The Associated Press

WICHITA — One student was stabbed and another beaten during what police described as a racially motivated fight between rival gangs at Wichita North High School Tuesday morning.

The student who was stabbed, Toureno Taylor, was in good condition at St. Francis Regional Medical Center. Police said he was stabbed in the chest and arms with a hunting knife.

More than a dozen black youths reportedly attacked two Hispanic youths from a rival gang before classes started, and one of the Hispanics pulled a knife, police said.

"This seems to be more racially oriented than anything else," said Police Capt. Marvin Janssen. He said students from both sides of the fight claim gang affiliation.

Police would not identify the gangs involved but students said the fight involved a Hispanic gang, the VLBs, and a black gang, the Neighborhood Crips.

The brawl started about 7:45 a.m. on the second floor. It ended when a science teacher restrained and disarmed one of the Hispanic teens and other school officials detained others involved, police said.

Investigators said the feud between the gangs had been brewing and that Tuesday's violence followed previous fights over the past several days. At a dance Friday night, a group of black gang members attacked a Hispanic youth, said Capt. Ron West. And on Monday, Hispanic youths attacked a group of blacks.

West said about 20 youths were involved in the fight. Nine students were questioned by police, and charges will be sought against four youths, one 17, two 16 and one 15.

Program offers new scholarship

By Rob Batchman
Collegian Reporter

Two students have been selected to participate in the U.S. Department of Energy's Environmental Restoration/Waste Management Scholarship Program.

Mark Stedry and Brendan Ryan, juniors in nuclear engineering, were among 25 students nationwide selected to receive the award.

"It is more of an internship than a scholarship," Ryan said. "It's a great opportunity for both of us because it will provide us with experience in working for the Department of Energy.

"The program's fairly new. This is the first time the scholarship has been awarded in Kansas," he said.

The scholarship program is designed to increase the number of scientists, technicians and engineers trained to support the Department of Energy's environmental and waste management programs. Part of the program is a three-month practicum in which the students receive hands-on experience applying principles learned in the classroom to real-world problems.

"We are going to be assigned to a Department of Energy facility where we will do the practicum," Stedry said. "But we haven't been notified of where it will be yet."

For participating in the program, the Department of Energy will pay Stedry's and Ryan's tuition and fees for their junior and senior years. In addition, they receive a $600-per-month stipend while attending K-State. The University also receives an $500 allowance for each scholar.

"It is one of the best scholarships on campus that I know about," said Larry Erickson, professor of chemical engineering and coordinator of the scholarship program.

Ryan said he was excited about the opportunity to work for the Department of Energy.

"I think it is going to be good chance to get some career experience," he said. "I had considered about working for the Department of Energy anyway, and now I'm going to have the opportunity."

Kill 'em Cats

Hunam Restaurant
& Lounge
We Deliver• We Deliver• We Deliver• We Deliver•
1304 Westloop 539-8888 or 539-0888
Home Game Buffet
All-You-Can-Eat
$7.45
11 a.m.-9 p.m.

A FAMILY TRADITION
Since Rickel-McMillin 1985
WINES & SPIRITS
2223 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
(right next to Hop-n-Skip #2)
Canadian Club
Liters 11.19
Molson Light
12 pk- 4.99
Coors & Coors Light
Suitcases 9.99
776-5003

WE HAVE WHAT YOU NEED FOR YOUR

GAME DAY PARTY

Keystone Cases– $7.99
Party Balls- $18.00
Midori Melon
Liquor was $5.99 now $3.99

AN AGGIEVILLE TRADITION
Since Rickel's 1973
WINES & SPIRITS

1129 Bluemont 537-8219

Introducing...
Woody's Collegiate Fashion Board

Back Row: Sarah Canfield, Alpha Chi Omega; Julie Lewis, Kappa Delta; Jennifer Bromert, Kappa Alpha Theta. Middle Row: Heather Smith, Pi Beta Phi; Janet Goedecke, West Hall; Kelly Brown, Alpha Xi Delta; Nicole Shaw, Smurthwaite; Christi Schmidl, Gamma Phi Beta. Front Row: Heidi Hixson, Woody's Coordinator; Beth Palmer, Alpha Delta Pi. Not Pictured: Dana Morrissey, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Staci Whitaker, Alpha of Clovia.

Mon.-Sat.
9:30-5:30
Thurs. till 8:00
Sun. 1-5

Woody's ladies

1225 Moro
Aggieville

PAYLESS OPTICAL OUTLET

WARNS YOU....
IF YOU ARE PAYING MORE THAN
$24.95* COMPLETE SINGLE VISION - OR - $34.95* COMPLETE BIFOCAL
FOR YOUR EYEGLASSES, INCLUDING FRAME — YOU ARE OVERPAYING!

AT PAYLESS OPTICAL OUTLET YOU GET.....
- UNLIMITED SELECTION - YOUR CHOICE OF OVER 1,000 FRAMES ON DISPLAY!
- NO CHARGE FOR SUN OR FASHION TINTED LENSES!
- NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR OVERSIZED OR PLASTIC LENSES!
- HIGHEST QUALITY FRAMES AND LENSES!
- HIGHEST PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS!
- SATISFACTION GUARANTEED!

* All normal prescriptions - distance, reading, or flat to 25 and 28mm, round or executive bifocals, in Rx's no higher than (+) or (-) 8.00 diopter sphere, with up to -2.00 cylinder. Adds no higher than (+)3.00.
Photogrey Extra, Scratch and Ultra-Violet Coat - each $10 additional.

1210 MORO
MANHATTAN, KANSAS
537-1574

NEVER A SALE, ALWAYS THE LOWEST PRICE!

Grant funds child care information service

By Paul Noel
Staff Reporter

K-State is currently developing a service that will provide information to parents in southwestern Kansas about child care in their area.

Bob Poresky, associate professor of human development and family studies, said the service will enable parents to call a toll-free number for specific information regarding local registered or licensed child care providers in their area, including day care homes, centers and preschools. The service is specifically designed for 21 counties in southwestern Kansas.

"The basic idea is to create a system that will provide useful and up-to-date information to parents who work or go to school," Poresky said.

He said he hopes to have the service updated every two or three months by mailing the care providers questionnaires about the status of their business. They will also be able to use the number to phone in changes in their status, such as number of openings available.

The service will give information about the location, philosophy of the care provider, the number and ages of children the provider allows and the cost of the care, he said.

The development of the Kansas State Child Care Information Service was made possible through a $12,519 grant from the Kansas Department of Social and Rehabilitation Services. Poresky said he hopes to receive an additional grant to further develop the service.

The service will be available in January if the department receives the additional money, he said.

"There will be no charge for the service its first year," he said, "but with sufficient support, it could eventually be self-supporting — but that's highly unlikely."

The department will need enough money to cover the wages of a half-time operator and phone and mailing expenses, he said.

Applications for new grants to develop referral services will be available within a few weeks, said Irene Davis, SRS coordinator of child care services.

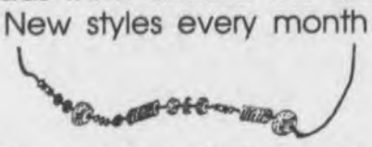
Approval of the application will depend on the number of the applicants and which applications a review committee feels has the greatest needs.

Nancy Moos, graduate student in human development and family studies, has been organizing a list of child care providers from records provided by the Kansas Department of Health and Environment. She said she will contact each provider to get more specific information about their program that makes them unique.

GOOD LUCK CATS,
CLOBBER THE COWBOYS!

Schliebe Workout Center

WHEN YOU'RE THE BEST, PEOPLE TALK ...COME SEE WHY!



•High & Low Impact Classes Available
•Free Nursery
•Shower facilities
•David Equipment
•Free Weights
•Tanning Beds and New Tanning Bulbs
•Stairmaster 4000 pt on its way

SCHLIEBE WORKOUT CENTER
3236 KIMBALL AVENUE
776-1750

CLIP THIS COUPON
• • •
3 FREE VISITS
SCHLIEBE
WORKOUT CENTER
3236 Kimball, Candlewood Shopping Center

On the Wild Side
Beads from around the world
New styles every month

Create Your Own Jewelry
Also: Paintings, sculptures & pottery
Mon.-Fri. 11-7 Sat. 11-6 Sun. 12-4 1128 Moro

ALCO yes

$5.69

case of 24

ENJOY THE GREAT TASTE OF COCA-COLA CLASSIC
Choose from Coca-Cola Classic, Diet Coke, Caffeine Free Diet Coke and Sprite. Stock up now and save.
Daily 9-9 3007 Anderson Ave. Sunday 11-6

LOWMAN'S
IN AGGIEVILLE

Manhattan's Quality Men's Store
Featuring:
Polo by Ralph Lauren,
Ruff-Hewn, Cole-Haan,
and much more.

Quality Clothing and Service.
Traditional fabrics and classic styles of the utmost quality enhanced by our professional staff.

Wardrobe Consultation.
Questions? We can help you select the suit and accessories that are right for you.

Expert Tailoring.
Our own in house tailor will carefully tailor your clothing just for you at no extra charge.

... where quality never goes out of style.

1215 Moro 776-7304
Mon. through Sat. 10:00-6:00. Thurs. til 8:00. Sun 1:00-5:00.

ADVANCED BUSINESS SYSTEMS

Locally Owned—Locally Operated

•TEC-Cash Registers/POS Systems
•Sharp—TA Royal Copies
•Smith Corona-Typewriters
•Olympus-Transcribers
•Silver Reed-Typewriters/Word Processors
•Murata-AT&T—TA Royal Fax
•IBM-Typewriters
•TA Royal-Typewriters/Word Processors

•SALES •SERVICE
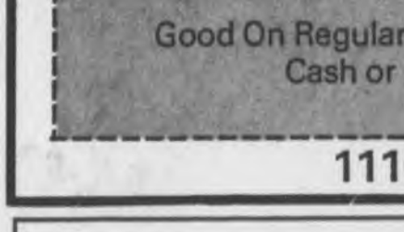
•RENTALS
•LEASING

713 N. 12th Aggieville 539-7931

Kitchens Plus
HOME OF
The "K.P." Card Factory and The Croissant Cafe



COUPON
SAVE $5.00 On A Purchase Of $20.00 or More!
Good On Regular Priced Merchandise
Cash or Check Only
No Free Giftwrap With Coupon
Limit One Coupon Per Person
Expires 11/10/90

1110 Westloop Shopping Center—537-4046

BOSE® KNOWS SOUND!
Listen at Audio Junction!

AUDIO JUNCTION, INC.

630 Grant Ave. Junction City

HI FI-Car Stereo-Video
Car Stereo Installation
Stereo and Video Repair
1-762-4447
Mon.-Fri. 10-7, Sat. 10-5

Bose® Acoustimass®-3 Speaker System

The world's smallest speaker system delivering pure sound and virtual invisibility.

"Bose speakers are a stunning example of the miracles possible when physics is applied to the audio business."
The Oregonian, Wayne Thompson

So small it fits in the palm of your hand!

■ Patented Acoustimass speaker technology is the key to large speaker performance from a small package
■ Extremely small, wedge-shaped cubes and unobtrusive bass module
■ Affordably priced, high performance Acoustimass speaker system
■ Delivers lifelike, full-sized sound
■ Compatible with receivers from 10 to 100 watts/channel
■ Optional mounting accessories enhance flexibility

$399.00 System

BOSE

Live performances challenge K-State flutist

By Christy Gritton
Collegian Reporter

Chao, Pei's second choice turned out to be the right one.

Chao, a senior in applied music, will perform on flute, her second choice of instrument, at 8 p.m. Sunday in All Faiths Chapel.

Chao, 23, began playing the flute when she was 17 and in junior college in Tainan, Taiwan. In Taiwan, students are required to have a minor, so Chao chose the flute.

"I was a piano major before," Chao said.

After playing both instruments, Chao changed her major because she discovered that she preferred playing the flute to playing the piano.

Chao will perform music ranging from Baroque to Contemporary at the concert.

The program includes Handel's "G Minor Sonata," Mozart's "Quartet in C Major," C. Griffe's "Poem," Edgard Varese's "Density 21.5" and Bill Holcome's "Sapphire."

Chao first played the piano in front of an audience when she was in primary school. When she was 17, Chao gave her first flute performance.

Chao described the challenges of live performances.

"If I have an accompanist, I must pay attention to the changes in tempo," she said.

Chao said it takes extra effort for her to concentrate when people cough and babies cry, but she said she hopes she will eventually be able to mentally block out noise.

"You never know what is going to go on when you perform. It's really a new challenge every time," she said.

Stagefright is another major concern, but Chao's busy schedule has helped her overcome it.

"I used to play four concerts in a week last year," Chao said. "I'm not really nervous when I play right now. I'm getting used to playing in front of people and in that auditorium."

Mary Lee Cochran, assistant professor of music, has taught Chao since she arrived in the United States last September.

"She's improved," Cochran said. "I think she practices four to five hours a day.

"She's a very good and talented musician. She's got a sturdy backbone, and she works really hard," she said.

After graduating in May, Chao plans to pursue a graduate degree in music performance.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Ad It Up! in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

GO CATS

STATE K

Accessories on the Park
Cheryl Lewis
708 N. Manhattan Ave., Manhattan, Ks. 66502 tel. (913) 537-0707

MAURICES
Men's
All Sweaters 20% off
Selected Leathers 20% off
Women's
Selected sweaters 20% off
Selected leathers $20 off
Columbia & wool coats 20% off

THE Palace Cards & Gifts
Great Gifts!
Terrific Cards!
Convenient Hours!
Support the Cats!
T-shirts, Sweatshirts, Hats, Windsocks
Candy, Stickers, Buttons, License plates
704 N. Manhattan Ave.-In Aggieville-539-7654
Mon.-Thurs. 8:30 a.m.-8:30 p.m.-Fri.-Sat. 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.-Sun. 12:00-5:00 p.m.

Think Cappuccino
DOUBLE CAPPUCCINOS $1.31
(Limit one per customer order, please. Not valid w/any other discounts.) Exp. 10-25-90
618 N. Manhattan, Aggieville 7am-Midnight
ESPRESSO ROYALE CAFFE
CLASSIC CAFE, CLASSIC COFFEE

georgia
Experience A Touch of Fifth Avenue and Rodeo Drive
The Ultimate Apparel and Accessories
110 S. 4th St. Downtown
Tues.-Fri. 10:30-5:30
Saturdays 11:00-4:00

Fashion
• Instant Credit!
• Free Alterations!
• Easy Layaway!
• Free Gift Wrap!
Select Shirts &Knits...40% OFF
Exciting textures and new fall colors!
Outer Wear... 10% OFF
Leathers, Bombers, and many more!
(some exclusions)
The BUCKLE
Manhattan Town Center * 537-4130
Store hours: Mon - Sat 10-9 Sunday 12-5:30

BAYSTREET AND THE PIT
TONIGHT!
99¢ Pitchers
75¢ Longnecks
75¢ Wells
25¢ Kamis
NO COVER BEFORE 8 p.m.

NORITAKE DINNERWARE SPECTACULAR
• SAVE on PLACE SETTINGS
• SAVE on OPEN-STOCK pieces
• SAVE on crystal and casual GLASSWARE
DOWNTOWN Poyntz Avenue at Fifth 776-9067
Campbell's
USE OUR BRIDAL REGISTRY
Mon. thru Sat., 9-5:30 Thurs. 9 to 8

TAKE THIS PARTY ANIMAL HOME
THE TAIL GATOR
To make your next bash a smash, call SUBWAY and order the TAIL GATOR. We'll fill a foot and half long white or honey-wheat bread full of your favorite meats and fixin's, and three individual bags of chips and a 2 liter Pepsi or Diet Pepsi, and you get this for one low price of $8.99
48 hours notice required
SUBWAY
537-8700
In Aggieville — 620 N. Manhattan
Sandwich only: $7.49

October PORTRAIT Special
Sitting and 8 Original Proofs
Only! $9.95
ONE HOUR MOTOPHOTO PORTRAIT STUDIO
1134 Gardenway Manhattan (913) 776-9030

AC/DC to play at Bramlage; tour date yet to be scheduled

By Dan Scott
Collegian Reporter

Rock group AC/DC will perform in Bramlage Coliseum in the first part of December, said Kevin Dochterman, director of the concert division of Contemporary Productions.

The opening act has not yet been chosen. A firm date and opening act should be known within three weeks, Dochterman said.

"It'll be a large show just like the other major shows on the road like the Poisons, the Def Leppards," said Charlie Thomas, director of Bramlage Coliseum.

No other concerts are planned in the near future, Thomas said. This could change, however, as news of touring bands arrives.

"We never have more than 90-days notice," Thomas said. "We're in a real difficult market. We're not even a secondary market. We're really a tertiary market."

Both Thomas and Contemporary Productions, a promotion company based in St. Louis, are working to change this. The goal is to make Bramlage a major stop for touring bands.

"No one's calling me, beating down my door, saying, 'We gotta play here,'" Dochterman said. "I've tried to take this facility under my wing and make it a stopping point."

Bramlage must string several successes together to establish a track record as a moneymaker, Dochterman said. Manhattan has done this to some extent with the rock 'n' roll shows that have played in Bramlage since its opening in 1988.

"We played Chicago and the Beach Boys here, but they didn't draw like Def Leppard or Motley Crue," he said. "Maybe middle-of-the-road isn't where we want to be."

Bramlage has several advantages in trying to establish itself, Dochterman said, as Manhattan is close to Interstate 70 and is far enough away from Wichita and Kansas City to make it worth a group's time to stop for a show.

"I feel it's located in the middle of nowhere," he said. "It lends a kind of entertainment to people who would normally not get to see it."

Another advantage Bramlage has is its demographics, said Sam Fulco, building manager for the Kansas Coliseum.

"If I was a promoter and scheduling rock concerts, I would take Manhattan over Topeka," Fulco said. "I've got an army base to draw from and I've got the students at K-State."

Fulco said he understands Thomas' situation in trying to establish Manhattan, something Wichita has been able to do over a period of years.

"Once we had Glen Campbell scheduled to perform except he flew into Wichita Falls, Texas," Fulco said. "We held up the show for about 15 minutes and he finally did make it in."

Besides Bramlage being relatively new to the concert scene, Thomas must fight a groggy economy in trying to get concert dates. A slow economy makes for a slow concert business, Dochterman said. Luxuries such as attending concerts are among the first things dropped from peoples' budgets.

Thomas said monster tours playing to large stadiums has drained money from the concert business and hurt the smaller arena sites such as Bramlage.

"The number of monster shows keeps going up every year," Thomas said. "We've seen the number of touring arena shows go down steadily the last few years."

This is a result of groups not wanting to compete with the stadium tours, Fulco said.

KU greek system beset by problems

By The Collegian Staff

Pranks on K-state's sororities and fraternities do not compare with recent problems in the KU greek system, said Barb Robel, greek affairs adviser.

Sororities at KU recently have been subject to break-ins and vandalism.

Toilet-papering, showering and flouring, and stealing of the house's composite photo are the most common pranks the Panhellenic Council and Interfraternity Council deal with, Robel said.

"Fraternity pranks are more visible, but it is not one-sided by any means," Robel said.

Robel said that if a complaint is received, a discussion goes to the council's round table. Each event is handled separately, and there is not a standard action for dealing with pranks, Robel said.

"The councils undergo investigations to get both sides of the story and proceed from there, depending on the seriousness," Robel said.

She said there is not any more or any less pranks on campus than in the past.

"The public's perception of appropiate behavior is more stringent than in the past. Sororities and fraternities must meet society's expectations or they will be setting themselves up for a conflict," Robel said.

Michelle Ryan, sophomore in radio and television and junior Panhellenic representative for the Delta Delta Delta sorority, said that she thinks prank situations are dealt with fairly and that there is always a possibility of irresponsible events in the future. She said that greek houses keep pranks tame for the most part.

GOOD LUCK CATS,
CLOBBER THE COWBOYS!

NESPOR
RETAIL LIQUOR
•Specializing in domestic & imported wines
•Large selection of cordials, beer & liquors
•Special orders welcomed for parties & weddings
•Case discounts
539-9441
Westloop Shopping Center
1338 Westloop Place

Snookies
25¢ Draws
75¢ Wells
Go Cats!
Beat the Cowboys!
1122 Moro• Upstairs• 776-7726

Alan Clark
BODY SHOP INC.
COMPLETE BODY REPAIR SINCE 1967
ESTIMATES
INSURANCE CLAIMS WELCOME
776-5333
2160 Pillsbury Dr. • Manhattan

KRYSTALLOS
BEADS
CORDING
PENDANTS
We have all the supplies you need to create your own necklaces & bracelets.
1124 Moro Aggieville
11-6 Mon.-Sat.
539-0360

•YOGURT Sweet Temptations •ICE CREAM
The Cat's score is your percent discount tonight!
Columbo Yogurt Skinny Dip Edys
Plaza Shopping Center, next to Home Cinema
Mon.-Sat. 11-11
Sun. Noon-11

SOUTHERN SUN & WOLFF SYSTEM Sun CENTER
Tropical Tan
accepted
Now offering $2.50 TANS
(min. of 10 sessions)
Call today for an appt.
Southern Sun
519 N. 12th
776-8060
Tropical Tan
1814 Claflin
(above Charlie's)
537-0744

10th Anniversary Show featuring fine arts of the Midwest
Come in and see our wide selection of posters & original art
STRECKER GALLERY
332 Poyntz Tues.-Sat. 10-5 539-2139

THE SPOT
Tonight
$1 Wells
No COVER for 21 and up
Open at 4
702 North 11th
776-0077
Aggieville, USA

techline
. . . the perfect blend of beauty and function
entertainment center
CONTEMPORARY INTERIORS
332 Poyntz
537-2099

What Can Make ACUVUE® Disposable Contact Lenses Even Better?
A Free Trial Pair!
We want to open your eyes to the convenience and comfort of ACUVUE® Disposable Contact Lenses.
Come in for an eye exam.
If ACUVUE is right for you, we'll give you a free trial pair.*
ACUVUE® The First Disposable Contact Lens Johnson & Johnson
Dr. Paul E. Bullock
Optometrist
See your eyecare professional annually
New Location: 555 Poyntz Suite 151 Colony Square
776-9461 Toll Free 1-800-432-0035
Financing Available
*Examination and other professional service fees are not included in this free trial pair offer.

Kistner's Flowers and Greenhouses
one mile south of the mall on Highway 177 South
Weekly Cash and Carry Specials
Roses 6 for $7.50
with greenery and baby's breath
Mixed Flower Bundle $5
776-7989 Mon - Sat 8-6 776-7044
FTD Teleflora

1/3 Off All Services
facials perms coloring sculptured nails
haircuts
highlighting
"The Wrapp"
manicures relaxers pedicures hair removal carefree curl
Crimpers HAIR DESIGN STUDIO
613 N. Manhattan • 539-7621
Expires 11-15-90 w/this ad

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Friday, October 12, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 35

Task force discusses economic future

By Cindy Jeffrey
Collegian Reporter

Exploring economic development for Manhattan means exploring regional economic development.

Two committees of the Blank Page Economic Task Force, Needs and Strategy and Measurement and Model, presented their reports Thursday night.

"Economic development boils down to jobs," said Bill Varney, chairman of the Needs and Strategy Committee. "There are six major areas: Fort Riley, K-State, privately-owned businesses, regionality, infrastructure and quality of life that we looked at.

"But regionality meshes in with all the others," Varney said. "Geary, Riley and Pottawatomie counties are directly affected. There are lots of players, but no group that pulls these together."

The committee's report proposed that a regional authority be formed and suggested it be called the Kaw Valley Regional Authority.

"We are concerned about the two biggest employers — Fort Riley and K-State — the enhancement and growth of both, but at the same time, there must be diversity in privately-owned businesses," Varney said.

Establishing a venture capital fund for small businesses was one of the committee's suggestions for encouraging economic growth in the private sector.

Upgrading the airport with a cross-wind runway would have the advantage of enhancing Fort Riley and Manhattan, Varney said.

"K-State has a bigger impact on Manhattan," he said. "There is a vast store of expertise we need to tap."

After the report by the Needs and Strategy Committee, the floor was open for discussion.

"These reports are by citizens, not professionals," said Dennis Mullin, vice chairman of the task force. "We are getting the ideas on the table now, getting to the point for professionals. We are open to a lot of criticism if we look at it as answers."

Don Rathbone, chairman of the Measurement and Model Committee, presented an update on the progress of his committee.

"We do not have a final report because we just got some of the data 10 days ago," Rathbone said.

Three major areas were considered by this committee. The first was a comparison of past economic growth to sister cities. The second was measuring the economic growth of the Manhattan area, which was then broadened to a three-county area. The third was predicting the economic impact on the community of a specific type of business or service.

Statistical information concerning population growth, employment, poverty levels, personal income and related sales in the 1980s were studied by this committee.

"One of the concerns I have is that the statistics available now are not as good as they were 10 years ago," said Don Wissman, member of the measurement committee.

Five committees were formed at the first meeting of the task force last January. Each focused on a specific area of economic development — vision, history, resources, needs and strategy, and measurement and model, said Rick Mann, task force chairman.

"The committees write a report and bring it to the complete task force for discussion," Mann said.

The chairman and vice chairman will write an executive summary as a preface to the reports for the final meeting Nov. 14.

This summary report will be given to the city and county commissioners, Mann said.

"This is not the end, but the beginning. The momentum is there," he said.

The task force was the idea of Kent Glasscock while he was mayor of Manhattan.

"He wanted to make sure we were focusing our money and efforts in the best way," Mann said.

Glasscock took his idea to the city commissioners and Riley County commissioners, who endorsed the idea, and the task force was formed.

David Mayes/Staff

Rabbi Larry Karol (gesturing) speaks as panel members, Charles Baughman and Gamal Badawi, await their turn during the Interfaith Theological Panel Thursday evening in the K-State Union. The three discussed Jewish, Christian and Islamic theology respectively. The Rev. Susan Sawyer, Episcopal Campus Ministry (far right), introduced the panel.

Panelists discuss origin of religion

RACIAL ETHNIC HARMONY WEEK

By Paul Noel
Staff Reporter

An interfaith theological panel discussed the differences among religious faiths at a Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week gathering Thursday in the K-State Union Little Theatre.

Three panelists from Christian, Islamic and Jewish backgrounds discussed the origin of monotheism and the concept of God, prophethood and prophets, human nature and sin and the relationship between religion and life.

Charles Baughman, professor of Hebrew at the St. Paul School of Theology in Kansas City, Mo., said monotheism perhaps began with Noah and has continued throughout the history of Israel/Judaism and Christianity.

"Some early Bible scholars assumed that monotheism was the earliest form of religion and polytheism was later a departure," Baughman said.

"Although the Christian religion speaks of three deities, the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, they are con-

■ See RELIGION, Page 12

Karol

"I believe that the Israelites were henotheists before they were monotheists.
— Rabbi Larry Karol
Temple Beth Shalom
Topeka

Baughman

"The God of Israel was the creator-god of the whole world ...
— Charles Baughman
professor of Hebrew
St. Paul School of Theology
Kansas City, Mo.

Badawi

"Easterners believe that monotheism first came to this earth with Adam.
— Gamal Badawi
professor of management
St. Mary's Univeristy
Halifax, Canada

Senators asked to consider Rec Complex referendum

STUDENT SENATE

By Charlie Gatschet
Collegian Reporter

Student Body President Todd Johnson verbally reprimanded Student Senate Thursday night for not working together.

In addition, Raydon Robel, director of recreational services, presented Senate with the expansion plans for the Chester E. Peters Recreational Complex.

Johnson said he was sick and tired of senators getting hung up on minor legislative details that could be easily cleared up before meetings.

A bill appointing Jeff Hanson, freshman in business, to the Parking Citation Appeals Board triggered Johnson's concerns.

Travis Stumpff, arts and sciences senator, tried to stop Hanson's approval on a legislative technicality.

"It happens nearly every week," Johnson said. "It's never in the best interest of Senate to do this. At least have the courtesy to talk to the sponsors of bills before launching an assault on them.

"I take it very personally to have someone stand up, lambaste me and then find out they were wrong all along. I'm very upset at the way things continue to be brought up like this," he said.

Hanson's appointment was approved by Senate.

Robel showed Senate tentative plans for the proposed $8.5 million expansion to the Rec Complex.

Some of the plans are: adding four additional basketball courts, doubling the size of the weight and fitness areas, adding air conditioning, lighting the L.P. Washburn Recreational Area playing fields and adding sand volleyball courts.

"I'm very upset at the way things continue to be brought up like this.
—Todd Johnson
student body president

Senate will decide next week on adding a referendum to the general election ballot that would allow students to vote on the proposed expansion.

"I think it would be a terrible injustice to put off something the student body has spoken so strongly for," he said.

A study by the Recreational Services Task Force shows that 72 percent of the student body would favor a tuition increase to fund the expansion, and that rec services programs rank second to academics in order of importance to K-State students.

Funding for the project is to come from extension of the Student Refunding Bond. The bond is $22.25 per student each semester and was started in the 1970s. The task force is also asking for a $3 per full-time student and $1.50 per part-time student increase in the Recreation Building Program fee to cover increased operating expenses of an expanded building.

Completion of the project is proposed for fall 1993, and Robel said the new facilities would continue to serve students with quality at a minimal cost.

"The Rec Complex is definitely cheaper than Schliebe's or Nautilus," Robel said. "And nobody compares to Rec Services facilities."

If passed, the referendum would require at least one-third of the student body to vote in the election and a simple majority of the votes to pass the expansion.

In other news, Senate read a bill proposing the addition of two College of Arts and Sciences senators for 1990 elections because of increased enrollment, raising the college's total to 18. Another bill was read for allocations of the 1992 Educational Opportunity Fund of more than $200,000. Both bills will be voted on next week.

Speaker addresses energy, security link

LOU DOUGLAS LECTURE
Hunter Lovins "The Hidden Links Between Energy And Security"

By Scott Levendofsky
Collegian Reporter

Hunter Lovins said she hopes the World Health Organization never has to parachute live cats into a village again.

Speaking to a crowd of about 250 people, Lovins opened the 10th Anniversary Series of the Lou Douglas Lectures with a lecture titled "The Hidden Links Between Energy and Security," Thursday in McCain Auditorium.

She introduced her lecture with a story about the World Health Organization's solution to a village in Borneo suffering from malaria.

They sprayed large amounts of DDT to kill the malaria-carrying mosquitoes, but failed to realize the DDT also killed caterpillars and cats. This caused rats to flourish, resulting in wide outbreaks of sylvatic plague and typhus in the village. In responding to the problem, the World Health Organization parachuted live cats into the village, Lovins said.

Lovins used this example to illustrate how people do not understand interconnections.

"Understanding subtle connections can enable us to create a solution into many (solutions); so that the cause of a solution becomes the solution," she said.

Provost James Coffman introduced Lovins as the executive director of the Rocky Mountain Institute in Old Snowmass, Colo.

Lovins had earlier helped to establish and was the assistant director of the California Conservation Project for six years. She and her husband, Ivory, have co-authored six books and several hundred papers. Ivory, the scheduled speaker, could not be present due to an eye injury.

Lovins

"It was a pleasure to have her here. The research that the Rocky Mountain Institute does on a global level is vital," Coffman said.

In discussing the hidden links between energy and security, Lovins said humankind is faced with many serious problems, including the threat of nuclear war, un-

■ See LOVINS, Page 12

Man objects to meeting of Pottawatomie fire board

By Erika Parker
Staff Reporter

BLUE TOWNSHIP — The Pottawatomie County fire board is again under question regarding the Kansas Open Meetings Act.

Dee Ross, former chief of the Pottawatomie County volunteer firefighters, said the board met illegally Thursday night.

Ross said the meeting violated the Kansas Open Meetings Act, which requires that citizens be notified of public meetings.

Members of the board are appointed by the Pottawatomie County Commission. The board authorizes the spending of public monies, said Mike Oakley, chief of Pottawatomie volunteer firefighters.

"The meetings should be publicized if they're going to expend taxpayers' dollars," Ross said. "I made a formal request before."

Ross had asked the board to consider publication of meeting times in July. At Thursday's meeting, he asked board members if his request had been considered.

Harold Nelson, secretary of the board, replied that it had not.

Ross then submitted a letter to the board, as he had been advised that afternoon by Jeff Elder, Pottawatomie County attorney.

It said, "This letter is to officially request that in the future I be notified of any fire board meetings, in compliance with the Kansas Open Meetings Act."

Ross then left the meeting. Nelson said Ross was being vindictive.

"It's nothing but sour grapes to him," Nelson said.

Jud Jones, volunteer firefighter, said the board should decide to notify Ross of future meetings.

"It's really just simple, though. Just give the smoke signal," he said.

No official action was taken by the board. Members talked briefly about possibly publishing notices of future meetings.

"I'm not being vindictive, I just want them to do what the hell is right," said Ross after the meeting.

Ross said he learned about the meeting from one of the firefighters. He said he should have been notified by the board.

Mike Welchhans/Staff

Mike Oakley, Pottawatomie County volunteer fire chief, listens as former Chief Dee Ross asks to have fire board meetings be made public.

BRIEFLY

World

Soviet booster rocket explodes

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's most advanced booster rocket, which an American specialist believed was carrying a spy satellite, exploded seconds after liftoff last week.

The blast nearly destroyed the launch pad and may complicate Soviet efforts to sell space hardware to the West.

The official Soviet news agency Tass reported for the first time Thursday that the Zenit booster broke up at the Baikonur space port in the Central Asian republic of Kazakhstan on Oct. 4.

Tass said no one was hurt and that a commission is investigating the accident. The three-sentence dispatch did not identify the payload or give any other details. It also did not say why the explosion was not reported for a week.

James Oberg, an American aerospace engineer and expert on the Soviet program, said he believes the payload was a satellite the Soviet military hoped to use for electronic intelligence gathering.

Firefighters save tarantula

DUDLEY, England — Firefighters rescued a family from a blazing house Thursday and then went back and saved a pet tarantula.

"They used a soup ladle from the kitchen to pick it up. Thank goodness it was a bit groggy from the smoke, and they were able to put it in a plastic ice-cream container and put the lid on," said John Whitehouse, a fire brigade spokesman.

The hairy, fat-bodied spider, as large as a man's hand, had escaped from its glass tank and was found behind a chair. Two others died in the tank, overcome by smoke and fumes, and a fourth was dead on the floor nearby, he said.

Nation

Fossil provides new insight

NEW YORK (AP) — A 135-million-year-old fossil found in China appears to be that of the oldest known bird.

The bird lived in trees and flew with agility, a researcher said.

Analysis of the fossil provides a really exciting picture of a transitional stage in the early stages of bird history, said researcher Paul Sereno.

The bird, not yet officially named, followed a primitive bird called Archaeopteryx by about 10 million years.

The recently discovered bird lived in trees, as shown by its claws, he said. Its capacity for long-range, agile flight is shown by the modern bird characteristics of the shape of its wing bones and breastbone and its short clump of tail bones, in contrast to the longer tail of Archaeopteryx, he said.

Heavy rains hit Florida coast

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Tropical storm Marco toppled trees and power lines as it swept Florida's Gulf Coast on Thursday, and heavy rain streaming northward from the tropics washed out roads and dams in the Carolinas.

The rain was blamed for as many as five deaths in the Carolinas, and may have led to a train derailment.

Nearly 10 inches of rain fell in 24 hours in parts of South Carolina, with unofficial reports up to 11 inches, the National Weather Service said.

Bermuda felt the effects of Hurricane Lili with rain, thunderstorms and gusty wind.

While the Southeast bore the brunt of the stormy weather Thursday, the entire East Coast also could suffer severe weather as several weather systems may converge, forecasters said.

Region

Principal arrested for sodomy

DODGE CITY, (AP) — The Dodge City High School principal was placed on leave with pay by the school district Thursday after being charged with sodomy and lewd and lascivious behavior.

Larry Fox, 43, was arrested at a Wichita theater Tuesday night by undercover vice officers, police said. Also arrested was Larry C. Miller, 51, of Abilene.

They were allegedly engaging in sexual acts in the back row of the theater.

Two assistant principals will administer the high school with support from the district office, according to a statement by Rod Allen, assistant superintendent. The school district will conduct its own investigation, Allen said.

Fox apologized for any negative publicity or reflections on the school or community, Allen said.

Miller, charged with the same offenses, and Fox are to appear in Wichita Municipal Court Oct. 31.

Eisenhower to be celebrated

TOPEKA (AP) — In what is billed as an American homecoming, thousands of people are expected to converge on Abilene this weekend to celebrate the centennial of Dwight Eisenhower's birth.

About 1,000 World War II veterans, borne in the same type of troop-trains that took them from their homes 50 years ago, will join the celebrants.

A contingent of Soviets, who are attending the Meeting for Peace in Lawrence, will travel to Eisenhower's hometown for the festivities.

On Sunday, Eisenhower's 100th birthday, culminates months of events honoring the nation's 34th president. Past speakers at the Eisenhower Museum have included Vice President Dan Quayle and former presidents Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan.

There have been more than 300 events statewide since the celebration started in January.

Representing President Bush at the Sunday gathering will be Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He will lay a wreath at the tomb of Eisenhower and his wife, Mamie.

Campus

Practice to aid United Way

Everyone who attends Midnight Madness, the first basketball practice, will not only be supporting the team but Farrell Library and the United Way as well.

"One-half of the donations at the door will go to the United Way, and the other one-half will go to Farrell Library," said Glenda Humbert, United Way executive director.

Bramlage Coliseum doors will open at 11 p.m. on Oct. 14. There is no admission charge but contributions will be accepted.

Gary Walter, general campaign chairman for United Way of Riley County, said the 1990 United Way campaign drive will end on Oct. 23. However, donations will be accepted up to Dec. 31.

Walter announced Thursday that the "I'll Be There ... Because We Care" campaign has reached 8 percent, $40,000 of the $500,000 goal.

The Pacesetters, who are the volunteers that go out and collect donations, are contacting 52 area firms for donations. At this point, 10 firms have reported and account for the $40,000.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

12 Friday

■ Campus Faith Fellowship will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union 202.

■ Center for Aging will sponsor "Gender, Economic Structure, Family Career and the Acquisition of Private Pensions" by Stan P. DeViney from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. in Union 213.

■ Christian Campus Ministry will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 208 to show "Inside Out," a four-part film series.

■ Palestinian Student Association and Muslim Community Association will sponsor a demonstration denouncing the killing of Palestinians by Israelis in Jerusalem from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in front of the Union.

■ UMKC Dental School will have representatives from 10 to 12 a.m. in Union 203.

13 Saturday

■ Southwind will meet at 10:30 a.m. in the Union Big Eight Room.

■ Into Africa will focus on the legacy of Kwame Khrumah at 11:05 a.m. on KSDB-FM.

14 Sunday

■ Intramural Cross Country Meet will start at 2 p.m. at Warner Park.

■ Jonathan Morris Campaign Meeting for Student Body President will be at 8 p.m. in the Union Big Eight Room. All are welcome to voice campus concerns.

■ Collegiate 4-H Club will meet at 9 p.m. in Union 206.

■ KSU Marketing Club will have a social from 4 to 7 p.m. Pick up maps in the marketing office.

■ New Currents, new-age/jazz/fusion music club, will meet from 2 to 3:30 p.m. in Union 203 to organize a jazz festival.

15 Monday

■ Students Helping Students will meet at 2:30 p.m. in the Lafene Health Center conference room.

■ French Table will meet from 12:05 to 1:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

■ Beta Sigma Psi Little Sisters will meet at 8:30 p.m. at the Beta Sigma Psi house.

■ ICAT Basketball Ticket Sales will be at 5 p.m. in the Ahearn Ticket Office.

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, partly cloudy and cooler, high in the lower 60s. North winds 10 to 15 mph.

Plum Tree Restaurant

Homestyle Buffet

All you can eat $5.75, Sunday 5-9 p.m.
Includes soup & salad bar

- Meat Loaf
- Roast Turkey & Dressing
- Mashed Potatoes & Gravy
- Buttered Corn
- Warm Blueberry Cobbler
- Includes Soup & Salad Bar

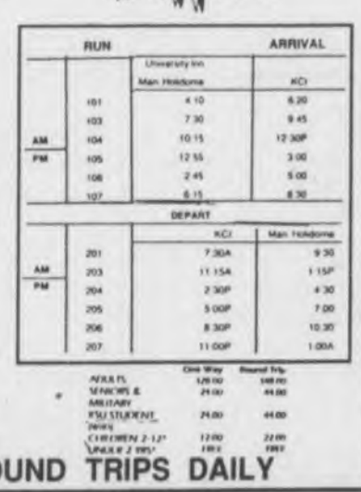
Holiday Inn
530 Richards Drive Manhattan, Kansas 66502 (913) 539-5311



MAKE HOLIDAY TRAVEL PLANS EARLY

FREE DOOR TO DOOR PICK UP

FROM YOUR DOOR TO THE SKIES

KCI ROADRUNNER
KANSAS CITY INTERNATIONAL
AIRPORT SHUTTLE SERVICE
FOR RESERVATIONS CALL:
Manhattan 537-2086
or others: 1-800-826-8294
Junction City/Fort Riley 238-6161

SIX SCHEDULED ROUND TRIPS DAILY

ELECTRICAL AND COMPUTER ENGINEERING STUDENTS

Pre-Enrollment Advising
Begins Tuesday, Oct. 16
EECE Students should make an appointment NOW with Professor Hunt in Durland 261

Students who obtain pre-enrollment advising are given first priority in the department at the time of pre-enrollment.

VS.

Oklahoma State

Oct. 13
1:10 p.m.
(Parent's Day)

Tickets: 532-6920
Reserved Seats-$16
General Admission-$9
Children-$5

Sponsored by: Pepsi Cola

Welcome K-State Parents to

Parents' Weekend 1990

We've got K-State Memorabilia specially priced just for you
Friday, October 12 and Saturday, October 13!

25% Off Mom & Dad T-Shirts & Sweatshirts

25% Off Assorted Mom & Dad Gift Items

20% Off Alumni Merchandise

K-State Union Bookstore

We've extended our hours for your convenience this weekend
Friday, October 12 ..... 7:45 a.m.-8:00 p.m.
Saturday, October 13 .... 8:00 a.m.-8:00 p.m.

New system increases safety, costs

J. Kyle Wyatt/Staff

Todd Tucker, junior in architecture, uses his student ID card with the Vali-Dine monitor to unlock the main door to Van Zile Hall. The Vali-Dine system, currently used at the Strong Complex halls, will be installed on the outside doors of all residence halls in the next two years.

Electronic security questioned

By The Collegian Staff

The Vali-Dine security system has become a way of life for the residents in the Strong Complex and is slated to moved into other residence halls within the next two years.

Through the Vali-Dine system, residents use their student ID cards to unlock entrance doors to the residence halls. The magnetic strip on the back of Strong Complex residents' cards has been coded for the each specific hall. In order to open each door, the card must be run through the security system's monitor loctaed outside each entrance.

Van Zile, Putnam and Boyd halls have become the first residance halls to use the system on building doors.

"It is projected that the locks will be in all of the residence halls," said Bob Burgess, assistant director of housing.

The department is waiting on additional hardware to arrive in order to install the system in the other residence halls, Burgess said. The halls' doors will also have to be modified before installation can begin.

Some of the doors must be modified with magnetic latches, because electric locks will not work on many of the existing doors in the residence halls, said Gene Wiley, housing maintenance superintendent.

Wiley said the system will be installed on all outside doors within the next two years at a cost of $1,000 per door.

Side doors will be locked at 7 p.m., and front doors will be locked at midnight automatically in Strong Complex with Vali-Dine, said Diana Robertson, Strong Complex director.

Since all mailboxes and dining facilites for Strong Complex are in Van Zile, all complex residents are able to use their IDs to gain access to that building, Robertson said.

"The system has definitely increased the level of safety of the dorms," she said.

Most security problems will not have to do with the functioning of the system, but with the students themselves, Wiley said. The users will have to take care of the system.

"The system is only as safe as the people are who use it," he said.

Robertson said the only problems there have been with the system is that some IDs would not accept the computer code. In these cases students must get a new card.

Mitch Barber, junior undecided and vice president of Marlatt Hall governing board, said it would not be a good idea to install the Vali-Dine system in the hall.

"Traditionally Marlatt Hall has been against having the locks for the doors," Barber said. "As a male dorm, we don't think Vali-Dine should be implemented here."

Barber said the system would be a good idea to have in a female residence hall for security measures.

"The Department of Housing has told us Vali-Dine would prevent damages to Marlatt," he said. "But it wouldn't be effective because most damages come from the residents themselves."

Marlatt has a 24-hour open-door policy, but the housing department would require it to have times when its doors are locked with the system, he said.

■ See VALI-DINE, Page 12

Musical good country fun

By Stacy Lentz
Collegian Reviewer

Non-stop country music and down-home fun can be found in the K-State Players production of "Pump Boys And Dinettes."

The musical, directed by Kate Anderson, may not be what the audience expects. "Pump Boys and Dinettes" contains very little dialogue between the songs — it is more of a musical revue.

Anderson, an associate professor of theater, does a great job of giving the production an easy, laid-back style fitting of the musical's mood. This casual tone is set early — the actors appear before the show begins and mill around the stage interacting with the audience.

The set in the play is well-designed, containing props that you would expect to find in the mythical "Double Cup Diner" and the neighboring gas station where the story takes place.

Heading up the talented cast is Wade Willson, junior in vocal performance and theater. Willson plays the gas station attendant Jim, who is having troubles with his dinette girlfriend. Willson does a great job of bringing out Jim's country-bumpkin character and his

■ See VOCALS, Page 12

Officials say campout's new rules more efficient

By Dan Scott
Collegian Reporter

Amidst flying disks and footballs, the basketball ticket campout has gone smoothly during the first 24 hours under a new set of rules.

"As far as I can tell, it's going reasonably well," said Bill Nelson, senior in political science and chairman of the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee. "I've been pleasantly surprised."

Trash was a major concern of the University prior to the start of the campout Wednesday afternoon.

"The campsite is much cleaner this year," Nelson said. "I thought it would be the hardest thing to enforce."

Many of the campers welcomed the rule change.

"I think it's a damn good idea because there's no reason people can't pick up after themselves," said Thomas Annis, senior in computer engineering. "They even handed out trash bags last night."

But Seaton Hall has not been as lucky as the campsite, said Chris Otto, custodial worker. The hallways and bathrooms had a greater amount of trash than usual following the beginning of the campout, he said.

"(The campers) turned on the hoses this morning," Otto said, referring to the fire hoses located just inside the building's entrances. "They're just making it worse."

One last minute change in ticket sales' rules was to move the lottery to next Monday rather than this past Wednesday. This was to weed out extra groups that some campers listed.

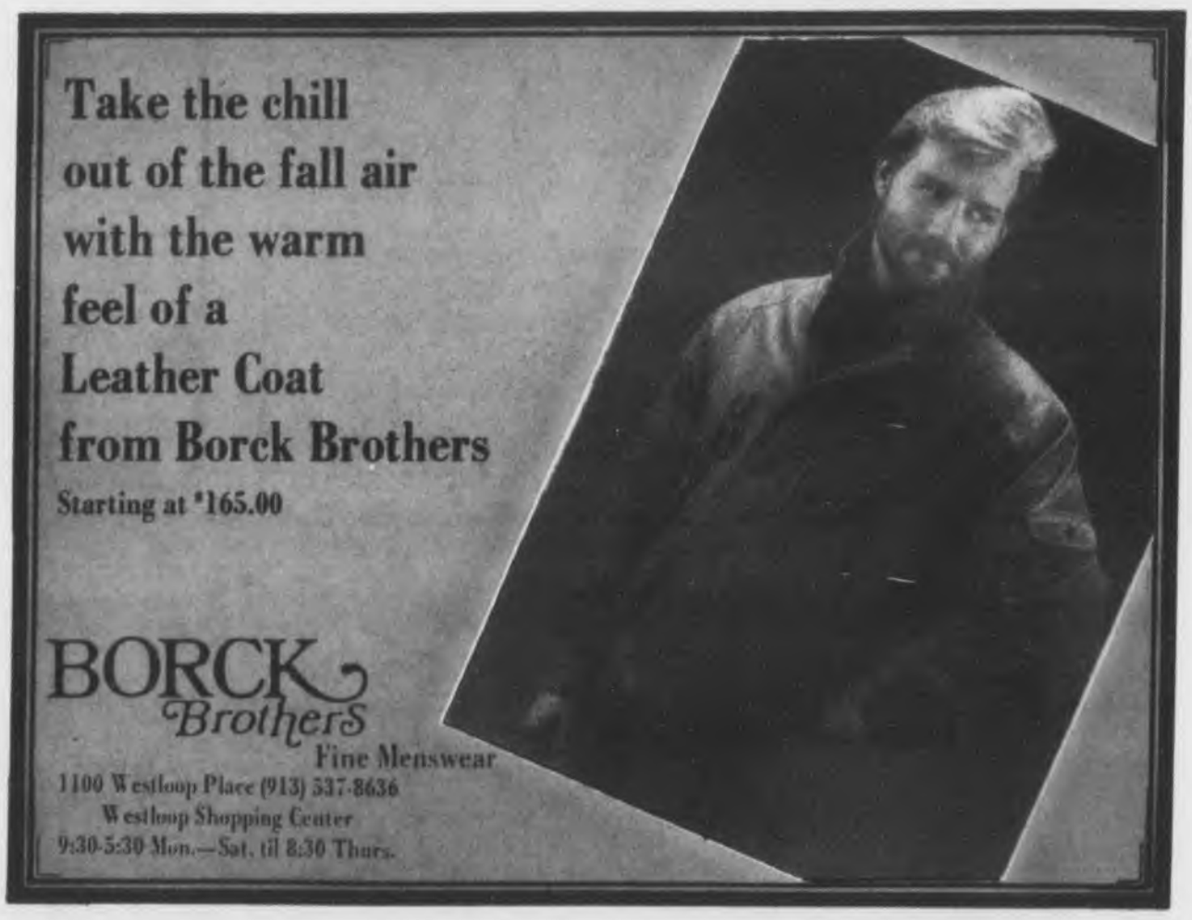
"People have tried to stack the lottery by having sub-groups," Annis said. "Whichever one that was picked closest to the front is the one you would take."

Nelson said the stacking had been eliminated. After the first roll call, there were more than 200 groups, he said. By Wednesday, the number had dropped to between 90 and 100. As of Thursday afternoon, only 66 or 67 remained.

Each camper averages more than 8 hours camping per week, Annis said. When a person has more than one group, that time increases. Many of the sub-groups were dropped because the time commitment would have been too great, he said.

"We started out with three groups, but now we're down to one," Annis said. "It's a kind of competition to see who really wants the tickets."

Racial/ Ethnic Harmony Week

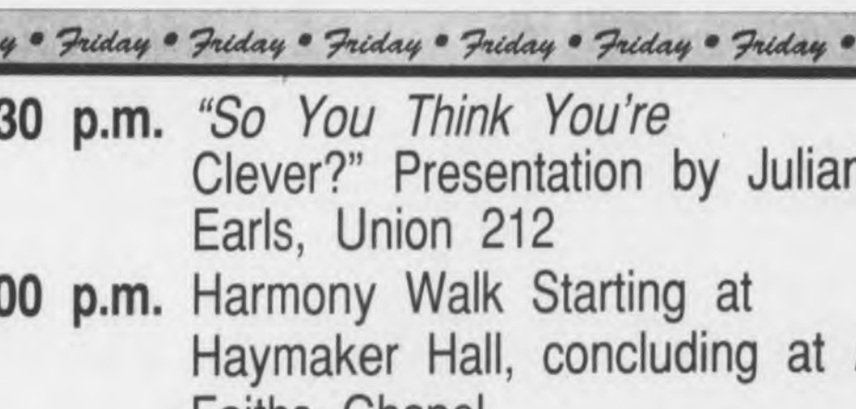


October 8-12, 1990

• Friday • Friday • Friday • Friday • Friday • Friday • Friday • Friday • Friday •

1:30 p.m. "So You Think You're Clever?" Presentation by Julian Earls, Union 212

6:00 p.m. Harmony Walk Starting at Haymaker Hall, concluding at All Faiths Chapel



7:30 p.m. Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week Celebration Service All Faiths Chapel

DISPLAY UNIT OPEN
Now Available for
Spring Semester

Don't you deserve the Brittnay Ridge Lifestyle?

—Candlewood Drive—

4 Bedrooms, 2½ Baths

•All appliances (including washer, dryer and microwave)
•Gazebo with hot tub •Recreation area •Eliminate parking problems
•Pre-wired for computer, phone and cable TV

For more information
776-5599

DAN WEIR COMPANY DWC REAL ESTATE
2601 Anderson Manhattan, KS 66502
913/776-5599•Fax 913/776-3805

the Sound Shop and CRIMESTOPPER SECURITY PRODUCTS, INC. Made in U.S.A.
1118 Moro•Aggieville 537-4708

Noticed the upsurge in car audio theft?
To help combat theft, the Sound Shop is proud to introduce the new line of car security systems from crimestopper.
We will be featuring these two systems:

C58703
•Lock/unlock doors
•Remote panic
•Shock/motion •Valet Mode
•Starter kill •MX code receiver
•117 DB Siren
$325.00 installed

C58717
same features as 8703 but adds:
•trunk release
•voltage sensing
•key in ignition warning
$425.00 installed

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

Skateboarders pose threat to democracy

Dwayne Lively

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

I was walking down the concrete path between Denison Hall and Farrell Library when I was hit from behind and knocked into the wall. I looked up to see what had happened and saw a man on a skateboard shooting down the walk. Then I saw Bart Bryce chasing after him.

Bart had a gun.

As the skateboarder dodged around a pedestrian and made a sharp cut for the corner of the library, Bart dove forward into a prone shooting position and popped off three rounds, hitting the skateboarder twice in the chest and once in the stomach and knocking him into a bike rack. He never moved again.

One or two other people who'd been knocked down by the skateboarder applauded lightly. The rest of the bystanders went about their business as if nothing had happened.

Bart stood up, blew the smoke off the end of his automatic and dusted himself off. I rushed over to him.

"Bart, what in the hell was that?"

"Citizen's arrest, D.L.," Bart said, changing clips. "Citizen's arrest. Making this campus safe for democracy."

"Skateboarders are a threat to democracy?"

"You bet they are, D.L. They damage our sacred institutions with their wheels and leave slide marks on the pavement and on the edges of benches and on those precious concrete ramps over by Durland Hall."

"And that's worth killing them over?"

"Of course not, D.L. You need two reasons. It just so happens they're also violating the laws of K-State, and there's nothing more sacred than those. Why, next thing you know, they'll be smoking Bibles and burning the American flag. That's the way it starts, you know."

"What?" I asked. "The way what starts?"

"Fascist Communism. Break one little law when you're young, D.L., and by the time you're 30, we're talking Vladimir Lenin. From skateboarder to communist stooge. If I've seen it happen once, I've seen it happen a thousand times."

"So that's why you shoot them? To prevent, I'm sorry — contain — the spread of Communism?"

"Is there a more noble pursuit?"

"Probably," I said, looking down at the body of the skateboarder. He was still lying across the top of the bikes even though a number of people had come and gotten their bikes.

"Probably?" Bart said. "No, D.L., not probably. It is the only noble pursuit. Why, skateboarders even violate the University's goal of diversity. Filthy heathens!" Bart fired two more rounds into the skateboarder's body.

"How do you mean? How do they violate the goal?"

"D.L., you can't be a skateboarder if you don't own a skateboard. That's discrimination based on possessions, which is a form of classism. If you're not athletic, you can't do all those tricks, and if you can't do all those tricks, you can't be a skateboarder. That's discrimination based on performance, a form of athleticism. I won't even talk about the kinds of clothes you have to wear or those silly hats."

"But is shooting them all you can do?"

"I suppose we could ban skateboards."

"Oh come on, Bart. If you outlaw skateboards only outlaws will have skateboards."

"Exactly my point, D.L. K-State has banned skateboards on campus, so the only people still on skateboards are outlaws."

"So you have taken it upon yourself to defend us from them?"

"Suffer not a witch to live, D.L., it says so right in our constitution. I'm sure that stretches to include skateboarders. I'm just doing the Wefald's work."

The Wefald. I couldn't think of a response to that.

"Come on, D.L. I'm doing this for your safety. I envision a campus where pedestrians are free to walk over every piece of sacred concrete without having to dive into the grass to avoid a skateboarder. This will truly be a world of peace some day."

"But isn't it a bit of a hopeless fight, Bart," I said. "I mean, they can't even keep the bicyclists off the sidewalk. How can you keep the skateboarders off?"

"Oh, it won't be easy, D.L. Revolution never is. But I'll fight the good fight, and I'll give it my all."

"But what about the bicyclists?"

"Once the skateboarders are driven from the face of the campus, we will then — the campus police and I — drive the bicyclists back out into the streets where they belong."

"Why just focus on the skateboarders then?" I asked.

"Easier to catch. And let me say this, D.L., whenever there's two lovers walking in the grass so they can hold hands without having to make a quick dive, I'll be there. Whenever there's a man in pain because some skateboarder collided with him from behind, I'll be there. Whenever there's a fight so that free pedestrians can get a decent walk, I'll be there. I'll be everywhere."

"I see. But won't that take time away from your studying? I know how important grades are to you."

"Oh, my GPA will probably suffer a modest decline, but such is the price of freedom."

I looked back over at the body. Someone had moved it aside so that he could get his bike out, but it was still lying near the rack.

"Uh, Bart, don't you think you should get away from here?" I said. "I mean, you just shot somebody. The police will probably be here soon."

"No, D.L., I think not. I've only committed a homicide which is almost like an assault, so the police won't be here until at least tomorrow."

"But he," I pointed to the body, "was skateboarding. There's probably three police chasing after him right now."

"No matter, D.L. Let them catch me. There's not a court on this campus that would convict me."

Unfortunately, he was probably right.

EDITORIALS

NC-17 rating offers film makers freedom

In recent weeks the Motion Picture Association of America has made a landmark change in its rating system.

The organization that virtually controls the play and release of nearly every motion picture in the country has finally opened its closed mind.

Under pressure to change the current rating jump between R and X, the association released a new rating between the two — NC-17.

Although the terminology is a little strange, the new rating will serve its purpose quite well, but only if the theaters and communities allow it to do its job.

The first film to be labeled NC-17, "Henry and June", has already been banned in several theaters, and its ads have been banned in newspapers from Michigan to Alabama.

The theory behind the new category was not to change the name from X to NC-17, but to recognize films that lie bewteen R and X.

For several years, film makers have produced films that were considered little more risque than an R movie, so they dumped them into the X category.

Those films could never be viewed by the majority of the public because they were associated with hard core pornography.

Finally, the MPAA has come to its senses and realized that the creativity of the artists needed some protection from virtual censorship.

Theaters and newspapers of communities across this country need to understand that this form of art and communication is not forced onto them. It is instead an opportunity to see something a little off-beat.

The things that run against the norm and challenge us to make decisions are what make us individuals.

As individuals, we should be champions of the First Amendment and argue that we don't necessarily have to agree with what someone is saying, but we should fight for their right to say it.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... David Frese
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel,
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Student Publications Staff

DIRECTOR/NEWS ADVISER ..... Ron Johnson
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR/ADVERTISING DIRECTOR ..... Gloria Freeland
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR ..... Linda Puntney
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Ann Foster
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE ..... Jackie Harmon
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Linda Weatherly
OFFICE MANAGER ..... Pat Hudgins
ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT ..... Connie Fulkerson
INTERIM NEWS PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... David Svoboda
NEWS PRODUCTION ASSISTANT ..... Carla Jones
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Wanda Haynie
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS ..... Tammi Landis, Dana Franklin, Chris Tucker, Britt Owen, Deanna Adams
OFFICE STAFF ..... Shanta Bailey, Matt FitzGerald, Christa South
CARRIERS ..... Joe Cook, Minda Dowdy, John Fulkerson, Norm LeComte, James Seymore

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Involvement affects future

Todd Johnson

GUEST COLUMNIST

"There is a dangerous myth abroad in this land that an ordinary citizen can do nothing to influence the destiny of his country and the world. I have not decided whether this is a rationalization or an epitaph." — Milton S. Eisenhower, former K-State President

Reorganization. Expansion of the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex. Future funding for the Margin of Excellence. Farrell Library improvements. The results of this year's gubernatorial election, and its affect on K-State. A new art museum. Funding of K-State student organizations. The University's commitment to cultural diversity. Scholarships. Selective admissions. Engineering fee. Campus safety ...

These are just some of the reasons you should get involved with Student Governing Association. These are real issues which affect you directly or indirectly. Whatever the outcome, we will all see and feel the effects of the challenging decisions before us.

Take, for example, University President Jon Wefald's call for reorganization. How will this affect us in the future? Some of us might be the last to receive a K-State degree in a particular area of study. Or you, as a current student, may return to the University someday as a president, professor or dean and have to endure the results. Or our children will have to select from a reduced list of options and may have to consider another Kansas university (gasp!).

There are many initiatives to develop and decisions to be made. This is not high school student council. This is real world discussion and participation in a major decision-making arena. It is a big commitment which requires a certain amount of your time. If you have a desire to get involved at K-State and make a real difference, then Student Government is your opportunity.

Look at what students have done this past year. They've pushed a University library agenda, and the addition is finally on the five-year capital improvement plans. Library fund raising through the Essential Edge Campaign has been stimulated. Students have proposed a plan to enhance our recreational facilities with a minimal effect on our fees. There is more awareness about campus safety. Campus lighting has improved. Students are more concerned and involved in state politics. Student senators have allocated hundreds of thousands of dollars for student groups and activities. Students have helped direct the future of this university — and they should.

I encourage you to become as active and vocal as possible during your time here. Stop by the Student Government Services office in the K-State Union and pick up an application for student body president, student senator, or Board of Student Publications. These are due in the Dean of Student Life's Office in Holton Hall by 5 p.m. Tuesday. If you don't run for office, you can still be active in Student Government through a number of committees and positions that will be advertised after the elections. The elections (and probably a Rec-expansion referendum) will be Oct. 30 and 31. The run-off (if necessary) between the top two student body president candidates will be Nov. 7.

Vote and get involved because even though we are students here for a relatively short period of time, we are responsible for setting the course of our university's future events. We students will always be K-Staters. As alumni, we will provide stability to our university through time of change. Administrators come and go. Faculty come and go. We'll be the ones who remain active with alumni events, and maybe we'll want to send our children here.

Students, we can sit back and let administrators and faculty decide what our great university will be like long after they are gone, or we can take advantage of our opportunities to make a difference. That's why I take my job seriously. I hope you'll accept your responsibility as students and help shape the future of K-State. Take the first step — run for office or encourage a friend to.

Todd Johnson is the student body president.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged and are given the highest priority.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

IN FOCUS

Red Skelton laughs at one of his own jokes while speaking to a group of theater students Wednesday afternoon in Nichols Theatre. Skelton will present a concert at 8 p.m. Saturday in Bramlage Coliseum in conjuction with Parents' Day.

SHOWTIME WITH RED

BEFORE THE CURTAIN OPENS

Skelton picks up a pack of socks at K mart in Manhattan. Skelton buys socks and wears them only once because it's cheaper than having them cleaned each day on the road.

Happy grins, shocked faces and star-struck stares paved the way for comedian Red Skelton when he traveled Manhattan's streets carrying a camcorder almost everywhere he went on Wednesday.

"You're taking pictures of me and I'm filming you," Skelton told Manhattan crowds. "I send this tape home to Mrs. Skelton so she can see where I am at."

Skelton told the crowd he gets up about 5:30 every morning and writes his wife a love letter after he's showered and shaved.

In addition to the daily letter to his wife, Skelton has many hobbies to keep him busy. He writes an outline for a short story every day, he paints pictures of clowns, writes children's literature and grows bonsai trees.

Skelton has composed almost 5,000 musical selections and 64 symphonies, starred in 48 movies, written more than 22 movie scripts and in his years of performing has published five books.

At a press conference in the Bramlage Coliseum Legends' room Wednesday morning, Skelton said that he tries to be nice to everybody.

"Man is made in God's image," Skelton said. "I haven't met God, and the next guy might be him."

Skelton toured Varney's Bookstore and K mart searching for props, oil paints and brushes for his Saturday night show, not turning down anyone who was courageous enough to ask for a picture or an autograph. He signed more than 30 autographs in an hour's time at K mart.

"He's a very nice man," said Tammy Fiscus, a K mart employee. "He didn't seem to mind that everyone was bugging him for an autograph."

Skelton selected white tube socks, explaining that it was cheaper for him to buy a pair and throw them out when he was done using them. Instead of paying 75 cents to have them washed, it only cost him 45 cents to buy a new pair.

Skelton shopped in K mart for nearly 15 minutes before he was recognized by an employee.

Skelton was recognized immediately in Varney's Bookstore.

"A lot of people, they come in and they're gone, they don't care," said Betty Henning, Varney's Bookstore employee. "He's a people person and is interested in what we're like in the Midwest."

> "The only home I actually know is the theater. I've been in (people's) living rooms for 45 years, and when they come to the theater, they're in my living room." —Red Skelton

"I never got to meet a movie star," said Cheryl Glazner, Varney's Bookstore employee. "He hasn't changed a bit except for the red hair."

"We never went anywhere when the Red Skelton show was on," said Janet Allison, Varney's Bookstore employee. "There is not a better comedian. You get tickled at him. When he put the cigar in his mouth, it hits. He's a doll, an absolute doll."

When Skelton had a question-and-answer session with theatrical students, the room was filled with enthusiasm and inspiration.

"The only home I actually know is the theater," Skelton told the students. "I've been in their living rooms for 45 years, and when they come to the theater, they're in my living room."

Skelton told the students that procrastination is a disease everybody suffers from. He said people must learn to use time and not let time use them.

When Skelton was asked about retirement, he said he would retire when they nail the lid down.

"We're all here for a purpose, and that's to build," Skelton said. "I don't know enough about life to worry about dying."

Skelton talked about how times have changed since he began performing.

"Television is getting worse," Skelton said. "CBS is doing everything in Iraq to make it a war."

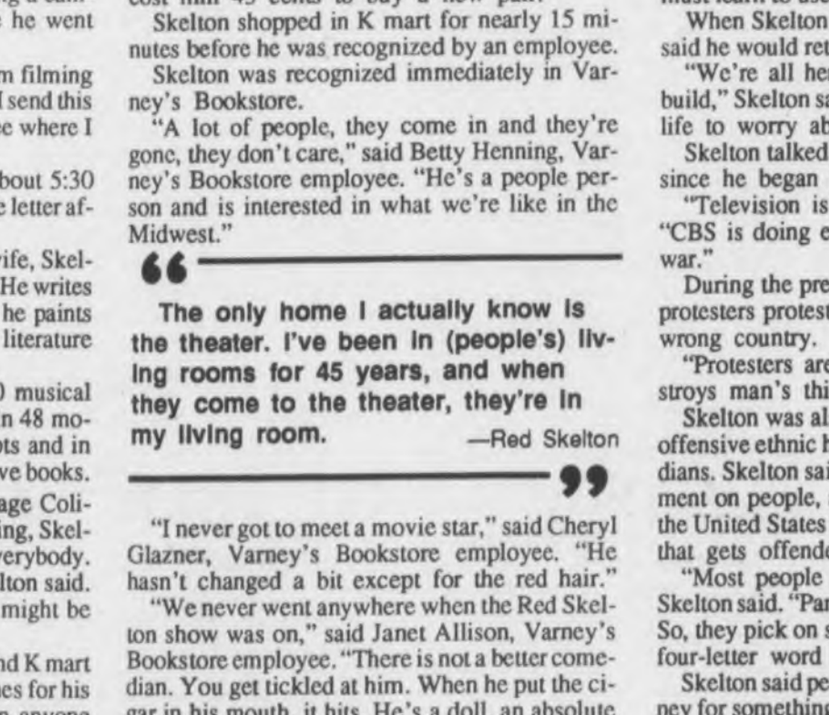
During the press conference Skelton said that protesters protest in the wrong place and in the wrong country.

"Protesters are causing propaganda that destroys man's thinking," Skelton said.

Skelton was also quizzed on today's so-called offensive ethnic humor and today's young comedians. Skelton said he could go to Italy and comment on people, and they would laugh. He said the United States is the only country in the world that gets offended by it.

"Most people take short cuts for laughter," Skelton said. "Panic sets in to hear a bigger laugh. So, they pick on someone in the audiece or use a four-letter word to shock people."

Skelton said people should not have to pay money for something they can read on the bathroom wall. Comedians, he said, should keep it simple.



"People in hell, where do they tell people to go?" Skelton chuckled at himself.

Skelton said after he finishes a show he goes back to the empty theater.

"An hour ago I was important," Skelton said. "Tomorrow I must start again."

ABOVE: Skelton videotapes KSU Stadium after arriving at Bramlage Coliseum for a press conference Wednesday. The daily tapes are sent back home to his wife, so she can be on tour with him. RIGHT: Skelton performs a short skit of Gertrude and Heathcliff for a group of students in Nichols Theatre Wednesday afternoon.

Skelton receives a kiss from Maria Santucci, junior in theater, after he gave her an autograph outside Nichols Hall Wednesday.

PHOTOS BY MIKE VENSO

STORY BY LIZ ANNE MCELHANEY

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS

Wildcats look to avenge '89 defeat by OSU

K-State Wildcats vs. Oklahoma State Cowboys

Game Time: 1:10 p.m.
Place: KSU Stadium (42,000).
Radio: Wildcat Radio Network (WIBW 580 AM, flagship); Mitch Holthus, Stan Weber, Ben Boyle.
Season Records: K-State 3-2, 0-1; Oklahoma State 2-3, 0-1.
Series Record: Oklahoma State leads, 32-12-0.
Notes: OSU has won six straight in the series, dating back to a 21-20 K-State win at Stillwater in 1983 ... Cowboy coach Pat Jones is 18-0 against K-State, Kansas and Missouri in his career at the OSU helm ... It's Parents' Day at K-State, with the honorary parents being recognized at halftime.

By Russ Ewy
Sports Reporter

Even though K-State coach Bill Snyder harbors no bad feelings for Oklahoma State, the 'Cats will look to take back the victory the Cowboys stole from them last year.

With 1:37 left in last year's contest, Oklahoma State quarterback Mike Gundy went four-of-four for 74 yards passing as the 'Pokes drove 91 yards for the winning touchdown in Stillwater.

"There's no get-even syndrome on this particular ballgame," Snyder said. "I think I approach (all games) the same way. I haven't looked at (the Oklahoma State game) from the standpoint that there's some type of redemption involved."

Instead, Snyder has put last season in the past and last week's loss to Nebraska out of mind, as K-State and Oklahoma State look for their first Big Eight wins of the year when they square off at 1:10 p.m, Saturday in KSU Stadium.

"I think (the mood of the team) is business at hand and preparation towards Oklahoma State," Snyder said. "I don't think anybody's dwelling on the (Nebraska game). Our kids and our coaches have a real opportunity in front of us, and it's just a matter of how hard and how well we prepare. The mental aspect is obviously an extremely important facet of that preparation."

Snyder, whose 3-2 team is off to its best start since 1982, likes his chances to post his first Big Eight win at K-State against the Cowboys, although he never dismissed the chance of victory against the Cornhuskers.

"The obvious thought is you have a better opportunity. The odds are probably not going to be quite as restrictive as they would be in the Nebraska ballgame," Snyder said. "That makes this one an extremely valuable ballgame, but I don't linger on that with our kids because I want our kids to understand that we had a chance against Nebraska."

Snyder says that in all probability, senior quarterback Carl Straw will get the starting job after being injured in the New Mexico game two weeks ago and seeing limited action last week against Nebraska.

"(Straw) didn't come out of the ballgame with any setbacks whatsoever, and has improved since then, so he'll be back on the field Saturday," Snyder said.

The Cowboys enter the game 2-3 overall and 0-1 in the conference after losing to Oklahoma 31-17, but are looking to extend their six-game winning streak over K-State.

Oklahoma State's starting lineup has many young faces. Four freshmen and two sophomores start in the Cowboys' defensive lineup, as well as four underclassmen on offense.

"They have a lot of really young kids, which have seemed to have gotten better week in and week out," Snyder said. "There are also some tremendously gifted and talented youngsters running around on the field."

One player who isn't new to Oklahoma State is senior tailback Gerald Hudson, who ranks fourth in the nation and second in the Big Eight in rushing with a 131.4 yards per game average.

Another offensive threat is split end Curtis Mayfield, who is third in the conference in receptions with 4.4 per game and in yards with 73 per contest.

"(Gerald) Hudson, I think, is a tremendously gifted athlete — a big-play type guy. (Curtis) Mayfield is exactly the same way," Snyder said. "They have some young guys, but I think they have improved to the point that I thought they played quite well against Oklahoma, offensively and defensively. With the threats they pose — if they get the ball in Mayfield's hands or Hudson's hands — they're a threat to create big plays against you. That's something we always have to defend against and that becomes a big problem in a ballgame like this."

Replacing Gundy, the all-time Big Eight passing leader, at the helm is sophomore quarterback Earl Wheeler — the sixth-best passer in the conference with 114.9 rating.

"(Wheeler) is a youngster that last year didn't play because (the Cowboys) had (Chris) Smith, who started against us, and Gundy," Snyder said. "He went through spring playing baseball and had a shoulder injury, so consequently could not participate actively in spring drills. Because of that, I think, he did not start the first two ballgames of this year. Now he has been cast into the starting role."

The Cowboys rank seventh in the Big Eight in both total defense, giving up 397.2 yards to their opposition, as well as scoring defense, allowing 27.6 points per contest. Snyder, however, sees O-State improving each game.

"Their defense has made a tremendous amount of improvement over a year ago, and certainly you can see it through the season as well," Snyder said.

SPORTS BRIEFLY

'Cats to play at home

K-State's baseball team will continue its fall schedule with action Saturday and Sunday at Frank Myers Field.

On Saturday, Cowley County Community College will be the opponent at 5 p.m. On Sunday, Creighton of the Missouri Valley Conference will battle the Wildcats beginning at 12:30 p.m.

Royals hire Dobson

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Pat Dobson, pitching coach of the San Diego Padres, was named to a similar post with the Kansas City Royals Thursday, and three other coaches were rehired.

Dobson replaces Frank Funk, who was let go by Manager John Wathan at the end of the season. The Royals have not named a replacement for batting coach John Mayberry, who also was fired.

An announcement Thursday by Wathan and Herk Robinson, the Royals' new general manager, said third base coach Adrian Garrett, first base coach Bob Schaefer and bullpen coach Glenn Ezell would return. The returning coaches and Dobson were given one-year contracts.

Margaret Clarkin/Staff

Ball control

Gaby Hanek (dark jersey), senior in pre-medicine, races to get control of the ball from a soccer player from Central College of McPherson at Frank Anneberg Park Thursday. K-State won 13-0.

Spikers to face Kangaroos

By Russ Ewy
Sports Reporter

After losing to Kansas by a narrow margin Wednesday night, the K-State volleyball squad will host the University of Missouri-Kansas City at 7:30 tonight in Ahearn Field House.

The 'Cats, 5-8, skidded to a 0-3 start in the Big Eight when the Jayhawks escaped Ahearn with a four-game victory, but the Wildcats plan to regain some of the momentum from their play last weekend in Iowa, where K-State lost to Iowa State in five games before blanking Drake, 3-0.

K-State swept UMKC, 3-0, in Kansas City Labor Day weekend. Since then, the Kangaroos haven't fared well, posting a 0-13 record so far this season.

Despite the apparent swing in difficulty between Kansas, 10-5, and the struggling UMKC squad, K-State coach Scott Nelson plans on preparing the same way for this match.

"I think our focus will be on ourselves again," Nelson said. "UMKC, traditionally, is a scrappy team. We struggled to beat them 3-0 at UMKC. We handled them easily in the first game, it was a little tougher in the second game, and in the third game it was a struggle all the way. We trailed the entire third game in our first match and won at the end."

Senior middle hitter Valery Roberts has moved to the top of the 'Cats' hitting chart with a .300 hitting

■ See SPIKERS, Page 12

Harriers to Arizona, Indiana

By Dan Wicker
Sports Reporter

The K-State cross country squads have had a small change of plans.

Instead of having a weekend of competition at Coach John Capriotti's alma mater in California at the Cal-Poly Invitational, the women will compete today at Arizona State and the men will run on Saturday at Indiana.

"Cal-Poly did not offer us the meet that we wanted. We could have gone to Iowa State, but it was all conference teams. We are going to see them in two weeks, so it doesn't make any sense running there," Capriotti said. "We need to run against other teams that have a chance to go to nationals, like we do."

The women, who are returning from a second-place finish to Arkansas at the Oklahoma State Jamboree, will be looking for their second meet title of the year. The women are currently ranked 16th in the nation.

Challenging K-State for the title will be the host, Arizona State, along with Baylor, New Mexico, New Mexico State and Long Beach State. The meet will encompass about 15 schools, Capriotti said.

"We need to stop worrying about where other teams are, and where other members of our team are. Each individual has to go out there and run the race they are capable of," Capriotti said. "I hope we could win the meet. People are not going to lay down just because we have been good in the past. There are other good teams there that want to go to nationals as well."

Standing in the way of the women's team is its attitude about racing, Capriotti said. He believes the team needs to go out and grasp what it wants instead of being tenative in its running.

"The women still have a long ways to go. They need to be more aggressive and get out into the race early," Capriotti said. "We got left at the beginning of the Oklahoma State race, and we can't let that happen again. We can't run passively."

Behind the strong lead duo of All-American Janet Haskin and Janet Treiber, Capriotti is beginning to see the much-needed depth that the squad requires from its corps of freshmen and sophomores. The group includes Paulette Staats, Jennifer Hillier, Janet Magner and Amy Marx.

"All those girls have improved tremendously, but they are going to need to run better to accomplish the goals that we have," Capriotti said.

The men's team will be off to Indiana on Saturday, where it will be pitted against Indiana, Kentucky, Eastern Michigan and Ohio State, among other strong cross country schools. The men will also be facing a course in Bloomington, Ind., that has been the site of two NCAA championships.

"It is a very challenging course, and it will give them a chance to see some out-of-district faces," Capriotti said. "It will be some great competition. The University of Kentucky men are ranked."

The men will also be looking for their second meet championship, but they will also be looking for a strong team race which, Capriotti said, they have not produced.

Capriotti said the team has strong up-front runners in David Warders and Todd Trask, and there have been improvements from Ron Smith and Phil Byrne.

"The men are still looking for a total team race, and if and when we do, I think we will surprise a lot of people," Capriotti said. "Our 1-5 runners have been a minute and a half to a minute and 40 seconds apart. We need to get that gap down to closer to a minute."

The front four runners all have the ability to be the leaders of a nationally powerful team, Capriotti said.

"We have the capability to be very good with our first four runners, but we have only had two of the four run well. The better those four put it together, the more pressure it takes off the fifth man," Capriotti said. "We're not looking for any miracles. I think if we go in there and run a solid team race, the results will show it for themselves."

'Cat tennis team to face Jayhawks

By Todd Fertig
Sports Reporter

In sharp contrast to a talented and experienced Kansas team, several unknowns will be taking the court for K-State as the women's tennis team faces the Jayhawks in Lawrence today.

Going into the first and only dual of the fall season with injuries and inexperience makes the meet unpredictable, said K-State coach Steve Bietau.

Although he is emphasizing individual development in the fall season, Bietau said the meet carries added significance, which puts more pressure on the players' performance than the other fall meets.

"There's no doubt about it, people who don't even care about tennis come out to watch this meet because of the rivalry between the two schools," Bietau said.

Bietau said No. 2 singles player Thresa Burcham and No. 4 singles player Angie Gover are still recovering from injuries and that several members of the team will be playing in their first dual meet. With these uncertainties playing a part, Bietau wants to be particularly certain the team is focused on fundamentals and consistency, rather than the opponent.

"The most important thing in a meet like this is that we don't pay too much attention to anything that can distract us from what we've been doing," Bietau said. "Once you've established a system and have found things that are working for you, you don't want to do anything to pull you away from that."

Kansas returns its entire team from the squad that defeated the Wildcats at Lawrence, 5-4, last spring. The Jayhawks' No. 1 player, Eveline Hamers, reached the semifinals of the NCAA tournament last season and is currently ranked ninth in the nation. Bietau said Kansas has made dramatic improvements in its doubles teams and has added depth this season.

Gover's shoulder injury has caused Bietau to shuffle the lineup in the past two weeks. Claudia Patron will play No. 6 singles if Gover isn't ready, a decision Bietau said may not be made until the meet. Burcham, who struggled with an ankle injury last week, will play today, however, Bietau said.

Coming off a victory in the singles tournament at K-State's home meet last weekend, Michelle Riniker will take on Hamers at No. 1 singles. Riniker, a freshman from Switzerland, is playing her best tennis since coming to K-State and hopes to challenge the All-American.

Bietau said he was pleased with the progress the team made going into its second meet last week and hopes to see the same progress today. He said the improvement in the mental aspects of the game are still the team's first priority.

"I believe before you can start beating others you have to be sure that you're not beating yourself."

Men's hoop squad to open year 1 A.S.

David Svoboda
SPORTS EDITOR

It hardly seems possible, but K-State is about to enter the year 1 A.S.

No, this isn't the year 1990 A.D., it's year No. 1 After Steve.

Confused yet? When the K-State men's basketball team opens practice at 12:01 a.m. Monday, former Wildcat Steve Henson will be nowhere to be found.

Yes, it's 1 A.S., but by no means is the 'Cat cupboard as bare as many of the so-called "experts" would have you believe.

Come check out Midnight Madness Sunday night and Monday morning, and I think you'll agree.

The Wildcats, under new head coach Dana Altman, return a solid cast of players from a team that made yet another NCAA tourney appearance earlier this year.

Back are Jean Derouillere and Askia Jones, both starters a year ago. Also returning are Keith Amerson, Wylie Howard, John Rettiger, Patrick Sams, Marlon Shadd and Jeff Wires.

Derouillere is an explosive player who can do a variety of different things with and without the basketball, and he should flourish in Altman's proposed up-tempo system. Jones, coming off an injury suffered this summer, will be held out of action for the first two weeks of practices, but he is a respected team leader as a sophomore.

Amerson is more athletic than he had the chance to show in former coach Lon Kruger's system. Howard can bring down the house — and a rim or two in the process — with his thundering dunks.

Rettiger made marked improvement last season. Remember how Big John outplayed Iowa State's Victor Alexander in Bramlage last spring? Wires is a legitimate, big-time point guard. His penetrating ability should be better served in an up-tempo, transition-style attack.

Sams and Shadd are unknowns of sorts, but both can be electrifying. Sams is a great leaper. I've still got the image of Sams dunking over Henson in last year's Midnight Madness scrimmage burned in my mind. And Shadd is ready to explode after losing his freshman campaign to academic trouble. He'll battle Wires and one of the newcomers for the spot Henson vacated at point guard.

As for the newcomers, they comprise a talented and deep group.

■ See COLUMN, Page 12

Parents' Weekend to have new, varied events

By Amy Hadlock
Staff Reporter

K-State has once again planned a plethora of events for the annual fall event — Parents' Weekend 1990.

The weekend will offer students and their parents social activities ranging from a taste of K-State food products to a pre-game party in the KSU Stadium parking lot before the Wildcats tackle the Oklahoma State Cowboys.

The 1990 Honorary Parents for K-State will be presented at halftime of the football game and cookbooks of the winners of the Home Sweet Home Cooking Contest will be available.

"We try to create a social atmosphere for a mini-family reunion," said Tim Lindemuth, associate director of news services. "We want it to be a fun time for the students and their parents."

Parents' Weekend is organized by Chimes Junior Honorary and the Parents' Weekend Committee and opens the University to the parents.

"Parents' Weekend is a time when the parents can come and see what school is like," said Roger Trenary, Chimes adviser. "It is also an organized weekend, so there are a lot of things going on so the students can show the school off to their parents."

Although Parents' Weekend dates back into the 1960s, this year there have been a few changes, Lindemuth said.

"We are taking a more aggressive approach to Parents' Weekend now," Lindemuth said. "In the past the students would have liked to show their parents some of the inside of the buildings; however, they were locked. Now, certain buildings will remain open for tours.

"The tours that are planned for this weekend are the tours that are popular and the most requested," he said. "They are sponsored by the various colleges that will be putting them on."

Some of the tours that are available for Parents' Weekend are the MacDonald Laboratory Tour, K-State Butterfly and Insect Collection Tour, K-State Historic Costume and Textile Collection Tour, Nuclear Reactor Tour, Rose Garden and Conservatory Tour and guided tours of K-State's main campus.

A Taste of K-State is an event that takes place at the Dairy Bar in Call Hall and the Meat Sales Laboratory in Shellenberger Hall. Free samples will be given along with a chance to tour the cheese, ice cream, meat and bakery facilities.

The football game is the main event of Parents' Weekend. A party in the parking lot will take place before the game at the K-State Stadium. Kickoff is at 1:10 p.m. with the halftime presentation of the 1990 Honorary Parents by Chimes Junior Honorary.

"For the Honorary Parents award, students are asked to write an essay to nominate their parents and then one set of parents is chosen," Lindemuth said. "The parents are honored with a banquet, plaque and then being recognized at half-time."

This year's Honorary Parents are Richard and Hannah Kerschen of Wichita. Their daughter Karla Kerschen, junior in accounting, wrote the winning essay. The Kerschens also have a son who attends K-State. Dennis Kerschen is a senior in construction science.

The Home Sweet Home Cooking Contest Cookbooks will be available this weekend, and some of the recipes will be served in meals during Parents' Weekend and also this fall.

One of the more publicized events slated for the weekend's activities is the Red Skelton show, which will take place at 8 p.m. Saturday in Bramlage Coliseum.

Although Parents' Weekend only lasts three days, a year's worth of work goes into it.

"Most everything has gone very smoothly with marvelous cooperation from everyone; however, housing the parents has been a real problem," Lindemuth said. "We have made arrangements with the visitors' bureaus to help locate lodging for the weekend in Manhattan, Wamego, Junction City, Council Grove, Abilene and Clay Center."

HONEY BUNNY — I'd love a COLLEGIAN Personal. One day is only $3 for 15 words.

PARENTS' DAY SPECIAL
AT VARNEY'S
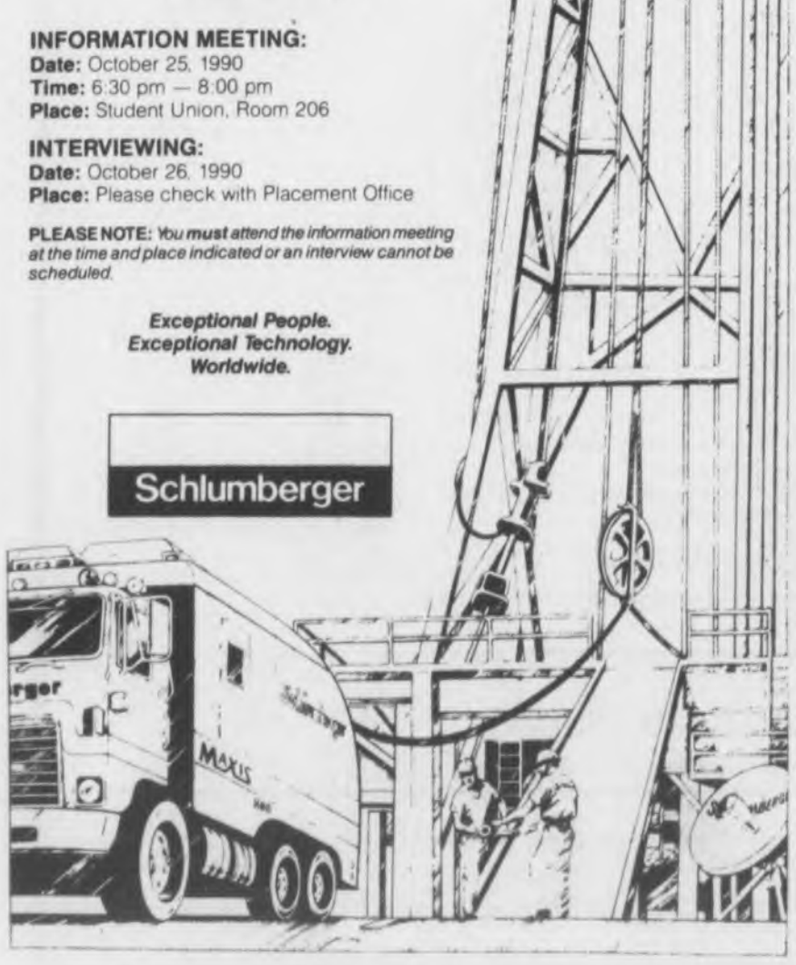
K-State Mom
and
K-State Dad
Sweatshirts
Regular price: $35.99
Varney's special only $25.99
open Mon.-Sat. 9-9
and Sun. noon to 5 p.m.
Varney's BOOK STORE
In Aggieville



SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13TH
The Mid-America
RECORD CONVENTION
COMES TO MANHATTAN, KS.
RAMADA INN
Easy-to-Find: ACROSS FROM CAMPUS
• 17th & Anderson
10 a.m. - 5 p.m.
PLAN TO ATTEND MANHATTAN'S BEST-EVER MUSIC SALE!!
Giant Selection of Rock - Oldies - Country - Jazz - Soundtracks - More!
CDs - Albums - 45s - Videos - Posters - Out of Print - Collectables!
Door Prizes! ★ DON'T MISS OUT ★ $1 Admission

FIELDS OF FAIR
Wine Tasting Tours
Kansas Made Gifts
WINERY
Just 20 minutes east of Manhattan on I-70
Exit #333, Paxico, KS
(913) 636-5560

Nora's Lavender & Lace
This weekend, bring by visiting family and friends... we always have something new to see!
Manhattan Town Center
Manhattan, Kansas
539-8705
Herbs & Everlastings, Weddings, Linens & Potpourri.

Friday Night at the Movies...
Glory
Tonight at 9:30
Oct. 12
Free admission
Free popcorn
ECM Campus Center
1021 Denison

"One too many" is no excuse.
"Under no circumstances does the use of alcohol or other drugs diminish personal responsibility for aggressive or other socially unacceptable behavior."
KSU policy prohibiting sexual violence.
Call 532-6444 for more information.

SCHLUMBERGER FIELD
ENGINEERS
DON'T:
• wear suits and ties
• shuffle papers
• answer phones all day
• sit at a desk
DO:
• take charge
• work long hours
• assume heavy responsibility
• work outdoors
• make decisions
• face many challenges and risks
• perform data acquisitions and measurements of physical properties of subsurface formations
• interpret that information
ENJOY:
• working with a great deal of autonomy
• acting on an idea and risk carrying it to fruition
• taking pride in a job well done
MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
(and other engineering disciplines)
GEOSCIENCES
APPLIED SCIENCES
INFORMATION MEETING:
Date: October 25, 1990
Time: 6:30 pm — 8:00 pm
Place: Student Union, Room 206
INTERVIEWING:
Date: October 26, 1990
Place: Please check with Placement Office
PLEASE NOTE: You must attend the information meeting at the time and place indicated or an interview cannot be scheduled.
Exceptional People.
Exceptional Technology.
Worldwide.
Schlumberger

Religious Directory

COLLEGE HEIGHTS BAPTIST CHURCH
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Servic
6 p.m. Training Hour
7 p.m. Worship Service
2221 College Heights Rd. 537-7744

Christian Science Church
511 Westview Drive 539-5605
10 a.m. morning service•10 a.m. Sunday School
Wednesday Testimony Meeting 7:30 p.m.
Reading room—428 Houston

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Church School—9:45 a.m.
Worship—8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.
Disciples of Christ
5tn and Humboldt 776-8790

UNITARIAN-UNIVERSALIST FELLOWSHIP OF MANHATTAN
10:45 a.m. Service & Sunday School
Nursery provided, everyone welcome
481 Zeandale Rd.
On K-18, 1/2 mile east of K-177

Evangelical Free Church of Manhattan
MCC Chapel S.W. corner 14th & Anderson
Steve Ratliff, Pastor
Worship 9:30 a.m.
Sunday School 11 a.m.
776-2086
Nursery Provided

Peace Lutheran Church
2500 Kimball Ave.
Worship at 8:30 a.m.
& 10:45 a.m.

First Baptist Church
Sunday Worship 11 a.m.
Church School 9:45 a.m.
2121 Blue Hills Rd.
539-8691

CHURCH OF CHRIST
Christian Campus Ministry
Sunday School-9:30 am
College Class-Money, Sex & Power: A Biblical Perspective
Sunday Worship-10:30 am & 6 pm
2510 Dickens Ave. 539-6581

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Worship at 8:30 & 11 a.m.
Sunday School 9:45 a.m. (for all ages)
10th & Poyntz 537-8532

St. Luke's Lutheran Church
Worship Saturday 6 p.m.
Sunday 8 and 10:45 a.m.
—Bible Class—
Sun. 9:30 a.m.—Thurs. 7-8:30 p.m.
539-2604 330 N. Sunset

FIRST CHURCH of the NAZARENE
College Class 9:30 a.m.
Worship Services 10:50 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Sunday School 9:45 a.m.
1000 Fremont *Nursery Available 539-2851

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
8:45 a.m. Communion
(first Sunday of the month)
9:45 College Church School
8:45 & 11 a.m. Worship
Nursery provided for all services
John D. Stoneking, Pastor
612 Poyntz 776-8821

St. Isidore's University Chapel
Catholic Student Center
Sunday Masses 9:30, 11 a.m., 5 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Daily Mass-M, Tu, Th, F 4:30 p.m.
Wed. 11 a.m. at St. Mary Hospital
Wed. 10 p.m. evening prayer
Confessions-½ hr. before daily mass.
Rev. Norbert Dlabal, Chaplain
Sister Rose Walters, C.S.A.
711 Denison 539-7496

Trinity Presbyterian Church
1110 College Ave.
Sunday Worship 10:45 a.m.
Young Adult Class 9:30 a.m.
539-3921

Valleyview Community Church
Sunday Worship
10:30 a.m.
Ramada Inn, lower level
17th and Anderson
For more information call
Dan Walter 776-0112

CRESTVIEW CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6:30 p.m.
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
4761 Tuttle Creek Blvd.776-3798
(2 miles north of Marlatt and Tuttle Creek Blvd.)

WESTVIEW COMMUNITY CHURCH
Worship 8 and 10:30 a.m.
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Sunday Evening Worship 6 p.m.
1st, 3rd, & 5th Sundays
CARE CELLS (Small Groups)
6 p.m. 2nd & 4th Sundays
3001 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7173

Anglican/Episcopal Community in Manhattan
St. Paul's Episcopal Church
& St. Francis/Canterbury Episcopal Fellowship at KSU
Sixth & Poyntz
776-9427 or 537-0593
- Sunday Services -
8 A.M. Holy Eucharist I
9:30 Christian Education Classes (for all ages)
10:30 A.M. Choral Eucharist Rite II
(Nursery available at 10:30 service)
Especially for KSU Students & Faculty
5 P.M. Sunday,
Informal Eucharist followed by light supper and fellowship.
7:10 A.M. Tuesday & Thursday,
Morning Prayer, Danforth Chapel, KSU

GRACE BAPTIST CHURCH
2901 Dickens Ave.
Don Pahl, Pastor
Mike Tuley, Pastor
776-0424
Worship 8:30 & 10:45 a.m.
Collegiate & International
Bible Studies Sun. 9:30 a.m.
Fellowship Hour Sun. 6 p.m.
Family Night Wed. 7 p.m.
STUDENTS WELCOME

The End of Your Search For a Friendly Church
First Congregational Church
Juliette & Poyntz
Sunday Worship 10:45 a.m.
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Rev. Robert Carlson
537-7006

LIVING WORD CHURCH
Services
Sunday 10 a.m.
Wednesday 7 p.m.
•Dynamic Praise & Worship
•Life Changing Preaching & Teaching
•Powerful Ministry
241 Johnson Road
1 mile south on Highway 177
776-0940

Workshop offers resume-writing aid for students searching for careers

Job-seekers get look at world of work

By Cari Richert
Collegian Reporter

K-State's Career Planning and Placement Center has scheduled the first resume building workshop of the semester on Oct. 16.

Students will be able to select one of two sessions available from 2:30 to 4:00 p.m. in K-State Union 208 or from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in Denison 124.

The workshop will help students, both in groups and individually, gather an inventory of past work and skill experiences, write statements of experience results and select the appropriate resume format.

Indiviually, counselers will work with students to edit and evaluate the resume work done in the group sessions and answer any questions the student might have.

Tracey Fraser, a center assistant director and a workshop coordinator, said all students are encouraged to come to the workshops, not just seniors.

"There are numerous opportunies to identify prospective employers through the Placement Center, and this is the perfect way for students to get started in the planning process," Fraser said.

Marcia Schuley, associate director and workshop coordinator, described the center as a place that offers opportunies to link people to the world of work.

The Center began on-campus interviews Oct. 1 and will continue through Nov. 28 for the fall semester.

There are job possibilities for students from all colleges with the exception of the College of Education, which will begin in the spring, Schuley said.

> "There are numerous opportunies to identify prospective employers through the Placement Center, and this is the perfect way for students to get started in the planning process."
>
> —Tracey Fraser
> center assistant director

According to the University's Career Placement Manual, the center betters students'interviewing skills by providing mock interviews, videotape equipment to practice interviews and personal critiques.

Special equipment like the SIGI PLUS, a computer career guidance system available by appointment, matches students'interests with possible majors or job titles, at no cost.

Besides on-campus interviews and workshops, the center also offers exploration of jobs through the career resource center, personal letters, resumes, interview guidance, job opportunity bulletins, employer information and contacts, referrals and summer employment placement.

The Placement Center plans to continue workshops on pursuing job opportunities throughout the year.

Program changes order of classes

By Liz Anne McElhaney
Collegian Reporter

The accounting department at K-State is one of five programs recently selected by Accounting Education Change Commission to reform current accounting educational objectives.

The $249,500 grant will be used during the next five years to change the order of accounting education students receive and help them retain the content more easily, enhance students' written and oral communication skills, improve tools for students to use to apply their education and improve recruiting students to the profession, said Penne Ainsworth, assistant professor of accounting.

Ainsworth said the grant was awarded in March and changes began this fall.

Accounting for Business Operations is the first course change and replaces the traditional financial accounting, Ainsworth said.

"The topic is concerned with business operations only," she said. "It's more of a user approach than preparation. It focuses on what you're looking at rather than how do you crunch out these numbers."

Ainsworth said they find many students do not have business experience. So for the first two days of the course, she focuses on business background and practice and tries not to mention the word

■ See GRANT, Page 12

KANSAS
for information on membership call:
JOY C. LOVIN
MEMBERSHIP REPRESENTATIVE
1-800-365-5222
EMERGENCY ROAD SERVICE

Have "You" Had Your Frozen Yogurt Today??
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY.
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers
Aggieville

BUSHWACKER'S
THE FUNDRINKERY
Welcome KSU Parents!
Comedy Invasion
Monday & Tuesday
Wednesday
David Naster
and Dan Ballard
Thurs., Oct. 25
Holyfield vs. Douglas on closed circuit TV

Pizza Hut®
DELIVERY
Makin' it great!®
CALL THE LOCATION NEAREST YOU.
•AGGIEVILLE 539-7666
•WESTLOOP 539-7447
•3RD & MORO 776-4334

Parents Day Concert
Men's Glee Club
Women's Glee Club
K-State Singers
Saturday, Oct. 13, 1990
8 p.m.
McCain Auditorium
Admission $5
Reserved seats 532-6428
or McCain Auditorium Box
Office Noon to 5 p.m.

MIDNIGHT MADNESS
Cats
Sunday
October 14, 1990
11 p.m.
—Schedule—
11:00 p.m.—Doors Open
11:15 p.m.—K-State Student Slam Dunk Contest
11:30 p.m.—K-State Student Dash for Cash
12:01 a.m.—Cats Take The Floor
A $1 donation will go to the United Way and the K-State Library Fund.
United Way
KQLA 104

JCPenney Parents Night
"Shopping Spectacular"
Friday Night, October 12th, 6:00 PM Till 10:00 PM
In Celebration of Parents Weekend at Kansas State University
*25% off (with Coupon Below)
•ALL WOMEN'S MERCHANDISE
•ALL MEN'S MERCHANDISE
•ALL KIDS MERCHANDISE
•ALL SHOES & FINE JEWELRY
•ALL HOME FURNISHINGS
JCPenney Savings Certificate
Here is your perfect opportunity to take advantage of a whole new world of fashion for yourself, your family and all your fall shopping.
•From 6:00 PM TO 10:00 PM Friday night, October 12th.
•Save 25 % on regularly priced* items you purchase on a one day shopping spree.
•Just present this certificate as you purchase each item and turn it in when making your last purchase of the day.
JCPenney 25% OFF SHOPPING Spree
*Discount applies only to regular priced merchandise and is limited to stock on hand. May not be used for the following:
•gift certificates, catalog, cosmetics, smart value items, Everyday Value Women's Outerwear;
•multiple packages of: furniture, home accessories, luggage, or multiple priced women's lingerie items;
•service purchases, including Custom Decorating and Styling Salons, or licensed departments;
•at Catalog Outlet, Thrift Drug Stores, or JCPenney Portfolio Home Furnishings;
•redeemed for cash, used for payment on account, or in combination with any other JCPenney coupon.
Your discount can apply to one or more items providing purchases are made during the same shopping visit at one JCPenney store. As always, credit purchases are subject to credit review. Minimum cash value 1/20th of one cent.
Take 25% off every* item in the store, with above coupon!!!
Coupon will be honored for all students/parents Saturday 10/13 Sunday 10/14 also 6:00 PM TO 10:00 PM Tonight 776-4867
JCPenney...Manhattan Town Center...Where Fashion Comes To Life!

Student engineers face $100 increase

By Christy Gritton
Collegian Reporter

Faculty members of College of Engineering are hoping to impose an fee on engineering students, starting this spring semester.

Donald Rathbone, dean of engineering, said the fee will fund equipment replacement, new technology, maintenance, computer equipment and computer-related instrumentation.

Although there are several different versions of the engineering fee plan, Rathbone is in favor of a $100 increase per engineering student, per year.

Todd Giefer, senior in architectural engineering and student senator, said, "My feeling is that most of the people in Student Senate oppose it."

Giefer said many senators may be afraid the enactment of the engineering fee will have a snowball effect and cause increased fees in their colleges.

Senate has yet to endorse the fee, Giefer said.

John Dollar, assistant dean of engineering, said he thinks there is a lot of student support for the fee.

"The Engineering Student Council has twice endorsed it," Dollar said.

In engineering student forums, students' attitudes toward the fee seemed positive, he said.

"It was my idea originally," Rathbone said. "I got things started, and it's been on going for about three years."

Rathbone said the fee will give the College of Engineering access to money that will be off-limits to the college if the fee is not enacted.

For example, the National Science Foundation, will give a certain amount of money to a college if that college is able to raise the same amount themselves. The engineering fee will give the engineering college that needed amount.

Rathbone said, "It's one of the key items for accreditation."

Dollar said the faculty had made an agreement with the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology to have an engineering fee plan enacted. The fee was supposed to be in place two weeks ago when the accreditation board visited the College of Engineering.

The accreditation board members are currently awaiting the decision of the Board of Regents as one of the deciding factors as to whether or not the college will remain accredited.

The regents will be the determining factor on whether or not the engineering fee will be enacted, Dollar said.

Giefer said, "Basically in the past if Student Senate approved fees, generally, the Board of Regents and the Legislature accepts the fee."

However, Giefer said, since Senate has not looked at the fee yet, the regents may rule on the fee without student input.

Dollar said, "If we don't get it, we're in a lot of trouble."

Campus groups to perform for parents this weekend

By Heather Anderson
Collegian Reviewer

Music fans with eclectic tastes may want to give this concert a try.

The K-State Singers and the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs will perform a concert featuring a variety of musical styles — from "Ave Maria" to "Splish, Splash, I Was Taking a Bath" — at 8 p.m. Friday in McCain Auditorium. The concert is in conjunction with Parents' Weekend.

Gerald Polich, group director, said the K-State Singers will again perform their composition of popular TV commercials.

"We've added eight or nine new ones this year," Polich said. "The audience always seems to like it."

K-State Singer Kerrie Knowles, senior in human ecology, said she agreed that the commercials are popular.

"They're so melodramatic, it makes them really funny," she said.

The group will sing a medley of Broadway show tunes, including "Play a Simple Melody," "Embraceable You" and "They Can't Take That Away From Me," and another medley featuring popular songs from the 1950s through the 1980s.

Knowles said the performance Friday is the first this semester for the K-State Singers, and she is glad it is during Parents' Weekend.

"After the game and all the activities, there isn't much to do except go out to the bars and parties," she said. "Our concert is a good alternative for people to do this weekend."

Knowles said that although about half the group is new this semester, the members blend together well.

"It's a nice change for everyone," she said.

Knowles is beginning her third year with the group.

The program also includes the Men's Glee Club's annual performance of a medley of Big Eight fight songs.

In addition, the 73-member group will perform Franz Biebel's "Ave Maria" as well as Randall Thompson's "The Last Words of David" and other spiritual tunes.

The Women's Glee Club will sing a medley titled "Broadway Showstoppers," which includes "Everything's Coming Up Roses," "People," "On a Clear Day" and "That's Entertainment."

The program will run two hours with an intermission. General admission for the concert is $5 and $1 for children under 12. Tickets can be purchased at the McCain Box Office today.

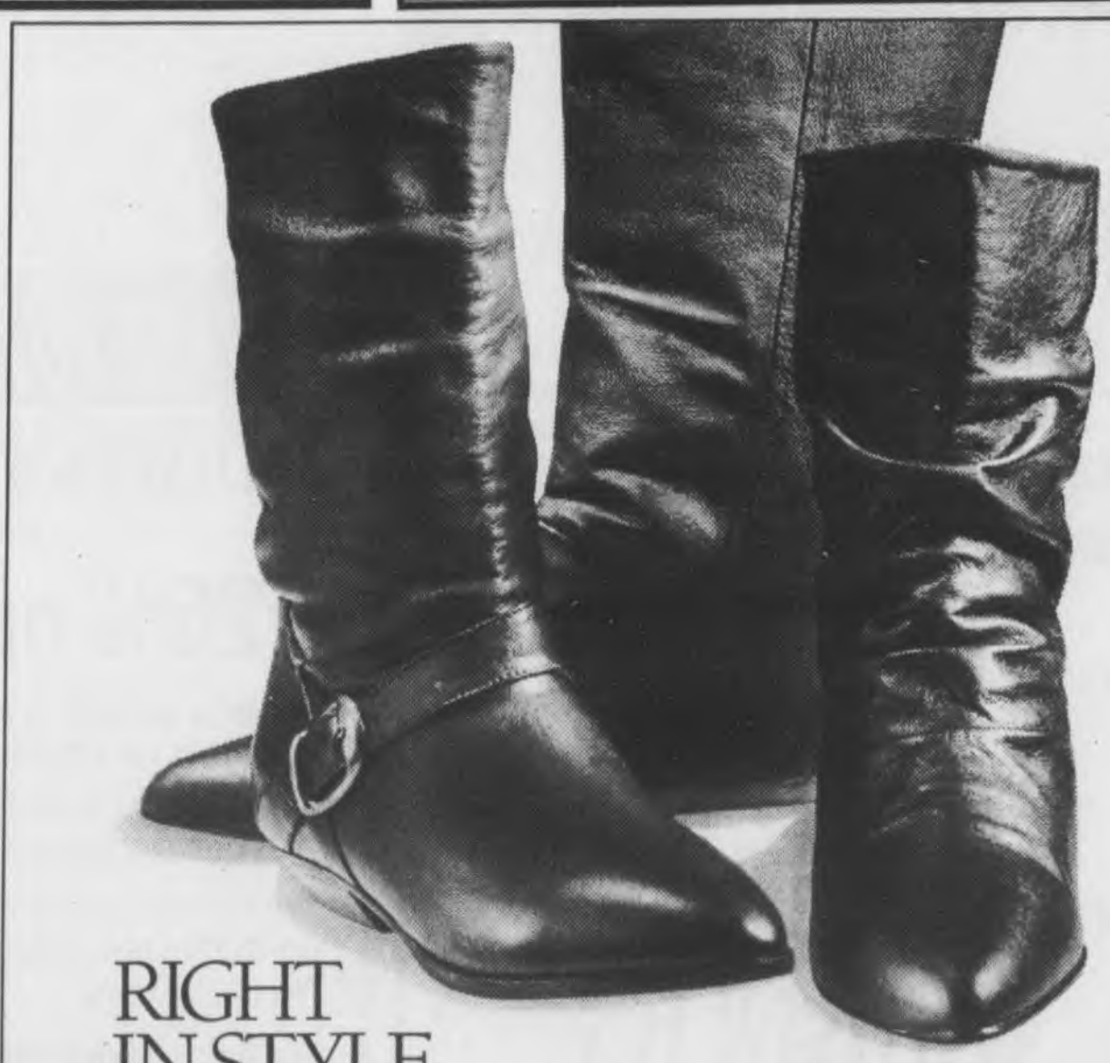
15 words 5 days $5.50
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
ClassADS
Kedzie Hall 103 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
532-6555

SOUTHWIND PRESENTS
Bring Your Parents Day
Saturday, Oct. 13, 1990
Ecumenical Center 10:30 a.m.

Hunam Chinese Restaurant
For Delivery
7 days a week
11 a.m. to 10 p.m.
539-8888 or 539-0888

SPORTS • SHOTS • SPORTS • SHOTS

Friday & Saturday
All Schnapps Shots $1
Saturday Food Sensation
Buy one sandwich, get the second at ½ off.
BoWinkle's
A Sports Bar
776-1022
3043 Anderson



Campus Organizations
LINE UP
YOUR MEMBERS
and get your group picture taken for the 1991 Royal Purple
Sept. 17 through Oct. 25
6:30 to 9 p.m.
Fairchild Hall 202
Maximum number of people in one photo is 30. Larger groups will require extra photo. Minimum number in photo is 10 unless proof of smaller membership is shown.
$10 per photo
Schedule appointment and pay for photo
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday
Kedzie Hall 103
QUESTIONS? CALL 532-6555

BAYSTREET AND THE PIT
FRIDAY
No Cover For The Ladies!
$2.50 Long Island Teas!
FREE Burgers 4-7
SATURDAY
No Cover With A STUDENT ID
$.25 KAMIS!
FREE Burgers 4-7

RESIDENCE HALL STAFF POSITIONS
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
STAFF 1991-1992
Qualifications include:
•Two semesters previous K-State Residence Hall experience
•Junior standing or equivalent (by Fall 1991)
•2.25 cumulative GPA
•Full-time student
•Successful completion of staff class (EDAF 311) offered during spring semester.
Deadline for application:
November 2, 1990
For a more complete list of qualifications and application information, contact your hall director, or visit Rosanne Proite, assistant director of Housing and Dining Services, located in the Pittman building.

RIGHT IN STYLE, WEATHER OR NOT.
Kinney's fall boot collection features rich leather with special accents like cuffs and belt buckle ornaments. Hot fashion for cold weather.
Kinney. We only sell the right shoe.
© 1990 Kinney Shoe Corp.
Manhattan Town Center • 537-2019

OCTOBER 20th
KQLA 104 103.9 FM
K-STATE VS MISSOURI
ICAT BUS TRIP
To Columbia, MO
DEPARTURE: MEET AT BRAMLAGE COLISEUM WEST PARKING LOT 7:30AM
EXPENSES: 25.00/PERSON (INCLUDES TICKET)
REGISTRATION: DEADLINE OCTOBER 13TH
DROP BY THE ATHLETIC OFFICE OR MAIL CHECK TO MIKE AHEARN SCOLARSHIP FUND (ICAT) 1800 COLLEGE AVE QUESTIONS (JEFF CHAPMAN 539-6910)

Congress says NEA grants subject to federal courts

Obscenity bill passes in House

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The House on Thursday rebuffed conservative demands for strict new obscenity curbs on the National Endowment for the Arts. Representatives also voted overwhelmingly to let the courts decide whether federally subsidized arts projects are obscene.

After an emotional five-hour debate, the House approved a bipartisan compromise sponsored by Reps. Pat Williams, D-Mont., and E. Thomas Coleman, R-Mo., that would penalize grant recipients if they are subsequently convicted of violating obscenity laws.

Passage of the Williams-Coleman measure on a 382-42 roll call vote signaled a major reversal of congressional sentiment on the politically explosive issue of federal support for art that some lawmakers consider offensive.

A year ago, in the heat of a controversy over support for exhibitions of works by photographer Robert Mapplethorpe and artist Andres Serrano, Congress approved explicit anti-obscenity restrictions on the endowment at the urging of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

On Thursday, the House rejected even more stringent curbs proposed by Rep. Dana Rohrabacher, R-Calif., and overwhelmingly defeated a separate proposal to abolish the $171 million federal arts agency altogether.

Like a similar measure awaiting Senate floor action, the House bill would scrap the current Helms restrictions on the endowment and rely on the courts to make determinations of obscenity.

The House bill also would renew the endowment's statutory authority for three years and order reforms in its grant-making procedures with the aim of making the endowment's decisions more responsive to the interests of the taxpaying public.

At the request of Republican negotiators, the bill provides an increase in the share of grants allocated to state arts agencies from 20 percent to 35 percent over three years.

The House planned to vote Friday on a separate appropriations bill that would boost the endowment's budget from $171 million to $180 million in the current fiscal year.

That bill, approved by the House Appropriations Committee, omits any content restrictions on works subsidized by the endowment. It also would order endowment chairman John E. Frohnmayer to scrap a controversial requirement that grant recipients sign an anti-obscenity pledge before they can receive federal money.

Before it approved the compromise bill, the House voted 249-175 to defeat Rohrabacher's proposal to prohibit support for works that depict sexually explicit conduct or sexual exploitation of children, attack religion, defile the American flag or include an actual human embryo or fetus.

House members also buried, 361-64, a proposal by Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., to abolish the agency because of its past support for what Crane called obnoxious, perverted and sick arts projects.

Rohrabacher warned his colleagues that the American people are watching this debate on television, implying that House members who opposed his amendment would face the wrath of voters in the Nov. 6 congressional elections.

Liberal lawmakers denounced Rohrabacher's tough proposed crackdown as a possibly unconstitutional attempt to intimidate artists and squelch freedom of expression.

Williams said Rohrabacher's proposal was copper-riveted, iron-clad censorship of the first degree. Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y., called it an offensive and misguided measure.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

CLASS ADS

Kedzie 103 — 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $3.00, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.25, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.50, 40 cents per word over 15.

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp. 539-6193.

RECORDS, CDS, Posters and more at University Inn this Saturday 10/13. Dealers from many states will be selling to the public one day only. $1 admission 10a.m.— 5p.m.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3861.

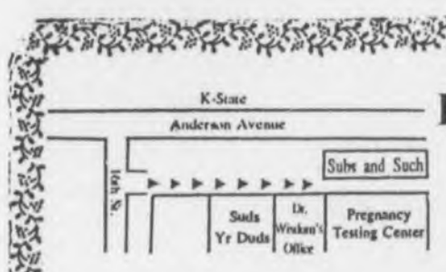
THIS MOTORCYCLE (Honda Shadow 500 1985) was left with us owing rent unpaid. If rent not paid and bike not claimed in three weeks, bike becomes property of renters. Midway USA Auction. 776-5222.

TO JOB-SEARCH Candidates— Resume Building, The Workshop, is a must! Join us Oct. 16 at 2:30p.m., Union 208, or 7p.m., Denison 124. Career Planning and Placement Center.

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial, Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

AVAILABLE NOW. One-bedroom near campus, $325, year lease, no pets, laundry facilities, central air. Call for appointment 776-3804.



(Continued on page 11)

The Osage House
776-1234
The Perfect Place to Treat Your Parents with Seafood Kabob Border House and many more wonderful dishes.

FREE SPRING BREAK TRIPS to students or student organizations promoting our Spring Break Packages. Good Pay & Fun. Call CMI 1-800-423-5246

Don't Forget FRIDAY LADIES IN FREE SATURDAY No Cover with Student ID Only At BAYSTREET

SPIDER AIRCRAFT, INC.
Learn to Fly:
Introductory Flight—$22
537-3277
Rt. 1 Municipal Airport

PREGNANCY TESTING CENTER
539-3338
•Free Pregnancy Testing
•Totally Confidential Services
•Same Day Results
•Call For Appointment
Walk-ins Welcome
•Located across from Campus in Anderson Village
Monday-Friday 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. or by appointment

Welcome KSU Parents!
Come in and see our new Fall Accessories.
Jewelry, scarves, sweaters, eelskin, leather purses, hair barrettes, watches, Ralph Lauren socks, hose.
Accessories on the Park
708 N. Manhattan Ave., Manhattan, Ks. 66502 tel. (913) 537-0707

Welcome KSU Parents Weekend Special
Full Slab of Oak Smoked Ribs
Potato Salad—BBQ Beans
Only $13.95 (feeds 2-3) Fri.-Sun.
776-9222 2615 Anderson Open 11-9 Daily

BUSCH Beer BUSCH LIGHT BEER
FALL ROUND-UP
12 packs NOW ON SALE at Participating Stores

GET THE EDGE
and get your Royal Purple portrait taken.
This group is scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 11 - Friday, Oct. 26
◆ OFF CAMPUS
There is a $4 sitting fee. If you paid for it at registration, you must bring your Royal Purple receipt.
Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.
Location: K-State Union, Room 209
For an appointment or if you have questions CALL 532-7808
1991 ROYAL PURPLE

K-State Players & the Dept. of Speech present
PUMP BOYS & Dinettes

Oct. 10-13, 16-20
"A nothin' but pure fun, country musical."
Nichols Theatre—8 p.m.
Matinee Oct. 13—2 p.m.
Tickets: McCain Box Office
532-6428
Sponsored by the Manhattan Town Center

Budweiser KING OF BEERS AND CHARLIE'S NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
PRESENT THE BARN BURNERS
SCORCHIN' ROCK N' ROLL
75¢ CANS
BRING YOUR MOTHER DOWN
(I WANNA DANCE WITH HER)
CHARLIE'S NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
LETS BOOG-A-LOO 'TILL WE PUKE!
FirstBank Center 776-4111

ATTENTION WILDCAT FANS!
Enjoy A
25% DISCOUNT
on any small, medium, or large serving of frozen yogurt when you wear purple on game day.
Try our new sugar free, nonfat frozen yogurt. No cholesterol!
We'll also have available the popular Purple & White Swirl!!
Offer applies to all home football games. Toppings, waffle cones are regular price.
Cheer the cats on to victory and celebrate with us after the game.
Open 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Daily
Noon-11 p.m. Sunday

I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY.
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers
Aggieville

Midnight Munchies? Attack It With A Sub

Burning the midnight oil? Subway's the place to go refuel. Buy one footlong sub and get another footlong of equal or lesser value for only 99c plus tax. A medium drink purchase is required. This offer is good from 10 p.m. 'til we close our doors. Satisfy your midnight munchies—and save at Subway.
After 10 p.m. only
Buy One Footlong, Get One For 99¢ plus tax with medium drink purchase
620 N. Manhattan—in Aggieville 537-8700
SUBWAY
Limit: one coupon per customer per visit. Not good in combination with any other offer. Offer expires 10/31/90.

(Continued from page 10)

ONE-BEDROOM CARPETED, available Oct. 1, central air, $270 plus utilities and trash. 776-6166.

ONE-BEDROOM IN a complex near campus. New carpet, gas, heat. $325. No pets. 776-3804.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

5 Automobile for Sale

1970 PONTIAC Bonneville 455, good tires, runs well, 86,000 miles. Call 539-1845.

1971 CAMARO, power steering, air conditioning, good heater, runs good, $400. 537-4369.

1973 VW SuperBeetle, new engine, new carpet. 776-7938 please leave message.

1974 OLDS Delta 88 conv red, good shape, new top, new tires, runs good. Good deal. 537-8857.

1978 280Z parts car. $400. 537-1539.

1978 JEEP CJ5 307 cubic inch, soft top. 1-348-5893.

1979 CHEVY Caprice Classic, runs excellent, air conditioning, AM/FM stereo, power windows, locks, brakes, steering. $1,200. 539-3390.

1979 IH Scout 2, mechanically sound, body has rust. 776-3757 after 6p.m.

1981 COLONY Park station wagon, great car, power steering, power brakes, power windows, AM/FM cassette stereo, $700 or best offer. Call 539-8256.

1982 BEAUTIFUL black Toyota Supra, 53,000 miles, loaded, good condition. Call Jill, 539-5192.

1982 DODGE Challenger, air conditioning, automatic, AM/FM, 66,000 miles, $2,500. 537-9434.

7 Computers

HAVING PROBLEMS with your computer or printer? Need to upgrade your systems memory, monitor or just a larger hard drive? Need a second party book on a certain program? ABACUS Computer and Supply, 539-7007, 1111 Waters.

HEWLETT PACKARD 16C, good condition, programming, $65. Call 539-5515.

HEWLETT PACKARD 41CV with Advantage and Math Pac, all manuals, $70. Call 539-5515.

IBM PC Jr.— Color monitor, remote keyboard, expanded memory, software. Asking $425. Robert, 776-5526.

MACINTOSH COMPUTER and ImageWriter printer. 128K. 537-9479 after 5p.m.

8 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such 'employment opportunity' with reasonable caution.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ATTENTION: EXCELLENT income for home assembly work. (504)646-1700. Dept. P6438.

COLLEGE STUDENT from the farm, few hours a week, trim bushes— rototill, move dirt, put up fence— paint. Personal interview, Friday 9:30-11:30a.m. and 4:30-7p.m., 2024 Browning.

CUT EDUCATION costs. Family needs college girl to live in this semester and next. Free room and food exchanged for duties. Respond Collegian Box 1.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EVENING AND Daytime office and telephone sales help needed. Pleasant working conditions, hourly wage and excellent bonuses. Call 537-6163, 9a.m.— 4p.m.

FREE SPRING Break vacation in Cancun! College Tours, the nation's largest and most successful spring break tour operator needs enthusiastic campus representatives. Earn a free trip and cash. Nothing to buy— We provide everything you need. Call 1-800-395-4896 for more information.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. Federal, CIA, U.S. Customs, D.E.A., etc. Now hiring. Listings. 1(805)687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

LUNCH COOK needed, must have recent T.B. test and three letters of references, apply in person, 2024 Browning.

MODELS NEEDED for local advertising agency. No experience necessary. Earn extra cash. Males and females respond with resume and photo to Box 4, Collegian.

PART-TIME EMPLOYMENT, address research/ tracing clerk. Person will locate KSU Alumni by extensive use of telephone and various other resources. Typing with a minimum of 45 wpm and office experience necessary. Must have excellent communication skills and initiative to work independently. Desire a work-study student, must be able to work 15-20 hours per week. Some evening hours required. Apply in person. Alumni Records, Hollis House, 1408 Denison. 532-6260.

OVERSEAS JOBS. $900— $2,000/ month. Summer, year-round. All countries. All fields. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KSo2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

STUDENT TO enclose garage wall and install overhead garage door. Send qualifications to: Box 3, Collegian.

TWO NANNIES needed by Jan. 1 for two families in Brewster N.Y. Must drive, swim. Non-smoker preferred. One year commitment. Excellent living conditions plus salaries. (914)279-5963.

WELL-ESTABLISHED LOCAL business for sale. Excellent opportunity! After 6p.m. (719)576-6789.

9 Food Specials

Bobby T's
Weekends at Bobby T's
Fridays Enjoy Shrimp and Beer
2 doz shrim & pitcher of beer $4.99
DJ 8-12
Saturday Enjoy Live Entertainment
John Woofter
The Singing Stockbroker

SUNDAY LUNCH
Pan Fried Chicken and other daily specials.
Specials include free dessert.
ONLY $4.25
Serving Breakfast till 1 p.m.
Open Every Sunday
7 a.m.-2:30 p.m.
The CHEF Cafe 111 S. 4th
10% off with this ad

Every Friday
ALL YOU CAN EAT!
•Spaghetti & meat sauce
•Salad Bar
•Texas Toast
$4.95
The CHEF Cafe 111 S. 4th
Fridays 5-8 p.m.

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

SEVEN PIECE living room set, $300 or best offer. 537-7110.

THREE-PIECE FULL-SIZE bedroom set, bookcase headboard. 539-1586. $300 or offer.

WHIRLPOOL PORTABLE dishwasher. Six months old. $300. Carla 537-7560.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: BLUE and white HCCC stuco embroidered jacket. Claim Dept. of Animal Science, Call Hall 139.

FOUND: FEMALE cat at 12th and Kearney. 776-5217.

FOUND: FLOPPY disk outside Kedzie Hall on morning of Oct. 10. Come by 8a.m. to 5p.m. to claim in Kedzie 103, Student Publications Inc.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

14x56, TWO-BEDROOM, appliances, nice condition, good location, #24 Green Valley Trailer Court. $5,200. 776-4500, 776-1342.

1973 FLAMINGO 14x70, two-bedroom. Cute kitchen, real cabinets, new bedrooms, wood floor, low utilities. $8,000. 537-4369.

OWN THIS 12' wid, two-bedroom, $135 monthly for 24 months. Large selection. Countryside. 539-2325.

18 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1985 HONDA Elite 150— Excellent condition, low mileage. Also helmet. Phone 539-7554.

19 Music/ Musicians

BANJO— OLD (1915) five-string with a nice tone. Two free lessons included. $250 or best offer. Leave message for David, 539-4395.

All Crate Products
25% off
Hayes House of Music
327 Poyntz 776-7983

CLEARING OUT current CD collection of rap and hard rock. Need money fast. Call 539-3509.

FOR SALE: Charvel guitar, 1-1-2pu, Floyd Rose trem, fire engine yellow, looks brand new, strap, cord, case. Marcus at 532-3978.

TAMA SWINGSTAR, five piece trapset, black, adjustable case, must sell. 537-4489 or 1-729-3601.

21 Personals

AX JENNIE— You are the most generous person I know. Thanks for being there for me, especially on my birthday. I'm so lucky to have you for my dot. Love, Mom.

CHRISTOPHER— HOPE you have a great birthday. —Your Happily Undefined.

COWBOY, THANKS for the bon voyage present. You never cease to amaze me. Mrs. Robinson.

C.W.— I'M sitting in The Chair, Drinking Champagne because You Look So Good In Love, Baby Blue, let's go to Amarillo By Morning, because You're Something Special To Me. Happy Birthday. Love Without End, M.C.

FIJI WHITEY— Aerosmith was cool, the jacuzzi was hot, I'm wild and crazy, but engaged I am not!

HEATHER (A.K.A. Duckie, Wishbone, Hoover, One-Eyed S-Puppy, Erica, "Court Merde Bete Salope," B.C.) Happy 23! Don't forget to make a wish and blow... out your candles!? I don't care what you call it! And remember, feeding them won't make them grow. —Rox and Trix.

JAKE— I love you still more than yesterday and less than tomorrow. Thanks for being there for me Always. Happy— Birthday old man! Love, Jenny.

PHYSICS BUNNY— We bet you know the "Recipe for a Hot Universe!" —Your shag-snorting buddies.

PORGY— HAPPY Birthday! Just like me to be late again. I'm looking forward to giving you a great big, huge, monsterous— um— squeeze. You'll always be near me— no matter how far away you move— I have you inside my heart. 1-4-3. Bess.

RICK— LET the other girls have the cowboys, 'cause I've got you! YFFFG.

ROULETTER DATES— The day of Rouletter is finally here. We've stocked up on Jack and iced down Lone Star beer. Our Wranglers are starched and our ropers are shined. We're ready to dance and romance and unwind. This is no "barn party," it's better. It's real— the way that we dress and the way that we feel. For some of our best. This one is the last. So we'll damn well make sure it lives up to the past. We'll saddle the horses and head for the plains, to two-step to Garth's and George's refrains. Drinking and dancing 'neath wide open spaces, raising some hell with our "Friends in Low Places." The night's a success when you finally know that ol' "secret handshake" of Alpha Gamma Rho. So prepare to get rowdy under the stars, 'cause you haven't partied cowboy, 'til it's with AGRs.

SHARON: CONGRATULATIONS on becoming a Beta Sig little sis. We knew you would! Love, your roomies.

SIGMA KAPPA Dawn— Congrats on becoming an officer! I'm so proud of ya!! Love, Your (Sick) Sigma Sister —Jackie.

SIGMA KAPPA President Karen— You made it thru your first meeting, and girl— what a job you did! You're the greatest! Your Sisters— Dawn and Jackie.

STANLEY— OUR special day is near at hand. The time spent waiting I can hardly stand. The last six months you've made my heart aglow, and how much I love you, I want you to know. —Your Only Sunshine.

'STINE: OUR friendship has remained during the good and bad times. I'm glad you are here at KSU. Happy B-day! Dan.

THERE IS a circulation librarian named Cliff, Whose bilingual ability is terrif. He says, "Hey, amigo, you're late with your libro," And then he flies into a tiff.

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

TROPICAL FISH AND AQUARIUMS
PETS 'N STUFF
1105 Waters 539-6161
OPEN Thur. til 8 p.m.

23 Services

BIRTHDAY-ANNIVERSARY SPECIAL
3 Hours Limousine Service & Complimentary Rose
Just $105
Traveler's Limousine Service
539-2284
This special offer good every Sun.-Wed.

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

Headaches?
Neck pain?
Back pain?
Call today for an appointment
537-8305
Dr. Mark Hatesohl
Chiropractic Family Health Center
3252 Kimball Avenue
Candlewood Shopping Center

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— We do more than just type your resume. We create the resume with you, so it reflects your best -- then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for private appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience working in University Career Center.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851. Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING, CALL Leslie 539-1235.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100 or 1-456-9642, Wamego.

WORDPROCESSING/ TYPING— Data sheets, reports, theses, dissertations, letters, resumes, applications, etc. Mrs. Burden, 539-1204.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: Woodway Apartments, own room, $175/ month plus one-third utilities. 537-4966.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: $142.50/ month plus utilities. Park Place Apartments. Call 537-0509 after 7p.m.

ROOMMATES TO share three-bedroom house, near campus. Partially furnished. 776-3078.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Female, three-bedroom house. 537-0631.

WANTED ROOMMATE, 1005 Laramie, $120 per month, utilities paid. Call 539-2017 after 5p.m., ask for Jim.

26 Stereo Equipment

STILLWATER DESIGN, side kicks, 150-watt truck kicker, $160. Call 537-8575 ask for Scott.

27 Sports/Recreation Equipment

TWO NAUTILUS Health Club memberships for sale cheap! Call Cliff at 1-437-3744 evenings.

28 Sublease

AVAILABLE SPRING semester. Half block from Justin Hall, partially furnished, one-bedroom apartment. Very low utilities. 776-7734.

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

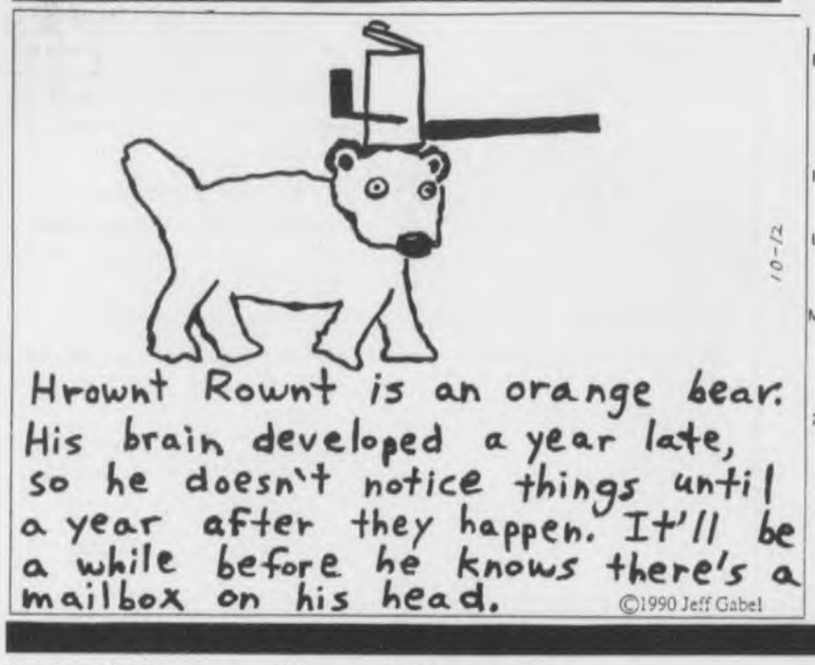
CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 6p.m.

INFANT GIRL clothes, 0-18 months, very nice and inexpensive. 776-2108 after 2p.m.

33 Tutor



VERY QUALIFIED tutor for Spanish. Affordable rates. Call Leticia 539-6832 after 9p.m.

34 Horses

DRESSAGE LESSONS— Training through 3rd level, beginners welcome too. School horses available. 537-4606 leave message.

Glimpses

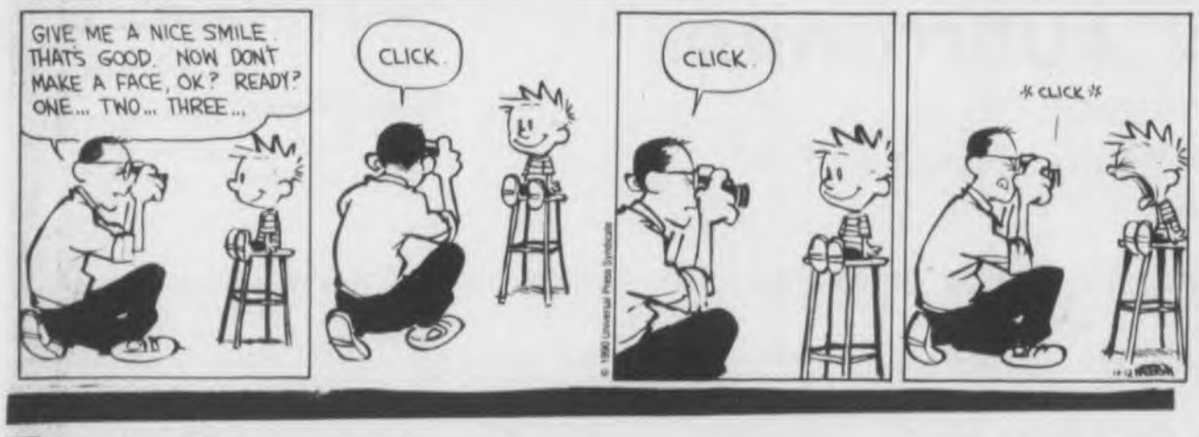
By Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

By Bob Berry

Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind



Jim's Journal

By Jim

Calvin and Hobbes

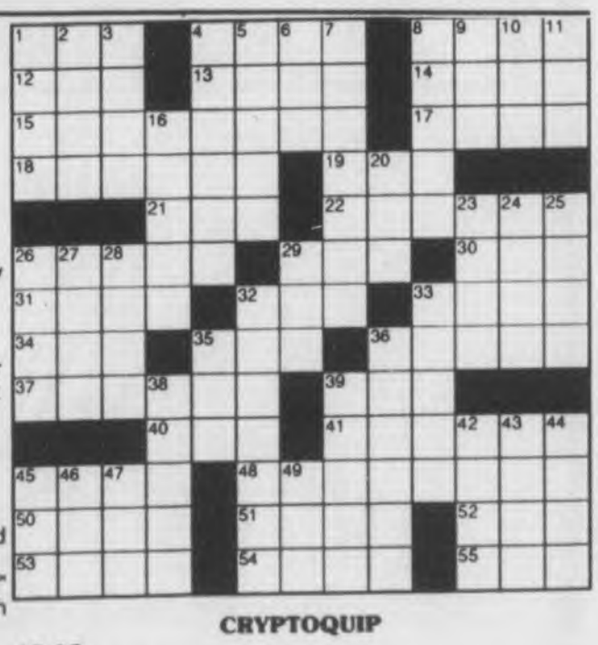
By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Dickensian pseudonym
4 Singer Perry
8 Insane
12 "What Kind of Fool — "
13 Weaver's need
14 Medley
15 A son of Jacob
17 0
18 Set up tents
19 Mamie's man
21 Tokyo drama
22 Gentle
26 Nicholson role
29 Beer vessel
30 Anonymous John
31 Encourage
32 — de deux
33 Take a powder
34 "Bei — Bist du Schoen"
35 Mail superseder
36 Vogue
37 Toot
39 X
40 Ms. Lupino
41 Diamonds and rings
45 Top
48 Longtime bachelor, now wed
50 "Persistence of Memory" painter
51 Behind time
52 Half a dance?
53 Dick Van —
54 Piccadilly statue
55 "Hazel"

DOWN
1 Ruth or Zaharias
2 Portent
3 Galvanizing stuff
4 Din
5 Pizzazz
6 Miss Piggy's word
7 Public vehicle
8 Egg quantity
9 Stout relative
10 Douglas, e.g.
11 Additionally
16 Jamie Lee's mom
20 Nails container cartoonist
23 Between jobs
24 TV host Bob
25 Can't forgo
26 Door-frame piece
27 Off-Broadway prize
28 "Show Boat" composer
29 '60s artist Peter
32 Biblical story
33 Used a spider
35 Nourished
36 " — Company"
38 The South
39 Poem division
42 Shaving mishap
43 Rue the run
44 Go no further
45 Keep talking
46 Treat everybody
47 Benevolent one?
49 Listening device?

Solution time: 28 mins.

G	A	N	G		P	A	C	K		P	I	P
A	M	O	R		E	L	A	N		I	C	Y
S	O	L	I	T	A	I	R	E		N	O	R
P	I	A	N	O	S			A	L	O	N	E
			C	Y		M	E	D	I	C
L	O	C	H			C	O	B		P	H	I
O	A	R				H	U	B			L	O
S	K	I	P			I	T	S		D	E	N
		B	A	T	C	H		Y	O
C	O	B	R	A				S	A	N	T	A
B	R	A		B	L	A	C	K	J	A	C	K
E	G	G		L	O	L	A		O	B	E	Y
R	Y	E		E	X	A	M		N	U	D	E

Yesterday's answer 10-12

CRYPTOQUIP

10-12

A J O U Q Q G O R K O Q F D G J O G U D E G F M B F B D Q W R K Z J F F K O Q M B Q E Q O G U W S A D G O A G F D B U S .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: DRAMA ABOUT BEES AND FIREFLIES FEATURED LOTS OF INSECT ASIDES.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: U equals N

Column

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

The gem in the mine would appear to be Maurice Brittian, a 6-foot-9 center who 'Cat assistant Greg Grensing called "the best big man at K-State since Les Craft." Brittian is a capable scorer who contributes to team chemistry with his ability to pass the basketball.

Another marquee name among the newcomers is that of Darryl King. Yep, he's Stacey's little brother, but you won't want to boo this guy. Grensing characterized King as an excellent scorer, good shot blocker and hard worker. He has put on 15 pounds since July in an attempt to fill out his 6-9 frame.

Marcus Zeigler will battle Wires and Shadd for the starting point guard slot. And joining the K-State big men will be freshman Hamilton Strickland, a 6-9 forward, and Keary Williams, also 6-9 and a junior.

Make no mistake, this is a key weekend for the Wildcat basketball program for other reasons as well. Recruiting is in high gear, and it's quite likely that as many as three potential future Wildcats will attend Sunday and Monday's events.

Though Byron Houston ended up wearing Oklahoma State orange, the crowd response he witnessed at Midnight Madness a few years back almost swayed him into becoming a K-Stater.

It can only be hoped that the night on which the event is held won't be a drawback. Sure, it's a Sunday night, but there really isn't a better way to kick off the week than to scream until you can't speak.

It's time to kick off the year 1 A.S. See you courtside Sunday night.

Spikers

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

percentage.

Along with Roberts, outside hitter Julie James has been one of K-State's leading hitters. The sophomore leads the spikers in kills with 147, averaging 3.42 per game.

The 'Cats' progress in becoming a more consistent team, according to Nelson, will hopefully continue after being set back against Kansas.

"I think we need to be prepared to play and if we execute our offense and our defense, I think we will be in a position to win this match — much like we could have done (against Kansas)," Nelson said. "I think our focus isn't going to be on UMKC, but it's going to be us and our consistency of execution."

Lovins

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

checked population growth, pollution, global warming and the destruction of the rain forests.

"These problems are clearly of greater concern than a Soviet attack," Lovins said. "Only if we are both clever and a bit lucky, can we achieve a clear understanding of interconnections, enabling locally based resource management decisions working together to create sound decisions for the globe."

Lovins discussed energy policy as one example and approach to resource issues in general.

"More efficient use of energy and the harnessing of cost—effective renewable resources such as sun, wind and flowing water, can together provide affordable and aboundant energy for all the world's people.

"Since 1979, there has been more net increase in U.S. energy supplies from sun, wind, water and wood than from oil, gas, coal and uranium," Lovins said.

In discussing resorces, Lovins said that they have traditionally been seen as the property of the few and the driving forces behind economic development. This view has taken humankind from remarkable wealth to within sight of disaster, she said.

"It is critical that we remember that economic development and resource use, which is based on unsustainability, will lead only to a devastated planet of bankrupt countries, stagnant economies and impoverished people," Lovins said "If, however, we use resources productively and take to heart the lessons learned from coping with the energy crisis, we face a future confronted with insurmountable opportunities."

Religion

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

sidered to be the same God," he said.

Rabbi Larry Karol, of Temple Beth Shalom in Topeka, said he believes that Israelites were henotheists before they were monotheists. Henotheism was the belief that each nation had its own god, but that its god was was more powerful than any other.

Monotheism has been the preaching of all of the prophets throughout history, said Gamal Badawi, professor of management at St. Mary's Univeristy in Halifax, Canada.

"Easterners believe that monotheisism first came to this earth with Adam," Badawi said.

The Moslem understanding throughout history is quite clear because the Koran is quite clear, he said. There have been no variations, in essence, of the belief in God.

All three speakers agreed that prophets, those who spoke of God, were messengers of God, rather than fortune tellers.

"Prophets in Islam are human beings," Badawi said. "But also at the same time (they are) role models."

Karol said he does not believe in the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ but respects the views of others.

"I look at the New Testament from a personal viewpoint, not as a scripture for me, but as scripture for a great many people in the world," he said.

Badawi said he somewhat agreed with Karol on ideas of the crucifixion.

"The Koran is quite clear when it speaks of the story of Jesus, when it says 'they killed him not, nor did they crucify him, but it so appeared to them' — to the Moslem, this is believed to be the final revelation of God," he said.

Grant

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

accounting.

"It's an exciting time for the profession and K-State," she said.

K-State's young accounting program may become a role model for other programs across the nation because of this change, she said.

Because of the reform, Ainsworth said some of the graduating students have the impression that maybe their education has not prepared them well enough for positions.

Vocals

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

vocals are marvelous throughout the musical.

Another fine performance is given by Geoff Kaufman, graduate student in theater, who plays Jackson, the comedian of the group.

The cast demonstrates its instrumental talents along with its vocal skills — the music in the show is performed by cast members. The songs are rich in vocal harmonies and contain cleverly written, humorous lyrics that add to the fun.

Vali-Dine

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

Chuck Werring, director of housing, said the department has an ethical obligation to protect its residents, and because of legal liabilities, Vali-Dine will be installed in all residence halls.

Try Hardee's New
CLAM

The Hardee's Clam says: Get yourshells out to this Saturday's game and help clam up the Cowboys!

7 a.m.-1 a.m.

537-CLAM (537-2526)

Hardee's. DELIVERS

GLASS IMPRESSIONS

GREAT PARENT ENTERTAINMENT FOR THIS WEEKEND!

Etched, carved, stained glass and an imaginative collection of gifts.

Glass Impressions Open Sat. 10 - 4

1128 Laramie - Aggieville
Mon. - Fri. 11-6 Sat. 10-4
539-4610

K-State Fans

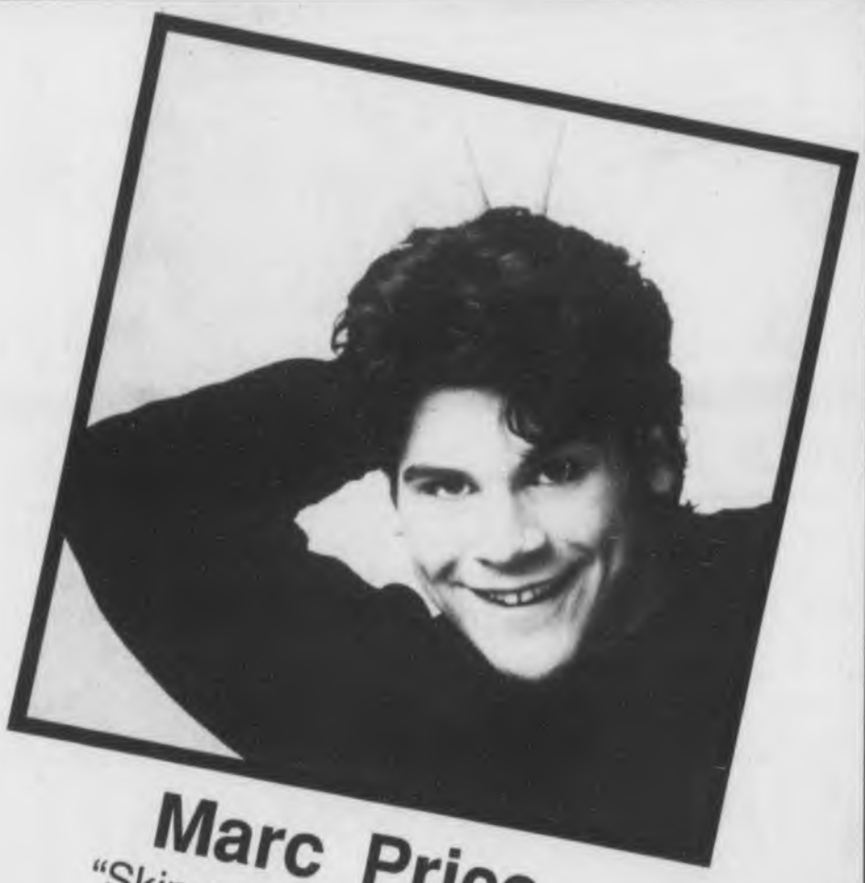
Join us after the game for dinner. Taking reservations now.
Open at 4 p.m.

Keck's STEAK House EST. 1939

Village Plaza 539-2651

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577

PIZZA SHUTTLE



"NO COUPON SPECIALS"

Prime Time Special
3 - 10 in. Pizzas
1 - Topping
4 - Cokes
$10.00

Everyday Two-Fers
2 - 10 in. Pizzas
2 - Toppings
2 - Cokes
$8.00

Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

PONTIAC ALL-STAR COMEDY CABARET

Marc Price
"Skippy" on Family Ties

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1990
8 p.m. MCCAIN AUDITORIUM
$4 admission
($1 donated to SADD for every ticket sold)

Tickets can be purchased at the McCain Auditorium Box Office or at the UPC Office on the third floor of the K-State Union.

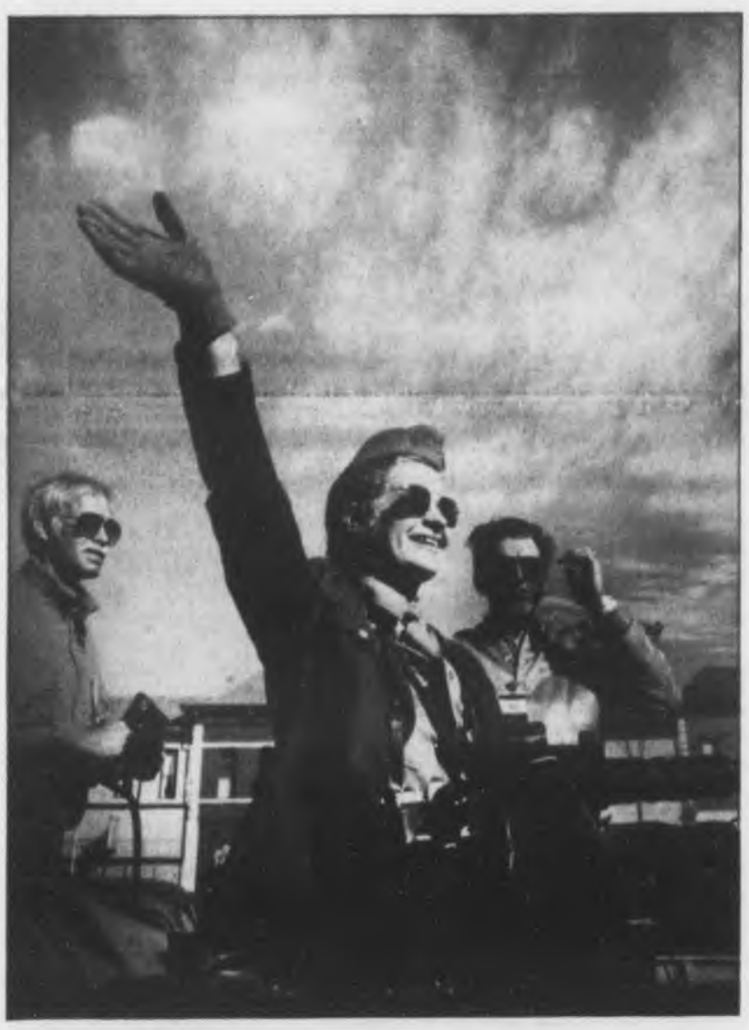
Stop by the PONTIAC EXCITEMENT CENTER in the Union Plaza (between the K-State Union and Seaton Hall) Thursday and Friday, October 18 & 19, 11 a.m.-3 p.m. and check out the latest PONTIAC cars. Win tickets, t-shirts, and enter sweepstakes for a chance to win a PONTIAC Sunbird Convertible. The PONTIAC EXCITEMENT CENTER will be in the Union Courtyard in the case of rain.

PRODUCED BY U.S. CONCEPTS INC.

PONTIAC. WE BUILD Excitement.

k-state union special events

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612



KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Monday, October 15, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 36

Photos By Brad Camp/Staff

A Union Pacific locomotive pulling 26 cars full of war veterans and dignitaries rolls into Abilene Sunday as the beginning the Dwight D. Eisenhower 100th birthday celebration. About 1,000 World War II, Korea and Vietnam veterans were aboard the trains that departed from Kansas City's Union Station.

Peggy Cregut, Tecumseh, waves at a passing troop train at the Abilene Civic Center Sunday. Officials estimated the crowd at 25,000 to 35,000 — more than triple the town's population of about 6,600.

Abilene celebrates Eisenhower years

By The Associated Press

ABILENE — The memory of Dwight D. Eisenhower has not faded in the small prairie town he called home, where thousands of people converged Sunday to celebrate the 100th birthday of the man known fondly as Ike.

Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, represented President Bush at the ceremonies and paid tribute to Eisenhower as a soldier, statesman and man of peace who knew the value of military strength.

The 34th president was an advocate of the type of strong armed forces such as those now deployed in the Persian Gulf, Powell said.

"As a man who had seen the face of war firsthand, Eisenhower knew that America must have all the essential parts of power to protect that purpose," he said. "He knew as well as any man in our history that America's armed forces are one of those essential parts."

Hundreds of World War II veterans attended the ceremony, some holding grandchildren in their laps as they listened to the tributes being paid to their old commander-in-chief.

The vintage plane Columbine II circled the crowd at the outset of the ceremony. Columbine II was Eisenhower's personal plane while he was president, a precursor to Air Force One.

The ceremony ended as Powell laid a wreath at Eisenhower's tomb while four Air Force fighter planes flew over the crowd, which officials estimated at 25,000 to 35,000 — more than triple the town's population of about 6,600.

Many of the veterans in attendance traveled to Abilene aboard the same types of trains that took them away from their families nearly 50 years ago.

Winston Churchill II, grandson of the World War II leader, said Eisenhower is known foremost in Europe as the Supreme Commander of Allied Forces, the man who led the armies of 20 nations to victory.

"Thanks to his legacy even now the countries of eastern Europe are taking their place alongside free nations," Churchill told the crowd gathered under clear skies at the Eisenhower Center.

Eisenhower was born Oct. 14, 1890, in Denison, Texas, but his parents moved to Abilene when he was an infant. He grew up there. He left Abilene for West Point in 1911, but always considered the Kansas town where the Chisholm Trail ended as his home.

WIBW anchor discusses suit

Outreach progam part of settlement

By Shannon Heim
Collegian Reporter

Mary Loftus, former KSNT anchorwoman, and Patrick Shea, attorney for Standard Communications Inc., debated Friday morning in the Union Little Theatre.

The topic was a pregnancy discrimination lawsuit Loftus filed against the owners of KSNT.

The presentation was one of four in an outreach program developed as part of the lawsuit settlement. Loftus and Shea presented similar programs Thursday at Washburn University, the University of Kansas and Topeka.

Loftus filed the suit in 1985 against Standard Communications Inc., the owner of KSNT at the time of her dismissal. SJL Broadcasting Co. now owns the station.

KSNT management fired Loftus following a maternity leave in 1983. At that time, she was doing the 6 and 10 p.m. newscasts and had been assured she would be able to return to her job after a six-week leave.

Loftus said she worked to within five hours before the birth of her son June 7, 1983. About an hour after she returned home from the hospital, KSNT called her and asked to come over. Expecting a baby gift, Loftus invited her employers over.

Upon arrival, the KSNT representatives told Loftus they had decided to replace her. She no longer had a job at the station.

"I was unable to believe what had happened," Loftus said. "It felt like I'd been kicked in the stomach."

Loftus said that her husband had just started his own pizza business and that her salary was the family's primary income.

Loftus was then hired by WIBW, where she is still employed. She was forced, however, to take an entry-level position that paid only half as much as her previous salary, she said.

Loftus said that she had no idea why she was fired but that she felt that it was a mistake on the station management's part because she had six years of name identification and experience with KSNT.

Shea agreed.

"It was a serious mistake. If a person is excluded because of ethnicity, race or gender, a wrong has been done," Shea said. "A person's brain is a person's brain, regardless of personal background."

Shea said that he dealt with the lawsuit for about five years and it would have been longer if an out-of-court settlement had not been reached.

The settlement was unusual because it not only included money, but also an agreement by Loftus and Shea to discuss the case in public, Shea said.

Shea, who now teaches political science at the University of Utah in addition to being an attorney, said he thought the public debates were a good way for people to learn from the lawsuit.

"I hope you take from the lecture that you live in a changing time," he said. "The norms in the past have discriminated against a lot of people, and you are going to have an enormous responsibility to demonstrate to the doubting Thomases that you can make a difference."

Shea said he believes society loses in not allowing women to develop careers as well as families.

"The Asian and European cultures are miles ahead (of the United States) in handling child care and the working society," he said.

Shea said he thinks it is unrealistic for people to think a judge and a court will work out all problems for society.

"I hope you think about your responsibility in your work place — not only to you, but to others around you as well," he said. "Call it when it happens. Stand up and say what happened isn't right."

Loftus said she wonders if speaking up about problems earlier would have made a difference in her future.

"I played second fiddle to the male anchor all along," she said.

"Looking back, I can say my main motive (for the suit) was revenge," Loftus said. "I came to the belief that I was not only fighting for myself, but for others as well.

"I can't tell you how many women stopped me on the street and said the same thing happened to them, a co-worker, a sister or a woman they know," Loftus said. "I hope my lawsuit has made it easier for women to come back (after maternity leave)."

Shea and Loftus said they could not be sure if the public had a negative image of KSNT because of the lawsuit. They said that it was difficult to calculate any loss of KSNT viewers due to the discrimination because the lawsuit was not publicized widely and was settled out of court.

Loftus, however, said she thinks a station should use an anchorwoman's pregnancy in a positive way.

"A pregnancy can be a ratings bonanza," she said.

Loftus said she feels this way because she thinks viewers are interested in newspeoples' outside lives and families.

Loftus said the ordeal has not made her bitter. She said she feels the outcome of her case is a step in the right direction for women's rights.

"It's progress, and I'm happy to see it," she said.

Harmony week speaker emphasizes salad theory

RACIAL ETHNIC HARMONY WEEK

By Scott Levendofsky
Collegian Reporter

Julian Earls said he believes in the salad theory rather than the melting-pot theory of achieving racial harmony.

Earls, the keynote speaker for Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week, said cultures should not be melted into a pot where one ingredient becomes indistinguishable from the others.

"I subscribe to the salad theory in which each ingredient has its own delectable, distinct flavor, but each contributes to the whole of the salad," Earls said Friday morning in the K-State Union Forum Hall.

Earls is the director of the Office of Health Services at the NASA Lewis Research Center in Cleveland. In addition to holding five degrees, he is the founder of the Development Fund for Black Students in Science and Technology. The topic of his presentation was "Achieving Racial/Ethnic Harmony: What Are Our Prospects?"

Ken Schefter, student coordinator for Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week, said Earls' speech was among the best he heard during the week.

"He is an excellent and very powerful speaker. We are already attempting to get him back to speak for future events," Schefter said.

Earls said achieving racial/ethnic harmony places a great responsibility on whites in this nation and the world.

"Whites have to change their attitude, but much more importantly, their behavior. There is this arrogance that their way is the only way," he said.

Earls addressed blacks by saying he does not have a hatred for white people in America.

"The fact is, not all white folks are our enemies, and not all black folks are our friends," he said.

Earls focused on what he called the racial perception dilemma.

> "In three seconds, a student can tell whether a professor is live or Memorex. You cannot fool people, and you cannot teach people that you dislike.
> —Julian Earls
> Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week
> Keynote Speaker

The educated black, he said, would endorse the statement, "If you are black, you have to be twice as good and twice as talented to travel the same socioeconomic distance in this nation."

Earls said the average white American will reply, "That is absolutely nonsense. That might have been true years ago, but today if you're black, a minority or female, and minimumly qualify, all you have to do is show up. You've got the job. You're in power."

He said the gap between these two perceptions is a measure of the passion and pain of diversity of race in America.

Earls said colleges and universities face challenges to improve faculty ethnicity. A study from the American Council on Education found that faculties tend to hire people who fit their own mold.

"There is a direct correlation between minorities and females on college campuses and minorities and females on the faculty," Earls said.

People who are fortunate enough to have roles on campuses have a special responsibility. Professors have to be examples of what they want their students to be, Earls said.

He said students can tell whether professors are genuine or not.

"In three seconds, a student can tell whether a professor is live or Memorex. You cannot fool people, and you cannot teach people that you dislike," Earls said.

Brian W. Kratzer/Staff

About 500 supporters of Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week participate in a candlelight walk down Denison Avenue Friday evening. The walk, organized by the Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week Committee, began in front of Haymaker Hall and ended at All Faiths Chapel after passing west of campus and through Aggieville. People carrying banners and posters along the route joined the group as they walked.

BRIEFLY

World

Iraq, Iran reopen embassies

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran and Iraq reopened embassies in each other's capitals Sunday, resuming full diplomatic ties and ending a decade of enmity, Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

The exchange of diplomats came only two years after a U.N.-brokered cease-fire halted hostilities in the eight-year Iran-Iraq war.

The Iraqi charge d'affaires took up his post Sunday and his Iranian counterpart was to leave for Baghdad shortly, said IRNA, monitored in Cyprus. Neither was named.

Dismissal of Bhutto upheld

LAHORE, Pakistan (AP) — A court on Sunday upheld the dismissal of Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto, ruling that corruption and mismanagement had stalled her government after 20 months in office.

The Lahore High Court's decision will likely be challenged in the Supreme Court. In any case, national elections are set for Oct. 24, so a victory for either side would be merely a moral one.

Four lawsuits filed by supporters of Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party argued that President Ghulam Ishaq Khan had overstepped his constitutional authority by abruptly dismissing Bhutto's government Aug. 6.

25 arrested in assassination

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Police have rounded up dozens of Moslem extremists and foreigners suspected of involvement in the assassination of the parliament speaker, including 25 Palestinians and Iraqis, newspapers reported Monday.

But Iraq denied any involvement in the killing of Speaker Rifaat el-Mahgoub, his driver and four security men Friday in Cairo.

The official Iraqi News Agency said the reports linking Iraq to the slayings were based on the promotion of lies and meant to cover up popular indignation against Egypt's support of the U.S.-led forces in the Persian Gulf region.

Nation

Helms nixes debating Gantt

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Democrat Harvey Gantt found a bright spot in President Bush's recent campaign appearance on behalf of his GOP rival, Sen. Jesse Helms. It brought Helms out in public.

"I was delighted to be in the same town with Sen. Helms today," Gantt said. "That's about as close as we've ever gotten to being with him."

Helms refuses to debate Gantt, and the conservative GOP senator has been limiting his public appearances this year.

Arrest troubles homeless

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — An impoverished refugee woman's arrest for scavenging through garbage cans in search of recyclable items has angered advocates for the poor and raised questions about who has the right to turn trash into cash.

"The right to eat ... takes precedence over the city's right," said Karina O'Malley, director of a Green Bay homeless shelter and a member of a task force studying homelessness in Wisconsin. "I don't see why the city has to pit itself against the poor."

Woman charged in poisonings

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A 58-year-old former grocery store clerk accused of using arsenic to poison two husbands and a boyfriend over 16 years goes on trial Monday and could get the death penalty if convicted.

Blanche Taylor Moore, once described by a police official as an average, ordinary neighborhood lady, is charged with first-degree murder in the Oct. 7, 1986, poisoning death of Raymond Reid, who was her boss and later became her boyfriend.

Prosecutors say Moore systematically poisoned Reid; James N. Taylor, her first husband, who died in 1973; and the Rev. Dwight Moore, her second husband, who survived.

Region

Grissom murder trial to begin

OLATHE (AP) — After months of delay, a man accused of killing three women whose bodies have never been found is scheduled to go on trial Monday.

Richard Grissom Jr., 29, faces three counts of first-degree murder and six other charges stemming from the disappearance of three Johnson County women in June 1989. He has pleaded innocent to all the charges.

The bodies of Joan M. Butler, 24, of Overland Park and roommates Theresa Brown and Christine Rusch, both 22 of Lenexa, are still missing. But authorities have gathered mostly circumstantial evidence linking Grissom to their murders.

Hesston rebuilds after tornado

HESSTON (AP) — Seven months to the day after a monster tornado chewed up a huge chunk of this town, Hesston celebrated the rebirth of its businesses and its economy.

From the rubble of bricks and mortar that were stores, service stations, restaurants and plants have risen new buildings that give this farming community 35 miles north of Wichita a fresh look.

At the Hesston Decorating Center, owners Ron and Carol Peters greeted visitors Saturday at the grand opening of their new store in a rebuilt retail center.

"Everything is new," Ron Peters said. "The good Lord and these wonderful people took care of us."

CAMPUS BULLETIN

Campus organizations are encouraged to use the Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be submitted by 11 a.m. Friday. However, publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-served basis and is not guaranteed. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118A. You must have a picture ID to submit a bulletin form. During business hours, IDs will be checked in Kedzie 116 or 118A. Forms should be left in the box outside 118A after being filled out. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's news editor in Kedzie 116.

15 Monday

■ Students Helping Students will meet at 2:30 p.m. in the Lafene Health Center conference room.

■ French Table will meet from 12:05 to 1:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

■ Beta Sigma Psi Little Sisters will meet at 8:30 p.m. at the Beta Sigma Psi house.

■ ICAT Basketball Ticket Sales will be at 5 p.m. in the Ahearn Ticket Office.

■ Alpha Zeta will meet at 8:45 p.m. for pictures in Fairchild 202.

■ College Republicans will meet from 7:30 to 8 p.m. in Union 207.

■ Spanish Club will meet at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 1.

■ Ag Communicators of Tomorrow will meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 137.

■ Water Ski Team will meet at 9 p.m. in Union 204.

■ Chimes Junior Honarary will meet at 8:30 p.m. for pictures. Wear uniforms.

■ Williston Geology Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Thompson 213.

■ HDFS Interest Group will meet for Royal Purple pictures at 7:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202. The group will meet at 8 p.m. in Union 206.

16 Tuesday

■ FENIX Adult Student Program/OWLS will have an informal lunch from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Union Stateroom 1.

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, mostly sunny. High around 70. South to southeast winds increasing to 10 to 20 mph by afternoon. Tonight, mostly clear. Low in the mid-40s. Tuesday, mostly sunny and mild. High 70 to 75.

If you need abortion or birth control services, we can help.
Confidential pregnancy testing•Safe, affordable abortion services•Birth control•Tubal ligation•Gyn exams•
Testing and Treatment for sexually transmitted diseases.
Providing quality health care to women since 1974.
Insurance, VISA & Mastercard accepted.
Comprehensive Health for Women
4401 West 109th (I-435 & Roe)
Overland Park, Kansas
For information and appointments (913) 345-1400
Toll Free 1-800-227-1918

Claflin Books & Copies
First Bank Center—1814 Claflin
Halloween Special
Orange 20 lb. copies 6¢
Agatha Christie Celebration
Women Mystery Writers
776-3771

Hardee's Something Spooktacular
Safe Big Cookie™ Treats for Tricksters Coupon Book
4 Coupons for only $1.00
Over a $2.00 Value
Net proceeds donated to Kansas Special Olympics

ELECTRICAL AND COMPUTER ENGINEERING STUDENTS
Pre-Enrollment Advising
Begins Tuesday, Oct. 16
EECE Students should make an appointment NOW with Professor Hunt in Durland 261
Students who obtain pre-enrollment advising are given first priority in the department at the time of pre-enrollment.

INDIAN CARRY OUT MENU/LUNCH
Shish Kabob (marinated in spicy Indian sauce) $2.95
Chicken Tandoori (marinated in yogurt and special spices) $2.95
Beef Curry (Tell us how spicy you want it) $2.40
Rice Pilaf (with cashews, raisins and fresh coconut) ..... large/small $1.75/$1.00
Dal Curry (lentils cooked with onion and fresh coconut) $1.00
Porkorahs (deep fried graham batter hushpuppies) $1.50
Samosa (vegetables, deep fried in a crusty pastry shell) $1.25
Naan (warm, soft, crusted-edged Indian bread) ..... 75¢
Popper (two - pancake size, wafer thin, crispy bread) ..... 75¢
Namkin (sweet, crunchy mini crackers) $1.00
Lassi (a blended drink of yogurt, fruit juice and honey) $1.25
Whole Stuffed Chicken (spiced vegetables-3 hrs. advance notice) $10.95
Dine-In-Lunch 11:30 a.m.-1:30 p.m.—Dinner 5-10 p.m.
Carry-Out available any time during business hours
The Osage House
776-1234
2605 Stagg Hill Rd.
Osage House

Real men must take "no" for an answer.
"No form of sexual violence will be tolerated or condoned at Kansas State University."
KSU Policy Prohibiting Sexual Violence
Call 532-6444 for more information.

GREEK PLAYBOY '90
Look for
Money jars starting tomorrow in the Union
9:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m.
• Pennies are negative
• Paper and silver are positive
AXΩ
presents
GREEK PLAYBOY '90
sponsored by:
Bushwackers · Power FM 94.5 · University Photography · Brentwood
proceeds go to Cystic Fibrosis

NEED A SUIT FOR A JOB INTERVIEW?

You can buy a suit from anybody. But we're not just anybody...and neither are YOU!
We offer suits in:
• A variety of appropriate solids, patterns and colors
• Pleated pants or plain
• Year-round weights
• 8" drop
plus
•Custom tailoring & alterations
and
•Personal service including consultation on color and style that's best for you!
Locally Owned
Priced from $245
BORCK Brothers
Fine Menswear
1100 Westloop Place (913) 537-8636
Westloop Shopping Center
9:30-5:30 Mon.—Sat. til 8:30 Thurs.

FREE PIZZA!
BUY ONE & GET ONE FREE
Specify Original "Golden Braided" or new "Thin Style" Crust

SPECIAL COUPON
PYRAMID PIZZA®
MONDAY MANIA
Buy Any PYRAMID PIZZA & Get The Second Pizza (of equal value) FREE!
Good Mondays Only
Delivery–
Fast, Friendly & Free!
539-4888
12th & Moro
Aggieville, USA
PYRAMID PIZZA™
We Pile It On!
© 1992 Pyramid Pizza, Inc.

Margaret Clarkin/Staff

Jim Wood, K-State Facilities painter, uses paint thinner to remove brown oil-based paint from the sidewalk between Kedzie and Calvin Hall Friday afternoon. Several other sidewalks on campus were vandalized with the same brushed-on paint.

Slurs painted on campus walks

K-State police to investigate case

By Steve Franzen
Campus Editor

Between Thursday night and early Friday morning, one or more vandals painted discriminatory remarks against homosexuals at five spots on campus sidewalks.

Two K-State painters from facilities building maintenance removed the messages between 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Friday. They said the job was made a bit easier because the paint was still partially wet.

> A can of spray paint in the hands of a couple of idiots can give a black eye to an entire university community.
> —Pat Bosco
> associate vice president for institutional advancement and dean of student life

"The paint was a dark brown oil-based paint that was brushed on," said Jim Wood, one of the removers. "It was still tacky and washed right off."

Wood and Larry Wohler, the other maintenance employee, used paint remover, a scrub brush and a garden hose to remove the paint from the sidewalks.

The messages read "no homos," and "no fags." Wood said he found the paintings between Cardwell and Waters halls, Denison and Eisenhower halls, Eisenhower and Holtz halls, Anderson and Kedzie halls and Kedzie and Calvin halls.

Kay Garrett, associate director of News Services, spotted the markings on her way to work Friday morning and called Pat Bosco, associate vice president for institutional advancement and dean of student life. Bosco in turn called the KSU Police.

"A can of spray paint in the hands of a couple of idiots can give a black eye to an entire university community," Bosco said in an issued statement. "Kansas State University does not tolerate this kind of harassment. We will do everything we can to identify the individuals responsible for this act, and we will prosecute them to the fullest extent of the law."

Wood said the police contacted his office for a clean-up effort and also instructed him to be ready if the incident were to happen again early Saturday morning.

"They told us to be ready for a call tomorrow morning and to be out here to clean it up before Parents' Weekend," Wood said.

Police said the case is under investigation but denied to comment further.

Rich taxed in new plan

Bush administration opposes Democratic budget reductions

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Vice President Dan Quayle said Sunday that the Bush administration is violently opposed to a Democratic plan for a large increase in the top tax rates paid by the wealthiest Americans.

But a principal supporter of the increase, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of House Ways and Means Committee, said he would seek its approval this week as part of a deficit reduction plan in an election campaign test of strength.

"I'm not going to deny that we're trying to make a political statement, and there certainly is evidence that there's now a division between Democrats and Republicans," said Rostenkowski, D-Ill.

Quayle and Rostenkowski made their comments on Sunday television news programs, setting the stage for this week's attempt in Congress to fashion a $500 billion five-year package of spending cuts and tax increases to rein in the federal deficit.

If Congress fails to approve an acceptable deficit reduction plan before midnight Friday, White House Chief of Staff John Sununu said chances were relatively high the federal government would shut down for a second time this month.

When Congress refused to pass the first deficit plan that administration officials and congressional leaders had labored over for months, Bush closed the government for the three-day Columbus Day weekend. The impact was tempered by the holiday, and Bush later agreed to a temporary spending measure.

Aside from the deficit reduction plan, Congress hopes to complete work on comprehensive clean air legislation, a civil rights bill, a new farm bill and several other major pieces of legislation before it adjourns for the year sometime in the next two weeks.

There are several hundred billion dollars in spending cuts in the package, including more than $13 billion in agriculture spending.

Any deficit-reduction plan also is expected to curb the defense buildup, cut Medicare, and restrain spending in hundreds of federal programs. But most of the debate in recent days has centered around whose taxes should be raised and by how much.

Rostenkowski's House Ways and Means Committee approved a proposal that would raise the top tax bracket from 28 percent to 33 percent.

"We want to protect middle income and poor America, and we want everybody to share in the pain of governing," Rostenkowski said on CNN's "Newsmaker Sunday."

Big Ben, Westminster Abbey on students' England itinerary

By Tammy Rose
Collegian Reporter

Some students and faculty members will visit England during Christmas break this year.

For the past 10 years students and faculty traveled to England to learn and have fun, said Gary Clift, instructor of English.

This year students and faculty from the art, music, English, interior design and architecture programs will go to England.

Individual faculty members are responsible for recruiting students from their discipline to go on the trip, Clift said.

A core itinerary is planned for the students, including trips to Big Ben and Westminster Abbey. Each discipline will also have its own itinerary in which they will visit sites of special interest. A trip is also planned to Oxford University, where Mary Hale, K-State Rhodes Scholar, will give the group a tour.

Clift said that in the past the trip fulfilled an intercession requirement but that he is not certain if this year's trip will do so.

The trip costs $1,699. This includes airfare, hotel, breakfast and any registration or admission tickets.

"We get a price break for being a group of students. Basically, all the money they need to bring with them is for lunch and dinner and any souvenirs they want," said Clift.

He said the students get three free days in which they can go on their own sightseeing tours. In the past, some have traveled to Amsterdam or Edinburgh or to shops, he said.

The group will benefit from faculty experience from past trips.

"They know what is good to see and what is not so good," Clift said, who will be going on his eighth trip to England.

The trips have always been to England because of its vast theatrical and literary history, he said.

"We go to England in hopes the students can pick up on some of the history of the theater and literature. There's no Shakespeare or Milton or Dickens in France," Clift said.

Sarah Greenwood, senior in modern languages, said that she is looking forward to the trip and that she hopes to attend graduate school in England.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime trip and a chance to see the great things you usually only hear about," Greenwood said.

Two nice, caring guys looking for romantic and attractive young women.
Interested?
Call: 539-8133 539-8053

Clara-Wilson Cook successfully defended her Ph.D dissertation entitled: A Quantitative and Qualitative Investigation of the Persistence of a Select Group of Reinstated Students at a Four-Year Institution of Higher Education at 10 a.m. on
Monday, October 8, 1990

Eric Wisdom, D.D.S.
NEW PATIENT SPECIAL
Cleaning, Exam and 2 X-rays
ONLY $28 reg. $59
24 hr. Emergency Number

Treat Yourself To A "Triple Whammy"!!
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY.
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Tower
Aggieville

THE GREAT MANHATTAN SWEEP OUT.

Talk to doctors, pharmacists, dentists, nurses and other health professionals who care for your child's health. Get complete instructions for medicine use and follow them to the letter. Find out for each prescription:
- The name of the medicine, and what it is supposed to do;
- How much the child should take, when to take it, and for how long;
- What foods, beverages, other medicines or activities the child should avoid while taking the medicine;
- Possible side effects, and what to do if they occur;
- What written information about the medicine is available for you to take home.

MEDICINE...
The Trick Could Be On You
Don't let the trick be on you...On October 31, sweep out your old medicine and bring it to The Saint Mary Hospital between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. for proper disposal.

the saint mary hospital
1823 College Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502 • (913) 776-3322
KMKF 101.7 KMAN

The art of creating a smile of lasting beauty.

Smile enhancement by the professionals

Ceramic Laboratory Artisans on Staff
Porcelain and Dicor® —bonding — veneers — inlays — crowns — bridges

SAGER DENTAL ASSOCIATES, P.A.
514 Humboldt Plaza Cosmetic Dentistry Department 913-537-9414

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

Change likened to sudden jolt of vertigo

Kevin Zwink

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

A dialogue on change.
"You OK? What's wrong?"

"What's wrong? I'm dizzy, my stomach feels funny, everything's fuzzy, and the clouds seem lower today. I look around, then I lose my breath because everything is happening so fast. I walk around with my eyes closed, thinking I know the way, but bump into things that weren't there the day before. I reach my hand out to shake friends' hands and find their touch feels different each time. I wonder if my touch feels different. They change. Am I changing too?"

"Well, you certainly look different today. I mean the changes aren't so obvious, but they're there. I can understand why you never notice. But that's interesting. Yes. The hands. The hands change the fastest. It's good you notice that. Look at your own. If you want to know what you're going to look like when you get older, look at your hands. Your hands experience first every touch in your life. The hands never lie. Each touch of your hands has an effect on the movements you make through life."

"What do you mean the hands, the hands? I'm not talking about aging. You don't understand, old man. Your preoccupation with hands and age are ridiculous. You're old. Sure your hands look like you. That means nothing to me. My hands are young. I do see wrinkles, but that's just the way hands look. No deeper meaning. What I'm talking about is change. An inward feeling. Have you felt it? It's like a sudden jolt of vertigo. You never expect it. It's like leaning back in a chair, feeling secure as you balance. If you pass that point of balance just slightly, WHAM! Instant vertigo. Me? I lean the chair back. I feel the balance. And when I almost topple backwards I reach for the table because it's always there. So I quit. I just leave the chair on the ground. I look around and see people with their chairs on the ground like mine. Others have toppled over backwards and are picking themselves up from the ground. And I see people smiling as they balance themselves perfectly."

"Why did you quit? You lost your balance, so you give up. You have no sense of balance. How could you, your hands are in your pockets all the time. What do your hands do when you begin to topple. They spin around frantically. They desperately try to hold onto something that never changes."

"Old man, what do you mean the hands, the hands? My young hands are for grabbing and holding on tight. They're strong, and while that strength lasts I'll hold onto the table and keep my chair on the ground. Better yet, I'll just wander around with my hands in my pockets. Forget the hands, forget the chair, forget balance. I'm not talking about balance. I'm talking about change, the inward feeling. What can you say about that? I know, 'the hands.' Ha. I mean change. It's like being six, then seven, then eight, then nine. You keep bumping into things that you never expect. Every year you wonder who you were the year before. Why do I want clothes and money now for my birthday? Why not some games or a bicycle? Everything changes too fast. I'll just keep my chair on the ground and my hands in my pockets."

"Yes, that's it exactly. Your hands are young and strong and grasp tightly. You're right, boy, you never let go of the table, and your hands are always in your pockets. You limit the experiences of your hands to two things. The comfort of the table and the warmth of your pockets."

"Forget the hands, old man. You don't understand."

"Watch this kid. I sit down in my chair and ease it back. There. I experience a balance. I'm familiar with the sensation of instant vertigo also. But I use my hands, not to grab onto, but rather to let go in order to regain my balance. While I have my balance, my hands are free to experience more than a pocket or a table. I'm petting a bird, or touching someone, or picking up leaves or just simply scratching my nose. It's a necessary cycle. Hold onto something, but let it go in order to regain balance. Grab something else, but let it go in order to regain balance. All that your hands know, all that your hands feel and experience are the table and your pockets. That's all. Nothing else. It's a shame."

"What if I pushed you over, old man? What would you do with your stupid hands then?"

"Well, I'd probably grab onto you and pull you away from the table. Then I'd let you go and hope you learn how to experience true balance."

EDITORIALS

Racial/ethnic harmony should last all year

Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week is over.

But life doesn't end with a week.

The Arabs, Chinese, African-Americans and all other ethnic groups are still trying to make their way at K-State and to be a part of the University community.

To exclude them from any aspect of it — whether in a person's mind or in a more noticeably visible action — is going against everything the harmony week has tried to teach us.

The purpose of Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week is to cross the boundaries we have set up and join together as one group. It is to teach us as students that it is our job to open ourselves to new experiences and to allow old prejudices to fall away.

We should continue the enlightenment begun last week into the future. We need to abolish color barriers and live in a more accepting environment that is aware of problems facing other students.

K-State is still facing a decline in minority retention. Feelings of racial or ethnic isolation are still being experienced. Discrimination in all forms still rears its ugly head.

The person or persons who decided to paint discriminatory remarks on campus pavement last week simply showed their ignorance. In a university community that is trying to become more aware of the different groups on campus, their actions only showed what small, closed minds they truly have.

It is our job to erase the boundaries we have set in our minds. It is our responsibility to continue the education Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week has begun.

It is our community. We have to make stronger by coming together in a united front against discrimination.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... David Frese
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel,
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koel
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little, Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff, Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

Student Publications Staff

DIRECTOR/NEWS ADVISER ..... Ron Johnson
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR/ADVERTISING DIRECTOR ..... Gloria Freeland
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR ..... Linda Puntney
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Ann Foster
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE ..... Jackie Harmon
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Linda Weatherly
OFFICE MANAGER ..... Pat Hudgins
ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT ..... Connie Pulkerson
INTERIM NEWS PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... David Svoboda
NEWS PRODUCTION ASSISTANT ..... Carla Jones
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Wanda Haynie
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS ..... Tammi Landis, Dana Franklin, Chris Tucker, Britt Owen, Deanna Adams
OFFICE STAFF ..... Shanta Bailey, Matt FitzGerald, Christa South
CARRIERS ..... Joe Cook, Minda Dowdy, John Pulkerson, Norm LeComte, James Seymore

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $30
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $54
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $60

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

LETTERS

Open minds needed

Editor,

On my way to Waters Hall Friday morning, I was saddened and disgusted to see "no fags" painted in big, brown letters on the sidewalk.

In the midst of "Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week" and with "National Coming Out Day" right around the corner, it's terrible to think of the hatred and prejudice that exists, and worse still, that is being so openly displayed on this "diverse" campus.

If the person who painted those words feels that being gay is wrong, fine. He or she is entitled to that opinion. But if we truly want "harmony in a world of difference," we must open our minds and keep the paint brushes in art class.

Stephanie Baker
sophomore in business management

Gays unaccepted

Editor,

I am writing in response to the article in Thursday's Collegian, "Gay students feel stereotyped." It made many points that made me feel uncomfortable.

First, the Gay and Lesbian Resource Center is renaming the organization the Bisexual and Gay and Lesbian Resource Center in order to insure that it includes bisexuals as well as gays.

Heaven forbid we should ignore bisexuals. The article says the goal for this organization is to create a comfortable atmosphere where the gays could meet and not feel threatened or alone. Well, the gays do feel alone because they don't make themselves public. But, then again, I don't blame them, I would feel ashamed too.

I don't hate homosexuals. Like the article said, there are about 2,000 homosexuals here at K-State, and I don't doubt that I know a few of them. How can homosexuals expect us not be surprised when we find out their sexual preference?

It is inconceivable to me how a man can be attracted to another man and not to a woman, or vice versa. God created us all equal. You are not made gay, and for a homosexual to decide to marry and have children seems cruel to me. How are these children going to feel growing up in a dysfunctional family? Being an education major, I know that children need to have a male parent and a female parent. They need to see love between those two parents.

If homosexuals are so worried about stereotypes, maybe they should stop thinking about their own distorted needs and start thinking about those around who love and care and depend on them.

Adrienne Merritt
senior in elementary education

Headline biased

Editor,

The anti-Arab and anti-Islam bias propagated by the Zionist-controlled media takes different shapes and forms. A subtle but an ugly example of this bias is the headline and the Associated Press article published in Wednesday's Collegian. The headline reads, "Israel closes Temple Mount."

The AP and the Collegian used only the Jewish name (Temple Mount) to refer to the site of the massacre of at least 21 Palestinians by Israeli soldiers. For your knowledge, millions of Arabs and Moslems throughout the world call the site of the massacre "Al-harm El-sharif," which translates to the "noble sanctuary" in English. The massacre site is the location of Al-Aqsa mosque, Islam's third-holiest shrine.

Furthermore, Israel closed only the Moslem shrines after the massacre; Jewish worshippers were allowed to go to theirs.

In conclusion, the Collegian choice of the headline is not only offensive but also nonfactual. The Collegian owes the Arab and Moslem communities of K-State an apology.

Abdulrazag Durar
graduate student in agronomy

Exclude women

Editor,

I'm puzzled. Do these women reporters who insist on entering men's locker rooms feel sexually discriminated against when they see a restroom door with the word men on it? Are they upset that these public facilities were designed for the sole use of men? When they are in the men's locker room, do they complain about how urinals do not accommodate women? In this case, I must point out that sexual discrimination is necessary. Women should not be allowed in men's locker rooms for the same reason they are not allowed in men's restrooms. They don't belong there. I'm sure the athletes would give the same answers to their questions outside the locker room. When is the last time a man went into a women's locker room to get after-game comments from female athletes? How many women are willing to answer the questions of a male reporter while standing in nothing but a towel?

It seems that after women were allowed into men's clubs, they had to find something else to complain about. There is absolutely no reason for their complaining except to complain. Personally, I'm sick of it. I only wish the men of the world would be men about it.

When a woman wants to join a men's club, simply tell her, "I'm sorry, this is a men's club." If she doesn't like it, then she probably wouldn't like the club. And if she still insists on joining, then she's obviously only interested in causing trouble.

In the case of a female reporter wanting into a men's locker room for an interview, maybe she's only doing her job, but her job doesn't give her the right to go wherever she pleases.

A police officer must have a warrant to enter someone else's property. A woman can at least receive permission, and an athlete should not feel obligated to grant permission. Don't forget, athletes have the right to not answer questions. If the interview is so important, the female reporter can wait until the athlete is ready (and willing).

One last thing; I do not condone the behavior of the New England Patriots football team if "Boston Herald" reporter Lisa Olson's story is accurate.

Sean Ryland
freshman in architectural engineering

New program begins

Fifth-year students to help underclassmen

By Rob Batchman
Collegian Reporter

The environmental design studies program has implemented a new program in which upperclassmen help guide underclassmen through their first two years.

The program matches students, mostly fifth-year seniors, with younger students. The underclassmen can go to their liaisons for advice and guidance whenever they need it.

"This gives the underclassmen an experienced peer with whom they can have an informal method of interaction," said Gwen Owens-Wilson, director of the environmental design studies program.

"Underclassmen can be assigned an upper-division student whom they can question about schedules, methodology and other questions beginners in our program often have," she said.

The program will introduce the liaison to the environmental design students in a studio setting. The students will receive the liaison's studio location and telephone number and can contact the liaison for advice or help.

Owens-Wilson said the idea for the program originated when a small group of upperclassmen approached her with the possibility of beginning a program to help guide freshmen and sophomores through their first two years.

"They asked me if I would support the program, and I thought it would be a wonderful idea. I'm impressed that they think it is important," she said. "There are many questions that students wouldn't ask faculty or advisers but would ask a peer. Now they will have an experienced peer to ask."

Bryan Zimmer, fifth-year senior in architecture, said the program will establish more contact between students.

"We decided to start the program to provide interaction between the upper and lower classes because right now we don't have that interaction," he said. "This will give the underclassmen an opportunity to actually know somebody in a fifth-year studio when they need help."

Owens-Wilson said the environmental design program is composed of core courses that every major in architecture, interior architecture and landscape architecture must complete. During the second year of the program, each student selects a major from one of the three disciplines.

"The liaison program will help to aid these students in choosing the correct major for themselves," she said.

Owens-Wilson said the program is entirely volunteer.

"It's a very helpful, supportive and positive thing for the upper-division students to do. There is no college credit. The reward is entirely personal," she said.

The outlook for the program is promising, Zimmer said.

"We've had outstanding participation by the upperclassmen," he said. "We were hoping to have 16 students sign up, but now we have 45. It has really overwhelmed our expectations."

Optimism rises with prices for Kansas oil producers

By The Associated Press

GREAT BEND — Soaring oil prices are creating new signs of life in Kansas oil fields, as the price for a barrel of oil climbs past the $30 mark, compared to the $12 price that was common four years ago.

While most of the nation has been upset by rising gasoline and oil prices, domestic oil producers across the nation, including Kansas, are breathing easier.

"I think a lot of us are a lot more optimistic," said Leroy Lyon, director of the Mid-Kansas Economic Development Commission in Great Bend. "I do know there are a lot more people smiling in the oil patch."

But veteran oil-field workers and companies who provide goods and services for the oil fields are proceeding with caution.

"I don't think the investors are getting excited anywhere," said John Herl, vice president of Corrosion Proof Fitting, which specializes in oil-field pipes and fittings. "A lot of them have lost a lot of money over the years. I think everybody is going to sit and wait."

Oil prices held around the $2 and $3 per barrel mark from the 1940s until 1973, according to figures supplied by the Kansas Independent Oil and Gas Association for crude oil from new and stripper wells.

But by the end of 1973, crude was selling for $10 a barrel, and by January 1980, it was selling for $39 a barrel.

The price drifted into the upper $20s and lower $30s until 1986, when the price fell to $10.50 per barrel by August.

The price eventually climbed back into the teens for a few years and broke $21 per barrel this year, but many businesses did not survive the hard times.

The Kansas Department of Human Resources estimated that 8,000 to 10,000 jobs were lost during the period and about 1,500 oil-related businesses folded in 1987 alone.

In Stafford, Bayse Well Servicing had four rigs and could not get the work done fast enough until prices fell in 1986.

"Back then, we were backlogged maybe a week or two," said Wanda Volker, officer manager. "When it was really bad, we were running one and couldn't hardly keep that busy."

The company now has three rigs back in service and is keeping busy, she said.

The current situation has not caused a big increase in new drilling, but many producers are putting marginal wells back in service, increasing the capacity of existing wells and making long-delayed repairs.

"We're repairing their equipment that has been idle for three or four years," said Lance Walters of McDonald Tank and Equipment Co.

One problem already developing is a shortage of good workers. Many of the people who lost their oil-related jobs three years ago now work in other fields, Walters said.

GET THE EDGE

and get your Royal Purple portrait taken.
These groups are scheduled for

Oct. 24-26

◆ OFF CAMPUS
◆ ANYONE WHO MISSED SCHEDULED TIME

There is a $4 sitting fee. If you paid for it at registration, you must bring your Royal Purple receipt.

Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.
Location: K-State Union, Room 209
For an appointment or if you have questions
CALL 532-7808

1991 ROYAL PURPLE

AIM HIGH

THE SKY'S THE LIMIT FOR AIR FORCE ROTC CADETS.

No matter what your plans for a career, there's a way to give them even greater potential. Join Air Force ROTC in college. The rest is summed up in one word: opportunity. . . Opportunities to apply for scholarships that will help you pay for college. Opportunities to expand your horizons in different technical areas. Opportunities to learn leadership skills that will enhance your whole career.

From there, a vast wealth of opportunities continues to open for those who seek an outstanding career.

Contact CAPT ROYER
913-532-6600

AIR FORCE ROTC

Leadership Excellence Starts Here

1990 OKTOBERBLAST

The LOWEST PRICES on the BEST BRANDS with GREAT SERVICE

OPEN til 8 p.m. weeknights
90 Days same as Cash
Free Delivery & Installation of home stereo

FREE DELIVERY • FREE INSTALLATION

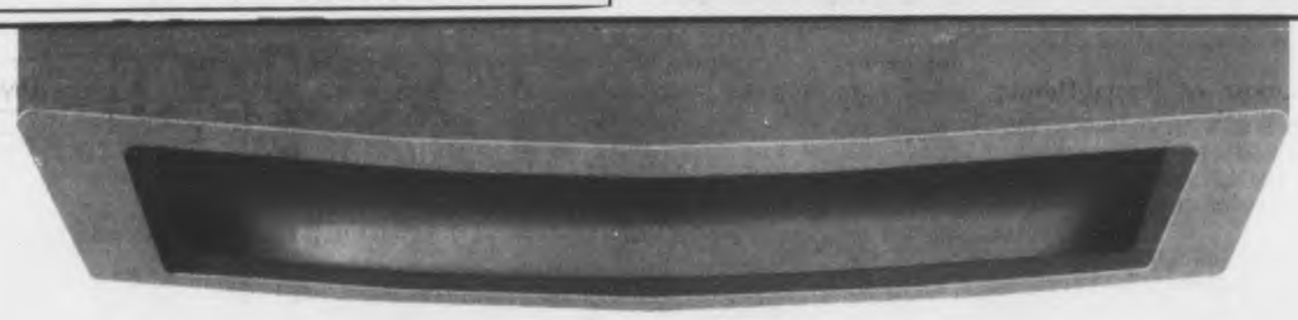
Everything is on Sale!

$399
RCA Hi-Fi Stereo VCR with 4-Head Video System
•VHS Hi-Fi stereo sound with built-in TV broadcast stereo tuner and SAP (Second Audio Program)
•Double-azimuth 4-head video system
•Field still special effects; slow motion, stop action, frame advance, picture search
•8-program 1-year timer with on-screen display and remote programming
•Remote also operates many RCA TVs
•155-channel cable-compatible quartz tuner with Auto Programming
RCA Model VR671HF

Sony 5 Disc CD Changer
•Shuffle play
•Programmable
$199 without remote
$229 with remote
SONY CDPC200

KENWOOD LSK304
2-Way Speakers
$48 each

All Bush Furniture ON SALE!
Model V1332



RCA VR250 or GE VG7500 $227
RCA Video Cassette Recorder
•Infrared remote control
•14-day/4-event programming
•110 channel broadcast/cable FS quartz tuning

SONY CDP190
Compact Disc Player
$129
•4x oversampling
•Dual 16 bit D/A converter
•Stereo stabilizer circuit
•Shuffle play
•20 track programming

MITSUBISHI CS2015R $347
20" Stereo Monitor/Receiver with Remote
•Black matrix picture tube for high contrast
•181-channel cable ready
•Off-timer
•Full function remote control with on-screen display of volume, bass, treble, balance, stereo/SAP select, color, tints, brightness, contrast and sharpness.

RCA Camcorder with Solid State CCD Image Sensor
ONLY $799
•Solid state CCD image sensor
•6:1 Power Zoom lens with autofocus
•Electronic viewfinder with playback capability
•On-screen date display
•High speed electronic shutter
RCA Model CC260

CONDES
QUALITY PLUGGED IN...
AUDIO • VIDEO • STEREO
Quantities Limited to Store Stock
OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
Mon.-Fri. 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Sat. 10 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Sun. 1-5 p.m.
407 Poyntz - 776-4704 Downtown Manhattan

Attend our new product introduction and see what it means for you.

Whether you're the leader of a corporation or the head of a classroom, a computer whiz or a technical novice, we have a special event planned for you.

It's Apple's new product introduction.

And it's your opportunity to see all the affordable new products we've created to make Macintosh* technology even more accessible to more people.

Of course, all the new products make the most of what makes a Macintosh a Macintosh. Like ease of use. Thousands of applications that work the same way. Built-in networking. And the ability to expand as your needs grow. All of which give you the power to master everyday tasks, and do new things you never imagined.

So make plans now to attend. And experience Macintosh for yourself.

Monday, October 15, 1990
1:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m.
Bluemont Hall Media Room
(Basement)

Sponsored by MacSource and the K-State Union Bookstore.

K-State Union Bookstore

MACSOURCE

©1990 Apple Computer, Inc. Apple, the Apple logo, and Macintosh are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS MONDAY

Wildcats rally, hold off OSU 23-17

By Russ Ewy
Sports Reporter

When the smoke cleared after a shoot-out with the Oklahoma State Cowboys, the K-State Wildcats found themselves standing tall with their first conference win since 1986.

Enjoying the view from the top four in the Big Eight, the 4-2 Wildcats evened their conference record at 1-1 by stopping the Cowboys in KSU Stadium for the first time in 12 years, 23-17.

K-State coach Bill Snyder said it was the most satisfying win "not necessarily because it was the first conference win, but just because of the way it happened. It helps verify, for these kids, the things we preach to them day in and day out."

Billed as an important game for both teams, the 'Cats fought hard in the second and third quarters and scored in the fourth to smudge Cowboy coach Pat Jones' 6-0 record against them.

"I thought it was a pretty well-played ballgame on both sides," Jones said. "We had the opportunities to win, but turnovers took us out of it. You have to give K-State a whole lot of credit on this one.

"I thought going in it was going to be basically an even matchup. Whoever made the breaks was probably going to win it, and that's what happened. We played hard, but I'll be honest with you, I think the best team won."

Halting the 'Pokes after the opening kickoff, K-State scored its first touchdown since the New Mexico game two weeks ago. Freshman running back Kitt Rawlings capped a 76-yard drive with a one-yard run.

Oklahoma State then moved the ball, getting a couple of quick first downs before quarterback Earl Wheeler hit flanker Robert Kirksey for a 36-yard gain. Four plays later, placekicker Cary Blanchard hit a 30-yard field goal to start things for the Cowboys.

After switching scoring methods in the second quarter, with K-State placekicker Tate Wright hitting a 20-yard field goal and O-State quarterback replacement Kenny Ford throwing a three-yard touchdown pass to tailback Vernon Brown, the teams finished the half tied 10-10.

The drama came in the second half.

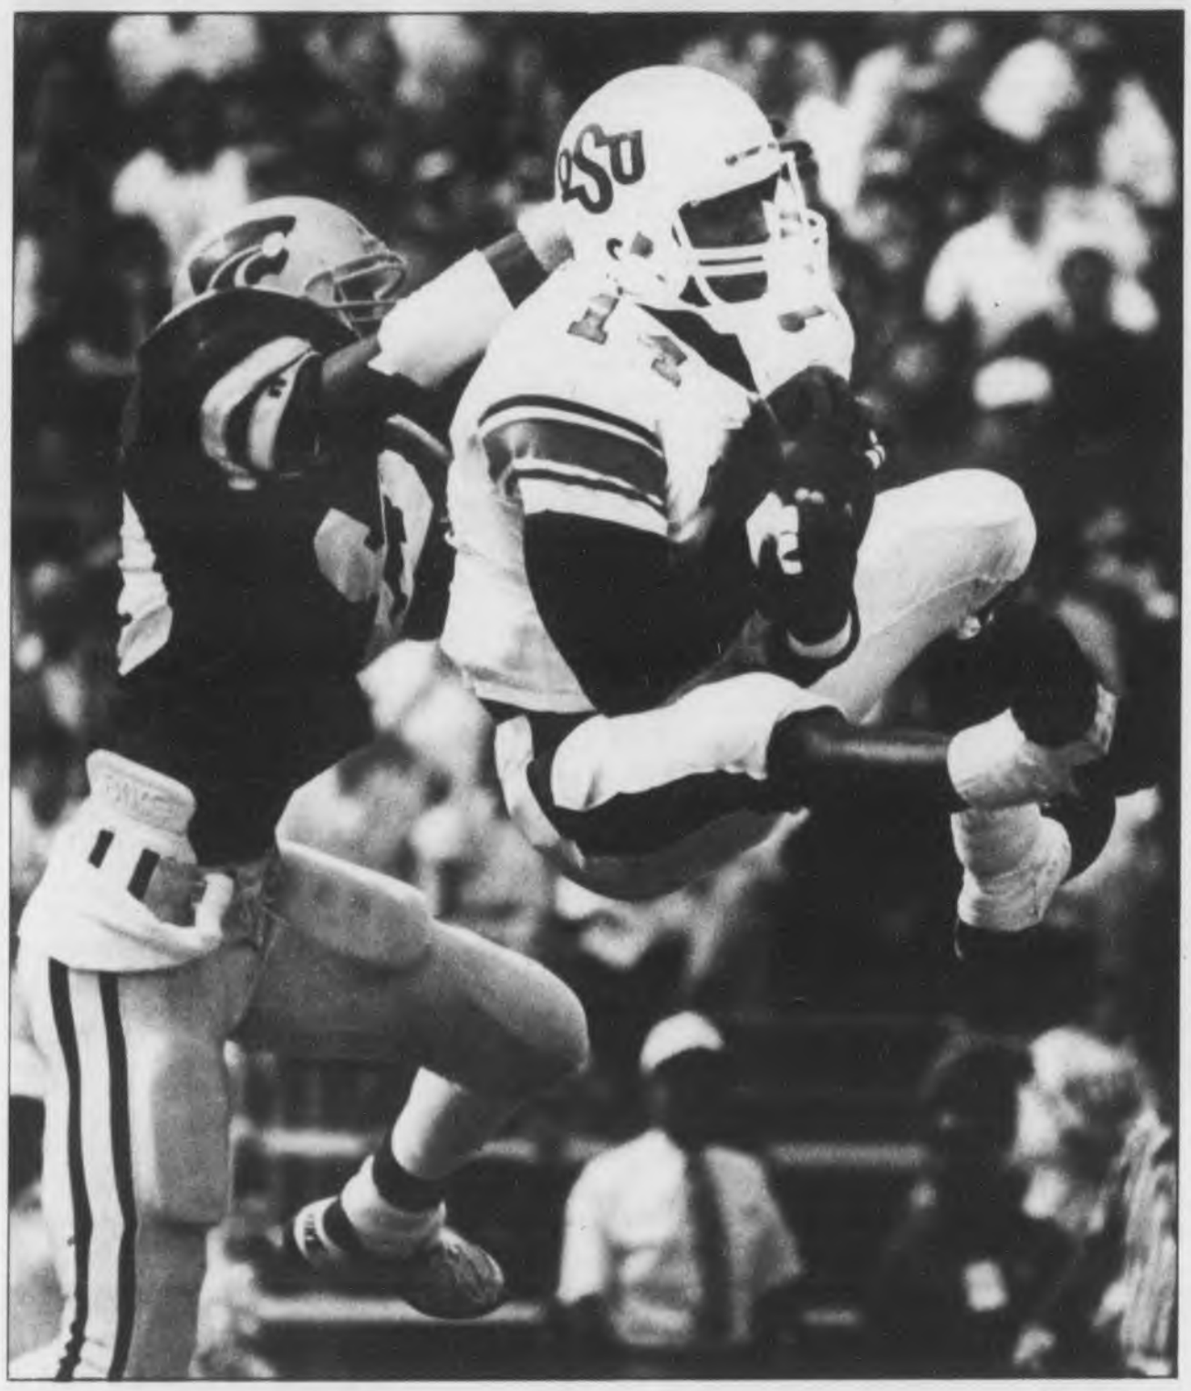
Oklahoma State fullback Cecil Wilson gave the Cowboys a 17-10 lead in the middle of the third period, but Wildcat quarterback Carl Straw led the 'Cats out of their sluggish start by completing 6-of-7 attempts for 78 yards during an 80-yard scoring drive, finished by a one-yard run by freshman Rod Schiller with 29 seconds left in the third quarter.

The K-State defense also rallied to the cause by creating a O-State fumble for a 10-yard loss right before cornerback Jaime Mendez picked off a Ford pass to set up the final touchdown of the game. After an incomplete conversion attempt, the 'Cats led 23-17.

The 'Pokes refused to let down, though. Behind the running of senior tailback Gerald Hudson, Oklahoma State drove 69 yards and looked to regain the lead, but K-State linebacker Chris Patterson robbed Ford of the go-ahead touchdown by causing a goal-line fumble which strong safety Danny Needham recovered.

Patterson, who led the way for the Wildcats with eight tackles, arguably made the play of the game.

"I knew (Ford) was real close to the goal line," Patterson said. "I was just afraid that if I tried to go ahead and tackle him that his forward progress would carry him into the end zone. I went for the strip, and fortunately it paid off."



"Oklahoma State came back and was able to move the ball at will, and our kids just hung in there," Snyder said. "(Ford) was flushed out and our containment broke down. Chris didn't stop chasing him and reached out and stripped the ball from him."

Working the clock down, the Wildcats were forced to punt, but the 'Cats defense stopped the 'Pokes again. After holding O-State to no gain, Needham iced the victory by intercepting a Ford pass with 57 seconds left in the contest.

"This was a great game for us in terms of learning something we've been confronted with on a number of occasions, and that is when you have some adversity, the momentum is going to change," Snyder said. "You've got to continue to play hard and play smart, and eventually the tide will turn again and the momentum will swing back your way.

"I think that (K-State's not folding) is maybe as important as anything that happened. Just before the ballgame, we sat down and talked about momentum changes. We talked

■ See FOOTBALL, Page 8

Gary Lytle/Staff

Oklahoma State wide receiver Robert Kirksey and K-State cornerback Rogerick Green take to the air for this first-quarter pass during the Wildcats' 23-17 victory. Kirksey caught four passes for 64 yards.

Win over Cowboys biggest since bowl-clincher in 1982

David Svoboda
SPORTS EDITOR

That's one small step in the standings, one giant leap for K-State football.

Coach Bill Snyder's Wildcats, who faded late in last week's 45-8 loss to Nebraska, righted themselves yet again Saturday.

In so doing, they came away with a 23-17 win over Oklahoma State that is the biggest "W" this program has seen since the 1982 win over Colorado that clinched an Independence Bowl berth.

A bit overstated? Perhaps, but then again, maybe not.

Snyder said — before and after the victory — that a win or a loss would not make or break the program.

"If we'd lost this game, it wouldn't have devastated the program," Snyder said. "Winning it hasn't made our program. What this verifies is that we're closing the gap and that we're growing."

It's that growth — and how obvious it is, even to the untrained eye — that makes Saturday's win so significant.

As the Wildcats left the field Saturday, several of them were heard to be saying, "Six more, fellas. Just six more."

Let's do a bit of math. The Wildcats have played six games. If there are six more, fellas, that makes 12. But the K-State schedule only has 11 games on it, right?

Where's the extra game going to come from? A bowl game, perhaps?

Hush my mouth.

But hush their mouths? Never! Sure, the expectations may be a bit unrealistic, but who's to say. Saturday's victory was just another large chunk of snow added to the side of a snowball that's gaining in size each week.

This snowball, which has been careening downhill for years, is gaining in size as it slowly heads uphill. It got caught by a huge gust of wind Saturday.

If the Wildcats had lost Saturday's game, chances are that K-State players would be questioning whether they had come as far as their record indicated.

After all, there were no Big Eight victories on the board since 1986. K-State hadn't won a conference contest against anyone other than Kansas or Missouri since 1984.

Now the 'Cats have that elusive Big Eight victory under their belts, and they have a legitimate shot for three more wins over the next three weekends.

Yep, in three more weeks this team could be 7-2. There, I've said it — 7-2.

Can you believe it?

Whether you can or not is really insignificant. Whether the players do is what's really important here.

Quarterback Carl Straw, whose gutty efforts sparked the tying- and go-ahead scoring drives, thinks his team is definitely on the verge of something big.

"Guys like me came here to play Big Eight football," he said. "This is my fifth year here, and I finally feel we belong in the Big Eight."

And it's that type of feeling that has K-State fourth in the Big Eight as the season moves into the second half.

Five games remain. Missouri, Kansas, Iowa State, Oklahoma and Colorado wait.

Could five become six? That possibility is one that would have been laughed at not too long ago — last week, perhaps — by most folks. But no one was laughing at the thought Saturday.

Except maybe the Wildcat players themselves. And their laughs were filled with the joy of having taken a small step and a giant leap at the same time.

Mike Venso/Staff

Wildcat tight end Russ Campbell is dragged down short of the end zone. Campbell had a career day with six receptions for 97 yards.

Brad Camp/Staff

Rod Schiller (30) celebrates with teammates after scoring a touchdown that tied the game at 17-17 in the third quarter against Oklahoma State.

David Mayes/Staff

In an attempt to further excite the 22,856 fans in attendance at Saturday's 23-17 K-State win over Oklahoma State, Willie the Wildcat climbed to the platform on top of the scoreboard to lead cheers.

STANDINGS

BIG EIGHT CONFERENCE

	FOOTBALL Big 8	Pct.	Total	Pct.
Nebraska	2-0	1.000	6-0	1.000
Oklahoma	2-0	1.000	5-1	.833
Colorado	2-0	1.000	5-1-1	.786
K-State	1-1	.500	4-2	.667
Iowa St.	0-1-1	.250	2-3-1	.417
Kansas	0-1-1	.250	1-4-1	.250
Missouri	0-2	.000	2-4	.333
Okla. St.	0-2	.000	2-4	.333

Saturday's Games
K-State 23, Oklahoma State 17
Colorado 28, Iowa State 12
Miami 34, Kansas 0
Nebraska 69, Missouri 21
Texas 14, Oklahoma 13

STATISTICS

WILDCAT FOOTBALL

GAME IN FIGURES

STATISTIC	KSU	OSU
First Downs	19	17
Rushing Yards	163	192
Passing Yards	182	78
Total Offense	345	270
Return Yards	42	32
Att.-Comp.-Int.	21-14-0	29-9-2
Fumbles-Lost	2-1	2-1
Penalties	5-40	3-25

O-State	3	7	7	0	— 17
K-State	7	3	7	6	— 23

KS — Rawlings 1-yard run (Wright kick)
OSU — Blanchard 30-yard FG
KS — Wright 20-yard FG
OSU — Brown 3-yard pass from Ford (Blanchard kick)
OSU — Wilson 1-yard run (Blanchard kick)
KS — Schiller 1-yard run (Wright kick)
KS — Straw 1-yard run (pass fail)

RUSHING —K-State: Jackson 16-75, Schiller 15-68, Rawlings 10-14, Straw 13-6. Oklahoma State: Hudson 24-150, Ford 5-24, Brown 3-8, Wheeler 1-7, Wilson 3-4, Vincent 1-(-1).

PASSING — K-State: Straw 14-21-0-182. Oklahoma State: Wheeler 4-16-0-65, Ford 5-13-2-13.

RECEIVING — K-State: Campbell 6-97, Smith 3-51, Rawlings 2-9, Schiller 1-14, Hernandez 1-7, Coleman 1-4. Oklahoma State: Kirksey 4-64, Wilson 2-18, Hudson 2-(-7), Brown 1-3.

PUNTING — K-State: Cobb 4-27.8. Oklahoma State: Blanchard 4-43.8.

A — 22,856.

Texas knocks off OU for 2nd-straight year

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma took a painful lesson in history from Texas in their annual matchup with the Longhorns in Dallas, losing 14-13.

Texas quarterback Peter Gardere victimized Oklahoma defensive back Charles Franks for the winning touchdown, just like last year.

Gardere passed 16 yards to Keith Cash with two minutes left to give the Longhorns the victory. Last year, Johnny Walker caught a 25-yard pass from Gardere against Franks with 1:33 to play to win.

"He had a step on me, and Gardere made a great throw," Franks said. "It was a touchdown. It was sort of the same kind of play as last year. This was more of a post route. I guess I'm being picked on."

R.D. Lashar missed a 47-yard field goal as time ran out for the Sooners (5-1, 2-0).

In other games involving Big Eight teams, No. 7 Nebraska dominated Missouri 69-21, No. 14 Colorado beat Iowa State 28-12 and Kansas was blanked by No. 3 Miami 34-0.

The Nebraska offense wasn't exactly a juggernaut under quarterback Mike Grant the last two weeks. So Coach Tom Osborne went to Mickey Joseph.

Joseph responded by matching a school record with four rushing touchdowns and threw for another for the Cornhuskers (6-0, 2-0) in Lincoln.

Missouri (2-4, 0-2) moved the ball effectively, but the Tigers' defense could not contain Nebraska's quicker players.

Colorado (5-1-1, 2-0) scored twice in the third quarter at Boulder to put away Iowa State. Quarterback Darian Hagan, still on the mend with a sprained shoulder, came off the bench late in the first half and took the Buffaloes to touchdowns on three of the next four possessions.

Iowa State (2-3-1, 0-1-1) took a 9-0 lead, but got 139 yards on its next 10 possessions.

"When they jumped out 9-0, I thought 'Here we go again,'" Colorado coach Bill McCartney said. "But we've had a lot of good third quarters this year, and this was another one. Our offensive line really took over. And if you take away Iowa State's first drive of the game, it was a really good defensive effort."

Kansas (1-4-1, 0-1-1) was subdued after a pregame brawl with Miami in the Orange Bowl. Fighting broke out after the Hurricanes walked through the Jayhawks while Kansas was going through its pregame drills.

Kansas drove deep into Miami territory on its first possession, but Tony Sands fumbled as he went into the end zone.

Basketball practice opens

Mike Welchhans/Staff

Members of various living groups competed in the dash-for-cash competition held as a part of Midnight Madness Sunday night.

By The Collegian Staff

At 12:01 this morning — or actually 12:04 — it began again at K-State.

Basketball is back.

After the pregame student slam dunk contest and dash-for-cash had been completed, it was time for new coach Dana Altman and his men's basketball team to take the floor for the first practice of the 1990-91 campaign.

And they did so, but only after making the approximately 6,000 gathered fans wait a bit longer than anticipated.

K-State network play-by-play man Mitch Holthus counted down, and when he reached one, there was no team. A minute later, still no team. Two minutes gone, still nada.

Then Willie the Wildcat, giant purple flag waiving high over head, took the floor followed by the Wildcat players, and the season was officially underway.

A series of drills designed to get the players in the swing followed, and a few dunks earned some "oohs" and "aahs" from the crowd.

After the introductions — which were highlighted by senior Jean Derouillere's "chest butts" to each of his teammates — there were two 10-minute halves. Play, as might have been expected in an opening practice, was ragged to say the least.

"I think it's obvious to everyone we haven't been practicing illegally here the last six weeks," Altman said of the effort shown by the Wildcats in his debut as head coach. "We've got some players who are going to be OK, but tonight was a little ragged."

Altman's proposed change in the team's style of play — from controlled tempo to more of an up-tempo, transition attack — is one that will take time, he said.

"We're starting from way behind," he said. "The players that have been here haven't run a lot. It's going to take some time to get used to the adjustments."

Another thing that took some time getting used to was the absence of Steve Henson from the floor. Since the concept of Midnight Madness began five years ago, Henson had been on the floor for each of the late night events.

But on this night — or early morning — it took until 15 seconds remained in the first 10-minute half for a Henson — Brian, who has verbally committed to the Wildcats — to touch the ball. He did so on an errant pass that sailed out of bounds.

There were basketballs flying out of bounds, bodies banging into one another, and tongues hanging down toward the Bramlage hardwood as things got underway.

A rite of passage had yet again come and gone. Basketball was back.

Brad Camp and Mike Venso/Staff

Players like John Rettiger (left) caught the watchful eye of new coach Dana Altman (above) during the scrimmage. Altman returns to K-State as head coach after a stint as a Wildcat assistant from 1986-1989.

Chiefs rip Detroit

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — While Christian Okoye and Barry Sanders were finishing 1-2 in last year's NFL rushing derby, Barry Word was working for a telephone company, a prison term on his record, his football career apparently over.

But Sunday, while the two All-Pros were combining for 181 yards rushing, Word was piling up a team-record 200 yards, leading Kansas City to a 43-24 rout of Sanders' Detroit Lions.

"I've never had a day like this. That's why I don't know how to feel," said Word, who spent 4½ months in prison in 1986 on charges of conspiracy to distribute cocaine.

After that, he spent two years with the New Orleans Saints but was working in telemarketing last May when the Chiefs picked him up.

"I'm amazed," he said. "I knew I was capable if I just got a chance."

In the first quarter, as Sanders' faking and juking staked the Lions to a 14-3 lead, about 75,000 Chiefs' fans were equally amazed. A Wichita native making his professional debut in his home area, Sanders took a screen pass from Bob Gagliano and faked out two would-be tacklers on an eye-popping 47-yard scoring play, his longest as a pro.

"He is the best running back I've ever seen, period," said Chiefs defensive end Bill Maas, who helped turn the game around in the second half.

A few minutes after taking a 7-3 lead, the Lions went up 14-3 when Sanders capped a 60-yard drive with a rubbery-legged 13-yard scoring sprint.

But Steve DeBerg's 1-yard touchdown pass to Jonathan Hayes got the Chiefs rolling. After taking a 17-14 halftime lead, Kansas City (4-2) took complete command of the Lions (2-4) in the second half, piling up up 566 yards in total offense, second-highest in team history. The 43 points were the most by Kansas City in five years. Word's 200 yards were seven better than the club record set in 1981 by the late Joe Delaney.

SPORTS BRIEFLY

Golfers finish 3rd

K-State golf coach Russ Bunker said a top-three finish at the Lady Shocker Classic in Wichita would give his women's golf team something to brag about.

Bunker's wish came true.

The Wildcats finished third in the 10-team event over the weekend with a team score of 999, losing only to Top 20 foe Texas Tech and host Wichita State. The Red Raiders won the event with a 54-hole score of 967.

K-State was led by Chris Adams, who finished sixth individually at 246. Adams fired the the 'Cats' best round on Saturday with a 79 at Reflection Ridge Golf Club.

Valerie Hahn finished eighth at 248, and Adena Hagedorn was 12th at 251.

Cross country meet held

The intramural cross country meet was concluded Sunday at Warner Park with Steve Lenz winning the all-University championship.

Lenz, who was running in the independent division, covered the two-mile course in 9 minutes and 59 seconds. Other divisional winners were Steve Palmer from Sigma Nu, Dan Engel with Haymaker 3 and Janell Armstrong from Alpha Delta Pi.

The team titles went to Beta Theta Pi in the fraternity race, Haymaker 3 in the residence hall competition and Alpha Delta Pi in the women's.

Rugby teams successful

The KSU Rugby Club saw two of its teams victorious over the weekend.

The club side beat the Johnson County Rugby Club 9-0. Sean McGrath scored the only try, and John DeVito had a penalty kick and a conversion.

The collegiate side beat the Topeka Rugby Club 24-0. Tim Giles and Steve Robke scored twice, and Dan Stoltz, Brad Steinlage and Isaac Madison each scored once. Ty Gray had three conversion kicks.

The A side is now 9-1, the B side is 3-2, and the collegiate side 1-0 on the year.

The next action for the team is the Heart of America Tournament in Kansas City, Mo.

Montana stays hot

Joe Montana's career highs of 476 yards and six touchdowns passes — five to Jerry Rice to tie an NFL receiving record — enabled unbeaten San Francisco to whip Atlanta 45-35 on Sunday, extending the 49ers' league record to 13 straight road victories.

Rice had a club-record 13 catches for 225 yards, with TD receptions covering 24, 25, 19, 13 and 15 yards. He tied the touchdown record shared by Bob Shaw of the Chicago Cardinals and Kellen Winslow of the San Diego Chargers.

Creighton, 'Cats split twinbill

By The Collegian Staff

Creighton ripped off 11 first-inning runs after two men were out and went on to pound K-State 19-4 in the opening game of a doubleheader Sunday at Frank Myers Field. K-State came back to win the second game, 8-7.

"We played horrible," Wildcat coach Mike Clark said in recapping the opener. "It was as bad as we can play,"

Clark said the first inning in the opener caught his team by surprise.

"Getting down that much early was obviously unexpected," he said. "And I really don't think we competed too hard after that."

Game No. 2 was a different story.

"We did a lot better job in the second game, in every area," Clark said. "But in Game 1, I just don't know where we were."

Clark said K-State's success in a doubleheader sweep over Cowley County Community College Saturday may have left his team thinking it could go through the motions and still win.

"We played so well Saturday," Clark said of the 20-3 and 16-0 thrashings of Cowley, "that maybe our kids thought it would be that easy today (Sunday)."

The Wildcats continue the fall portion of their schedule with the annual Purple and White World Series this week. The contests, held between two groups of K-State players, are for a steak dinner, served by the losing team to the winners.

Following the series, which begins Tuesday, K-State will close the fall schedule by facing Butler County Community College Saturday.

David Mayes/Staff

Wildcat Van Torian dives back into first base ahead of a pickoff throw. K-State split a doubleheader with Creighton Sunday at Frank Myers Field. K-State dropped the opener 19-4 and won the nightcap 8-7.

Volleyball squad routs UMKC, 3-0

By The Collegian Staff

The K-State volleyball squad tore through the University of Missouri-Kansas City in three straight games, 15-10, 15-3, 15-7, Friday night in Ahearn Field House.

Taking only 57 minutes to complete, the match gave the Wildcats a 6-8 record overall, while the Kangaroos added to their 0-21 season deficit.

K-State started out slow to start the match, allowing UMKC to jump ahead to a 3-0 lead before freshman setter Alison Murphy capped the comeback by recording an ace on the final point.

The 'Roos led 3-0 again in the second game before the 'Cats offense pounded out runs of five and seven points. Junior middle hitter Betsy Berkley served out the final seven, while freshman middle hitter Letitia Melvin spiked the last point of the game.

The spikers carried the momentum over into the final game of the match by jumping out to a 5-0 start. After wading through a series of side-outs, K-State put the match away.

Leading the 'Cats in offense was sophomore Julie James with nine kills and a .653 hitting percentage. Berkley added eight kills, and along with sister Melissa, hit for a .308 percentage. Freshman Amy Carlson led K-State with 23 assists after replacing Murphy at the setter position.

As a team, K-State tied their three-game match record with 17 service aces and out-hit their opponents .351 to .098.

K-State returns to action Tuesday, when it faces Big Eight foe Nebraska in Lincoln. The next home action for the team comes Friday, when Colorado invades Ahearn Field House for the first time in 1990.

Jayhawks dominate netters

By Todd Fertig
Sports Reporter

The tennis team ran into a tough Kansas squad Friday and managed two victories in the meet.

With every member back from the team that defeated K-State 5-4 last season, the Jayhawks, led by all-American Eveline Hamers and Renee Raychaudhuri, dropped just one singles and one doubles match Friday.

K-State coach Steve Bietau said prior to the meet that injuries and inexperience might hurt the team at Lawrence. Because of the many uncertainties, Bietau emphasized the importance of approaching the meet with the same objectives as in other meets.

Following the meet, in spite of losing 7-2, Bietau was encouraged by the team's effort and saw signs of improvement.

"Despite the loss, I still see a lot of positives in the match," Bietau said. "With the exception of a couple of spots, we were able to compete pretty well."

Angie Gover returned from a shoulder injury that kept her from competing in the Oct. 6 and 7 meet at K-State to take a match from Stacy Stotts 6-2, 6-0 in No. 5 singles. Gover continued her winning ways that started when she took the No. 4 singles title at the Nebraska Women's Tennis Invitational.

Gover's status was in question until Friday, but her shoulder was strong enough to allow her to move up to the No. 1 doubles team, joining Michele Riniker. The tandem was edged by Hamers and Raychaudhuri 6-4, 2-6, 6-3 for the top doubles honors.

Suzanne Sim and Neili Wilcox defeated Bowers and Goins in No. 2 doubles 6-4, 2-6, 6-4 in the Wildcats' only other victory.

Riniker, coming off a singles tournament championship at K-State last weekend in which she defeated Raychaudhuri, 6-2, 1-6, 6-2 in the finals, was beaten by Hamers, who was ranked ninth in the nation going into the match, 7-5, 6-2.

Shuffling the lineup to adjust for injuries, Bietau moved Wilcox, who had played in the fourth and fifth spots in the team's first two meets, to No. 3 singles, and she took a set from Bowers before losing 6-4, 2-6, 6-1.

J. Kyle Wyatt/Staff

Thresa Burcham serves to KU's Renee Raychaudhuri during the first set of the season-opening duel Friday at KU. Burcham lost the set 6-0 and the match as K-State lost the competition 7-2 to KU. Angie Gover posted K-State's lone singles win and Suzanne Sim and Neili Wilcox the only doubles victory.

Haskin victorious again

Men's team wins meet in Indiana; women 2nd in Arizona

By Dan Wicker
Sports Reporter

Cross country All-American Janet Haskin added another prestigious title to her list of accomplishments Friday as she captured the individual crown at the Arizona State Invitational.

Haskin covered the 3.1 mile course in 17 minutes and 11 seconds to post her fourth victory of the season. Challenging Haskin for the title was Lisa Stone of Baylor, who was also second to Haskin in the 10,000 meters at the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships last track season.

"I was happy I could come out with a win. I wasn't very happy with my race at Oklahoma State, so I wanted to go out more aggressive and stay with the leaders," Haskin said. "It was nice getting out to a fast start and being able to maintain that."

Paulette Staats produced her best performance of the year, placing fourth, and Janet Treiber finished 10th to back Haskin and lead K-State to a second-place finish behind Baylor.

Jennifer Hillier placed 14th and Janet Magner placed 22nd to round out the K-State scoring.

"We did pretty well, but we didn't have a total team race at Arizona State," Coach John Capriotti said. "We had a couple of girls run really well, and a couple of girls could have run better."

Treiber, who has consistently been the No. 2 runner for the Wildcats, suffered through the final two miles of the course with side cramps, which, according to Capriotti, cost K-State a few points in the overall standings.

"The cramps really hampered her race, and we need to get her back for the Big Eight meet. I am confident that she will be back," Capriotti said.

The men's team, running in the Indiana Invitational in Bloomington, Ind., on Saturday, produced its best race of the year, Capriotti said, as they ran away with the meet title.

K-State tallied 46 points en route to the victory that left the second-place finisher 40 points behind.

Todd Trask, David Warders and Ron Smith led K-State's top-10 pack, placing fifth, sixth and seventh, respectively. Phil Byrne and Jason Goertzen rounded out the scoring at 15th and 29th. K-State also beat top-20 ranked Kentucky on their way to the victory.

"As a team, the men had their best race of the year. It gives them a lot of confidence because they know they are coming on at the right time. If there is a time to do it, it is now," Capriotti said. "It was a good effort going into the Big Eight."

The largest question mark that had been surrounding the men's team was when it was going to put together a team race. After this meet, Capriotti said he feels that question mark is disappearing. Smith and Byrne helped accomplish this goal by turning in two strong performances.

"(Smith) did a great job. He had felt pretty tired in his first couple meets, but he had been training really well the past two weeks," Capriotti said. "(Byrne) ran the race very conservative and very controlled. Two weeks ago he passed out from heat exhaustion at Oklahoma State, but he will be up with the leaders at the Big Eight meet."

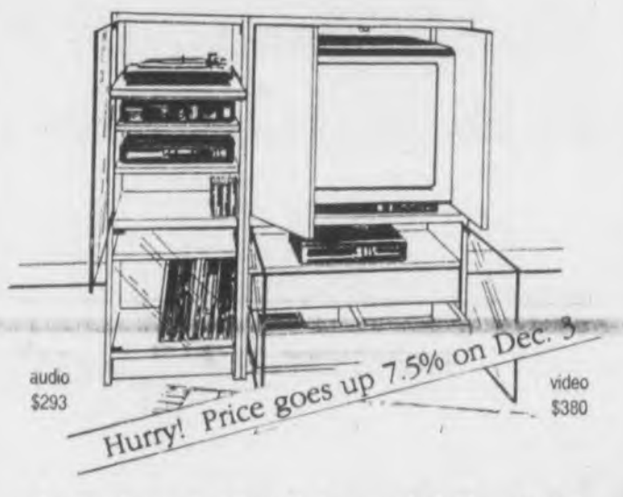
K-State's next meet will be the Big Eight Championships Oct. 27. Capriotti said that he thinks his teams are peaking at the right time and that he hopes they respond in the remaining part of the season.

"Now it is getting down to crunch time. We have got Big Eight, district and hopefully national in the next few weeks," he said.

Football

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

about having to come back on the field, defensively, after the offense hasn't moved the ball in bad field position, play hard and get them stopped, which is exactly what they did."



Now, Snyder said, the 'Cats will hopefully continue to build momentum throughout the rest of the season.

"I would like to think success breeds success. The more you get, the hungrier you get for it."

BUSHWACKER'S
Comedy Invasion
Mon., Tues., & Wednesday
DAVID NASTER
along with Dan Ballard
Before 5 p.m. 539-4321
18 to enter, 21 to drink
Call for Reservations
531 N. Manhattan
After 5 p.m. 539-9727

techline furniture

Functional, Flexible and Affordable
CONTEMPORARY INTERIORS
Open 10-5 Tuesday-Saturday
537-2099
332 Poyntz

LAST CHANCE!
JANUARY BREAK
STEAMBOAT
JANUARY 2-12 ★ 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
from $177
BRECKENRIDGE
JANUARY 2-9 ★ 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
from $184
VAIL/BEAVER CREEK
JANUARY 2-12 ★ 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
from $247
Call Today!
LODGING • LIFTS • PICNICS • PARTY • MORE!
Sunchase
9TH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS 1991
MORE WINTER COLLEGIATE SKI BREAK SPACE ADDED!
Whew, just when you thought you might be left out in the cold during January break — Sunchase comes through again. Your response to our quality and low priced 9th Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks has been overwhelming.
So, we've been able to add limited additional space at each destination but don't wait too much longer as in year's past, it's sure to be a sell out soon.
Ski Break by yourself, with your friends or organize a group of 19 and SKI FREE! All ski breaks include your choice of Fully Equipped Condominium or Hotel Lodging for 5, 6 or 7 nights; all Lift Tickets, Welcome Party, Mountain Chicken Barbecue, Ski Race, all Taxes and welcome Goodie Bag full of participating corporate sponsor product samples and area information.
Steamboat, Breckenridge or Vail/Beaver Creek. The hardest part is choosing which destination to "conquer" this coming season!
SKI & BEACH Sunchase BREAKS
9th ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS
TOLL FREE INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911

October Fiesta!
Tacoburgers 2 for $1.30
(reg. $1.00 each)
Burrito Dinners $2.77
(reg. $3.60)
Good Through 10-20-90
TACO HUT
where good friends get together
Sun.-Thurs. 11 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri.-Sat. 11 a.m.-Midnight
Overlooking Westloop
2809 Claflin 539-2091

BURGERS BY THE BAG
4 Hamburgers for $2.82
Served with ketchup, mustard, pickle, onion.
Cheese and bacon extra.
LIMITED TIME ONLY!
Vista DRIVE IN Vista EXPRESS
1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Village Plaza Shopping Center

MCCAIN
Hello, Dolly!
Thursday, October 18, 8 p.m.
The vivacious Mimi Hines stars as the resourceful widow and mischievous matchmaker Dolly Gallagher Levi in this Tony Award-winning Broadway musical. The New York Times notes that in an age of machine-made musicals, Dolly! has the rare qualities of freshness and imagination, hailing it "a musical shot through with enchantment."
"Has eye appeal, ear appeal, love appeal, and laugh appeal. There is no handsomer way to visit Little Old New York." (Time)
Students/ Children: $10, 9, 8
General Public: $20, 18, 16
Senior Citizens: $18, 16, 14
Your One Bank For Northeast Kansas FirstBank
Presented in part by FirstBank.

McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays.
McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

Ice Cube flirts with law using accusatory lyrics

By Heather Anderson
Collegian Reviewer

No one has arrested Ice Cube in response to his solo album "Amerikkka's Most Wanted," but if the album continues to gain popularity, I wouldn't be surprised if he is arrested.

It's not an overtly sexual album — like the work of 2 Live Crew — but instead a statement in bold defiance of authority and white men in power.

Better known for his work with N.W.A., Ice Cube is not a big favorite with the F.B.I., which condemned the popular N.W.A. song "F... the Police." Ice Cube's "tell it like it is" mentality exerts itself in every track on this effort.

"Amerikkka's Most Wanted" is an excellent album, and it doesn't hurt to have contributions from artists like Flavor Flav and Chuck D. of Public Enemy, Stevie Wonder, The Average White Band, guitar player Al "Purple" Hayes and female rapper Yo-Yo.

Ice Cube, who dubs himself "The Nigga Ya Love To Hate," opens the album with this self-descriptive track after a one-minute narrative of a drive-by execution called "Better Off Dead."

The album provides non-stop attitude from this point. The title track follows, a funky accusation of national leaders' having white supremacist attitudes.

The opening track on side two is "A Gangsta's Fairytale," in which Ice Cube tells inner-city children how fairy tales should be rewritten to mirror real life.

In the song, traditional characters treat their situations with modern inner-city solutions. For example, the three pigs load up their machine guns and hunt down the wolf in a drive-by shooting, Red Riding Hood and Little Boy Blue fight gang-style like Crips and Bloods and the little old lady who lives in the shoe runs a crack house — and has a neighbor up the street who lives in an Air Jordan.

Throughout the verses, he says "A bad influence, I don't know/Ice Cube will tell the kids how the story should go."

The end of the track features some innovative sampling — Bugs Bunny saying, "It's a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live here."

The theme of an uncaring establishment is echoed on "Who's the Mack," "The Bomb," "Once Upon a Time in the Projects" and the well-written "Endangered Species (Tales From the Darkside)."

But it's not all intensely serious. The album does have its whimsical moments, especially in "I'm Only Out for One Thang," which features Flavor Flav. The Public Enemy star is one hard-core rapper who almost everyone has seen, and he is usually a riot to see or hear. This track is no exception. True, the lyrics are pretty raunchy, but hey — at least the two admit their true motivations, and there is a plug for safe sex.

Another serious subject that turns casual is the duel between Ice Cube and Yo-Yo on "It's a Man's World." By the end of the track, Ice Cube has altered his opinion that women can't rap.

This album definitely deserves to be heard. It lacks the frightening glorification of automatic weapons that has turned me off to N.W.A. in the past and is an excellent example of rap music as a tool to raise social consciousness.

K-State Orchestra to perform

Concert to feature oboe soloist, variety of musical moods

By Stacey Harbison
Collegian Reporter

Music appreciators will get a rare treat when the K-State Orchestra performs at 8 p.m. Tuesday in McCain Auditorium.

The concert features a musical rarity — an oboe soloist. The soloist is usually a violinist, pianist, cellist or vocalist, said orchestra conductor David Littrell, assistant professor of music.

"I just wanted to get a different instrumentalist," Littrell said.

The concert will feature a variety of musical moods. Littrell said the works are standard works that aren't played often.

"It's interesting to hear the different styles in the music, and it's not very often that you get to hear an oboe soloist," he said.

The program begins with Brahms' gloomy and foreboding "Tragic Overture." The piece is an orchestral composition written in a one-movement form similar to that of an opera.

Richard Strauss' "Oboe Concerto" starts at a fast tempo, slows down moderately and ends at a lively pace. The piece will feature Sara Funkhouser, associate professor of music, as the oboe soloist.

"It should be and excellent performance," Funkhouser said.

The concerto was written for a chamber orchestra of strings, winds and horns.

The last piece on the program is Franz Schubert's "Symphony No. 4 in C Minor." This piece is nicknamed "Tragic," but should be taken lightly. The first movement begins slowly but becomes fast and lively. That is followed by a moderately slow, nostalgic second movement and a fast and lively third movement. The piece ends with an up-tempo fourth movement.

Funkhouser said that the pieces are excellent and that they contrast well with the soloist piece.

The K-State Orchestra was founded in 1882. The group continued to rehearse even when it was small and did not perform.

Violinist Brock Dale, professor emeritus in physics, said the music department was smaller when he started playing in 1957.

"It wasn't as good an orchestra as it is now because we had fewer people to draw on," he said.

Dale has been playing the violin since he was six.

The orchestra consists of students and community members, Littrell said. It has alternated throughout the years between a strictly college orchestra and a college-civic orchestra.

"It's really a great chance for people," Dale said. "It's a cultural opportunity."

Littrell said the orchestra is an important way for students to learn the various styles of music from different historical eras.

The concert is free and the audience is invited to attend a reception sponsored by Golden Key in the Music Wing Courtyard following the performance.

NATIONAL COLLEGIATE ALCOHOL AWARENESS WEEK
OCTOBER 14-20

IT PAYS TO COMPARE

THE JOHN ALDEN TAX-SHELTERED ANNUITY COULD BE FOR YOU IF:

*9.25% current interest rate

1. YOU ARE LOOKING FOR ONE OF THE HIGHEST INTEREST RATE HISTORIES IN THE INDUSTRY.
2. YOU WANT AN A.M. BEST A+ RATED COMPANY WITH A JUNK BOND PORTFOLIO OF LESS THAN 1%.
3. YOU WANT A LOAN PROVISION AT A NET COST OF 2%. [subject to contract provisions]
4. YOU WANT A 10% PENALTY-FREE WITHDRAWAL ONCE PER CONTRACT YEAR. [dependent on age there may be a penalty as prescribed by federal tax law]

THE TEXAS STATE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION HAS CHOSEN THE JOHN ALDEN TAX-SHELTERED ANNUITY AS THEIR ENDORSED PRODUCT. IF THE MEMBERS OF ONE OF THE LARGEST TEACHER'S ASSOCIATION CHOSE THE JOHN ALDEN COMPANY SHOULDN'T YOU?
FOR MORE INFORMATION PLEASE CONTACT:

GIL M. SABATKA, CLU, ChFC, CFP
227 SOUTHWIND PLACE
MANHATTAN, KS. 66502
(913) 776-4873

* This rate effective 2/90 and subject to change. Minimum guarantee is 6% for 10 years and 5% thereafter.
This rating refers to the overall financial status of the company and does not refer to specific policy provisions, rates, or practices of the company.

FOR MORE INFORMATION PLEASE CALL OR RETURN THIS COUPON:
YES! I WOULD LIKE MORE INFORMATION ABOUT THE JOHN ALDEN TAX-SHELTERED ANNUITY.
NAME: _____
ADDRESS: _____
I WOULD LIKE A COMPARISON BETWEEN THE JOHN ALDEN COMPANY AND MY CURRENT TSA COMPANY. _____

Wendy's
SUPER VALUE MENU
Jr. Bacon Cheeseburger
Biggie Fries
Biggie Drink
16 oz. Frosty Dairy Dessert
8 oz. Chili
Garden Salad
Baked Potato w/sour cream
NOW 99¢ EACH
The best hamburgers and a whole lot more.
Both Manhattan locations:
3006 Anderson 421 North Third

RE-ELECT YOUR STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Sheila HOCHHAUSER
TOO MANY $$$ FOR HIGHWAYS
TOO LITTLE ¢¢¢ FOR KSU
FROM THE 1991 STATE GENERAL FUND:
Governor's Highway Program + $25,000,000
Regent's Base Budget - $21,000,000
A CHOICE HAD TO BE MADE
I voted for a smaller highway program and a larger share for higher education.
HOCHHAUSER FOR REPRESENTATIVE
YOUR REPRESENTATIVE WORKING FOR YOU
Paid for by Hochhauser for Representative, Phil Becker, Treas.

Early Fall Sale

Up to 40% Off Selected early fall merchandise
Sale now in progress
Mon.-Sat. 9:30-5:30
Thurs. till 8:00
Sun. 1-5
Woody's ladies
1225 Moro
Aggieville

Gary Lytle

Kurt Huss, president of Chimes Junior Honorary, left, and Robert Krause, vice president for institutional advancement, present Richard and Hannah Kerschen, Wichita, a plaque naming them 1990 K-State Honorary Parents during halftime at K-State's game against Oklahoma State Saturday in KSU Stadium.

1990 Honorary Parents announced during Saturday's halftime show

By Lajean Rau
Collegian Reporter

Representing the mothers and fathers of 21,137 K-State students, Richard and Hannah Kerschen of Wichita were recognized as the 1990 K-State Honorary Parents at halftime of the Parents' Weekend football game Saturday afternoon.

"Out of all the wonderful honors I have received from K-State, this one really means the most to me," Richard said. "It's amazing, with everything I've given to K-State, I've gotten it back in multiples.

Chimes Junior Honorary selected the couple on the basis of an essay contest open to all K-State students. One of the Kerschen's two children attending K-State, Karla, a junior in accounting, submitted the winning essay.

Richard, a 1964 K-State civil engineering graduate from Cunningham, is president of The Law Company in Wichita, the state's second-largest construction company. The company has completed projects in 38 states, including building the Manhattan Town Center.

Hannah, a business school graduate from Burrton, met Richard in 1967 when she was a secretary for The Law Company, and he had been with the firm for two years.

Richard has made many contributions to the construction industry and has been active with K-State's College of Engineering.

In recognition for his contributions to the college, Richard received the Distinguished Service Award in 1988 and was inducted into the College of Engineering Hall of Fame in 1989.

The Kerschens said that they were very excited about the honor.

"It's kind of a dream come true, having the kids come to K-State," Richard said. "This place has always been really special to me. The KSU community, more than anything else, has always made me feel really at home."

Hannah agreed.

"There's really a unique, special feeling we get when we come here," she said.

The Kerschens said they liked having their children so close to home, in a place they enjoy visiting.

"They have really been raised on K-State," Richard said.

After they were married, the Kerschens started attending K-State games and eventually started bringing the kids with them.

"We are just so lucky," Hannah said. "With all the problems people these days have, we are lucky enough to have three really neat kids."

Karla and her older brother, Dennis, senior in construction science, both attend K-State. The Kerschens also have another son, Brian, who is a senior at Wichita's Kapaun-Mt. Carmel High School.

"There is a lot of purple in this family," Richard said. "Ever since I came here as a student, K-State has been very good to me."

The Kerschens said they enjoyed the special treatment on Parents' Weekend.

"It has been fabulous," Hannah said. "One of the neatest things is that they included the kids."

"It's a real reward to see them so happy here at K-State," she said. "It's great that they aren't embarrassed to have their parents up here all the

■ See PARENTS, Page 12

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN CLASS ADS

Kedzie 103 — 532-6555

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

HEY— SAM (members), Let's get together Oct. 19 and 20 for a great time, great contacts and a great start for your future. RSVP on Wednesday 17th and Thursday 18th at the Union info table.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

TO JOB-SEARCH Candidates— Resume Building, The Workshop, is a must! Join us Oct. 16 at 2:30p.m., Union 208, or 7p.m., Denison 124. Career Planning and Placement Center.

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial, Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

2 Apartments—Furnished

AVAILABLE JAN. 1. Private bedrooms for three neat and tidy females sharing very nice, large four-bedroom, two-bath home with KSU student owner. 539-1288.

SHARE LARGE home with empty-nested executive mom. Private bedroom. 537-4907 for appointment.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

AVAILABLE NOW. One-bedroom near campus, $325, year lease, no pets, laundry facilities, central air. Call for appointment 776-3804.

ONE-BEDROOM CARPETED, available Oct. 1, central air, $270 plus utilities and trash. 776-6166.

ONE-BEDROOM IN a complex near campus. New carpet, gas, heat, $325. No pets. 776-3804.

Brittnay Ridge Townhomes
—More Than Your Basic Apartment—
- 4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, study room
- Wired for cable, phone, computer
- Hot tubs & volleyball court
- Bus service to campus
- Monthly rent as low as $195

DWC Dan Weir Co.
2601 Anderson Ave. 776-5599

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

5 Automobile for Sale

1970 PONTIAC Bonneville 455, four-door, hard-top, good tires, runs well, 86,000 miles, $600. Call 539-1845.

1971 CAMARO, power steering, air conditioning, good heater, runs good, $400. 537-4369.

1973 VW SuperBeetle, new engine, new carpet. 776-7938 please leave message.

(Continued on page 11)

Hardee's DELIVERS 537-2526

NEW MUSIC TONIGHT! $1.50 Wells ONLY AT Baystreet

Thank you for your Service!
September 22,1990

Greenleaf, Ks	Wamego, Ks
Brent Hawley	Aimee O'Brien
Rob George	Pamela Ouellette
James Johnson	Tom Huang
Teresa Pennington	Rebecca Teff
Susan Reedy	Thuy Dao
Richard Kilpatrick	Marty Southard
Christopher Hobbs	Dalene Wieland

THE COMMUNITY SERVICE PROGRAM

"BEST DAMN PIZZA"
Wolfy Dougherty's Pool Room
Also: Pool Room & Sports Bar
16" Extra Large Pizza ONLY $6.25
Dine In or Carry Out.
"premium pizza for a cardboard pizza price"
523 S. 17th 537-1484

KANSAS STATE Orchestra

David Littrell, conductor
Sara Funkhouser, oboe soloist

Brahms	Tragic Overture, Op. 81
R. Strauss	Oboe Concerto
Schubert	Symphony No. 4 in C Minor ("Tragic")

McCain Auditorium
16 October 1990 8:00 p.m.
This KSU Orchestra concert is supported in part by the Fine Arts Fee.

NATIONAL COLLEGIATE ALCOHOL AWARENESS WEEK

ALCOHOL: IS IT A GAMBLE?
OCTOBER 14 - 20 1990

Michael Dunne
Lecturer
The University of Sussex
Topic
"Eisenhower vs. the Senate: The Treaty-Making Power of the President"
Tuesday, October 16, 1 p.m.
Union 207
Sponsored by: The History and Political Science Depts. Phi Alpha Theta and the Political Science Club

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special: 3 - 10 in. Pizzas, 1 - Topping, 4 - Cokes, $10.00
Everyday Two-Fers: 2 - 10 in. Pizzas, 2 - Toppings, 2 - Cokes, $8.00
Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

$ DISCOUNT COUPON $
(Good while this sale lasts)
(HURRY!)
•15% OFF Guns
•20% OFF Stereo Components, TVs & VCRs
•25% OFF Cameras, and Gold & Silver Jewelry
CASH
$ PAWN & GUN, INC. 1917 Ft. Riley Blvd.-776-3332 $

HOUSEPLANT SPECIALS!!!
Four ft. tall floor plant — Easy to Grow!
Bamboo Palms $14.99! Regular price $19.99
6" pot Devil's Ivy or Fern
Hanging Basket $3.99! Regular Price $4.99
Free! Care Data Sheet with every purchase!
Tabletop Plants
Group A 3" Pots → 59¢ or 2 for $1.00!!!
Group B 4" Pots → Reg. $2.99 NOW ½ Price!
OPEN 9am - 8pm Mon - Sat, 9am - 6pm Sundays!!!
Eastside or Westside Market
East Hwy 24 by Super-8 or West K-18 by Holidome, Manhattan

LEARN A NEW WAY TO ENJOY COUNTRY MUSIC!!!
Country/Western Dance Classes
Fraternal Order of Eagles Building
203 E. 10th, Junction City, KS
(directly North of new Police Building)
LIGHTED AND FENCED PARKING LOT
BIG BALLROOM FLOOR
LOTS OF ROOM TO LEARN
COUPLES AND SINGLES WELCOME
Every Wednesday Evening
7:00 p.m. - 7:30 p.m. Registration
Class 7:30 p.m. - 9:30 p.m.
Emphasis is on couples dancing WITH the latest turns and flairs (two-step, strolls, country waltz, Kick-Start 10 Step and many more) AND line dancing (Cowboy Boogie, Tush Push, The Austin, etc.)
(No "swing or square dancing")
Each class - $3.00 per person.

Campus Organizations
LINE UP YOUR MEMBERS
and get your group picture taken for the 1991 Royal Purple
Sept. 17 through Oct. 25
6:30 to 9 p.m.
Fairchild Hall 202
Maximum number of people in one photo is 30. Larger groups will require extra photo. Minimum number in photo is 10 unless proof of smaller membership is shown.
$10 per photo
Schedule appointment and pay for photo
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday
Kedzie Hall 103
QUESTIONS? CALL 532-6555

(Continued from page 10)

1974 OLDS Delta 88 conv red, good shape, new top, new tires, runs good. Good deal. 537-8857.

1978 280Z parts car. $400. 537-1539.

1978 JEEP CJ5 307 cubic inch, soft top. 1-348-5893.

1979 CHEVY Caprice Classic, runs excellent, air conditioning, AM/FM stereo, power windows, locks, brakes, steering. $1,200. 539-3390.

1979 PONTIAC Sunbird for sale, low mileage, good school car, blue, $800. 532-5452.

1982 BEAUTIFUL black Toyota Supra, 53,000 miles, loaded, good condition. Call Jill, 539-5192.

1982 DODGE Challenger, air conditioning, automatic, AM/FM, 66,000 miles, $2,500. 537-9434.

FOR SALE— 1978 Trans Am, new high performance 455, air conditioning, electric window and locks, stereo pull-out. $2,800 or offer. 539-6765.

FOR SALE— 1984 Escort GT, five-speed, cruise control, great condition, $2,900 or offer. 539-6765.

7 Computers

12" COLOR video monitor. Great for VCR or computer. $120 or best offer. 537-6026.

HAVING PROBLEMS with your computer or printer? Need to upgrade your systems memory, monitor or just a larger hard drive? Need a second party book on a certain program? ABACUS Computer and Supply, 539-7007, 1111 Waters.

HEWLETT PACKARD 16C, good condition, programming, $65. Call 539-5515.

HEWLETT PACKARD 41CV with Advantage and Math Pac, all manuals, $70. Call 539-5515.

IBM PC Jr.— Color monitor, remote keyboard, expanded memory, software. Asking $425. Robert, 776-5526.

8 Employment

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

CUT EDUCATION costs. Family needs college girl to live in this semester and next. Free room and food exchanged for duties. Respond Collegian Box 1.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

FREE SPRING Break vacation in Cancun! College Tours, the nation's largest and most successful spring break tour operator needs enthusiastic campus representatives. Earn a free trip and cash. Nothing to buy— We provide everything you need. Call 1-800-395-4896 for more information.

LOOKING FOR AN EXCITING CAREER?
JOIN
ANNIE'S SANTA FE MEXICAN RESTAURANT AND CANTINA
Opening October 22nd in Topeka. Waiters & waitresses, prep cooks, line cooks, dish people, bus people, cocktail waitresses, hostesses, & bartenders. Full & part time positions available. Applications will be taken daily between 8:00 a.m. & 7:00 p.m. for any of the positions listed above.
ANNIE'S SANTA FE®
Westridge Mall
1801 S. W. Wanamaker Road
Topeka, Kansas
271-1060

EVENING AND Daytime office and telephone sales help needed. Pleasant working conditions, hourly wage and excellent bonuses. Call 537-6163, 9a.m.— 4p.m.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. Federal, CIA, U.S. Customs, D.E.A., etc. Now hiring. Listings. 1(805)687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

OVERSEAS JOBS. $900— $2,000/ month. Summer, year-round. All countries. All fields. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KSo2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

SELF EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY
Earn cash distributing credit card applications on campus. No selling. No fee; set own hours.
Call Collegiate Poster Network 1-800-7678

PART-TIME EMPLOYMENT, address research/ tracing clerk. Person will locate KSU Alumni by extensive use of telephone and various other resources. Typing with a minimum of 45 wpm and office experience necessary. Must have excellent communication skills and initiative to work independently. Desire a work-study student, must be able to work 15-20 hours per week. Some evening hours required. Apply in person. Alumni Records, Hollis House, 1408 Denison. 532-6260.

TWO NANNIES needed by Jan. 1 for two families in Brewster N.Y. Must drive, swim. Non-smoker preferred. One year commitment. Excellent living conditions plus salaries. (914)279-5963.

9 Food Specials

Bobby J's
Mondays:
Play Monday Night Football
Every TD pays up to 50¢ on food purchases
$1 Draws
Chicken Fried Steak
$2.49
539-1571

Every Monday
½ Price Nite
Order any dinner or sandwich and receive the 2nd at ½ price
Evenings 5-8:30 p.m.
The CHEF Cafe
111 S. 4th

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

SEVEN PIECE living room set, $300 or best offer. 537-7110.

THREE-PIECE FULL-SIZE bedroom set, bookcase headboard. 539-1586. $300 or offer.

WHIRLPOOL PORTABLE dishwasher. Six months old. $300. Carla 537-7560.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: BLUE and white HCCC stuco embroidered jacket. Claim Dept. of Animal Science, Call Hall 139.

FOUND: FLOPPY disk outside Kedzie Hall on morning of Oct. 10. Come by 8a.m. to 5p.m. to claim in Kedzie 103, Student Publications Inc.

FOUND: GREEN notebook, left in Kedzie Hall 10/12/90. Claim in Kedzie 103.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

14x56, TWO-BEDROOM, appliances, nice condition, good location, #24 Green Valley Trailer Court. $5,200. 776-4500. 776-1342.

1973 FLAMINGO 14x70, two-bedroom. Cute kitchen, real cabinets, new bedrooms, wood floor, low utilities. $8,000. 537-4369.

OWN THIS 12' wide, two-bedroom, $135 monthly for 24 months. Large selection. Countryside. 539-2325.

18 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1985 HONDA Elite 150— Excellent condition, low mileage. Also helmet. Phone 539-7554.

19 Music/ Musicians

FOR SALE: Charvel guitar, 1-1-2pu, Floyd Rose trem, fire engine yellow, looks brand new, strap, cord, case. Marcus at 532-3978.

TAMA SWINGSTAR, five piece trapset, black, adjustable case, must sell. 537-4489 or 1-729-3601.

YAMAHA STUDENT model trumpet. Recently cleaned. $120 or best offer. 537-6026.

21 Personals

We require a form of picture ID (KSU or driver's license or other) when placing a personal.

ACT— JB fights, what's-his-face, and are you crazy? Must be to room with me! Happy 21st! Dr. H.

BRYAN— TO my special guy, Happy 1 year anniversary! God, has it been that long? I love you, Kath.

CER. REDAEL Sleuths: To groups 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5: Congratulations! You found the last clue. To collect the prize you all shall obtain, go back to "home-base" in Ahearn and that's the end-o-the game! Thanks! —Heather.

JEN, THIS was your third birthday we celebrated together. Gets better every year, doesn't it?! Happy 20th. Luv, Darrin.

'MARGE'— TO the Alpha K: The new apple of my eye. I hope we have a lasting time. See ya at lunch Tuesday. Flash.

THE LIBRARY Man, You seemed so fascinating. What happened? Could it be you lost your fascination for me? Or was it even there to begin with? Adieu, mon ami. —The blonde from DM.

THERE IS a circulation librarian named Cherie, Who is normally bright and merry, But an overdue fine really makes her eyes shine, With a look that is truly quite scary.

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

ADORABLE BUNNY with all supplies will sell to caring home only. $25. 539-6904.

TROPICAL FISH AND AQUARIUMS
PETS 'N STUFF
1105 Waters 539-9494
OPEN Thur. til 8 p.m.

23 Services

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

BIRTHDAY-ANNIVERSARY SPECIAL
3 Hours Limousine Service & Complimentary Rose
Just $105
Traveler's Limousine Service
539-2284
This special offer good every Sun.-Wed.

SUFFERING FROM abortion? Write: HeartsRestored, Box 94, Grinnell, Kansas 67738. Confidential response will follow.

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— More than just typing— we create the resume with you, so it reflects your best. Then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience in University Career Center.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851, Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING, CALL Leslie 539-1235.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100 or 1-456-9642, Wamego.

WORDPROCESSING/ TYPING— Data sheets, reports, theses, dissertations, letters, resumes, applications, etc. Mrs. Burden, 539-1204.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE CHRISTIANS looking for roommate. $100 per month plus one-fourth utilities. $150 deposit. Call 776-8873.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: $142.50/ month plus utilities. Park Place Apartments. Call 537-0509 after 7p.m.

ROOMMATES TO share three-bedroom house, near campus. Partially furnished. 776-3078.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Female, three-bedroom house. 537-0631.

26 Stereo Equipment

STILLWATER DESIGN, side kicks, 150-watt truck kicker, $160. Call 537-8575 ask for Scott.

28 Sublease

AVAILABLE SPRING semester. Half block from Justin Hall, partially furnished, one-bedroom apartment. Very low utilities. 776-7734.

ONE-BEDROOM WILDCAT Inn apartment, one block from campus, seven-month sublease. 776-3182.

30 Travel

KSU vs. KU
Oct. 27
$10
Round trip transportation to Lawrence. Join other K-State fans and watch the game from the hill.
Classic Travel & Tours
1212 Moro • 537-7546

SKI
Winter Park
Nov. 21-25 $199
Breckenridge
Jan. 2-6 $229
Winter Park
Jan. 7-13 $249
Steamboat
Jan. 7-13 $259
All packages include lodging, transportation, and lift tickets.
Classic Travel & Tours
1212 Moro • 537-7546

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

INFANT GIRL clothes, 0-18 months, very nice and inexpensive. 776-2108 after 2p.m.

UNUSUAL ANTIQUES for sale: Baby stroller with metal frame, canvas cover, two large and two small wheels, $75; portable Phonola phonograph in wooden case, $50. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m. If no answer, leave message.

33 Tutor

VERY QUALIFIED tutor for Spanish. Affordable rates. Call Leticia 539-6832 after 9p.m.

34 Horses

HORSEBACK RIDING, hourly rates, group rates. Call for appointment. Boarding, training also. 1-238-2681.

35 NCAAW

BREAKING THE House— Alcohol related traffic accidents claim approximately 22,400 American lives, seriously injure 300,000 others and cost our society more than $10 billion annually —NCAAW 1990.

DEALER'S CHOICE— As a responsible party host: measure drinks; limit the total amount of alcohol; provide foor and non-alcoholic beverages; and ensure the safety of party guests— NCAAW 1990.

NCAAW— NATIONAL Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week 1990. Alcohol: Is it a gamble? Funding in part provided by City of Manhattan and KSU Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service.

TRUMP CARD— When drinking, choose a designated driver (or call a cab) —NCAAW 1990.

WILD CARD— Mixing alcohol with marijuana, other drugs, prescription or over the counter drugs may accelerate negative effects —NCAAW 1990.

Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

By Bob Berry

Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind

Jim's Journal

By Jim

Calvin and Hobbes

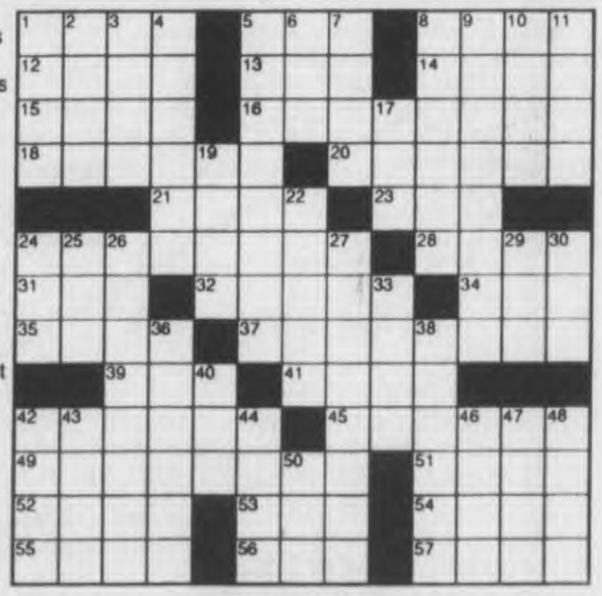
By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Catchall abbr.
5 Biblical lion
8 Like most colleges, today
12 Hindu hero
13 Satisfied
14 Woody's boy
15 Frozen desserts
16 Catch up with 18 Coincide
20 Tenant
21 War god
23 Universal ideal
24 Exceed
28 Outrigger vessel
31 Darjeeling
32 Chambers of the heart
34 Those in office
35 — paper
37 Neglect
39 Chemist's milieu
41 Sight in Sicily
42 Business predator
45 Nonmetallic element
49 Extends beyond
51 Step or stop lead-in
52 High tableland
53 Type of burglar
54 Baseball's Slaughter
55 Part of B.A.
56 Ending for lion or count
57 Talk wildly

DOWN
1 Musical Clapton
2 Mexican dish
3 Sherman Hemsley show
4 Oriental sailor
5 Infant cupid
6 Race the engine
7 Roman journey
8 Forty winks
9 "Israel in Egypt," for one
10 Actress Sommer
11 Energetic one
17 Soak flax
19 Major or Minor
22 Begin the tennis game
24 Baseball's Mel
25 Victory sign
26 "With charm of — birds" (Milton)
27 Devout persons
29 Yoko —
30 Inquire
33 Cartoonist Peter
36 Fine cotton cloth
38 House painter's need
40 Barbara — Geddes
42 Capital of Italia
43 Affirm
44 Kentucky Derby
46 College in New York
47 Midday
48 Formerly, once
50 Dance step

Solution time: 26 min.

B	O	Z		C	O	M	O		D	A	F	T
A	M	I		L	O	O	M		O	L	I	O
B	E	N	J	A	M	I	N		Z	E	R	O
E	N	C	A	M	P		I	K	E
			N	O	H		B	E	N	I	G	N
J	O	K	E	R		M	U	G		D	O	E
A	B	E	T		P	A	S		F	L	E	E
M	I	R		F	A	X		T	R	E	N	D
B	E	N	D	E	R		C	H	I
			I	D	A		A	R	E	N	A	S
A	P	E	X			B	E	N	E	D	I	C	T
D	A	L	I			L	A	T	E		C	H	A
D	Y	K	E			E	R	O	S		K	E	Y

Yesterday's answer 10-15

CRYPTOQUIP

10-15

A D S V N G J S M F X M C Y W J Y - P T V S F W C G A T R W C T R C W M F G W P M D D N T G T X S A.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: OUR NEARBY RESTAURANT WAS VISITED BY FUSSY REVIEWER AND GOT A ROASTING.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: S equals U

Parents

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10

time, which is a good thing, I guess, considering how much time we spend in Manhattan."

As guests of the University on Parents' Weekend, the Kerschens attended a reception, luncheon, and evening banquet in their honor. They were also recognized at the football game.

In her essay, Karla said, "My parents knew one thing for certain as they planned their new life together. Hard work promises a successful future, and helping others promises a happy future. They achieved both, as they constantly emphasized these values to my two brothers and myself."

Ending her essay, she said, "Their love for K-State continues to grow, as our love and admiration for them flourishes."

Two other couples were finalists in the competition. They are Steve and Barbara Morris, Hugoton, parents of Stephanie Morris, junior in family life and human development, and Susan Morris, freshman in apparel and textile and marketing; and Pat and Ann Murphy, Manhattan, parents of Paula Murphy, freshman in business, and Craig Murphy, junior in mechanical engineering.

The Morris and Murphy families were also guests at the reception and luncheon.

Acoustic album worth trip

By Rebecca Sack
Collegian Reviewer

If you like Tracy Chapman, Cliff Eberhardt's release "The Long Road" will be a short journey for you.

The entire album is an acoustic experience — giving the listener the pleasurable privilege of Eberhardt's voice and guitar playing. Eberhardt also incorporates keyboards, electric guitar, bass, drums and background vocals to round out the sound.

On compact disk Eberhardt's album becomes personal. It was as if he sat in my living room for over an hour, singing and playing to me live. Then the compact disk player automatically advanced to a Carpenters album my roommate had left in the player — and I awoke from a lull I have only experienced at campfire sing-alongs or folk-music festivals.

"The Long Road" is full of poetic ballads and passionate imagery. Eberhardt's lyrics are an important part of his songs. The title track isn't as good as "Nowhere to Go," a song addressing a similar issue. The chorus hauntingly echoes, "A thousand new highways/nowhere to go."

All of the lyrics are so good that it's difficult to choose just a sample. Eberhardt seems to acknowledge each song as lyrical poetry by printing only one song per page on the lyric sheets.

The one song that kept getting stuck on repeat in my compact disk player was "Right Now." The acoustic guitar and beat of the song are just as strong as the lyrics. "Nothing lasts forever, but forever's what I need/ Right now!/I need your love forever/ I may feel differently next week, but right now!/The right time, and the right place/Have never been friends/ And you might just disappear/I need your love."

Eberhardt doesn't sing sappy love songs. He boldly and clearly expresses everyday emotions. He keeps only the romance that can exist with reality — and is just as much a musician as he is a poet and social commentator.

Bernstein dead

NEW YORK (AP) — Leonard Bernstein, the impassioned American maestro who thrilled an international multitude with his spirited shows "On the Town" and "West Side Story," his podium pirouettes and his hundreds of recordings, died Sunday. He was 72.

Bernstein was a conductor, pianist, educator, author and composer. His compositions included the theatrical, chamber music, symphonies, ballet and even a Mass.

The son of Russian-Jewish immigrants, he led an orchestra performance at a liberated concentration camp, raised money for the Black Panthers and on Christmas 1989 celebrated the demise of the Berlin Wall by conducting Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony," substituting the word "freedom" for "joy" in its last movement, the "Ode to Joy."

Hunam Chinese Restaurant
For Delivery
7 days a week
11 a.m. to 10 p.m.
539-8885 or 539-0888

DAIRY QUEEN® CAKES:
YOUR FAVORITE TREATS, ALL ROLLED INTO ONE.

Now there's Dairy Queen® cake to treat them to! Cool, creamy chocolate and vanilla DQ soft serve, layered with light crisp chocolate crunch, plenty of rich, cold fudge and covered with delicious icing. It's all frozen and packaged to take home. Wouldn't a Dairy Queen® cake be wonderful tonight?
Custom Order or Pre-made
WE TREAT YOU RIGHT®
Dairy Queen
1015 N. 3rd Manhattan

1 FALSETTO'S PIZZA
At Your Convenience
We Again DELIVER
539-3830
Also: Dine in & Carryout
2-10 in. Pizzas
2 Pepsis
$8.00
2-10 in. Pizzas
2 Pepsis
2 Toppings
$9.99
1127 Moro
Offer expires 10-30-90

4¢ Self-Serve
Copies
Exp. 10/22
1329 Anderson
537-7340
kinko's
the copy center

PREGNANT?
NEED HELP?
For confidential help call
Birthright
FREE Pregnancy Tests
103 S. Fourth 537-9180
1-800-848-LOVE

RESIDENCE HALL STAFF

RESIDENCE HALL

STAFF APPRECIATION DAY

MONDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1990

Aleisha Bailey
Kris Bargas
Lynette Biel
Rick Bloom
Renee Boggs
Carolyn Bridwell
Chad Brown
Michelle Cordill
Scott Crain
Matt Crook
Laurel Dahl
David Doty
Todd Fertig
Paige Graves
Larry Hackleman
Shelly Harders
Jennifer Harris
Chad Hartman
Kimis Hatjitimotheadis
Stephanie Haub
Brad Hawk
Jim Hay
Trent Hayes
Theresa Heibel
Greta Ann Herin
Monica Hickert
Brenda Highbarger
Brett Horton
Mike Joyce
Kline Kelly
Matt Kennedy
Mary Beth Keusenkothen
Michael Lintz
Mitzi Loughmiller
Craig Mai
Kenneth Martin
Lori McElgunn
David McIntyre
Holly Merz
Brenda Moeder
Lara Montulli
Brenda Morgenstern
Curtis Munk
Lisa Neth
Becky Newman
April Nooteboom
Audrey Patterson
Neil Payne
Becky Pickens
Bradley Piroutek
Heather Porter
Casey Pruett
Jeanne Purduski
James Reittinger
Cris Richert
Laura Riley
Terri Roberts
Sam Robinson
Jane Roesner
Don Rollins
Jennifer Rowland
Ira Rundell
John Ryan
Mary Beth Sands
Susanne Schmeling
Angela Schulze
Leslie Seaton
Mark Shields
Julie Shtogren
Mark Stedry
Michael Stewart
Mary Suchsland
Julie Tarara
Todd Tucker
John Turner
Ralph Ungles
Lentz Upshaw
Max Vandament
Laura Wendt
Andy West
Philip Wethington
Sandy Wiederholt
Mike Wiersma
Kenna Wildfong
Deborah Williams
Todd Williams
Nathan Wright
Dave Young
Rex Zuel

THANK YOU FOR ALL YOUR HARD WORK! YOU ARE APPRECIATED!

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND DINING SERVICES - RESIDENCE LIFE

UPC Arts Lectures Movies Outdoors Performances Travel

ALL ABOARD WITH UPC

Self Defense Workshop
No Fee!
Tomorrow, 7 p.m.-Union Ballroom (2nd floor) Mary Holm, Instructor

THIS AINT JEOPARDY MAN.

COLLEGE BOWL II
k-state union upc issues & ideas
Sign-up teams until this Friday! 8 a.m.-4 p.m. in the UPC office (3rd floor Union)
$20 Entry Fee

COLLEGE BOWL (kol ij bol) n. 1. an academic competition for teams of university students which is identical to the High-Q competition for high-school students. College Bowl pits two teams of 4 plus 1 alternate against each other in answering questions ranging from current events to math, and from literature to natural sciences.

THINK SNOW

Christmas Break Ski Trip
January 7-12
$252/290 with Ski rental
Trip includes:
*5 Nights Lodging
*4 Days Steamboat Lift Tickets
*College Party Pak:
—Nuts and Bolts Party
—His or Her Gift Pack
—Daily Schedule of Events
Sign-up Now in the UPC office.
Limited space available!

k-state union upc travel

Traveling Abroad This Summer?
ISIC
The International Student ID Card is your passport to a multitude of discounts and benefits as you travel around the world.
Includes:
Savings on air fares
Car rental
Bus travel
Hotels/Lodging
AVAILABLE IN UPC OFFICE
(UNION 3rd FLOOR)
8 a.m.- 4 p.m. weekdays, $14

A Room with a View
Set partly in picturesque turn-of-the-century Florence and partly in the gorgeous English countryside, this film is a delicious story of Lucy Honeychurch, a young Englishwoman who travels to Italy in 1907, falls in love and is eventually liberated from the mores and conventions of Victorian England. Unrated (115 min.)
Wednesday and Thursday,
7 p.m. in Forum Hall
Thursday, 3:30 p.m. in Little Theatre
Friday, 7 p.m. in Little Theatre
KSU ID REQUIRED
k-state union upc arts
Now Showing
K-STATE UNION ART GALLERY

Resistant: Kansas Architectural Club
Oct. 15-Nov. 2

Second Floor Showcase
Student Work—K-State Union
Promotions and Marketing
Oct. 15-26

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Tuesday, October 16, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 37

Peace Prize used as endorsement for vast changes

By The Associated Press

OSLO, Norway — Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev won the 1990 Nobel Peace Prize on Monday for easing international tensions, but claimed it as an endorsement of wrenching changes he has made at home.

The Norwegian Nobel Committee said the 59-year-old Soviet leader displayed a "leading role in the peace process which today characterizes important parts of the international community."

"Words fail one at such moments. I am moved," Gorbachev said in a television interview.

"I perceive this action of the most authoritative organization of the global community first of all not in personal terms, but as recognition of the significance of the immense cause of perestroika for the destiny of the entire world."

Gorbachev has been criticized at home for some of his social and economic reforms, food shortages, and demands by most Soviet republics for independence.

"We know that there are great problems (in the Soviet Union), but that is not what he got his prize for," said Gidske Anderson, leader of the five-person Nobel Committee. "The big thing that is happening in the world is the reconciliation of the superpowers."

"If you will read the text, you will see we are talking mainly about international policy," she said.

The committee's citation said the "greater openness (Gorbachev) has brought about in Soviet society has also helped promote international trust."

The committee said Gorbachev had made many contributions to the "dramatic changes" in East-West relationships since he came to power in 1985.

"Confrontation has been replaced by negotiations. Old European nation states have regained freedom. The arms race is slowing down, and we see a definite and active process in the direction of arms control and disarmament."

Gorbachev told a Norwegian TV interviewer his reforms were popular outside the Soviet Union because "the world was ripe for change."

"It had grown tired of the Cold War, the arms race, the hardships resulting from an overload of current problems facing the world community," he said.

In the past five years, the Soviet Union has agreed to reduce nuclear and conventional armed forces, helped settle regional conflicts in Africa, Asia and Latin America, and withdrawn its forces from Afghanistan.

Many world leaders praised the award, but several said they hoped it would lead to even more freedom in the Soviet Union.

"If this prize contributes to the peaceful and quiet transition of the Soviet Union to a society of equal nations and citizens, we welcome it warmly," said Vaclav Havel, a former dissident who became Czechoslovakia's president after the Soviet Union eased its grip on the East bloc.

Former President Reagan said Gorbachev is "sincere in his effort to make the world safer" and "is dedicated to doing what must be done for the good of his people."

President Bush called Gorbachev "a courageous force for peaceful change in the world."

Some Soviet citizens were less enthusiastic about the honor for Gorbachev.

"I don't know much about politics, but what I see in the stores, I hold the government responsible for," said Lyova Likacheva, a 35-year-old Moscow factory worker. "And what I see in the stores is nothing."

The 71st Peace Prize, worth about $700,000, was the first to a Soviet leader. U.S. Presidents Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson won the award in 1906 and 1919 respectively. Soviet dissident Andrei Sakahorov won the peace prize in 1975.

Brad Camp and J. Kyle Wyatt/Staff

Tent city

ABOVE: Basketball ticket campers Derek Sandstrom, freshman in general engineering; Kendra Anderson, sophomore in pre-law; Jennifer DelPopolo, sophomore in elementary education; and Mindi Bessellevre, sophomore in secondary education, sleep Sunday morning. LEFT: K-State students listen to the Barnburners Monday afternoon on the steps of Ahearn Field House.

Students shortchange integrity with catalogue of term papers

By Dan Scott
Collegian Reporter

Students may be tempted when deadlines loom near to seek help from a company which offers assistance with term papers.

Using these services, however, shortchanges students' education and lacks academic integrity, said Provost James Coffman.

"The purpose of a term paper is to test the student's knowledge in a specific area," Coffman said. "It's a major learning experience as far as organizing thoughts and using the King's English in an effective manner. This kind of operation bypasses that."

Author's Research Services Inc. in Chicago, Ill., offers a catalog for $2 with descriptions of nearly 18,000 term papers. A company phone operator said the catalog is sent out the day the order is received.

Term papers may be ordered from the catalog. The operator would not discuss the cost of the papers. She stressed, however, that the term papers were not to be turned in for scholastic credit. The term papers are intended to assist students' own writing efforts.

"I think it's a smokescreen for buying a term paper," Coffman said.

He said companies such as this probably would appeal to the students who did not keep up in class or to those who find writing difficult.

"All of us are seeing the students' ability to express themselves is declining," said Bernard Franklin, assistant dean of student life. "Not in all the students, but there are a significant number who can't express themselves adequately in writing."

Franklin said the paper mills are a result of the want-it-now society in which students live.

"We want things quickly and easily," Franklin said. "We don't want to suffer through writing a term paper."

There are various punishments for turning in a professional term paper, Coffman said. They range from taking an incomplete and rewriting the paper to expulsion from the University.

"The instructor would have to be the key decision-maker," Coffman said. "The students would be treated case-by-case, according to the recommendation of the instructor."

Shamir blasts council

World community accused by leader of being hypocritical

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir on Monday accused the world of hypocrisy, ignoring murders of Israelis while condemning Israel for killing 19 Palestinians in Jerusalem last week.

In a strongly worded warning to Iraq, Shamir also said any intervention in neighboring Jordan that upset that country's stability would bring swift Israeli retaliation.

Addressing Parliament, Shamir defended his Cabinet's rejection Sunday of a U.N. Security Council resolution urging a U.N. investigation of the deaths on the Temple Mount a week ago.

The Cabinet action was criticized Monday by left-wing parties, and the largest opposition faction, the center-left Labor Party, said it would join a no-confidence vote against Shamir's conservative government.

Shamir, reacting to the Security Council condemnation, said critics ignored the fact that police charged the Mount only after Palestinians unleashed a barrage of stones at Jewish worshipers at the adjacent Western Wall.

"The citizens of Israel and all Jews everywhere cannot but be astonished and protest at the voices of criticism ... in which what stood out was an absence of any mention of the grave attack on the Jewish people's holiest place," he said.

Shamir complained that the Security Council failed to respond in any way to the murders of 16 Israeli tourists in two attacks in Egypt, one in 1985 by a deranged Egyptian policeman and another last February by unidentified gunmen.

"We did not hear similar denunciations, and we did not see the Security Council being convened when whole families were murdered in Ras Bourka or when buses carrying Israeli tourists were attacked," he said.

Shamir did not follow other Israeli politicians in directly criticizing the United States, Israel's chief ally, for joining in the unanimous Security Council vote. But he suggested that backing for the resolution was motivated by the need to hold together the U.S.-backed force against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's takeover of Kuwait.

"The Security Council decision ... was a one-sided decision," he said. "One can only conjecture about its motives and the support it received in the present international situation."

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler expressed disappointment in Israel's decision not to cooperate with the U.N. investigators.

"We think that a failure to cooperate denies Israel an opportunity to

■ See ISRAEL, Page 8

Charge-card companies target universities

Responsible students make good risks for banking credit

By Eric Robison
Collegian Reporter

Visa, Mastercard, and American Express are all common words with students. As credit use increases, students are a group targeted more frequently.

"Most college students pay their bills better than the general public and are more responsible. That's why we feel they are a good risk," said Bill Ahearn, vice president of Citibank, a national creditor.

According to the Manhattan Credit Union, 92 percent of students will pay their debt on time, and 4 percent will pay with a little push. Further action such as court orders and garnisheeing of wages are needed for the remaining 4 percent.

Credit cards make spending easy, often replacing checks and providing students with a credit history.

"Creditors look at a number of things which are in your credit file," said Carole Prather, assistant professor in human development and family studies.

Prather teaches a course called Introduction to Personal and Family Finance.

Being sued, married or divorced, the number of incomes and dependents, past credit record, traffic tickets, other loans are in credit records, she said.

"It shows the creditor if this person is of good character and is responsible enough to pay their bills on time," Prather said.

Credit-card companies see students as good investments.

"The logic I think the credit-card companies have is that the students are going to come out of school and going to have some sort of income, but for now they have to put off some of their needs," said Dale Thierolf, manager of Manhattan Credit Union. "But with credit they can get some of those necessities."

If a person has just applied for credit and was turned down, the credit union issues a copy of the file and sits down with the person to explain why he or she was turned down.

A fee of $15 is charged to look at files when a person has not applied for credit.

"While students are in college, we hope to provide them with the products they need," Ahearn said. "Most of them use the card for things they need, like clothing and books. They usually don't change their spending habits and become weekend travelers on the Concord."

College students are one of the main targets for credit cards. Citibank alone has 1,000 campus representatives around the country, and applications are distributed around campuses and mailings are sent.

"The idea the companies have that is once you have their card, you are going to keep it. You may find one that is cheaper and better than theirs, but they think that you are still going to keep theirs," Prather said.

"It is a big gamble for the companies. A lot of people think they can afford it, and they really can't," she said. "People can afford 10 percent of their take-home pay for consumer credit — this includes everything except home mortgages."

Prather said students can get into trouble by overspending and not look to the future payment.

"When they start spending 15 percent of their take-home, they are starting to get into an area we call the red flag, which means they are starting to get into trouble," Prather said. "When they are spending 20 percent, they are in trouble."

She said credit cards can't repossess items bought on revolving credit because payment may have been sent but not received. The cards can, however, garnishee wages or sue.

"A good credit record, more or less, is like a person's reputation — it takes a period of time to build, it becomes a usage tool, and shows that you took the initiative to maintain it," Thierolf said.

Prather said the role credit plays in people's lives has changed.

"Credit has replaced savings," she said. "You used to save up for things. Now you just buy it and spend the rest of the year paying it back. Credit is a financial tool. You must know how to use it.

"I think a lot of students need a credit card for emergency purposes for emergency needs," Prather said. "Like when they are traveling, most places won't take out-of-town checks. But, on the other hand, students need to realize that credit doesn't extend credit — if you couldn't afford it before, you still can't."

BRIEFLY

World

Soviets respond to Nobel prize

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet citizens rushing from store to store Monday seeking food, clothes and other essentials expressed as much anger as pride over Mikhail S. Gorbachev, winner of this year's Nobel Peace Prize.

"For world peace and disarmament, he has done an awful lot. But for his own people, he hasn't done much," said Bela, 53, a subway rider who declined to give her last name.

"Around the world, he's popular, of course. But here, he's not," she added, gesturing at grim-faced passengers carrying half-full shopping bags.

Most of the 15 Soviets interviewed in Moscow streets, markets, subways and apartment buildings praised Gorbachev for his role in raising the Iron Curtain and ending the Cold War.

But they expressed anger over his domestic policies, which they blamed for ethnic violence, inflation and shortages of staples ranging from gasoline to instant coffee.

Nation

Budget plans contain cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal payments to doctors and hospitals would go down, driving up costs to patients. The government would be less generous to farmers and college students. And, under the budget deal brewing in Congress, a broad range of fees would increase — from tourists entering the country to inventors filing for new patents.

In fact, virtually all Americans would be likely to find themselves digging deeper into their pockets.

Rudolf G. Penner, a senior fellow at the Urban Institute and former director of the Congressional Budget Office, sees a silver lining concerning the higher costs: "They're pretty widespread, so they shouldn't be intensely felt by any particular group or individual."

Court makes obscenity ruling

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Supreme Court turned aside free-speech arguments Monday and boosted the federal government's crackdown on obscenity.

The justices, over one dissenting vote, let stand the forced closing of three adult bookstores and nine video rental shops in Virginia under a federal anti-racketeering law.

The businesses' owners, convicted of racketeering and selling obscene materials, had argued that the subsequent seizures of their properties violated their free-speech rights.

The seizures were carried out under provisions of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO). Those convicted under that law may be forced to forfeit all assets and proceeds stemming from their illegal activity.

Senate bill saves B-2 bomber

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Monday turned aside a serious threat to President Bush's B-2 stealth bomber, narrowly rejecting an amendment to halt production of the costly aircraft.

By a vote of 50-44, the Senate defeated a measure that would have eliminated about $2.7 billion that Bush requested in his budget to buy two new bombers and halted overall construction at six planes.

The action came as the Senate pushed to complete a $268 billion defense spending bill for the fiscal year which began Oct. 1.

Kuwait invaders may be tried

DALLAS (AP) - President Bush said Monday that Iraqi atrocities in Kuwait could lead to trials similar to those held after World War II, and his defense secretary said U.S. troops will stay in Saudi Arabia as long as needed.

Iraq, meanwhile, insisted it would fight rather than withdraw from Kuwait.

"Hitler revisited," Bush said in Dallas of Iraqi actions in the tiny emirate that Saddam Hussein's troops seized Aug. 2.

"But remember, when Hitler's war ended there were the Nuremberg trials. Every day now, new word filters out about the ghastly atrocities perpetrated by Saddam's forces," Bush said.

Earlier Monday, U.S. Defense Secretary Richard Cheney said Americans would stay "as long as the Saudis want us ... as long as it takes to get the job done. No one should underestimate our staying power."

"Time is much more likely to be on our side than it is on his side," Cheney said, referring to Saddam and the U.S.-led multinational force.

Region

Kansans For Life back Finney

TOPEKA (AP) — The state's largest anti-abortion group has formed an organization to work for Democratic governor nominee Joan Finney's campaign because it considers Republican Gov. Mike Hayden a political opportunist.

Kansans For Life representatives announced Monday about 350 of the group's members have either written Finney letters of support or are campaign volunteers. The group has about 55,000 members.

Spokeswoman Cynthia Patton said her group believes Hayden has waffled on the abortion issue, promising to back proposed abortion restrictions and then endorsing the weakest version possible.

Hayden seeks business input

WICHITA (AP) — The Republican gubernatorial team of Mike Hayden and Harland Priddle stumped the state Monday to receive advice and drum up support from the business community for the GOP cause.

The governor and his lieutenant governor running mate met with 80 business owners in four cities to discuss Hayden's property tax relief proposal, to tout the administration's record on economic development and to take suggestions on how the state can improve its business climate.

State employees plan suit

WICHITA — The union that represents state employees is gathering plaintiffs for an overtime pay lawsuit that could cost the state $20 million to $50 million.

"The sheer volume of potential plaintiffs is overwhelming," said Charles Dodson, Kansas Association of Public Employees executive director.

The union plans meetings Wednesday night meeting in Wichita, Thursday in Kansas City, Kan., Oct. 25 in Salina and Oct. 30 in Topeka.

Dodson said a lawsuit is being drafted for filing in U.S. District Court in Topeka by late this month or early next.

He said because the suit is under the Fair Labor Standards Act, it is not a typical class-action lawsuit. Participants must sign consent forms asking to be part of the litigation. The forms are being handed out at the informational meetings and mailed from union headquarters.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

Announcements

■ Arts and Sciences Council Student of the Semester applications are available until Oct. 26 in the dean's office in Eisenhower Hall.

■ Election Filing Deadline for student body president, Student Senate and Board of Student Publications candidates is at 5 p.m. Tuesday in Holton Hall 102.

■ All Architectural College Photo will be at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday on the Seaton Hall steps.

16 Tuesday

■ FENIX Adult Student Program/OWLS will have an informal lunch from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Union Stateroom 1.

■ Career Planning and Placement Center will have a resume workshop at 2:30 p.m. in Union 208. A second workshop will be at 7 p.m. in Denison 124.

■ SAVE will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Union 206.

■ Mortar Board will meet at 9:30 p.m. in Union 213.

■ Kappa Delta Pi informal reception for prospective members will be at 6:30 p.m. in Union 213.

■ The Graduate School has scheduled the final oral defense of Mary Elizabeth Schroff at 10 a.m. in Bluemont 368. The dissertation topic will be "Existing Staff Development Opportunities and Perceived Staff Development Needs for Building Level Administrators: A Case Study."

■ Department of Geology will sponsor "Quaking Over Shaky Data and Faulty Inferences" by Paul Hilpman at 4 p.m. in Thompson 101.

■ History and political science departments will present "Eisenhower vs. the Senate: The Treaty-Making Power of the President" at 1 p.m. in Union 207.

■ Omicron Nu will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Derby Food Center Gold Room.

■ Black Student Union will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Union Little Theatre.

■ Wheat State Agronomy Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Throckmorton 313.

■ Circle K International will meet at 8 p.m. in the Union Courtyard.

■ S.A.M Hospitality Committee will meet at 7 p.m. in Union Stateroom 1. For more information, call Jeff at 537-4031.

■ Illuminating Engineering Society will meet for pictures at 6:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202. An officers meeting will follow.

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, partly cloudy. Mild. High in the upper 70s. Southerly winds 10 to 20 mph. Tonight, partly cloudy. A 40 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms. Low 55 to 60. Wednesday, partly cloudy. A 40 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms. High 70 to 75.

Marc Price
"Skippy" on Family Ties

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1990
8 p.m. MCCAIN · AUDITORIUM
$4 admission
($1 donated to SADD for every ticket sold)

Tickets can be purchased at the McCain Auditorium Box Office or at the UPC Office on the third floor of the K-State Union.

Stop by the PONTIAC EXCITEMENT CENTER in the Union Plaza (between the K-State Union and Seaton Hall) Thursday and Friday, October 18 & 19, 11 a.m.-3 p.m. and check out the latest PONTIAC cars. Win tickets, t-shirts, and enter sweepstakes for a chance to win a PONTIAC Sunbird Convertible. The PONTIAC EXCITEMENT CENTER will be in the Union Courtyard in the case of rain.

PRODUCED BY US CONCEPTS INC.

PONTIAC. WE BUILD Excitement.

k-state union special events

CPR training given in store

Aggieville merchants take precautions

By Jenifer Scheibler
Collegian Reporter

Some managers and employees of Aggieville businesses are taking CPR classes to be prepared if an emergency in their store should arise.

"They want to be prepared," said Cheryl Sieben, director of the Aggieville Business Association. "If anything serious ever did happen in their stores, they might not know what to do, and that would be a terrible feeling."

The idea to educate store employees came after a customer began having heart problems while in Brentwood's clothing store, said Ilene Adams, manager of Brentwood's.

"We wanted to be prepared if one of our customers had something happen," Adams said.

The classes, which are sponsored by the Aggieville Business Association, are in Brentwood's. The first session of classes was in September, the second will be Oct. 16-17 with a possible third session in November, Sieben said.

The session consists of two three-hour classes.

"We are really excited about it because we learned an awful lot," Adams said. "We were told step by step what to do, and the instructors make you practice everything.

"The instructors made the class interesting and fun, but we knew we were doing something serious," Adams said.

The courses are being taught through the Manhattan Area Vo-Tech by emergency mobile intensive care technicians, Sieben said.

Bryan Van Meter, one of the instructors, said, "It is very interesting for us because part of our job is to teach people how to start emergency care before the ambulance arrives."

Van Meter said that people being trained to perform CPR have saved many lives in the past and have made a difference in many emergency situations.

"Someone knowing CPR could mean the difference between life and death," Van Meter said.

Both Adams and Sieben expressed feelings of apprehension now that they have the responsibility that comes with knowing CPR.

"After you have had the course, you have the responsibility to take some sort of action in an emergency situation," Adams said.

"We hope we never have to use this," Sieben said. "But it's a good feeling to know you can help."

Now that the word about the classes has started to spread, they are filling up rapidly.

"We have so many people who have now shown an interest in taking CPR," Adams said.

Some Aggieville businesses are showing their support by paying the $6 fee for their employees to take the class.

"I've had businesses tell me that they want all of their employees to take it," Sieben said.

The knowledge of CPR has a lasting effect on those who have been trained to perform it, Adams said.

"I would feel really bad, knowing how easy this course is to take and how helpful it was, if someone was to die because I didn't know what to do to help them," Adams said.

Gary Lytle/Staff

Steve Spacil, sophomore in marketing, makes cages for Veterinary Medicine's new aviary Saturday at the Clinical Sciences building.

Extra cages allow more bird studies

By Danette King
Collegian Reporter

The ability to do avian research and the chance for students to learn how to treat birds has just become easier in the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Seven cage units, which contain four pens each that can be subdivided, are being assembled and installed in the Clinical Sciences building of the Veterinary Complex.

James Carpenter, director of the exotic animals medicine section, has been working on the plans for teaching and research.

"The aviary will get students exposed to avian medicine," Carpenter said. "It will allow them to be familiar with handling birds, identifying birds and become familiar with the treatment of birds."

The college already has an aviary which contains about 30 birds. The new cages will allow the college to house up to 100 birds.

Carpenter said he thinks expansion of the area is important because avian medicine is the fastest-growing veterinary specialty in the world.

"Most vets don't know how to take care of (birds)," said Carpenter, who frequently receives calls from veterinarians with questions about treating birds.

The $2,800 cages will be divided between a room for teaching and a room for research, which were provided by the college. The cages were purchased with the Avian/Wildlife budget, which consists primarily of private donations.

"I think people who have appreciated services provided by the hospital on exotics (animals) are the primary donors," Carpenter said.

The Special Species Club is in charge of the aviary, and more than 40 students have volunteered to help with feeding, checking and cleaning the birds and their pens.

Misti May, sophomore in veterinary medicine, oversees the aviary.

"Basically, the aviary is just a chance for students who have never had a chance to work with birds to learn their anatomy and the (behaviors and characteristics) of birds," May said.

She said the aviary is open to all veterinary students, which is different from many programs.

She also said that in the future the aviary may be used as a money-making project. Students will help breed the birds. In return, they will sell the newly-hatched birds, when they are old enough, to raise money for the aviary.

Most of the time, the veterinary students buy the birds they raised because they want to keep them as pets, May said.

In addition to being used as a money-making project, the aviary will be the site of some new research.

Carpenter said he hopes to use different sizes and species of birds in his upcoming research on pharmacokinetics, the determination of the dosage and effectiveness of drugs on animals.

HONEY BUNNY — I'd love a COLLEGIAN Personal. One day is only $3 for 15 words.

Clara Wilson-Cook successfully defended her Ph.D dissertation entitled: A Quantitative and Qualitative Investigation of the Persistence of a Select Group of Reinstated Students at a Four-Year Institution of Higher Education at 10 a.m. on Monday, October 8, 1990

Have "You" Had Your Frozen Yogurt Today??
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers
Aggieville

UNITED ARTISTS Theatres
$3.50 ALL SHOWS BEFORE 6:00 P.M.
SETH CHILDS 6 776-9886
Seth Childs at Farm Bureau Rd.
Tuesday Bargain Day
All Seats All Day
All Movies
$3.00 Admission
Postcards From the Edge (R) 7:05 & 9:20
Funny About Love (PG-13) 7 & 9:30
Goodfellas (R) 6:40 & 9:30
Ghost (PG-13) 6:50 & 9:25
Marked For Death (R) 7:10 & 9:25
Memphis Star (PG-13) 7:15 & 9:30

The Amazing MICRO DIET
Developed & endorsed by international physicians & nutritionists, The Amazing Micro Diet is a proven common sense, full-spectrum approach dedicated "to improve the health and quality of life of all the peoples of this planet."
We have tried the Micro Diet personally - It works.
Sponsored by
Horst Pharmacy
Call 1-800-325-4489
511 N. Main Newton, Kans.
for your Manhattan advisor or 537-3840.

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3 - 10 in. Pizzas
1 - Topping
4 - Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2 - 10 in. Pizzas
2 - Toppings
2 - Cokes
$8.00
Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

K-State Players & the Dept. of Speech present
PUMP BOYS & Dinettes
Conceived & written by:
John Foley
Mark Hardwick
Debra Monk
Cass Morgan
John Schemmel
John Wann
Oct. 10-13, 16-20
"A nothin' but pure fun, country musical."
Nichols Theatre—8 p.m.
Matinee Oct. 13—2 p.m.
Tickets: McCain Box Office
532-6428
Sponsored by the Manhattan Town Center

BUSHWACKERS
Comedy Invasion
Tuesday
DAVID NASTER
Before 5 p.m. 539-4321
18 to enter, 21 to drink
Call for Reservations
531 N. Manhattan
After 5 p.m. 539-9727

MAKE HOLIDAY TRAVEL PLANS EARLY
FREE DOOR TO DOOR PICK UP
FROM YOUR DOOR TO THE SKIES
KCI ROADRUNNER
KANSAS CITY INTERNATIONAL
AIRPORT SHUTTLE SERVICE
FOR RESERVATIONS CALL:
Manhattan 537-2086
or others: 1-800-826-8294
Junction City/Fort Riley 238-6161
SIX SCHEDULED ROUND TRIPS DAILY

GET THE EDGE
and get your Royal Purple portrait taken.
These groups are scheduled for
Oct. 24-26
◆ OFF CAMPUS
◆ ANYONE WHO MISSED SCHEDULED TIME
There is a $4 sitting fee. If you paid for it at registration, you must bring your Royal Purple receipt.
Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.
Location: K-State Union, Room 209
For an appointment or if you have questions
CALL 532-7808
1991 ROYAL PURPLE

STEP Aerobics can burn up to 20% more fat than traditional aerobics.

STEP up to the challenge only at
The Ladies Club
"Manhattan's only fitness club exclusively for women."
1104 Waters 776-6469

TOP TEN REASONS
FOR BEING A DESIGNATED DRIVER
10. "New Kids on the Block" poster torn-up in your honor.
9. Tastes great. Less filling.
8. It's better to be a designated driver than a designated "hitter."
7. FREE POP!
6. Designated drivers get to pick the radio station.
5. In the morning you'll remember where you parked the car.
4. Karma, man.
3. If you get stopped for speeding, you'll just get a speeding ticket.
2. You may use it as "experience" on your application for becoming a pizza delivery specialist.
1. You can help save lives.
NCAAW 1990
ALCOHOL: IS IT A GAMBLE?

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

EDITORIALS

Gorbachev deserves Nobel Peace Prize

Mikhail Gorbachev, the first world leader to realize that countries can not simultaneously prepare for and prevent war, won the Nobel Peace Prize Monday.

Many outsiders believe it was well-deserved, but there are Soviets who have other opinions about America's favorite Soviet leader. Many of his people have said he should be feeding his country and not have had his fingers in the world chili pot.

Though Soviet citizens may not agree with the Nobel selection, the rest of the world has breathed a bit easier since Gorby won his way to power. Just a cursory look at Eastern Europe has relaxed Uncle Sam's trigger finger. And without the Great Bear and the Great White Satan checking themselves for wounds every minute of every day, the entire world, from Jane and Joe College to the whole, hapless third-world, has come to worry less about the dreaded Reds.

But Gorbachev's work has only begun. His contributions toward a more peaceful planet are outstanding, but they are in response to his country's cries for help. World peace means little to a father or mother of five with no money, no decent housing and no food for crying babies.

A great greyness still looms over the Soviet horizon. It stems from empty stores and empty bellies. The Soviet economy is controlled by a black market and an all-but-worthless ruble. Those Soviet stores that have something to sell have longer lines every day than those found at K mart on Christmas Eve.

These are the motivations that lead a man to peace. Peace in the pocketbook initiates peace for a planet.

Eighty-plus years of corrupt and inept economic policies, topped off by a dark, mad and frenzied Ronald Reagan arms spending spree led Gorbachev to his present predicament. For the Cold War to be ended and won by all, a war of economics had to be fought.

There have been no winners in that economic war. Though it appears the United States may have come out top dog, perhaps it is because we are better at concealing and lying about our debt.

The vestiges of all that war surround us, however, and the first flowers of peace are beginning to blossom. A crumbled Berlin Wall, a unified Germany, a turbulent but unoccupied Afghanistan, a wait-and-see resolution to what has always been an unstable relationship with China, a peaceful letting-go of the other Soviet satellites and Baltic states, the signing of the INF treaty, proposals to put an end to chemical weapons and reductions on nuclear and conventional weapons all have made Gorbachev appealing to the rest of us.

The Soviet people may think differently, but if it weren't for Gorbachev's policies of openness and other peaceful initiatives, they wouldn't have had that chance.

'Undicreeps' seat of crisis

"Is anything worn beneath the kilt? No, it's all in perfect working order." Spike Milligan (1918-), British comic actor.

Brad Seabourn

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

Sometimes you just have to wonder what makes people tick — like our elected officials in Washington. Doesn't this budget/deficit mess make you question what these goomers are thinking when they take a pay-raise in the same year federal workers are threatened with a furlough?

Maybe you wonder how a man like Saddam Hussein, who has such callous disregard for human life, is able to sleep at night?

These people must have some serious personal and psychological problems distorting their judgement.

Last week, when the evening news showed film footage of Hussein visiting his troops in occupied Kuwait, it became apparent to me what problem might be affecting this man, as well as Congress.

While talking to his troops, Hussein made several adjustments to, and tugs at, his trousers. These are things you do behind a tree, or in Hussein's case, a sandstorm, but not in front of the troops or on camera for the whole world to see.

Unless, of course, these actions are the involuntary product of a chronic ailment that is the scourge of all men (and quite possibly women, but I can only speak for men).

Creeping underwear.

Yes, sad but true, I believe the entire Middle East crisis, as well as the budget crisis, is simply due to a chronic case of "undicreeps" that has been allowed to go unattended.

Since Hussein is a man, and the majority of Congress is male, I think I am on to something here.

As any man will tell you, creeping underwear will literally drive you ... well, it will ... make you walk on your tiptoes.

The reason I know this to be true about Hussein is because, in this same film footage, Hussein's soldiers were shown kissing his uniform and his hand and generally showing tremendous empathy for the Iraqi commander's problem. No self-respecting despot would allow this unless he was very disturbed in the lower regions by "climbing shorts."

As a matter of fact, all notable public figures throughout history, many of whom were great generals, have had a particularly tough time with rebellious "U-Trou."

General George Patton for instance, suffered this very problem. What man, may I ask, who is protected by millions of soldiers and surrounded by thousands of tanks needs to wear a heavy set of pearl-handled revolvers strapped to his waist? Only a man with a severe case of undicreeps.

Obviously the weight of the pistols around his waist helped keep his undies from riding up.

However, the worst recorded case of "crawling jockies" was documented by Napoleon Bonaparte. The well-known portrait of Napoleon with his hand in his vest (a pose assumed by many a publicity-seeking Congressman) is a dead give-away — he was trying to pull his underwear down.

Let me tell you, when you have to reach above your waist to find the bottom of your underwear, you have got a serious undicreep problem.

Now, any man over 40 will tell you tremendous relief can be obtained by not wearing tight jeans and sticking to baggy, double-knit nylon trousers and unionsuits. But, this is something that must be learned through experience.

Most young men go through years of embarrassment wearing briefs or bikinis and spending most of the evening out on the town, in a bar, with their backs to the wall. Many young men who wear creeping briefs will remain huddled with other young men so that attention from their tugs and adjustments can be camouflaged or diverted by the ape-like antics of a rowdy buddy or the typical bar-clearing gags of a drunk pal making forceful, but ineffectual, attempts at vomiting.

The worst incident involving undicreeps that I have ever witnessed occurred in grade school when Smiley Walters reached back to adjust his Fruit-of-the-Looms during a poetry recitation, gave a tug, and punched Big Berta Higgins in the mouth.

Big Berta broke two of Smiley's fingers and almost chewed off his ear before the teacher could say "Class dismissed!"

Creeping underwear is most apparent in athletics, particularly baseball.

All the poking and grabbing that you see baseball players do, which they refer to as "flashing signs," are simply outright jockey-short adjustments.

But the universal symptom of undicreeps displayed by athletes in all sports is the "pat on the rear." And you thought they just liked each other. Teamwork does have its advantages.

However, in the case of Saddam Hussein and the crisis in the Middle East, President Bush could quickly solve this embroilment with a simple yet firm, forthright, diplomatic gesture.

Send Saddam a pair of baggy, double-knit trousers and tell him to pull out. Of Kuwait, that is.

And Congress, well ... wearing their underwear on their head looks like a good fit to me.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... David Frese
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel,
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koel
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little, Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff, Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

Student Publications Staff

DIRECTOR/NEWS ADVISER ..... Ron Johnson
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR/ADVERTISING DIRECTOR ..... Gloria Freeland
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR ..... Linda Puntney
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Ann Foster
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE ..... Jackie Harmon
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Linda Weatherly
OFFICE MANAGER ..... Pat Hudgins
ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT ..... Connie Fulkerson
INTERIM NEWS PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... David Svoboda
NEWS PRODUCTION ASSISTANT ..... Carla Jones
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Wanda Haynie
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS ..... Tammi Landis, Dana Franklin, Chris Tucker, Britt Owen, Deanna Adams
OFFICE STAFF ..... Shanta Bailey, Matt FitzGerald, Christa South
CARRIERS ..... Joe Cook, Minda Dowdy, John Fulkerson, Norm LeComte, James Seymore

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116. Students will be asked to show their I.D. card upon submission when done in Kedzie 116.

LETTERS

Gays not inferior

Editor,

I would like to direct this letter to Adrienne Merritt. You should not write about something you know very little about. God did create us equal, but that does not mean he created us to be identical. The attractions of homosexuals may be inconceivable to you, but that is based on your opinion alone. It has nothing to do with the opinions of those with differing sexual preferences.

There has been a lot of studies done on homosexuals, gays, lesbians, and sexual behavior. Many have found that a person can no more choose to be gay or heterosexual than they can choose to be right- or left-handed.

As for gays deciding to marry, you said that you would be ashamed of being gay. Wouldn't you then try to hide it? Many people are not able to come to terms with their sexual preference. It is not because they are abnormal, but because they are made to feel that way.

I do agree that children need to know that their parents love each other. However, if you take a look at the divorce rates, you'd know that can't always be true for every child. My parents are divorced, and it did hurt, but that did not keep me from knowing that they both still loved my brothers and I.

For the record, I am heterosexual and engaged to a wonderful man. I have many friends who are gay. I even have some who have a gay parent. That parent's sexual preference has never affected their own choice in partners. I feel sorry for your friends or acquaintances who may be gay. They now know how you feel.

If you must address the issue of distorted sexual needs, why don't you talk about those who abuse children sexually, or those who are masochists, sadists or rapists? Their sexual need hurts others. Gays have no need or desire to hurt others, so why should their sexual preference seem distorted? Maybe you didn't think that gay couples might love each other.

Diane Hutchison
junior in journalism

Views sexist

Editor,

In response to the letter by Sean Ryland that condemned women in the men's locker room, I have one thing to say — grow up.

Can you actually say with a straight face that male reporters should be allowed in the locker room and women reporters should stand outside and wait? Lisa Olson was sent by the "Boston Hearald" to get the same kind of information that her male colleagues were getting. She should not be hindered from getting that information because she is female. And no, Olson's job doesn't give her the right to go anywhere she pleases, but it sure gives her the right to the same advantages as everyone else.

Maybe you should brush up on the history again, Ryland. You seem to forget that women have the same rights as you do. And don't forget the subject — Olson was trying to interview in the men's locker room, not the men's restroom. I'm sorry to burst your bubble, but people urinating is not newsworthy. I'm sorry that we threaten you in such a way that you must call upon the men of the world to "be men about it" and not let us in your clubs or other social gathering places.

I don't think I should comment on your idea that women only want to cause trouble if they can't find their way into a "men's club." I think your sexist statement speaks for itself. This has been a battle long before our time, Ryland, and I would advise you to take another look at the real problem. The problem is biased sexists like yourself, not women seeing men in the nude.

Christie Breault
junior in elementary education

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS

Riniker adjusting to life, tennis in U.S.

By Todd Fertig
Sports Reporter

Moving away from home and family can be a lot for a freshman to cope with. Add a prephysical therapy major and a spot on the tennis team, and life becomes even more hectic.

But freshman Michele Riniker, who arrived in the United States from Switzerland a few months ago, must also adapt to a different language and way of life.

Riniker, however, seems to be adapting to life at K-State quite nicely, on and off the court.

Though the fall tennis season is just half over, Coach Steve Bietau has seen enough in Riniker to call her the best player he's coached. Riniker came to K-State a nationally ranked player in her home country and jumped to the No. 1 position on the squad before the first meet of the season.

Bietau expected Riniker to encounter some difficulties with distractions off the court, but he said she is equal to the task.

"Michelle is a 20-year-old freshman because of the way their schools and athletics are set up there, and she has lots of experience in international competition," Bietau said. "She's mature beyond 20 years, and she has a lot of experience against good competition, so she is adjusting really well."

Riniker made her first big impression on the tennis program in the team's second meet of the season, capturing the singles title in a home tournament on Oct. 6 and 7 that was plagued by cold, windy weather. Though inexperienced with playing in poor conditions, Riniker said it was the best she'd played since coming to the United States.

Riniker was particularly pleased with the victory because she wasn't satisfied with her previous play. As a newcomer to the squad and assuming the No. 1 singles position, she pressed to prove herself.

"First, when I came I felt a little under pressure. I thought I had to play good, and I didn't have to," Riniker said. "But it's not that new anymore, and I feel confident. That maybe helped me in the meet (in which she took first). I felt relaxed and could play like I can."

Riniker followed her friend Helen Schildknecht, last year's Big Eight champion in No. 2 singles, to K-State from Switzerland. Bietau said Schildknecht, who had finished her eligibility but would be returning this school year, convinced him that Riniker would be a quality addition to the team and convinced Riniker that attending K-State would be a beneficial experience.

"My circumstances have never been as good as they are here," Riniker said. "The difference between playing here and in Switzerland is that in Switzerland I was one of the top 25 or 30 players there, and here there are so many good players. It's so much bigger and more competitive."

With an attacking style suited to the hard court surfaces the team plays on, Bietau said Riniker's greatest assets are her skill at the net and her ability to push her game to a higher level at critical moments.

That ability to elevate her play also reveals what Bietau says Riniker needs to improve the most. Mental lapses, he said, often put her in unnecessary situations, forcing her to rely heavily on her ability to rise to the occasion.

"No question, she's been inconsistent mentally," Bietau said, adding that some of that could be due to her new environment. "I don't work with her a lot on strokes or mechanics. She knows how to hit the ball. It's a question of practicing and developing some habits that will allow her to play like she's capable of more often."

"I need to be more stable when I'm playing in all my matches," Riniker said. "When I feel sure of myself, that's dangerous and I get a little sloppy."

J. Kyle Wyatt/Staff

Michele Riniker backhands a serve from KU All-American Eveline Hamers Friday at a tennis tournament in Lawrence. Riniker lost the match to Hamers 7-5, 6-2. Riniker defeated Renee Raychaudhuri, also from KU, 6-2, 1-6, 6-2 during a singles tournament championship at K-State on Oct. 6.

Her ability to display a variety of styles and skills, which helps her to exploit and opponent's weakness, is one of her greatest advantages, Riniker said.

"That can be a disadvantage sometimes, too," Riniker said. "If you can play different strokes, then you have to decide when to use them, and that can be difficult."

Riniker began playing tennis when she was 8 years old at a club where her parents were the presidents. She began competing in tournaments at 14, and tennis has been important in her development as a person.

"I wasn't forced to play, and it has meant so much to me," Riniker said. "You get so many opportunities to improve your life and your personality. I've gotten to travel and see so much and learn about myself."

After playing on a singles tour most of her competitive years, Riniker said playing with a team has come as a refreshing change mentally.

"I've always played for myself, and here I play for the University," Riniker said. "It's like an honor, it's something special. But I don't feel pressure from others. In the end, I play for me, and if I lose, I lose."

Riniker is still adapting to the environment and mentality she has encountered since coming to K-State, and although she has no regrets about coming, she admits it is still difficult being so far from home.

"I decided to come here very quickly, and you ask a lot of questions about what it will be like, wondering if you're doing the right thing," Riniker said. "Sometimes I think that I can't really be myself and that the people can't really know me. It's a challenge."

But when she thinks about her championship in the K-State tournament and the many victories that await, Riniker forgets the difficulties she has had in adjusting.

"It's far from home," she said, "but it's not that far."

SPORTS BRIEFLY

Series set to open

CINCINNATI (AP) — Oakland's Dave Stewart will oppose former A's pitcher Jose Rijo of Cincinnati as the World Series opens with Game 1 at 7:32 tonight.

The A's will be without shortstop Walt Weiss, whose left knee was torn up on a hard slide by Ellis Burks in Game 2 of the playoffs. Weiss has not played since then and Oakland, allowed to replace an injured player on the World Series roster, activated infielder Mike Bordick.

Virginia now No. 1

Virginia was elevated to No. 1 in the Associated Press poll, the first time in the top spot for the Cavaliers, who prior to head coach George Welsh's arrival in 1982 had only two winning seasons in the previous 29 years.

Before this season, Virginia had not been ranked higher than ninth, but the Cavaliers, whose 6-0 start is their best since 1949, now have spent five consecutive weeks in the Top 10.

Bowden, Joseph earn honors

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Oklahoma linebacker Joe Bowden and Nebraska quarterback Mickey Joseph were chosen defensive and offensive players of the week in the Big Eight this week.

Spikers to face No. 1 'Huskers

By Russ Ewy
Sports Reporter

K-State volleyball coach Scott Nelson views tonight's match as business as usual, despite the fact that his team is facing its toughest opponent of the year.

Nelson's squad will travel to Lincoln, Neb., to face the Cornhuskers, the No. 1 team in the nation. But Nelson hopes his team will give Nebraska a run.

"As I've said numerous times, we need to try to stay focused on ourselves," Nelson said. "We're getting to the point where we are seeing the consistency in the team's defense, as well as the offense, which is putting us in the position to win matches.

"Heading into Nebraska, that won't change. We realize that they're an excellent team, and they won't give us a lot of breaks. For us to be in that match at the end, we need to be fairly steady."

Not many expect K-State, 6-8 overall and 0-3 in the conference, to upset Nebraska, 14-1 overall prior to a weekend tournament and 3-0 in the conference. Nelson feels this lack of pressure helps his team.

"It's a match that is more of an opportunity than anything else. We're definitely not the favorite team going into the match, so there's not a whole lot of pressure on us, except just our self-imposed pressure," Nelson said. "Hopefully, what I would like to see our team do, is play within our system the best we can, see how we play, and we may find ourselves in a position to win a game or two, or even a match.

"We're not really looking at this match as we (face) a real tough team and if we lose this one we're in trouble. There is not a lot of pressure on us, and that's how we'll play the match. I expect (the Cornhuskers) to put in a real solid performance and it will be a battle if we play to our strengths."

The 'Huskers, 9-0 at home this year, draw the largest crowd in the country with 3,000 fans per contest, as well as topping most all of the Big Eight statistical categories.

"Nebraska is one of the toughest places to play nationally. They don't lose many matches at home," Nelson said. "Last year, we went up there with not much to lose. I think they were ranked third at that time, and we played a real tough first game. We just couldn't close."

Nebraska ranks first in the conference in hitting efficiency, kills, assists and blocking. Leading the way for NU's offense is All-American Val Novak, who has twice been named Big Eight player-of-the-week and leads the conference with 12.21 assists per game.

Providing the power are middle blocker Stephanie Thater and outside hitter Cris Hall, the top two hitters in the Big Eight, hitting .378 and .305, respectively. Hall is tops in kills with 4.02 per game and Thater leads in blocks with 82 total.

"They currently possess one of the top offenses in the country, so, obviously, our ability to serve the ball is going to influence their execution of that offense," Nelson said. "Physically, they're a very large team and a very powerful team. Besides the serving, our back court defense will need to be real attentive and real intense."

Growth plan discussed

Martini looks for expansion of recreational facilities

By Dan Wicker
Sports Reporter

The exercise craze has hit the United States hard and continued to grow for the past 10 years with no relief in sight. K-State has been a part of this growth.

Using the slogan, "Continue the Commitment," the recreational staff has developed a proposal for additions to the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex and the L.P. Washburn Recreational Area. On Oct 18, Student Senate will hear the proposal.

If the bill passes, students will vote on the issue in the Oct. 30-31 campus ballot.

"My basic feeling is the same as the perspective the students had in 1969. They wanted a complex that they pay for and is theirs," said Steve Martini, director of intramurals. "That is why this is such a great progam. The students pay for it, and they love it.

"It is kind of a neat opportunity that the students have," he said. "What you can vote on now will give the students more services 10-20 years from now."

The improvements on the Rec Complex include four new basketball courts with a one-fifth mile running track above them, an enlarged weight and fitness area, a multipurpose room for aerobics, a counseling and testing center, a fitness library, spectator seating and more office space.

Along with these additions, there are plans for outdoor improvements that include lighting and an irrigation system for the football and softball fields and the addition of sand volleyball courts.

The additions, if passed, would be completed and ready for student use by fall 1993.

"It would greatly enhance the efficiency of our program," Martini said. "With all the additions, there would be more viable opportunities for play time in intramural sports, not to mention fun time."

Martini used intramural basketball as an example to illustrate the time problem. He said there are enough basketball teams to require competition every day of the week, including weekends. The games are played from 4-11 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 4-7 p.m. on Friday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday and from noon to 11 p.m. on Sunday.

"Right now, we only use three courts for 12 of the hours there are games. If we had more courts, it would allow us to start later and play on more courts, or maybe not even play on Fridays," Martini said.

The lighting of the playing fields and the addition of sand volleyball courts are other aspects that would benefit the intramural scene.

"The lights would allow us to play intramural football and intramural softball in the evenings and maybe even offer them in both the fall and spring," Martini said. "If they build some sand volleyball courts, there is an opportunity for intramural tourneys right there."

Intramurals, however, would not be the only program to benefit. The most-used area of the Rec Complex is the weight room. In the proposal, an entirely new weight and fitness area will be built that would increase the square footage by 4,000 feet along with a multipurpose area.

"The weight room is the most crowded space. If you come in here at six in the morning, people are in the weight room, and they are in there all day," Martini said. "You won't have to worry about aerobics being in a gym and not be able to play hoops. There will be four more courts plus the two that aerobics is run on right now."

Madness? Well, ... maybe

Scott Paske
SPORTS REPORTER

A new coach, new players and plenty of questions — still, it's great to see K-State basketball in full swing once again.

It's especially nice since Wildcat fans can look to the upcoming season with curious anticipation, and still have a keen interest in what's going on at the stadium just north of Bramlage Coliseum. In the past, mid-October has been a time when most 'Cat fans would have camped out a week in Siberia for a season hoops ticket — anything to put the painful football Saturdays at KSU Stadium behind.

For the first time in a long time, the two programs are sharing a favorable spotlight.

It was basketball time shortly after midnight on Monday, and Coach Dana Altman's 'Cats got to strut their stuff in front of about 6,000 fans, popping the lid on another year of the tradition-rich program.

And while it was a great opportunity to preview the 1990-91 'Cats, Midnight Madness really didn't seem all that mad.

It wasn't the fact that the 'Cats took the floor three minutes after their cue. It wasn't because the dash-for-cash failed to break into an entertaining free-for-all. And it wasn't because none of K-State's new super-sized post players ripped the backboard down with a prescrimmage dunk.

Basketball practice just isn't a great spectator sport. It was made for clinicians and junkies.

At best, Midnight Madness only receives a mixed review. It was good because it showcased new talent like Marcus Zeigler, Darryl King and Marlon Shadd. It also featured mainstays Jean Derouillere, Jeff Wires and Keith Amerson, who displayed that leadership may not be hard to find.

Off the court, Midnight Madness served a great philanthropic purpose, dividing $3,100 in donations among the United Way and Farrell Library.

But it seemed like something was lacking, as evidenced by the majority of the crowd that headed for the exits at halftime of the intrasquad scrimmage. Once play started and a few baskets were scored, there probably wouldn't have been much of a fan protest if the coliseum lights would have been turned off — or so it seemed.

Even Altman shared the good-and-bad sentiment after the scrimmage.

"The guys were really anxious to get out and play a little bit," he said. "The players look forward to it, and I know they appreciate the support.

"We might make some adjustments from year to year, but as long as the people will come out, and we can raise some money for some good causes like we did tonight, I think it's something we can continue. Hopefully, in years to come, it won't be so sloppy."

Sloppy play or not, it was difficult for the fans to stay involved in the action. Midnight Madness isn't supposed to hold a candle to a K-State—KU game, but when it fails to be a hit at a bona-fide basketball school like K-State, some questions have to be raised regarding its value.

It's a sure bet when the 'Cats tip off against Akron next month, the fan support will be at a premium. Generations of K-State players will confirm that feeling. Just remember this year's team has a lot of new faces, and they need to experience a rocking Bramlage Coliseum.

Midnight Madness didn't quite cut it.

'Hello Dolly!' makes McCain debut

By Lajean Rau
Collegian Reporter

K-State students will soon have a chance to see a performance of one of the longest-running Broadway musicals of all time, billed in its original running as "a musical comedy dream."

"Hello, Dolly!," starring singer and comedienne Mimi Hines, will be performed at 8 p.m. tonight in McCain Auditorium.

Based on the play "The Matchmaker" by Thornton Wilder, the story follows the antics of a somewhat mischievous busybody widow named Dolly. Dolly scrounges out a living as a meddling matchmaker and lady-of-all-trades in the horse and buggy era of New York.

The musical, which is on a national tour, is produced by David Merrick and also stars Hines' longtime partner Phil Ford.

"This is a travelling production — so we're not going to see what was on Broadway — but this should be a good show," McCain director Richard Martin said.

"I rely on the reputation of the producer and the cast when I book shows," Martin said. "Merrick has toured a number of shows that did very well, and Hines has a good reputation as a Broadway performer."

Hines started her career in 1958 when she and Ford performed on "The Tonight Show." Suddenly, they found themselves in constant demand.

She headlined in the top nightclubs and showrooms in the country, and highlighted her career by replacing Barbara Streisand in the Broadway production of "Funny Girl." She has starred in various other Broadway plays and musicals, recorded several successful albums and has appeared on television.

Hines continues to headline in nightclubs and concert halls throughout the world, both alone and with Ford.

Director Jeffrey Moss' national tours play in hundreds of theaters around the United States. He recently directed a production of "My Fair Lady," which toured to critical acclaim in the United States and abroad.

On its original run, "Hello, Dolly!" reached a total of 2,844 performances — the longest run of any musical in Broadway history up to that time. It outdistanced such hits as "My Fair Lady," "Oklahoma," "South Pacific" and "The Sound of Music" which had previously held the record.

A film version of the story was released in 1969, starring Barbara Streisand and Walter Matthau.

Balcony seats for the performance are $16 for general admission and $8 for students. Lower balcony seats are $20 for general admission and $10 for students. Tickets are available at McCain Box Office.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Kedzie 103 CLASS ADS 532-6555

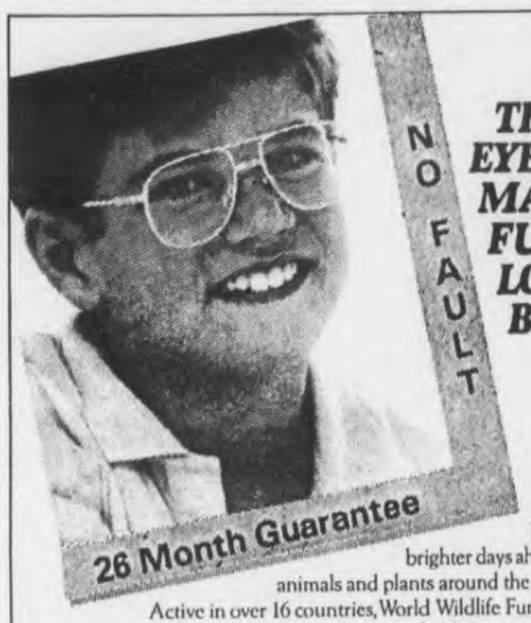
CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $3.00, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.25, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.50, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.



Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

BEST FUNDRAISER on campus! Looking for a fraternity, sorority or student organization that would like to earn $500 to $1,000 dollars for a one week on-campus marketing project. Must be organized and hard working. Call Jeanie or Ashley, 1-800-592-2121.

(Continued on page 7)

THIS EYEWEAR MAKES THE FUTURE LOOK BETTER.

Every time a L'Amy youth frame is purchased, we make a contribution to World Wildlife Fund. Which means brighter days ahead for endangered animals and plants around the world.

Active in over 16 countries, World Wildlife Fund is the largest conservation organization in the world and able to act quickly when conservation emergencies arise.

LUNETTES L'AMY PARIS

So help your kids see a brighter future by introducing them to L'Amy eyewear.

WWF

Perspectives Optical Dispensary & Lab

300 Poyntz, Downtown Manhattan • 539-5105

$7.00 Haircuts

This Tuesday (10-16-90) only From 5-8 p.m.

With Debbie & Carole

Ray's Hair Maxim
622 N. Manhattan
(Aggieville)
537-8620

Walk-ins welcome!

Check out our expanding line of
ORGANIC PRODUCE
including . . .

delicata og squash — leeks kabocha og squash — broccoli sweet dumpling og squash — peppers
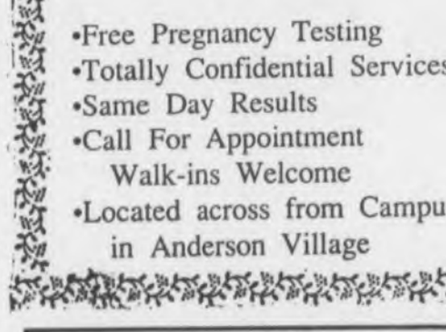
fresh shitake mushrooms

and of course . . .
apples oranges carrots
onions garlic

PEOPLE'S GROCERY
Co-Op
811 Colorado
10-6:30 Tues. thru Fri.
Sat. 9-5
Closed Sun. & Mon.

HUNAM Restaurant & Lounge
Mini-Lunch Buffet
$4.50
11:30-2 M-F
1304 Westloop
539-8888 or 539-0888
Open 7 Days
We Deliver



Community Enrichment

Swimming Classes Start:
Session II: October 18

Gymnastic Classes Start:
Session II: October 2-November 27
Session III: November 28-January 31

For Registration Information call 532-5566

KSU Kansas State University Division of Continuing Education

PREGNANCY TESTING CENTER
539-3338

•Free Pregnancy Testing
•Totally Confidential Services
•Same Day Results
•Call For Appointment
Walk-ins Welcome
•Located across from Campus in Anderson Village

Monday-Friday
9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
or by appointment

VOTE TODAY for the GREEK PLAYBOY

Pictures and voting jars on display in the Union
Tues.-Thurs.
9:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m.

•Pennies are negative
•Paper and silver are positive

AXΩ
presents
GREEK PLAYBOY '90
sponsored by:

Fleishacker's · Power FM 94.5 · University Photography · Brentwood

proceeds go to Cystic Fibrosis

LEARN A NEW WAY TO ENJOY COUNTRY MUSIC!!!
Country/Western Dance Classes
Fraternal Order of Eagles Building
203 E. 10th, Junction City, KS
(directly North of new Police Building)
LIGHTED AND FENCED PARKING LOT
BIG BALLROOM FLOOR
LOTS OF ROOM TO LEARN
COUPLES AND SINGLES WELCOME
Every Wednesday Evening
7:00 p.m. - 7:30 p.m. Registration
Class 7:30 p.m. - 9:30 p.m.
Emphasis is on couples dancing WITH the latest turns and flairs
(two-step, strolls, country waltz, Kick-Start 10 Step and many more)
AND line dancing (Cowboy Boogie, Tush Push, The Austin, etc.)
(No "swing or square dancing")
Each class - $3.00 per person.

FALSETTO'S PIZZA
At Your Convenience
We Again DELIVER
539-3830
Also: Dine in & Carryout

2-10 in. Pizzas
2 Pepsis
$8.00

2-10 in. Pizzas
2 Pepsis
2 Toppings
$9.99

1127 Moro — Offer expires 10-30-90

THERE'S A STORY HERE WORTH TELLING

"I use the Royal Purple as a personal research guide. When I meet someone interesting, I look them up in the yearbook to find out what activities they're in. If I'm lucky, they might be quoted in a story, too."

Angela C. Smith
junior in prelaw

It's not too late to reserve your copy of the 1991 Royal Purple yearbook. For only $13, a year of memories in words and photographs can be yours. Yearbooks may be purchased when you get your Royal Purple portrait taken (Union 209 through Oct. 26), or in Kedzie 103.

1991 ROYAL PURPLE

LAST CHANCE!
JANUARY ... BREAK
SKI STEAMBOAT from $177
JANUARY 2-12 ★ 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
BRECKENRIDGE from $184
JANUARY 2-9 ★ 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
VAIL/BEAVER CREEK from $247
JANUARY 2-12 ★ 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
Call Today!

LODGING • LIFTS • PICNIC • PARTY • MORE!

Sunchase 9TH ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS 1991

MORE WINTER COLLEGIATE SKI BREAK SPACE ADDED!

Whew, just when you thought you might be left out in the cold during January break — Sunchase comes through again. Your response to our quality and low priced 9th Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks has been overwhelming.

So, we've been able to add limited additional space at each destination but don't wait too much longer as in year's past, it's sure to be a sell out soon.

Ski Break by yourself, with your friends or organize a group of 19 and SKI FREE! All ski breaks include your choice of Fully Equipped Condominium or Hotel Lodging for 5, 6 or 7 nights; all Lift Tickets, Welcome Party, Mountain Chicken Barbecue, Ski Race, all Taxes and welcome Goodie Bag full of participating corporate sponsor product samples and area information.

Steamboat, Breckenridge or Vail/Beaver Creek. The hardest part is choosing which destination to "conquer" this coming season!

SKI & BEACH Sunchase BREAKS

9th ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS
TOLL FREE INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911

(Continued from page 6)

Hardee's
DELIVERS
537-2526

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

HEY— SAM (members), Let's get together Oct. 19 and 20 for a great time, great contacts and a great start for your future. RSVP on Wednesday 17th and Thursday 18th at the Union info table.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

TONIGHT!
$1.25
32 oz. Draws
only at
BAYSTREET

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial, Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

HALLOWEEN HAS ARRIVED
AT
GREEN THUMB
SPOOKIE DECORATIONS
1105 Waters 539-4751

Aggieville's 10th Annual
Oktoberfest
Sat., Oct. 20
10-5
Volksmarch, Food & Craft Fair
Fun for the whole family

2 Apartments—Furnished

AVAILABLE JAN. 1. Private bedrooms for three neat and tidy females sharing very nice, large four-bedroom, two-bath home with KSU student owner. 539-1288.

SHARE LARGE home with empty-nested executive mom. Private bedroom. 537-4907 for appointment.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

AVAILABLE NOW. One-bedroom near campus, $325, year lease, no pets, laundry facilities, central air. Call for appointment 776-3804.

ONE-BEDROOM IN a complex near campus. New carpet, gas, heat, $325. No pets. 776-3804.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

ADULT MALE needed, non-smoker, rent $187.50 and utilities. Call (913)537-2939 nights after 4p.m.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

5 Automobile for Sale

1970 PONTIAC Bonneville 455, four-door, hard-top, good tires, runs well, 86,000 miles, $600. Call 539-1845.

1971 CAMARO, power steering, air conditioning, good heater, runs good, $400. 537-4369.

1973 VW SuperBeetle, new engine, new carpet. 776-7938 please leave message.

1974 OLDS Delta 88 conv red, good shape, new top, new tires, runs good. Good deal. 537-8857.

1978 280Z parts car. $400. 537-1539.

1978 JEEP CJ5 307 cubic inch, soft top. 1-348-5893.

1979 CHEVY Caprice Classic, runs excellent, air conditioning, AM/FM stereo, power windows, locks, brakes, steering. $1,200. 539-3390.

1979 PONTIAC Sunbird for sale, low mileage, good school car, blue, $800. 532-5452.

1982 BEAUTIFUL black Toyota Supra, 53,000 miles, loaded, good condition. Call Jill, 539-5192.

FOR SALE— 1978 Trans Am, new high performance 455, air conditioning, electric window and locks, stereo pull-out. $2,800 or offer. 539-6765.

FOR SALE— 1984 Escort GT, five-speed, cruise control, great condition, $2,900 or offer. 539-6765.

6 Child Care

CHILD CARE in our home. Needed immediately loving care for an adorable one-year-old, approximately four hours per day (mornings), live in Jardine Terrace. Good pay and lunch provided. Call weekends or afternoon weekdays. 776-7718.

7 Computers

12" COLOR video monitor. Great for VCR or computer. $120 or best offer. 537-6026.

HAVING PROBLEMS with your computer or printer? Need to upgrade your systems memory, monitor or just a larger hard drive? Need a second party book on a certain program? ABACUS Computer and Supply, 539-7007, 1111 Waters.

IBM PC Jr.— Color monitor, remote keyboard, expanded memory, software. Asking $425. Robert, 776-5526.

8 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such 'employment opportunity' with reasonable caution.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ATTENTION: STUDENTS! Earn $15/ hour working in your spare time on campus. Flexible hours, 1-800-688-4733.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EVENING AND Daytime office and telephone sales help needed. Pleasant working conditions, hourly wage and excellent bonuses. Call 537-6163, 9a.m.—4p.m.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. Federal, CIA, U.S. Customs, D.E.A., etc. Now hiring. Listings. 1(805)687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. CIA, U.S. Customs, DEA, etc. Now hiring. Call 1-805-687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

OVERSEAS JOBS. $900— $2,000/ month. Summer, year-round. All countries. All fields. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KSo2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

LOOKING
FOR AN EXCITING CAREER?
JOIN
ANNIE'S SANTA FE MEXICAN RESTAURANT AND CANTINA
Opening October 22nd in Topeka. Waiters & waitresses, prep cooks, line cooks, dish people, bus people, cocktail waitresses, hostesses, & bartenders. Full & part time positions available. Applications will be taken daily between 8:00 a.m. & 7:00 p.m. for any of the positions listed above.
ANNIE'S SANTA FE
Westridge Mall
1801 S. W. Wanamaker Road
Topeka, Kansas
271-1060

RESORT HOTELS, Cruiselines, Amusement Parks and Summer Camps, Now accepting applications for Spring, Summer and Career positions. To receive an application and information, please write: National Collegiate Recreation Services, P.O. Box 7832, Hilton Head Island, SC 29938.

TWO NANNIES needed by Jan. 1 for two families in Brewster N.Y. Must drive, swim. Non-smoker preferred. One year commitment. Excellent living conditions plus salaries. (914)279-5963.

9 Food Specials

Bobby J's
Tuesdays:
TACO NACHO NIGHT
39¢ Tacos
Homemade flour
chicken or beef tacos
$1.25 margaritas
539-1571

Tuesday Special
RIB-IT NIGHT
All the BBQ Ribs, Fries and Salad Bar you can eat!
$4.95
Every Tuesday 5-8 p.m.
The CHEF Cafe
111 S. 4th
Downtown

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

SEVEN PIECE living room set, $300 or best offer. 537-7110.

THREE-PIECE FULL-SIZE bedroom set, bookcase headboard. 539-1586. $300 or offer.

WHIRLPOOL PORTABLE dishwasher. Six months old. $300. Carla 537-7560.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: GREEN notebook, left in Kedzie Hall 10/12/90. Claim in Kedzie 103.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

14x56, TWO-BEDROOM, appliances, nice condition, good location, #24 Green Valley Trailer Court. $5,200. 776-4500, 776-1342.

1973 FLAMINGO 14x70, two-bedroom. Cute kitchen, real cabinets, new bedrooms, wood floor, low utilities. $8,000. 537-4369.

OWN THIS 12' wide, two-bedroom, $135 monthly for 24 months. Large selection. Countryside. 539-2325.

18 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

1985 HONDA Elite 150— Excellent condition, low mileage. Also helmet. Phone 539-7554.

19 Music/ Musicians

TAMA SWINGSTAR, five piece trapset, black, adjustable case, must sell. 537-4489 or 1-729-3601.

YAMAHA STUDENT model trumpet. Recently cleaned. $120 or best offer. 537-6026.

21 Personals

We require a form of picture ID (KSU or driver's license or other) when placing a personal.

BUDDY, HAPPY Birthday! You're 35 and I'm not. I'm in love and you're not. We can work this out if you want. Kitten.

CHRISTOPHER— THE big "21" has finally come. So make today an unforgetable one. Hope your birthday is the best. Cuz you deserve more than all the rest. Happy B-Day! I love You! Shel—.

CRAIG: I wasn't going to tell you this, but I've been watching you and you're doing so well. You had such a good internship and take such good care of your body. That's what Our son should be like, too. Contact me via the personals by Thursday.

CRAIG— NOT only did you get one, but you got two. Hope your day was great. 13 months until your part of our family. Love Linda and Elizabeth.

C.W.L.— I tried to make it, but I was a day off. Hope it was memorable. Exactly 13 months to go. I Love You. J.L.W.

FLAG GUY! We all love you. —The rest of the guard.

HEY, SCOTT —Mambo!!

THERE IS a circulation librarian named Cherie, Who is normally bright and merry, But an overdue fine really makes her eyes shine, With a look that is truly quite scary.

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

AKC REGISTERED Rotwielers, shots and wormed. After 6p.m. 776-9319.

23 Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

SUFFERING FROM abortion? Write: HeartsRestored, Box 94, Grinnell, Kansas 67738. Confidential response will follow.

Headaches?
Neck pain?
Back pain?
Call today for an appointment
537-8305
Dr. Mark Hatesohl
Chiropractic Family Health Center
3252 Kimball Avenue
Candlewood Shopping Center

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— More than just typing— we create the resume with you, so it reflects your best. Then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience in University Career Center.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851. Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING, CALL Leslie 539-1235.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100 or 1-456-9642, Wamego.

WORDPROCESSING/ TYPING— Data sheets, reports, theses, dissertations, letters, resumes, applications, etc. Mrs. Burden, 539-1204.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE CHRISTIANS looking for roommate. $100 per month plus one-fourth utilities. $150 deposit. Call 776-8873.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: $142.50/ month plus utilities. Park Place Apartments. Call 537-0509 after 7p.m.

ROOMMATES TO share three-bedroom house, near campus. Partially furnished. 776-3078.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Female, three-bedroom house. 537-3653.

TWO OR one roommate wanted. $160 or $230 rent plus utilities. 1212 Bluemont, 776-0797.

26 Stereo Equipment

STILLWATER DESIGN, side kicks, 150-watt truck kicker, $160. Call 537-8575 ask for Scott.

28 Sublease

AVAILABLE SPRING semester. Half block from Justin Hall, partially furnished, one-bedroom apartment. Very low utilities. 776-7734.

ONE-BEDROOM WILDCAT Inn apartment, one block from campus, seven-month sublease. 776-3182.

30 Travel

CHIEFS
vs.
DENVER
Dec. 9
$25
includes game ticket, bus transportation, and refreshments.
Classic Travel & Tours
1212 Moro • 537-7546

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

INFANT GIRL clothes, 0-18 months, very nice and inexpensive. 776-2108 after 2p.m.

NEW, FULL length men's black leather trench coat, $400 or best offer. 539-1182.

33 Tutor

VERY QUALIFIED tutor for Spanish. Affordable rates. Call Leticia 539-6832 after 9p.m.

34 Horses

HORSEBACK RIDING, hourly rates, group rates. Call for appointment. Boarding, training also. 1-238-2681.

35 NCAAW

MISDEAL— UNLABELED, unmarked, unmeasured alcoholic beverages may produce an accelerated (negative) effect —Alcohol: Is it a gamble? —NCAAW 1990.

NCAAW— NATIONAL Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week 1990. Alcohol: Is it a gamble? Funding in part provided by City of Manhattan and KSU Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service.

THREE OF a kind— 12 oz. of beer equals 5 oz. of wine equals 1½ oz. of liquor —NCAAW 1990.

TWO OF a Kind— For a second DUI conviction, 90 days to 1 year in jail and a fine of $500 to $1,000. Drinking and driving: Is it worth the gamble? —NCAAW 1990.

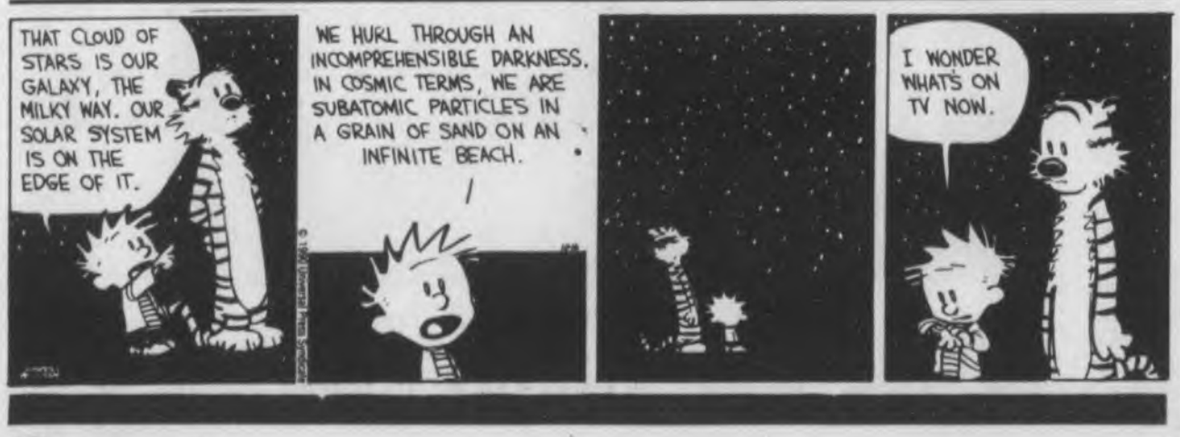
Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Flounk Flounksternt is planning to propose to his girlfriend, Brenkhownt. His friends told him to spend at least $40 for the wine. He can't figure out why he needs 30 bottles of wine to propose to her. 10-16 ©1990 Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

By Bob Berry



Jim's Journal

By Jim

Calvin and Hobbes

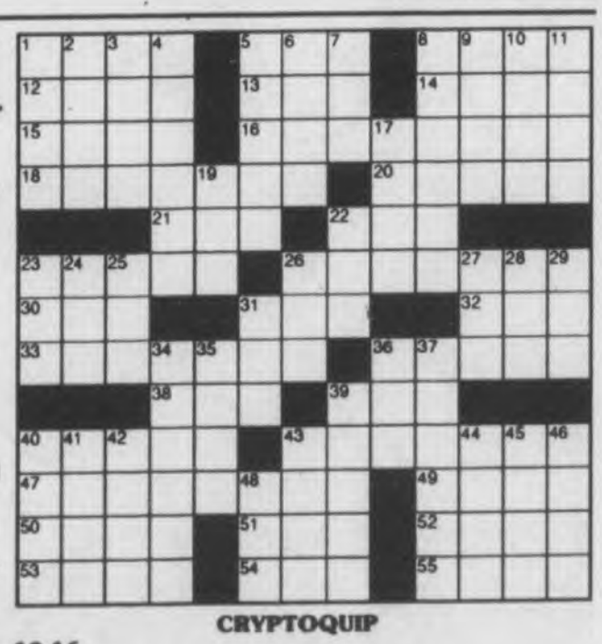
By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Swindle
5 Hole in one
8 Actress Lynn
12 Cougar
13 Tooth-paste choice
14 Like peas in —
15 Hebrew lyre
16 Ship's port, in a way
18 Pixies
20 Official decree
21 — King Cole
22 Caution or school lead-in
23 Former Egyptian VIP
26 Political radical
30 Pindar's forte
31 Wager
32 Education org.
33 Omitted
36 Ridge of sand
38 Singer Janis
39 Lodge member
40 Filmdom's Cary
43 Holds in high regard
47 South-paw's prefer-ence
49 Trick
50 Arrow poison
51 Luau dish
52 Russian despot
53 Bluejay or bobolink
54 — and all
55 Close

DOWN
1 Health resorts
2 Apex
3 God of love
4 Yacht basin
5 Metal tag
6 Passing grades
7 Santa's helper
8 Woven container
9 South Seas port
10 Laver and Carew
11 — fixe
17 Gang's territory
19 Make lace
22 Fido or Fluffy
23 Fa follower
24 Summer refresher
25 Federal dept.
26 " — It Be" (song)
27 Calli-grapher's need
28 Under-stand
29 Sailor
31 Small roll
34 Added color
35 Solemn promise
36 Tall tree
37 Minis and maxis
39 Actor Albert
40 Smoothly fluent
41 Italian painter
42 South-west wind
43 Presently
44 Football running play
45 Jacob's twin
46 Spanish muralist
48 Gl's address

Solution time: 24 mins.

E	T	A	L		A	R	I		C	O	E	D
R	A	M	A		M	E	T		A	R	L	O
I	C	E	S		O	V	E	R	T	A	K	E
C	O	N	C	U	R		R	E	N	T	E	R
			A	R	E	S		T	A	O
O	V	E	R	S	T	E	P		P	R	O	A
T	E	A		A	T	R	I	A		I	N	S
T	E	R	M		O	V	E	R	L	O	O	K
		L	A	B		E	T	N	A
R	A	I	D	E	R		I	O	D	I	N	E
O	V	E	R	L	A	P	S		D	O	O	R
M	E	S	A		C	A	T		E	N	O	S
A	R	T	S		E	S	S		R	A	N	T

Yesterday's answer 10-16

CRYPTOQUIP

10-16

UFZWRIGNGFN KPUYKWPM GF-XUFGGK UD SGUFX AUKGM SGZPJDG CUD SWDD ZWJYMF'N EGGI NKPZE WA CUR.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: PLUCKY GUARD AT HIGH-SECURITY PENITENTIARY IS ALL KEYED UP.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals T

New quotas to improve rush

Sorority numbers might increase

By Shannon Meyers
Collegian Reporter

Changes in rush for sororities are being made to eliminate or decrease the number of crosscuts.

Crosscuts occur when a chapter reaches its quota before it has accommodated everyone that wants to pledge its house.

Last August, quotas were set based on the percentage of women each house could pledge. This resulted in a large number of potential pledges being crosscut.

"This year, the quotas will be set by straight division of the number of sororities, after Progressive Luncheon, allowing us to accommodate more women who want to pledge," said Barb Robel, Greek Affairs adviser.

Kappa Delta president Sharon Pettijohn, senior in elementary education, said, "Setting a quota later during rush is more realistic since some women withdraw, and there is such an emphasis on making quota."

Robel said even though she did not see any disadvantages to the system, the resulting larger pledge classes could cause logistical problems in some houses that already cannot fit everyone into its dining room for formal dinner.

A minimum grade point average will also be reinstated. This was abolished last year as a result of National Panhellenic Council pressure. Each chapter will set a minimum GPA, and the Panhellenic minimum will be based on the lowest one.

"More girls with lower GPA's went through rush this year and were consequently disappointed. We also blame this for the large number of crosscuts," Robel said.

Alpha Chi Omega president Cory Harlow, senior in elementary education, said, "The grade policy is a good one. It prevents rushees from having false hopes about getting into a certain house."

The final change to be implemented will require rushees to accept the maximum number of invitations each day.

"By doing this we are encouraging them to keep all of their options open," Robel said.

The changes are in response to the new system used this year.

"The results were so disastrous that we had to be responsive to the problem of crosscuts," Robel said.

Harlow said that in some ways this system is a disadvantage to small houses because big houses keep getting bigger. But she said she thinks all the houses on campus are strong.

Israel

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

present its case," she said.

At the United Nations, Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Monday he was undecided whether to dispatch a team and would wait to hear the Israeli government's position.

In his speech, Shamir , leader of the right-wing Likud bloc, appeared to step up Israeli warnings to Iraq.

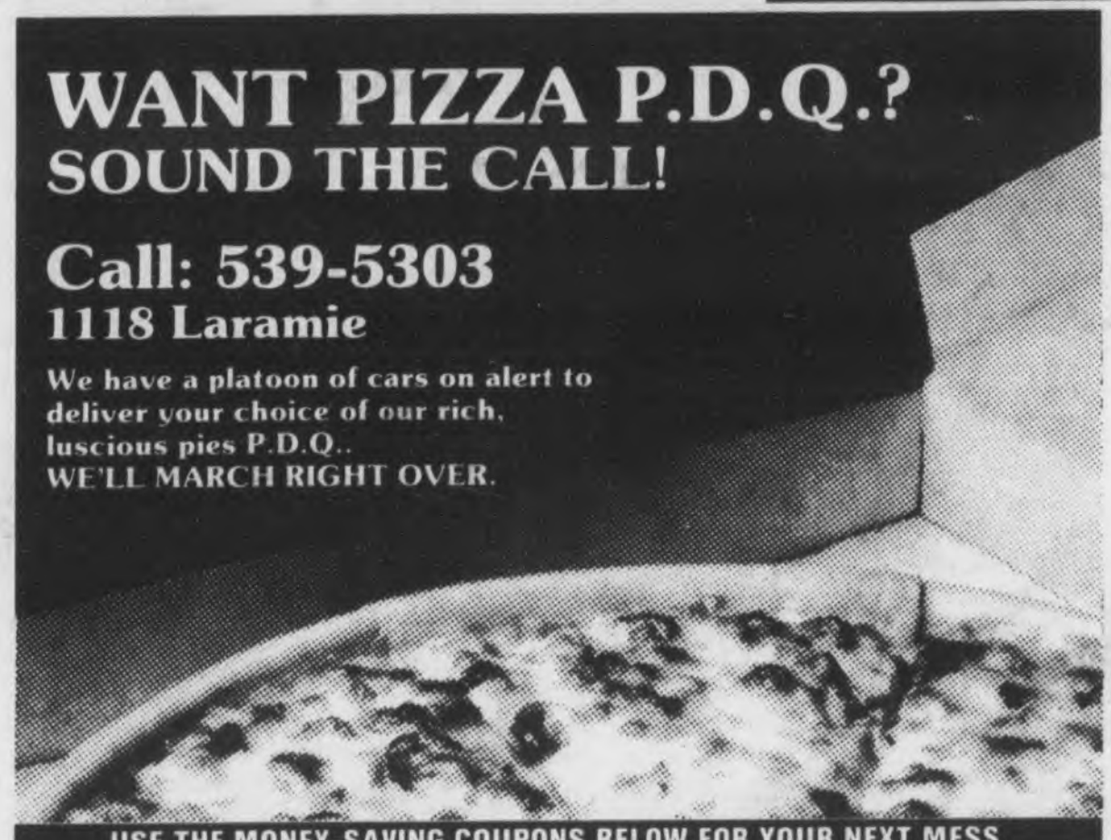
While previous Israeli statements have pledged retaliation for an invasion of Jordan, Shamir said Israel "will not hesitate to react in any way we see fit" if there is an attempt to undermine Jordan's stability.

In a response to Shamir's speech, Labor Party leader Shimon Peres told Parliament that the right-wing government was ruining Israel's standing in the world and upsetting its alliance with the United States.

HIGH NOON

is the deadline for

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
ClassADS
Kedzie Hall 103 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
532-6555



Two nice, caring guys looking for romantic and attractive young women.
Interested?
Call: 539-8133 539-8053

Hunam Chinese Restaurant

"SPOOKTACULAR SPECIAL"
Wella Perfect Control Perms
only $28 (Spirals $35)
Free Keragenic Conditioner or shampoo with each perm!
While supplies last.
Wed., Thurs., & Fri.
New Customers Only!
expires Oct. 25, 1990
H♀H HIS & HERS

WANT PIZZA P.D.Q.?
SOUND THE CALL!
Call: 539-5303
1118 Laramie
We have a platoon of cars on alert to deliver your choice of our rich, luscious pies P.D.Q..
WE'LL MARCH RIGHT OVER.

USE THE MONEY-SAVING COUPONS BELOW FOR YOUR NEXT MESS.

2 Medium Family Pack
One Combo and One Single-Topping
$10.99
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers. Limited delivery area and times. Add $1 for delivery. EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU
Godfather's Pizza®

Medium All Meat Combo
Beef • Sausage Pepperoni • Ham Bacon
$7.99
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers. Limited delivery area and times. Add $1 for delivery. EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU
Godfather's Pizza®

2 Medium One-Toppers
Cheese plus one topping on each
$8.99
or 2 Large $11.99
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers. Limited delivery area and times. Add $1 for delivery. EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU
Godfather's Pizza®

$4 OFF Any Large Pizza
or
$3 OFF Any Medium
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers. Limited delivery area and times. Add $1 for delivery. EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU
Godfather's Pizza®

YOU'RE INVITED
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20

To Help Us Celebrate!

Memorial Hospital wants to invite you and your family to come and see your new hospital. We've just wrapped up an impressive construction and renovation project and we're eager for you to see the improvements, and to meet the special people who work here. Please join us for a tour of the hospital, refreshments, and health screenings. We think you're going to like what we've got to show you!

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL OPEN HOUSE
1 - 4 p.m.
Saturday, October 20, 1990

REGISTER TO WIN: A 3-day Nassau cruise for two from International Tours Travel Agency of Manhattan. Ship sails April 26, 1991. Bon Voyage!

MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
Yesterday's values, Tomorrow's technology
1105 Sunset P.O. Box 1208 • Manhattan, KS 66502 • 913-776-3300

©1990 Memorial Hospital

Some people think every child in our area grows up to live happily ever after.

Young Jake would disagree.

All they ever do is fight. When he wakes up. After school. Before he goes to sleep.

Every day, children in our area live like this. Always expecting the worst. Afraid that at any moment, their families won't be families anymore.

Which is why we need your help.

Member agencies of the United Way of Riley County use your United Way gift to help families in trouble. It's money well spent.

United Way of Riley County

"I'll be there... Because we care"

Doing the most good. Right here.

Giving to United Way means your money helps agencies that undergo strict evaluations of their programs, staff, and facility. And that means they are better prepared to give families like Jake's the help they really need.

When you get your United Way pledge card this year, choose to help Jake and his family. Let your gift show you care.

K-State Campus Campaign Oct. 2-19.
Use Payroll deduction.
(Sponsored by Circle K)

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Wednesday, October 17, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 38

Soviets active in Meeting for Peace

Delegates tour campus, area farms

By Erika Parker
Staff Reporter

During the past three days, 250 Soviet delegates did something they never could have 20 years ago — visit Kansas.

The delegates, sponsored by Soviets for Peace, traveled to Kansas to tour facilities in seven Kansas cities, including Manhattan.

These Soviets moved into American homes, toured universities and visited businesses in the hopes of learning American practices.

Hnatoly Kapustin, a Soviet delegate from the Ukraine, said U.S.-Soviet relations improved during the past three days.

As part of the Meeting for Peace, the K-State College of Agriculture played host to 27 Soviets.

> We hope that very soon the Soviet Union will be very much like the United States. The more Soviets come to America, the better we will be economically and psychologically.
>
> —Hnatoly Kapustin
> Soviet delegate

Those traveling to Manhattan stayed with host families and learned about Kansas agriculture and agribusiness, said Sue Schulte, media coordinator for the Meeting for Peace Foundation.

Others traveled to different Kansas cities to learn about such American facilities as businesses and hospitals.

J. Kyle Wyatt/Staff

University president Jon Wefald extends an official welcome Tuesday afternoon to a 27-member Soviet delegation visiting Manhattan. The Manhattan delegation was part of a 250-member group, sponsored by Soviets for Peace, touring Kansas this week.

"They're getting a very well-rounded look at American agriculture," Schulte said.

Monday the Soviets toured the plant pathology research facilities, she said. Today, after leaving Manhattan, they will look at two Kansas farms.

She said the Soviet Union has state-owned farms, so the tour will be a new experience for the delegates.

Tuesday, the delegates toured the meat processing facilities at Weber Hall. Curtis Kastner, professor in the department of animal science and industry, conducted most of the tour. The Soviets learned about making sausage, sampled American meat products and looked at carcasses. But not everyone chose to observe the work done at the slaughter house.

"I'm afraid," said Rima Filatova, an English teacher and delegate from Sochis.

"I like America greatly, but our region is very like here, according to the landscape and weather, except it rains every day. But it's sunny in the summer," she said.

She also said she likes English literature.

"I like to read English laugh stories," she said.

The Soviets showed interest in more than just agricultural facilities during their stay in Manhattan. Many wanted to listen to a band at

■ See PEACE, Page 3

Kuwait refuses to deal

By The Associated Press

Kuwait's government-in-exile on Tuesday ruled out conceding one inch of territory to Iraq in any settlement, and the United States said it would not accept partial solutions to the Persian Gulf crisis.

The comments followed hints that Iraq might withdraw from Kuwait if it is allowed to retain three key areas — two islands controlling Iraq's access to the gulf and part of an oil field.

But Iraq took a firm position Tuesday, with the newspaper of Saddam Hussein's ruling party saying: "We will not give it (Kuwait) up, even if we fight for it 1,000 years."

Japan's government, meanwhile, introduced a proposal in its parliament that would permit Japanese troops to join the U.S.-led multinational force in the gulf. The plan envisions the establishment of a non-combat force of civilians and soldiers to participate behind the lines.

Kuwait's crown prince and prime minister told a news conference that Iraq's 11-week occupation of his emirate will never force us to make any concession.

"We will never give up any part of our country, not even one inch," Sheik Saad al-Abdullah al-Sabah said in Jiddah, Saudi Arabia.

Kuwaitis fleeing into Saudi Arabia said the Iraqis were setting up fences that separate most of Kuwait from the disputed oil field of Rumailah. But Iraq repeatedly has denied speculation that it would withdraw in return for territorial concessions.

Secretary of State James Baker III said Washington would not agree to concessions.

"We are unwilling to engage in a search for partial solutions," Baker said.

He said Saddam Hussein evidently was interested in a negotiated arrangement that would enable him to claim benefits from his unprovoked aggression against a small neighbor.

President Bush, on the campaign trail in Iowa, encountered signs of dwindling public support for U.S. involvement in the gulf.

"America will remain in the Persian Gulf not one single day longer than necessary," he promised.

Bush was loudly applauded when he responded to three protesters, "The fight isn't about oil. The fight is about naked aggression that will not stand."

Jordan's King Hussein, who has worked to try to find a peaceful solution to the crisis, said in remarks published Tuesday that war may be imminent.

King Hussein told the New York Times that the outbreak of war would be partly the fault of Bush and other Western leaders, who he said failed to respond promptly to Saddam Hussein's early indications he was willing to withdraw.

Tax support for education discussed

Representatives say tax on wealthy most stable way to provide funding

CAMPAIGN 1990
Kansas House

By Elvyn Jones
Staff Reporter

The Manhattan representatives to the Statehouse agree that an income tax increase to upper-income households would be the best way to fund higher education in the future.

Reps. Sheila Hochhauser, D-Manhattan, and Katha Hurt, D-Manhattan, spoke Tuesday at a forum sponsored by the Student Governing Association and the Associated Students of Kansas.

SGA and ASK will sponsor a forum of Hochhauser's and Hurt's opponents, Kent Glasscock and Stan Hoerman, at 12:30 a.m. today in the K-State Union Courtyard.

The candidates proposed an income-tax surcharge for the 21,429 households with a Kansas adjusted gross income of more than $100,000. Revenue raised by the tax would be used for higher education.

Hochhauser said she favors such a tax because it would be a stable source of income for higher education and would help eliminate the up-and-down cycles of revenue the legislators face when funding Kansas Board of Regents schools.

Hurt said households with an income of more than $100,000 are presently getting the benefit of tax breaks on both the state and federal level.

With the demand for property tax relief and funding the higher cost for social programs also on the legislative agenda, Hurt said all revenues raised by such a tax increase might not go to higher education.

Both agreed that a sales tax on cigarettes, such as the proposed 10 cent per package increase proposed by Gov. Mike Hayden, is not the answer for funding higher education.

"Last year a 5-cent increase failed," Hurt said. "Why does he believe a 10-cent increase will pass this year?"

The federal government is also looking at a cigarette sales tax increase to add revenue, she said.

Hochhauser said there is a great deal of opposition to a cigarette increase and listed some of the reasons for it.

First, she said, legislators wonder why smokers should pay a greater burden for higher education in Kansas. Many legislators not absolutely opposed to a cigarette tax increase would like the revenue used in some way related to smokers needs, such as health care or drug and alcohol programs.

She also said a cigarette tax increase would not be a source of stable revenue. A continued decline in cigarette use would mean a reduced amount of taxes raised.

Finally, a cigarette tax would mean higher education was funded by the paradox of promoting an unhealthy behavior, Hochhauser said.

Both representatives said they support open admissions to regents schools.

Hochhauser said she opposes selective admissions because the minority community she represents believes such a policy would be discriminatory.

She said she might endorse a policy used in other states in which certain institutions have selective admissions and others offer open admissions.

Hurt said she now favors open admissions, but would listen to agruments for selective admissions.

As a first grade teacher, Hurt said she deals with students needing to learn how to learn. Colleges need to provide more of these kinds of techniques to failing students, she said.

Germans adapting to unified country

By Kimis Timotheadis
Staff Reporter

Changes in Eastern Europe in the past year have caught many by surprise. The most surprising may have been the destruction of the Berlin Wall and the recent reunification of Germany.

For two students, those changes have meant learning to look at their homelands in a new light.

Ronald Fussel, exchange student in history, grew up in East Germany. Bernd Schroeder, graduate student in mathematics, grew up in West Germany.

Both say they are happy about reunification, but disagree about the speed with which it was done.

Fussel lived in East Germany for 10 years, but 15 years ago his family decided to leave for West Germany.

"For two years, we kept telling East German authorities that we wanted to leave, and finally they let us go," Fussel said.

He said his relatives remained in East Germany, and he was able to visit them every year. But there were problems.

"It was always a big problem to get a visa and to get the money I had to spend every time I wanted to go to East Germany," Fussel said.

He said every time he crossed the borders he had to exchange 25 western marks with 25 eastern marks.

"Now it's gonna be a lot easier for me to visit my relatives," he said.

When his family moved to West Germany, Fussel said, there were difficulties adapting to the new environment.

As a child, he said he would have the same difficulties even if moving to another town in East Germany. His father had more difficulties because he had to start his career from the beginning. Hard work, however, brought successful results.

"I feel lucky we moved to West Germany before the reunification," Fussel said.

Many don't like reunification, he said, because the economy will face some problems for a couple of years and taxes will rise.

"The former West German government used to tell us all the time that taxes will be kept low and that things will be cheap," he said, "but now people find out that they will have to pay more."

Life in East Germany was very different from life in West Germany, Fussel said.

"Even if you were just sitting all day long at your office drinking coffee, you got paid," he said. "Life in East Germany was easier because there was no employment competition. There was never an official unemployment rate."

He said life was pretty routine in East Germany.

"Usually in your early 20s you got a job, at 25 you would buy a small car, in your 60s you would retire," Fussel said. "That was life for an average East German."

Fussel said he doesn't like being in the United States while history is taking place in his home country, he said.

Schroeder lived in the former West Berlin, and said the reunification might have proceeded too quickly.

"I would say it went too fast. But after we were over the hill, we had to go as fast as possible," Schroeder said. "We should have done it two months ago.

"A few years ago, I used to say that unification would not happen in the 20th century," he said.

The entire reunification process, Schroeder said, was described in a provision of an article of the West German constitution.

"In reality, it was not a unification between two countries, which met in equal terms," he said. "East Germany had to join us."

The problem now, Schroeder said, is that people may not be able to get what they expected.

"People were blind because of the capitalist goods they saw," Schroeder said. "Now the prices for food, rent and other goods will go up, and the wages probably won't increase."

He said workers in East Germany felt safe about their jobs, but now in the free market, no job is safe.

Another problem, Schroeder said, is industry.

"We can no longer depend on agriculture for the development of an economy," Schroeder said. "In East Germany, industry has to start almost from the beginning."

J. Kyle Wyatt/Staff

Bernd Schroeder, left, graduate student in mathematics, and Ronald Fussel, student in history, offer their views on German reunification.

BRIEFLY

World

France seeks to end quarrel

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Army bulldozers removed more mines along the capital's dividing Green Line Tuesday, and France sought to ease an escalating quarrel with Lebanon over the fate of Gen. Michel Aoun.

President Elias Hrawi pledged to reunify the nation and end its 15-year civil war. He said he would work from the bombed-out presidential palace, where Aoun had his headquarters, even if he has to put up a tent.

Aoun spent a fourth day in the French Embassy in east Beirut, where he fled Saturday after being defeated in an eight-hour Syrian-led blitz. The assault, which left 160 people dead, ended the Christian general's 11-month mutiny.

Americans win Nobel prize

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Three Americans who gave investors, stockholders and corporate directors a better understanding of the intricate financial markets won the Nobel memorial prize in economics Tuesday.

Harry Markowitz of the City University of New York, Merton Miller of the University of Chicago and William Sharpe of Stanford University will share the prize, worth about $700,000.

"There has been a very powerful and rich development of finance economy as a scientific subject, and that was a main reason for giving them the prize," said academy committee member Bengt Naslund.

The academy said financial markets serve a key purpose in a modern market economy by allocating resources to various production areas.

Inmates escape by running

FRIBOURG, Switzerland (AP) — Police are looking for two runners who kept running after finishing a 17-kilometer race. For good reason — the participants were escaping from jail.

Henri Nuoffer, chief warden of the Bellechasse jail, said the two 30-year-old inmates had been allowed to compete in Sunday's Murten-Fribourg classic on a good conduct pass.

Both were serving 30-month terms for drug offenses and had practiced for four months to prepare for the race, Nuoffer said. They would have been eligible for release next January.

Nation

Civil War soldier's widow dies

SUMTER, S.C. (AP) — The last widow of a Confederate soldier was buried on Tuesday, closing yet another chapter in the Civil War story.

Daisy Wilson Cave was in her 20s when she married 75-year-old Henry Benjamin Cave, previously a soldier with the Third Regiment of the South Carolina Cavalry.

About 75 people gathered at Evergreen Memorial Park Cemetery for the funeral and burial of Cave, whose age was believed to have been between 97 and 105. She died Saturday at Hopewell Health Care Center.

Robert Brown, commander of the South Carolina division of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, said he and leaders of other groups dedicated to Confederate heritage believed Cave was the last in a line of women whose husbands had fought for the South during the Civil War.

Various local and national newspapers in recent years had described Cave as the last surviving Confederate widow.

Name confuses rating agency

BALTIMORE (AP) — Most college graduates have no trouble naming their alma mater, but four corporate executives did when asked by Standard and Poors, the national financial rating agency.

Standard and Poors' latest Executive College Survey lists four executives as having received degrees from Baltimore City College.

As Baltimore residents know well, Baltimore City College is a high school.

"We'll do our best to rectify this," said Ellen Hartery, assistant supervisor of Compmark Data Services, the Standard and Poors subsidiary that compiles the survey.

Man has accent after stroke

NEW YORK (AP) — A Baltimore man suddenly began speaking with a Scandinavian accent after suffering a stroke, displaying a rare disorder that may shed light on how the brain produces language, a study says.

The man, who had no experience with foreign languages, sounded both Nordic and unfamiliar with English, said Dr. Dean Tippett.

The man had what is known as foreign accent syndrome, a rare condition in which a brain malfunction produces speech alterations that sound like a foreign accent. Other reported cases in Americans have involved apparent German, Spanish, Welsh, Scottish, Irish and Italian accents.

Region

Two men face murder charges

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two young men whose companion was slain during an attempted robbery at a Midtown apartment Sunday night were charged Monday with second-degree murder.

Melvin R. James, 19, and Khalee M. Kinney, 18, were charged in the death of John E. Ward, 18, because he was killed while they were allegedly attempting a robbery, court records showed.

James and Kinney are also charged with first-degree attempted robbery and armed criminal action. They were being held on $100,000 bonds.

Witnesses told police that five persons planned to rob a man in his apartment Sunday evening. One of the five allegedly was armed with a sawed-off shotgun, and another had a handgun.

But the resident was armed as well, and he shot and killed the shotgun-wielding man, later identified as Ward. The resident also wounded the intruder who had the handgun, witnesses said.

When police arrived, Ward's body was in the back of the apartment. A trail of blood led several blocks to an area where police found a 16-year-old youth with a serious gunshot wound.

Petition to be resubmitted

PARSONS (AP) — A petition seeking the removal of Labette County commissioner Joe Renfro has been declared invalid, but one of the petition organizers says it will be resubmitted.

"This hasn't deterred us one bit," Parsons businessman Mike Howerter said Tuesday. "In fact, we already have it retyped and ready to be resubmitted."

In a letter sent to county clerk Linda Schreppel on Monday, county counselor Fred Johnson said the petition form that attempts to oust Renfro, an Altamont Republican, was three words over the 200-word limit.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

17 Wednesday

- German Table will meet at 11:30 a.m. in Union Stateroom 2.
- Intramural Managers' Meeting will meet at 4 p.m. in Union Forum Hall.
- Wheat State Agronomy Club will meet at 8 p.m. in Fairchild 202.
- All-Architectural College Photo will be at 2:30 p.m. on the Seaton Hall steps.
- American Nuclear Society will meet at at 7 p.m. in Ward 135 for Royal Purple pictures.
- KSU Rock Climbing Club will meet at 7 p.m. in the upstairs lobby of the Union to finalize trip plans.
- Fencing Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Ahearn Field House.
- Alpha Zeta must turn in orders by 4:30 p.m. in Shellenberger 103.
- Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service will have National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week information tables from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the second floor of the Union.
- Students For Life will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 204.
- Homecoming Ambassador Applications may be picked up in Anderson 122 and are due today. Homecoming competition forms are due in Anderson 122 by Friday. Extra copies are in Anderson 122.

18 Thursday

- Intramural Entry Deadline for volleyball and individual sports is 5 p.m. in the Recreational Services Office at the Chester E. Peters Recreational Complex.
- K-State Table Tennis Club will meet from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the ECM building on Denison Avenue.
- Christian Science Organization will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Danforth Chapel. Everyone is welcome.

CORRECTIONS

The musical "Hello Dolly!" will be performed at 8 p.m. Thursday in McCain Auditorium, not at 8 p.m Tuesday as reported in Tuesday's Collegian. The Collegian regrets the error.

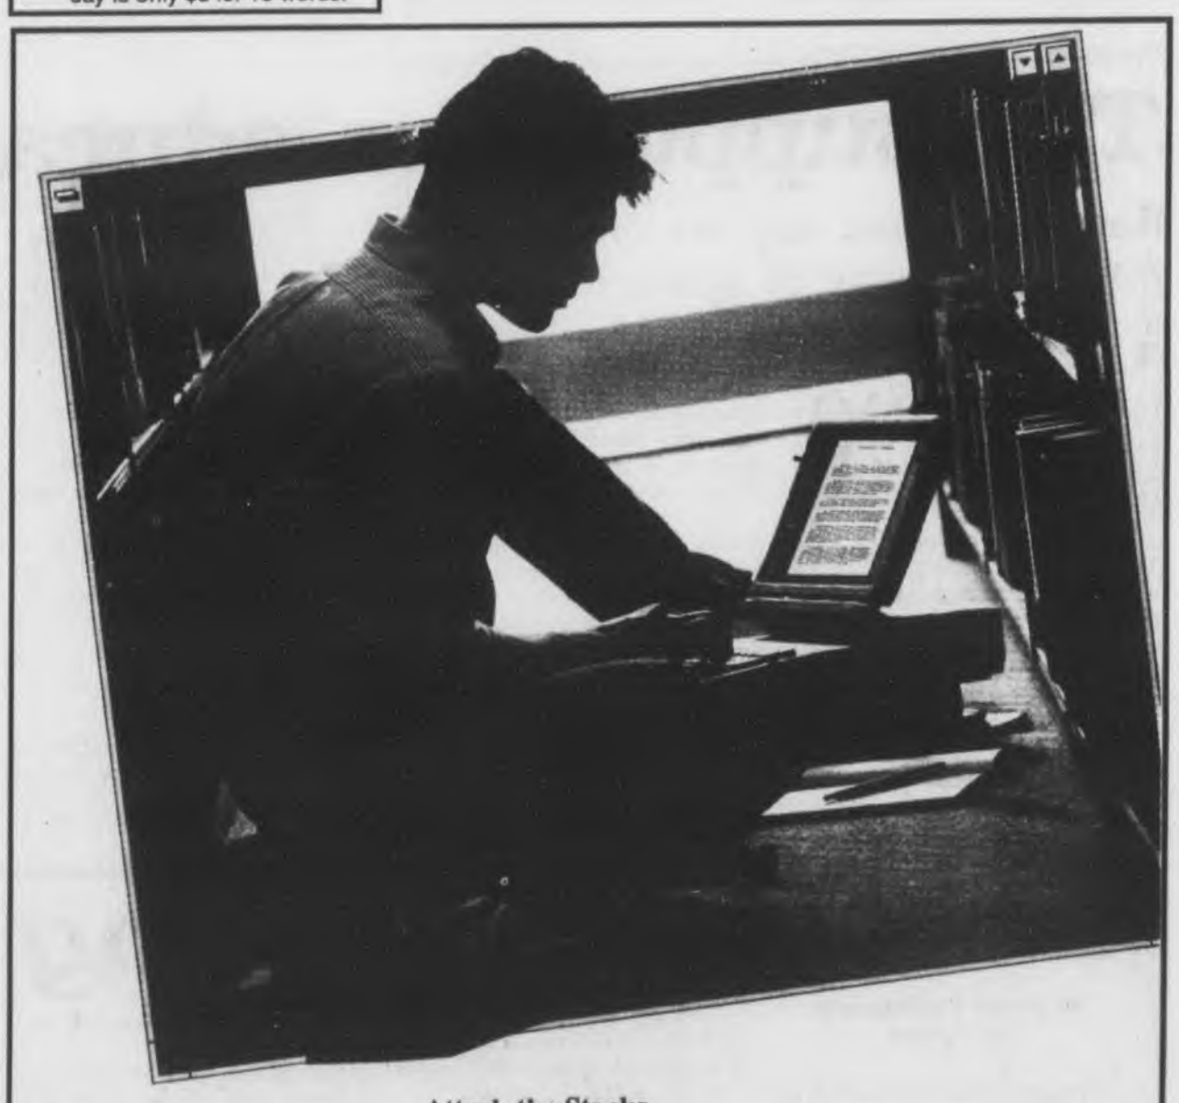
In Friday's Collegian, the Pottawatomie County District No. 5 fire board was incorrectly identified as the Pottawatomie County fire board. In the related photo, Harold Nelson, secretary of the Pottawatomie County District No. 5 fire board, was incorrectly identified as Mike Oakley, volunteer fire chief. The Collegian regrets the errors.

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, mostly cloudy with a 60 percent chance of showers or thunderstorms before noon then partly cloudy. Breezy and cooler. High 65 to 70. North to northwest winds 20 to 30 mph. Tonight and Thursday, clear and cool. Low tonight in the mid-30s. High Thursday in the lower 60s.

HONEY BUNNY — I'd love a COLLEGIAN Personal. One day is only $3 for 15 words.

ALL THE mox·ie OF A START-UP COMPANY WITH ALL THE STABILITY OF A FORTUNE 100.



mox·ie \'mäk-sē\ n (1930) 1: ENERGY, PEP 2: COURAGE, DETERMINATION 3: KNOW-HOW, EXPERTISE

Come see and hear what BASF has to offer. We'll provide you with:
- Information on our innovative Professional Development Program (PDP)
- An in-depth interview by our professional staff
- Literature on our organization

BASF has a long-term commitment to the continuous development of our employees. We designed our Professional Development Program, (PDP), with new graduates like you in mind. Our goal is to develop highly flexible career paths and allow you to choose the area where you'll excel. So, if you have a degree in chemistry, engineering, business or the liberal arts, you owe it to yourself to explore the options at BASF.

For more details, contact your placement office. Or, write directly to Manager, Professional Employment, BASF Corporation, 100 Cherry Hill Road, Parsippany, New Jersey 07054. We are an equal opportunity employer.

BASF

Attack the Stacks.
Bring your Syllabus. Your Stamina.
And your Zenith Data Systems PC.
Available in the computer area, upper level of the K-State Union Bookstore.
Call 532-6583 for more information.

Taking notes is one thing. Pulling off a mental coup, now that takes something extra. You've got to lay the groundwork. Do the legwork. Follow through. Piece of cake, right? It is. Assuming you've got the kicker. A PC from Zenith Data Systems, of course.

K-State Union Bookstore

ZENITH data systems
Groupe Bull

ZENITH DATA SYSTEMS INNOVATES AGAIN™

Graphics simulate Microsoft® Windows™ Version 3.0, a product of Microsoft Corporation.
© 1990 Zenith Data Systems Corporation

New College of Business dean may be selected by late March

By Jerry Sapp
Collegian Reporter

A national search is underway to appoint a new dean to the College of Business Administration.

"We are currently in the nomination and application stage," said David Donnelly, interim dean of the College of Business Administration. "We will receive nominations and applications until Nov. 15, which is the deadline."

Randolph Pohlman, the former dean of the college, stepped down on April 22.

"Randolph Pohlman left to accept new challenges in a corporate world as compared to an educational setting," said Ali Fatemi, head of the department of finance and chairman of the search committee to appoint a new dean. "He became director of employee development at Koch Industries, the second largest privately held industry in the United States."

The unexpected departure of Pohlman did not involve problems with the administration.

"Dean Pohlman left because of a great opportunity," Donnelly said. "Deans have a lot of opportunity for business jobs. There were no problems externally or internally at the University."

Fatemi said the next step in finding a new dean would be to evaluate the applications and nominations after the Nov. 15 deadline. In the first two months of 1991, the University will bring the applicants to Manhattan for interviews.

"The University will probally bring from three to five candidates on campus for interviews," Donnelly said. "The University is limited because of expense. This is not a unique problem to our college, it is pretty standardized at every college."

Fatemi said the College of Business Administration hopes to have appointed a permanent dean by the end of March.

"There are two key players involved in appointing a new dean," Donnelly said. "They are (Provost) James Coffman and Dr. Ali Fatemi."

Coffman was responsible for creating the committee and assigning its chairman in the hunt to appoint a dean.

"The search committee for deanship is comprised of representatives from the department of business," Coffman said. "There are also three people from private businesses and a dean from another college."

Donnelly himself may be up for the dean's position.

"I have been nominated for the position," Donnelly said. "I am definitely considering applying for the position, but I really don't know at this point. I do plan to remain active in the College of Business, whether if it is as dean or not."

As interim dean, Donnelly said he has not faced any extraordinary problems, except for the budget cuts, since taking over the position.

"Things are going really well for the College of Business," Donnelly said. "Since I have stepped in as acting dean, there have been a lot of challenges with budget constraints. I have been at K-State for nine years, and our faculty, curriculum and student body are just as strong as ever.

"I think the faculty and myself feel the University is experiencing a difficult time financially," Donnelly said. "The budget constraints have become a challenge. But, we have accomplished a lot and are still strong and want to continue the thrust."

Donnelly said there have not been any major changes in the college since he took over.

"I think the critical thing is to continue working with the central administration," Donnelly said. "We need to reorganize our efforts toward maintaining high quality programs for not only the College of Business but University-wide."

J. Kyle Wyatt/Staff

Curtis Kastner, professor in animal science, describes sausage casing as the Soviet delegation watches the processing of sausage.

Peace

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Ahearn Field House and go shopping at Wal-Mart.

Filatova said she wasn't sure what she was going to buy at Wal-Mart Tuesday night.

"Something for my grandson. It's very difficult to choose. You have so many things," she said.

Kapustin said he was most impressed by American hospitality. Through an interpreter, he said, "They (Americans) are very friendly toward Soviets. We like the way they treat each other and the environment. The streets are very clean.

"We hope that very soon the Soviet Union will be very much like the United States. The more Soviets come to America, the better we will be economically and psychologically.

"These visits are very important for both of us. We'll get to know each other better," he said.

The 250 delegates arrived in Kansas City Friday. The Manhattan visitors arrived Monday afternoon and were welcomed by President Jon Wefald.

They will leave this morning for an agribusiness farm tour, eat lunch in Topeka and stay in Lawrence the rest of their visit.

Bush threatens veto of new budget plan

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Majority Democrats rammed their deficit-cutting plan a step closer to House passage Tuesday, ignoring President Bush's threat to veto the tax-boosting package that hits the rich especially hard.

The plan was debated in a tensely partisan atmosphere just three weeks from Election Day and four days before the government's authority to spend money lapses. Bush has said that unless he receives a budget plan he likes, he will let the government shut down again on Saturday.

Democrats plunged ahead anyway with a plan that would raise taxes by $149 billion during the next five years. On a test vote, the House voted 231-195 to proceed with the debate.

The Democrats argued that their package of one-time income-tax boosts for all but the poorest Americans, permanently higher rates on the wealthy and cuts in Medicare and agriculture spending was the fairest way to spread the burden of slicing the federal deficit.

"The American people are willing to undergo unpleasant things to get this deficit under control, but they must be confident that no one is singled out, especially the poor and middle-class," said House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo.

Republicans rallied around a deficit-reduction package of their own that relied on deep spending cuts and only $23 billion in additional taxes.

■ See BUDGET, Page 10

City restricts parking lots

Time limit imposed in areas; some spaces stay unlimited

By Dan Scott
Collegian Reporter

A two-hour parking limit will be imposed in parts of two downtown parking lots.

The Manhattan City Commission voted 4-1 that two-thirds of the parking lot located at Third and Houston streets are to have a two-hour parking restriction. The first row south of Houston Street and the three outside rows opposite will have a restriction. This leaves two middle rows unrestricted.

In the lot located on Third and Humboldt streets, the three rows from Third to Fourth street will have a two-hour restriction. The remaining three rows will remain unrestricted.

Presently, both lots are unrestricted, which has presented a problem for downtown merchants.

"People want to pull up and be able to go about their business," said Kim Brecheisen, Manhattan Main Street coordinator. "At this point they aren't able to do this."

The problem is that employees are taking up the parking spaces, leaving few for customers, Brecheisen said.

"By quarter to nine, there are 65 cars parked downtown," Brecheisen said. "The commercial businesses are not even open yet."

Chris Heavey, Manhattan Town Center manager, said that putting restrictions on parking lots would restrict downtown development. Limiting access to unrestricted parking would scare off future businesses that want to locate in downtown Manhattan.

"To me, it's not a severe problem at this point," Heavey said. "Maybe we can come to terms with at least some sort of compromise."

James Pearson, assistant city manager, said a recommendation should not be considered until a comprehensive parking and traffic study could be done. He estimated the cost of this study to be about $25,000.

He did say, however, that now would not be a good time to conduct the study due to the upcoming Christmas shopping season and the transitions taking place downtown.

"We would get a better study in an off-peak time," Pearson said. "Certainly any study would give us better information than what we have now."

Brecheisen said the downtown area was fluctuating and would continue to fluctuate. Therefore, she said no time would be a good time for a study.

All of the commissioners agreed that the price of the study was too steep.

"I don't think it's practical to wait to do a $25,000 study," Commissioner Roger Maughmer said. "We have to do something as opposed to waiting for a study."

The only commissioner to vote against the proposal was Commissioner Gene Klinger. He said the restrictions in the lots should be equally simple, but the restrictions in the Third and Houston lot were too confusing.

In other business, the commission voted 5-0 to approve several new policies concerning how various functions in the Public Housing Authority are accomplished.

One of the proposals was to add a late fee for late rental payments. After the fifth of the month, a $10 late fee will be charged.

The commission also approved adding a $15 fee on all checks that are returned for any reason.

KSU STUDENT SPECIAL!
$1 OFF COUPON
World's Greatest Haircut
Reg. $7 BUT WITH COUPON
ONLY $6
Also on SALE HIS or HER PERM $23
SNIP N' CLIP
MIDWEST'S FAVORITE HAIRCUTTERS
OPEN NIGHTS & SUNDAYS, JUST DROP IN
3035 ANDERSON
V.P. -539-4043
431 POYNTZ - BY K-MART
776-6410
Expires 12-31-90

The Plaza Lyc Bldg
Aggieville, behind EeGee's
A dance hall, flexible enough to meet your individual requirements.
We also provide party DJs.
To reserve The Plaza, or a Lunar Tunes DJ, call Dan Schirer, 776-9140.

Live Tonight:
"The Barnburners"
702 N. 11th 776-0077 Aggieville, USA

Open House • Oct. 18-20
Thurs. & Fri. 6a.m.-9p.m., Sat. 9a.m.-5p.m.
•Free workouts during all three days
•Come try aerobics for free
•Free raquetball and tennis
•Memberships specials—Up to 50% off!
•Register for FREE memberships!
•Try Tai-Chi Thursday at 7:30 p.m.
Serving Manhattan since 1981
1100 Moro
Aggieville
776-1654

Black Families
Via TELENET
October 23 December 11, 1990
College of Human Ecology
Division of Continuing Education
Kansas State University
Enroll Now
Class Starts October 23
Earn 3 Undergraduate or Graduate Credits
This course will offer information about black families' history, lifestyles, and relationships to institutions. It will consider such areas as cultural diversity; myths, stereotypes, and media images; family structure; education; socialization of children; impact of individual, cultural, and institutional fascism; African communities; effects of slavery on black American culture; and implications for professionals working with black families. The instructor is Sakinah N. Salahu-Din.
Full time KSU students may enroll by paying only the $20 material fee.
For Information
For registration information call the Division of Continuing Education at 532-5566.
KSU Kansas State University

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

Student Publications in financial crisis

If you're not on campus early enough, the Collegian box is empty. When you get your 1991 Royal Purple, it will be 32 pages shorter than the 1990 book.

The reason?

Student Publications Inc., the corporation that publishes the Kansas State Collegian, the Royal Purple and the Campus Directory, is in a financial crisis. And, unfortunately, our readers and student journalists are feeling the ill effects.

It isn't the norm for the director of the corporation to address the University via the Collegian's editorial page. However, this isn't a normal financial crisis. Thanks to the newspaper's editorial board, I can use this opportunity to outline the situation, address a question or two and describe the difficult dilemma we're battling.

The Problem.

A. Advertising revenue has declined. Our expenses have increased.

Display advertising revenue in the Collegian has slumped primarily because of a soft retail economy, property reappraisal and increasing competition from other advertising media.

Conversely, the costs of printing, newsprint, student salaries, staff salaries, travel and production supplies have steadily climbed.

The result? Student Publications had a $54,195.26 operating deficit at the end of fiscal year 1990, which ended in July.

B. Our 12-year-old newsroom equipment is on the verge of collapse.

The Mycro-Tek word-processing system, which serves both the Collegian and the Royal Purple, was struck by lightning last year. After costly repairs, the equipment has locked up three times during news production this semester. The equipment could die without warning, discontinuing publication of the Collegian.

The funding needed? Estimates for replacement equipment range from $250,000 to $400,000, and Student Publications has no money for this purchase. All reserves were swallowed by the operating deficit.

The Resolution.

A. The corporation has already made cuts in its services to K-State.

The Collegian press run has been cut 1,000 papers already, and it soon will be cut another 1,000. As you can probably tell, advertisements and news stories have been crammed into smaller newspapers.

Travel to cover off-campus events has been curtailed. Next-day sports coverage is no longer financially feasible. Also cut is travel to national conventions and workshops, where we represent the University and stay atop the trends in collegiate journalism.

Collegian advertising and Campus Directory copy rates have been increased. The Royal Purple has been cut 32 pages just to keep its printing bill in check. The summer Collegian will go from twice- to once-weekly, and spring 1991 Collegian student staff salaries will be cut $800 per month.

Ron Johnson

GUEST COLUMNIST

Despite these cuts, other expenses continue to increase. Student Publications still projects a $31,296 deficit at the end of FY 1991.

B. To offset the projected deficit, Student Publications is asking Student Senate for an emergency infusion of funds this academic year.

Unless the corporation receives an immediate shot in the arm, further cuts will be made in the Collegian and the Royal Purple. The five-day Collegian publishing schedule could be cut to four days. Drop-off points could be cut. The 1991 Royal Purple, already purchased by thousands of students, might be trimmed even further. Student Publications must not run in the red.

The need? Funding to offset the projected $31,296 deficit.

C. Student Publications is also seeking an increase in its student fee allocation.

Full-time students now pay $4.80 per semester for Student Publications. Part-time students now pay $2.40.

After discussions with Student Senate leaders and full debate in the Board of Student Publications, we propose a $10 and $5 rate for academic year 1991-92.

The result? The Collegian and the Royal Purple could eventually restore all services to K-State students, and, at the same time, purchase dependable equipment on which to produce the daily newspaper and yearbook.

The Justification.

A. The Collegian and the Royal Purple are efficient operations.

The student fee allocation goes to three publications. However, if you calculate only the Collegian's share of the allocation, students pay just 3 cents each for a single issue of the Collegian.

On top of that, students get a massive yearbook for just $13, cut rates on advertising and a Campus Directory for just $1.50.

K-State students get a big bang for their publication bucks.

B. The Collegian and Royal Purple consistently rank as some of the top publications of their kind in the nation.

The Collegian was named the nation's best overall full-sized college newspaper in 1989 and in 1990, according to College Newspaper Business and Advertising Managers.

With 24 All-American ratings in 12 years, the Collegian is the only Big Eight paper in the Associated Collegiate Press Hall of Fame.

The Royal Purple has received ACP's prestigious Pacemaker award seven times since 1980. Both the Collegian and the Royal Purple won Pacemakers in 1984, the first time any university had done so. They repeated the feat again in 1987.

C. Even more importantly, student demand for the newspaper and yearbook has never been greater.

Just walk through the Union Stateroom during the morning or the lunch hour and notice how many students have Collegians with them. The newspaper informs. It entertains. It challenges. It provides a forum for diverse opinion. It does all the things a thriving, independent collegiate newspaper should do.

As for the Royal Purple, well, there are no 1990 editions left. Student interest was so strong, the book sold out.

The timing of this crisis is poor. The Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex addition, the Equal Opportunity Fund, the library — each is a crisis meriting the University's full attention.

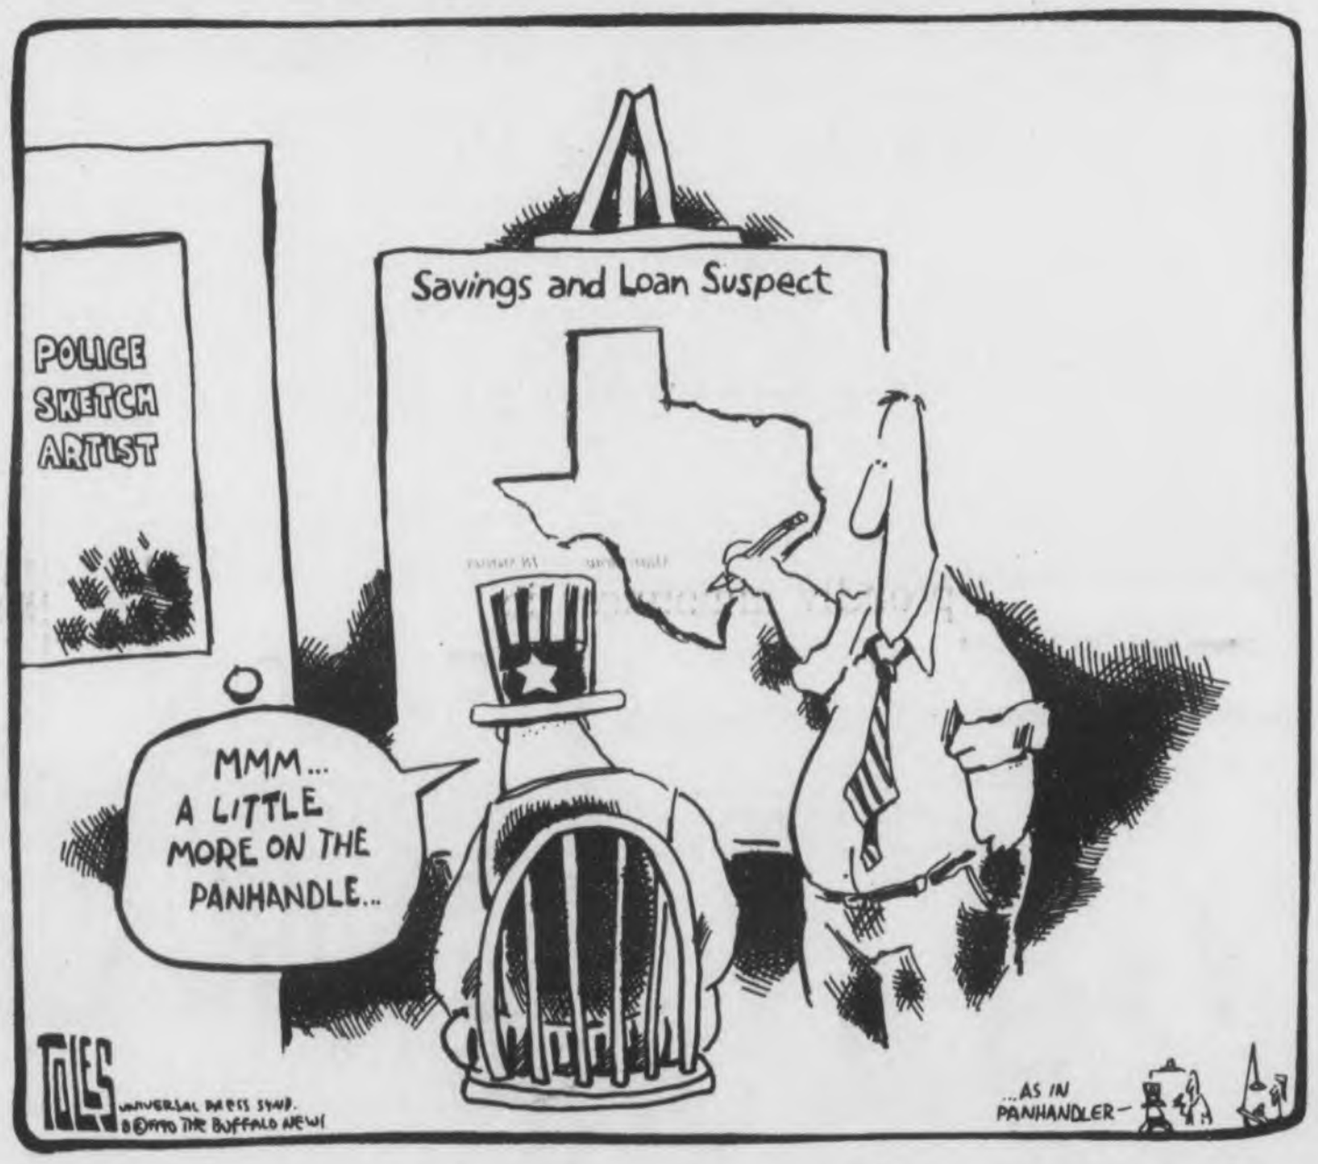
All the same, Collegian and Royal Purple readers need to know our situation. We apologize for any inconvenience caused by our budget or by our damaged equipment. Student senators have already heard our plea, and they're learning more about our operation, our challenges and our commitment to quality.

We welcome your advice. We appreciate your help. We thank you for your continued readership.

EDITORIALS

Proposed statistic bill has mixed blessings

A new law in Congress, if passed, would address a nationwide problem on college campuses. The bill, which would be enacted by 1993, requires universities to report their crime statistics.



This would lift the veil of secrecy on this campus concerning a variety of crimes, from burglaries to assaults and rapes. Some crimes on this campus are made public through information logs at the K-State Police station, others are not. Also, crime statistics are not compiled on a yearly basis.

We have been told that K-State has the second-safest campus in the Big Eight, but recent stories in the Collegian may have caused students to wonder if this is true. However, police, students and faculty have begun to focus on campus safety, which has led to increased lighting. More publicity of crime statistics could raise the awareness more, and lead to even more changes concerning safety.

The bill would also require universities to publicize their graduation rates. Students have a right to know the academic atmosphere they're getting themselves into before they have committed to the schools.

This bill could be a mixed blessing, though. Making the statistics public would place more emphasis on the consumer aspect of choosing a college. Statistics should not wholly determine an individual's decision when choosing one school over another. It goes without saying that larger universities will most likely have higher numbers of crime. Would prospective students be more inclined to pick smaller colleges?

The end result of this bill might be more of a hindrance to schools than a help. While a more open policy toward crime and graduation statistics are commendable by keeping us more informed, caution should be used when interpreting them.

Campout big slumber party

Karin Dell'Antonia

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

So shoot me. I like basketball campout. Not a popular opinion, I know, but hey, you gotta stand up for something somewhere. O.K., maybe it does interfere with our education, wreak havoc on our health and class schedules, make a big mess and probably encourages all sorts of bizarre behaviors. But I like it.

Camping out for basketball tickets is a tradition. It shows support for our athletic department and school spirit. It shows that we really appreciate those tickets they allot for students instead of high-dollar alums. It is also a social event of unheard of magnitude. What other school offers a week-long co-ed slumber party once a year?

Anyway, in the style of David Letterman, I would like to present to you the Top Ten Things to Do at Basketball Campout.

10. Try to throw the football into the windows of passing cars. Safety tip: Avoid the driver's side.

9. Order dinner and watch the delivery man try to find your tent.

8. Auction off leftover pieces of pizza.

7. Pull the pegs out of other people's tents while they're sleeping.

6. Pick up on members of the opposite sex.

5. Play your favorite Poison tape at 3 a.m. on full volume and count the seconds before someone screams at you.

4. Have a "who brought the ugliest sofa" contest.

3. Try to get counted twice at roll call.

2. Have a "who's wearing the ugliest blanket tonight" contest.

1. Bring a clipboard and yell "Roll call!" at 4 a.m.

You can meet all kinds of people at the campout. People who want to party, people who want to sleep, people who want to study and people who want to throw footballs. I walked all over the campsite for a fund-raising campaign, and I met a cross section of people who seemed representative of our student body. I've heard it said that campout discriminates in favor of large groups, and it may be true, but it's fairly easy to make a large group for something like this. If you can't find a whole bunch of people who want basketball tickets at this school, you're not looking. I saw ROTC groups, campus clubs and organizations, greek groups, residence-hall floors — the works.

I do have a problem with this year's campout, though. What makes a lottery any more fair than any other system? What inequity does it eliminate?

The history of the campout is pretty obvious. One year, when tickets went on sale at 8 a.m., people showed up early and got in line, the same way they do for concert or play tickets, tee times, sales at popular stores, etc. The next year, people were even earlier, and someone set up a tent. Things continued to escalate, with people showing up earlier and earlier, until the athletic department had to take over to keep it from getting out of hand. Roll calls ensured that people were actually holding their place in line. It may have been a little silly, but it was still a line. Now I'm not sure what it is. The best description might be a mob.

It seems that this year we are camping out to put our names in a hat. The names of the first 20 groups go in the first hat. The next 20, or however many, presumably go in the next hat. If you lose your place, you either go down to the end or into the bottom hat, depending on how hard you beg. So you could lurk around Ahearn Field House for days, tent in hand, really making an effort, and end up with the 20th position even if you were first when the flag went up. Or you could wander over unorganized and still be number 21 or something. But it isn't a true lottery because the last person can't end up first, so it is still important to get there early.

What does this solve? I've heard a lot of complaints about the campout. It wasn't fixed so smaller groups could participate. It wasn't fixed so it wouldn't be cold. It didn't stop the campout from encouraging people to skip class. It didn't make it shorter, and it doesn't change the fact that they may run out of general admission tickets before it is your turn to buy. You still have to camp longer if you couldn't afford a football ticket, and you're still out of luck if you just plain didn't have time to camp.

If anything, the system is less fair now than it was before. Since when does the first person in line at a new restaurant have to wait until they seat the two hundred people behind him? What good is this? How does it make the system more fair?

It takes care of inequities caused by students who know when the flag goes up and tell their friends. That's all. I'm not real impressed.

Well, everything else aside, we're lucky to get tickets at all. If the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics simply sold them all to the highest bidder (donor, whatever), then even the students who can afford to join ICAT might not be able to buy tickets.

Besides, campout is fun. No one could possibly expect you to study, you can't really watch television, and you're surrounded by a lot of people that you have at least one thing in common with. All you can possibly do is relax and enjoy.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... David Frese
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel,
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koel
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little, Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff, Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $30
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $54
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $60

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

Graduates briefed on loan repayment

Student loan default an increasing problem; K-State rate lower than most other schools

By Tammy Rose
Collegian Reporter

For many students receiving financial aid is the one and only ticket for going to college.

For the fall of 1990, $5 to $6 million was distributed through Stafford Loans to K-State students, said Cleta Raine, student loan coordinator.

Despite an increasing national default rate on student loans, Larry Viterna, director of student financial assistance, said there is not a big problem with K-State students repaying loans. K-State has a 4.6 percent default rate, which Viterna said is good compared to other schools.

That default rate is based on students who finished school in 1986 and stopped repaying loans or ignored the repayment notices. In 1988, they were declared in default of their loans and steps were taken to recover the amount owed.

Recovery steps include the garnishing of wages, bad credit reference, ineligibility for future school loans and the withholding of income tax returns.

To prevent defaults, an exit interview program was set up for graduating students to inform them of their responsibilities in repaying their loans and the consequences that could occur if they default on their loans.

"We try to help them realize, through the interview, their responsibilities of having a loan," Raine said.

The interview also informs students of options that are available to them if they decide to further their education at another university or enlist in the military. An extended grace period can also be awarded to a student who has great difficulty in finding a job.

"The purpose of the exit interview is to allow the students to see all the options that are available to him or her," Viterna said.

Besides default rates, Viterna said one of the office's main problems is students who turn their applications for financial assistance in late. This results in students not receiving their checks in time for registration.

For the fall semester about 90 percent of the students had their financial packets turned in on time, Viterna said. Between the first of August and the end of September, about 1,100 students turned in their financial packets.

"Students need to respond to anything they receive in the mail or from our office in a prompt manner to help ensure financial aid," Raine said.

Those turning in packets late normally receive a deferred fee option. There are three different types of deferment codes that a student may be assigned, Viterna said.

The 1000 code is used when some outside factor has caused the check to be late, such as mailing problems. The 2000 code is used for late applications, and the student is assessed a late fee. The 3000 code is for students who did not have the money when registration opened. They are assessed a late fee and must pay the school back by the 20th day of classes or their schedule is dropped.

Viterna said problems have arisen due to this type of deferment program. To rectify the problems, the student may have to pay the school back by the 10th day of classes, according to a committee consisting of representatives from the financial aid and controller's offices, vice-president of institutional advancement and vice-president of administration and finance.

■ See LOANS, Page 10

International Credit Union Day
Oct. 18, 1990
Open House 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

KSU Federal Credit Union members are invited to stop by the credit union office (24A Anderson Hall) for complimentary coffee and cookies.

The Alpha Eta Chapter of Alpha Delta Pi

Main House at 518 Sunset

proudly announces its

75TH Anniversary Celebration 1915-1990

October 19-21

In many conflict situations, adults are uncomfortable and often times use passive comments or don't know communication skills that help them make a point. Assertive communication reviews the use of words, actions and a combination of both to help you positively obtain your goals.

ASSERTIVE COMMUNICATION

Join Us For A
NOON LUNCHEON
on Assertive Communication
Given by
Linda Barker, RN
Friday, October 26
Noon to 1 p.m.

Due to hospital construction the seminar will be held at The St. Thomas More Catholic Church.

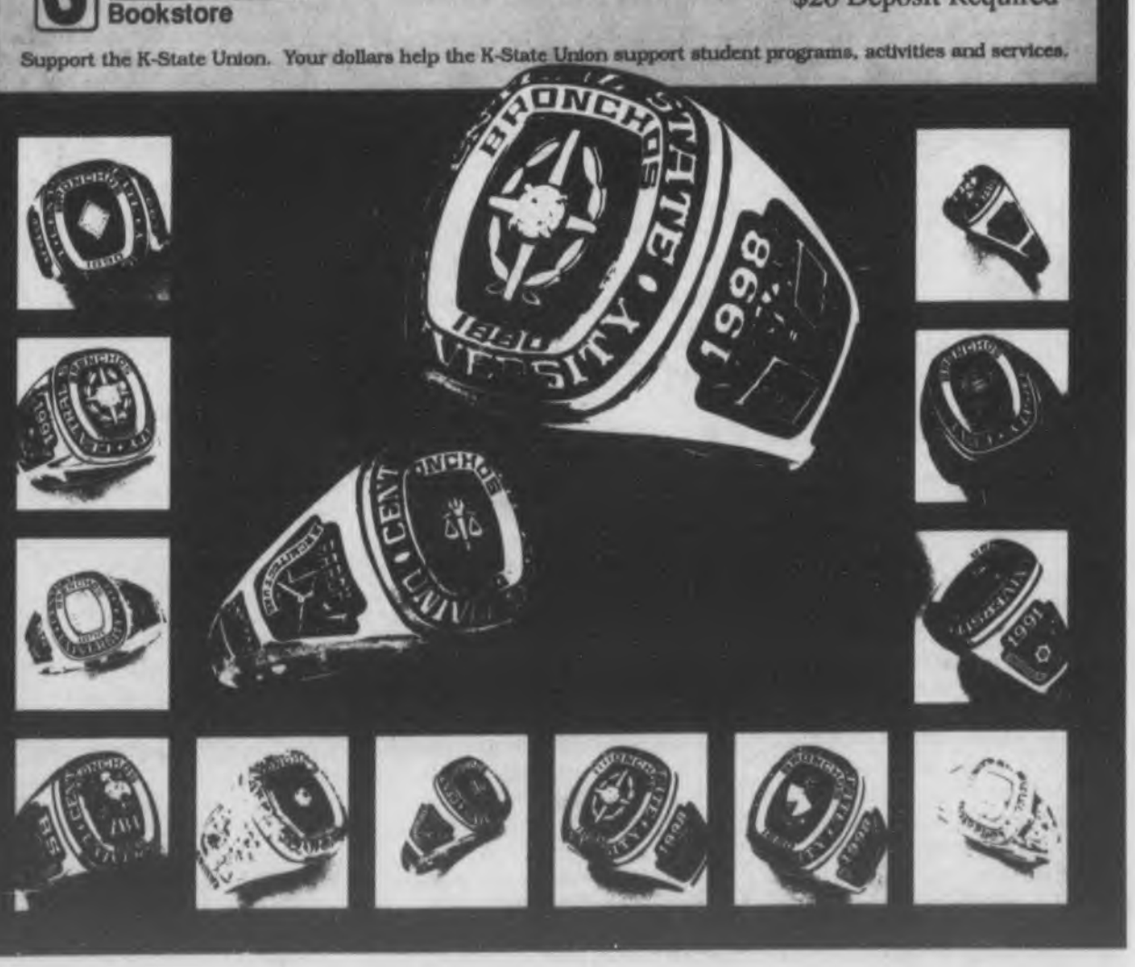
Pre-registration is required.
Call Susan Noblett, RN, MSN at 776-2855

the saint mary hospital
Member CSJ Health System of Wichita
1823 College Ave, Manhattan, KS 66502

TOP TEN REASONS
FOR BEING A DESIGNATED DRIVER

10. "New Kids on the Block" poster torn-up in your honor.
9. Tastes great. Less filling.
8. It's better to be a designated driver than a designated "hitter."
7. FREE POP!
6. Designated drivers get to pick the radio station.
5. In the morning you'll remember where you parked the car.
4. Karma, man.
3. If you get stopped for speeding, you'll just get a speeding ticket.
2. You may use it as "experience" on your application for becoming a pizza delivery specialist.
1. You can help save lives.

NCAAW 1990
ALCOHOL: IS IT A GAMBLE?



ARTCARVED
COLLEGE JEWELRY

Save Up To $100

at the K-State Union Bookstore
October 17-19, 1990 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

K-State Union Bookstore
$20 Deposit Required

Support the K-State Union. Your dollars help the K-State Union support student programs, activities and services.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS

Bowl scouts to watch 'Cats at Mizzou

By David Svoboda
Sports Editor

Less than two years after finishing the 1988 season at 0-11, the K-State football team is being considered for a berth in a 1990 postseason bowl game.

Representatives of the Independence Bowl have made preliminary contacts with K-State officials, according to a release issued Tuesday at Coach Bill Snyder's weekly press conference.

The lone previous bowl game in the history of the University was the 1982 Independence Bowl, a 14-3 loss to Wisconsin. The game was played then, and is today, in Shreveport, La.

All of the hoopla created by the media about the release caught Snyder off guard, and he responded first with humor, and then in a more serious tone.

"I think they're probably the same ones (scouts) that will attend our ballgame immediately after the Austin Peay—Stephen F. Austin game," Snyder said, jokingly, of the two Independence Bowl scouts who will attend Saturday's game at Missouri. "I don't know why they're here ... probably to see the University of Missouri, I think. Missouri, perhaps, has some appeal now.

"If they came to see us, we'd be honored, obviously. It's a little early, though."

Evidently it's not too early for the Independence Bowl scouts. K-State, 4-2 overall and 1-1 in the Big Eight, will be facing a Missouri team that is just 2-4 and 0-2. And despite a win over then-ranked Arizona State and a controversial loss to Colorado, a 2-4 team likely isn't the one being looked at.

Snyder, after seemingly making light of the situation at first, then really appeared flabbergasted when a television sports anchor asked him how many wins it would take for the Wildcats to make a bowl appearance.

"Why are we talking about this? What kind of a question is that? Hell, I don't know," Snyder said laughing. "I couldn't tell you. I don't know what would get Kansas State in a bowl.

"It really is not in our best interest to think about that at this particular time. The answer to the question is, probably, seven would give you an opportunity. I've been to bowl games (as an assistant at Iowa) where we won six ballgames, and I've stayed home when we won seven. It's hard to say. I can't answer for bowl people. They're strange sometimes."

Those "strange" men will be watching Snyder's troops Saturday in Columbia, Mo. And Snyder said his players will know it.

"They'll be aware that somebody's there," he said. "And the fact that, yes, if they win a few more ballgames, somebody may take a look at them.

"That puts your program in a position to project forward two weeks from now ... and we're having a hard time getting ready for Tuesday afternoon. We've got to take it all one at a time ... If we're thinking about bowl games, we're not thinking about the University of Missouri, and that would create some real problems for us, I would think."

K-State players, young and old, responded with excitement, and the older players cautioned about not blowing the whole idea out of proportion.

"That's definitely exciting," said freshman fullback Rod Schiller. "I'm sure we're going to get up for that. That's just another reason to go out there and play hard."

Sophomore defensive tackle Tony Williams was excited as well.

"Looking at it this early in the season, you don't want to count your chickens," he said. "But personally, when I was being recruited by big schools, and I told them I was being considered by K-State, they said, 'they've only been to one bowl game ever.' So this would be great.

"It was a dream of mine when I came here to play in a bowl game. And if this season keeps going, it won't be a dream anymore. It will be a reality."

> "It was a dream of mine when I came here to play in a bowl game. And if this season keeps going, it won't be a dream anymore. It will be a reality. —Tony Williams, defensive tackle

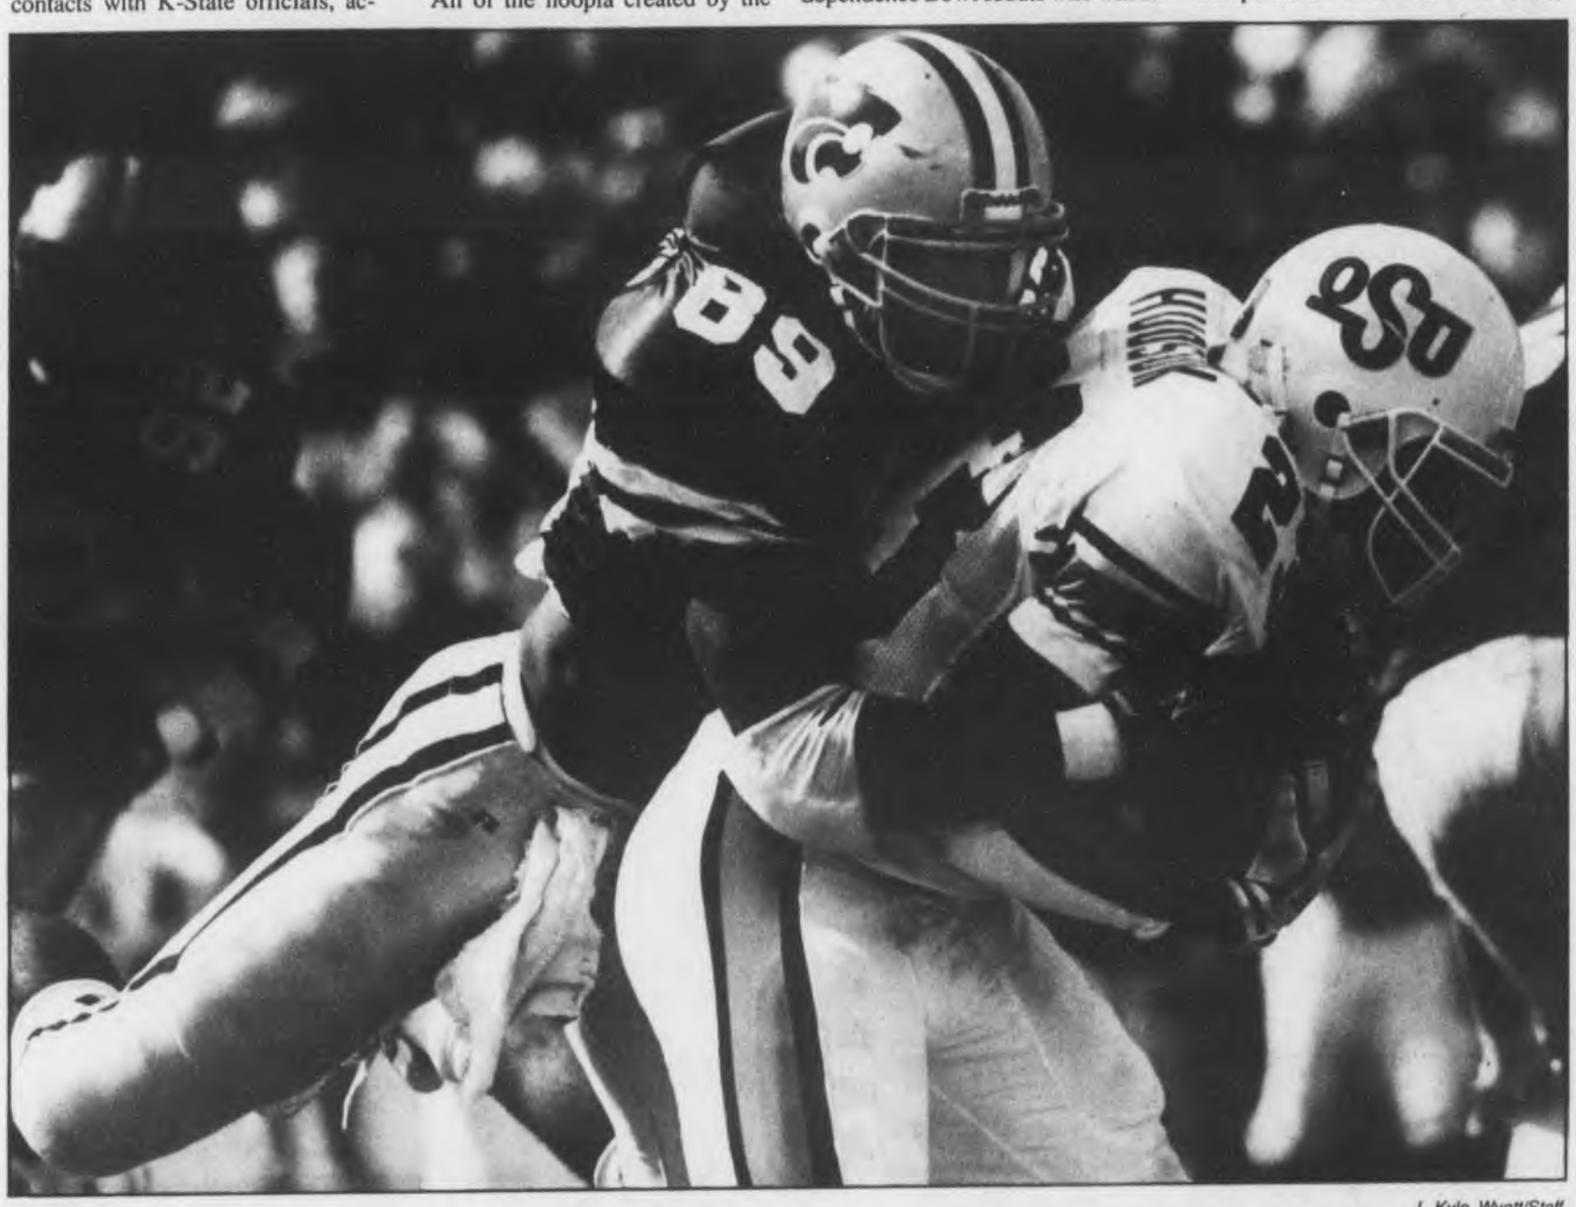
All-Big Eight receiver Michael Smith, a junior Wildcat captain, said perspective is important.

"I think it's neat, and I'm glad they're coming, but you've got to keep in perspective what we've done," he said. "We've got to be thinking about MU — and MU only."

Smith said he'll be quick to remind his teammates of that.



"They elected me as a team captain, and I feel it's my duty to tell the guys we won't go to a bowl game if we worry about a lot of other things," he said.

Senior quarterback Carl Straw, who, like Smith, was on the field for 10 games in the nightmare of the 1988 season, said the news should be taken in stride.

"It's great, but we've got to win a lot more ballgames and prove ourselves," he said. "You can't start thinking about dreams."

Yet, dreaming is what Williams has done already.

Two scouts will be watching closely Saturday to see if his dreams may become a reality earlier than he expected.

J. Kyle Wyatt/Staff

Wildcats' defensive end Elijah Alexander holds Oklahoma State tailback Gerald Hudson to a gain of four yards during the second quarter of last Saturday's game in the KSU Stadium. Alexander had a total of nine tackles during the game as the 'Cats defeated the Cowboys 23-17.

FAN FORUM

You're needed

Sports Editor,

Saturday was a great day for our football program and our university. Coach Bill Snyder's team turned things around when it would have been easy to accept defeat.

When the 'Cats had their backs to the wall, they met the challenge head on and made the big play like a championship team should. Our team no longer waits for things to go wrong, it takes the initiative to make things happen. Congratulations to our Wildcats on a job well done.

Congratulations are also in order for the fans who were there Saturday. From start to finish, the crowd was loud, supportive and excited.

With what our team has done so far this year, the 'Cats have established themselves as a contender. The next three weeks will determine a lot about how much has changed here at K-State. Our games against Missouri, Kansas and Iowa State are all games we figure to be very close and will determine who finishes in the upper division of the Big Eight.

If the Wildcats win all three, they will have locked up at least fourth place (our highest finish since 1982) and have an excellent shot at a bowl game.

Accomplishing this, however, will take your support. ICAT is taking three 15-passenger vans to the Missouri game, KU is only 1½ hours away, and Iowa State comes to Manhattan for Homecoming.

We need a large K-State crowd at all three of these games, mainly because our team will need all the support it can get in these vital contests. Another reason is that late-season attendance and the number of fans willing to follow a team are big factors for bowl selection committees.

So, as you can see, a successful program is a team effort: the coaches, the players and YOU.

Please keep up the support — our team needs you.

Doug Spencer
junior in marketing,
ICAT advisory board member

'Huskers beat spikers in 3 games

By The Collegian Staff

The K-State volleyball team battled No. 1 Nebraska to the wire in the first game, then went quietly in the final two to drop the contest in consecutive games 15-13, 15-3, 15-2 Tuesday night in Lincoln, Neb.

The Wildcats, now 6-9 overall and 0-4 in the Big Eight, led in the opening game by scores of 7-2, 10-7 and 13-11 before Nebraska ran off the final four points of the game to take an early lead.

The comeback effectively took the wind out of K-State's sails.

"(Late in the game) Nebraska elevated its level of play," K-State coach Scott Nelson said. "We didn't lose the first game, Nebraska took it from us. And we had trouble executing the fundamentals in the second game."

The combination of having dropped an emotional first game and playing in front of 3,164 screaming Nebraska fans made the climb in Games 2 and 3 exceedingly difficult.

"Because of the trouble executing, we had to play to Nebraska's strengths," Nelson said. "And we stopped executing fundamentally in the transition from defense to offense."

Nelson said Nebraska, now 17-2 and 4-0, is very tough.

"This is, by far, the best Nebraska team they've fielded," Nelson said. "They have so many weapons."

One of those weapons, Cris Hall, was extremely potent against K-State Tuesday night. The Big Eight leader in kills per contest, Hall rifled off 11 against the 'Cats.

K-State, which hit .000 for the match — with 25 kills and 25 errors — was led by Julie James, who had seven kills.

Kathy Saxton had five kills, Rhonda Hughes five kills and seven digs, and Valery Roberts two aces to round out the Wildcat individual leaders.

K-State will host Colorado at 7:30 Friday night in Ahearn Field House.

Reds rout A's 7-0 in World Series opener

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — The Cincinnati Reds shocked Oakland and maybe even themselves Tuesday night, routing the Athletics 7-0 in Game 1 of the World Series.

It was Jose Rijo who was awesome, not Dave Stewart.

Rijo, a former Athletics prospect, pitched seven shutout innings and ended Oakland's 10-game winning streak in the postseason, while Stewart was wild from the start and lasted only four innings.

It was Eric Davis who got the big hit, not Jose Canseco, Mark McGwire or the rest of Oakland's bruisers.

Davis, Cincinnati's slumping star who has been bothered by a sore left shoulder and aching wrists and ankles, pierced the A's aura right away with a two-run homer in the first inning.

It was Billy Hatcher who provided the spark, not Rickey Henderson. Hatcher went 3-for-3 with two doubles and a walk, and led an aggressive attack on the bases.

Most of all, it was the underdog Reds, not the top-dog Athletics. By the fourth inning, Cincinnati led 4-0 — matching the total number of runs the A's gave up in sweeping Boston in the American League playoffs — and by the time Rob Dibble relieved Rijo to start the eighth, it was over.

For the Athletics, it was not a devastating defeat — not like the Kirk Gibson game in the 1988 World Series, from which they never recovered. But it did show that baseball's winningest team could not win them all.

Oakland will try to start a one-game winning streak Wednesday night in Game 2 when Bob Welch faces Danny Jackson. Stewart, a 22-game winner this season, and Welch, who won 27, made consecutive starts 29 times this year and only twice lost both.

Weekend planning absent

Campout, University Parents' Weekend not matched set

Dan Wicker
SPORTS REPORTER

The excitement and hoopla surrounding the annual campout for basketball season tickets is nearing an end.

But there was something present this year that should not have coincided with the campout.

For some reason, Parents' Weekend and the campout fell on the same weekend.

I see an inherent conflict and a lack of organizational planning. Either the University or the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee needed to change its weekend plans in order to avoid making K-State look bad to visiting parents.

Tim Lindemuth, associate director of news services, was quoted as saying, "We try to create a social atmosphere for a mini-family reunion. We want it to be a fun time for the students and their parents."

It would have been impossible for the parents visiting the K-State campus to enjoy all the activities slated for the weekend if their son or daughter had to remain in a tent waiting for basketball season tickets the entire weekend.

The ticket sales committee did give all the campers a seven-hour break from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday to attend the K-State-Oklahoma State football game and to see their parents.

Even though this break was probably appreciated by many parents, the University took all its planning time to build a full, three-day schedule that was useless to parents dealing with only a seven-hour time period to visit their son or daughter.

One of the most publicized events was a concert by comedian Red Skelton that did not take place until 8 p.m. Saturday. Sunday morning, there was a Parents' Weekend Golf Tournament and brunch at Stagg Hill Golf Course. Campers were unable to attend either of these events.

"We didn't do this to screw everybody because it was Parents' Weekend. That wasn't the idea at all," said Bill Nelson, chairman of the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee. "Ideally, we wanted to sell the tickets before Midnight Madness, but there were two football games the weekends before. There are serious financial problems when we sell the basketball tickets the same week we are selling football tickets."

Along with the financial responsibilities that swarm the ticket office after a K-State football game, the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee wanted to have ticket sales completed before Midnight Madness and before the weather got too cold.

However, four years ago the campout and ticket sales did not begin until the first week in November, Nelson said. Last year, Midnight Madness was Oct. 15, two days after ticket sales had been completed. This year, the ticket sales will not be complete until three days after Midnight Madness.

The last statement alone shows that the committee could not reach its goal of having the ticket sales completed before Midnight Madness, so why not delay the campout until the week after Parents' Weekend? There are no home football game conflicts, and if previous campouts did not begin until November, students today could easily manage camping out through the last week of October.

I am accusing only the ticket sales committee, because the University is also largely at fault for the conflict. It would just be easier for two large events with noticeable effects on K-State athletics and the University to be scheduled without conflict.

A lack of conflict would make the University and its students look better than we did last weekend.

SPORTS BRIEFLY

Ticket buyers overcharged

Students who have purchased their basketball season tickets have been accidently overcharged $5.

There are only 13 home games this season, instead of the 14 that were on last season's schedule. To rectify the problem, the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics will either be issuing a $5 rebate or a ticket to one of the three holiday home games. Those games include Akron on Nov. 24, the University of California-Santa Barbara on Dec. 22 or the Nebraska game on Jan. 5.

Athletic Director Steve Miller said the athletic department apologized for any inconvenience.

Roberts gets Big 8 honor

K-State senior Valery Roberts has been named the Big Eight volleyball player-of-the-week for the week ending Oct. 15.

The Buhler native posted a .328 hitting percentage, 15 kills, 38 attacks, 12 digs, two service aces and six blocks last week to lead the Wildcats.

Bieniemy may start at KU

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Colorado tailback Eric Bieniemy is nursing a sore shoulder this week, but team officials say he can take a hit and probably will start against Kansas on Saturday.

Coach Bill McCartney said Monday he thinks Bieniemy, who rushed for 131 yards and a touchdown against Iowa State on Saturday, injured his shoulder on a 50-yard run in the third quarter. He scored three players later from the 1 to give the Buffaloes a 21-12 lead.

Student shares gospel

Summer spent traveling throughout Hong Kong for Christ

By Rob Batchman
Collegian Reporter

While most students were tanning or returning to their hometowns for the summer, one K-State student was on the other side of the world spreading Christianity.

Dale Bushyhead, a senior in elementary education, had a unique summer vacation. He traveled to Honk Kong as a missionary.

Bushyhead spent 3½ weeks in Hong Kong with Student Venture, the high school ministry of Campus Crusade for Christ.

"Student Venture is a movement of high school students who want to learn about and develop their own relationship with God," he said. "They also learn how to communicate with other students about this relationship."

Bushyhead went with a group of 53 American high school students to Hong Kong where they met and talked with Chinese students. Sponsors from different churches financed the trip.

"We met the Chinese students at shopping malls and at places like McDonald's," he said. "We also had Student Venture meetings in which we advertised an opportunity for the Chinese students to meet American students and find out what a personal relationship with God is all about."

The students were given an opportunity to respond to what had been said at the meetings, Bushyhead said.

"We would pass out comment cards and then ask them if they would like some information. The rest of the week we would meet one-on-one with the students who had questions," he said.

When he wasn't meeting with students, Bushyhead said, he spent his time going to different tourist areas in Hong Kong to meet students.

"We would ask the students about themselves and their culture, and then we would see if they would be interested in hearing about America and about Christianity," he said.

Bushyhead said if the students were interested, he would introduce them to a bilingual, four-point outline of the New Testament explaining how to become a Christian.

The group shared the outline with about 1,300 students, Bushyhead said.

"Of the 1,300 students, 340 of them indicated that they wanted to receive Christ," he said. "We then had the opportunity to get some of them involved in churches and to teach them more about the Christian life."

Bushyhead said the American students spent a week training in Los Angeles, Calif., before leaving the country.

"We learned how to respect other cultures, what the country would be like and also how to handle the culture shock," he said.

Bushyhead hadn't originally planned to go to Hong Kong during the summer.

"My original destination was the Philippines, but on July 2, the day before we were scheduled to leave the U.S., the communists in the Philippines threatened all missionaries in that country," he said. "Since our group was mostly minors, we decided it would be best if we went somewhere else."

The group rerouted its trip to Hong Kong because of the shortage of time that the country may be open to the missionaries.

"In 1997, Hong Kong will become part of China. In communist countries, it is illegal to enter as a missionary, so Hong Kong became a prime location. In seven years, the opportunity may not be there," he said.

Mark Sanders, staff member of Student Venture, said the missions trip is a cultural exchange between the students.

"The Chinese students learn about our culture, and we tell them about our faith in Jesus Christ. You learn to be able to adapt to a different culture and develop your faith," he said.

Bushyhead said, if possible, he would like to return to Hong Kong next summer.

"I would like to go back, but I don't know if I'll have the opportunity or not," Bushyhead said. "The students we talked to were so excited about us coming that they wanted to start Student Venture in their country. I'd like to go back and help them get it going."

Professor officials competition for horse endurance in Sweden

By Danette King
Collegian Reporter

Horses, in one sense, have carried a K-State professor from Nebraska to Sweden in search of service, recreation and education.

Dr. Jerry Gillespie, professor and head of the Department of Clinical Sciences in the College of Veterinary Medicine, was an official at the International Equine Endurance Competition held in Stockholm, Sweden in July.

This year marked the first time all international equine events were in one location, and it also marked the first time Gillespie had officiated internationally.

"There are very few officials in the endurance world," he said.

Gillespie, who has officiated numerous national and North American events, said his duties as an official include making sure all rules are followed and that complaints are handled properly.

While in Sweden, Gillespie was impressed with the value Swedes place on their horses.

"Their culture has kept the horse as a very important part of the culture," Gillespie said.

He said most villages and cities in Sweden have their own riding stables and trails.

Stockholm alone was able to accommodate more than 900 horses that were involved in the games.

Gillespie said he didn't know if any city in the United States could accommodate the games as well as Stockholm. He also said he questioned America's level of international competition.

Gillespie accounts the poor showing of U.S. competitors in the games to not having a broad enough base of people who are becoming good riders.

"As a culture we're really not preserving trails and encouraging people to be involved with horses," Gillespie said.

He also said it costs more to be involved with horses in the United States than in Europe.

"It does seem to me that in order to compete at the international level, with a few exceptions, people have to be rather wealthy in this country to do it," Gillespie said.

In Europe a good horse costs about $10,000, compared to a $500,000 to $1 million price tag for the same horse in the United States, Gillespie said. The price escalates for Americans because the horses are usually imported.

Gillespie first became interested in athletic, performance horses in 1966, when he performed research in the area as a faculty member at the University of California at Davis.

"Research has shown that the horse is a far superior athlete," Gillespie said. "It may very well be the premier athlete. After all, a good horse is a good horse is a good horse."

Gillespie became an official for the long endurance races, which average 50 to 150 miles, before he started competing in the races himself. Later, he became involved in the Ride and Tie competition, where two riders and one horse travel cross country, with one person riding and one person running.

In 1980, Gillespie worked with the American Endurance Riding

■ See HORSES, Page 10

Morgan urges investigation

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Scott Morgan said Tuesday he has urged U.S. Education Secretary Lauro Cavazos to expand a federal investigation into student loan defaults to include incumbent Democratic Rep. Jim Slattery.

"If the incumbent, as he says, truly did nothing wrong, then he should welcome the opportunity for a thorough investigation," said Morgan, the Republican candidate for the 2nd District congressional seat.

Morgan said the present federal investigation into what he calls the growing student loan scandal should be expanded to determine whether Slattery used undue influence on behalf of the Bank of Horton. The bank is located about 45 miles northeast of Topeka.

Morgan said Slattery arranged an agreement in 1988 with the Education Department so the Bank of Horton could continue to make student loans, even though such loans exceeded 50 percent of the bank's total portfolio, a violation of federal regulations.

The FBI and U.S. Department of Education are investigating whether the Student Loan Marketing Association in Lawrence bought worthless loans to inflate assets and boost the stock price of the company, commonly called Sallie Mae.

"It is important that the people of Kansas be given assurances that no one is above the law," Morgan said in his letter to Cavazos, copies of which he distributed to reporters during a Statehouse news conference.

"The growing student loan scandal is shaking people's confidence in a very important program, and a thorough investigation will go a long way to providing badly needed reassurance."

Nancy Malir, Slattery's press secretary, responded: "The only allegations of wrongdoing in this whole affair come from our opponent, who's desperate for media coverage."

The Bank of Horton was once the second largest originator of student loans in the nation.

You've got to spend money to make money. It pays to advertise in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

HIGH NOON

is the deadline for
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
ClassADS
Kedzie Hall 103 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
532-6555

OCTOBER FIESTA!
Tacoburgers 2 for $1.30
(reg. $1 each)
Burrito Dinners $2.77
(reg. $3.60)
Good Through 10-20-90
Sun.-Thurs. 11 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri.-Sat. 11 a.m.-Midnight
TACO HUT
Overlooking Westloop
2809 Claflin
539-2091

BUSHWACKERS
Comedy Invasion
Tonight at 9 p.m.
Dan Ballard
along w/Mitch Micheau
18 to enter, 21 to drink
Before 5 p.m. 539-4321
Call for Reservations 531 N. Manhattan
After 5 p.m. 539-9727

Ballroom Dance Classes
starting Sunday, Oct. 21
2-3 p.m.
Call Sharon Washington Dance Studio
537-2549
425 Houston

EST. 1981
The Ranch SALOON
Celebrating Our Ninth Anniversary
HWY 24 EAST
MANHATTAN, KS.
Thursday, Oct. 18th is KTPK Country 107 Night.
The first 100 people at 9 p.m. will receive a FREE KTPK—Ranch Saloon t-shirt.
Also the Diamond Rio band will play from 9 p.m. til 1 a.m.
Thursdays Cover Charge is only $2.
Friday 19th, 5-7 p.m. FREE BBQ ribs and live music by Jennie Dieball. 9 p.m.-1:30 a.m. Diamond Rio band.
Saturday 20th, 9 p.m.-1:30 a.m. Diamond Rio band.
Also lots of FREE drawings will be held.
Friday & Saturday night cover is $2 members—$3 guests.
Sunday 21st, 1 p.m., 50 gallons of FREE Mulligan Stew.
Plus there will be several acoustic musicians.
A big bluegrass jam 1 p.m.
Come out, join the fun and help us celebrate our ninth anniversary.

Some people don't think children get abused in our area.

Little Melissa would disagree.

It is the unspeakable. The ultimate trauma. Impossible to think about. But impossible not to.

It is child abuse. Physical. Sexual. Emotional. And some people would rather think it doesn't happen in our area. But it does. In fact, one in four children will be violated or abused during their childhood.

Which is why we need your help

Member agencies of the United Way of Riley County use your United Way gift to help abused children. It's money well spent. Doing the most good. Right here.

Giving to United Way means your money helps agencies that undergo strict evaluations of their programs, staff, and facility. And that means they are better prepared to give children like little Melissa the help they really need.

When you get your United Way pledge card this year, choose to help Melissa. Let your gift show you care.

United Way of Riley County
"I'll be there... Because we care"

K-State Campus Campaign Oct. 2-19. Use Payroll deduction.
(Sponsored by Circle K)

Passion of film makes romance worth watching

COLLEGIAN Report Card
"A ROOM WITH A VIEW"
A+

By Rebecca Sack
Collegian Reviewer

An answer to one eternal question mark makes "A Room with a View" an especially satisfying film.

Union Program Council Kaleidoscope Films will present this romance at 7 tonight and Thursday in Forum Hall and at 3:30 p.m. Thursday and 7 p.m. Friday in the Little Theatre. Admission is $1.75.

Based on a novel by E.M. Forester, the film transports the viewer to Victorian England, a time of elegance and reserve. Lucy Honeychurch, played by Helena Bonham Carter, is on holiday in Italy, chaperoned by her Aunt Charlotte, played by Maggie Smith. They meet up with some other English people in the same hotel and travel the countryside together.

Lucy falls in love with George Emerson, played by Julian Sands. The Italian scenery and culture only add to their contained passion, which finally explodes. Lucy and Charlotte then return to England to avoid any controversy over George's improper behavior.

Fate and love bring the lovers back together in England, even though Lucy is now engaged to Cecil Vyse, played by Daniel Day Lewis. It is exciting to watch as the characters overcome their fears and inhibitions, not to mention society's mores, to finally get what they want — a room with a view.

The film is about passion, society and freedom. It is a revelation about living with the hope that less caution and more brevity will bring about a realization of true passion and love.

The scenery is so spectacular that I would recommend this film even if the plot and the point weren't so strong. Since the film is set in the late 1800s, the costumes are worth a look too.

The story describes a truly great romance because the lovers overcome great obstacles before they can finally be together. The love depicted is realistic — when they do come together, we know them so well that we are there with them. It is a relief to have a happy ending, a hopeful and optimistic outlook. "A Room with a View" is great entertainment.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
CLASS ADS

Kedzie 103 — 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $3.00, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.25, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.50, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

CAVALIER CLUB
$1 Longnecks
$2 Pitchers
Wednesday
Open 4 p.m.-2 a.m.
776-7726 1122 Moro

1 Announcements

Hardee's DELIVERS 537-2526

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

ARE YOUR health insurance premiums continually increasing? Health conditions keeping you from getting adequate coverage? Call for more information. Billie Gallaher. 539-5676.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

Fraternities, sororities, campus organizations, highly motivated individuals— Travel free plus earn up to $3000+ selling SPRING BREAK trips to: Cancun-South Padre Island-Orlando/ Daytona Beach: 1-800-258-9191.

TONIGHT! 25¢ KAMIS NO COVER ONLY AT BAYSTREET

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial, Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

2 Apartments—Furnished

AVAILABLE JAN. 1. Private bedrooms for three neat and tidy females sharing very nice, large four-bedroom, two-bath home with KSU student owner. 539-1288.

RENT FREE country living in exchange for occasional assistance to wheelchair bound landlady. Some lifting. 1-494-8201.

SHARE LARGE home with empty-nested executive mom. Private bedroom. 537-4907 for appointment.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

AVAILABLE NOW. One-bedroom near campus, $325, year lease, no pets, laundry facilities, central air. Call for appointment 776-3804.

(Continued on page 9)

"I LIKE THE STATE IN U" HOMECOMING
Competition Forms Due: Oct. 19
Ambassador Applications Due: Oct. 17
Blue Key National Honor Fraternity
Available and due in Anderson 122
For more information contact:
Shannan Seely 539-4651

BRYAN TRAVEL COLLEGES "Your Passport To A Career"
Travel Agent • Corporate Travel Mgmt. • Tour Operator
Convention Planner • Hotel & Airline Industry • Car Rental Agent
• Cruise-Line Reservationists • Travel Promotions
24 Credit Hours • Travel Geography • Correspondence Classes
Computer Training • Financial Assistance • Placement Assistance
CALL TOLL FREE 1-800-255-3507
1527 Fairlawn Topeka, KS 66604

Fed Up . . .
with health insurance premiums that continually increase? If so, I have a policy for you.
If you're interested call . . .
Billie Gallaher
539-5676.
Physicians Mutual Insurance Company
PMA-467

Arts and Sciences Student of the Semester
Applications available in Dean's office, Eisenhower Hall
Applications are due Oct. 26 by 4 p.m.

1% FALSETTO'S PIZZA
At Your Convenience We Again DELIVER
539-3830
Also: Dine in & Carryout
2-10 in. Pizzas, 2 Pepsi, $8.00
2-12 in. Pizzas, 2 Pepsi, 2 Toppings, $9.99
1127 Moro Offer expires 10-30-90

1990 Sept.-Oct. Special
2 weeks left!
FREE INFORMALS OR THANK YOU NOTES to match the quantity of Masterpiece Wedding Invitations Ordered MASTERPIECE STUDIOS
Be a Registered Bride at 5th & Poyntz 776-9067 Downtown
Campbell's
Mon-Sat. 9-5:30 Thurs 9-8
China Crystal Flatware

GET THE EDGE
and get your Royal Purple portrait taken.
These groups are scheduled
Oct. 17-26
◆ OFF CAMPUS
◆ ANYONE WHO MISSED SCHEDULED TIME
Sitting Fee: $4 (If you paid for it at registration, you must bring your Royal Purple receipt.)
Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.
Location: K-State Union, Room 209
For an appointment or if you have questions
CALL 532-7808
1991 ROYAL PURPLE

LEARN A NEW WAY TO ENJOY COUNTRY MUSIC!!!
Country/Western Dance Classes
Fraternal Order of Eagles Building
203 E. 10th, Junction City, KS
(directly North of new Police Building)
LIGHTED AND FENCED PARKING LOT
BIG BALLROOM FLOOR
LOTS OF ROOM TO LEARN
COUPLES AND SINGLES WELCOME
Every Wednesday Evening
7:00 p.m. - 7:30 p.m. Registration
Class 7:30 p.m. - 9:30 p.m.
Emphasis is on couples dancing WITH the latest turns and flairs (two-step, strolls, country waltz, Kick-Start 10 Step and many more) AND line dancing (Cowboy Boogie, Tush Push, The Austin, etc.)
(No "swing or square dancing")
Each class - $3.00 per person.

You're Invited To Our
1990 DOLL TEA PARTY
DATE: Saturday, October 20, 1990
TIME: 10-5:30
FOR: Our Doll Friends
GIVEN BY: Madame Alexander, Lizzie High, Attic Babies, House of Global Art, Gotz, Bradley, Ginny and Lexington Hall Dolls.
PLACE: COUNTRY GIFT SHOP
2206 Ft. Riley Blvd Manhattan, KS 539-3854 Mon.-Sat 10-5:30 Sun 1-5
"Now two locations"
COMMENTS: There will be specials on selected dolls, including free buttons, catalogs & doll stands with your doll purchase. Bring in this ad to register for a free Madame Alexander Doll. We encourage you to become a member of our Doll Club.

CHARLIE'S NEIGHBORHOOD BAR Established 1983
I KNOW, IT'S ONLY ROCK N ROLL
BUT I LIKE IT.
$DOLLAR PITCHER$
TONITE!
COMING FRIDAY!!
AZ ONE
REGGAE
• ONE LOVE • ONE AIM • ONE DESTINY •

VOTE TODAY for your favorite GREEK PLAYBOY
Pictures and voting jars on display in the Union Tues.-Thurs. 9:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m.
• Pennies are negative
• Paper and silver are positive
AXΩ presents
GREEK PLAYBOY '90
sponsored by:
Eastwaters 94.5 FM University Photography Brentwood
proceeds go to Cystic Fibrosis

(Continued from page 8)

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

ADULT MALE needed, non-smoker, rent $187.50 and utilities. Call (913)537-2939 nights after 4p.m.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

TWO-BEDROOM APARTMENT. $330 per month, utilities paid except electricity. Call 539-2017 evenings.

5 Automobile for Sale

1970 PONTIAC Bonneville 455, four-door, hard-top, good tires, runs well, 86,000 miles, $600. Call 539-1845.

1973 VW SuperBeetle, new engine, new carpet. 776-7938 please leave message.

1978 280Z parts car. $400. 537-1539.

1978 JEEP CJ5 307 cubic inch, soft top. 1-348-5893.

1979 CHEVY Caprice Classic, runs excellent, air conditioning, AM/FM stereo, power windows, locks, brakes, steering. $1,200. 539-3390.

1979 PONTIAC Sunbird for sale, low mileage, good school car, blue, $800. 532-5452.

1982 BEAUTIFUL black Toyota Supra, 53,000 miles, loaded, good condition. Call Jill, 539-5192.

FOR SALE— 1978 Trans Am, new high performance 455, air conditioning, electric window and locks, stereo pull-out. $2,800 or offer. 539-6765.

FOR SALE— 1984 Escort GT, five-speed, cruise control, great condition, $2,900 or offer. 539-6765.

6 Child Care

CHILD CARE in our home. Needed immediately loving care for an adorable one-year-old, approximately four hours per day (mornings), live in Jardine Terrace. Good pay and lunch provided. Call weekends or afternoon weekdays. 776-7718.

7 Computers

12" COLOR video monitor. Great for VCR or computer. $120 or best offer. 537-6026.

HAVING PROBLEMS with your computer or printer? Need to upgrade your systems memory, monitor or just a larger hard drive? Need a second party book on a certain program? ABACUS Computer and Supply, 539-7007, 1111 Waters.

IBM PC Jr.— Color monitor, remote keyboard, expanded memory, software. Asking $425. Robert, 776-5526.

8 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such 'employment opportunity' with reasonable caution.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

LOOKING
FOR AN EXCITING CAREER?
JOIN ANNIE'S SANTA FE MEXICAN RESTAURANT AND CANTINA
Opening October 22nd in Topeka. Waiters & waitresses, prep cooks, line cooks, dish people, bus people, cocktail waitresses, hostesses, & bartenders. Full & part time positions available. Applications will be taken daily between 8:00 a.m. & 7:00 p.m. for any of the positions listed above.
ANNIE'S SANTA FE
Westridge Mall
1801 S. W. Wanamaker Road
Topeka, Kansas
271-1060

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ATTENTION: STUDENTS! Earn $15/ hour working in your spare time on campus. Flexible hours, 1-800-688-4733.

DRIVERS NEEDED full or part time. Good M.V.R. Must be 25 or older. 539-2284.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EVENING AND Daytime office and telephone sales help needed. Pleasant working conditions, hourly wage and excellent bonuses. Call 537-6163, 9a.m.—4p.m.

GARDEN CENTER sales clerk: Mature person with chemical and fertilizer knowledge, some horticulture and greenhouse experience— great, but not necessary. 30-40 hours includes weekends. Must work through Christmas and spring break. $4/ hour. Send resume to Collegian, Box 6.

HOME TYPISTS, PC users needed. $35,000 potential. Details. 1-805-687-6000, Ext. B-9701.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. Federal, CIA, U.S. Customs, D.E.A., etc. Now hiring. Listings. 1(805)687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. CIA, U.S. Customs, DEA, etc. Now hiring. Call 1-805-687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

NOW HIRING cooks, busboys and dishwashers. Part-time help. Call for application and interview. Call 539-2651.

OVERSEAS JOBS. $900— $2,000/ month. Summer, year-round. All countries. All fields. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KSo2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

TWO NANNIES needed by Jan. 1 for two families in Brewster N.Y. Must drive, swim. Non-smoker preferred. One year commitment. Excellent living conditions plus salaries. (914)279-5963.

9 Food Specials

Bobby J's
WEDNESDAYS: STEAK NIGHT
$3.99 Filet Mignon
$4.99 K.C. Strip
$5.49 T-Bone
with baked potato and salad
539-1571

Every Wednesday
FREE
PIE ALA MODE
with any dinner purchase
Wednesdays 5-8:30 p.m.
The CHEF Cafe
111 S. 4th

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

COUCH AND matching chair. Like new. Call 539-1452.

THREE-PIECE FULL-SIZE bedroom set, bookcase headboard. 539-1586. $300 or offer.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: GREEN notebook, left in Kedzie Hall 10/12/90. Claim in Kedzie 103.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

OWN THIS 12' wide, two-bedroom, $135 monthly for 24 months. Large selection. Countryside. 539-2325.

19 Music/ Musicians

YAMAHA STUDENT model trumpet. Recently cleaned. $120 or best offer. 537-6026.

21 Personals

We require a form of picture ID (KSU or driver's license or other) when placing a personal.

BODE: THANXS for "stringing" me easy. I think we'll get along super! Your "sis," Amy.

CRAIG: I wasn't going to tell you this, but I've been watching you and you're doing so well. You had such a good internship and take such good care of your body. That's what Our son should be like, too. Contact me via the personals by Thursday.

DEAREST RANDOLF— Here's to... Kite's, comedy nite, the Bristol, love, Chicago, lavalier, Mother's, Miami, Riverwalk, Nasau, "the window," road trips, St. Louis, Oklahoma, water skiing, tennis, golf, "Funny About Love." The past year has been the best. I Love You. Dawn.

DU MIKE— Thanks for such a wonderful weekend. I had a blast! Love, Michelle.

FUNNY FACE— Sorry! I tried to get this in yesterday but I missed the deadline! Can you believe it? Anyway! Happy 20th a little late! Je t'aime! —Heather HAPPY 21st, Suzy. Happy birthday to my baby sis who's not a baby anymore. Love, Lori, Spoof and Jenny.

JST: THANXS for being the best of friends! Spring break trip? I love ya! —A.

PIKES— HOMECOMING is approaching and we are out to have a blast. To make the week a success we have to kick some A--. Let's work and party hard so They Can't Touch us. Love, Tri Sigma.

RAGS: HOPE your week is going great! How about our prak trip? Smile! Luv, Amy.

SIGMA KAPPAS: Get excited— heart sister revealing is tonight! Sigma K, One Heart, One Way! Sigma Love, Michele.

THERE IS a circulation librarian named Cherie, Who is normally bright and merry, But an overdue fine really makes her eyes shine, With a look that is truly quite scary.

TO BLONDE girl in Aggieville laundromat Monday afternoon studying biology. If interested in guy in Engg. call 776-6727.

TODD— YOU know what? You're pretty cool for a guy!

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

AKC REGISTERED Rotwielers, shots and wormed. After 6p.m. 776-9319.

FOR SALE— Registered Persian kittens. Shaded silver, camco and cream. AKC Sheltie puppies. 1-632-3201.

TROPICAL FISH AND AQUARIUMS
PETS 'N STUFF
1105 Waters 539-9494
OPEN Thur. til 8 p.m.

23 Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

Traveler's Limousine Service
Call 539-2284

SUFFERING FROM abortion? Write: HeartsRestored, Box 94, Grinnell, Kansas 67738. Confidential response will follow.

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— More than just typing— we create the resume with you, so it reflects your best. Then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience in University Career Center.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851. Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING, CALL Leslie 539-1235.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100 or 1-456-9642, Wamego.

WORDPROCESSING/ TYPING— Data sheets, reports, theses, dissertations, letters, resumes, applications, etc. Mrs. Burden, 539-1204.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE CHRISTIANS looking for roommate. $100 per month plus one-fourth utilities. $150 deposit. Call 776-8873.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted: $142.50/ month plus utilities. Park Place Apartments. Call 539-8391 after 7p.m.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: $142.50/ month. One-half utilities. Rest of October rent free. Park Place Apartments. 539-8391.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Female, three-bedroom house. 537-3653.

TWO OR one roommate wanted. $160 or $230 rent plus utilities. 1212 Bluemont, 776-0797.

26 Stereo Equipment

FOR SALE: Home subwoofer, 200 watts, built-in amp, crossover, volume, protector, $400. 539-3732.

FOR SALE: Sony Discman with every accessory for home and car. Paid $225, asking $140. 539-2963.

27 Sports/Recreation Equipment

SAILBOARD— 10'4" transition board with rig, 5.6m2 sail, centerboard, excellent condition, $450. 776-6073 after 5p.m.

28 Sublease

ONE-BEDROOM WILDCAT Inn apartment, one block from campus, seven-month sublease. 776-3182.

30 Travel

SKI
JANUARY LAST CHANCE! SPRING BREAK
STEAMBOAT from $177
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
BRECKENRIDGE from $184
JANUARY 2-9 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
VAIL/BEAVER CREEK from $247
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
9th ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS
Sunchase Ski & Beach Breaks
TOLL FREE INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911

SKI
Winter Park
Nov. 21-25 $199
Breckenridge
Jan. 2-6 $229
Winter Park
Jan. 7-13 $249
Steamboat
Jan. 7-13 $259
All packages include lodging, transportation, and lift tickets.
Classic Travel & Tours
1212 Moro • 537-7546

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

NEW, FULL length men's black leather trench coat, $400 or best offer. 539-1182.

NINTENDO— SYSTEM plus three games. Brand new with all boxes, instructions. $125. 776-1638. Leave message.

33 Tutor

VERY QUALIFIED tutor for Spanish. Affordable rates. Call Leticia 539-6832 after 9p.m.

34 Horses

HORSEBACK RIDING, hourly rates, group rates. Call for appointment. Boarding, training also. 1-238-2681.

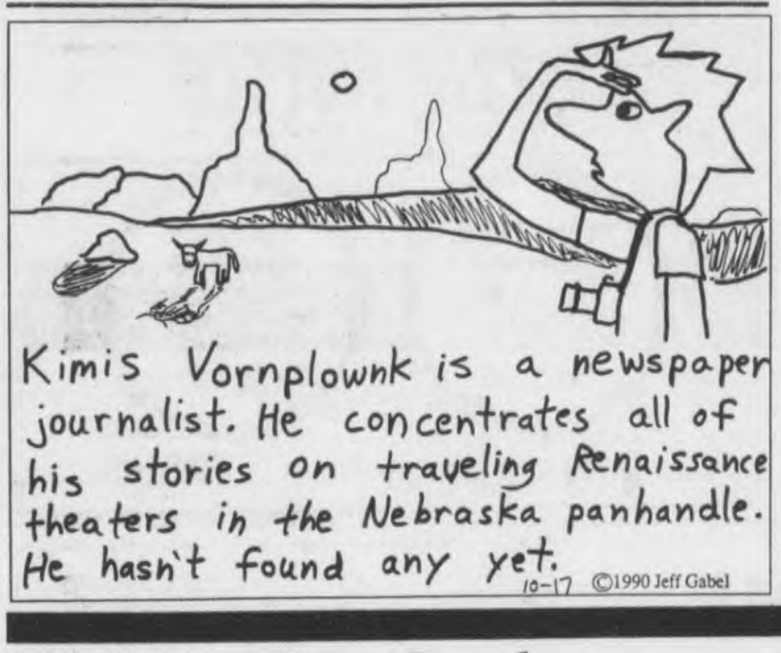
35 NCAAW

BLUFFING— MINOR in possession (MIP) is a Class C misdemeanor and can result in a fine up to $600. Alcohol: Is it a gamble? NCAAW 1990.

INSIDE STRAIGHT— Respect the rights of others to choose not to drink. NCAAW 1990.

JOKER— DRIVING requires a combination of thought and motor skills, and a concern for the safety of everyone on the road. Safe driving requires an observant eye, a steady hand, and a clear head. Drinking and driving: Is it worth the gamble? NCAAW 1990.

NCAAW— National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week 1990. Alcohol: Is it a gamble? Funding in part provided by City of Manhattan and KSU Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service.



TWO OF a kind— for a second DUI conviction, 90 days to one year in jail and a fine of $500 to $1,000. Drinking and driving: Is it worth the gamble? NCAAW 1990.

36 Nanny

EXPERIENCED NANNY looking for family, full-time. For information call 776-9649, Mandy.

Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

By Bob Berry

Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind

Jim's Journal

By Jim

Calvin and Hobbes

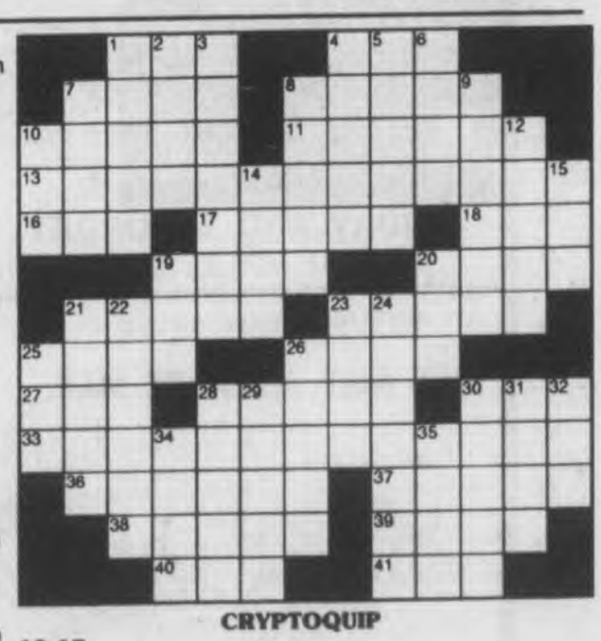
By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Monk's title
4 Mauna —
7 Hollywood's Baldwin
8 Portrays in words
10 Texas landmark
11 Pungent bulbs
13 Type of whip
16 Dangerous curve
17 They lead to Rome
18 Moslem saint
19 Road or spin follower
20 Memory jogger
21 Revoke a legacy
23 Cognizant
25 Expanded
26 Mine opening
27 " — My Children"
28 Actress Hayward
30 Cool — cucumber
33 State of bliss
36 Legislative body
37 Barnyard sound
38 Flood barriers
39 Land mass
40 German article
41 Cushion

DOWN
1 London apartments
2 San —, Italy
3 Buttercup
4 Ocean vessel
5 Neglects
6 Wild ox
7 Woe is me!
8 Solitary one
9 SWAT team member
10 Kingtopper
12 Thin mud
14 News paragraph
15 Theater sign
19 Stitch
20 It might say "Welcome"
21 City in France
22 Searched diligently
23 Biblical name
24 Kind of apple
25 Nitrous oxide
26 Ruins or remains
28 Plumber's tool
29 Complete
30 Keep away from
31 Word in a Doris Day hit
32 Picnic pest
34 Arthurian lady
35 Handle

Solution time: 22 mins.

S	C	A	M		A	C	E		B	A	R	I
P	U	M	A		G	E	L		A	P	O	D
A	S	O	R		L	E	F	T	S	I	D	E
S	P	R	I	T	E	S		U	K	A	S	E
			N	A	T		P	R	E
S	A	D	A	T		L	E	F	T	I	S	T
O	D	E			B	E	T			N	E	A
L	E	F	T	O	U	T		E	S	K	E	R
			I	A	N		E	L	K
G	R	A	N	T		A	D	M	I	R	E	S
L	E	F	T	H	A	N	D		R	U	S	E
I	N	E	E		P	O	I		T	S	A	R
B	I	R	D		O	N	E		S	H	U	T

Yesterday's answer 10-17

CRYPTOQUIP

10-17

Q N E E B I M U W N V I D A U I D N V - P I M Q N E P W M E V B A V Q O A N E V X B R N Y B R N P X V .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: INCOMPETENT RAILROAD ENGINEER IS BEING FIRED BECAUSE HIS BOSS COULDN'T KEEP TRACK OF HIM.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Q equals W

'Heights' marked by complexity

COLLEGIAN
Report Card
"PACIFIC HEIGHTS"
C

By Stacy Lentz
Collegian Reviewer

Director John Schlesinger brings us "Pacific Heights," an action-packed suspense thriller with a plot that may prove to be too complex for many audiences.

The plot begins simply enough. A couple invests its savings into the restoration of a Victorian home. In order to finance the renovation, they must rent out to the mysterious Carter Hayes. After a month, Hayes refuses to pay his rent, has the locks changed and behaves in a bizarre manner.

I hope you're still following this, because by this point the audience isn't. The plot grows even more complex as the couple takes the elusive Hayes to court. Some of the mystery surrounding Hayes begins to unravel — we discover that he is a professional scam artist. It becomes apparent that Hayes is a very dangerous man who is contriving a vicious plot to drive the couple from their home.

After losing the court case, the couple decides to turn into vigilantes and take the matter into their own hands.

Schlesinger pulls out all the stops in an attempt to recreate his own toned-down version of "Fatal Attraction" with an Alfred Hitchcock twist.

"Pacific Heights" breaks all the rules. It casts an actor who always plays the good guy as the villain and leaves the audience absolutely clueless as to the motive for his barbaric harassment of the young couple.

The film uses some new and unusual cinematography to create tension. The wild camera movement adds to the building suspense Schlesinger has created. Unfortunately, there is so much camera panning that in certain scenes, you find yourself becoming dizzy. It does, however, leave the audience anxiously waiting for something to pop out of the screen — even though this rarely occurs.

Pacific Heights is definitely different from most current-release movies. It offers the audience suspense and a new plot scenario, but the plot may be too complex and poorly executed to keep most movie audiences' attention.

Budget

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

Democrats blocked the GOP measure from coming to a floor vote, arguing it fell short of the savings the budget requires. But Republicans used the occasion to paint Democrats as the party that loves to raise taxes.

As the debate raged on Capitol Hill, Bush said from the campaign trail that he would stand firm until lawmakers complete a deficit-cutting measure he favors.

"It's a Democratic tax plan," Bush said at a political rally in Glen Ellyn, Ill. "If it reaches my desk, the one that comes out of the House of Representatives, I will veto it because it raises the income taxes of the working men and women in this country, and I am not going to do that."

Loans

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5

This committee will meet to finalize a plan and present it to the University.

Though the rest of the University is planning for reorganization, Viterna said he is not too concerned about its effects on the Office of Student Financial Assistance.

"I hope it does not have an effect on us. We are scaled down about as far as we can go," Viterna said.

A study conducted by the office showed that the office either has too few employees or too much paperwork. The study concluded that each employee would need to work 90 hours per week for the workload to be accomplished.

"We're not understaffed, but our staff is working to full capacity," Viterna said.

Horses

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7

Conference to try to make endurance riding an Olympic sport.

"I learned we first needed to make the sport an international one," Gillespie said.

"I view it as a form of service and also a form of recreation and defintely an education to me," Gillespie said.

Michael Lorenz, dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine, said he was unaware of anyone else involved in judging the performance of horses, at least not at the level of Gillespie.

Lorenz said the college doesn't mind having faculty involved with events that take away from time at the college, as long as it fits in with the overall mission of the college.

Hunam Chinese Restaurant

THE KANSAS STATE CHAPTER OF PHI ALPHA THETA CONGRATULATES ITS NEW MEMBERS!

1990 PHI ALPHA THETA INITIATES

Charles Coulter
Sharon Kay Voglesberg
Veronica Anne Wilson
Shari Sievers
Kelly J. Arnberger
Sherri L. Mann
H. Kent Sylvis
Bryan Burke Edwardson
Denise D. Luty
Matthew L. Pettit
Allison R. Caton
Marc Bennett
Jonathan Silva
Robert J. Sullivan
Philip K. Long
Noor R. Ampssler
Jada Kohlmeier
Kristy L. Parker
Kimberly A. Jones
Leela F. Jarvis
David R. Wilson
Todd L. Huck

MCCAIN

As You Like It

Actors from the London Stage
Saturday, October 27, 8 p.m.
Explore the cruel reality of life at court and the idyllic beauty of life in the Forest of Arden. See five top-notch British players who've performed with such troupes as the Royal Shakespeare Company, the Royal National Theatre, and the BBC Shakespeare Series play multiple roles in this splendid comedy of love. Let your imagination set the stage as the actors bring to life Shakespeare's majestic and moving words.

"The Elizabethans would have understood and appreciated such imaginative stage work. How lucky for us to be able to experience it." (The Boston Herald)

General Public: $12
Senior Citizens: $10
Students/Children: $6

McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays and from 3 p.m. day of performance.

McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

Treat Yourself To A "Triple Whammy"!!

I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY.
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Tower
Aggieville

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3 - 10 in. Pizzas
1 - Topping
4 - Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2 - 10 in. Pizzas
2 - Toppings
2 - Cokes
$8.00
Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

MEDICINE...
The Trick Could Be On You.

Over the counter drugs can play tricks too. Aspirin can cause excessive bleeding due to thinning of the blood, can cause or worsen an ulcer, and can actually be the cause of death in an asthmatic patient. The big difference in whether aspirin is safe or not, lies in the knowledge of WHO can take it, and HOW to take it.

THE GREAT MANHATTAN SWEEP OUT.

Don't let the trick be on you...On October 31, sweep out your old medicine and bring it to The Saint Mary Hospital between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. for proper disposal.

the saint mary hospital
Member CSJ Health System, Wichita
1823 College Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502 • (913) 776-3322

KMKF 101.7 KMAN 1350 am

UPC Arts Lectures Movies Outdoors Performances Travel

ALL ABOARD WITH UPC

...a masterpiece...
Blue Velvet
R
DEG

David Lynch's critically-acclaimed mystery intertwines the lives of four individuals; a naive college student; a cabaret singer with a dark secret; a detective's daughter who embodies innocence and a psychotic killer fueled by his own sexual fantasies. Rated R. David Lynch is the producer of the current popular television series "Twin Peaks."

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, MIDNIGHT, FORUM HALL. $1.75 with KSU ID.

A HEARTWARMING ADVENTURE
...filled with fun and music!
Walt Disney's Bambi
TECHNICOLOR

SATURDAY AND SUNDAY, 2 p.m., Forum Hall. $1.50.
Captivating generations of moviegoers, Bambi may well be the most adorable and beloved animated character of all time. Adults and children can't help but fall in love with Bambi and his friends, Thumper and Flower.

WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY 7 p.m. Forum Hall, THURSDAY 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre & FRIDAY 7 p.m. Little Theatre. $1.75 with KSU ID.
Set partly in picturesque turn-of-the-century Florence and partly in the gorgeous English countryside, this film is a delicious story of Lucy Honeychurch, a young Englishwomen who travels to Italy in 1907, falls in love and is eventually liberated from the mores and conventions of Victorian England.

"ELEGANTLY FUNNY
...'A Room With a View' is like a holiday out of time. Splendidly acted...Quite an achievement."
–Vincent Canby, NEW YORK TIMES

NOVEMBER 17-18
THIS AINT JEOPARDY MAN.

COLLEGE BOWL II
KANSAS STATE UNION LITTLE THEATRE
k-state union upc issues & ideas

SIGN-UP TODAY THRU OCTOBER 19 in the UPC Office.
Sign-up will be in the UPC Office on the 3rd Floor of the Union on the above dates.
Registration requires $20 entry fee to cover the participants T-shirts.

k-state union upc arts

FRIDAY and SATURDAY 7 & 9:30 p.m. & SUNDAY 7 p.m., Forum Hall. $1.75 with KSU ID.

Academy Award-winner Warren Beatty produces, directs and stars in this multi-million dollar new blockbuster adventure based on Chester Gould's classic American comic strip and featuring Madonna, Al Pacino and Dustin Hoffman in one of the largest all-star casts ever assembled. Using the original comic strips as a guideline, the film's stylish production design and ingenious character make-up effects vividly re-create the world of legendary policy detective Dick Tracy, the bravest, smartest and most popular comic-strip crime fighter ever and the only man tough enough to take on gangster boss Big Boy Caprice and his band of menacing mobsters. The legacy of Dick Tracy, his wrist-radio and his crafty criminal opponents lives on!

k-state union upc feature films

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Thursday, October 18, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 39

Santa Fe line abandonment 'painful'

Railroad company undergoing difficult financial situation

By Susan Boos
Collegian Reporter

Railroad abandonment is nothing new in Kansas.

The first abandonment was in 1870. Railroads peaked in 1917 and have been declining since.

But the magnitude of the current proposals for abandonment is startling.

Kansas has 1,158 miles of low-density lines targeted for abandonment, said Oscar Albrecht, rail-planning manager for the Bureau of Rail Affairs. It's the biggest abandonment ever.

> "It's really a very painful process for us. We don't want to pull up all of our rail. It's very sad that there are people that this really will hurt, and that's very hard on us.
>
> —Cathy Westphal
> Santa Fe spokeswoman

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway has the largest portion of line being considered for abandonment.

Santa Fe's plan to abandon 719 miles of low-density railroad lines in Kansas and 1,900 miles nationwide is part of an effort to cut costs and overhead.

Cathy Westphal, Santa Fe spokeswoman, said that the company lost money in 1989 and that things aren't looking much better so far this year.

"We didn't have a real good start of the year," Westphal said. "We lost money in the first two quarters of this year due to good competition. We have to cut back costs."

Many factors have contributed to Santa Fe's financial status.

In the late 1980s, Santa Fe planned to merge with Southern Pacific, but the Interstate Commerce Commission denied their merger.

John Scheirman, chief of the Bureau of Rail Affairs, said, "For about three years, Santa Fe management really counted on the merger coming through. There were some real takeover attempts. Santa Fe restructured and redesigned the company to make themselves less vulnerable."

Westphal said the company did research after the merger was denied and realized they would have to cut all extraneous costs and streamline operations.

Then in May 1989, Santa Fe lost a suit for restraint of trade.

"We lost a judgment for $750 million, but it was later settled at $350 million," Westphal said.

The railroads lobbied against a pipeline intended to carry ground coal, commonly called coal slurry, which is usually shipped by rail.

The pipeline company sued because of antitrust violations, and the other railroad companies involved settled out of court, but not Santa Fe.

"We had a very small involvement, and we thought we could win, but we couldn't," Westphal said. "This judgment just added to our list of expenses."

Now, as economists say the country is entering a recession, Santa Fe is experiencing a decline.

"The railroad is the first to feel a recession, and we are feeling a cutback in the economy already," Westphal said.

Not only is Santa Fe cutting back its lines, but it is also making cuts in the number of employees.

"In December 1989, we had 18,225 employees," Westphal said. "We currently have 16,500. Our target is around 15,000, which we anticipate reaching in the next two years."

Line abandonment is a more recent cutback than decreasing the number of employees.

"We first became aware of Santa Fe's plans for abandonment when they turned in an application for abandonment to our office on June 30," Scheirman said.

Westphal said they couldn't afford to run low-density lines because of high overhead.

"With low-density lines on our books, it becomes very expensive because those are still counted as assets even though they aren't profitable," Westphal said.

Westphal said they had to concentrate on that core and streamline because 95 percent of Santa Fe's revenue comes from 65 percent of their track.

The streamlining is causing concern.

"Our biggest concern is that we won't be able to pull this off — that we won't be able to find buyers for these lines," Westphal said. "We definitely would rather sell these lines than abandon them. But if there are no purchasers, we have no choice but to abandon."

Kansas officials also have concerns about the situation.

Gov. Mike Hayden established the Railroad Working Group in 1988, an informal group made up of several state agencies. The group met again when Santa Fe proposed abandonment.

"Nancy Kassebaum asked the group to meet with shippers, Santa Fe and farm organizations to talk about the situation," Scheirman said. "We try to brainstorm solutions."

Others are concerned over increased costs in shipping.

"When you have a railroad in an

■ See RAILROAD, Page 12

Gary Lytle/Staff

Parked next to the Farmway Co-op in Tipton, Kan., several Santa Fe Railway cars wait to be loaded with grain. The Santa Fe railway line, which runs through Tipton, is being considered for abandonment, although it serves as the Co-op's major means of transporting harvested grain.

Firefighters called to brushfire

David Mayes/Staff

Two members of the Pottawatomie County Fire Department struggle through thick underbrush to put out a grass fire on property 10 miles east of Manhattan owned by Ben Eichem, of Wamego, Wednesday.

Cigarette suspected

By Paul Noel
Staff Reporter

Pottawatomie County firefighters were called to a brush fire at about 5 p.m. Wednesday 10 miles east of Manhattan off Highway 24.

The fire burned several acres of grassland owned by Ben Eichem, of Wamego, but caused no serious damage, said Jerry Welter, St. George volunteer firefighter and assistant chief.

Eichem said the fire department informed him that his land was on fire. He said he had no idea what caused it.

It took less than two hours to bring the fire under control, Welter said. Burned fence posts were the only damage caused by the fire.

Milton Toy, fire chief of Pottawatome County district 10, said the fire was most probably caused by a cigarette thrown from an eastbound vehicle on Kansas Highway 24.

Fire spread through Eichem's 35-acre clearing but was brought under control before it reached his small adjacent wheat field.

The fire started by the highway near Nelson Hatchery and spread to Eichem's land.

"The high winds made it tough to fight the fire," said Lyle Berges, St. George volunteer. "It's always harder to fight a brush fire, especially in these conditions."

Buildings fail fire standards

By Tammy Rose
Collegian Reporter

About nine to 12 buildings on campus are not adequately equipped with fire-safety precautions.

In the past three to five years, the University has been working on reinforcing the fire-safety precautions in buildings across campus, said John Lambert, director of public safety. These precautions include alarm systems and emergency and exit lights.

"The important thing is to get the people out of there. That is why we need to be sure the lights and alarms are in working order," Lambert said.

The special-maintenance budget allots the department $30,000 to $100,000 a year to cover the cost of needed safety repairs, he said.

Justin, Denison, King, Fairchild and Cardwell halls are a few of the buildings that have been repaired in the past couple of years. Lambert said it would probably take three more years, if the money is available, to bring the rest of the buildings up to the appropriate safety level.

Some buildings, such as Fairchild, need to be reconstructed to meet fire codes, he said. Remodeling in Fairchild will start within the next couple of weeks to enclose the center stairwell.

Lambert said one of the problems with open stairwells is rising smoke which hampers the escape of people on upper levels.

In the case of a fire, there is always the chance of injury. Because some of the buildings do not meet safety codes, the University could be liable in the case of injury.

Dorothy Thompson, associate University attorney, said the University's liability depends on whether there was a breach of duty by providing a safe environment. Other factors to consider are the accident's circumstances.

Lambert said the buildings met the fire codes in effect when they were built, but codes have changed through the years. Buildings will have to be inspected again and some repairs will have to be made, he said.

Lambert said he is concentrating on getting the buildings up to code as quickly as possible so there won't be any accidents.

"We're making progress, but it's a long, costly effect. Our main concern is to alert the people and get them out of the building," Lambert said.

Media looked as American currency

CONVOCATION
PRE-LECTURE FORUM
What Do We Have to Say?
Information Overload and the Need to Know

By Scott Levendofsky
Collegian Reporter

Information has become the currency by which success is measured in corporate America.

"If knowledge is power, and information is a key component of knowledge, then information is the next currency," said Mel Chastain, associate professor of the broadcasting educational communication center.

Chastain was one of four panelists who discussed information overload at the pre-convocation forum Wednesday night in the K-State Union.

The forum was held in preparation of Susan Stamberg's Convocation Lecture Series titled "What Do We Have To Say? Information Overload and the Need to Know." The convocation will be presented 10:30 a.m. Friday in McCain Auditorium.

Chastain said those who have access to vast amounts of information have an advantage over those who are deprived of it.

"Companies that collect and distribute large or vast amounts of information are today's successful corporations. Many times, those that need information the most do not have acceptable access to it," Chastain said.

John Exdell, panelist and professor in philosophy, said an information overload can lead to an intellectual gridlock that cannot be digested.

Exdell said he sees problems with assumptions of information overload. First, it assumes that humans process information like a machine.

"There is all the difference in the world with regard to the way machines process information and the way humans interpret it," he said.

Second, the assumption that information enters humans as raw data is wrong. Information is received wrapped in the form of stories, Exdell said. The audience must evaluate the information and put it in its context.

Third, the problem of overload stems from an ethical void.

"If you have no ethics or a commitment to ethics, then issues packaged in information will be invisible to you," Exdell said.

The last overload problem stems from the increasing pressures of day-to-day living. People have a sense they can't do political good, he said.

Ralph Titus, professor in the department of communications at KKSU radio, said consumers are not being well-served by television.

"Television is no longer a journalistic media. It has turned into showbiz. Entertainment and glitz have taken over useful media imformation," he said.

The final panelist, Alden Williams, professor in political science, said media has not become more creative with information, just more accumulative.

"The information overload is not nearly as topical as the debate and perception of it," Williams said.

BRIEFLY

World

Group reports Tehran conflict

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — An Iranian dissident group said Wednesday that moderates and radicals fought gunbattles last week in Tehran and there were a number of casualties.

The Iraq-based Mujahedeen Khalq, or People's Holy Warriors, said in a statement telexed from its Paris office that members of an internal security committee fought with Revolutionary Guards, Iran's main military force, last Thursday, leaving many casualties on both sides.

The statement, quoting sources in Tehran, said the shootings occurred in the capital's eastern Tehran-Pars district. It did not provide a death toll, but said there were no civilians among the dead.

The statement added that in a similar clash last Wednesday, in northern Tehran, a number of fighters on both sides were wounded.

The reports could not be independently confirmed.

Jungle in Peru hit with quake

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A strong earthquake shook an isolated area of Peru's Amazonian jungle on Wednesday, but no immediate reports surfaced of casualties or damage.

The U.S. National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said the earthquake measured 6.5 on the Richter scale and was 480 miles below the Earth's surface. It was centered in Peru's Madre de Dios department, 430 miles east of Lima, near the borders with Brazil and Bolivia, the center said.

The area is a sparsely populated part of the Amazonian basin.

A quake of magnitude 6 can cause severe damage. One of magnitude 7 is capable of causing widespread and heavy damage.

Hungary admitted to council

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — The Council of Europe agreed Wednesday to admit Hungary as its first East European member as part of an expansion plan that officials hope will give the low-profile council a larger international role.

Hungary will formally become the 24th council member at a Nov. 6 ministerial meeting in Rome. On Nov. 5, Hungarian officials will sign the European Human Rights Convention, a prerequisite for joining the oldest postwar organization striving for European unity and cooperation.

Council officials said four other East European countries are in line to join.

Last year, as the Iron Curtain disappeared, Czechoslovakia, Poland, the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia were all given a special guest status.

Countries sign Lisbon Accord

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Four North Atlantic nations signed an accord Wednesday promising to help each other protect their coastlines against pollution.

Environment ministers from France, Spain, Morocco and Portugal signed the Lisbon Accord after two days of talks in the Portuguese capital. The accord came months after oil spills caused serious ecological damage in Portugal and Morocco.

Under the agreement, each nation pledged to lend technical and logistical aid to the others if a maritime accident polluted territorial waters. The nations also agreed to maintain stocks of anti-pollution equipment, including floating barriers, oil dispersers and pumps.

Nation

First killer bees enter U.S.

WESLACO, Texas (AP) — The first-known swarm of Africanized "killer" bees has entered the United States from Mexico, and the bees were trapped and destroyed, officials said Wednesday.

A quarantine was imposed on bees in the area.

The swarm was trapped Monday east of the border city of Hidalgo in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, said Anita Collins, head researcher with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Honey Bee Research Lab in Weslaco.

"It has been confirmed Africanized," Collins said. To the unaided eye, Africanized bees look like other honeybees, the USDA said; the only way to tell is through microscopic examination.

Senate blocks budget bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate blocked an attempt Wednesday to re-aim the pain of a bipartisan deficit-cutting bill more heavily at the wealthy and less sharply at the middle class.

In the first test of the budget written by leaders of both parties, lawmakers turned down the hit-the-rich proposal by 67-32.

The vote left intact a compromise $250 billion deficit-reduction plan that would double gasoline taxes, cut Medicare benefits and mildly boost income taxes on the rich. The measure includes a broader-based tax increase than the hit-the-rich House version that President Bush has said he will veto.

Sex act may force dismissal

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Two Air Force Academy cadets — male and female — who had sex in an academy dormitory are facing dismissal, as are six others who secretly watched, officials said.

The Aug. 29 incident apparently was plotted by six male cadets to help a friend break off a relationship with the female cadet, Air Force Capt. Rick Sanford of the academy's public relations office said today.

Six male cadets hid inside the darkened room to watch their friend have sex with the woman, who was unaware that anyone else was in the room, Col. Mike Wallace, academy director of public affairs, said Tuesday.

Air Force policy prohibits sexual activity in academy dorms, and offenders usually are expelled, Wallace said. Male and female cadets are allowed to study together until 11 p.m. in each other's rooms.

Region

State to assess radon risk

TOPEKA (AP) — The Kansas Department of Health and Environment Tuesday announced that it is launching a three-year effort to assess the risks associated with indoor radon.

"This new program will enable us to provide technical assistance to owners of homes or buildings where high levels of radon are found," said Stanley Grant, secretary of health and environment.

Surveys conducted in 1987 and 1988 indicated a number of houses in Kansas had levels of radon in excess of those recommended by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Exposure to elevated radon levels over several years may increase the risk of developing lung cancer.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

Announcements

■ Arts and Sciences Council Student of the Semester applications are available until Oct. 26 in the dean's office in Eisenhower Hall.

18 Thursday

■ Intramural Entry Deadline for volleyball and individual sports is 5 p.m. in the Recreational Services Office at the Chester E. Peters Recreational Complex.

■ K-State Table Tennis Club will meet from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the ECM building on Denison Avenue.

■ Finance Club/FMA will meet at 4 p.m. in the Union Big Eight Room.

■ Christian Science Organization will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Danforth Chapel. Everyone is welcome.

■ Illuminating Engineering Society will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Seaton 221.

■ Manhattan National Organization for Women will meet at 7 p.m. at the Kindred Spirit Bookstore at 426 Houston St. Margaret Mara will lead a workshop on "Unlearning Racism."

■ Women and Men Against Rape will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 203.

■ Taccata will perform from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m. at Harry's Uptown.

■ Baptist Student Union will meet at 7 p.m. at 1801 Anderson Ave.

■ German Club will meet at 6:20 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

■ Sailing Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Unión 208.

■ Ag Student Council will meet at 6 p.m. in Waters 137. Pictures will be taken after the meeting.

■ Women in Communications will meet at 7 p.m. in Union Stateroom 3.

■ ICTHUS Christian Fellowship will meet at 5:30 p.m. at the south side of the Union to go to Lawrence. Members will arrive back in Manhattan at about midnight.

■ Collegiate International Trade Association will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Calvin 201 for a resume workshop on entering the international job market.

■ New Currents will meet at 9:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for yearbook pictures.

■ Forestry and Park Resource Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Call 205 to discuss the spring break trip.

■ Microbiology Club "Group A" will meet at 4 p.m. in Ackert 133.

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, mostly sunny but cool. High around 60. Northwest winds 15 to 25 mph but diminishing by late afternoon. Tonight, clear. Cold. Low 30 to 35. Friday, sunny and warmer. High in the lower- to mid-70s.

PONTIAC ALL-STAR COMEDY CARAVAN

Marc Price
"Skippy" on Family Ties

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1990
8 p.m. MCCAIN AUDITORIUM
$4 admission
($1 donated to SADD for every ticket sold)

Tickets can be purchased at the McCain Auditorium Box Office or at the UPC Office on the third floor of the K-State Union.

Stop by the PONTIAC EXCITEMENT CENTER in the Union Plaza (between the K-State Union and Seaton Hall) Thursday and Friday, October 18 & 19, 11 a.m.-3 p.m. and check out the latest PONTIAC cars. Win tickets, t-shirts, and enter sweepstakes for a chance to win a PONTIAC Sunbird Convertible. The PONTIAC EXCITEMENT CENTER will be in the Union Courtyard in the case of rain.

PRODUCED BY USCONCEPTSINC

PONTIAC. WE BUILD Excitement.

k-state union special events

Czech minister forced to resign

By The Associated Press

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — President Vaclav Havel relieved Defense Minister Miroslav Vacek of his duties on Wednesday and temporarily entrusted the defense portfolio to the prime minister, the state CTK news agency said.

Vacek, 55, a career soldier and longtime Communist Party member, had served as deputy defense minister under former Communist Premier Ladislav Adamec.

Wednesday's terse report gave no details or reasons for Havel's decision, but it quoted Parliament deputy Michael Kocab as saying the president realized it was high time for a civilian to head the Defense Ministry.

Havel's office declined comment.

Interim defense duties were transferred to Premier Marian Calfa.

Vacek later said on national television: "I fully agree that it is suitable that I resign."

But he added that "the reservations some people had toward my person do not contribute to the peace and atmosphere necessary for carrying out complex changes, above all in the economic sphere."

After thanking Havel for supporting him through his nearly 11-month tenure, Vacek urged Czechoslovaks to change their attitude toward the army.

"If you cannot love it, then as a start, at least abandon the grudge," he said.

Vacek played a major role in forming the coalition "government of national understanding" under Calfa after Czechoslovakia's peaceful revolution last November.

J.Kyle Wyatt/Staff

Windy rage

University grounds maintenance employees work to remove a fallen tree Wednesday south of Bluemont Hall. The tree was blown down by high winds that topped 43 miles per hour.

Obtaining degree taking 5-6 years

By Ryan Finney
Collegian Reporter

Students who graduate from their high school class in 1991 should not expect to graduate from college with a degree until 1996 or 1997.

"Most people take five to six years to finish an undergraduate degree," said LaVerne Lindsey, assistant provost.

Lindsey said there are several determining factors that can cause a student to get off track of their timetable for academic progress.

First, the cost of higher education is rising; therefore, more students have jobs to supplement financial aid and aren't able to take a full course load.

Second, students sometimes decide to work on internships which take away from their time to be enrolled in class.

And finally, if students have to drop a class and retake it or find a replacement, they will get behind.

Others things can hamper a student's academic progress, including a change of major, an illness forcing the student to leave school or a student's taking classes for interest but not necessarily required for an academic degree, Lindsey said.

"Students need to know about all the alternatives there are so they can accomplish their academic endeavors on time," she said.

K-State offers the traditional fall, spring and summer sessions. The University also provides students with the opportunity to gain credit hours between the traditional sessions by enrolling in winter and spring intersessions.

There are also classes offered at Fort Riley as well as an After Hours Program. Both of these programs offer students that work during the day the opportunity to attend class at night. In addition, there are programs such as TELENET and TELEbridge that are satellite courses, and there are classes that students can take as a part of independent study.

Lindsey said that the longer a student takes beyond the first four years, the more their family raises questions about why they haven't graduated, and the more likely the student is to give up and get a job.

"Mom and dad still think of college as a four-year degree," Lynch said. "I don't always have the heart to tell them that it takes longer nowadays for a student to complete their degree."

The average student is hard to define, said Registrar Don Foster. He offered, however, these statistics to help define how long it takes an average student to graduate.

- One out of every five students graduates in four years.
- Two out of every five students graduate but take longer than four years.
- The other two students drop out of school.

Lynch gave three reasons why students take longer to gain an academic degree.

First, some degrees require more credit hours, and some degree programs are set up to take at least five years to complete.

Second, a lot of majors have added courses to keep up with the knowledge and information available.

And finally, more students are going after dual degrees or enrolling in a broader spectrum of classes to make themselves more marketable in their competitive fields.

Instructor sees Vietnam, gulf commonalities

Oversea soldiers face war possibility

By Jerry Sapp
Collegian Reporter

Soldiers stationed in the Middle East face conditions similar to those of soldiers who served in Vietnam.

"When you are in the service, one of your missions is to prepare for war," said Richard Burke, instructor in marketing and president of Burke Enterprises. "The training, both physically and mentally, is leading toward preparing to actually engage in battle."

"All soldiers prepare this way," he said. "You are ready to defend the principles of your country with your life, but in the back of your mind you hope you don't actually have to go to war."

Burke was a captain in the Army Airborne Rangers and took two tours in Vietnam from 1968 to 1970. He went through special forces school and was an adviser to the Vietnamese Rangers as well as an S-3 operations officer in the 1st Air Calvary Division.

Wounded in battle and unable to finish active duty, Burke spent the last six months in Vietnam as an aide to a three-star general.

"People don't realize it takes a lot of training to survive the elements, much less the enemy," he said. "The elements play an important role in surviving. We are raised on 'Rambo' movies thinking that soldiers are in battle all the time. We believe the enemy is the only one that gives them discomfort. Wrong. The elements in Saudi Arabia are the heat, sand, boredom and fatigue."

The elements Burke faced in Vietnam were humidity and suffocating heat, he said. Three levels of trees in the jungle trapped the moisture during the rainy season and caused health problems, such as gangrene, that cost many lives.

"Soldiers in Saudi Arabia are faced with the fear of the unknown — lots of it," Burke said. "They probably ask themselves questions like, 'Am I going to survive?' 'Has my training prepared me to lead men into battle?' 'Am I ready to sacrifice my life?' All soldiers face these questions."

An issue in the Middle East conflict is the use of poisonous gases.

"At least in Vietnam we didn't have to fear a deadly gas attack," Burke said. "We were trained for it, but it would have been miserable in the jungle. I can't imagine fighting in the heat of Saudi Arabia, much less with a protective mask. It impairs not only your vision, but your sense of balance."

Participation in foreign conflicts means soldiers must adapt to unfamiliar cultures.

"Like Vietnam, soldiers are on a foreign soil surrounded by a different culture," Burke said. "The dress, language, religion, values and customs are very strange to most Americans serving in Saudi Arabia."

"The role of women in their society is very different," he said. "If you are a female in the military, you have to wonder what the Saudis are thinking of you."

Soldiers must also deal with emotional conflicts.

"Those individuals in Saudi Arabia will never get over being over there," Burke said. "Those guys will experience the same commonness among soldiers doing something significant, something altruistic, risking their most cherished possession — life."

Burke returned from Vietnam Oct. 7, 1970. Close to 20 years later, Burke said he can still remember the war as if it were yesterday.

"I saw 'Platoon,' the only movie I had seen that is realistic to what I experienced in Vietnam. I could smell, taste and feel the elements and the fear of being over there," he said. "It just wasn't in battle scenes, but even when they were walking through the jungle."

Both Vietnam and the crisis in the Middle East share similarities, and Burke hopes the government and the public will take a solid stand on whether to support the cause.

"I had a good friend die in Vietnam," Burke said. "His name was Charlie. When his parents found out, they were devastated, but they felt that he died for a good cause.

"After the anti-war feelings started and support went down, they

■ See SOLDIERS, Page 12

Old Textbook Sale

UP TO 80% OFF!

BOOKS AS LOW AS 49¢

- Hundreds of new & used textbooks
- Various fields of study
- Some previously used at K-State
- Some from other universities
- Old editions
- Wholesaler overstock

Don't pass up this great opportunity to add to your personal library at a fraction of the regular cost!

Varney's BOOK STORE IN AGGIEVILLE

9-9 MON.-SAT. 12-5 SUN.

HERE'S WHY THE SMART MONEY AT KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY IS GOING WITH TIAA-CREF AS IF THE FUTURE DEPENDED ON IT.

Because it does. Smart investors know that your future depends on how well your retirement system performs. TIAA-CREF has been the premier retirement system for people in education and research for over 70 years. We have enabled over 200,000 people like you to enjoy a comfortable retirement. And over 1,000,000 more are now planning for the future with TIAA-CREF.

SMART MONEY LOOKS FOR SECURITY, GROWTH AND DIVERSITY FOR RETIREMENT SAVINGS.

Security—so the resources are there when it is time to retire. Growth—so you'll have enough income for the kind of retirement you want. And diversity—to help protect you against market volatility and to let you benefit from several types of investments.

THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT YOU GET WITH TIAA-CREF.

TIAA offers you the safety of a traditional annuity that guarantees your principal plus a specified rate of interest, and provides for additional growth through dividends. CREF's variable annuity offers opportunities for growth through four different investment accounts, each managed with the long-term perspective essential to sound retirement planning:

The CREF Stock Account
The CREF Money Market Account
The CREF Bond Market Account
The CREF Social Choice Account

CALL 1-800-842-2776 TO FIND OUT MORE

Our experienced retirement counselors will be happy to answer your questions and tell you more about retirement annuities from TIAA-CREF.

Experience. Performance. Strength. Your future is protected by the largest private retirement system in the world. We have done so well, for so many, for so long, that we currently manage some $85 billion in assets.

TIAA CREF

Ensuring the future for those who shape it.℠

For more complete information, including charges and expenses, call 1 800 842-2733, ext 5509 for a prospectus. Read the prospectus carefully before you invest or send money.

©1990 TIAA-CREF

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

Self-deception encourages hypocrisy

Jana Leep

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

I have found a new word that expresses an ancient emotion — litost. Litost is a Czech word with no exact translation into any other language. Milan Kundera, author of "The Book of Laughter and Forgetting," introduces and illuminates litost through narrative, through his gift for stirring and sifting through experience in search of theme and continuity.

According to Kundera, litost "is a state of torment caused by a sudden insight into one's own miserable self." And when our incomplete selves are exposed to ourselves, we attempt to hide between lies and to lie as if speaking truths. Litost therefore is an emotion that inevitably leads to deception and hypocrisy.

But, as Kundera assures the reader, "anyone with broad experience in the general imperfectability of mankind is fairly well-protected against its excesses." Litost is "one of the ornaments of youth." It is a characteristic of immaturity.

Then what will be my application of this word, of this emotion, if it is reserved for the immature? Instead of thinking of personal experiences, I am drawn to apply this emotion and its consequences to the larger picture. I think of our society, of its leaders, policies, trends and attitudes.

Our society in its obsession with youth and perfection is flooded with litost, flooded with hypocrisy.

Here is an example taken from an article in the Oct. 11 Wichita Eagle titled "Tummy tucks following childbirth more common." "After the birth of her twins, Tina Reyes was unhappy about the appearance of her stomach. Her belly was flabby and had a big purple scar from a Caesarean section."

"It was painful," Reyes said. "But it was worth it. Now my tummy is flat, and I don't have to hide it anymore. I can even wear a bikini."

Who told Reyes she had to be ashamed of her body, a body that gave birth to a child, a body that should be respected? Is not this self-conscious preoccupation with our bodies not only a cultural condition but also a sign of immaturity?

"The cost of a tummy tuck is between $4,000 and $6,000. It is usually not covered by medical insurance unless the excess flesh removed leaves the person functionally impaired."

Litost comes in a flood as we compare our bodies, ourselves, and find we are not as complete or whole as others. Is it not hypocritical to value the scar caused by the removal of excess skin instead of valuing the scar of motherhood, a genuine scar? We deceive ourselves.

Example: We have an environmental problem, but the source of the problem is not the environment itself, the source is the discrepancy between actions and ethics.

One would assume that scientists would act within the environment and not act upon the environment. I can't assume anything. Instead, it may be that scientists have more to hide.

As taken from an article in Sunday's Eagle, "As many as 70,000 bits of debris may be orbiting Earth at velocities of as much as 7 kilometers per second, according to a new congressional report, which warns that a mounting extraterrestrial trash problem could hamper future space-exploration activities."

Later on in the article, it is admitted that "growing amounts of extraterrestrial litter may be equally hazardous to earthlings."

What is the debris? — the by-products of more than 3,200 launches into outer space since 1957.

Why didn't scientists foresee such consequences? Accumulation of debris in space parallels the accumulation and degradation of the earth.

Again litost, flooding the senses, preventing honest and ethical practices. We must keep up appearances. Our immature rush to succeed, to call something our own, to fix it quickly, to remain comfortable. Again is it not hypocritical to be concerned with environmental problems, but to continue with the same patterns of assuming the earth, and now space, will house our imperfection, our fallibility, our debris.

Example: In Sunday's Eagle, a picture of "Old Sparky" was included with a comprehensive article about Daniel Remeta, who killed five people in 1985 and who now "has a date with Florida's electric chair."

This article was tinged with humor. Why? Perhaps humor masks the shame felt at the disregard for life, for Remeta's life. Must we humor ourselves with nicknames for electric chairs and with language that implies that Remeta is anticipating his "date with Old Sparky"?

Remeta was brutalized as a child and young adult by his family and society. While this provides no justification for his killing spree and cruelty, perhaps this fact asks us to examine the complexity of situations. But instead we trivialize Remeta, his crimes and his future death, with humor. Again litost, and that awareness of the miserable of life, redirects emotion into humor, when we are too immature to deal with the imperfectability of life.

In an article titled "Proceeding with caution" in the July 16, 1990 issue of Time, the writers are concerned with the twentysomething generation. They ask, "Why are today's young adults so skeptical?"

"A prime characteristic of today's young adults is their desire to avoid risk, pain and rapid change." Essentially, our generation believes that "problems can be shelved until later."

Ever since reading this article, I have wanted to answer the questions posed. The discovery of litost, of an application of litost, gels in my mind perhaps one of the dynamics that leads us to scoff at responsibility, faith and trust.

Does a society that breeds a hypocrisy that floods into our most personal lives leave us much to have faith in, to grip and trust? Are we expected to live a genuine life when surrounded by deception and surface-value appeal, when we are grounded in culture that lacks any long-term vision or ethic?

Michael Josephson, with the Joseph and Edna Josephson Institute for the Advancement of Ethics, says that the generation 18-29 years old should be labeled the "I-deserve-it" generation. According to a 1989 Gallup poll, 80 percent of those ages 18 to 29 thought that their generation was more selfish than previous generations. 82 percent believed that their generation was more materialistic.

But I don't want to be part of this. I want to be part of a generation that is not compelled to believe false truths. I would hope to be part of a generation that grows up, shrugs off immaturity, litost, hypocrisy and allows ourselves to be exposed as the vulnerable, imperfect humans we are.

EDITORIALS

Collegian must report on its financial crisis

How does a newspaper cover itself objectively?

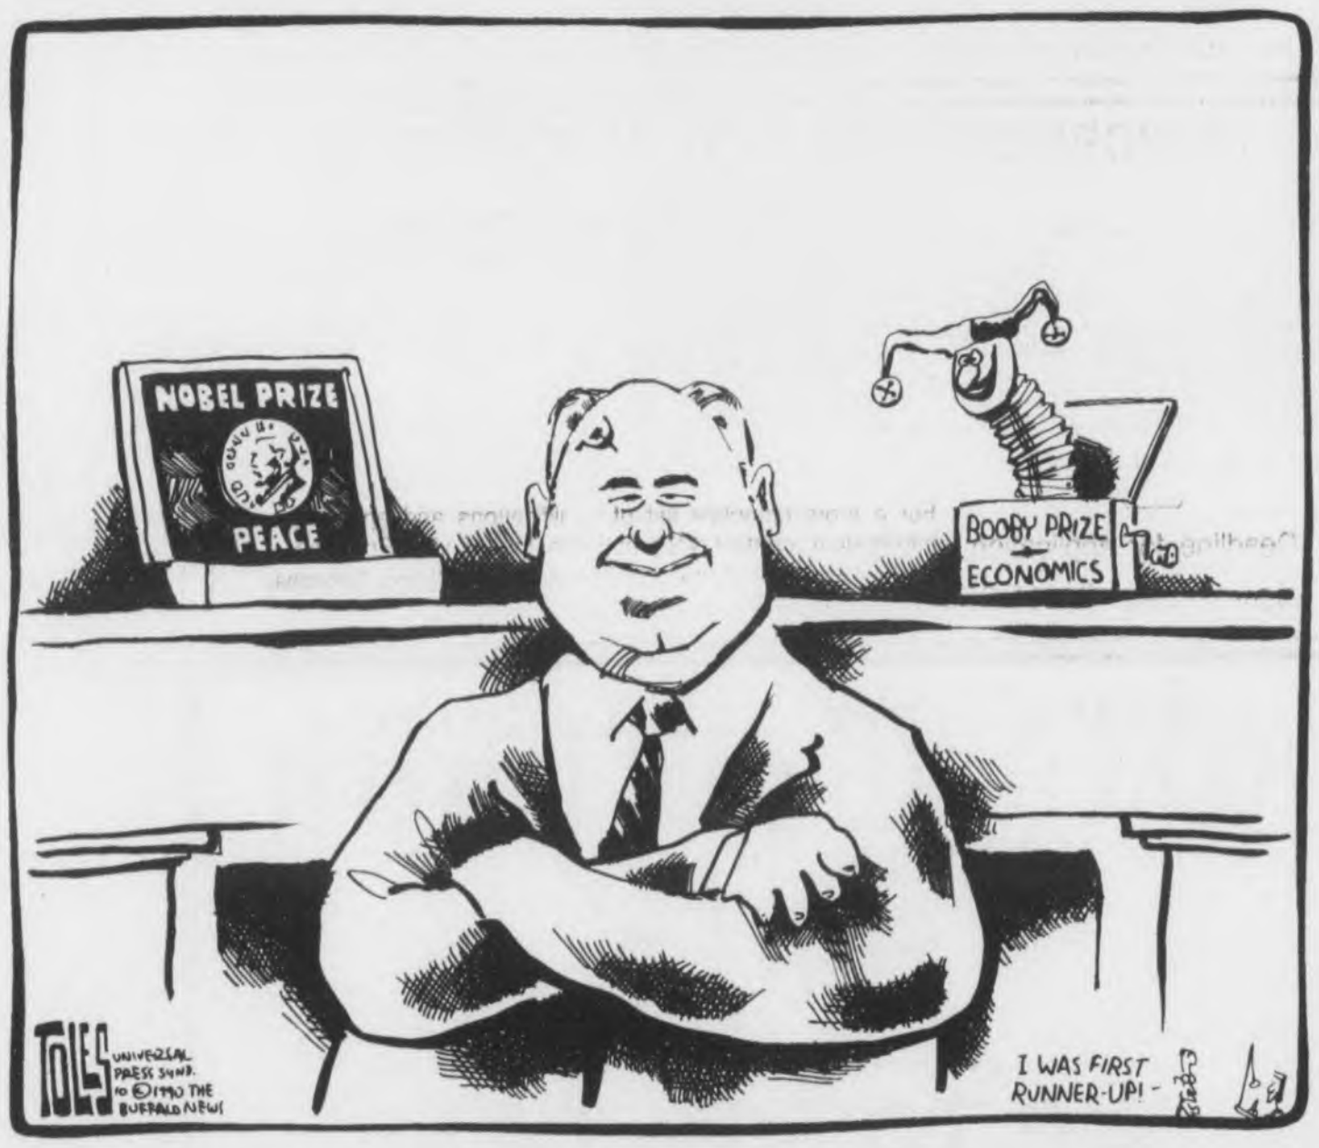
This question has popped up recently during Student Publications' financial crisis. Many of the staff members here have their own opinions as to how our debt should be covered in the Collegian.

Some say we should not cover it at all. Others say the news business is news. Still another group says it should be covered on the editorial page if it is covered at all, hence this editorial. And so, divided we stand.

It's a tough call. Most of the time when we have stories about the Collegian or the journalism program itself, we do our best to see that those stories are buried in the nether regions of the paper. This helps to discourage the appearance that we are self-serving.

Self-serving or not, the student newspaper and its availability affects us all. Students pay for it, so they should know about it. If you are paying your 3 cents for a daily Collegian, you should receive a Collegian daily. If our ends are not meeting, and students are not receiving that student newspaper, shouldn't they know why?

The Collegian faces the possibility of being published only four days a week next semester unless its financial situation is improved. Already, it has been decided that the summer paper will be published once a week instead of twice a week. The 1991 Royal Purple has been pared down 32 pages as well.



And if you hadn't noticed, our papers have been smaller than in past semesters. Some have even called us the "Collegian shopper."

Fewer, smaller and more advertisment-filled Collegians are just a few ways Student Publications is trying to cope with its financial crisis.

We're afraid we won't be able to give the readers the newspaper they deserve.

The Collegian gives journalism students a unique opportunity to try their hand at reporting before going out into the world.

We have a commitment to the truth. We have a commitment to our readers. The ugly, objective truth is, dear readers, our commitments are in jeopardy.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... David Frese
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz, Scott Berg
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Kelly Berg, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Pula, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel,
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
COLUMNISTS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
REVIEWERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso
EDITORIAL BOARD

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koel
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little, Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff, Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

LETTERS

Support not required

Editor,

The Bisexual and Gay and Lesbian Organization received a great deal of press during Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week. This was in part due to the unfortunate incident of the hateful graffiti on the sidewalks. The incident, with the sympathy that it reversely created, is hopefully further proof that hate and violence always turn back to harm their own cause.

I can understand the BGLO's participation in harmony week. The week was designed to affirm the respect due to any human being simply because that person is a human being. There is no situation which a person can be in (for example color of skin or use of limbs), nor no choice that a person can make (for example sexual preference or religious preference) which disqualifies a person from that respect or from the use of essential rights.

Yet, I disagree with another aspect of BGLO's participation in Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week. Throughout the week, we were called on to "celebrate diversity," which means, apparently, to rejoice that bisexuals, gays and lesbians practice such a lifestyle and to affirm them in that practice. Why? Who says? On what grounds must I become such an activist? Homosexuality is a choice, by which I mean the homosexual chooses to identify with and act upon those homosexual urgings which all of us could, at times, experience. Homosexuality is a matter of choice, and choice is inherently a matter of taste and/or morality. I will certainly defend your right to choose, but I am under no obligation to defend your choice. All choices are not created equal, otherwise what basis do we have to criticize the sidewalk painter?

I know I am setting myself up as a lightning rod in a stormy sky. My audience, however, is not the hatemongers on either side of the issue. I direct this letter to those still seeking to resolve the issue. My message is: love homosexuals. Grade their papers fairly. Hire them in your company. Enlist them in ROTC. Let them teach your children in the public schools. Love homosexuals, but also realize that you are under no obligation to affirm their homosexuality. It is a shrewd, but false, political move to link their lifestyle to issues of racial discrimination. And, no, you are not a homophobic for feeling so. You are someone who has a defined standard of taste and morality, and you have the freedom to live by that standard and to argue for it.

Lowell Bliss
graduate student in English

Point missed

Editor,

In response to Christie Breault's letter condemning Sean Ryland: Have you grown up yet, Breault? Come now, maybe you have made Ryland's letter into what you wanted to hear. Ryland's letter simply stated that there is a time and place for everything. Furthermore, individuals, male or female, should not inconvenience anyone of the opposite sex just to exercise his or her rights. Ryland uses a good example of this by bringing out the locker-room incident. Read closely, Breault, he applies this to both male and female.

I find it hard to believe that many males have tried to conduct female locker-room interviews or join a women's health club. Yet, if a male pursued it, he would be labeled a trouble maker or a pervert by female members of the club. This can also be applied to females' joining a men's club. Does this comparison help you understand?

Maybe you should go to a few female locker rooms and see what they are used for, Breault. Men and women alike usually use these facilities to get dressed and undressed. This means nudity for both male and female. Would you be comfortable with a male reporter wanting to question you while you were trying to get dressed? Females and males deserve the same privacy, don't you agree?

When you can stop worrying about males being sexist, then you'll be able to look at the real issues being addressed. These issues are:

- Consideration of other people's rights.
- The right to privacy that is not invaded by individuals obsessed with their rights as male or female.

Gerry True
sophomore in business and pre-law

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116. Students will be asked to show their I.D. card upon submission when done in Kedzie 116.

'Family Ties' Price changes image in comedy routine

By Stacy Lentz
Collegian Reviewer

Don't expect the nerd Skippy Handelman to be appearing at McCain Auditorium Friday. Instead, expect his evil twin Marc Price — a talented young comedian who guarantees he'll make you laugh.

Price is anything but the bumbling next-door nerd he portrayed on "Family Ties" for seven years. He's a stand-up comic that began his career at the ripe old age of eight.

Unfortunately, the Skippy role has followed him.

"I have the urge to break out and become Skippy's evil twin," Price said. "I can do that through my stand-up routine."

Price is currently pursuing both an acting career and a stand-up career. In the past few months, he has starred in "Semester At Sea," an NBC Movie of the Week and "All that Glitters," an ABC after-school special.

"I'm pretty busy." Price said. "I do a lot of touring plus appearing here in Hollywood.

"Stand-up is my favorite thing — but you can never let the people in Hollywood know that," he said.

Price, who lists David Letterman as a major influence, has his own unique style that deals with issues that many comedians don't bother with. He writes his own material, covering everything from sex to his addiction to Flintstone vitamins.

"Anyone can tell jokes about Seven-Elevens and airplanes," Price said. "I like to deal with more original stuff than that."

Besides doing stand-up, Price is also working on a deal with Ron Howard's production company for an upcoming sitcom.

"I like to get involved in the creative aspects of things and help develop projects," Price said.

Life after "Family Ties" does exist — Price has moved on to many various projects, including a starring role in the comedy horror movie "Trick or Treat."

"Movies, television and stand up have the same basic principle — you're acting in all of them, but for different audiences," he said. "I think all of it is about getting your message across and making them laugh."

Price has also appeared on "Evening at the Improv," "MTV Comedy Hour" and has hosted the CBS Midnight Hour. He also toured Australia.

Price is traveling with the Pontiac All-Star Comedy Caravan, which is a 50-campus tour by top comedians to benefit Students Against Drunk Driving. The tour also includes the "Pontiac Excitement Center," a display of the new Pontiac line that offers a chance for students to win a new convertible or tickets to the show.

Price enjoys playing college campuses.

"I'm 22, so I feel I can relate to college students and make them laugh about that horrible thing we all experience — growing up," he said.

Kevin West will be the opening act for Price. West is best known for his portrayal of the Pterodactyl Guy in commercials for Little Caesar's pizza.

Price will be performing at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 19, in McCain. Admission for the show is $4. Tickets are available at the McCain Auditorium Box Office and at the Union Program Council office on the third floor of the K-State Union.

Dean positions open

Interim appointees to serve during search

By Cindy Jeffrey
Collegian Reporter

The president and provost have the final say in the hiring of college deans. The actual search for the dean, however, is a labor-intensive process.

K-State has 10 deans, three of which are interim deans serving in the College of Business Administration, the College of Arts and Sciences and the College of Education.

An interim dean serves as a search is being conducted to fill the position permanently.

"They have the same responsibilities, authority and input as a dean," said Lavon Wells, administrative officer for the provost. "A dean is the head of an entire college, has the final authority within that college and reports to the provost."

Deans step down for a variety of reasons. The previous dean of the College of Education, David Byrne, said he initially took a leave of absence to work on a project for the provost that was related to core-curriculum options workable for K-State.

"I had been a dean for 11 years and for me that was enough — I was tired of being a dean," he said.

Michael Holen, interim dean of the College of Education, said, "When Dean Byrne was asked to take on another assignment last January, I was named acting dean during his leave of absence."

Byrne resigned as dean at the end of June. Holen, former associate dean, was appointed by the provost as interim dean in July and the process of forming a search committee began.

An interim dean is chosen by a process similar to that used in the search for a dean, Wells said. Department heads within a college are asked to submit names for an advisory committee that will choose an interim dean.

The advisory committee makes a recommendation to the provost. Both then interview the candidate.

The process for finding and selecting a permanent dean differs in the selection of the search committee and the field of potential nominees, Wells said.

Each department within a college makes nominations for the search committee. In addition, the undergraduate student council and University Student Senate submit nominations, Wells said.

The provost selects a faculty member, a department head, one or two alumni, an undergraduate, a graduate student and one outside dean for the search committee.

The College of Education search committee also has a member from outside the University, the superintendent of schools from Topeka, said Bea Wentzel, secretary for the vice provost for academic services.

"In the case of the College of Arts and Sciences, Dr. Coffman hopes to have the selection committee chosen by next week," Wells said.

When that committee is chosen,

■ See DEAN, Page 10

KSU Federal Credit Union celebrates
International Credit Union Day
TODAY!
Complimentary coffee & cookies for credit union members
9 a.m.-4 p.m.
24A Anderson Hall

RESIDENCE HALL STAFF POSITIONS
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
STAFF
1991-1992
Qualifications include:
•Two semesters previous K-State Residence Hall experience
•Junior standing or equivalent (by Fall 1991)
•2.25 cumulative GPA
•Full-time student
•Successful completion of staff class (EDAF 311) offered during spring semester.
Deadline for application:
November 2, 1990
For a more complete list of qualifications and application information, contact your hall director, or visit Rosanne Proite, assistant director of Housing and Dining Services, located in the Pittman building.

The Alpha Eta Chapter of Alpha Delta Pi

Main House at 518 Sunset
proudly announces its
75TH Anniversary Celebration 1915-1990
October 19-21

the Sound Shop
and CRIMESTOPPER SECURITY PRODUCTS, INC. Made in U.S.A.
1118 Moro•Aggieville
537-4708
Noticed the upsurge in car audio theft?
To help combat theft, the Sound Shop is proud to introduce the new line of car security systems from crimestopper.
We will be featuring these two systems:
C58703
•Lock/unlock doors
•Remote panic
•Shock/motion
•Valet Mode
•Starter kill
•MX code receiver
•117 DB Siren
$325.00 installed
C58717
same features as 8703 but adds:
•trunk release
•voltage sensing
•key in ignition warning
$425.00 installed

YOU'RE INVITED
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20
To Help Us Celebrate!
Memorial Hospital wants to invite you and your family to come and see your new hospital. We've just wrapped up an impressive construction and renovation project and we're eager for you to see the improvements, and to meet the special people who work here. Please join us for a tour of the hospital, refreshments, and health screenings. We think you're going to like what we've got to show you!
MEMORIAL HOSPITAL OPEN HOUSE
1 - 4 p.m.
Saturday, October 20, 1990
REGISTER TO WIN: A 3-day Nassau cruise for two from International Tours Travel Agency of Manhattan. Ship sails April 26, 1991. Bon Voyage!
MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
Yesterday's values, Tomorrow's technology
1105 Sunset P.O. Box 1208 • Manhattan, KS 66502 • 913-776-3300
©1990 Memorial Hospital

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS

New faces abound on court

Altman looks for assist from recruits

By Scott Paske
Sports Reporter

One of Dana Altman's first tasks as new K-State basketball coach will be to blend a "melting pot" of newcomers into his promised run-and-gun style of play.

They hail from Kansas, Florida, Oklahoma, Georgia and Illinois. The class includes two major college transfers, two community college transfers and a high school standout. Joining them as a first-year player will be point guard Marlon Shadd, who was forced to sit out last year as a Proposition 48 casualty.

"I think we got some things accomplished in a short period of time," Altman said of his staff's off-season recruiting efforts. "I don't think, by any means, that it's an outstanding recruiting class, but we have filled some holes that our coaching staff was really worried about."

Most noticeably, Altman went after post players — tall ones. With the losses of front-liners Tony Massop, Reggie Britt, Lance Simmons and Billy Ray Smith, K-State has reloaded with its third-tallest team in school history.

Darryl King, a 6-foot-9 transfer from Midland (Texas) Community College, Maurice Brittian, a 6-foot-9 transfer from Marshall and Hamilton Strickland, a 6-foot-9 freshman from Atlanta, Ga., were Altman's answers for immediate help.

"Those three guys should be able to fill some gaps for us," Altman said. "However, the possibility of a redshirt year for Hamilton does exist."

King is a familiar name in Big Eight circles. His brother, Stacey, was an all-America performer at Oklahoma and now plays for the Chicago Bulls. He was listed as one of the nation's 10 best community college centers by Blue Ribbon Yearbook.

Brittian is making his third stop at a major college. After leading Hutchinson Community College to the 1988 national community college title, Brittian had stints at Georgia Tech and Marshall. He came to K-State with Altman and will be eligible this season under NCAA rules, as the Marshall program is currently on probation.

"Maurice has a lot of valuable experience," Altman said. "He was able to spend last year with me, so he has an idea of what we're going to do this year."

K-State added another front-liner in Deryl Cunningham, a 6-foot-7 sophomore transfer from DePaul. He will have to sit out the 1990-91 season under NCAA transfer rules.

"Most of the big people that we recruited run the floor pretty well," Altman said. "The size will maybe give us some advantages defensively that we haven't had the last few years.

"Hopefully, a couple of those guys will step up and give us some scoring. Last year, it was pretty obvious from the games I watched on film and on television that the lack of inside scoring hurt the entire team."

In the backcourt, Shadd and Marcus Zeigler, a 5-foot-11 transfer from Independence Community College, are expected to push senior Jeff Wires for playing time. The trio will be attempting to fill K-State's biggest void — the loss of Steve Henson.

"It's obvious that nobody can actually replace Steve Henson," Zeigler said. "I think I have the abilities to provide leadership and knock down the outside shot. Whatever the coaches ask of me, I'll try and give it to them."

Collegian/File

Senior point guard Jeff Wires will be challenged for the starting job by newcomer Marcus Zeigler and Marlon Shadd, who was a Proposition 48 casualty a year ago.

Bodybuilder gains insight

Griffing has eye-opening journey to national championships in LA

By David Svoboda
Sports Editor

James Griffing's experiences at the National Physique Committee's National Championships last weekend in Los Angeles were eye-opening, to say the least.

For the K-State senior in exercise science, a trip to bodybuilding's national championship event put how far he's come — and how far he still has to go — in the proper perspective.

When he won the overall title at the Kansas competition in Wichita three weeks ago, Griffing was on top of the world. But a learning experience awaited.

> "I was very honored to compete with the top amateur athletes in the nation."
> —James Griffing
> bodybuilder

"After winning state, I knew I had a few things to work on," Griffing said. "But after nationals, I realize I have so much to work on."

And the flaws?

"It was more the magnitude of which my flaws were apparent," Griffing said. "Particularly in overall mass and especially in the leg department."

Griffing said there is one way he can overcome his current deficiencies.

"I'd say the key would be to train smarter, not necessarily harder," he said.

Griffing's current training routine calls for three hours a day in the gym, two hours walking and 15 minutes posing. The walking is done on errands, trips to the grocery store and en route to class and the gym.

For Griffing, who competed in the state competition four times — 1982, 1983, 1987, 1990 — before winning, a layoff is now beginning.

"It will be at least another year before I compete again, if not more," he said.

But the layoff will just be from competition. Griffing will continue to chase his dream of turning pro. But he knows the odds are long. There were 121 competitors at the national competition, and some had been trying for as many as seven to 10 years to win the national title and get that elusive ticket to the pro ranks.

"It would be a dream of mine to become a professional," Griffing said. "But what nationals did was help me in learning how much more work is ahead."

Griffing said the transition in emotion — from an incredible high after winning the Kansas title to the realization of how much was left to be done — was difficult.

"It was mildly depressing after the high I felt just over two weeks ago," he said. "And yet it was a very positive experience."

Griffing said there were several reasons the experience was so personally important.

"I was very honored to compete with the top amateur athletes in the nation," he said. "And to be able to meet and hear from the professionals of the sport as well was also very important."

As he approaches graduation in May, Griffing is looking to the time he can turn his experiences at K-State — he also does health consultations at Lafene — into a career he can be proud of.

"I'm going to seek employment from a firm, build up capital, and go into business by myself," he said.

And as the capital is building, the body will be as well. Griffing will continue to chase the dream.

SPORTS BRIEFLY

Voided tickets needed

Student basketball ticket holders need to keep their three voided tickets.

They will be able to turn in their voided vacation-game tickets for a $5 rebate or a ticket for one of the holiday games.

Women's ruggers busy

The K-State women's rugby team will play an exhibition game this Sunday at the Heart of America Tournament at Swope Park in Kansas City, Mo.

Last weekend, the team took fourth place at a tournament at the University of Colorado. The women ruggers defeated Missouri and Mankato State, but lost to the host team, the Colorado Rainbows.

Tries were scored by Susan Hill, Becky Hamilton, Michele Boone and two were scored by Jeannette Fitzgerald. A penalty kick and conversion were made by Michele Boone.

The team beat the St. Louis Women's Rugby Club 8-4 on Oct. 6. Two tries were scored by Becky Hamilton.

Cold War moves to water

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Cold War has resurfaced in an unlikely arena — the America's Cup.

Despite the new political climate of cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union, a national panel in Washington has banned a Leningrad-based challenge syndicate from San Diego Bay, home to scores of U.S. warships and a secret submarine base.

While the Soviet Union's Red Star syndicate will be allowed to compete in the 1992 Cup regatta off San Diego, the edict by the Port Security Committee means the Soviets must find berthing space in Mission Bay, away from major Navy installations.

San Diego is one of 12 American ports with sensitive military installations that remains closed to any Soviet-flagged vessels as well as shipping from certain Eastern Bloc countries. The Soviet Union also has 12 ports closed to U.S. ships.

Reds win Game 2, take commanding lead; World Series set for shift to West Coast

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Add Oakland's ace reliever to Cincinnati's hit list, and give the Reds a perfectly astonishing 2-0 lead in the World Series.

A day after beating Dave Stewart in the opening game, the Reds' Joe Oliver got the third straight hit off Dennis Eckersley in the bottom of the 10th inning to shock the A's 5-4 Wednesday night and take a lead that few imagined possible.

Suddenly, from thoughts of sweeping their second straight Series, the A's now go home for Game 3 Friday trying to keep from being swept themselves.

Billy Hatcher enjoyed his second consecutive perfect night making him 7-for-7 with four doubles and a triple. His triple off right fielder Jose Canseco's glove in the eighth inning gave him the Series record for consecutive hits. He then scored the tying run on Glenn Braggs' force play.

Eckersley took over to start the 10th and retired Eric Davis, but a scratch single by pinch-hitter Billy Bates, a ground single to left by Chris Sabo and Oliver's hard single down the third-base line gave Cincinnati its seventh straight World Series victory. The Reds' victory came a day after the Reds beat up Dave Stewart, the A's four-time 20-game winner.

Canseco ended Oakland's home run drought in the postseason, but the Athletics stranded 10 runners, for a total of 21 in the two games.

Rob Dibble pitched two shutout innings for the victory. Four Cincinnati relievers shut out Oakland for 7 1-3 innings.

Tom Browning will start Game 3 for Cincinnati Friday night against Mike Moore.

Hatcher led off the Reds' eighth with a slicing drive to right that glanced off the tip of Canseco's glove and went for a triple. Welch walked Paul O'Neill on four pitches, but got a break when Hatcher stayed at third on Davis' medium-deep fly ball that Canseco caught, but threw off line to the plate.

Oakland's Tony La Russa brought in left-hander Rick Honeycutt to face lefty Hal Morris. Cincinnati's Lou Piniella countered with the right-handed Braggs, and Braggs drove in the tying run with a bouncer up the middle that took off the artificial turf.

By the time shortstop Mike Gallego caught it, he was one step past second base. Gallego tagged O'Neill and quickly relayed to first, but Braggs beat the throw with a head-first slide.

Welch, a 27-game winner, gave up nine hits, two walks and struck out two in 7 1-3 innings.

Jackson back with Raiders as 3rd-stringer

By The Associated Press

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. — Bo Jackson is back with the Los Angeles Raiders, as, he says, the team's third-string tailback.

If that's the case, the third-stringer figures to see extensive action, perhaps as early as Sunday.

"I pretty much know the offense," Jackson said Wednesday, shortly before going through his first full practice session with the Raiders. "I just have to refresh my memory. I did that in one day, yesterday. I did some work in the past couple of days. I'm already familiar with it."

Jackson, 27, made his first appearance at camp two weeks after the end of the baseball season.

When asked about the most difficult adjustment for him, he said, "To me, and I can't speak for all the guys out doing this, there's nothing difficult about sports. If you can handle it mentally, it's easy.

"It's still challenging. Every Sunday when I step out on the field, there's a different challenge. I still get excited. I don't think it'll ever get boring."

The Raiders have won five of their six games without Jackson, a far cry than his previous three seasons with the team went 5-10, 7-9 and 8-8, never making the playoffs.

Jackson had his best year last season, gaining 950 yards on 173 carries and catching nine passes for 69 yards in 11 games.

"At this point, I'm the third-string tailback (behind Marcus Allen and Greg Bell), and I've accepted that," he said. "I can't control who the coaches put in Sunday. I'm here, if they put me in, I'll go in.

"The morale here is great. Once I came through that door Monday afternoon, you could feel it in the air, that winning attitude. All the guys came in here with that confidence."

When asked if he would play Sunday against the Chargers (2-4) at San Diego, Jackson said, "If Sunday gets here."

Actually, Jackson might be needed. Bell suffered a sprained ankle during last Sunday's 24-17 victory over Seattle and is listed as doubtful for the Chargers.

"There's a chance," Raiders coach Art Shell said when asked if Jackson would play against the Chargers. "We'll watch him this week, see how he does and then make a decision."

Jackson, wearing sunglasses and a baseball hat, said the pressure to produce immediately doesn't bother him.

"As I've said in the past, the only pressure is the pressure a person puts on himself," he said. "I'm not coming in here expecting to be a savior of this team. I'm just one of the players, hopefully contributing to wins.

"Unfortunately, we didn't have the good season we'd planned on with the Royals. I'm here, and the Raiders have one of the best records in football."

Jackson hit .278 with 28 home runs and 78 RBIs and 15 stolen bases in 405 at-bats. The highlight of his season came July 17 at Yankee Stadium when he hit home runs on his first three at-bats, the third of which was the 100th of his major league career.

However, in the sixth inning of that game, he injured his shoulder attempting to catch a sinking line drive hit by Deion Sanders, coincidentally the other two-sport star who's now playing for the Atlanta Falcons.

Jackson missed 5½ weeks, but in his first at-bat upon his return, he hit a 450-foot homer against Seattle, becoming the 19th player to hit home runs in four consecutive at-bats.

Jackson is undecided about his sports future.

"I have one more year left on my contract (with the Raiders), next year, and I'm a free agent with the Royals a year after that.

"I am not in either one of these sports to be a great player, I'm doing what makes me happy. I'm not doing this for the attention. I'm doing this because this is what I love. You could say I'm doing this to breathe."

Jackson said he's felt no resentment from the other Raiders.

"The only thing they say the first two days I'm here is, 'The baseball player's here.' They don't say that in a negative way. Maybe that's their way of welcoming me back. I've always been welcomed back with open arms."

Certainly, Shell's are.

"You always welcome him when he comes in," Shell said. "He'll work in. Right now, we're not sure about Greg Bell's status. Bo understands what we do.

"He'll make us a better football team. He adds something. He's a great player. One thing about football players, they don't care what you do outside. If you can help win football games, you're welcomed with wide open arms. And he fits right in."

Candidates want cigarette-tax raise

CAMPAIGN 1990
Kansas House

By Elvyn Jones
Staff Reporter

Two Republican challengers for the Kansas House of Representatives said they favor a cigarette sales-tax increase to fund the third year of the Margin of Excellence.

Kent Glasscock and Stan Hoerman addressed a forum in the sponsored by the Student Government Association and the Associated Students of Kansas in the K-State Union Wednesday.

Both candidates said they would support the 10-cent-per-package cigarette sales-tax increase proposed by Gov. Mike Hayden to support the third year of the MOE.

At a forum for the Democratic incumbents Tuesday, Rep. Katha Hurt, Manhattan, and Rep. Sheila Hochhauser, Manhattan, said that a 5-cent cigarette sales-tax increase failed to pass in the Legislature last year and that they did not believe a larger tax increase would pass this year.

The challengers said Hurt and Hochhauser failed to provide the leadership for passage of the cigarette-tax measure in the House after it had passed in the Senate last year.

Hoerman said the two incumbents could only deliver six other Democratic votes beside themselves for the increase after intense lobbying by the major tobacco companies. R.J. Reynolds and Phillip Morris were the two largest spenders for lobbying in the 1990 Legislative session, Hoerman said.

Glasscock said he returned an unsolicited campaign contribution from the tobacco industry.

"I told them to save their short breath," he said. "I intend to vote for the sales-tax increase."

Glasscock said his legislative priorities for higher education would be the protection of the Board of Regents' base budget, the passage of the third year of the MOE, putting the enrollment adjustment into state statutes and ensuring funds saved by K-State's pending reorganization will stay within the University.

> "I intend to vote for the (cigarette) sales-tax increase."
> —Kent Glasscock
> Republican candidate > for Kansas House > of Representatives

Hoerman said alternative funding for higher education might come from either a higher sales tax on goods or a greater income tax on those making more than $100,000.

Glasscock said that if the cigarette tax failed, higher education is so important he would support any viable, reliable and long-term revenue source to fund it.

Glasscock said he is committed to open admissions to the regent schools. If there is a problem with the quality of students entering the regent system, Glasscock said it could best be addressed by improving the state's primary and secondary schools.

Hoerman said he has not yet talked with enough experts to have an opinion on open admissions.

In response to a question from the crowd about the progress of rental inspection in Manhattan, Glasscock said the city commission realized they had the wrong focus.

"We decided not to put in additional codes but to enforce those we already have," he said.

The city will begin inspections to enforce those codes, he said.

Hoerman said he has been a landlord in Manhattan for 23 years and has joined a coalition of landlords opposed to additional codes.

"Many widows would be out the money they use to pay taxes by renting their basements," Hoerman said.

Additional safety codes would eliminate lower-cost apartments and raise rents an average of $150 a month, he said.

Hunam Chinese Restaurant
For Delivery
7 days a week
11 a.m. to 10 p.m.
539-8888 or 539-0888

Check out our expanding line of
ORGANIC PRODUCE
including . . .

delicata squash	leeks
kabocha squash	broccoli
sweet dumpling squash	peppers
fresh shitake mushrooms

and of course . . .
apples oranges carrots
onions garlic
and much more
PEOPLE'S GROCERY
Co-Op
811 Colorado
10-6:30 Tues. thru Fri.
Sat. 9-5
Closed Sun. & Mon.

Standing Room Only

$59.99
Dale
Dexter USA
1222 Moro
Aggieville
Manhattan

NORTHWEST DISCOUNT COMPUTER SUPPLY

Laramie, Wyoming
Mail Order Prices
with Hometown Service
Sales & Service
now available in Manhattan.

Complete AT286 & 386 Systems	'649 & up
9 Pin Star	'179
24 Pin Star	'299
Color Printers	'235
44 meg IDE drives with/H/F cont.	'319
82 meg SCSI drives w/H/F cont.	'499
BGA Paper White Monitor	'139.95

Pick up a flier at King Clone/
Motorcycle Supply
Call 776-6177 or (307) 742-7218
1221 Moro (Behind Hardee's)

Snookies

Tonight:
75¢ Wells
25¢ Draws
This Sunday, Oct. 21
Live Rock 'n' Roll
"Cinema"
Open at 7
1122 Moro Upstairs 776-7726

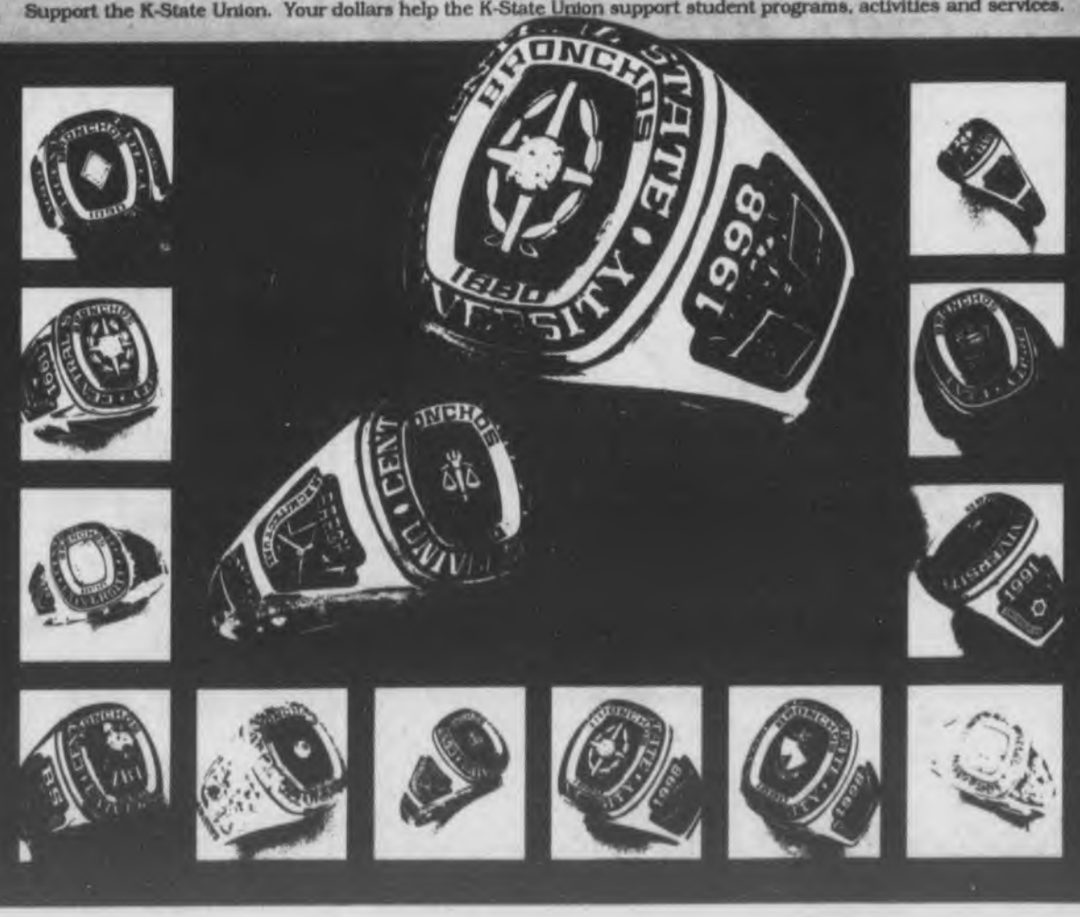
ORDER OF OMEGA
Congratulates the winning team of
"Operation Turkey"

ΔΔΔ	ΣN	ΛΧΑ	ΑΞΔ

Thanks to the community and the other organizations that participated:

ΚΚΓ	ΣΧ
ΚΔ	ΔΥ
ΣΦΕ	ΑΔΠ
ΚΑΘ	ΦΗ
ΧΟ	ΣΚ

And miss a meal,



ΣΣΣ	ΑΤΟ
ΔΤΔ	ΠΒΦ

Over 2,000 lbs. of food were collected!

Fashion Company

SUPER BUYS
On New Fall Fashions!!
SAVE 35%-60%!
Off Department Store Prices!
SAVE 40%! DETAILS TEXTURED SHIRTS $12.99 Compare at $22
SAVE 60%! HUNTER'S RUN COTTON SWEATERS $9.99 Compare at $34
YOUR FAVORITE BRANDS! DENIM JEANS 25%-45% Off DEPARTMENT STORE PRICES
SAVE 55% & More! L.A. GEAR FASHION WATCHES $19.99 Compare at $45-55
SAVE 60%! HUNTER'S RUN BELTED PANTS $10.99 Compare at $30
SAVE 40%! ONE STEP UP SOLID TURTLENECKS $6.99 Compare at $12
EAST MANHATTAN (1/4 Mile East of mall next to K-Mart)
OPEN HOURS: Mon.-Fri. 10 am -9 pm Sat. 10 am - 6:30 pm Sun. Noon - 5:30 pm
EAST MANHATTAN

DESIGNER AND NAME BRAND FASHIONS FOR LESS!!
Fashion Company

ARTCARVED
COLLEGE JEWELRY
Save Up To $100
at the K-State Union Bookstore
October 17-19, 1990 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.
K-State Union Bookstore
$20 Deposit Required
Support the K-State Union. Your dollars help the K-State Union support student programs, activities and services.

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT!

Good Luck to all of the GREEK PLAYBOY '90 contestants!

Sean Lance—Acacia	Matt Scarborough—ΦΔΘ
Bart Brooks—ΑΓΡ	Shawn Spellman—Fiji
Jeff Raysik—ΑΚΛ	Sean Reinhard—ΦΚΤ
Scott Manneback—ΑΤΩ	David Riley—ΦΚΘ
Lee Hellman—ΒΘΠ	J.R. Brockman—ΠΚΦ
Ryan Corey—ΒΣΨ	Jeff Dunaway—ΠΚΑ
Dave Schmidt—ΔΣΦ	Eric Reid—ΣΑΕ
Jamie Broadhurst—ΔΤΔ	Marcus West—ΣΝ
Dennis Holcom—ΔΥ	Matt Gann—ΣΦΕ
Dave Dubert—Farmhouse	Eric Scott—ΣΧ
John Anderson—ΚΣ	Keith Wetzel—ΤΚΕ
Mike Farmer—ΛΧΑ	Wayne Glantz—Triangle

Competition begins at 7:30 p.m. at Bushwacker's!

Variety highlighted in show

Effects of current world affairs on society theme of exhibition

By Rebecca Sack
Collegian Reviewer

Creativity is absolutely exploding without limits in "ResistANT," an invited show in the K-State Union Gallery. Don't miss this barrage of art sponsored by the Kansas Architecture Club.

The show, which expresses how society is affected by the current state of the world, is made up of so much variety and free expression that it fairly strains at the boundaries of the gallery. It is difficult to soak in everything: sculptures, paintings, drawings, collages, plans and poetry.

One of the highlights is Erin Mullins' piece, "Conversations with the ideal." The work defines the entire show by sculpting lines of a poetic dialogue, concluding, "What defines the limit of relevance?" With this in mind, the other works fall into place as free expressions without criteria — avant-garde.

Some of the works show profound images, like Jeff George's drawing of a monstrous building helmed by a gigantic winged figure. It is immense, illuminated and ominous — yet it evokes a sense of security at the same time.

Another work, a gray marble slab bolted onto beige and yellow tissue paper, is profound in another way. Tiny tracings of the cycle of the development of a fetus direct attention to the contrast between the media used and the message conveyed.

This work, along with many others, is left untitled and unsigned. This is frustrating. All the artists are listed on the program, but it is impossible to know which artist created what.

This confusion isn't altogether out of place within a show that displays an X-ray, plans for the Heilig Residence, a psychedelic trailer park, abstract water-color landscapes, model houses and sculptures ranging from a postcard in a glass case to a gray rock with some weeds.

The postcard sculpture by Trebor Aidnoc is the most poignant work. Displayed in what looks like an ant farm, it reads "God, I have been thinking/is time a postcard?/Love, Trebor." The card is addressed to "God in heaven" and returned to sender by the post office for insufficient address. The sculpture is based on threes and odd photo splices. One photo shows a face that is half baby and half old lady.

"ResistANT" is an entirely intriguing and consuming show which allows the creative potential in these artists to flow without restraint. It is refreshing to see unbridled artistic expression and to know that in a world where perfect theories are trashed because the margins are off, still there is art in a window shade.

The show will be in the Union until Nov. 2. A performance piece, followed by a reception, will be presented Friday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Rec Complex bill approval expected

By Charlie Gatschet
Collegian Reporter

The Recreational Services referendum should have little trouble passing Student Senate tonight, according to members of the Academic Affairs Committee which sponsored the bill.

The referendum would put the proposed $8.5 million expansion of the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex on the Oct. 31 general-election ballot.

"I haven't heard of any senators opposed to the referendum at all," said Kristen Good, arts and sciences senator and Academic Affairs Committee member.

While the bill should pass, it may go through some written changes. Some senators favor listing the proposed changes to the Rec Complex on the ballot, but the bill does not call for this.

Good said she doesn't favor putting the specific features of the expansion on the ballot.

"If people are going to vote on it, they should take the initiative to find out about it," Good said. "Also, I think it would make it more confusing to the voters."

Julie Boos, arts and sciences senator and Academic Affairs Committee member, agreed.

"I'm leaning towards not having it on there," Boos said.

To pass, at least one-third of the student body must vote, and a majority of that one-third must be in favor. To get one-third, more than 6,000 students must vote, nearly double the number that voted last year.

A study by the Recreational Services Task Force shows that student interest is high enough to meet the one-third requirement.

Raydon Robel, director of recreational services, said that if the referendum is approved, it will be the students' responsibility to pass the expansion plans.

"I'd hope the students care enough to turn out and make that number," Robel said. "If students want it, they'll have to be the ones to make sure students turn out on the 31st."

Expansion plans include: adding four basketball courts, doubling the size of the weight room and fitness area, lighting the L.P. Washburn Recreational Area and resurfacing the tennis courts.

Funding for the project would come from continuing the $22.25 per semester Student Refunding Bond started in the early 1970s. In addition, a proposed Recreation Building fee of $3 for full-time students and $1.50 for part-time students would be used to cover increased operating expenses.

Grissom thought guilty by most

By The Associated Press

OLATHE — Four of the first five potential jurors questioned at the murder trial of Richard Grissom Jr. said Wednesday they believe Grissom is guilty of killing three young women.

Individual questioning of 150 prospective jurors about pretrial publicity and racial prejudice started late Wednesday morning in the chambers of Johnson County District Judge William Gray.

All five prospective jurors called before the lunch break said they had heard of the Grissom case, and four said they believe Grissom is guilty. None said Grissom's race — black and Asian — would influence their opinions.

Gray, who said the questions of racial prejudice and pretrial publicity "are somewhat sensitive," excused two of the first five jurors.

The judge said he could not excuse everyone who had read something about the case or had formed a preliminary opinion.

"If we start striking them because (of what they've heard), we might not have a jury. We still haven't heard much from the defense," Gray said. Opinions have been formed largely from comments made by the state's side of the case, he said.

Grissom, 29, is charged with first-degree murder and nine related charges in the disappearance more than a year ago of three young

■ See GRISSOM, Page 10

Joyce's Hair Tamers
WARM & GENTLE PERM....$43 regular $48
QUANTUM PERM.....$35 regular $38
BIO-LAGE.....$40 regular $50
MEN'S PERMS.....$30
All perms include cut & style
Haircuts
Gals $12 Guys $8.50 Kids $6.50
All cuts include shampoo & style
2026 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Call: 539-TAME

JUNGLE TALK
For a neater, nicer look in a swimsuit, opt for leg waxing or depilatories instead of shaving.
Nail polish looks better longer if you start with nail strengthener and an undercoat.
Treat your hands to a professional manicure with our experts.

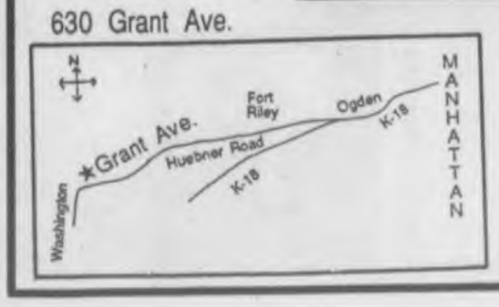
Arts and Sciences Student of the Semester
Applications available in Dean's office, Eisenhower Hall
Applications are due Oct. 26 by 4 p.m.

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special: 3 - 10 in. Pizzas, 1 - Topping, 4 - Cokes, $10.00
Everyday Two-Fers: 2 - 10 in. Pizzas, 2 - Toppings, 2 - Cokes, $8.00
Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

GET THE EDGE
and get your Royal Purple portrait taken.
These groups are scheduled
Oct. 17-26
◆ OFF CAMPUS
◆ ANYONE WHO MISSED SCHEDULED TIME
Sitting Fee: $4 (If you paid for it at registration, you must bring your Royal Purple receipt.)
Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.
Location: K-State Union, Room 209
For an appointment or if you have questions
CALL 532-7808
1991 ROYAL PURPLE

ONE HOUR MOTOPHOTO
Photo Processing At Its Best
40% off Processing
(35 mm, 110, 126, Disc, C-41)
Expires Oct. 31, 1990
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-6 p.m., Sat. 9 a.m.-5p.m.
Not valid with any other promotion
1134 Garden Way Across from Westloop C-27 776-9030

Black Families
Via TELENET
October 23 December 11, 1990
College of Human Ecology
Division of Continuing Education
Kansas State University
Enroll Now
Class Starts October 23
Earn 3 Undergraduate or Graduate Credits
This course will offer information about black families' history, lifestyles, and relationships to institutions. It will consider such areas as cultural diversity; myths, stereotypes, and media images; family structure; education; socialization of children; impact of individual, cultural, and institutional fascism; African communities; effects of slavery on black American culture; and implications for professionals working with black families. The instructor is Sakinah N. Salahu-Din.
Full time KSU students may enroll by paying only the $20 material fee.
For Information
For registration information call the Division of Continuing Education at 532-5566. KSU Kansas State University



October PORTRAIT Special
Sitting and 8 Original Proofs
Only! $9.95
Proofs are available for viewing in just One Hour!
Appointments are appreciated.
ONE HOUR MOTOPHOTO PORTRAIT STUDIO
1134 Gardenway Manhattan 913 776-9030

Limited Edition
—Exclusive—
Eat 'Em Up T-Shirts

Only $10.99 OR FREE*

Show your support, get your Eat 'Em Up T-Shirt today at Brentwood.
*Get your T-Shirt FREE when you make other purchases at Brentwood—it's EASY.
SPEND $50 → get T for 6.99
SPEND $75 → get T for 5.00
SPEND $100 → get T for FREE!!
Hours: Mon.-Fri. 10-6, Thurs. 10-8, Sat. 10-6, Sun. 1-5
BRENTWOOD FOR MEN & WOMEN
700 N. Manhattan Ave. Manhattan, KS. 66502 Ph. 539-1414

KENWOOD KENWOOD KENWOOD
Complete System $799.00

AUDIO JUNCTION, INC.
630 Grant Ave.

HI FI-Car Stereo-Video
Car Stereo Installation
Stereo and Video Repair
1-762-4447
Mon.-Fri. 10-7, Sat. 10-5
SYSTEM-290
KRX-89 Receiver with Cassette Deck
■ 100 Watts Per Channel ■ Discrete Power Amplifier ■ CD and AUX Input ■ Motorized Volume Control ■ Mic Mixing ■ Switchable between Speakers A and B ■ Muting ■ Dual 5-Band Graphic Equalizer with ±12dB Variable Range ■ Digital Synthesizer Tuner ■ 20 Random Station Presets ■ Preset Scan via Remote Controller ■ Dual Step Frequency Beat Reducer ■ In/Out Adaptor Jack ■ Double Auto-Reverse Full-Logic Cassette Deck ■ Dobly* B NR ■ C.C.R.S. (Computer Controlled CD Recording System) ■ D.P.S.S. (Direct Program Search System) ■ Relay Play ■ Timer Recording and Timer Play ■ Dual Speed Dubbing (Real and Double Time) ■ Fully Remote Controllable
JL-690 Speaker System
■ 140 Watts Maximum Input Power ■ 3-Way, 3-Speaker Bass Reflex Configuration ■ Rear Tuned Bass Port ■ 10-Inch Woofer ■ Teak Woodgrain Finish
SRC-590 Audio Cabinet
■ New Rounded Edge Design ■ Safety Glass Door ■ Teak Woodgrain Finish
DP-49 Compact Disc Player
■ C.C.R.S. (Computer Controlled Recording System) ■ D.P.A.C. (Digital Pulse Axis Control) ■ Optimum Servo Control ■ 4-Times Oversampling Digital Filter ■ Twin 16-Bit D/A Converters ■ 3-Beam Laser Pickup ■ 20-Track Random Program Memory ■ Inner Track Audible Search ■ Timer Play ■ 3" CD Single Compatible ■ System Remote Controllable ■ Auto Function

Conservatory construction done

Gardens soon to be installed

By Tammy Rose
Collegian Reporter

The K-State Conservatory's facelift is complete.

The remodeling has been a two-year project, said Mary Lewnes Albrecht, associate professor in horticulture.

Reconstruction started in June 1989 and finished last summer. During June, July and August, workers removed and cleaned the conservatory's glass, reconstructed roof bars and repainted the greenhouse. In fall 1989, they dug trenches around the exterior of the greenhouse and laid insulation. The insulation was needed due to freezing of plants during extremely cold winter months.

In summer 1990, a steam-heating system replaced the old natural-gas system. A state-of-the-art cooling system also was installed which Albrecht said is efficient, will minimize the insect problem, cut down on disease problems and make for a more pleasant working environment.

Albrecht said the facilities management department did the remodeling.

"It was a major effort on their part, and I think they did a wonderful job," she said.

During the remodeling, some of the larger plants, including cacti, had to remain in the greenhouse because they were too big to move. Other plants had to be temporarily moved, said Kent Kimmins, associate professor in horticulture.

"We've been gradually replanting everything that was moved. It has taken a long time," Kimmins said.

Albrecht said there is talk of making the conservatory a historical site. Many believe the conservatory is the first one built in the state, possibly constructed 80 to 85 years ago, she said.

A botanical-garden project was also planted in the conservatory.

The project could take five to ten years, Kimmins said, and costs are expected to run about $500,000.

About $100,000 has been raised through fundraisers and many materials have been donated. Kimmins said there is still a long way to go.

"Right now, we're trying to get the irrigation laid, but we're hoping someone will donate the piping. We still need contributions, though, to carry it on through," Kimmins said.

A variety of rose, rock, herb and other specialty gardens will be featured in the botanical garden, and there are plans to construct small waterfalls.

The Ottaway Rose Garden is already in place, Albrecht said. Blueville Nursery did the groundwork for the garden, which was funded by Clare Ottaway of Viola.

Albrecht said much of the work and materials were donated. Blueville Nursery donated 40 hours of labor, the city of Manhattan donated brick pavers, Darrell and Dorothy Westervelt contributed a cash donation to help with the insulation and Week's Roses in Texas and Bear Creek Garden in California donated 500 rose bushes.

The conservatory is open to the public and is used as research for classes, Albrecht said. When the botanical garden is finished, it will also be available for those uses.

"It's going to be quite a garden," Kimmins said.

Challenger marches to Slattery's office

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Scott Morgan, lending a bit of video-game pizzazz to his campaign for the 2nd District congressional seat, Wednesday presented a yellow cake shaped like a Pac Man to Rep. Jim Slattery's campaign workers.

Morgan, a Republican, said the contributions Slattery has received from political action committees over the past eight years recently reached $1 million.

He dubbed Slattery the $1 million PAC man, after the video game. Slattery, a Democrat, is seeking his fifth two-year term in office. Slattery's acceptance of PAC contributions is an issue Morgan has raised frequently.

Morgan, carrying the cake, and a dozen supporters walked through downtown Topeka to Slattery's campaign office singing "Happy PAC day, dear Jim" to the tune of "Happy Birthday." His supporters wore signs with the names of PACs that have contributed money to Slattery's campaigns, including Detroit Edison and International Longshoremen.

As of Oct. 16, Federal Election Commission records showed that Slattery received $246,600 from PACs so far in 1990. Since he first ran for Congress in 1982, Slattery has raised $1.006 million.

"That kind of money in eight short

■ See MORGAN, Page 12

If you need abortion or birth control services, we can help.
Confidential pregnancy testing•Safe, affordable abortion services•Birth control•Tubal ligation•Gyn exams•
Testing and Treatment for sexually transmitted diseases.
Providing quality health care to women since 1974.
Insurance, VISA & Mastercard accepted.
Comprehensive Health for Women
4401 West 109th (I-435 & Roe)
Overland Park, Kansas
For information and appointments (913) 345-1400
Toll Free 1-800-227-1918

LORDS 'N LADYS
Hair Design & Skin Care Studio
218 S. 4th (V.F.W. Plaza)
776-5651
½ off Facials
½ off Perms (excluding designer perms)
½ off Colors
½ off Haircuts & Style
offer expires Oct. 31 with this ad
Ask for: Rita April Jennifer

ROCKY FORD TAVERN
THURSDAY
1.50 Pitchers of OLD MIL
FRI.-SAT. SUN.
3.25 Pitchers of Coors Lite & Bud
70¢ Draws
Go North on Barnes Rd. 1 mile from bridge

BUSHWACKERS · THE · FUNDRINKERY
Tonight at 8 p.m.
AXΩ
Greek Playboy
$2.85 Pitchers
POWER FM 94.5 Coors

OCTOBERFEST
KRAZY KRIS
NOVELTIES & GIFTS
Oct. 20, Aggieville
Come try the thrills of shooting a paint gun.
Instuction and target shooting available.
Your Halloween Supply Center
1128 Moro Aggieville U.S.A. 539-4567

K-State Players & the Dept. of Speech present
PUMP BOYS & Dinettes
Conceived & written by: John Foley, Mark Hardwick, Debra Monk, Cass Morgan, John Schemmel, John Wann
Oct. 10-13, 16-20
Nichols Theatre—8 p.m.
Matinee Oct. 13—2 p.m.
Tickets: McCain Box Office 532-6428
Sponsored by the Manhattan Town Center
"A nothin' but pure fun, country musical."

BAYSTREET AND THE PIT
TONIGHT!!
.99 PITCHERS
.75 LONGNECKS
.50 WELLS
.25 KAMIS
ONLY AT BAYSTREET

Campus Organizations LINE UP YOUR MEMBERS and get your group picture taken for the 1991 Royal Purple
Sept. 17 through Oct. 25
6:30 to 9 p.m.
Fairchild Hall 202
Maximum number of people in one photo is 30. Larger groups will require extra photo. Minimum number in photo is 10 unless proof of smaller membership is shown.
$10 per photo
Schedule appointment and pay for photo
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday
Kedzie Hall 103
QUESTIONS? CALL 532-6555

THE LOFT'S OCTOBERFEST
OCTOBERFEST SPECIALS
Sat. Only
SWEATER selected 50% off
PANTS selected $15
KNIT TOPS selected $10
Selected Ruff Hewn-Merona-Anne Marie-Hang Ten
30-50% off
the Loft
Women's Casualwear In Aggieville
1207 Moro in Aggieville
Mon.-Sat. 9:30 AM to 5:30 PM
Thur. evening 'til 8:00 PM
Sunday 1-5 PM

TACO BELL'S GUIDE TO
EXCELLENT EXTREMES
Lesson Number 5
Now A lot More for Less
ORIGINAL TACOS ONLY 59¢
FREE SOFT DRINK REFILLS
With the purchase of a soft drink. Dine in only.
AND OUR GREAT TASTING VALUE MENU YOUR CHOICE ONLY 59¢
You can enjoy our great tasting Tostadas, Bean Burritos, Pintos & Cheese or even Soft Shell Tacos.
TACO BELL
1155 Westport Road

BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND
THRIFTY THURSDAY
PYRAMID PIZZA rolls back the prices
Only $3.49 for a small pizza (one topping)
(additional toppings are 75¢ each)
Carryout/Dine In Only
539-4888
12th & Moro Aggieville, USA
COUPON
"THRIFTY THURSDAY"
$3.49 for a Small One-topping Pizza
Good Every Thursday
"We Pile It On!"
PYRAMID PIZZA

Dean

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5

there will be three search committees, each at a different stage in the process of finding a new dean.

The search committee for the College of Education just completed the first step by defining a position description.

"All the clerical work, distribution and mailings are handled by the office of the provost," Wentzel said. "The position announcement just went out to the faculty, administration and key people, the Chronicle for Higher Education and Black Issues for Higher Education."

The position annoucement will also be sent to 720 colleges of education nationwide and several education associations, she said.

Grissom

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

white women whose bodies have not been found.

The three suburban Kansas City women — Joan M. Butler, 24, of Overland Park, and roommates Theresa Brown and Christine Rusch, both 22, of Lenexa — disappeared in June 1989.

Grissom did not appear in court during the first two days of jury selection when a panel of 350 was chosen. He sat in the judge's chambers Wednesday taking notes as 150 potential jurors drawn from the original panel were interviewed individually.

Security in the courthouse was tight. Six officers patrolled the hallway outside the courtroom, and everyone entering had to pass through a metal detector.

The judge said general questioning will begin in open court when the panel is reduced to 36.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

CLASS ADS

Kedzie 103 — 532-6555

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

ARE YOUR health insurance premiums continually increasing? Health conditions keeping you from getting adequate coverage? Call for more information. Billie Gallaher. 539-5676.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193 after 5:30p.m.

"HOMEMADE HAPPINESS," Craft and Bake Sale, Saturday, Oct. 20, 9a.m.— 3p.m. City Auditorium, 11th and Poytnz. Sponsored by the Manhattan Jaycees.

KSU ALL Crew meeting, 8p.m. in Little Theatre, Sunday.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial, Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

2 Apartments—Furnished

SHARE LARGE home with empty-nested executive mom. Private bedroom. 537-4907 for appointment.

AVAILABLE JAN. 1. Private bedrooms for three neat and tidy females sharing very nice, large four-bedroom, two-bath home with KSU student owner. 539-1288.

RENT FREE country living in exchange for occasional assistance to wheelchair bound landlady. Some lifting. 1-494-8201.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

AVAILABLE NOW. One-bedroom near campus, $325, year lease, no pets, laundry facilities, central air. Call for appointment 776-3804.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

ADULT MALE needed, non-smoker, rent $187.50 and utilities. Call (913)537-2939 nights after 4p.m.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY! Nice one-bedroom apartment close to campus and Aggieville. Heat paid. 537-4515.

TWO-BEDROOM APARTMENT. $330 per month, utilities paid except electricity. Call 539-2017 evenings.

5 Automobile for Sale

1979 CHEVY Caprice Classic, runs excellent, air conditioning, AM/FM stereo, power windows, locks, brakes, steering. $1,200. 539-3390.

1979 PONTIAC Sunbird for sale, low mileage, good school car, blue. $800. 532-5452.

1986 MERCURY Cougar, excellent condition, digital dash, AM/FM cassette, V-6 automatic. Call 532-3380.

FOR SALE— 1978 Trans Am, new high performance 455, air conditioning, electric window and locks, stereo pull-out. $2,800 or offer. 539-6765.

FOR SALE— 1984 Escort GT, five-speed, cruise control, great condition, $2,900 or offer. 539-6765.

6 Child Care

CHILD CARE in our home. Needed immediately loving care for an adorable one-year-old, approximately four hours per day (mornings), live in Jardine Terrace. Good pay and lunch provided. Call weekends or afternoon weekdays. 776-7718.

7 Computers

12" COLOR video monitor. Great for VCR or computer. $120 or best offer. 537-6026.

USED HEWLETT Packard 285 calculator. Excellent condition! Call 539-5231.

(Continued on page 11)

LOOKING FOR AN EXCITING CAREER? JOIN ANNIE'S SANTA FE MEXICAN RESTAURANT AND CANTINA

Opening October 22nd in Topeka. Waiters & waitresses, prep cooks, line cooks, dish people, bus people, cocktail waitresses, hostesses, & bartenders. Full & part time positions available. Applications will be taken daily between 8:00 a.m. & 7:00 p.m. for any of the positions listed above.

ANNIE'S SANTA FE

Westridge Mall
1801 S. W. Wanamaker Road
Topeka, Kansas
271-1060

Don't Forget 99¢ Pitchers Tonight only at Baystreet

HALLOWEEN HAS ARRIVED AT GREEN THUMB
SPOOKIE DECORATIONS
1105 Waters 539-4751

Aggieville's 10th Annual
Oktoberfest
Sat., Oct. 20
10-5
Volksmarch, Food & Craft Fair
Fun for the whole family

Brittnay Ridge Townhomes
—More Than Your Basic Apartment—
•4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, study room
•Wired for cable, phone, computer
•Hot tubs & volleyball court
•Bus service to campus
•Monthly rent as low as $195
DWC Dan Weir Co.
2601 Anderson Ave. 776-5599

GET YOUR CAR READY FOR FALL
LUBE, OIL (UP TO 5 QTS.), FILTER
MOST POPULAR BRANDS
$15.95
by appointment only
537-1201
1026 Poyntz
Parkside CONOCO & U-Haul

KANSAS AAA for information on membership call:
JOY C. LOVIN
MEMBERSHIP REPRESENTATIVE
1-800-365-5222
EMERGENCY ROAD SERVICE

4¢ Self-Serve Copies
Exp. 10/22
1329 Anderson
537-7340
kinko's the copy center

HUNAM Restaurant & Lounge
Mini-Lunch Buffet
$4.50
11:30-2 M-F
Open 7 Days
We Deliver
1304 Westloop
539-8888 or 539-0888

MOTORCYCLE SUPPLY

Soft Saddle Bags	$69.95
Tank Bag	$59.95
Motorcycle Cover	$45.00
Full Vetter Helmet	$60.00
Cargo Net	$45.00
Shoei & Bieffe Face Shields
Winter Gloves

776-6177
OPEN Mon.-Sat. 9:30-6:30
1221 Moro on alley Aggieville

Have "You" Had Your Frozen Yogurt Today??
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers
Aggieville

Nautilus Total Fitness Club
OPEN HOUSE!
Today through Saturday
•Free workouts, aerobics & more
•Membership specials—up to 50% off!
•Register to win Free memberships
1100 Moro Aggieville
Serving Manhattan since 1981
776-1654

Blue River Pub
Thurs., Oct. 18
$1.50 Wells
50¢ Maui Shots
Fri. and Sat.
Big Richard
$1 Kamis
50¢ Jello Whammies
18 to Enter, 21 to Drink

Ballroom Dance Classes
starting Sunday, Oct. 21
2-3 p.m.
Call Sharon Washington Dance Studio
537-2549
425 Houston

CPI photo finish one hour photo
Save 50%
on color processing & 4x6 prints
Each picture is the best it can be or we reprint it free... now!
4x6 Color Prints 50% off regular one-hour price
No limit on number of rolls discounted with this coupon. Print length varies with film size. C41 in lab process only. not combinable with other processing and print offers. Coupon good through Jan. 19, 1991
Photo Christmas Cards 20% off regular price
Personalized Christmas Cards made from your favorite color negative . . . with mailing envelopes included. Choose from several holiday messages. No limit. not combinable with other greeting card offers. Coupon good on orders received by Dec. 8, 1990
one hour services: photo finishing • enlargements • reprints • double prints
also available: wallet photos • instant color passport photos • video transfer • copies from prints • cameras and accessories • film
Manhattan Town Center
main entrance by food court

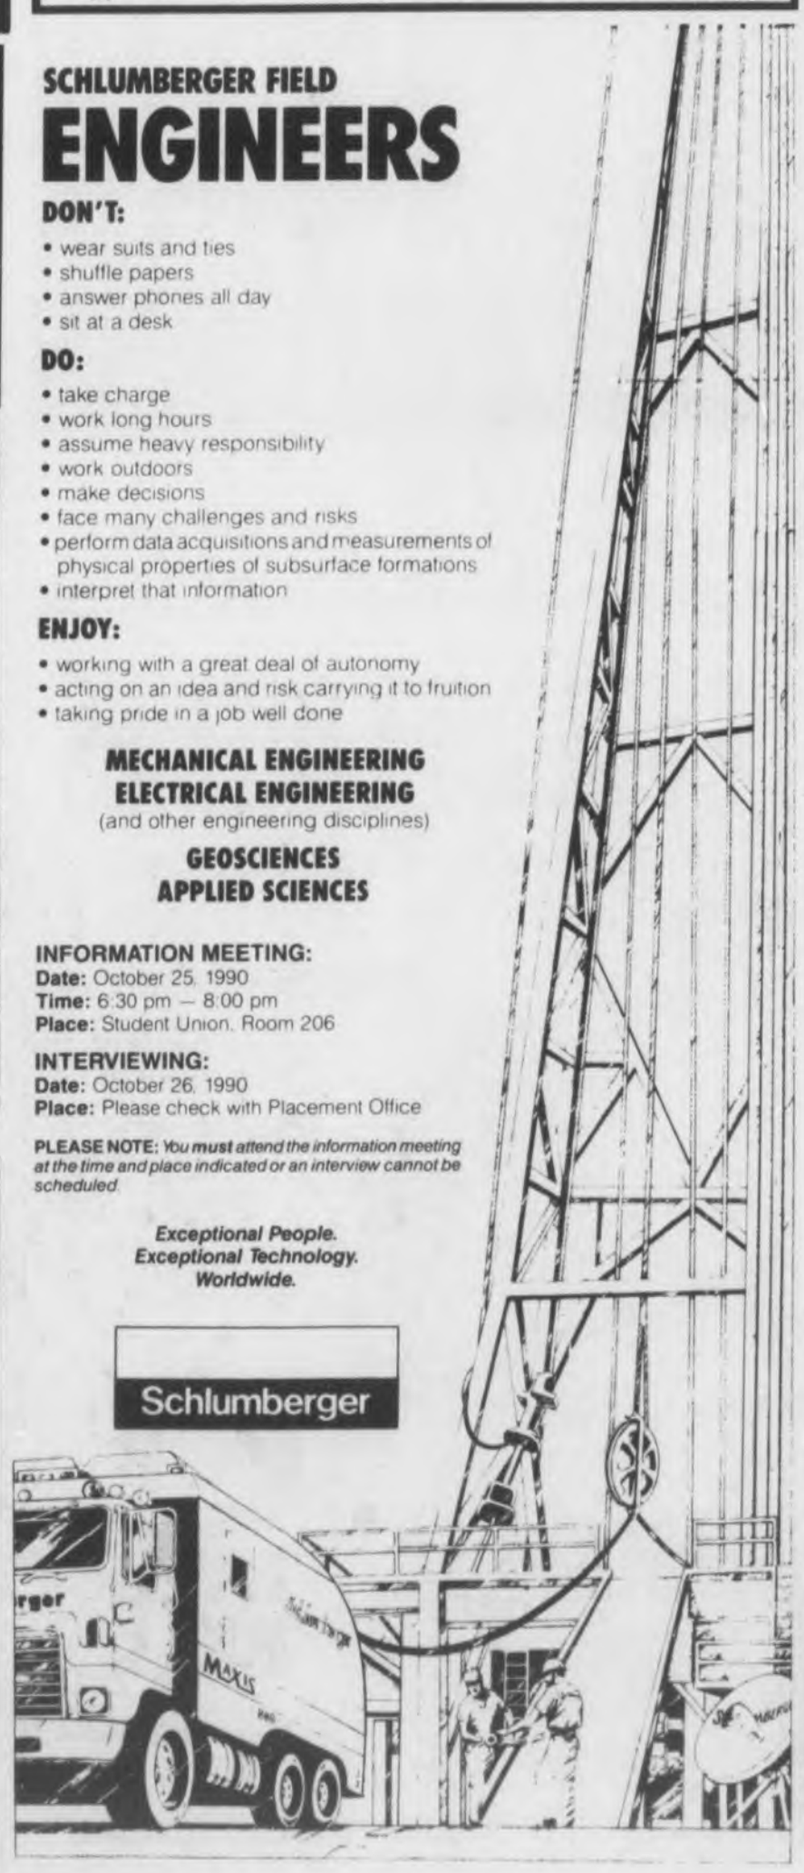
SCHLUMBERGER FIELD ENGINEERS

DON'T:
• wear suits and ties
• shuffle papers
• answer phones all day
• sit at a desk

DO:
• take charge
• work long hours
• assume heavy responsibility
• work outdoors
• make decisions
• face many challenges and risks
• perform data acquisitions and measurements of physical properties of subsurface formations
• interpret that information

ENJOY:
• working with a great deal of autonomy
• acting on an idea and risk carrying it to fruition
• taking pride in a job well done

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
(and other engineering disciplines)
GEOSCIENCES
APPLIED SCIENCES



INFORMATION MEETING:
Date: October 25, 1990
Time: 6:30 pm — 8:00 pm
Place: Student Union, Room 206

INTERVIEWING:
Date: October 26, 1990
Place: Please check with Placement Office

PLEASE NOTE: You must attend the information meeting at the time and place indicated or an interview cannot be scheduled.

Exceptional People. Exceptional Technology. Worldwide.

Schlumberger

Arts & Science Council Elections

Are You Interested In The College of Arts & Sciences or Student Government? Arts & Science Council Applications are now available in Eisenhower 117. Applications due back in Eisenhower Friday, Oct. 26 by 5 p.m.

•Vote in the Union Oct. 31, 9-5

McCAIN

Kathleen ni Houlihan's Sons and Daughters
Scenes from the 20th Century Irish Theatre

Actors from the London Stage
Thursday, October 25, 8 p.m.
Brian Friel's Faith Healer, a scintillating tale of a traveling medicine man, headlines an evening that probes the treasure trove of Irish theatre. Join five British players as they explore Sean O'Casey's Plough and the Stars and Red Roses for Me and J.M. Synge's Playboy of the Western World and Riders to the Sea.

No leprechauns or shamrocks here! Just some of the most exciting, passionate, comical, hopeful, exasperating, and engaging theatre in the English language.

General Public: $12
Senior Citizens: $10
Students/Children: $6

McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays.

McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

(Continued from page 10)

HAVING PROBLEMS with your computer or printer? Need to upgrade your systems memory, monitor or just a larger hard drive? Need a second party book on a certain program? ABACUS Computer and Supply, 539-7007, 1111 Waters.

IBM PC Jr.— Color monitor, remote keyboard, expanded memory, software. Asking $425. Robert, 776-5526.

8 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such 'employment opportunity' with reasonable caution.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ATTENTION: STUDENTS! Earn $15/ hour working in your spare time on campus. Flexible hours, 1-800-688-4733.

BAYSTREET NEEDS waitresses, bouncers and bartenders. Apply in afternoons at Baystreet.

DRIVERS NEEDED full or part time. Good M.V.R. Must be 25 or older. 539-2284.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EVENING AND Daytime office and telephone sales help needed. Pleasant working conditions, hourly wage and excellent bonuses. Call 537-6163, 9a.m.—4p.m.

GARDEN CENTER sales clerk: Mature person with chemical and fertilizer knowledge, some horticulture and greenhouse experience— great, but not necessary. 30-40 hours includes weekends. Must work through Christmas and spring break. $4/ hour. Send resume to Collegian, Box 6.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. CIA, U.S. Customs, DEA, etc. Now hiring. Call 1-805-687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

NOW HIRING cooks, busboys and dishwashers. Part-time help. Call for application and interview. Call 539-2651.

OVERSEAS JOBS. $900— $2,000/ month. Summer, year-round. All countries. All fields. Free information. Write IJC, P.O. Box 52-KSo2, Corona Del Mar, CA 92625.

TELEPHONE INTERVIEWERS needed. Up to 40 hours at a salary of $6 per hour. Contact Ken Zarybricky at 532-6842 between 1 and 5p.m. Application deadline Oct. 19th.

TWO NANNIES needed by Jan. 1 for two families in Brewster N.Y. Must drive, swim. Non-smoker preferred. One year commitment. Excellent living conditions plus salaries. (914)279-5963.

HOME TYPISTS, PC users needed. $35,000 potential. Details. 1-805-687-6000, Ext. B-9701.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. Federal, CIA, U.S. Customs, D.E.A., etc. Now hiring. Listings. 1(805)687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

9 Food Specials

Bobby J's
Thursdays
Booga Booga Night
Any Burger and Fries Only
$1.99 + drink specials for the ladies
16 oz. Mason Jar of draft $1.25
539-1571

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

COUCH AND matching chair. Like new. Call 539-1452.

DRAFTING DESK with set of matching drawers and stool, $100 or best offer. 776-2127.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: MALE cat, black and grey striped in Westloop area. 776-8606.

FOUND: TAN Cocker Spaniel at 10th and Vattier, Thursday (Oct. 11th). Call 776-7125.

FOUND: VERY expensive textbook in Lafene Health Center Thursday. Please come in to identify.

LOST: DENIM jacket with hood, St. John's Bay. HP-325 calculator in pocket. Reward $20. 776-4997.

LOST: NFL Football on roof of Union 10/13. Possibly blown off and found Sunday or Monday. 776-6800 anytime.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

OWN THIS 12' wide, two-bedroom, $135 monthly for 24 months. Large selection. Countryside. 539-2325.

19 Music/ Musicians

YAMAHA STUDENT model trumpet. Recently cleaned. $120 or best offer. 537-6026.

Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

By Bob Berry

Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind

Jim's Journal

By Jim

Calvin and Hobbes

By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

21 Personals

We require a form of picture ID (KSU or driver's license or other) when placing a personal.

AKL JEFF— Good luck tonight at Greek Playboy!! Love your AX escort, Cindy.

AZD SCOBY— Roses are red, Violets are blue, You may be queen of the tripod, but we're one up on you! Paybacks are hell! Solomon and Schneider.

BETA LEE— Good times we've had with more to come... come Thursday nite, there'll be more fun. You're an awesome Greek playboy. Tons of luck to you. Cheers! AX Dana.

CHRIS, ABOUT six months ago on a Wednesday night, I met this ADPi who seemed to be just right. We talked and danced and thought it was great. Three days later was our first date. Now six months later I just want to say, I Love You, Chris. Happy Birthday!

CREW MATT: Happy 21st Birthday, Sweetheart! "Snobby."

DEE, YOU didn't show at 1:30 Tuesday. This matter is urgent. Call me. Katy.

DELTA SIG Dave— Greek Playboy is tonight. Be yourself, have lots of fun, and remember you'll always be my #1! Love —Erin.

DELTA SIG Dave— Tonite you'll be the hottest those judges will ever see. Love, your Alpha Chi Escort.

DU DENNIS— Get ready to drink some beer and shake your rear— Greek Playboy '90 is finally here! Good Luck! AX, Michelle.

ELVA— THETA Mom and Dot, What a pair we'll be. Have any guesses? Well tonight you'll see! Theta Love, Mom.

HEY SPIDERMAN and Pretty Boy. Destination Columbia: Possess golden "You Know," willing to travel, always a team player. Ha Ha Ha. Have a great weekend!

JENNIFER W.— Tonight you will see who your Theta Mom will be. With open arms we'll welcome thee to our Great big Family. Theta Love, Mom.

JENNY N.— You are righteous!

KAPPA SIG John— Tonite's the nite we'll show the rest, that your Playboy skills are the best. You'll win modeling, the auction, legs and interview. You're the greatest and I'm backing you! Good Luck, your escort, Amy!

KEN S.— I've been working in Vail all summer. And I bet you're thinking, "Oh gee, what a bummer." Just in town passin' through, and wanted to say hi to you. D.D.

PHI DELT Matt— Tonight is the night for all to see, you become Alpha Chi's Greek Playboy 1990. Good luck! Your AX escort, Paige.

RACHEL, ROSES are red, Violets are blue, for 21 years I've been loving you. Happy Anniversary. Pat.

RAGS: HOPE your week is going great! How about our park trip? Smile! Luv, Amy.

SAE ERIC— GREEK Playboy '90 is finally here. Show some leg and you'll hear us cheer. Good luck tonight! AX Lisa.

SEH: I admire your determination to get through this. Hang in there— only 8 weeks left! I love you, and I know you can do it! —SRH.

SIGMA CHI Eric: The time is near to drink some beer and win Greek Playboy '90. I'll be cheering for you! AX Anne.

SIGMA NUS, The tent and olympics memories will stay, but Homecoming is just two weeks away. Let's build some bodies and yell like hell, with the couple of the year, Brad and Shell! Basically we want to say thanks for the campout and let's Rock On All The Way! Love, Chi-O.

THERE IS a circulation librarian named Cherie, Who is normally bright and merry, But an overdue fine really makes her eyes shine, With a look that is truly quite scary.

THERE ONCE was a library staff, Who kept trying to make us laugh?? This talk about fines is making us lose our minds, please do something better with our cash!!

THETA ALLISON— We know you've been guessing and wondering all week, so just follow the clues for the mom that you seek. Get excited for tonight— for you'll finally see who your, "I-can't-wait-to-see-you," pledge mom in Theta will be! Theta Love, Mom and Grandma.

THETA CONI— Cry no more, my baby dot. Am I a secret forever? Surely not! Just follow your string around and around and when you reach the end, I'll be found! Love, Mom.

THETA DENISE— Don't you worry, I'll give you a clue— Look in the mirror, the reflection is so true! Love, Mom.

THETA DHANNA— Get excited!! Your special night is almost here! Theta Love, Mom.

THETA DOT Julie, Tonight you will see who your pledge mom will be. We're a mom dot pair with lots of love to share!

THETA DOT Anne— Pansies, Kites and Twin Stars bright, you will get the best Mom tonight!

THETA DOT Shank— I've tried to trick you, Didn't give you a clue, But my Dot is no fool, 'Cause her Mom is so cool! See you tonite! Theta love, Mom.

THETA ERIN— I'm so excited for you to join our family! Love, your aunt.

THETA ERIN: Somebody's been lying to you! You just might be surprised tonight! Love, Mom.

THETA KATHIE— Put the clues together and what does it spell? If you still don't know, never fear, just follow the string and I'll be near— Love, Mom.

THETA KELLI R.— Tonight you will see how much fun mom and dot can be. Love, mom.

THETA MICHELLE: You're my dot, I'm your mom, Together we will get along. Come to the Theta house, follow the string, for family togetherness it will bring. Theta Love, Mom.

THETA PAULA— Pansies are for thoughts; and our thoughts are of you! We are so happy that you will soon belong to our family! Love, Mom.

THETA SARA A.— My hair, as my Mom said, is a popular color. Do you know who I am yet? Just wait a little longer and you will find me at the end of your string. Love, Mom.

THETA— SINK: Over the chairs and through the stairs to find your mom you'll go. At the end of the string good things I will bring and my name you will know! Love, Mom.

THETAS JESSICA, Cody, Kelli and Clifford— Tonight grab your bottles and your booties, just follow the string, our little cuties! Your proud mommies will be waiting.

THETA TORI: Tonight, my dot, you will find out, What your Theta family is all about. Get excited! Love, Mom.

THETA TRACY— Do you think you know me? Well tonight you'll see who your Theta mom will be. Love, Mom.

TKE KEITH— Tonight's the night you'll pass the Greek Playboy test. At 'Wackers we'll show 'em all that TKE is best! —Your AX escort Jill.

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

AKC REGISTERED Rotwielers, shots and wormed. After 6p.m. 776-9319.

FOR SALE— Registered Persian kittens. Shaded silver, camco and cream. AKC Sheltie puppies. 1-632-3201.

23 Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

SUFFERING FROM abortion? Write: HeartsRestored, Box 94, Grinnell, Kansas 67738. Confidential response will follow.

New Sunbed
Tanning 10 for $25
Laramie Plaza Basement 539-7095

Chiropractors add years to your life and life to your years!
Call today for an appointment.
537-8305
Dr. Mark Hatesohl
3252 Kimball Avenue
Candlewood Shopping Center

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— More than just typing— we create the resume with you, so it reflects your best. Then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience in University Career Center.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851, Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100 or 1-456-9642, Wamego.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE CHRISTIANS looking for roommate. $100 per month plus one-fourth utilities. $150 deposit. Call 776-8873.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: $142.50/ month. One-half utilities. Rest of October rent free. Park Place Apartments. 539-8391.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Female, three-bedroom house. 537-3653.

FOR SPRING semester, two or one roommate wanted. $160 or $230 rent plus utilities. 1212 Bluemont, 776-0797.

26 Stereo Equipment

FOR SALE: Home subwoofer, 200 watts, built-in amp, crossover, volume, protector, $400. 539-3732.

FOR SALE: Sony Discman with every accessory for home and car. Paid $225, asking $140. 539-2963.

27 Sports/Recreation Equipment

SAILBOARD— 10'4" transition board with rig, 5.6m2 sail, centerboard, excellent condition, $450. 776-6073 after 5p.m.

30 Travel/Car Pool

KSU vs. KU
Oct. 27
$10
Round trip transportation to Lawrence. Join other K-State fans and watch the game from the hill.
Classic Travel & Tours
1212 Moro • 537-7546

SKI
JANUARY LAST CHANCE! SPRING BREAK
STEAMBOAT $177
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
BRECKENRIDGE $184
JANUARY 2-9 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
VAIL/BEAVER CREEK $247
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
9th ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS
Sunchase Ski & Beach Breaks
TOLL FREE INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS— Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. Boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more. Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday— Saturday 9a.m.— 5p.m. St. Mary's Surplus Sales, St. Mary's, Kansas 1-437-2734.

NEW, FULL length men's black leather trench coat, $400 or best offer. 539-1182.

NINTENDO— SYSTEM plus three games. Brand new with all boxes, instructions. $125. 776-1638. Leave message.

UNUSUAL ANTIQUES for sale: Baby stroller with metal frame, canvas cover, two large and two small wheels, $75; portable Phonola phonograph in wooden case, $50. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m. If no answer, leave message.

33 Tutor

TUTOR: PHYSICS and chemistry. Please leave a message if I'm out. 537-0356.

VERY QUALIFIED tutor for Spanish. Affordable rates. Call Leticia 539-6832 after 9p.m.

34 Horses

HORSEBACK RIDING, hourly rates, group rates. Call for appointment. Boarding, training also. 1-238-2681.

35 NCAAW

BLUFFING— MINOR in possession (MIP) is a Class C misdemeanor and can result in a fine up to $600 —Alcohol: Is it a gamble? —NCAAW 1990.

CASHING IN your chips— 22,415 Americans were killed, in 1989, in alcohol-related accidents. Drinking and driving: Is it worth the gamble? —NCAAW 1990.

FULL HOUSE— 48 hours to 6 months in jail (1st DUI conviction) —Alcohol: Is it a gamble? —NCAAW 1990.

NCAAW— NATIONAL Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week 1990. Alcohol: Is it a gamble? Funding in part provided by City of Manhattan and KSU Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service.

TRUMP CARD— When drinking, choose a designated driver (or call a cab) —NCAAW 1990.

36 Nanny

EXPERIENCED NANNY looking for family, full-time. For information call 776-9649, Mandy.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Fiber source
5 Cos —, CT
8 "A Visit from St. Nicholas" opener
12 Othello's ensign
13 Shared by us
14 Congress VIP
15 Lend an unsavory hand
16 Through
17 "— Camera" (play)
18 Raoul's wrap
20 Enormous
22 What this answer has
26 Wintertime warmer
29 Shade provider
30 Evaluate
31 "Hi, sailor!"
32 George Smiley, e.g.
33 Small plateau
34 "— Abner"
35 Diamonds
36 Beginning of life?
37 What this answer has
40 Rochester clinic
41 Plum-like fruit
45 Stork's passenger
47 Bill
49 Desire
50 Medley
51 "I" strain?
52 Comedienne McClurg
53 Succotash component
54 Ply an oar
55 Phoenix five

DOWN
1 Archie Bunker's problem
2 Playwright David
3 Antiquing apparatus
4 "A Secretary Is —"
5 Bewitching group?
6 Quebecois' agreement
7 Sans cowardice
8 Checker move?
9 Anything at all
10 Pick a target
11 Resort
19 Cause of royal insomnia?
21 24-hr. bank: abbr.
23 Cartoon skunk
24 Everything else
25 Go no further
26 A little lower?
27 Cairo's river
28 New York campus
32 Skateboard with a handle?
33 Islamic churches
35 28 Down's adornment
36 Ziegfeld
38 First synthetic fiber
39 Nudge
42 Pakistan language
43 Not "fer"
44 Golf-bag supply
45 Bing's pal
46 Pub potation
48 Past

Solution time: 23 mins.

		F	R	A				L	O	A
	A	L	E	C			L	I	M	N	S
A	L	A	M	O			O	N	I	O	N	S
C	A	T	O	N	I	N	E	T	A	I	L	S
E	S	S		I	T	E	R	S		P	I	R
		S	T	E	R			M	E	M	O
	A	D	E	E	M		A	W	A	R	E
G	R	E	W			A	D	I	T
A	L	L		S	U	S	A	N		A	S	A
S	E	V	E	N	T	H	H	E	A	V	E	N
	S	E	N	A	T	E		S	N	O	R	T
		D	I	K	E	S		A	S	I	A
			D	E	R			P	A	D

Yesterday's answer 10-18

CRYPTOQUIP

10-18

ITVRAK PAPZKQF PDURMU SPM IDTGZ TX BRM ZDPSRCO TX P MGMIKAU PU VPDOK. "RU DKPVVF APIUGDKM BRQ."

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: WINNER OF CITRUS FRUIT-GROWING CONTEST WAS IN THE LIME-LIGHT.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: V equals L

Rereleased album dull, monotonous

COLLEGIAN Report Card
"CRAZY RHYTHMS"
D+

By Rebecca Sack
Collegian Reviewer

The old has become new — or at least rereleased.

The Feelies' "Crazy Rhythms" is back in the music stores for anyone who missed it in 1980. Being true to its era, this album brings back a lot of late 1970s and early 1980s alternative music.

Some of the songs sound so much like The Violent Femmes that I finally had to stop listening to the tape when anyone else was around for fear that I would have to explain again who The Feelies were and why they are not the Femmes.

Not content to be a collection of old remakes of even older songs, "Crazy Rhythms" lives up to its name. Nearly every song starts off with an incredibly long intro of a monotonous beat or repeating sound. The Feelies use a variety of instruments — timbali, sandpaper, claves, tom-toms, snare drum, temple block, shaker, boxes, maracas, pipe, cowbell, can, bell, coat rack, castanets, sleigh bells, spasmodic drums, reverbed sticks and shoes — at least to attempt something creative.

Despite the variety of percussion sounds, the album is still overwhelmingly monotonous. Every song sounds the same. The same weak, whiny lyrics are half-spoken, half-sung by three unenthusiastic guys.

The most memorable song on the album is "Fa Ce-La." The vocals by Bill Million and Glenn Mercer are sleepy, but the French is a least interesting after one has waded through the gigantic introduction.

The entire album sounds like someone absentmindedly humming a few familiar tunes. That may be nice if you are that someone. Unless you enjoy listening to other people singing in the shower, humming to their homework or whistling while they work, "Crazy Rhythms" is not for you.

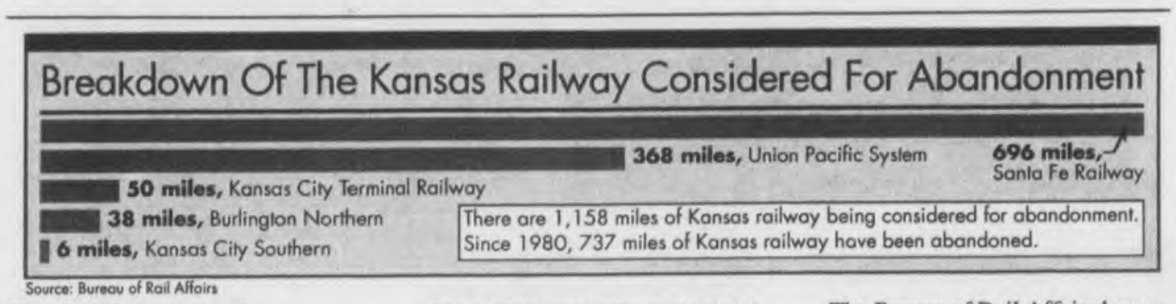
Morgan

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9

years is incredible," Morgan said.

Pam Murray, Slattery's campaigning manager, was present when Morgan and his singing supporters presented the cake, which was shaped like the yellow circular figure that gobbles up dots in the video game.

"The cake looks good," Murray said. "We have some hungry volunteers."



She said the special interest groups that have made contributions to Slattery had Kansas members or represented Kansas interests.

Morgan also has accepted PAC money, she said, about $7,000 from Campaign America, a Republican political action organized by Sen. Bob Dole.

Morgan said he took the lighthearted tactic because Slattery appeared so indifferent to what Morgan said is voter outrage at special interest money that laughter seemed the best approach.

He said 90 percent of Slattery campaign money come from PACs during the first half of 1990.

Morgan, a Lawrence attorney, is a former aide to Dole and Gov. Mike Hayden.

Source: Bureau of Rail Affairs

Railroad

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

area, it keeps truck rates lower and makes it a very competitive business," Scheirman said. "But when the railroads pull out, the truck prices increase."

The increase in shipping costs have a direct effect on farmers who will get a lower price for their crops.

Byron Ulery, general manager of Farmway Co-op Inc., estimated additional operating costs will amount to 5 to 10 cents per bushel of grain if they have to rely solely on trucks to ship their products.

The additional trucks on the highways present another set of problems for the Kansas Department of Transportation.

"KDOT has 1,000 miles of highway to keep up, and we are very concerned about this extra traffic," Scheirman said. "Large, fully loaded trucks have a significant effect on roads.

"At one time, railroads could either abandon a line or operate it at a loss, but the short lines have created a third alternative," Scheirman said.

Even with this third alternative, some lines will still be abandoned and the tracks will be pulled up.

The Bureau of Rail Affairs has estimated that 3,000 miles of line will be abandoned over the next several decades.

"Realistically, short lines may be able to pick up half of the 3,000 lines which may be abandoned," Scheirman said.

Abandonment threatens hardship for all.

"It's really a very painful process for us," Westphal said. "We don't want to pull up all of our rail. It's very sad that there are people that this really will hurt, and that's very hard on us."

Soldiers

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

changed their attitude and wondered what he had died for. The public stripped him of all dignity and honor."

Opinion polls have attempted to capture America's mood on U.S. involvement in the Middle East. The public seems to have mixed emotions.

"When I went overseas toward the end of the war, it was not supported by the American public," said Bill Arck, director of Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service. "Military personnel in Saudi Arabia seem to have American support. It is really ironic because it seems like America has become two different countries since Vietnam."

Arck, a former Air Force sergeant with the 7th Radio Research Field Station, served at Vientiane, which is located near Udorn, Thailand. Arck served in Southeast Asia from 1974-75.

Arck said he doesn't know if public opinion will change if any American soldiers are killed. He said he hopes the public will give a warm welcome to the people who come home from Saudi Arabia.

"I hope they are welcomed home to the ribbons, parades and cheers," Arck said. "But, it is going to very painful to some Vietnam veterans because I think we could have been received home better."

COUPONS TO CLIP

IMPRESSIONS
Hair Design & Body Toning
$5 OFF
All CHEMICAL Services
OR Haircut with Style
Reserve Your Appointment today with Frank
1129 Moro Aggieville
Expires: Nov. 15, 1990
537-1332

WITH THIS COUPON:
$3 OFF ADULT Costume Rental
$2 OFF CHILD Costume Rental
Marie's Costumes
2011 Ft. Riley Blvd. • 539-5200
Hours: M-Sat. 10-6
Sun. 12-5

HAIR AFFAIR
Designs for Men and Women
$7 Haircuts
We offer Finelle Color Analysis & Makeovers
Town East Center
(Across the parking lot from Food-4-Less) 776-5488
Expires November 30, 1990

OPEN 7 DAYS A WEEK
HUNAM EXPRESS
1116 MORO
537-0886
This coupon good for
Spicy and Tangy Chicken $2.50
not good with any other special, promo, delivery.
Free Delivery with min. $9 order
Open 11 a.m.-1 a.m.
Expires 10/24/90

FALSETTO'S PIZZA
At Your Convenience We Again DELIVER
539-3830
Also: Dine in & Carryout
2-10 in. Pizzas
2 Pepsi
$8.00
2-12 in. Pizzas
2 Pepsi
2 Toppings
$9.99
1127 Moro
Offer expires 10-30-90

UPC Arts Lectures Movies Outdoors Performances Travel
ALL ABOARD WITH UPC

"ELEGANTLY FUNNY . . . 'A Room With a View' is like a holiday out of time. Splendidly acted. . . Quite an achievement." – Vincent Canby, NEW YORK TIMES
A Room with a View
Cinema

FUN! MUSIC! DRAMA!
An exciting story to thrill NEW millions!
Walt Disney's Bambi
TECHNICOLOR
5 HAPPY SONG HITS!
From the Story by FELIX SALTEN
© Walt Disney Productions, Inc.
Re-released by BUENA VISTA Distribution Co., Inc.

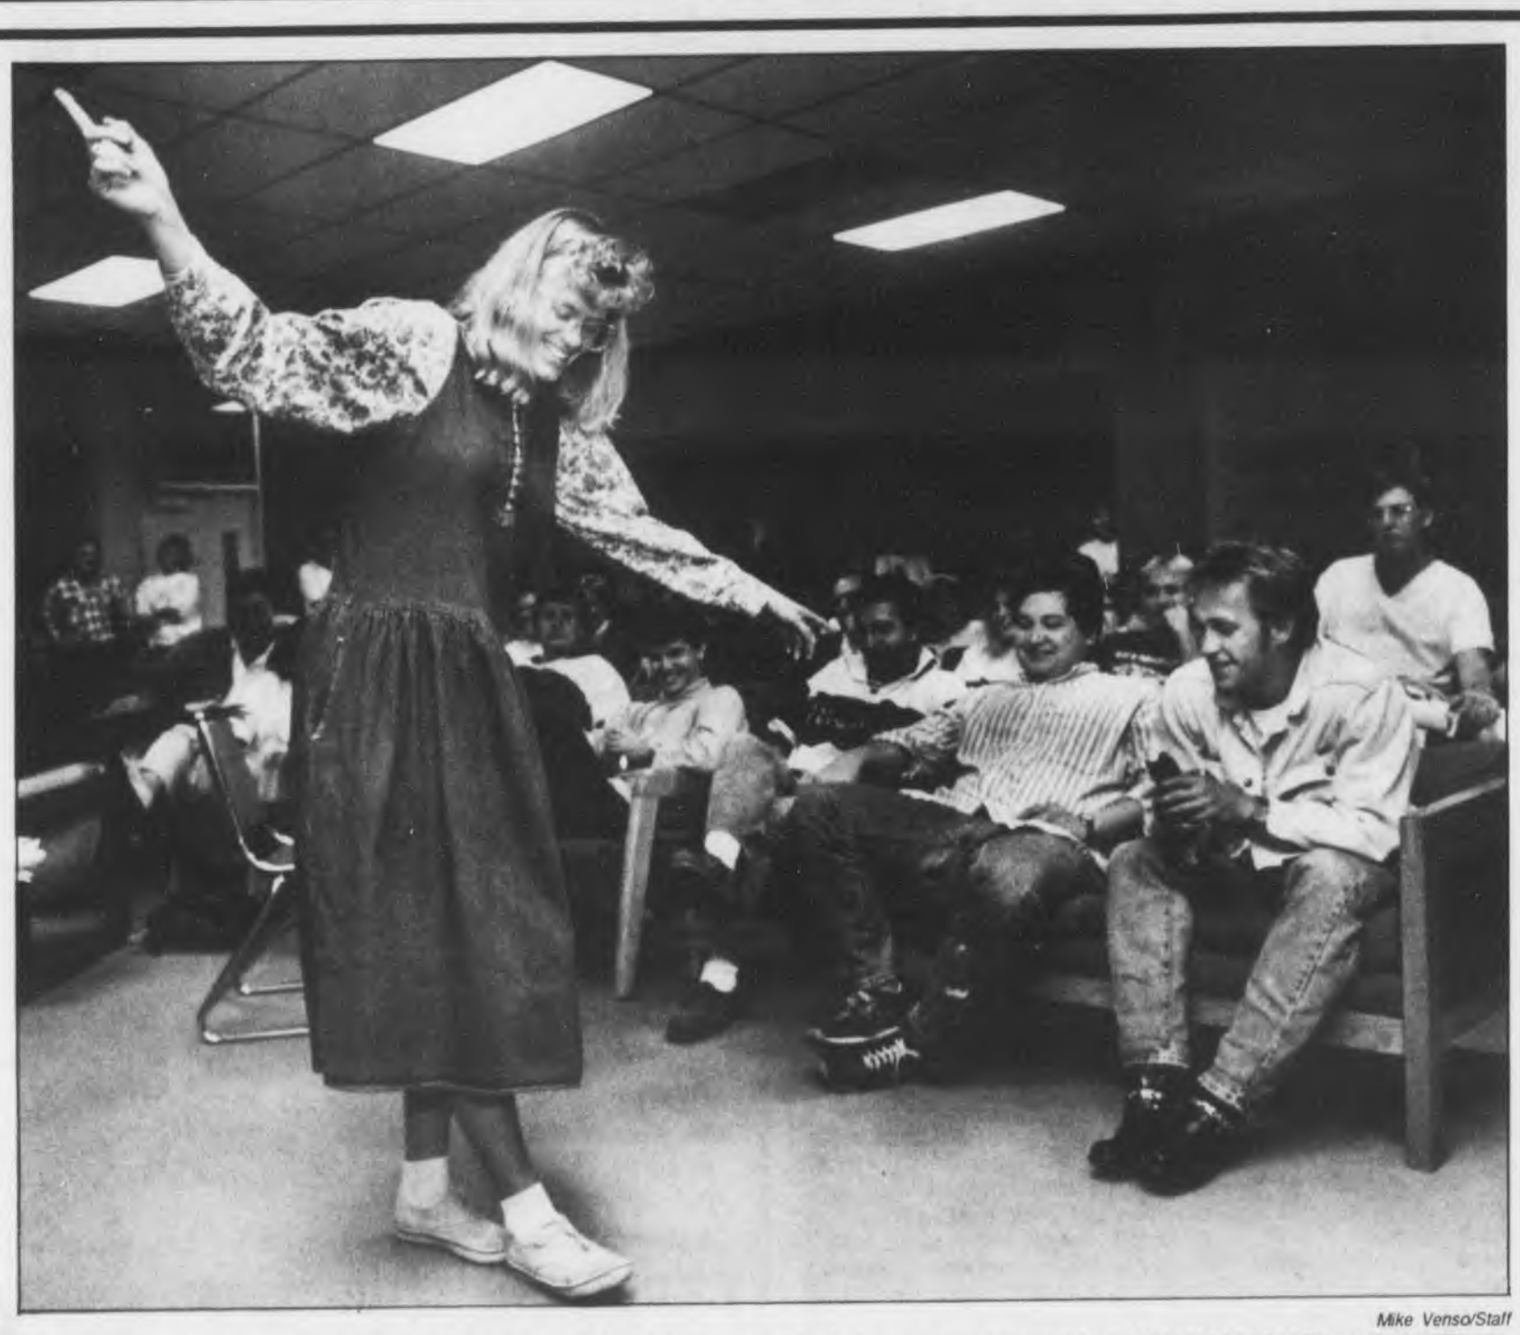
"BLUE VELVET is a mystery . . . a masterpiece . . . a visionary story of sexual awakening, of good and evil, a trip to the underworld."
Blue Velvet
R

Thursday and Friday, October 18 & 19
A ROOM WITH A VIEW (GREAT BRITAIN)
Set partly in picturesque turn-of-the-century Florence and partly in the gorgeous English countryside, this film is a delicious story of Lucy Honeychurch, a young Englishwoman who travels to Italy in conventions of Victorian England. THURSDAY, 7 p.m., Forum Hall, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre & Friday, 7 p.m. Little Theatre. $1.75 with KSU ID.

Saturday and Sunday, October 20 & 21
BAMBI
Captivating generations of moviegoers, Bambi may well be the most adorable and beloved animated character of all time. Adults and children can't help but fall in love with Bambi and his friends, Thumper and Flower. SATURDAY and SUNDAY, 2 p.m., Forum Hall. $1.50.

Friday and Saturday, October 19 & 20
BLUE VELVET (KAL)
David Lynch's critically-acclaimed mystery intertwines the lives of four individuals: a naive college student, a cabaret singer with a dark secret, a detective's daughter who embodies innocence and a psychotic killer fueled by his own sexual fantasies. Rated R. FRIDAY and SATURDAY, Midnight, Forum Hall. $1.75 with KSU ID.
k-state union upc kaleidoscope

Steamboat
CHRISTMAS BREAK
SKI TRIP TO STEAMBOAT
January 7-12 $252
($290 with ski rental)
Whatever your Christmas break passion, Steamboat can bring on a glow. Be it waist deep excitement, the comforts and conveniences of a world class resort, or the companionship of thousands of other college students, Steamboat has what makes a college skier's world go ' round. With its sparkling champagne powder, wide-open groomed trails, and exuberant night life, Steamboat blends the authenticity of the Old West with the cutting edge of technology and state-of-the-art facilities.
We'll be staying at the luxurious Timber Run Condominiums, only a swift 2 minutes from Gondola Plaza and all other base ski area attractions, including Ski Time Square. Each unit comes fully furnished with fully-equipped kitchens, wood-burning fireplace, cable TV, telephone and access to heated swimming pool, 3 hot tubs, sauna, laundry facilities in each building, and complimentary coffee and donuts daily. Maid service is also included as well as continuous shuttle service until 2 a.m.
SKI TRIP INCLUDES:
*5 Nights lodging at Timber Run Condominiums.
*4 Days Steamboat lift tickets.
*COLLEGE PARTY PACK:
-Nuts and Bolts Party with DJ and free refreshments
-His or her gift pack
-Daily Schedule of Steamboat Events
*Convenient payment plan.
The Steamboat sign-up is still taking place in the UPC office. Sign-up deadline is Friday, November 2. Limited space available.
k-state union upc travel
Colorado Skiing



ResistANT
k-state union upc arts
An Invited Show
October 15-November 2
Kansas State Union Gallery
Hours: Monday-Friday, 8 am-5 pm
Reception: Friday, October 19, 7 pm-9 pm

DICK TRACY
Friday, Saturday and Sunday, October 19, 20 & 21
DICK TRACY
Academy Award-winner Warren Beatty produces, directs and stars in this multi-million dollar new blockbuster adventure based on Chester Gould's classic American comic strip and featuring Madonna, Al Pacino and Dustin Hoffman in one of the largest all-star casts ever assembled. Using the original comic strips as a guideline, the film's stylish production design and ingenious character make-up effects vividly re-create the world of legendary police detective Dick Tracy, the bravest, smartest and most popular comic-strip crime fighter ever and the only man tough enough to take on gangster boss Big Boy Caprice and his band of menacing mobsters. The legacy of Dick Tracy, his wrist-radio and his crafty criminal opponents lives on! Cost is $1.75 with KSU ID. Will show Friday and Saturday, 7 & 9:30 p.m. and Sunday, 7 p.m., Forum Hall.
k-state union upc feature films

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Friday, October 19, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 40

Mike Venso/Staff

Paula Sulzen, senior in apparel design, attempts to walk a straight line at an alcohol awareness program titled "Table Limit" at Edwards Hall Thursday night. Sulzen could not manage to walk the line without falling over, although a blood alcohol test proved she was not intoxicated.

The Realities of DRUNKENNESS

By Scott Berg
Staff Reporter

An alcohol awareness seminar was presented to students at Edwards Hall Thursday night as part of Alcohol Awareness Week.

The presentation was given by Lt. Rick Howard of the K-State Police, and Trooper Ralph Duffey of the Kansas Highway Patrol Breath Alcohol Unit in Salina.

"I hope the presentation helps," Howard said. "If it makes one person think and stops him from driving drunk, it's worth the effort."

The presentation consisted of a short videotape that emphasized the emotional consequences and statistics of driving drunk and the actual use of the breath analyzing equipment on three volunteers.

"The most dangerous people are the ones who are either just over or under the legal level of intoxication, .10 ABC (Alcohol Blood Content)," Howard said. "They are the ones who usually think that they're OK to drive.

"We look for little things like failure to dim headlights, swerving, crossing the center line and going too slow or fast, Howard said. "After stopping suspected drunk drivers, we check their motor response skills, ability to follow directions and breath on a field breath analyzing unit."

The field unit gives the officer support for probable cause to take a suspected drunken person in for further testing, Duffey said.

If people refuse to take the breath analyzer test at the police station, their driver's licenses are automatically suspended, Howard said. When drivers receive their licenses, they are consenting to take chemical tests if an officer requests them.

The student volunteers were given parts of a typical field test and the breath analyzer test. Two of the students, Bill Jones, senior in electrical engineering, and John Pickett, senior in mechanical engineering, passed most of the tests. The third, Paula Sulzen, senior in apparel design, failed all the tests except for the breath analysis.

Their breath was analyzed at .02 ABC, .04 ABC and .04 ABC respectively. Each had three to four cans of beer.

"This proves that different people react differently to the same amount of alcohol," Duffey said.

"The body mass has much to do with the reaction of the individual," Duffey said. "The smaller the person, the faster he becomes impaired with the same amount of alcohol that would not impair a larger person."

Other conditions also affect a person, Howard said. A person who has had little sleep and three beers is more of a threat than someone who had more to drink and was rested.

Senate rejects doubled gas tax, Medicare cuts

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate rejected efforts Thursday to tamper with a bipartisan deficit-reduction package that would double gasoline taxes to 18 cents a gallon and cut Medicare and other federal programs.

In a close vote, lawmakers dumped an attempt to scale back the gas tax increase and substitute a series of tax increases on the wealthy.

"Let's go and get it from those who've got it," said Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., but her plea was rejected, 55-45.

That vote appeared to clear the way for final approval of the bill by evening, and weary lawmakers said they were prepared to seek a compromise with the House and White House immediately in hopes of ending the government's months-long budget stalemate.

The House has approved legislation that relies heavily on tax hikes on the wealthy to close the federal deficit. It contains no change in the current nine cents a gallon gasoline tax.

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the president was prepared to sign separate legislation keeping the government in funds for another five days, and House leaders made plans to approve such a bill swiftly. Its passage would avert the threat of a second government shutdown in two weeks.

Lawmakers' eyes were on the calendar, with Election Day less than three weeks off. To diffuse possible blame, Senate leaders crafted a broadly based collection of $250 billion worth of new taxes and spending reductions.

Leading Democrats promised to try to change the bill during negotiations with the House, though Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, acknowledged, "We can't guarantee the result."

The president had said as recently as Monday that he would not sign another emergency spending-authorization extension, but press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said late Thursday that Bush would sign a bill keeping the government going through next Wednesday if satisfactory progress was being made.

Without such an extension, the government's authority to spend money would expire Friday night.

But the president also took the offensive, trying to turn the tables on House Democrats who have spent the last few weeks accusing him of protecting the rich.

He said most Americans would be hurt by a House provision delaying annual inflation adjustments in income-tax brackets and personal exemptions.

"The opposition is trying to say 'favor the rich,'" Bush said. "I'm saying I'm favoring incentives, investment, and ... protecting the working men and women of this country."

The tax increases and spending cuts were to be the lion's share of $500 billion worth of deficit cuts over the next five years, including $40 billion this year. Most of the rest of the savings would come from defense cuts in separate legislation.

House Democrats meeting privately early in the day were told by leaders that some gasoline tax increase was virtually inevitable, said one lawmaker who demanded anonymity. But they said they would demand some form of higher taxes on the rich in return.

Senate approves Rec referendum

STUDENT SENATE

By Charlie Gatschet
Collegian Reporter

The future of the proposed expansion of the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex will be decided by K-State students on Oct. 31.

A bill sending the issue to the general election was passed by Student Senate Thursday night.

David McIntyre, engineering senator, introduced an amendment that would have listed specific plans for the expansion on the ballot.

"I want it to be perfectly precise and clear as to what is going on," McIntyre said.

Instead of an amendment specifying plans, the amendment passed by Senate prohibits specific information about the expansion within 50 feet of the polls.

Joel Gruenke, graduate school senator, said since senate candidates aren't allowed to list their qualifications on the ballot, the referendum shouldn't either.

"You should inform voters beforehand," Gruenke said. "If I can't advertise (on the ballot), then I don't think the Rec Complex should either."

He also said many students were upset about the way Senate handled last year's Fine Arts/Athletic Fee because fact sheets about the fee were distributed near polling places.

During student elections, candidates and campaign materials are not allowed within 50 feet of the polls.

This prompted the amendment prohibiting fact sheets about the expansion from polling areas. The fact sheets were drawn up by members of the Recreational Services Task Force to inform students of the proposed expansion prior to the election.

Brooke Jones, arts and sciences senator and task force member, agreed with the amendment.

"The information is already out there," Jones said. "(The voters) don't need it right there at the polls."

Members of the Elections Campaign Committee will be assigned to the polls to prevent illegal campaigning or distribution of information.

Travis Stumpff, arts and sciences senator, opposed sending the referendum to the general election. He warned Senate of possible economic ramifications due to the timing and perception of the proposal.

"If you're going to spend student money, at least consider other options as well," Stumpff said. "And I'm telling you, if the next student body president goes down to the Legislature and lobbies ... then why should they kick in all these millions of dollars while students are spending multi-millions of dollars on the Rec Complex?

"I hardly think there could be a worse time in the history of the University for this," he said.

Angie Martin, cabinet member, disagreed, saying that many students are forced to buy memberships at local health clubs because they find the Rec Complex too crowded.

"I know a lot of students who go to (Body by) Schleibe who would like to go to the Rec Complex," Martin said.

In other Senate business, an amendment to the Educational Opportunity Fund allocations gave an additional $1,300 in funding to the College of Human Ecology.

Pete Marsh, human ecology senator, said the college was at a disadvantage in scholarship funds because of methods used in determining those funds. He said more than half of the part-time students in the college pay full-time fees because they are enrolled in more than seven hours.

Engineering senator accused of by-passing ticket sale policy

By Elvyn Jones
Staff Reporter

A candidate for student body president apparently used his position on the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee to improve his place in the basketball ticket line.

Three students representing three different groups in line for season basketball tickets said David McIntyre, engineering senator and candidate for student body president, used his position on the sales committee to obtain 50 general-admission tickets.

McIntyre said he verified his tickets before the process started. Although this saved him five minutes, he said, this did not improve his position in line.

Bill Nelson, senior in political science and chairman of the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee, said his committee establishes rules, calls the roll and runs the verification table at the basketball season ticket campout.

When tickets go on sale, the committee summons the groups by the established roll-call order to the verification table where fee cards, football ticket receipts and checks are validated, he said.

Nelson said he later found out McIntyre verified the group he was representing before the ticket buying process began.

McIntyre

Rick Bloom, senior in mechanical engineering, said he was representing the eighth floor of Haymaker Hall, which had been established as No. 37 in line.

After clearing the verification process, Bloom got in one of two lines to purchase tickets behind Russell Brewer, sophomore in animal sciences and industry and No. 35 in line, and Matt Crook, junior in construction science and in No. 36 place.

Bloom, Brewer and Crook said McIntyre was opposite them in the other line. While standing in line, they said they saw several people go up to McIntyre and give him money for the purchase of additional tickets.

He used his authority as a member of the ticket committee to add them to his list, they said.

■ See TICKETS, Page 10

80,000 students eligible to vote

Oleen encourages Kansans to register, build support for higher education

By Christy Gritton
Collegian Reporter

"In all the (Board of Regents) schools, there are about 80,000 students who can vote," said Sen. Lana Oleen, R-Manhattan. "This is a sizeable voting block for higher education if we can get them out and vote."

In Kansas, students must be 18 years old and reside in both Kansas and in the county they plan to vote in. Students must also be registered in the county in which they plan to vote.

Ilene Colbert, county clerk, said dependent students can register in their hometown or at the Student Government Services Office on the first floor in the K-State Union.

Independent students must register in the county of their permanent address.

Todd Heitschmidt, K-State director of the Associated Students of Kansas, said students must preregister to vote anytime they change their address or name. Students who do not vote in a November general election should check with their county election officer to make sure they haven't been removed from the registration list.

Students must decide whether to register at their hometown or school address because they cannot be registered at two addresses at once.

"If they live in-state, I would recommend that they register at home, unless Manhattan has become their permanent home," Heitschmidt said. "A big difference can be made in the House and Senate in addressing educational concerns if students vote for candidates who are pro-active education in their home counties."

To register in their hometown, students must appear in person at their county courthouse or an election site. ASK provides voter registration request applications and will mail them once completed, Heitschmidt said.

BRIEFLY

World

Conflict erupts in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Fighting broke out between leftist guerrillas and government troops in San Salvador on Wednesday night. Loud explosions were heard in several sections of the city.

Authorities said a number of people were wounded.

Reporters heard a number of loud explosions, apparently caused by bombs in the poor neighborhood of Soyapango on the east side of the city, and in Delgado to the northeast.

A Red Cross spokesman, who insisted on anonymity for security reasons, said there was fighting in the city, including the southern part, and that several people were wounded.

Reporters touring the streets saw army helicopters dropping flares and firing with automatic weapons at suspected guerrilla positions near the Ilopango air base, a few miles east of the capital, and at other points in the city.

The armed forces press office said it had no immediate details.

Economy falls in Soviet Union

MOSCOW (AP) — Two leading economic advisers to President Mikhail Gorbachev warned Thursday that the Soviet leader's plan for introducing a market economy would cause severe inflation and unemployment.

Abel Aganbegyan told Soviet lawmakers in a one-hour report that preliminary steps toward a market system had already created an inflationary spiral, particularly for prices of meat and dairy products.

He warned that hyperinflation was likely despite measures in the Gorbachev plan designed to combat runaway prices, such as restricting the nation's money supply and retaining state price controls on some items.

Nation

Defendent testifies at hearing

SAPULPA, Okla. (AP) — A University of Tulsa law student who was fatally shot in the back of the head was robbed because three Wichita men needed toll money to get home, one of the defendants said.

Robert Newman said he did not know Ronald Brochstein, 23, of Houston, had been killed until he and Gene Scott were arrested Oct. 1 in Wichita while driving Brochstein's car.

"I just thought we were going to just ... get some money from him and vanish," Newman, 20, said in a tape-recorded statement that was played Wednesday at his preliminary hearing.

Newman and Scott, 19, are charged with first-degree murder in the death of Brochstein, whose body was found near railroad tracks Sept. 23.

Social Security benefits up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 40 million Social Security recipients will see their benefit checks increase by 5.4 percent starting in January.

It is the biggest advance in 8½ years, the government said Thursday.

That increase will translate into an extra $31 per month for the average retired worker, whose monthly check will increase from $571 to $602.

The maximum monthly benefit for a worker retiring in 1991 at age 65 will rise by $47, to $1,022.

Since 1975, benefits have risen automatically each year, keeping pace with the annual inflation rate with the exception of six months in 1983 that were skipped to help bail the Social Security system out of a crisis.

Gulf crisis raises prices index

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' spending power sank again in September.

The Persian Gulf crisis pushed prices up a sharp 0.8 percent for the second straight month, the government said Thursday. Still, inflation not tied to oil prices remained relatively mild.

If the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index continued increasing at the September pace for a year, it would produce an annual inflation rate of 9.5 percent.

Most economists believe price increases — absent the outbreak of a shooting war — will return to a more normal level by the end of the year. The oil shock nevertheless has added a new burden for an economy that was already on the brink of recession.

Dole coaches Paul Newman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Add another credit to the resume of Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole: voice coach to movie stars.

The Kansas Republican provided vocal assistance to Paul Newman for a movie to be released next month, "Mr. and Mrs. Bridge." For his help, Dole will be listed in the credits as, "Shakespearean Tutor to Mr. Newman."

Newman sent a letter to Dole last year asking for guidance in perfecting his accent for the film in which he portrays a Kansas lawyer. In one scene, he helps his daughter learn lines for a school production of "Romeo and Juliet."

Newman provided a script, a blank audio cassette and asked Dole, "Would you do a little Romeo for me on tape? Kansas style?"

Dole obliged, starting with the line, "What light through yonder window breaks?"

Newman sent a personal letter of thanks to the senator in August 1989, and a movie representative later called to work out the film credit, Dole spokesman Walt Riker said Thursday.

The movie will open Nov. 21 in New York and Los Angeles. A nationwide release is scheduled during the Christmas holiday period, according to a spokesman for the distributor, Miramax Films.

Region

BrotherPeace begins in silence

BrotherPeace Week will begin Saturday with 50 cities worldwide sharing in three minutes of silence to end men's violence at 3 p.m.

Manhattan, which participated in the event last year, will be one of the cities participating in BrotherPeace Day 1990. The three minutes will kick off the week of awareness.

Matt Narramore, senior in political science and a member of Women and Men Against Rape, said the goal of the week is to inform people of and to object to the control and domination of women in society.

One of the key events of the week is the Take Back the Night March at 5:30 p.m. Monday. Participants will carry candles in a march from the Union Plaza to Manhattan City Park.

Barry Michie, assistant professor of social anthropology and social work and adviser of Women and Men Against Rape, said he would like to raise people's consciousness about male violence towards women, whether absolute agression or sexist attitudes.

Various speakers and movies will highlight the week. Topics will range from Elizabeth Hicks' speech about "Post-Patriarchal Peace" on Sunday, to Bruce Blanc's speech about eco-feminism on Wednesday.

BrotherPeace Week will be sponsored by Women and Men Against Rape, the Manhattan National Organization for Women, the Bisexual, Gay and Lesbian Resource Center and Women's Studies.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

19 Friday

■ Campus Faith Fellowship will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Union 202.

■ Society for the Advancement of Management will have conference registration from 2 to 6:45 p.m. at the Holiday Inn.

■ KSU Bloodmobile Sign-up will be from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the first floor of the Union.

20 Saturday

■ Beta Sigma Psi Little Sisters will meet at 1 p.m. for the pledge/active football game in the Beta Sigma Psi backyard. A carnival will follow the game.

■ Tau Beta Pi will meet at 1 p.m. in the Durland Hall Atrium for the pledge project.

■ Engineering Ambassador Executives will have tours at 11:30 a.m. on the second floor of the Union outside of the ballroom.

■ Women and Men Against Rape will present the movie, "Torch Song Trilogy," at 1 p.m. A period of silence and discussion will follow the movie as part of Brother Peace Week.

■ Into Africa will present an interview with Mordean Taylor-Archer, assistant provost for multicultural student affairs at 11:05 a.m. on KSDB-92.

21 Sunday

■ Intramural Volleyball Officials' Meeting will be at 6:30 p.m. in Union 212.

■ Golden Key National Honor Society will have a new member reception at 3 p.m. in the Union main ballroom.

■ Southwind will meet at 4 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room.

■ Jonathon Morris for Student Body President will meet at 8 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room. Everyone is welcome to voice campus concerns.

■ Playwrights' Stage will present an afternoon of one-act plays at 2 p.m. in the Purple Masque Theater.

■ Campus Girl Scouts will meet to plan K-State Day at 8 p.m. in Union 208.

■ New Currents will meet at 2 p.m. in Union 203.

■ Brother Peace/Women and Men Against Rape will present "Post-Patriarchal Peace," a participatory discussion with Elizabeth Hicks, at 7 p.m. in Union 207.

22 Monday

■ Students Helping Students will meet at 2:30 p.m. in the Lafene Health Center conference room.

■ French Table will meet from 12:05 to 1:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, mostly sunny. Warmer and becoming windy. High around 70. Southerly winds increasing to 20 to 30 mph by afternoon. Tonight, increasing cloudiness. Low around 50. Saturday, mostly cloudy and turning cooler with a 30 percent chance of showers or possibly a thunderstorm. High in the upper 60s.

Clyde's

Saturday Night Prime Rib Buffet All You Can Eat $12.95

Featuring U.S.D.A. Choice Steaks, Seafood, Cajun Chicken, Home Made Desserts

FABULOUS Lunch Menu

Open 7 Days A Week For Breakfast, Lunch & Dinner.

Clyde's 537-8440 2304 Stagg Hill Road

"One too many" is no excuse.

"Under no circumstances does the use of alcohol or other drugs diminish personal responsibility for aggressive or other socially unacceptable behavior."

KSU policy prohibiting sexual violence.

Call 532-6444 for more information.

GET THE EDGE

and get your Royal Purple portrait taken.

These groups are scheduled

Oct. 17-26

◆ OFF CAMPUS

◆ ANYONE WHO MISSED SCHEDULED TIME

Sitting Fee: $4 (If you paid for it at registration, you must bring your Royal Purple receipt.)

Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.

Location: K-State Union, Room 209

For an appointment or if you have questions

CALL 532-7808

1991 ROYAL PURPLE

BAYSTREET AND THE PIT

TONIGHT!! LADIES FREE!!

$2.50 LONG ISLAND TEAS

SATURDAY NO COVER WITH STUDENT ID!!

$.25 KAMIS

NO COVER BEFORE 9

THE LOFT'S OCTOBERFEST

OCTOBERFEST SPECIALS

Sat. Only

SWEATER selected 50% off

PANTS selected $15

KNIT TOPS selected $10

Selected Ruff Hewn-Merona-Anne Marie-Hang Ten 30-50% off

the Loft Women's Casualwear In Aggieville

1207 Moro in Aggieville

Mon.-Sat. 9:30 AM to 5:30 PM

Thur. evening 'til 8:00 PM

Sunday 1-5 PM

GUARANTEED IN STOCK

or you can rent it FREE ...or purchase for $13.49*

*Sugg. Retail $19.99 Details At Store

1123 Westloop Pl. Manhattan 537-0089

John's ICE CREAM & VIDEO

1009 W. 6th St. Junction City 762-4270

March promotes history, exercise

By Susan Boos
Collegian Reporter

A new event can be seen at the 10th annual Oktoberfest Saturday in Aggieville. The first annual Volksmarch will bring a German tradition to Manhattan.

Cheryl Sieben, executive director of the Aggieville Business Association, said a Volksmarch is a historical, scenic walk over a predetermined route.

"The only thing people need to do is bring a comfortable pair of shoes and enjoy a casual, self-paced walk through Manhattan," said Dave Sim, Knights of Columbus Volksmarch coordinator.

Those interested in participating can register from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus tent in Triangle Park. All participants must be finished with the course by 5:30 p.m.

Participants can walk for free or purchase a medal for $5 for completing the walk. Those participating for International Volkssport Verband credit pay a registration fee of $1.50.

"Because it's free, it's a great family activity. Three sheets of information will be handed out on the walk telling information about Manhattan, campus and things you'll see on the walk," Sieben said.

The idea of a Volksmarch came from the Knights of Columbus who thought Volksmarching would be of great interest to the people of Manhattan.

"We decided that we wanted an activity to promote exercise, but we also wanted it to be a little different," Sim said.

Sim found out about Volkmarches when he was stationed in Germany.

"Volksmarching is an old European custom," Sim said. "Historically, Germans go to church on Sunday and then walk around town in their good clothes."

Sieben said the custom behind the Volksmarch fell right in line with the Oktoberfest.

"The Volksmarch is very German in tradition and adds to our celebration," Sieben said. "The Knights of Columbus said we're going to do a Volksmarch no matter what. But by combining it with Oktoberfest, we will both benefit a great deal."

The 11 kilometer (6.8 miles) course was set up by the Knights of Columbus and has been approved by the American Volksmarching Association. The course remains a secret, but it will be marked by flags Saturday.

"Not knowing where you're going adds to the adventure," Sieben said.

Sim said the route was designed to give people a pretty walk through Manhattan and take them through some historical sites.

"The course takes you through campus and a little bit of older Manhattan," Sim said. "You go through a couple of areas where you can see animals."

Sim said the response to the Volksmarch has been very encouraging.

"We had 150 pre-register. We are anticipating well more than 300 participants. A lot of walks only have 30 or 40. So for our first walk, we're doing pretty darn good," Sim said.

Aggieville merchants to participate in 10th annual craft, food festival

Planners focus on family entertainment

By Jenifer Scheibler
Collegian Reporter

The 10th Annual Aggieville Oktoberfest Craft and Food Fair will feature activities craft booths, hourly entertainment and a family atmosphere.

The event will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, said Cheryl Sieben, executive director of the Aggieville Business Association.

Oktoberfest organizers wanted to include activities that everyone in the family could enjoy.

"It's not just a craft fair," Sieben said. "It's all day fun for the whole family."

Sieben said Oktoberfest activities will include food and craft booths, a Volksmarch, children's games and rides, a petting zoo and hourly entertainment by Streetside, the Neverly Brothers, M.T. Pawcketts and Friends and the Sunset Zoo's Birds of Prey show.

Another focus of the organizers was to provide more children's activities, said Dave Colburn, manager of the Pathfinder and member of the Oktoberfest Planning Committee.

"This year there will be a lot more for the kids to do," Colburn said. "We planned activities that are free or inexpensive that we think they will enjoy."

Both Colburn and Sieben said Oktoberfest is not intended for Aggieville businesses to bring customers into their stores and make sales.

"We see Oktoberfest as a good activity to promote Aggieville in general," Colburn said. "As a merchant, I like to see that."

It brings people to Aggieville and to show the community what it has to offer, Sieben said.

"It is not neccesarily a good retail day," Sieben said. "We want to get people to come down to Aggieville to see what it has."

Colburn said the Aggieville merchants who participate in Oktoberfest hope those people who visit Aggieville will return there in the future to shop.

Merchants like Colburn and Bryan Taylor, manager of the Palace, have volunteered their time every year to help make Oktoberfest a successful venture for Aggieville.

"I like doing it," Colburn said. "It's a lot of fun."

Taylor said he has expectations for a larger crowd to attend this year's Oktoberfest.

"This year we've got more activities," Taylor said. "I expect a lot more people to come down here."

With the addition of more activities, Sieben said, she is also hoping for a good turn out.

"We hope people have a good time and will come back," Sieben said.

GET THE EDGE
and get your portrait taken for the yearbook.
CALL FOR AN APPOINTMENT
532-7808
1991 ROYAL PURPLE

1/2 FALSETTO'S PIZZA
At Your Convenience
We Again DELIVER
539-3830
Also: Dine in & Carryout
2-10 in. Pizzas
2 Pepsi
$8.00
2-12 in. Pizzas
2 Pepsi
2 Toppings
$9.99
1127 Moro
Offer expires 10-30-90

15 words
5 days
$5.50
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
ClassADS
Kedzie Hall 103 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
532-6555

Treat Yourself To A "Triple Whammy"!!
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY.
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Tower
Aggieville

UNITED ARTISTS Theatres
SETH CHILDS 6 776-9886
Seth Childs at Farm Bureau Rd.
Quigley Down Under (PG-13)
Daily 7 & 9:30
Sat. & Sun. 2 & 4:30
Marked For Death (R)
Daily 7:10 & 9:25
Sat. & Sun. 2:10 & 4:25
Ghost (PG-13)
Daily 6:50 & 9:25
Sat. & Sun. 1:50 & 4:25
Goodfellas (R)
Daily 6:40 & 9:30
Sat. & Sun. 2:15
Memphis Belle (PG-13)
Daily 7:15 & 9:20
Sat. & Sun. 2:15 & 4:30
Postcards From The Edge (R)
Daily 7:05 & 9:20
Sat. & Sun. 2:05 & 4:20

BUSHWACKER'S
Friday & Saturday
50¢ Kamis
Go Cats
Beat Missou!
Comedy Invasion
Mon., Tues.
& Wednesday
Greg Travis
David Sleaze
"The Punk Magician"

K-State
Anderson Avenue
Subs and Such Suds Yr Duds
Dr. Wicken's Office
Pregnancy Testing Center
PREGNANCY TESTING CENTER
539-3338
•Free Pregnancy Testing
•Totally Confidential Services
•Same Day Results
•Call For Appointment
Walk-ins Welcome
•Located across from Campus in Anderson Village
Monday-Friday
9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
or by appointment

Plum Tree Restaurant
Homestyle Buffet
All you can eat $5.75, Sunday 5-9 p.m.
Includes soup & salad bar
•Baked Pork Chops & Dressing
•Augratin Potatoes
•Green Beans
•Baked Apples
•Goulash
•Rolls
•Chocolate Mousse
Holiday Inn
530 Richards Drive Manhattan, Kansas 66502 (913) 539-5311

Clyde's
Join us for relaxing and enjoyable dining experience for breakfast, lunch or dinner.
Ask about our daily specials.
•99¢ Margaritas
•Lowest Drink Prices in Town
SUNDAY SPECIAL
Mountain Brook Trout served with salad bar, rice pilaf, and topped with a wine mushroom sauce.
$7.95
Prime Rib.....$8.95
MONDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL SPECIAL
Watch the game and enjoy a delicious sirloin steak with steak fries and coleslaw in our TV lounge: $5.95
Don't forget to make your reservations now for Christmas parties. It's not too late—bookings available.
2304 Stagg Hill Rd. 537-8440

Religious Directory

COLLEGE HEIGHTS BAPTIST CHURCH
9:15 a.m. Sunday School
10:30 a.m. Worship Servic
6 p.m. Training Hour
7 p.m. Worship Service
2221 College Heights Rd. 537-7744

Christian Science Church
511 Westview Drive 539-5605
10 a.m. morning service•10 a.m. Sunday School
Wednesday Testimony Meeting 7:30 p.m.
Reading room—428 Houston

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Church School—9:45 a.m.
Worship—8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.
Disciples of Christ
5th and Humboldt 776-8790

UNITARIAN-UNIVERSALIST FELLOWSHIP OF MANHATTAN
10:45 a.m. Service & Sunday School
Nursery provided, everyone welcome
481 Zeandale Rd.
On K-18, 1/2 mile east of K-177

Evangelical Free Church of Manhattan
MCC Chapel S.W. corner 14th & Anderson
Steve Ratliff, Pastor
Worship 9:30 a.m.
Sunday School 11 a.m.
776-2086
Nursery Provided

Peace Lutheran Church
2500 Kimball Ave.
Worship at 8:30 a.m.
& 10:45 a.m.

First Baptist Church
Sunday Worship 11 a.m.
Church School 9:45 a.m.
2121 Blue Hills Rd.
539-8691

CHURCH OF CHRIST
Christian Campus Ministry
Sunday School-9:30 am
College Class-Money, Sex & Power: A Biblical Perspective
Sunday Worship-10:30 am & 6 pm
2510 Dickens Ave. 539-6581

FIRST LUTHERAN CHURCH
Worship at 8:30 & 11 a.m.
Sunday School 9:45 a.m. (for all ages)
10th & Poyntz 537-8532

St. Luke's Lutheran Church
Worship Saturday 6 p.m.
Sunday 8 and 10:45 a.m.
—Bible Class—
Sun. 9:30 a.m.—Thurs. 7-8:30 p.m.
539-2604 330 N. Sunset

FIRST CHURCH of the NAZARENE
College Class 9:30 a.m.
Worship Services 10:50 a.m. & 6 p.m.
Sunday School 9:45 a.m.
1000 Fremont *Nursery Available 539-2851

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH
8:45 a.m. Communion
(first Sunday of the month)
9:45 College Church School
8:45 & 11 a.m. Worship
Nursery provided for all services
John D. Stoneking, Pastor
612 Poyntz 776-8821

St. Isidore's University Chapel
Catholic Student Center
Sunday Masses 9:30, 11 a.m., 5 p.m.
Saturday 5 p.m.
Daily Mass-M, Tu, Th, F 4:30 p.m.
Wed. 11 a.m. at St. Mary Hospital
Wed. 10 p.m. evening prayer
Confessions-½ hr. before daily mass.
Rev. Norbert Dlabal, Chaplain
Sister Rose Walters, C.S.A.
711 Denison 539-7496

Trinity Presbyterian Church
1110 College Ave.
Sunday Worship 10:45 a.m.
Young Adult Class 9:30 a.m.
539-3921

Valleyview Community Church
Sunday Worship
10:30 a.m.
Ramada Inn, lower level
17th and Anderson
For more information call
Dan Walter 776-0112

CRESTVIEW CHRISTIAN CHURCH
Worship 10:30 a.m. & 6:30 p.m.
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
4761 Tuttle Creek Blvd.776-3798
(2 miles north of Marlatt and Tuttle Creek Blvd.)

Anglican/Episcopal Community in Manhattan
St. Paul's Episcopal Church
& St. Francis/Canterbury Episcopal Fellowship at KSU
Sixth & Poyntz
776-9427 or 537-0593
- Sunday Services -
8 A.M. Holy Eucharist I
9:30 Christian Education Classes (for all ages)
10:30 A.M. Choral Eucharist Rite II
(Nursery available at 10:30 service)
Especially for KSU Students & Faculty
5 P.M. Sunday,
Informal Eucharist followed by light supper and fellowship.
7:10 A.M. Tuesday & Thursday,
Morning Prayer, Danforth Chapel, KSU

GRACE BAPTIST CHURCH
2901 Dickens Ave.
Don Pahl, Pastor
Mike Tuley, Pastor
776-0424
Worship 8:30 & 10:45 a.m.
Collegiate & International
Bible Studies Sun. 9:30 a.m.
Fellowship Hour Sun. 6 p.m.
Family Night Wed. 7 p.m.
STUDENTS WELCOME

The End of Your Search For a Friendly Church
First Congregational Church
Juliette & Poyntz
Sunday Worship 10:45 a.m.
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Rev. Robert Carlson
537-7006

WESTVIEW COMMUNITY CHURCH
Worship 8 and 10:30 a.m.
Sunday School 9:30 a.m.
Sunday Evening Worship 6 p.m.
1st, 3rd, & 5th Sundays
CARE CELLS (Small Groups)
6 p.m. 2nd & 4th Sundays
3001 Ft. Riley Blvd. 537-7173

LIVING WORD CHURCH
Services
Sunday 10 a.m.
Wednesday 7 p.m.
•Dynamic Praise & Worship
•Life Changing Preaching & Teaching
•Powerful Ministry
241 Johnson Road
1 mile south on Highway 177
776-0940

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

Government shut-down may result in chaos

Dwayne Lively

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

Today, if nothing has changed since I wrote this column Thursday afternoon, it may well be possible that the government of these United States will have to shut down from a lack of money. At the time of this writing, the prospects of a budget agreement looked fairly slim. In fact, it appeared that each party was instead attempting to reach agreements among themselves about exactly who in the other party to blame for the lack of an agreement.

Of course, even if a governmental shutdown doesn't occur, the potential for one brings an important question immediately to mind, that being: If the U.S. government shuts down, how would we be able to tell?

To clarify: if the government shuts down, does it mean the financial aid process will be gummed up and students might not be able get their money?

If the government shuts down, does it mean the Food and Drug Administration will take five to 10 years to approve drugs needed now?

Speaking of drugs, if the government shuts down, does it mean we will begin losing the "War on Drugs"?

If the government shuts down, does it mean NASA will have delays in launching the next space shuttle?

If the government shuts down, does it mean the Magellan Space Probe and the Hubble Telescope will have difficulty performing their designated operations?

If the government shuts down, does it mean the gulf crisis is now over? Or will the Pentagon be able to call on its recently discovered cash reserves and equipment surpluses to fill the support gap? If it doesn't, could this leave our troops in Saudi Arabia stuck without pay or a ride home?

If the government shuts down, does it mean the rest of our troops overseas will have to be brought home? Or more specifically, will they be ordered to purchase plane tickets and fly home on TWA or Pan Am?

If the government shuts down, does it mean all air traffic controllers will have to be fired? Will the government have to bring back, at one-half to one-quarter pay, all those air traffic controllers Ronald Reagan fired?

If the government shuts down, does it mean that the Central Intelligence Agency will have to cease all operations, the result being free elections and the end of a great deal of bloodshed in good portions of Central and South America?

If the government shuts down, does it mean we have to give back Panama? (What ever happened to Manuel Noriega anyway?)

If the government shuts down, does it mean that K-State will have its budget cut?

If the government shuts down, does it mean it will be forced to have bake sales to raise money? Or will it just sell weapons to any petty dictator who's willing to pay for them? (Can you say Saddam Hussein?) Speaking of Manuel Noriega, my sources inform me he's still in Florida and even sent his lawyers out to purchase lottery tickets for him when the total was up in the $100 million range.

If the government shuts down, does it mean thousands of columnists will no longer have anything to write about and therefore be out of a job?

If the government shuts down, does it mean millions of U.S. citizens will not get the basic health care they need?

If the government shuts down, does it mean millions of U.S. citizens won't bother to vote in the upcoming elections?

More importantly though, if the government shuts down, does it mean the National League will win the World Series?

If the government shuts down, does it mean we are a British colony again? The British own considerably more of our industries and land than any other foreign group, including the Japanese.

Speaking of cars, if the government shut down, does it mean that Chrysler will lose its financial aid?

If the government shuts down, does it mean the ACT and SAT programs will have to be shut down? Does it mean universities nation-wide will have to establish REAL entry criteria?

If the government shuts down, does it mean all senators, all representatives, President Bush and the entire cabinet are out of a job? Or are they considered "essential personnel"?

If the government shuts down, does it mean that Dan Quayle will have to find a real job?

Of course, of all these questions, the single most important question that comes to mind is: If the government shuts down, does it mean the Internal Revenue Service will have to be disbanded?

If the government shuts down, well ... is that necessarily such a bad idea?

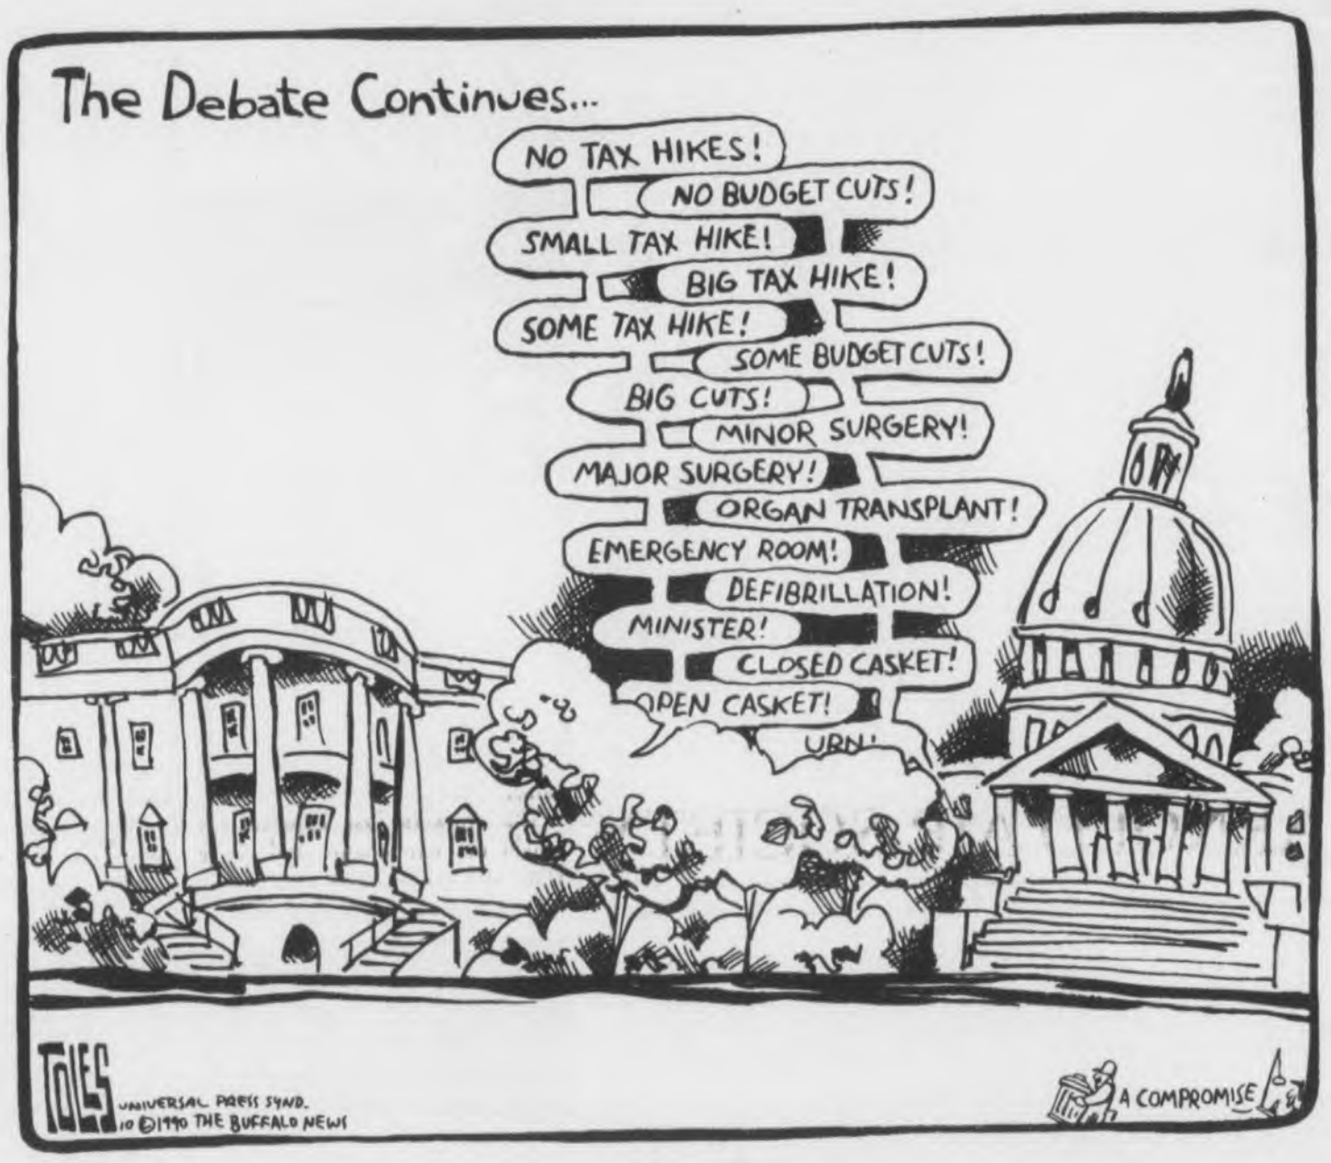
EDITORIALS

Consider aesthetics as well as safety

At least nine buildings on campus are scheduled for renovation and repair. This includes the upgrading of fire-safety precautions.

Some of these buildings, including Fairchild, Seaton and Kedzie halls, are used by students on a 24-hour basis, yet lack basic safety equipment such as adequate fire alarms and emergency lights.

Improving some of these buildings, especially the older ones, means reconstruction as well as instalation of new equipment. Plans already have been made to enclose the large, open stairwell in the center of Fairchild.



The older buildings are among the most attractive features of the campus. It would be a tragedy to lose one in a fire. It would be a shame, however, to compromise the architectural intergrity of the buildings in the interest of the cheapest way to bring them up to safety codes.

The University prides itself on having internationally respected programs in architecture and design and engineering. It is foolish not to draw upon these resources when planning the renovations.

Already, students in several different disciplines have surveyed about every inch of the campus, learned about all of its trees and shrubs, sketched its buildings inside and out and come up with potential designs for the plaza between the Union and Seaton.

Surely they, as well as their teachers, might have some ideas about how to renovate buildings like Fairchild, Seaton, and Kedzie while retaining architecturally unique identities. Part of the students' training also includes learning how to work within a budget.

While safety is an uncompromisable standard, the University should not write off the aesthetic value of its buildings in favor of the cheapest bid.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... David Frese
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koel
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little, Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff, Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

Student Publications Staff

DIRECTOR/NEWS ADVISER ..... Ron Johnson
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR/ADVERTISING DIRECTOR ..... Gloria Freeland
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR ..... Linda Puntney
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Ann Foster
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE ..... Jackie Harmon
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Linda Weatherly
OFFICE MANAGER ..... Pat Hudgins
ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT ..... Connie Fulkerson
INTERIM NEWS PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... David Svoboda
NEWS PRODUCTION ASSISTANT ..... Carla Jones
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Wanda Haynie
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS ..... Tammi Landis, Dana Franklin, Chris Tucker, Britt Owen, Deanna Adams
OFFICE STAFF ..... Shanta Bailey, Matt FitzGerald, Christa South
CARRIERS ..... Joe Cook, Minda Dowdy, John Fulkerson, Norm LeComte, James Seymore

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $30
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $54
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $60

LETTERS

Review dodges issue

Editor,

Attention to a new black filmmaker in the Collegian's Oct. 10 review of Spike Lee's "She's Gotta Have it" may seem to be in the spirit of Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week, but it isn't. The review seemed to rate the film low and to dismiss it for some reasons that need contemplating — namely, that it was low-budget, that it used family members of Lee and the like. If we were to follow the spirit of the review, black filmmakers and artists are doomed to be ignored unless they have the blessing of major Hollywood producers. And Lee, a brilliant director, would never have been discovered. And other independent black filmmakers (and there are many) might as well give up, especially because Hollywood now has its own black director.

This is not to say the movie must be celebrated, or that objections should not be raised, as members of Women's Studies did, to its attitude about rape. I was surprised the reviewer didn't address this, detouring the issue by noting how much sex was in the movie, how some might be offended and how it was "questionable" to show the rape. I am concerned, however, that a college audience is invited to ignore the contributions of minorities until they have the familiar feel of money and status. Former President Reagan was said by an adviser to have been able to pay attention only to advisers who had made a lot of money. If we fall into a similar habit of attention, it will not help the racial situation simply to know that we are not bigots like some people — usually Southerners or people from the past or people we don't know. Non-bigots, we might add, can have the same effect.

Don Hedrick
professor of English

Letter misprinted

Editor,

To the editor or anyone else responsible for what happened:

When I heard about the Lisa Olson incident, I was shocked. Partly because of what took place in the Patriots' locker room, but mainly due to the fact that she had been admitted into the locker room. So, I decided to do something about it. (What I could, anyway). Especially after an editorial in the Collegian stated women should be allowed admission. I wrote a letter expressing my opinion. I typed it up and made some extra copies. I sent one to Sports Illustrated and one to the Collegian. On Monday, a copy of my letter appeared in the Collegian. I assumed it was the same as what I had submitted, so I did not bother to compare every word with my own copy. I should have.

Thursday, I saw a copy of Monday's Collegian on the kitchen table. I picked it up to read my letter. As I got to the final paragraphs, I suddenly realized that what I had been defending since its publication was not what I had written. I went to my room and got my copy of the original letter. It was different. It isn't an obvious difference, which is why I hadn't noticed before. I don't know who's responsible or why they did what they did. I would like the students at K-State to take a look at exactly what happened — whether you agree or disagree with my first letter.

Changes were made only in the second to last paragraph. In my letter I wrote, "A police officer must have a warrant ... A reporter can at least receive permission. And the person who would grant permission must not feel obliged to do so." The Collegian printed, "A police officer must have a warrant ... A woman can at least receive permission, and an athlete should not feel obligated to grant permission." I was speaking in a general sense. It seems some people thought I implied that they could change it to specifics. Also, I wrote, "If the interview is so important, the reporter can wait until the athlete is ready (and willing)." One word makes quite a difference.

I have one more complaint. My letter was given the title, "Exclude women." Right off, the reader is pointed in the wrong direction. How can I express my opinion when someone else gives it a biased title?

Finally, I would like to thank Gerry True for seeing my point and defending it.

Sean Ryland
freshman in architectural engineering

Point missed

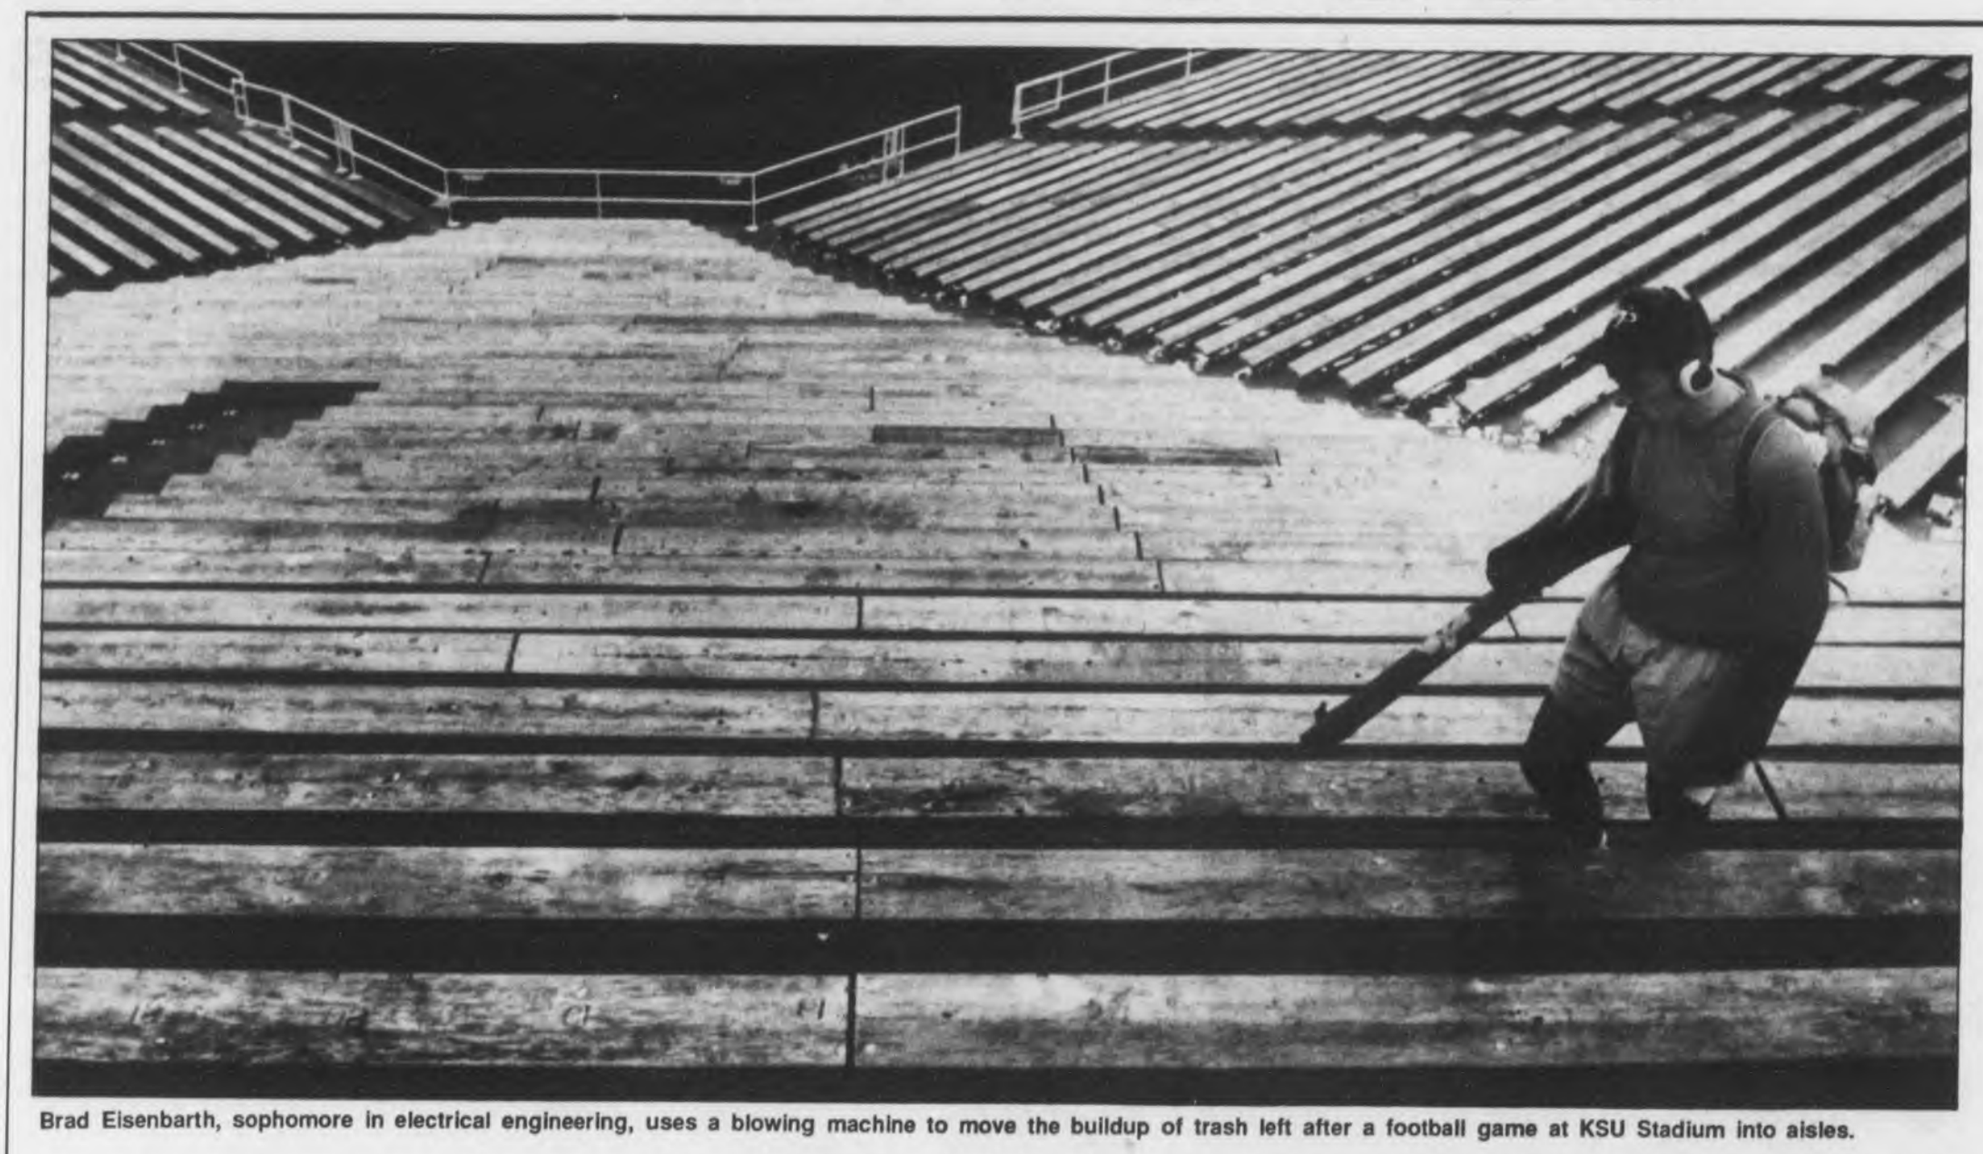
Editor,

In response to previous letters concerning women in men's locker rooms: this is getting ridiculous. This is not an issue of male versus female. This is not an issue of a reporter's right to conduct an interview on the same level as any other reporter, regardless of gender. I can understand men's feelings on women invading their locker rooms — I, for one, would not want a man in my locker room.

The fact is women have a job to do despite their gender. And if there are so many objections, there needs to be a ban on all reporters, male and female, from the locker rooms. Set aside a place and time for interviews and make everyone comply. Fine, keep women from interviewing in the locker rooms, but keep men out, too. Give reporters an equal opportunity to do the job they are being paid to do.

Angela Voth
junior in animal sciences and industry

Collegian Editorial Policies



LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116. Students will be asked to show their I.D. card upon submission when done in Kedzie 116.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

IN FOCUS

Brad Eisenbarth, sophomore in electrical engineering, uses a blowing machine to move the buildup of trash left after a football game at KSU Stadium into aisles.

CLEAN-UP CREW

ARNOLD AIR SOCIETY PICKS UP WHAT FOOTBALL FANS LEAVE BEHIND

Rain or shine, the Arnold Air Society will be there to clean up the mess left after K-State home football games.

AAS, a service organization affiliated with Air Force ROTC, cleans KSU Staudium every Sunday morning following a home football game. AAS student president Erick McNett said that as long as he can remember, AAS members have never had to cancel cleanup — even when the temperature was as low as 44 degrees, like it was on Oct. 7, the morning after the Nebraska game.

The workers just bundled up, fought the temperature and chilly wind and started sweeping.

Society members have a variety of jobs to do as part of cleanup. Some sweep the bleachers, and others pick up trash from under the bleachers.

They are also given blowing machines. With engines strapped to their backs, they walk across bleachers, blowing cups, popcorn boxes and an occassional McDonald's sack into the aisles. Other workers come along later and put the garbage into large beige trash bags.

"They give us blowers, but we also use the old broom method," said McNett, junior in computer science. "We push the broom along — sweep it all up. Blowers help out, but most is done by just sweat."

About 30 people showed up to help clean the morning after the game against Nebraska. Although 35,757 people attended that game, McNett said it was more difficult to clean up after Band Night, Sept. 29.

"Band Night was the worst," he said. "The kids all bring their sack lunches and leave them around. It makes a big mess."

Normally, it takes 4½ to 5 hours to clean, McNett said.

"There are about 35 active members along with the pledges," he said. "We normally have about 30 people out there cleaning."

AAS is a honorary organization, McNett said, that requires members to be in the AFROTC program, to have a 2.5 grade point average and go through a pledging program.

"We've been cleaning the stadium since before I've been here," he said. "We've had the contract for at least five years."

McNett said the organization renegotiates its contract each year. The flat fee is now $600 each time they clean up.

"The money we get goes to the Arnold Air Society for other service projects for the community," he said. "It's a fund-raiser for us.

"We have a sister organization called Silverwings, and they do a lot of service projects with us," he said.

Silverwings, a civilian organization, is for people who are not in the AFROTC program but who want to help out, said Capt. Jim Royer, adviser for AAS and assistant professor of aerospace studies.

Brian Grelk, freshman in nuclear engineering, said he was helps clean as training.

"We, as a pledging class, must go through a training process," Grelk said. "We help with the corp and civilian organizations, like Arnold Air Society.

"We try to raise money for the corp," he said. "Right now we are trying to sell T-shirts to the parents of cadets — kind of a Christmas gift."

One of the projects he said they would do in the near future was painting at Konza Praire Research Natural Area.

Grelk said AAS is different from AFROTC, but the groups work together.

They also help with the Bloodmobile and the food basket at Thanksgiving, Royer said.

"We plan to have an environmental project," he said. "Maybe we will help with the highway cleanup program."

Members of Arnold Air Society clean the stadium every Sunday following a home game. The clean-up crew reports for duty in any weather.

Tracy Thomason, freshman in psychology, and Erick McNett, junior in computer science, bag trash that is swept into the aisles.

Jeff Wyss, junior in political science, crawls under an aluminum door trying to reach some trash that had fallen under the bleachers.

The trash, not all from K-State vendors, is left scattered across the stadium and often takes the crew up to five hours to pick up.

STORY AND PHOTOS BY MARGARET CLARKIN

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS

Mizzou favored as 'Cats come to town

By Scott Paske
Sports Reporter

Figure this out, if you can.

A pair of postseason bowl scouts will be in Columbia, Mo., this weekend to watch a team that is a 9½ -point underdog to another team that has twice as many losses as wins.

Welcome to the wacky world of college football — a world that puts K-State coach Bill Snyder at ease.

"When you do this long enough, nothing's going to surprise you," Snyder said. "Somebody asked me if I was surprised that we were 4-2, and I'm not. I wouldn't be surprised if we were 0-6."

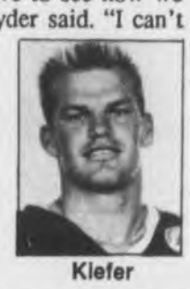
Regardless of record, an interesting scenario will be played out Saturday, as the Wildcats, 4-2 overall and 1-1 in Big Eight Conference play, travel to Faurot Field for a 1:30 p.m. kickoff with the Missouri Tigers, 2-4 and 0-2.

It seems fitting that the odd circumstances will be profiled at Missouri, the site of several abnormalities this season. The Tigers have been the conference's Jekyll-and-Hyde team. They blew a 19-point lead in their opener, ripped Utah State 45-10 the following week and were routed by Indiana 58-7 in week three.

Then came part two of the crazy season. Mizzou upset Top 25-foe Arizona State, lost a controversial 33-31 decision to 14th-ranked Colorado and was demolished by No. 4 Nebraska 69-21 on Saturday.

Tiger coach Bob Stull, a former K-State player and graduate, said the recent string of games has taken its toll on his team.

"It's really tough to play teams that you are 20-some-point underdogs to three weeks in a row, and expect to play at the same level all of the time," he said. "Not only were the last two games physically tough and emotionally tough, but we also came into the (Nebraska) game with a few guys banged up."



Meanwhile, K-State is riding an emotional peak after ending a 26-game Big Eight winless streak with a 23-17 victory over Oklahoma State. Snyder said the team's attitude has remained low-key, despite the forecasted presence of Independence Bowl scouts at Saturday's game.

"The kids have done a decent job of accepting wins and losses the right way," Snyder said. "Last week, we talked about starting a new season, about rededicating ourselves as players and coaches after the Nebraska game, and our kids did."

The new outlook will have its challenges, as four of K-State's next five games will be on the road. Northern Illinois defeated the 'Cats 42-35 in K-State's lone road game a month ago.

"We'll just have to see how we handle that," Snyder said. "I can't tell you how we're going to respond having been on the road only one time so far this year."

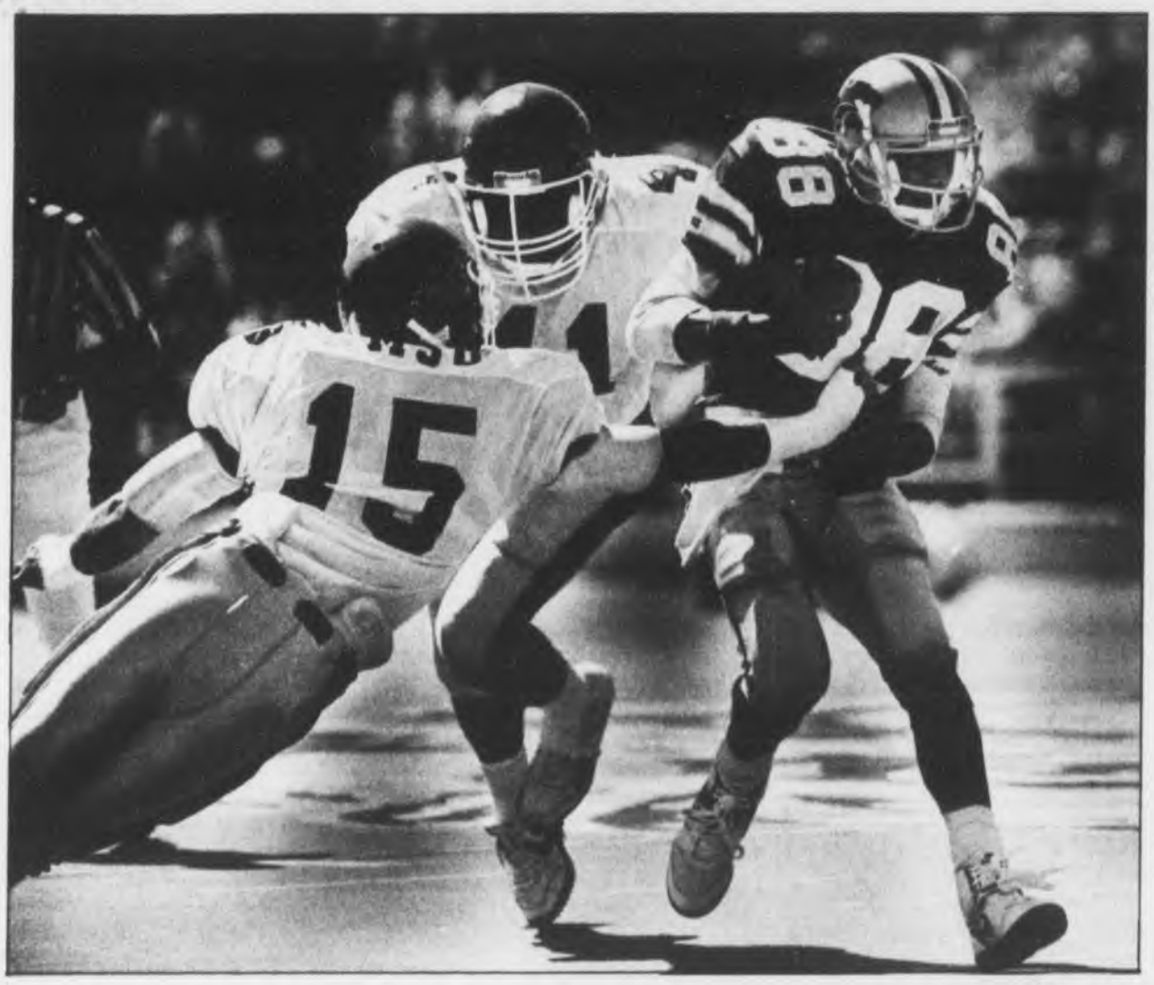
Stull

Kiefer

K-State may be looking into a mirror in its first remaining test. The Tigers have the league's top passing attack, led by senior quarterback Kent Kiefer. Kiefer threw for 2,314 yards last season, and is among the nation's leading signal callers this year with 1,589 yards through six games.

"He's a tough youngster, as quarterbacks have to be," Snyder said. "He can throw a lot of different types of passes. He can lay it up, and put some air under it, and he can lay it underneath. He's very accomplished."

Kiefer also possesses a dangerous receiving corps in seniors Damon Mays and Linzy Collins. Collins is the team's leading receiver with 23 catches for 426 yards. He is fifth on Mizzou's all-time receiving yardage list.



Mays is also atop the league's receiving list at 21.1 yards per catch. The Phoenix, Ariz., native burned Colorado defensive backs for two long touchdowns in a losing effort.

"They like to throw the ball downfield," Snyder said. "What makes them tremendously dangerous is they have the ability to go the distance at any given time.

"At the same time, they can pick you to pieces, laying the ball off for five, six and seven yards at a time."

Snyder said his team is honored by the Independence Bowl recognition, but didn't want it to send a false message to K-Staters.

"We could go in any direction right now," Snyder said. "We're not over anybody's hump."

David Mayes/File

K-State All-Big Eight receiver Michael Smith moves down the field in the win over New Mexico State earlier this season. Smith will look to lead the Wildcats to a win over Missouri Saturday in Columbia, Mo.

K-State Wildcats

vs. Missouri Tigers

Game Time: 1:30 p.m., Saturday.
Place: Faurot Field, Columbia, Mo.
Radio: K-State Radio Network: Mitch Holthus, Stan Weber, Ben Boyle. WIBW-AM 580, flagship.
Season Records: K-State 4-2, 1-1; Missouri 2-4, 0-2.
Series Record: Missouri leads it, 53-17-5.
Notes: Two representatives of the Independence Bowl will be in attendance Saturday ... The 4-2 start is K-State's best since 1973, when Vince Gibson's team jumped out to the same record ... The last Big Eight road win for K-State came, you guessed it, at Missouri. The 1985 triumph was the lone win for the 'Cats that year and came with interim coach Lee Moon in charge.

STANDINGS

Big Eight Conference

	Football Big 8	Pct.	Total	Pct.
Nebraska	2-0	1.000	6-0	1.000
Oklahoma	2-0	1.000	5-1	.833
Colorado	2-0	1.000	5-1-1	.786
K-State	1-1	.500	4-2	.667
Iowa St.	0-1-1	.250	2-3-1	.417
Kansas	0-1-1	.250	1-4-1	.250
Missouri	0-2	.000	2-4	.333
Okla. St.	0-2	.000	2-4	.333

Saturday's Games
K-State at Missouri
Iowa State at Oklahoma
Oklahoma State at Nebraska
Colorado at Kansas

Fun in stands awaits editor as fan-for-day

David Svoboda
SPORTS EDITOR

I get to be a fan — in the truest sense of the word — again Saturday, and I can't wait.

As a sports writer or sports editor, I've had the best seat in the house, and it normally hasn't cost me a dime.

But I'm going to plunk down a few dimes come Saturday afternoon in Columbia, Mo., and become Joe Fan once more.

Sure, it's possible to be a fan when you're a writer. In fact, I'm probably more of a devout K-State fan than most people walking the face of God's green Earth. You just can't cheer when you're in the press box. It's a rule. They read it before each game.

What a bummer. I felt like screaming out loud during all four home football wins this year, but, you know, professionalism. What a nasty word for a fan.

The last time I got to cheer for the purple and white at a football game was two seasons ago, at Lawrence, as KU downed the Wildcats 30-12.

Needless to say, there wasn't much reason for celebration that day.

The last time I was a fan at a K-State basketball game, though, may have been the most fun I've ever had in the stands anywhere.

It was earlier in 1988, in South Bend, Ind., as K-State battled La-Salle and DePaul on the way to a matchup with Purdue in the Sweet 16 of the NCAA tourney.

I sat with former K-State athletic director DeLoss Dodds at the LaSalle contest. Though he was the AD at Texas — and still is today — he cheered for the purple and white at that game. It was nice being among friends, and even nicer when the 'Cats left the floor 66-58 victors.

For the DePaul contest, we sat in the far corner of the arena. I got the honor — if it can be called an honor — of sitting by the most devout K-State fan ever: Weird Robert. If anything, Robert Lipsom is loyal — as loyal as anyone I've ever met.

I'll always remember that day. For those of you who haven't met Robert, or if the name doesn't ring a bell, let me paint a verbal picture. He's the guy with the K-State painter's hat, sleeveless down jacket, K-State pennant, No. 1 foam finger and the radio seemingly growing out of his ear.

Anyway, I can remember yelling right along with Robert that day. One chant, in particular, will stick with me, because it illustrated how blind to the truth one can become when supporting a team.

"CBA, CBA, CBA!" That was the chant we directed at DePaul guard Rod Strickland. Strickland was the leader of the Blue Demon attack, and our Steve Henson — just a sophomore — left Strickland standing in his tracks nearly every time down floor.

But Strickland was a legitimate NBA prospect — not a candidate for the minor-league Continental Basketball Association. We still had fun calling Strickland a bum, even though he's looked pretty good in the NBA since, with the New York Knicks and San Antonio Spurs.

That's why I can't wait to unleash a few verbal blasts Saturday at Mizzou quarterback Kent Kiefer. You've seen pictures of the guy, haven't you? What an eraser head. Nice haircut, buddy. Get a life.

If the Tiger fans get mouthy, I'll have to pleasantly ask them a few questions about that fine, upstanding basketball program of theirs. Can you say "N-C-A-A"? Can you say "cheat"? I thought you could.

Don't stop me, I'm on a roll.

Well, I'll apply my own brakes, on second thought. After all, I'm trying to be a journalist here. On Saturday, though, I don't have to be professional, I don't have to be impartial, I don't have to even be rational — I have to be the wildest, craziest, most partisan son-of-a-bleep you'll ever see.

And, win or lose, I'll be proud of my 'Cats. I remember what it was like to cheer for a team that was bowl bound. What a rush. It's a rush I'd like to feel again. On Saturday, I'm going to take a chance that this might be the right time.

David Mayes/File

Betsy Berkley strains to make a block during a volleyball match. Berkley and her teammates will take to the home floor in Ahearn Field House twice this weekend, against Colorado and Missouri.

Spikers to play 2 home matches

By Russ Ewy
Sports Reporter

After playing a tough opening game against the nationally ranked Nebraska Cornhuskers in Lincoln Tuesday night, the K-State volleyball squad will meet Colorado and Missouri this weekend in Ahearn Field House.

Friday night, the 'Cats will take on the Lady Buffs, 10-9 overall and 3-0 in the Big Eight, before facing the 5-11, 0-4, Tigers Saturday. Both matches begin at 7:30 p.m.

Despite posting a 6-9 overall record and failing to win a conference match so far this season, K-State coach Scott Nelson says his team is ready to turn the corner.

"From our perspective, we just played (Nebraska), the (then No. 1) team, real tough. We played them heads up in offense, and I think we need to carry that on," Nelson said. "We've been doing some good offensive things that have put us in positions to win matches and also compete against some pretty strong teams.

"It's to the point now where we want to be in the situation to win a match and see if we can push on through the final points. This is a good weekend series."

Colorado, second in the Big Eight last year, is second in the conference in three offensive categories. Led by junior Wendy Van Whye, the Lady Buffs pose a high-powered offensive attack.

"Colorado has one of the more dynamic offenses in the conference and really in this area of the country," Nelson said. "Colorado seemed to be struggling defensively earlier in the season, but they seem to be back on track.

"Colorado returns their nucleus of players from last year's team that (finished) second in the conference, and can be one of the more devastating teams in our conference."

On the flip side, Missouri has been struggling since last year.

"Missouri didn't win a Big Eight match last year, so they will try to play the role of spoiler, obviously," Nelson said. "We won two Big Eight matches last year, both against Missouri, so they're coming (to Ahearn) looking for Kansas State, I have no doubt about that. On the other hand, K-State will show up Saturday night looking for Missouri."

Considering K-State is 0-4 in the conference, Nelson still sees some of the top four spots open.

"I don't think there's a lock in the (conference post-season tournament bids)," Nelson said. "I think Nebraska and Colorado, depending on what happens this weekend, could be moving toward the first secure positions."

Cincinnati relishes big lead

By The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — The Cincinnati Reds feel like they're entering a strange, new world as the World Series shifts to the West Coast, to the land of real grass and designated hitters.

Lucky for them they've got a two-game security blanket to ease the transition.

"We've won the first two ballgames at home. Now we go to their place, where we play on grass and the DH comes into play, so it's going to be a little different ballgame," manager Lou Piniella said.

The Reds flew to Oakland on Thursday with a 2-0 lead over the A's that left them feeling carefree and confident. They knew that such leads usually translate into championship rings.

Three-fourths of the teams that have won the first two Series games have become champions.

"We feel very, very good. We feel very, very confident," said outfielder Billy Hatcher, who took a 7-for-7 streak with him.

And why not? All they've done is pummel the defending champion Oakland A's 7-0 in Game 1, then rally against their best reliever for a 5-4 victory in 10 innings Wednesday night in Game 2.

The A's swaggered into Cincinnati with an air of invincibility about them and left shaking their heads.

"They've been the best team in baseball the last two years, but they're beatable," second baseman Ron Oester said. "But we still have two more to win."

They'll get three chances in Oakland over the weekend. At worst, they'll end up right back on the fake grass at Riverfront Stadium next week to settle matters.

Not a bad position at all.

Tryouts set

By The Collegian Staff

Walk-on tryouts for the men's basketball team will be held at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday in the Ahearn Gymnasium.

Central State Marching Festival includes performances by 15 high school bands

By Stacey Harbison
Collegian Reporter

Fifteen bands from high schools across the state will provide an afternoon of entertainment at the Central State Marching Festival 1 p.m. Saturday in KSU Stadium.

Assistant Band Director Ben Rohrer said the bands will play a variety of styles of music, including classical, rock, pop, jazz and latin. and latin.

Participating high school bands include Beloit, Louisburg, Salina South, Buhler, Junction City, Washburn Rural, Salina Central, Emporia, Manhattan, Derby, Blue Valley North, Dodge City and Hutchinson.

The bands will perform before a panel of judges and receive a rating based on their music performance, marching ability and how they carry themselves.

The three main judges will be Brad Bone, former band director at Wichita State, Jim Cochran, former band director at Missouri Western, and Brad Schuette, band director at Marysville High School.

Joel Gittle, graduate assistant in music, will be judging the percussion instruments, and flag instructor Jari Webber, senior in psychology, will be judging the flag teams.

A rating of one is superior, two is excellent and three is average, Rohrer said. Ratings below three are very rare.

Rohrer said the Marching Festival is in its fourth year, and participation has been increasing steadily.

"Fifteen bands is the most we've ever had," Rohrer said. "We have a lot of the same bands coming back from last year."

Rohrer said the Central State Marching Festival is the biggest in the state, and high school bands look to it as being the final competition.

The K-State Marching Band is sponsoring the festival and will perform its "Westside Story" show as the final number.

The show is very intense, upbeat, fast and loud, Rohrer said.

They will play "Mambo," "Officer Krupke," "Tonight" and a solo percussion section "Hoe Down."

Rohrer said the festival is good public relations for the University and the community. It also allows the students participating to see other bands perform.

Ad It Up!
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Display Advertising
532-6560

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Kedzie 103 CLASS ADS 532-6555

Display Classified Rates
One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

ARE YOUR health insurance premiums continually increasing? Health conditions keeping you from getting adequate coverage? Call for more information. Billie Gallaher. 539-5676.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193 after 5:30p.m.

"HOMEMADE HAPPINESS," Craft and Bake Sale, Saturday, Oct. 20, 9a.m.— 3p.m. City Auditorium, 11th and Poyntz. Sponsored by the Manhattan Jaycees.

KSU ALL Crew meeting, 8p.m. in Little Theatre, Sunday.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

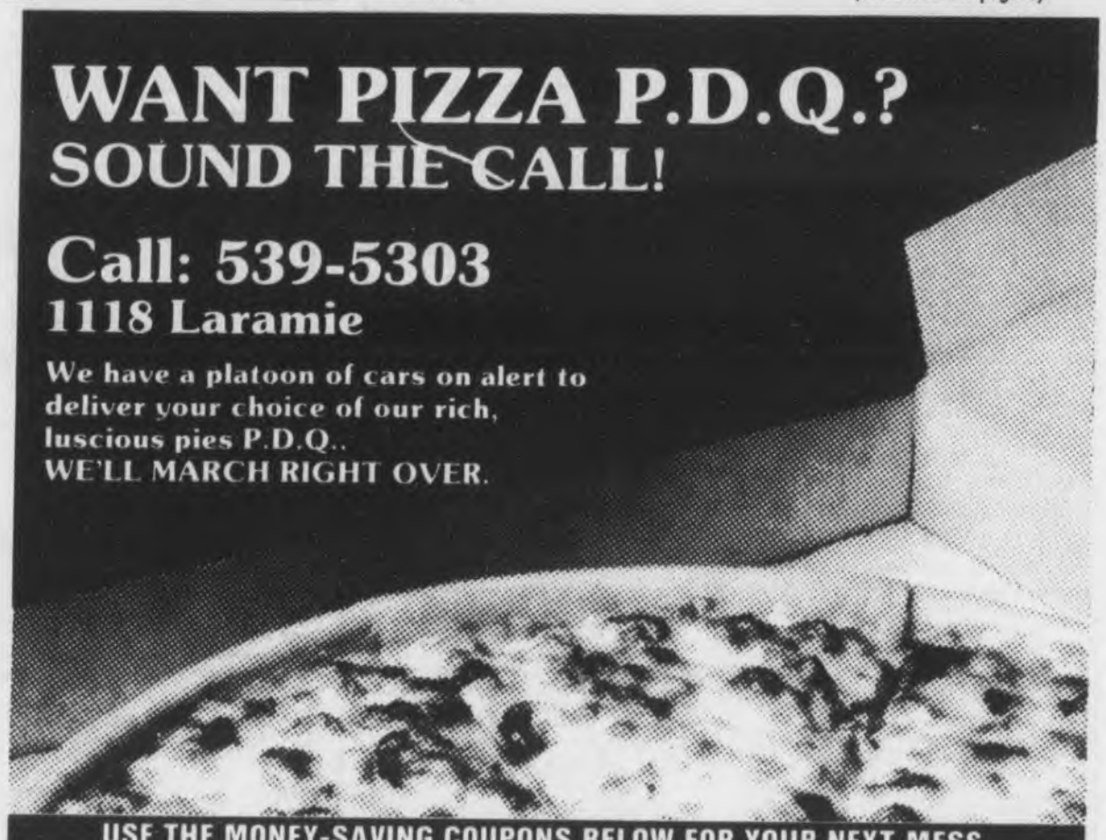
Aggieville's 10th Annual
Oktoberfest
Sat., Oct. 20
10-5
Volksmarch. Food & Craft Fair
Fun for the whole family

(Continued on page 8)

Hunam Chinese Restaurant
For Delivery
7 days a week
11 a.m. to 10 p.m.
539-8888 or 539-0888

KANSAS
for information on membership call:
JOY C. LOVIN
MEMBERSHIP REPRESENTATIVE
1-800-365-5222
EMERGENCY ROAD SERVICE

Smokey J's BBQ Restaurant
Pork*Ham*Chicken*Turkey
Ribs*Corned Beef
Relaxed, Affordable Dining
Dine in/Carry Out/Catering
776-9222 2615 Anderson Open Daily 11-9



CHARLIE'S NEIGHBORHOOD BAR Established 1983
PRESENTS LIVE REGGAE TONIGHT!

AZ ONE
REGGAE
• ONE LOVE • ONE AIM • ONE DESTINY •
WITH GUEST DJ CLIFF CLIFFORD
LISTEN TO THE CATS STOMP THE TIGERS

WITH DOLLAR PITCHERS
SATURDAY!!

WANT PIZZA P.D.Q.?
SOUND THE CALL!
Call: 539-5303
1118 Laramie
We have a platoon of cars on alert to deliver your choice of our rich, luscious pies P.D.Q..
WE'LL MARCH RIGHT OVER.

USE THE MONEY-SAVING COUPONS BELOW FOR YOUR NEXT MESS.

2 Medium Family Pack
One Combo and One Single-Topping
$10.99
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers. Limited delivery area and times. Add $1 for delivery. EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU

Medium All Meat Combo
Beef • Sausage Pepperoni • Ham Bacon
$7.99
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers. Limited delivery area and times. Add $1 for delivery. EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU

2 Medium One-Toppers
Cheese plus one topping on each $8.99
or 2 Large $11.99
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers. Limited delivery area and times. Add $1 for delivery. EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU

$4 OFF Any Large Pizza
or
$3 OFF Any Medium
Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers. Limited delivery area and times. Add $1 for delivery. EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU

Godfather's Pizza®

Fashion Company
SUPER BUYS
On New Fall Fashions!!
SAVE 35%-60%!
Off Department Store Prices!
SAVE 40%! DETAILS TEXTURED SHIRTS Compare at $22 $12.99
SAVE 60%! HUNTER'S RUN COTTON SWEATERS Compare at $34 $9.99
YOUR FAVORITE BRANDS! DENIM JEANS 25%-45% Off DEPARTMENT STORE PRICES
SAVE 55% & More! L.A. GEAR FASHION WATCHES Compare at $45-55 $19.99
SAVE 60%! HUNTER'S RUN BELTED PANTS Compare at $30 $10.99
SAVE 40%! ONE STEP UP SOLID TURTLENECKS Compare at $12 $6.99
EAST MANHATTAN (1/4 Mile East of mall next to K-Mart)
OPEN HOURS: Mon.-Fri. 10 am -9 pm Sat. 10 am - 6:30 pm Sun. Noon - 5:30 pm
EAST MANHATTAN
DESIGNER AND NAME BRAND FASHIONS FOR LESS!!
Fashion Company

Old Textbook Sale
UP TO 80% OFF!
BOOKS AS LOW AS 49¢
•Hundreds of new & used textbooks
•Various fields of study
•Some previously used at K-State
•Some from other universities
•Old editions
•Wholesaler overstock
Don't pass up this great opportunity to add to your personal library at a fraction of the regular cost!
Varney's BOOK STORE IN AGGIEVILLE
9-9 MON.-SAT. 12-5 SUN.

(Continued from page 7)

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

THIS MOTORCYCLE (Honda Shadow 500 1985) was left with us owing rent unpaid. If rent not paid and bike not claimed in three weeks, bike becomes property of renters. Midway USA Auction. 776-5222.

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial, Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

LOOKING FOR AN EXCITING CAREER?

JOIN ANNIE'S SANTA FE MEXICAN RESTAURANT AND CANTINA

Opening October 22nd in Topeka. Waiters & waitresses, prep cooks, line cooks, dish people, bus people, cocktail waitresses, hostesses, & bartenders. Full & part time positions available. Applications will be taken daily between 8:00 a.m. & 7:00 p.m. for any of the positions listed above.

ANNIE'S SANTA FE®

Westridge Mall
1801 S. W. Wanamaker Road
Topeka, Kansas
271-1060

Don't Forget
FRIDAY
LADIES
IN FREE
SATURDAY
No Cover
with Student ID
Only At
BAYSTREET

2 Apartments—Furnished

AVAILABLE JAN. 1. Private bedrooms for three neat and tidy females sharing very nice, large four-bedroom, two-bath home with KSU student owner. 539-1288.

RENT FREE country living in exchange for occasional assistance to wheelchair bound landlady. Some lifting. 1-494-8201.

SHARE LARGE home with empty-nested executive mom. Private bedroom. 537-4907 for appointment.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

AVAILABLE NOW. One-bedroom near campus, $325, year lease, no pets, laundry facilities, central air. Call for appointment 776-3804.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

ADULT MALE needed, non-smoker, rent $187.50 and utilities. Call (913)537-2939 nights after 4p.m.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY! Nice one-bedroom apartment close to campus and Aggieville. Heat paid. 537-4515.

Brittnay Ridge Townhomes
—More Than Your Basic Apartment—
- 4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, study room
- Wired for cable, phone, computer
- Hot tubs & volleyball court
- Bus service to campus
- Monthly rent as low as $195

DWC
Dan Weir Co.
2601 Anderson Ave. 776-5599

TWO-BEDROOM APARTMENT. $330 per month, utilities paid except electricity. Call 539-2017 evenings.

5 Automobile for Sale

1970 PONTIAC Bonneville 455, four-door hardtop, good tires, runs well, 86,000 miles, $600. Call 539-1845.

1979 PONTIAC Sunbird for sale, low mileage, good school car, blue, $800. 532-5452.

1986 MERCURY Cougar, excellent condition, digital dash, AM/FM cassette, V-6 automatic. Call 532-3380.

FOR SALE— 1978 Trans Am, new high performance 455, air conditioning, electric window and locks, stereo pull-out. $2,800 or offer. 539-6765.

FOR SALE— 1984 Escort GT, five-speed, cruise control, great condition, $2,900 or offer. 539-6765.

6 Child Care

CHILD CARE in our home. Needed immediately loving care for an adorable one-year-old, approximately four hours per day (mornings), live in Jardine Terrace. Good pay and lunch provided. Call weekends or afternoon weekdays. 776-7718.

7 Computers

12" COLOR video monitor. Great for VCR or computer. $120 or best offer. 537-6026.

HAVING PROBLEMS with your computer or printer? Need to upgrade your systems memory, monitor or just a larger hard drive? Need a second party book on a certain program? ABACUS Computer and Supply, 539-7007, 1111 Waters.

USED HEWLETT Packard 285 calculator. Excellent condition! Call 539-5231.

8 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such 'employment opportunity' with reasonable caution.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ATTENTION: STUDENTS! Earn $15/ hour working in your spare time on campus. Flexible hours, 1-800-688-4733.

ATTENTION: AGGRESSIVELY expanding marketing company is looking for high quality individuals who desire excellent part-time income with possible rapid advancement into management. Send resume or letter by Oct. 31st, Box 981, Garden City, KS 67846.

BARTENDER, PART-TIME, apply: Clyde's, 2304 Stagg Hill Road, across from Holidome.

BAYSTREET NEEDS waitresses, bouncers and bartenders. Apply in afternoons at Baystreet.

DRIVERS NEEDED full or part time. Good M.V.R. Must be 25 or older. 539-2284.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EVENING AND Daytime office and telephone sales help needed. Pleasant working conditions, hourly wage and excellent bonuses. Call 537-6163, 9a.m.—4p.m.

GARDEN CENTER sales clerk: Mature person with chemical and fertilizer knowledge, some horticulture and greenhouse experience— great, but not necessary. 30-40 hours includes weekends. Must work through Christmas and spring break. $4/ hour. Send resume to Collegian, Box 6.

HOME TYPISTS, PC users needed. $35,000 potential. Details. 1-805-687-6000, Ext. B-9701.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. Federal, CIA, U.S. Customs, D.E.A., etc. Now hiring. Listings. 1(805)687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. CIA, U.S. Customs, DEA, etc. Now hiring. Call 1-805-687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

NOW HIRING cooks, busboys and dishwashers. Part-time help. Call for application and interview. Call 539-2651.

TELEPHONE INTERVIEWERS needed. Up to 40 hours at a salary of $6 per hour. Contact Ken Zarybricky at 532-6842 between 1 and 5p.m. Application deadline Oct. 19th.

TWO NANNIES needed by Jan. 1 for two families in Brewster N.Y. Must drive, swim. Non-smoker preferred. One year commitment. Excellent living conditions plus salaries. (914)279-5963.

9 Food Specials

SUNDAY LUNCH
Pan Fried Chicken and other daily specials.
Specials include free dessert.
ONLY $4.25
Serving Breakfast till 1 p.m.
Open Every Sunday
7 a.m.-2:30 p.m.
The CHEF Cafe 111 S. 4th
10% off with this ad

(Continued on page 9)

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3 - 10 in. Pizzas
1 - Topping
4 - Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2 - 10 in. Pizzas
2 - Toppings
2 - Cokes
$8.00
Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

Arts and Sciences Student of the Semester

Applications available in Dean's office, Eisenhower Hall

Applications are due Oct. 26 by 4 p.m.

Arts & Science Council Elections

Are You Interested In The College of Arts & Sciences or Student Government? Arts & Science Council Applications are now available in Eisenhower 117. Applications due back in Eisenhower Friday, Oct. 26 by 5 p.m.

•Vote in the Union Oct. 31, 9-5

Clyde's
Home of '50s & '60s nonstop Fun Rock
Come join us for a
"BLAST FROM THE PAST"
FREE Food Bar Fri. 5-8, Sat. 6-8 p.m.
Formerly Kennedy's Claim
Across from the Holidome 537-8440

OKTOBERFEST
Sat., Oct. 20
Come and enjoy the festivities and our
STOREWIDE SALE!
Sweaters, jewelry, barrettes, purses, scarves, watches, fashions by Just Jerseys
Accessories on the Park
708 N. Manhattan Ave.
537-0707

K-State Players & the Dept. of Speech present
PUMP BOYS & Dinettes
Conceived & written by:
John Foley
Mark Hardwick
Debra Monk
Cass Morgan
John Schemmel
John Wann
Oct. 10-13, 16-20
"A nothin' but pure fun, country musical."
Nichols Theatre—8 p.m.
Matinee Oct. 13—2 p.m.
Tickets: McCain Box Office
532-6428
Sponsored by the Manhattan Town Center

MEDICINE. . .The Trick Could Be On You.

THE GREAT MANHATTAN SWEEP OUT.

Using medicines incorrectly can cause avoidable side effects that range from the annoying (a rash or a stomach ache) to those that are life-threatening (irregular heart beat, loss of consciousness).

Don't let the trick be on you. . .On October 31, sweep out your old medicine and bring it to The Saint Mary Hospital between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. for proper disposal.

the saint mary hospital
1823 College Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502 • (913) 776-3322

KMKF 101.7 KMAN 1350 am

Snookies

Fri. & Sat.
50¢ Kamis
Go Cats! Beat Mizzou!
Sunday, Oct. 21
Live Rock n' Roll "Cinéma"
Doors Open At 7 p.m.
1122 Moro • Upstairs • Aggieville • 776-7726

TODAY

SOCIETY FOR ADVANCEMENT OF MANAGEMENT PRESENTS

MANAGING INTO THE 21ST CENTURY

October 19th and 20th

sa•m
Society for Advancement of Management
1990 MIDWEST REGIONAL CONFERENCE
Hosted by
KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY
SOCIETY FOR ADVANCEMENT OF MANAGEMENT
MANHATTAN, KANSAS
Register at Holiday Inn Holidome 2-6:45 p.m. today.

K-State RECYCLES!
Making a world of difference

Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

By Bob Berry

Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind

Jim's Journal

By Jim

Calvin and Hobbes

By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

(Continued from page 8)

FREE BBQ BURGERS 4-7 ONLY AT BAYSTREET

Ad It Up!
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Display Advertising
532-6560

Bobby T's
Weekends at Bobby T's
Fridays Enjoy Shrimp and Beer
2 doz shrim & pitcher of beer $4.99
DJ 8-12
Saturday Enjoy Live Entertainment
John Woofter
The Singing Stockbroker

Every Friday
ALL YOU CAN EAT!
•Spaghetti & meat sauce
•Salad Bar
•Texas Toast
$4.95
The CHEF Cafe
111 S. 4th
Fridays 5-8 p.m.

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

COUCH AND matching chair. Like new. Call 539-1452.

DRAFTING DESK with set of matching drawers and stool, $100 or best offer. 776-2127.

KING-SIZE WATERBED. Soft-side contains mattress and box springs. $200 or negotiable. Call 537-7820.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND: MALE cat, black and grey striped in Westloop area. 776-8606.

FOUND: TAN Cocker Spaniel at 10th and Vattier, Thursday (Oct. 11th). Call 776-7125.

FOUND: VERY expensive textbook in Lafene Health Center Thursday. Please come in to identify.

LOST: DENIM jacket with hood, St. John's Bay. HP-325 calculator in pocket. Reward $20. 776-4997.

LOST: NFL Football on roof of Union 10/13. Possibly blown off and found Sunday or Monday. 776-6800 anytime.

15 Meetings/ Events

BROTHER PEACE, An international day to end men's violence, will be held Oct. 20th at 1p.m. The movie, "Torchsong Trilogy," will be shown then. Three minutes of silence and a speakout will follow the movie.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

OWN THIS 12' wide, two-bedroom, $135 monthly for 24 months. Large selection. Countryside. 539-2325.

18 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

TAKARA MIXLE frame, 10-speed touring bike, perfect for commuting to K-State. $50. 537-7070.

19 Music/ Musicians

YAMAHA STUDENT model trumpet. Recently cleaned. $120 or best offer. 537-6026.

21 Personals

ACACIA SWIMMERS— Good luck in Plunge. You're #1 so far. Keep up the good work. Love, your coaches.

AGR TIM— The Fifties were nifty so that's where we'll go, doing the twist and the hand jive we'll know. We'll skip the malt shop and head straight for the hop, drinkin' and dancin' we'll rock around the clock! —AX Jill.

ATOS MAYO, Dove and Denny-Ray: Hey studlies, we're ready to consume. Are you? Your AX party dates. P.S. We promise J. won't keck.

AWESOME THETA Ashley: I'm so glad you're my dot. Boring you're not! See you tonight, Dot. Love, Mom.

AZD PLEDGES— To the best: From the rest. The sophomores came up with this really cool rhyme, To let you know the place and time, Monday 7:30— Coco and Smores will be the treat. The Xi House is where we'll meet. Fuzzy Love.

BETAS— SATURDAY we'll take a swim. The Beta team will surely win! We'll be lengths ahead of the rest— Our Beta men are by far the best. Love, your coaches.

DEE, YOU didn't show at 1:30 Tuesday. This matter is urgent. Call me. Katy.

DELTA SIGMA Phi Jake, Kenny— Wednesday night was just right. We had great fun with our dates on the run. Love, Sigma Kappas Rimi, Becky.

ELIZABETH, WRITE (,) ('Happy 19th B-Day', I=1,999) End. Thanks for the help, 3 Fortran Illiterates.

IMP, THANKS for all you have done for me. I'll never forget you. —Pink Hearts.

JEFF B.— Happy 22 birthday from your "kid."

JULIE MARIE— Happy Birthday to a very good friend. We love you! J. and P.

KAPPA SIGMAS— To all you Kappa Sig swimmers— You are the studs. We are the Pi Phis. You are our buds. The day is tomorrow. The time is nine. At Pi Phi Plunge, You'll look so fine!! Love, your coaches.

KRIS— HERE is the personal you have been waiting for. Have A Great Day!! Bec.

MARSHA B.— The big 21 is here! Thank God something good came out of German II! Love You Always, Terrell.

MISH AND Jo— Do you know where we can get an Irish Setter, cheap? Bec and Kris.

PHI DELTS— Are you ready to take the plunge? We promise it will be tons of fun! Good Luck! Your Pi Phi Coaches.

PIE DOUGH Queen— Just Letting You Know That I'm Still Alive. —Wondering.

POOTER— ROSES are red, Violets are blue, It's been two years, 'n I still love you! —Forever, Chestnut.

RESPOND BY Thursday: I have had a good internship, and I do take good care of my body. But, what about Our Son. Please Respond.

SIGMA CHIS— You're #1! Let's go for 4 in a row. Good Luck, Your Plunge coaches.

SUICIDE BLONDE— Well, Jannie, the teenage years have come and gone. Happy 20th Birthday to the best roommate I could've hoped for. And thanks for listening to me go on and on about last weekend. On New Year's Eve you'll understand it all. Signed, City Girl.

SWEET LITTLE Kitty— Surprise! Congratulations for completing those two exams and I wish you luck on the rest. I cherish the time I spent with you! I have a couple of tickets, will you help me use them? PGSWMFSSS. Let's go for a walk. Love Always, Bubba.

THERE IS a circulation librarian named Cherie, Who is normally bright and merry, But an overdue fine really makes her eyes shine, With a look that is truly quite scary.

THETA BABY Stacey A.— I'm so glad you are my dot, I don't know what I'd do if you were not! Happy Birthday! Love, Mommy.

THETA TIFFANY— I'm so glad you're my dot! Love ya lots —Mom.

TKE TONY— Forever we will be together, but today is only here for now. So, let's kick back and celebrate, because it's your birthday! Love, Stacey.

TO THE men of Sigma Nu— Get excited to take the plunge— you know it'll be lots of fun— and we know you'll be #1! Love— Your Pi Phi Coaches.

TRAVIS LEE and Tracy Lee: A, "Big Dream in a Small Town," may be what it seems— but put on them boots and those tight-fitting jeans. 'Cause, "Here in the Real World," we'll do it up right as we dance and party on into the night. Our Rockies are starched so get ready to go— to two-step to country and Cotton-Eyed Joe.

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

FOR SALE— Registered Persian kittens. Shaded silver, camco and cream. AKC Sheltie puppies. 1-632-3201.

23 Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

SUFFERING FROM abortion? Write: HeartsRestored, Box 94, Grinnell, Kansas 67738. Confidential response will follow.

New Sunbed
Tanning 10 for $25
HARDBODIES GYM
Laramie Plaza Basement 539-7095

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— More than just typing— we create the resume with you, so it reflects your best. Then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience in University Career Center.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851. Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100 or 1-456-9642, Wamego.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE CHRISTIANS looking for roommate. $100 per month plus one-fourth utilities. $150 deposit. Call 776-8873.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: $142.50/ month. One-half utilities. Rest of October rent free. Park Place Apartments. 539-8391.

ROOMMATE WANTED: Female, three-bedroom house. 537-3653.

FOR SPRING semester, two or one roommate wanted. $160 or $230 rent plus utilities. 1212 Bluemont, 776-0797.

26 Stereo Equipment

CD PLAYER— Fisher, excellent condition, $85. 776-4215.

FOR SALE: Home subwoofer, 200 watts, built-in amp, crossover, volume, protector, $400. 539-3732.

27 Sports/Recreation Equipment

SAILBOARD— 10'4" transition board with rig, 5.6m2 sail, centerboard, excellent condition, $450. 776-6073 after 5p.m.

30 Travel/Car Pool

SKI
LAST CHANCE! JANUARY ... BREAK
STEAMBOAT from $177
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
BRECKENRIDGE from $184
JANUARY 2-9 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
VAIL/BEAVER CREEK from $247
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
9th ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS
Ski & Beach Sunchase Breaks
TOLL FREE INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS— Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. Boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more. Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday— Saturday 9a.m.— 5p.m. St. Mary's Surplus Sales, St. Mary's, Kansas 1-437-2734.

NEW, FULL length men's black leather trench coat, $400 or best offer. 539-1182.

NINTENDO— SYSTEM plus three games. Brand new with all boxes, instructions. $125. 776-1638. Leave message.

33 Tutor

TUTOR: PHYSICS and chemistry. Please leave a message if I'm out. 537-0356.

VERY QUALIFIED tutor for Spanish. Affordable rates. Call Leticia 539-6832 after 9p.m.

34 Horses

HORSEBACK RIDING, hourly rates, group rates. Call for appointment. Boarding, training also. 1-238-2681.

35 NCAAW

ACE UP your sleeve— Responsible decision making, moderation, and knowing your limits are your best protection —NCAAW 1990.

FOUR BULLETS (Aces)— Four beers in 1 hour for a 120 lb. person produces an estimated blood alcohol content level of .10 (legally drunk) —NCAAW 1990.

JOKER— DRIVING requires a combination of thought and motor skills, and a concern for the safety of everyone on the road. Safe driving requires an observant eye, a steady hand, and a clear head. Drinking and driving: Is it worth the gamble? —NCAAW 1990.

NCAAW— NATIONAL Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week 1990. Alcohol: Is it a gamble? Funding in part provided by City of Manhattan and KSU Alcohol and Other Drug Education Service.

THREE OF a kind— 12 oz. of beer equals 5 oz. of wine equals 1 ½ oz. of liquor —NCAAW 1990.

36 Nanny

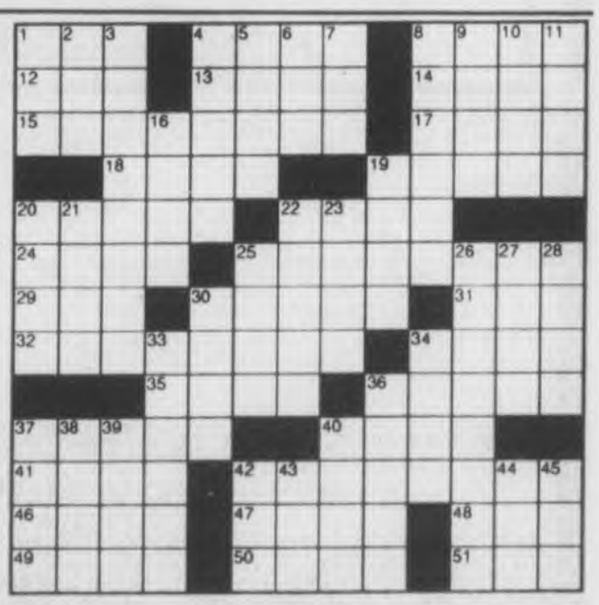
EXPERIENCED NANNY looking for family, full-time. For information call 776-9649, Mandy.

37 Political Personals

STAN HOERMAN, The Margin of Excellence. Stan Hoerman, Believes In It. Stan Hoerman Will Vote to Fund it. Stan Hoerman Can Work with Leadership. Stan Hoerman Needs Your Vote Nov. 6! Pd. Adv. Stan Hoerman, Bren Abbott, Treasurer.

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Rudimentary trio
4 Oscar Madison, e.g.
8 Al Hirt hit
12 Aussie hopper
13 Shadow
14 Prolific auth.?
15 Yellow
17 "What's — for me?"
18 Dominance
19 Scimitar feature
20 Beaming
22 "Mondo Cane" theme
24 Get an F
25 Office injury?
29 Mont Blanc, e.g.
30 Not movable
31 Acapulco gold
32 The Mad Monk
34 Pavlova portrayal
35 Quire group
36 It's yours for the asking
37 Channing or Burnett
40 The Huxtable boy
41 First murder victim
42 Associate
46 Where heroes are made
47 Roman poet
48 Guidonian note
49 Charon's river
50 Actress Delany
51 Firmament

DOWN
1 Lob's path
2 Halloween outcry
3 Marsh marigolds
4 Worthless
5 Kenny Rogers song
6 Tin Woodman's first need
7 Journalist Nellie
8 He'll put you in your place
9 Deborah Kerr role
10 Empty space
11 Chip in a chip
16 Truant GI
19 Raised
20 Way out there
21 Festive
22 Saw
23 Admitting customers
25 Pocket bread
26 Ranch hands
27 Russian range
28 Stage statuette
30 It gets you going
33 Wordy
34 Crystal-gazer
36 "MTM" spinoff
37 Bounders
38 Help out
39 Trust, with "on"
40 Clone
42 New England cape
43 Breakfast for Brutus
44 Wapiti
45 Bob's late partner

Solution time: 26 mins.

B	R	A	N		C	O	B		T	W	A	S
I	A	G	O		O	U	R		W	H	I	P
A	B	E	T		V	I	A		I	A	M	A
S	E	R	A	P	E		V	A	S	T
			T	E	N	L	E	T	T	E	R	S
C	O	C	O	A		E	L	M		V	E	T
A	H	O	Y		S	P	Y		M	E	S	A
L	I	L		I	C	E		F	O	R	T	Y
F	O	U	R	V	O	W	E	L	S
		M	A	Y	O		L	O	O	U	A	T
B	A	B	Y		T	A	B		U	R	G	E
O	L	I	O		E	G	O		E	D	I	E
B	E	A	N		R	O	W		S	U	N	S

Yesterday's answer 10-19

CRYPTOQUIP

10-19

I U D W K C I S R H O S L H R U U M G F L F S R T M U D F R T K L D X H L D G T S M W K R U H M G S L F O B F R N

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: POLICE ACADEMY ARTIST WAS PROUD OF HIS DRAWING OF A SUSPECT AT LARGE. "IT REALLY CAPTURES HIM."

Today's Cryptoquip clue: H equals F

Tickets

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

Bloom and Brewer said McIntyre told one woman who approached him that his position in line was No. 27.

Because his line moved slower, Bloom said McIntyre was able to get to the purchasing window before him and buy 50 general-admission tickets.

When Bloom got to the window, there were only 43 general-admissions tickets available for the 65 students he represented, he said.

Suspicous of McIntyre's actions in line, Bloom said he made inquiries and found out McIntyre had improved his No. 57 position because he had bypassed the verification table.

Bloom said he reported the incident to Nelson and later received a phone call from McIntyre offering to exchange 22 general-admission tickets for an equal number of reserved-seat tickets.

Cris Richert, senior in park resources management, accompanied Bloom when he exchanged the tickets, Bloom said.

Both Bloom and Richert said McIntyre apologized for taking advantage of his position with the committee to get in front of Bloom in line.

McIntyre said he did not apologize to them for using his position improperly and has nothing to apologize for.

"No, I did nothing wrong," he said.

McIntyre said that he only saved five minutes by validating his group before the set time.

His position was improved because some groups failed to come forward when called and the line he was in moved faster, he said. The group in front of him was No. 45 and the group behind him was No. 58.

McIntyre said there was nothing improper about students buying tickets from him while he was in line.

"Everybody was doing it," he said.

Nelson said when he found out McIntyre failed to go the verification table he became upset.

"I yelled at him at the time," he said. "Everybody else (on the committee) that camped out went through verification."

Nelson said he suggested McIntyre make the trade Bloom wanted.

It is impossible to tell the extent of the advantage McIntyre gained because of the different speeds of the lines and because some groups did not come to the verification table when they were called, Nelson said.

"We told the groups repeatedly what they had to do," he said. "But many were skipped when they were called to the table because they weren't present."

He said students were allowed to give their group representative money once the representative had cleared verification, but those students had to come to the verification table first.

Although all the students who gave money to McIntyre while he was in line were in the group he represented, none of them came to the table, Nelson said.

"I would have preferred they had done that," Nelson said.

Nelson said although McIntyre violated no written rules, he did violate policy.

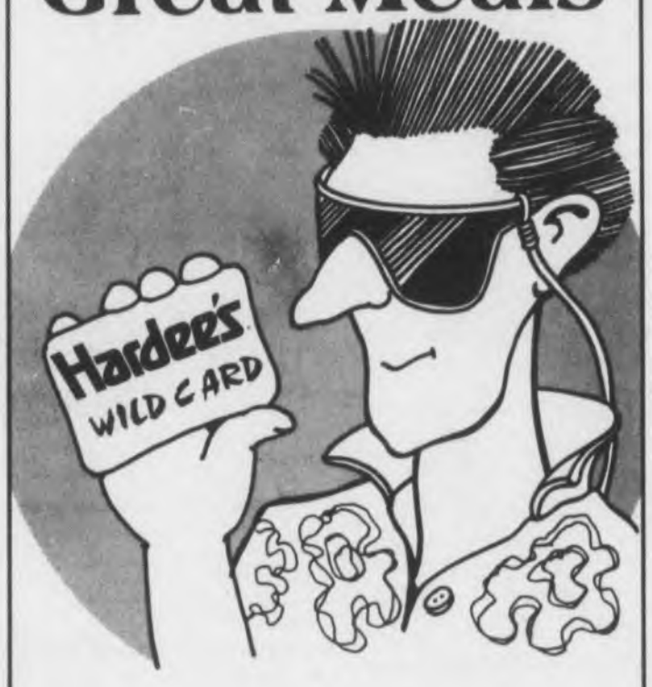
"I'm torn up by this," he said. "I assumed people on the committee would follow policy. (The campout) was highly successful except for this incident."

Bloom agreed the committee did a good job of organizing the campout. He said his concern now is the remaining 28 general admission tickets McIntyre bought.

"He is still screwing people out of tickets," Bloom said.

Nelson said any group that believes they were cheated out of tickets will have to seek action though the Student Review Board.

21 & OVER



TIRED OF WAITING IN LINE?

TRY BAYSTREETS "PIT" BACKDOOR INTO BAYSTREET

OPEN 10-2 EVERY THURS. FRI. SAT.

LOCATED BETWEEN KRYSTALLOS AND OLD ALPINE STORE

Cool Deals on Great Meals

Get your Hardee's Wild Card™ free for the asking - and head down to Hardee's. The Hardee's Wild Card™ is good for weekly "cardholder" specials all year long.

This Week's Wild Card Special
Chicken Filet Sandwich
$1.29

Hardee's

FEDERAL LAW PROVIDES SEVERE PENALTIES FOR ALTERING OR COUNTERFEITING THIS NOTE

THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

It Pays To Be A Hero!

New Donors Donate Plasma and Earn $30 Instant Cash

Open Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-6:30 p.m. Sat. 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

•Donate up to twice a week
•Enjoy free movies while you donate
•Bring in a friend (new donor) to second visit and receive an additional $3.

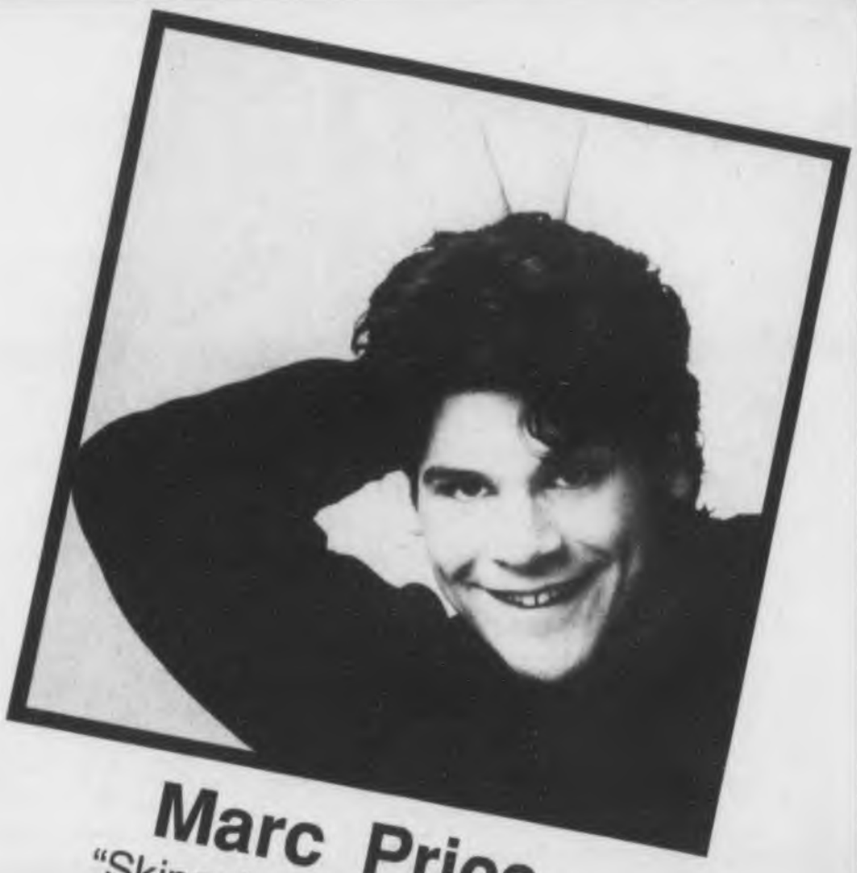
Manhattan Donor Center
1130 Gardenway (Across from Westloop)

New Donors Accepted M-F 9-4 pm Sat. 9-11 pm

Our fully automated center is medically supervised with a friendly & professional staff

15 DOLLARS

The Alpha Eta Chapter of Alpha Delta Pi



Main House at 518 Sunset

proudly announces its

75TH Anniversary Celebration 1915-1990

October 19-21

PONTIAC ALL-STAR COMEDY CARAVAN

Marc Price
"Skippy" on Family Ties

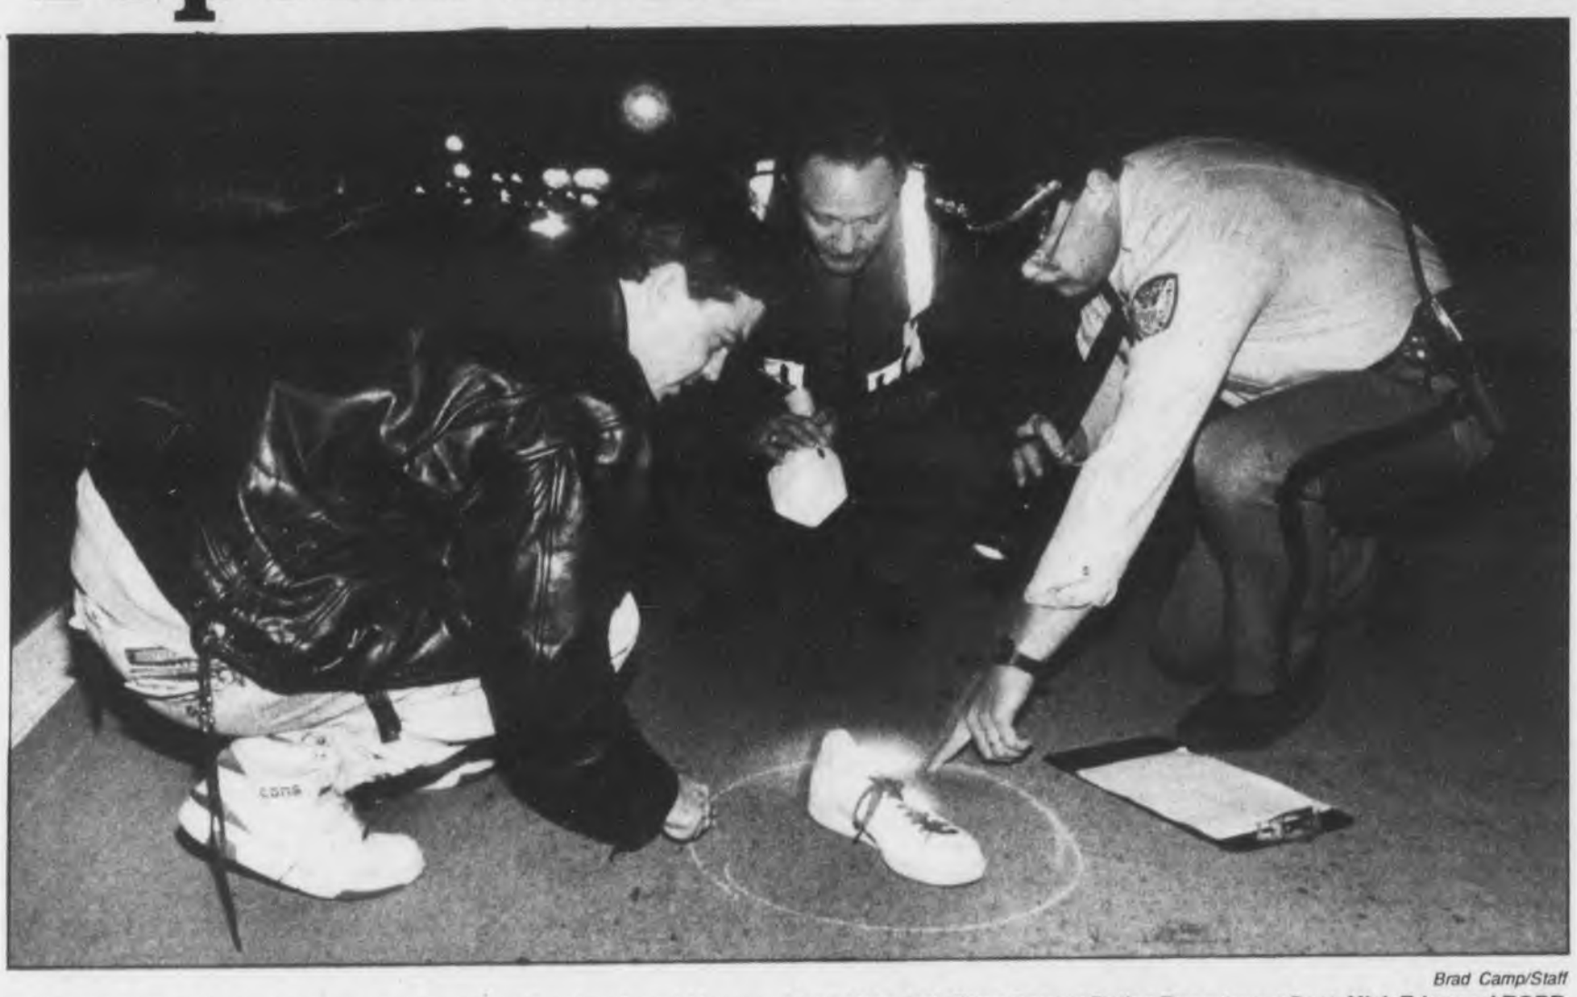
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1990
8 p.m. MCCAIN AUDITORIUM
$4 admission
($1 donated to SADD for every ticket sold)

Tickets can be purchased at the McCain Auditorium Box Office or at the UPC Office on the third floor of the K-State Union.

Stop by the PONTIAC EXCITEMENT CENTER in the Union Plaza (between the K-State Union and Seaton Hall) Thursday and Friday, October 18 & 19, 11 a.m.-3 p.m. and check out the latest PONTIAC cars. Win tickets, t-shirts, and enter sweepstakes for a chance to win a PONTIAC Sunbird Convertible. The PONTIAC EXCITEMENT CENTER will be in the Union Courtyard in the case of rain.

U.S. CONCEPTS INC.

PONTIAC. WE BUILD Excitement.



k-state union special events

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Monday, October 22, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 41

Topeka man killed in traffic accident

Brad Camp/Staff

Following a traffic fatality on Fort Riley Boulevard Sunday, Donald Ingram, Manhattan, left, Riley County Police Department Capt. Nick Edvy and RCPD Officer Hank Nelson examine the deceased man's shoe. The shoe marked the point of impact of Ingram's vehicle and the man's body.

Victim struck by vehicle while retrieving waterbed mattress

By Steve Franzen
Campus Editor

A Manhattan shopping spree for a Topeka man and his family ended suddenly in a traffic fatality Sunday.

The accident occurred at 8:13 p.m. at 15th Street and Fort Riley Boulevard.

Riley County Police Capt. Nick Edvy said a male, whose name will not be released until later today, was struck by another motorist as he crossed the road toward his truck that was parked in the middle of the road. The man died after being taken to Memorial Hospital.

According to preliminary police reports, the man, his wife and small child were leaving Manhattan and heading home after purchasing some furniture, when a waterbed mattress fell off a trailer attached to their pickup truck. The truck had been traveling eastbound in the inside lane on Fort Riley Boulevard when the man stopped the vehicle and turned on its hazard lights.

The man was trying to retrieve the mattress when he was struck by an eastbound, red Ford Mustang in the outside lane and carried nearly 30 feet by the vehicle, Edvy said. The man landed directly behind his own trailer and remained there while paramedics worked to transport him to the hospital.

"One minute I heard the guy moaning and groaning, the next they were doing CPR on him," said Angelika Chappell, a resident of a nearby home. "And (the man's wife) kept saying, 'This isn't happening, this isn't happening.'"

Edvy said the fatality victim suffered head injuries and internal bleeding before dying. He said the driver of the Mustang was Donald Ingram, Manhattan.

"I didn't even see him. Evidently, he came out from this side somewhere," Ingram said to Riley County Police Officer Rodney Cook.

As police moved the car, a piece of the man's skin was still lodged in the Mustang's cracked windshield. The front end of the car's passenger side was also damaged.

After paramedics, state troopers and Riley County police officers secured the area and transported the family to the hospital, all that remained was the idling truck, a lone shoe 30 feet behind the trailer and a pool of blood.

"It is an unfortunate situation, where apparently the man (who was struck) did not use common sense,"

■ See ACCIDENT, Page 12

Iraqi vessel boarded

U.S. destroyer fires shots to warn ship

CRISIS IN THE MIDDLE EAST

By The Associated Press

A U.S. destroyer on Sunday was tracking an Iraqi vessel in the Persian Gulf that defied two warning shots and tried to elude U.S. warships, U.S. military officials in Saudi Arabia said.

Pentagon spokesman Lt. Col. Steve Roy confirmed the incident and said that in about a dozen cases, U.S. ships have fired warning shots to enforce U.N. trade sanctions on Iraq.

The U.S. destroyer O'Brien fired two shots across the bow of the al-Bahar al-Arabi after the ship did not answer its radio and ignored commands to stop, Roy said.

The Iraqi vessel was intercepted and boarded, then permitted to proceed, Roy said. U.S. military sources in Dahran, Saudi Arabia said the ship was headed for Aden, Yemen and was being tracked by Italian and U.S. warships.

The United States and about a dozen other nations are participating in the naval armada in the gulf region to back the trade sanctions with military might.

The sanctions were imposed after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

In Tokyo, meanwhile, more than 23,000 people rallied Sunday to protest a government plan to send soldiers to the gulf, police said. It would be the first deployment of Japanese troops abroad since World War II.

Opponents say the government proposal, introduced in Parliament last Tuesday, violates Japan's constitution, which bars the use of force to settle international disputes.

About 300,000 troops are deployed in Saudi Arabia and the gulf region as part of the multinational force arrayed against Iraq. Saddam Hussein's army is estimated at about 460,000.

A gulf newspaper alleged Sunday that Iraqi troops had been withdrawn from parts of occupied Kuwait over the past two nights. The Sharjah-based Al-Khaleej newspaper made the claims in an unattributed front-page report.

"Hundreds of tanks and armored vehicles and armored personnel carriers have been sighted heading toward north Kuwait, specifically to the region of Matla where they are settling in the plains there, above Jahraa," it said.

The only operational part of Desert Shield, however, has been the confrontation between the multinational armada and ships believed bound to and from Iraq.

The latest incident began Saturday, when the Iraqi-flagged ship was boarded by American Navy and Coast Guard inspectors. The vessel agreed to turn back to Iraq because its cargo was prohibited under the U.N. sanctions, Navy sources said. It was not immediately clear what the ship was carrying.

Jury acquits 2 Live Crew of violating obscenity law

By Danette King
Collegian Reporter

A Florida jury acquitted 2 Live Crew of obscenity charges Saturday after a two-week trial.

The rap group had been charged with violating state obscenity laws during a concert. Three of the four band members were arrested and each was charged with a misdemeanor. Two of the members could have faced up to one year in jail and a $10,000 fine if found guilty.

"The obscenity law is extremely difficult because the Supreme Court has allowed cities and states to establish their own laws," said Paul Parsons, professor of journalism who teaches a course in law of mass communications. "One standard that might exist in Florida would be very different from one in Kansas."

Parsons said obscenity cases were frequent in the 1960s and 1970s but they had become less popular during the 1980s. It was during the surge of obscenity cases of 20 and 30 years ago that the Supreme Court established the current standard.

There are exceptions to the First Amendment, which includes the freedom of speech, Parsons said. The exceptions include obscenity.

"The Supreme Court has clearly said that they will not protect obscenity," Parsons said.

Parsons said he believes the ruling would have been different with different jurors in a different city.

"I suspect that if the trial was held in 10 different cities with 10 different juries, five of them would find (2 Live Crew) guilty and five wouldn't," Parsons said.

Robert Littrell, a local attorney, said he was thrilled to hear 2 Live Crew had not been convicted.

"I don't think the state ought to be put in the position of prosecuting artists," Littrell said.

He said that because the Supreme Court has left the interpretation of obscenity up to community standards, artists are provided with little notice as to whether their work will be considered obscene in different parts of the country.

"If it were a more national standard, it would have more clarity," Littrell said.

Parsons said he thinks this was the first big obscenity case of the 1990s and that it will set a standard for later cases.

"I suspect it will cool the fever of obscenity prosecutors," Parsons said. "It will send a message to local prosecutors that it is not open season on people in the entertainment business.

"It will send the message nationwide to people who are prosecutors that it is OK not to not bother with obscenity unless there is a real clear-cut case," he said.

Tipton faces threat of line abandonment

Editors note: this is the second of a three-part series about railroad abandonment in Kansas.

By Susan Boos
Collegian Reporter

For many people, Tipton may already look somewhat deserted. But the town's size can be deceptive.

"Tipton is a unique town because we've been making it," said Francis Gasper, general manager of Tipton's Farmway Co-op. "But the town is beginning to whittle away. The lumber yard is shut down; the cafe closed.

As the Santa Fe Railway announces its plans to abandon the Osborne to Salina line, on which Tipton ships much of its grain, concerns grow that the town will be hurt severely.

"See that building over there," Gasper points to a large brick structure and frowns. "That's a parochial school, and we're having a heck of a time keeping it open."

The community is beginning to worry about more than just the parochial school.

"If the railroad leaves, it will make a ghost town of this place," said Cecilia Streit, whose husband farms just outside of Tipton. "We can't get a good enough price for our crops as it is. I don't see how people can make a go of it."

Across the state, many communities like Tipton are facing railroad abandonment as Santa Fe plans to abandon 719 miles of low-density line. The low-density lines small communities depend on simply aren't profitable for Santa Fe to operate anymore.

The Bureau of Rail Affairs considers a low-density line one which carries less than one million gross tons per mile annually. Kansas could lose some 3,000 miles of low-density lines in the next several decades.

"Industry on a lot of the lines never fully developed, and they don't have enough traffic to support lines," said Cathy Westphal Santa Fe spokeswoman. "We have to cut our overhead, and having the low-density lines on our books is very expensive."

While it is more expensive for Santa Fe to operate the low-density lines, small rural communities will experience big increases in shipping costs if the railroad pulls out completely.

Byron Ulery, manager of Farmway Co-op Inc., said additional operating costs could amount to 5 to 10 cents per bushel.

"There's no doubt about it, costs will increase with trucks," Ulery said. "Just to improve the truck loading system to handle the number of trucks, it would cost us $50,000 per elevator. But without the railroads, we have no choice but to truck."

Although trucking is the only alternative left if the railroad leaves, it is an unattractive alternative for those in the Tipton area.

"There's no way we could go to trucking. During harvest, if we wouldn't have had the railroad, we would have had to have almost 12 trucks a day just to haul out our crops. And we couldn't get that many trucks here," Gasper said.

Ulery estimates that if the Osborne to Salina branch is abandoned, there would be an additional 3,500 trucks on the roads in the area just hauling grain from Farmway elevators.

Ulery said, "With all the extra traffic, the roads will deteriorate much faster and require more upkeep."

Farmway, which owns four elevators on the Osborne to Tipton line, realized it was using low-density lines and began relying heavily on the railroad because it didn't want the lines abandoned.

"We tried not to truck anything and ship everything by rail to support the railroad because we knew it was a low-density line," said Don Swisher, Farmway grain department manager. "The only time we truck is during harvest when there's a shortage of rail cars."

Shipping everything by rail still may not be enough. In the last couple of years, traffic on the Osborne to Salina line has been unusually low because of poor crop yields.

"Last year, we didn't have a wheat crop," Gasper said. "We collected crop insurance and got help from the government, but it made the traffic on the railroad low."

Those using the Osborne to Salina line are hopeful that a short line will buy the line from Santa Fe. Short lines operate on a local basis and are usually tied to the community, allowing them to be more successful with the low-density lines than the large railroad companies.

"We don't plan on losing the rail service," Ulery said. "We are still hopeful that the line will be bought."

"Short lines have advantages because they are locally based and are more responsive. If we need a line repaired at Tipton, they know where Tipton is. The big lines don't know, and they don't care," Ulery said.

Some argued that lines weren't kept up like they should have been, and Santa Fe used deteriorating lines as a scapegoat.

"They haven't kept up good repair on the lines," Ulery said. "They ran it at as high of profit as they could for as long as they could. Now, to make it more profitable, they have to put more money into it, and they don't want to have to do that."

As the railroads threaten to pull out and continue streamlining to high-volume and long-run lines, the people hurt the worst may be the small farmers.

"The farmers will get a lower price for their crops. It could force the smaller farmers, who can't afford to truck it themselves, out of business," Ulery said.

Gasper said many people are already leaving the farm, and young people just aren't coming back like they used to.

Gary Lytle/Staff

The proposed abandonment of the Santa Fe Railway line that runs through Tipton could severly hurt the economy of the north central Kansas community.

BRIEFLY

World

Nazi sympathizers lead rallies

BERLIN (AP) — Hundreds of Nazi sympathizers shouted "Foreigners out!" and anti-Communist slogans in a march in the southeastern city of Dresden, the news agency ADN reported.

There were no reports of any violence Saturday night as the protesters snaked through the center of Dresden, a former East German city 110 miles southeast of Berlin.

Police estimated that about 350 neo-Nazis took part in the demonstration, ADN reported. It took place without permission of city authorities, the agency said.

The march was led by Michael Kuehnen, a well-known pro-Nazi activist, the agency said.

Small groups of neo-Nazis have emerged in the eastern part of Germany since the Berlin Wall fell a year ago. German leaders have warned that pro-fascist sentiments, which were suppressed by the former Communist government, must not be allowed to develop in the newly united country.

Citizens demanding elections

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — Thousands of demonstrators held rallies and anti-government marches Sunday to press demands for President Hussain Muhammad Ershad to resign and hold elections under a caretaker government.

Riot police backed by paramilitary forces were deployed in key points in the capital, Dhaka, but did not intervene.

The nationwide demonstrations, which have been held periodically since Erhsad assumed power in a bloodless coup in 1982, intensified after eight protesters were killed in Dhaka in clashes with police on Oct. 10 and 13.

Arab laborer kills 3 Israelis

JERUSALEM (AP) — An Arab laborer shouting "God is Great!" stabbed three Israelis to death Sunday as he rampaged through a Jewish neighborhood, apparently seeking revenge for the Temple Mount killings, police said.

One victim managed to shoot and wound the attacker, who was then seized by furious residents, ending the rampage in the Baka area of southern Jerusalem, police said.

The attack inflamed tensions in the capital and brought in a stream of police reinforcements as vengeance-seeking Jews took briefly to the streets.

Police spokesman Aharon Elchayani said his forces would bar Arabs from traveling into Jerusalem on Monday.

Two Palestinian factions claimed responsibility for Sunday's attack, but police said they believed the assailant acted alone. The suspect was identified as Omar Abu Sirhan, a 19-year-old Arab laborer from the village of Ubbadiyeh in the occupied West Bank.

Nation

Bush may veto civil rights act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress can't accept President Bush's version of civil rights legislation, said Democrats and civil rights advocates on Sunday as they vowed to try and override Bush's promised veto of the bill.

The Senate passed the bill 62-34; the House 273-154. But both votes were short of the two-thirds majority needed to override a veto.

Bush's plan would mark a setback for civil rights, charged Ralph Neas. Neas, executive director for the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, said Bush's proposal would allow businesses to bar minorities and women for reasons based on "customer relations or other excuses irrelevant to job performance."

Leaders work on budget plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats and Republicans narrowed differences Sunday over new taxes on the rich, gasoline levies and Medicare cuts, even as Bush administration officials angrily stalked out of deficit-reduction talks.

Congressional leaders of both parties negotiated into the evening over a $250 billion package of tax increases and spending cuts in agriculture, student loans and dozens of other programs.

"We've made good progress in many areas," said Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine. But he conceded, "The remaining areas of disagreement are important ones."

Weekend bargaining saw the two sides move toward each other in several areas, including the question of how — and how high — to raise taxes on the rich.

The talks proceeded on the eve of what lawmakers hoped would be Congress' last week before adjournment for the year. In the scant time left, House and Senate leaders say they would still like to tackle bills dealing with civil rights, air pollution and child care.

States pass AIDS crime laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — An increasing number of states now have laws that make it a crime to knowingly expose another person to the AIDS virus.

Since 1986, 22 states have passed laws making it illegal to engage in conduct that could transmit the human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, believed to cause acquired immune deficiency syndrome, according to the AIDS Policy Center at George Washington University.

Region

Finney, Hayden in dead heat

WICHITA (AP) — Democrat Joan Finney's 17-point lead in the Kansas governor's race has vanished in a month and a growing number of voters are rating her negatively, according to a newspaper poll published Sunday.

The poll conducted for the Wichita Eagle indicates Finney is now in a dead heat with Gov. Mike Hayden with 21 percent of the voters undecided.

The poll, based on random telephone conversations with Kansans who are registered to vote, found that 37.8 percent said they would vote for Finney and 37.3 percent would support Hayden. The poll, conducted Oct. 10 and Oct. 13-17, had a margin of error of 3.4 percent.

A month ago, an Eagle survey indicated 48.7 percent supported Finney and 31.3 percent favored Hayden.

Since the September Eagle poll, Hayden has picked up 6 percentage points while Finney has lost almost 11.

Company faces chemical ban

OLATHE (AP) — A chemical company that is the focus of a $5 million environmental cleanup has been barred by the federal government from purchasing more surplus chemicals until 1993.

Chemical Commodities Inc. and owner Jerald Gershon were notified in September of the action by the U.S. Defense Reutilization and Marketing Service. The action was then disclosed in records released this month by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The EPA has estimated that it will cost $5 million to clean up a warehouse the company owns in Olathe.

Chemical Commodities also is under federal court order to cease business at three other Kansas City area warehouses, and to dispose of hazardous wastes. If not, the company could face a $500,000 fine.

Gershon could not be reached for comment last week.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

Campus organizations are encouraged to use the Campus Bulletin. All announcements must be submitted by 11 a.m. one day prior to publication. Announcements for Monday's bulletin must be submitted by 11 a.m. Friday. However, publication is determined by the amount of space available on a first-come, first-served basis and is not guaranteed. Information forms are available on the shelf outside Kedzie 118A. You must have a picture ID to submit a bulletin form. During business hours, IDs will be checked in Kedzie 116 or 118A. Forms should be left in the box outside 118A after being filled out. Questions should be directed to the Collegian's news editor in Kedzie 116.

22 Monday

■ Students Helping Students will meet at 2:30 p.m. in the Lafene Health Center conference room.

■ French Table will meet from 12:05 to 1:30 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

■ KSU Friends of Big Brothers and Big Sisters will meet at 7 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2 to plan the Halloween party.

■ English Department will present a Foucaultian approach to the world view of Marx, Darwin and Freud by Janice Bogstad.

■ Advertising Club will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 212.

■ Student Human Ecology Association will meet for Royal Purple pictures at 7:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202. All Human Ecology majors are welcome.

■ Alpha Zeta will fill orders at 5 p.m. in Weber 103.

■ Hand Band (Sign Language to Song) will meet at 7 p.m. in Leasure 106.

■ Brother Peace Women and Men Against Rape, NOW, BGLRC and the Crisis Center will sponsor Take Back the Night, a march from the Union Plaza to City Park at 5:30 p.m.

■ Spanish Club will meet from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Union Stateroom 1.

■ Chimes Junior Honorary will meet at 9 p.m. in Union 207.

■ Human Ecology Council will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Justin 254. Royal Purple pictures will be taken after the meeting.

■ College Republicans will meet to hear presidential candidates speak at 7:30 p.m. in Union 207.

■ Business Council will meet at 4 p.m. in Union 206.

■ Microbiology Club — Group B will meet for a nuclear reactor tour at 3:30 p.m. in Ackert 133.

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, sunny and warmer. High 60 to 65. South winds 10 to 15 mph. Tonight, clear. Low 35 to 40. Tuesday, mostly sunny. High in the mid-60s.

techline furniture

Functional, Flexible and Affordable

CONTEMPORARY INTERIORS

Open 10-5
Tuesday-Saturday

537-2099
332 Poyntz

Clyde's

Join us for relaxing and enjoyable dining experience for breakfast, lunch or dinner. Ask about our daily specials.

- 99¢ Margaritas
- Lowest Drink Prices in Town

SUNDAY SPECIAL

Mountain Brook Trout served with salad bar, rice pilaf, and topped with a wine mushroom sauce.

$7.95

Prime Rib.....$8.95

MONDAY NIGHT FOOTBALL SPECIAL

Watch the game and enjoy a delicious sirloin steak with steak fries and coleslaw in our TV lounge: $5.95

Don't forget to make your reservations now for Christmas parties. It's not too late—bookings available.

2304 Stagg Hill Rd. 537-8440

David Mayes/Staff

Clarence Swallow, professor of agronomy, manages the K-State agronomy research farm near Manhattan where he spends much of his time customizing farm equipment. People come from all over the world to study Swallow's modified equipment made from plans he develops from his own ideas.

Agronomist's attention to detail saves K-State millions of dollars

By Candace Plett
Collegian Reporter

Clarence Swallow pays close attention to details.

Swallow, professor of agronomy, is in charge of the agronomy research farm north of Kimball Avenue. From rebuilding farm equipment with mechanical parts he designs to doing all the woodwork in his new home, he knows the importance of intricacy.

"I guess I was always interested in how things function," Swallow said. "I like to sit and reason things out. It comes from being in an atmosphere where you learn to improvise and use your imagination."

Swallow manages and supervises the research plots and seed sales, the farm's primary moneymaking operation.

"It's the only job I've ever had," he said. "I've been here an awful long time — about 37 years."

Swallow graduated from K-State in vocational agriculture and later earned a master's degree in agronomy. Following a stint in the Army, he was hired by the University to manage the Ashland agronomy farm and the Plant Materials Center.

Swallow said things have changed since he became manager of the agronomy research facility near Manhattan.

"There's a lot more here than when I started. There are 37 grain bins where there were none," he said. "The agronomy research headquarters here in Manhattan had 480 acres, and the Ashland facility had 60 acres. At the present time, I oversee 900 to 1,000 acres."

Swallow rebuilds most of the specialized equipment used by agronomy researchers and other agricultural scientists.

"At the time I was hired, the administration wanted the farm to become more mechanized," Swallow said. "Over the years, I've devoted my time to doing this."

He said the primary machinery he builds is for planting, harvesting or spraying. Swallow also makes large ovens used for drying seed.

"I've made 16 specialized plot combines," he said. "It always takes the longest to make the first one. After that, I can supervise most of the work."

He said he and six employees modified five combines during his busiest summer.

He said he saves about $50,000 per machine by doing the planning and labor himself.

Swallow has written some general-information articles, but he said he dosen't have time to write about details.

"I'm the only one who's got the blueprints and, often, they're in my head," he said.

Swallow said that people come from across the nation to see his modified equipment and that he has traveled abroad sharing his experience. He is also involved in an international equipment organization that has sent him to several meetings in Europe.

"It's rare to find someone who knows what equipment needs to do and how to make it work the way Clarence does," said George Ham, associate dean of agriculture and associate director of the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station.

"By a conservative estimate, he has probably saved K-State $1.5 million to $2.5 million on machinery. That kind of savings often makes the difference between having mechanized research equipment or none at all," Ham said. "He has greatly enhanced many research projects. His equipment makes the work of researchers easier and more efficient."

For many years, Swallow and his family lived at the agronomy farm headquarters. He said he believes being exposed to that environment influenced the careers — engineering and architecture — his two children chose to pursue.

Recently, he and his wife moved into a 3,000-square foot house that he built. His daughter, an architect, designed the house.

He did all the woodworking, including inside trim, doors, a china closet and inside shutters. He also refurbished parts of old houses, such as a reconditioned stairway, and used antique items for the home's interior.

ACTER performs workshops, plays

Theater group from England to help students

By Rebecca Sack
Collegian Reviewer

A group of actors from England will visit K-State this week to entertain and teach. ACTER — the Alliance for Creative Theatre, Education and Research — will perform at McCain Auditorium and conduct acting workshops for students.

ACTER conducted its first British workshop in 1987. Since then, it has become a new development in the teaching of Shakespearean and other types of theater.

The activities during the week's residency include two performances, "Kathleen ni Houlihan's Sons and Daughters: Scenes from 20th Century Irish Theatre," at 8 p.m. Thursday and "As You Like It," at 8 p.m. Saturday. Both events are in McCain.

The group will also conduct two lectures: "Yeats: A Passionate Life," at 4 p.m. Wednesday and "This England: A Personal Anthology of English Poetry," at 4 p.m. Friday. Both lectures will be in the K-State Union Little Theatre.

The Actors from the London Stage are Geoffrey Church, Miranda Foster, David Howey, Stephen Jenn and Alison Skilbeck. The group will perform excerpts from the works of several Irish playwrights in Thursday's show. The program includes scenes from J.M. Synge's "The Playboy of the Western World" and "Riders to the Sea" and excerpts from the works of Stewart Parker, Sean O'Casey and Brian Friel.

The group will also be involved in Shakespeare, humanities and theater classes.

"With the Actors in the classroom, the instruction comes to life," said Richard Martin, director of McCain. "It is a supplement to the classroom experience."

Martin said the classroom experience allows the actors to share their experiences in acting and their performance insights into Shakespeare and other plays. It is a chance for students to get to know the performers.

"It is a very exciting experience to have people of this caliber here," said Lew Shelton, associate professor in speech.

"They are very experienced and well-trained and have a unique background in theater, film and television," he said. "They can bring a perspective to a Shakespeare play that is a little different than what we usually deal with in class as an intellectual or critical viewpoint. The performers talk about the plays as living theater pieces, bringing in their own acting experiences."

Shelton and Martin said the players' performance of "As You Like It" will be unique because the five actors will play all of the parts, giving it an exciting interpretation and placing a heavy emphasis on the text and relying less on costumes and sets.

"The play gets to speak for itself," Shelton said.

Martin said the program will benefit a broad spectrum of students by providing quality theater at K-State.

The residency is made possible in part by funds from the Fine Arts/Athletic Fee.

Claflin Books & Copies
First Bank Center—1814 Claflin

Halloween Special
Orange 20 lb. copies 6¢
Agatha Christie Celebration
Women Mystery Writers
776-3771

Cool Savings!
Sanchos & Burritos 98¢ each
(reg. $1.50)
Taco Dinner $1.77
(reg. $2.50)
Good through 10-27-90
TACO HUT
Sun.-Thurs 11 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri.-Sat. 11 a.m.-Midnight
where good friends get together
Overlooking Westloop
2809 Claflin 539-2091

HAPPY 21st BIRTHDAY
SHANNON
NWCLGDAS!
I LOVE YOU!
BILL

DAIRY QUEEN® CAKES:
YOUR FAVORITE TREATS, ALL ROLLED INTO ONE.

Now there's Dairy Queen® cake to treat them to! Cool, creamy chocolate and vanilla DQ® soft serve, layered with light crisp chocolate crunch, plenty of rich, cold fudge and covered with delicious icing. It's all frozen and pkgd to take home. Wouldn't a Dairy Queen® cake be wonderful tonight?
Custom Order or Pre-made

WE TREAT YOU RIGHT®
Dairy Queen
1015 N. 3rd Manhattan

Joli STYLE SALON
$10 HAIRCUT
between 8-10 a.m. & 4-6 p.m.
call now for an appointment/walk-ins welcome
(expires 11-30-90)
Valid with coupon
1106 Laramie 539-1177

FREE PIZZA!
BUY ONE & GET ONE FREE
Specify Original "Golden Braided" or new "Thin Style" Crust

SPECIAL COUPON
PYRAMID PIZZA®
MONDAY MANIA
Buy Any PYRAMID PIZZA & Get The Second Pizza (of equal value) FREE!
Good Mondays Only
Delivery–
Fast, Friendly & Free!
539-4888
12th & Moro
Aggieville, USA
PYRAMID PIZZA™
We Pile It On!
© 1987 Pyramid Pizza, Inc.

Patricia's
UNDERCOVER
Lingerie
1224 MORO AGGIEVILLE
M-F 10-6
THUR. 10-8
SAT. 10-5
GIFTS WRAPPED FREE
MC/VISA
LAYAWAY

Arts & Science Council Elections

Are You Interested In The College of Arts & Sciences or Student Government? Arts & Science Council Applications are now available in Eisenhower 117. Applications due back in Eisenhower Friday, Oct. 26 by 5 p.m.
•Vote in the Union Oct. 31, 9-5

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

Middle East crisis getting few answers

Is doing the right thing for the wrong reason right or wrong? About 200,000 American men and women in the Middle East await the word of President Bush and the United Nations. They are prepared to go to war.

I know, because I've said it myself — you're tired of Middle East news. You're tired of all the opinions. But just because the problem's been around for a few months doesn't make it less real. It isn't going away.

Why do we have troops in Saudi Arabia? Bush says we're fighting "naked aggression" by Iraq. Dissenters say we're fighting for the interests of the American oil companies. The truth lies somewhere in between.

If, as President Bush says, the United States is preparing for war to defy the "naked aggression" of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, why has the United States suddenly gained sight after all these years of blindness? Bush, you're not fooling me. If America fights "naked aggression," where were we when Chinese students died in Tiananmen Square? Where were we when the nations of Eastern Europe began declaring their independence of the Soviet Union? Historically, where were we when Hitler invaded Czechoslovakia? Where were we when the Soviets invaded Hungary in 1956? We were sitting in a field with our blinders on, apparently.

No, the president is not fooling me with his valiant speeches. I doubt he's fooling anyone. But the fact that "naked aggression" is present in the Middle East cannot be denied.

So while we are in the Middle East, fighting or preparing to fight for our oil and our economy, we are also fighting "naked aggression." There is absolutely no justification for Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait. Kuwait was not in a position to threaten Iraq. Kuwait is not historically a part of Iraq. Iraq cannot use these nor any of the reasons that nations usually offer for their acts of "naked aggression." Hussein came, saw and conquered. End of story.

So we are on the side of right. We are willing (apparently) to fight for the right of every nation to remain sovereign. We are denying the right of one nation to take over another in an act of "naked aggression." But that's not why we are preparing to fight. If it were, we'd be fighting already.

We're fighting because, unrestrained, Saddam Hussein could change the face of our world. It is not inconceivable that he could take over Saudi Arabia and gain control of half of the world's oil supply. We've seen what high oil prices can do to our economy. It would affect our nation and all of our lives, and that is why we are interfering when before we would have stayed out. Not a bad reason, but not really something to wave your flag over.

So where does that leave us? Doing the right thing for the wrong reason, that's where.

Karin Dell'Antonia

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

I am against war, against people killing each other, against oppression and unfairness. Most of us are, or at least say we are. So I am opposed to what Hussein has done in Kuwait. He is wrong with a capital "W." Then again, I am also opposed to the possibility of random young Americans having to die for the acts of a madman. If Hussein is so wrong and all the nations of the world are on our side, why is it that our money and our people seem to be the only resources contributed?

There are a million jillion issues wrapped up in this. I don't see any alternative to fighting Hussein. Ron Kovic, author of "Born on the Fourth of July," suggests that in order to prevent the tragedy of another Vietnam, the United States withdraw its troops until the other countries of the United Nations agree to contribute proportionally equal amounts of soldiers and money. I agree with him in theory because it seems to me that this problem belongs to the world, not just the United States. In practice, however, I can't see how it would work. If we threaten to pull out, other nations will call our bluff. If we do pull out, Hussein could act before we muster the international forces necessary to go back in. We have made our bed and we must lie in it. It's too late now. At this point, the token U.N. force is all the help we're going to get.

Everything else aside, the issue of doing the right thing for the wrong reasons still bothers me. Can thousands of Iraqi soldiers fighting what they believe is a holy war defeat thousands of Americans who aren't sure why they're fighting? Are we making the world safe for decent people or making it safe to fill up our gas tanks? I think the paradox will weaken us. God may fight on the side of right, or he may be on the side of might, but I'm not sure how He feels about the side of confusion.

Bush and his advisers would be better off, I think, to admit the truth. We may be fighting for our oil and our economy, but we are still the good guys. If we were fighting for the interests of the oil companies, we would have invaded the Middle East ourselves long ago. An act of aggression has been committed and because it is also an act of aggression against our economy, we must prevent it from going any further.

Not only are there Americans trapped in Kuwait, there are Kuwaitis trapped there too. Kuwaiti people do not deserve to have their country turned into a battlefield or to be oppressed by a ruler whom they did not chose or inherit. Sometimes I think that atrocities which would stun us in Europe or America are overlooked when they happen in a country where the people look and think differently than we do.

For whatever reason, we are beginning to do the right thing. I only wish we had always acted that way. Maybe if our past actions had been to defend against "naked aggression" whenever we saw it, Hussein and others like him would think twice, now and in the future. Being the police of the world may not be the role we would have chosen, but someone has to do it.

I shouldn't talk. I'm not in Saudi Arabia waiting to be shot at for whatever reason. But we can not afford another Vietnam. I don't mean the war and the loss, which was bad enough. I mean sending people off to fight and then bringing them home to a country that did not support what they did. We must accept the need for action and wholeheartedly support those who are willing to act, or we must choose not to act and accept the consequences. Anything else is just, well, wishy-washy.

EDITORIALS

Americans ignorant of different cultures

The war the mass media has eloquently named "Crisis in the Gulf," has begun to come to a head.

Protesters mobilized across the nation this weekend and marched to show their growing discontent with a growing escalation.

Voices cried for an end to this military buildup. People marched for peace. Mothers and fathers asked for their sons and daughters not to be killed for cheap gas.

It is truly an ugly situation. And perhaps the most unsightly aspect of this ugliness is America's ignorance of world culture.

Newspeople are sometimes at fault for this. Some of the footage and some of the stories we receive out of the Middle East are slanted, biased, incomprehensible and downright bad.

Take, for instance, the network footage of the Ayatollah Khomeini's funeral in June 1989. The big three showed literally thousands of mourners jumping up and down and beating themselves about the head. This looked to Americans very strange, and it didn't help to have anchorpersons and reporters almost giggling and smirking as they described the scene.

All those people were mourning and grieving over someone they loved and someone we were told to hate. Khomeini kept America at bay for 444 days. He called the United States "the Great Satan."

The funeral scene is just one example. Some of the reports coming out of the Middle East from the Associated Press use the words "raved" or "ranted" when referring to an Arab speaking his or her mind about America. And we eat it up.

We sometimes perceive those who live in the Middle East as crazy. America, the land of the free to worship any religion we please, paints Arabs as religious zealots who would rather drive a jeep loaded with TNT into our homes than look into our faces.

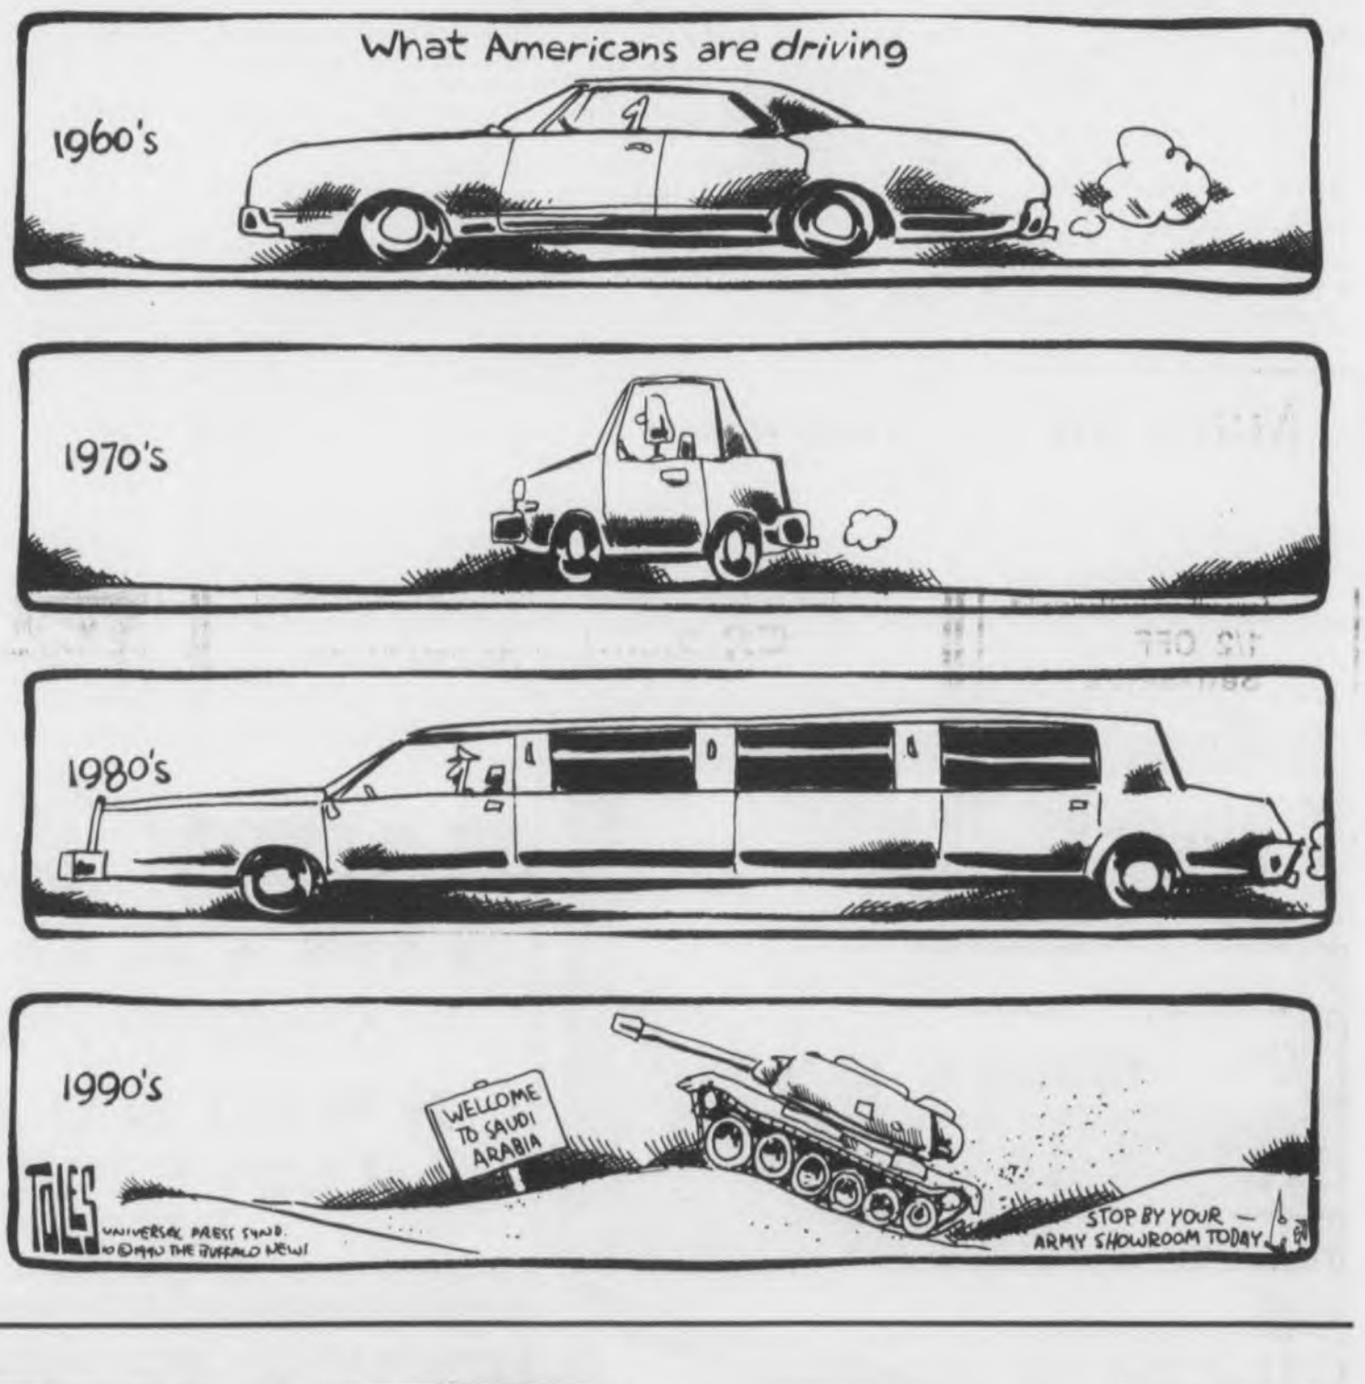
This is just plain ignorance on our part. The country with access to more information than any other in the universe, points fingers at people essentially because they are not like us and we don't understand them.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... David Frese
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Advertising Staff



ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koei
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little, Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff, Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Media overload causes apathy

By Scott Levendofsky
Collegian Reporter

When people are bombarded with information to the point of overload, they stop caring. They get exhausted with trying to sort through the information and ultimately disengage from the media.

"Exhaustion is a natural reaction to information overload, but it's dangerous in a democracy where we have to be informed to be able to make informed decisions," said Susan Stamberg, National Public Radio special correspondent.

Stamberg delivered the University Convocation Lecture, "What Do We Have To Say? Information Overload and the Need to Know," Friday in McCain Auditorium.

"Stamberg notes that the dramatic growth in the number and type of news sources has been accompanied by a reduction of American's understanding and interest in events beyond their immediate surroundings," said Eugene Kremer, professor of architecture.

Stamberg was the recipient of the Edward R. Murrow Award for enhancing public understanding through her pioneering work as anchor of the national news program "All Things Considered." She was also the founding host of National Public Radio's "Weekend Edition" news magazine.

Stamberg said communication is instantaneous in today's world.

"We have so many quick distractions in this country and the world. We leap from one world event to another like kids in a shop where the candy has gone bad," she said.

Stamberg said that when the media do stop and cover an event at length, they often do harm.

An example of overexposure was the coverage of the space shuttle disaster in 1986.

"The shuttle coverage was tasteless and unethical," she said. "We spent way too much time on that event. The reality of those deaths was trivialized into a spectacle of smoke and fire."

She said she believes broadcast journalism should not simply be an eye on the world, but also an informed eye that provides content and context as well as presenting the events themselves.

Stamberg used the motion picture "Broadcast News" to illustrate the point that although the media can legally air something, it is not always ethical.

"A reporter in Broadcast News faked tears in an interview, resulting in an enormous flap in ethical procedure," she said. "It is bad to fake emotion, but, to me, it's not nearly as bad as the real-life camera that goes zooming in on the tears of a grieving widow."

Stamberg said responsible journalists should also realize they are in new worlds when they leave the United States to report in foreign places. They must be careful about how they report on what they are seeing and try to put it in the proper context.

Parents able to prepay tuition

Association offers CollegeSure Alumni plan for children

By Rob Batchman
Collegian Reporter

The KSU Alumni Association now offers alumni a chance to prepay their children's college education.

The CollegeSure Alumni Plan, offered through the College Savings Bank of Princeton, N.J., enables alumni to invest in their children's education and to help curb the rising cost of college.

Amy Renz, assistant director of the Alumni Association, said the CollegeSure Alumni Plan offers alumni an FDIC insurance certificate of deposit that is designed to help families prepay the children's college education.

"It is guaranteed to pay at least the average cost of the child's college expenses, which includes tuition, fees and room and board," she said. "The students can use the funds at any institute of higher education."

Fred Thibodeau, associate director of the Alumni Association, said the CollegeSure program was a unique opportunity for K-State alumni.

"We are the first school in the Midwest to offer this program, and one of the first four in the country," he said.

Renz said the Alumni Association began looking into the plan last fall.

"We had been approached many times by individuals in the past who were interested in a tuition prepayment plan. We wanted a plan that would allow alumni to prepay the child's education but would also be very flexible," she said.

"We felt that the CollegeSure CD provided an additional avenue for alumni to save for a college education for their children," she said.

The CollegeSure CD earns a rate of interest that varies each year tied to the year-to-year change in the cost of schooling. The return is linked to the rate of college-cost inflation, and the CD has a minimum interest rate of 4 percent in the event that college costs do not increase.

At maturity, both the principal and interest are returned in full to be used at any college or for any other purpose that the holder wishes.

"It is all based on an index that has forecasted what it's going to cost in the future for a college education," Renz said. "It is designed to meet each person's individual needs."

Renz explained that the program is being marketed toward alumni with younger children.

"A mailing was sent to approximately 17,000 alumni and friends of the University. The program is geared towards families that have younger children, so they can plan ahead for their children's education," she said.

Since 1980, college-cost inflation has averaged 9.8 percent per year. This is double the rate of general inflation, Renz said. The CollegeSure CD was developed as one solution to rapidly rising college costs.

"We felt it was important that we provide this service," Renz said. "It provides another way for alumni to think about their children's future."

KSU Opera Workshop provides free experience

By Susan Boos
Collegian Reporter

Opera fans will have a chance to see a smorgasbord of opera Tuesday when the KSU Opera Workshop gives a free performance of scenes from three operas at 8 p.m. in All Faiths Chapel.

Members of the workshop will perform scenes from "The Bartered Bride" by Frederich Smetana, "Der Rosenkavalier" by Richard Strauss and "A Game of Chance" by Seymour Barab.

The Opera Workshop was organized to give younger students an opportunity to begin to learn the skills and discipline of the operatic medium. It also gives more

■ See OPERA, Page 12

Hunam Chinese Restaurant
For Delivery
7 days a week
11 a.m. to 10 p.m.
539-8888 or 539-0888

If you need abortion or birth control services, we can help.
Confidential pregnancy testing•Safe, affordable abortion services•Birth control•Tubal ligation•Gyn exams•Testing and Treatment for sexually transmitted diseases. Providing quality health care to women since 1974.
Insurance, VISA & Mastercard accepted.
Comprehensive Health for Women
4401 West 109th (I-435 & Roe) Overland Park, Kansas
For information and appointments (913) 345-1400
Toll Free 1-800-227-1918

THUNDERBIRD
AMERICAN GRADUATE SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL MANAGEMENT
Glendale, Arizona 85306 USA
A representative will be on campus
THURSDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1990 to discuss
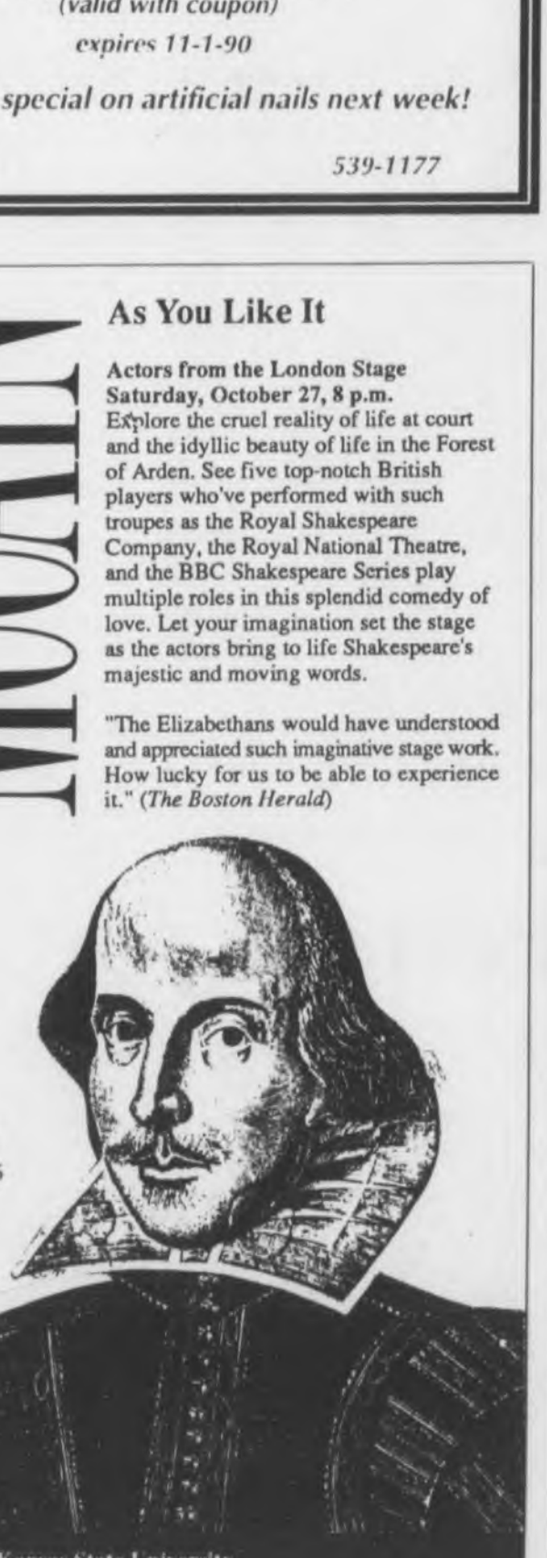
GRADUATE STUDY
Interviews may be scheduled at
CAREER PLANNING & PLACEMENT CENTER



Macs for Rent.
Come into Kinko's today and use one of our self-service Macintosh®
1/2 OFF
Self-Serve
Mac Time
Exp. 10/29
kinko's
the copy center

Moment of Truth:
Douglas vs. Holyfield
Thurs., Oct. 25, 8 p.m.
Closed Circuit TV only!
2 giant 8-foot TV's
-Fast Eddy's-
Limited seating
Tickets: $20
For more info. call
539-4323

ROCKY FORD TAVERN
MON.
$1 Bottles & Cans
$1 Keystone & Old Mil
OPEN 3-12
TUES. & WED.
$2 Pitchers
OPEN 3-12
GO NORTH ON BARNES RD.
1 MILE FROM BRIDGE
537-3133

Joli STYLE SALON
$9 French Manicure
$8 Regular Manicure offer good with Angie or Jennifer (valid with coupon)
expires 11-1-90
Look for our special on artificial nails next week!
1106 Laramie 539-1177

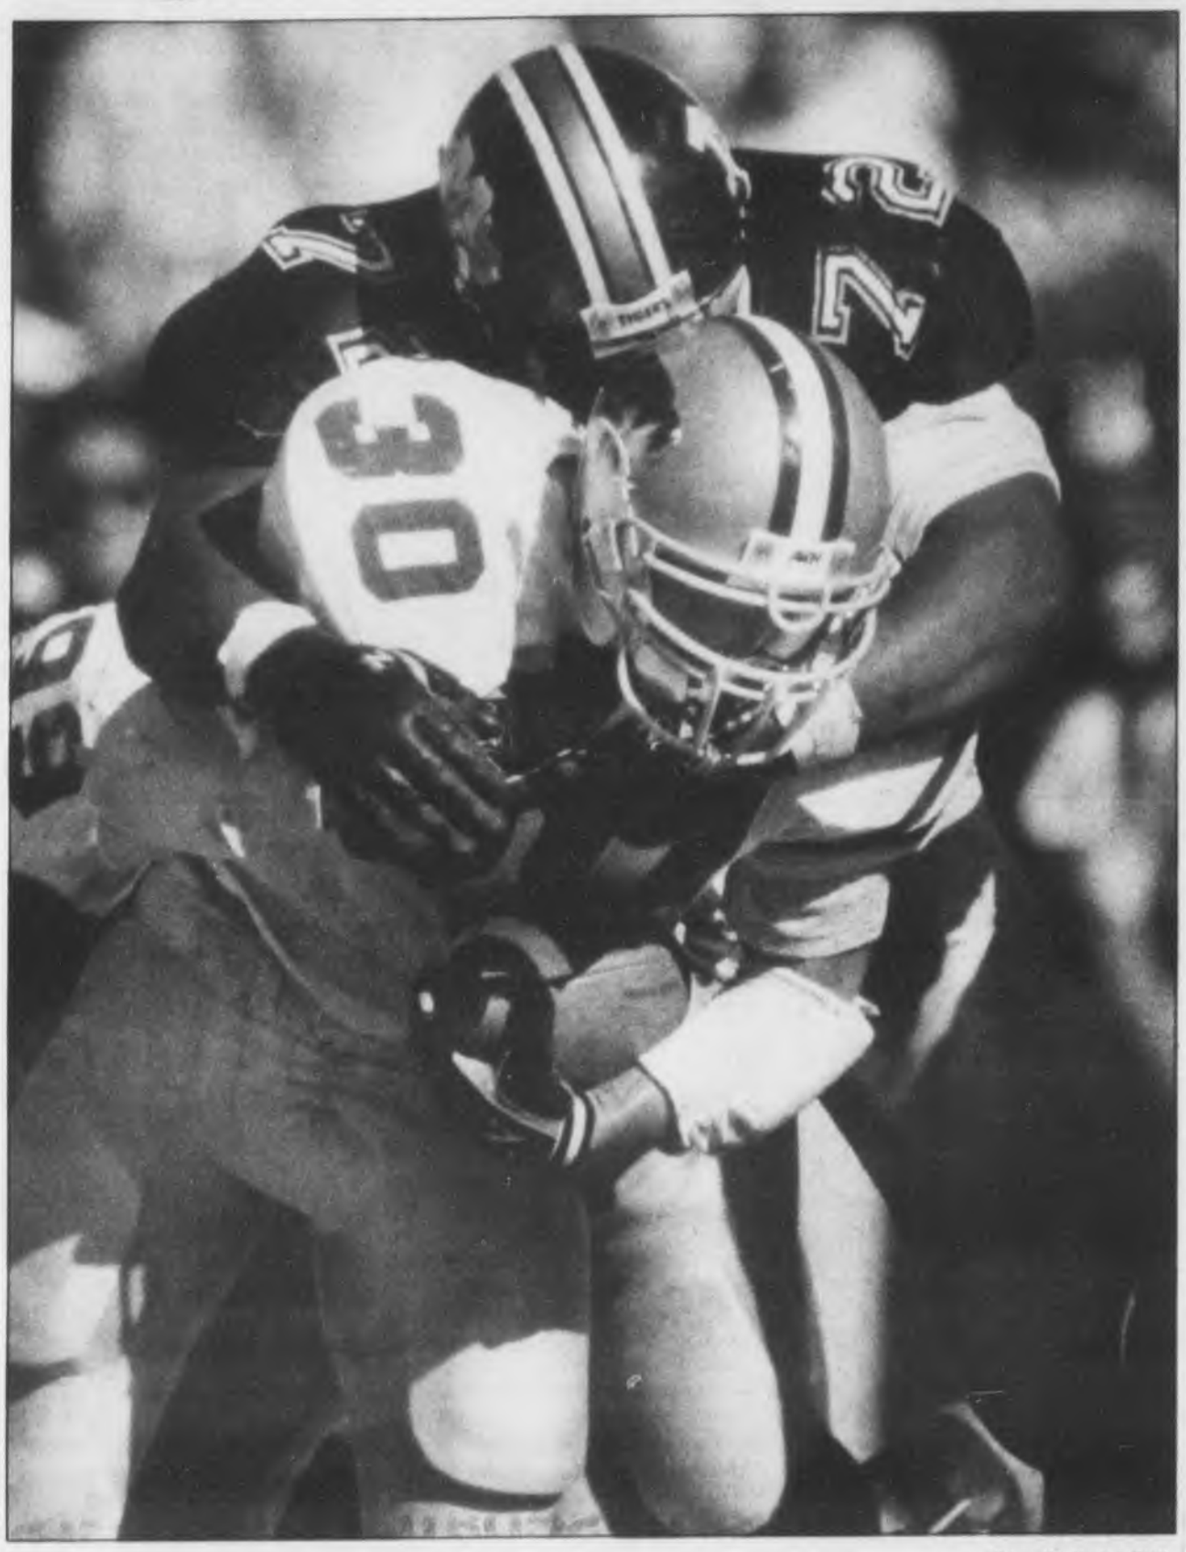
FEDERAL RESERVE NOTE
THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
It Pays To Be A Hero!
New Donors Donate Plasma and Earn Instant Cash
Open Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-6:30 p.m. Sat. 9 a.m.-1 p.m.
•Donate up to twice a week
•Enjoy free movies while you donate
•Bring in a friend (new donor) to second visit and receive an additional $3.
Manhattan Donor Center
1130 Gardenway (Across from Westloop)
Our fully automated center is medically supervised with a friendly & professional staff
New Donors Accepted M-F 9-4 pm Sat. 9-11 pm
15 DOLLARS



MCCAIN
As You Like It
Actors from the London Stage
Saturday, October 27, 8 p.m.
Explore the cruel reality of life at court and the idyllic beauty of life in the Forest of Arden. See five top-notch British players who've performed with such troupes as the Royal Shakespeare Company, the Royal National Theatre, and the BBC Shakespeare Series play multiple roles in this splendid comedy of love. Let your imagination set the stage as the actors bring to life Shakespeare's majestic and moving words.
"The Elizabethans would have understood and appreciated such imaginative stage work. How lucky for us to be able to experience it." (The Boston Herald)

General Public: $12
Senior Citizens: $10
Students/Children: $6
McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays and from 3 p.m. day of performance.
McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

Old Textbook Sale
UP TO 80% OFF!
BOOKS AS LOW AS 49¢
•Hundreds of new & used textbooks
•Various fields of study
•Some previously used at K-State
•Some from other universities
•Old editions
•Wholesaler overstock
Don't pass up this great opportunity to add to your personal library at a fraction of the regular cost!
Varney's BOOK STORE IN AGGIEVILLE
9-9 MON.-SAT.
12-5 SUN.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS MONDAY

Tigers hand Wildcats 3rd loss, 31-10

Brian W. Kratzer/Staff

Missouri defensive tackle George Hunt brings down K-State fullback Rod Schiller from behind. Hunt and his teammates held the K-State rushing attack to under 100 yards on the day in the Missouri win.

Kiefer leads Mizzou charge

By Scott Paske
Sports Reporter

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Missouri's defensive road block to the end zone finally collapsed in the third quarter Saturday, giving K-State hope of ending its five-year string of road ineptitude.

But Tiger quarterback Kent Kiefer smothered the promising situation with one whip of his arm.

Kiefer connected with Victor Bailey for a 57-yard gain, one play after Wildcat tailback Patrick Jackson cut Missouri's lead to seven points on a 14-yard run. The Tigers scored four plays later and went on to win the Big Eight Conference matchup 31-10.

"When (Missouri) came back and did that, I was really concerned about our kids at that time on both sides of the ball," K-State coach Bill Snyder said. "It took a little wind out of our sails."

The 'Cats destructed by bits and pieces the entire game, primarily inside of Tiger territory. K-State rolled up 323 yards of total offense, but had two turnovers and a blocked field goal after crossing midfield. In the second quarter, the 'Cats had first and goal at the Tiger 1, only to get a 20-yard field goal from Tate Wright.

"We had our chances," Snyder said. "We missed them early and late. You name it, we missed it."

After a slow start, Missouri didn't fail in many of its opportunities. The Tigers amassed 498 yards, with Kiefer leading the way. The senior completed 17-of-30 passes for 287 yards and two touchdowns.

Kiefer also mastered K-State's barrage of blitzes and connected on a 23-yard touchdown to Michael Jones in the first quarter. The 'Cats sent linebacker Brooks Barta and safety C.J. Masters crashing through the line, and Kiefer responded with a lob over defenders to Jones. The senior fullback trotted untouched into the end zone.

Snyder said K-State's inability to get to Kiefer was costly.

"The good Lord knows, we tried like the devil," he said. "We tried to blitz from the inside and from the outside.

"Their offensive line is just so big, and really did a nice job of protecting him."

Kiefer helped Missouri take command of the game in the second quarter by directing a 73-yard drive. He completed four consecutive passes, including a 14-yarder to Linzy Collins that gave the Tigers a 14-3 lead. The touchdown was set up when the 'Cats were penalized for having 12 players on the field.

"We'd just changed defenses," said cornerback Rogerick Green. "Someone didn't get the word to come out."

Untimely mistakes happened on both sides of the ball. K-State was forced to settle for Wright's field goal in the second quarter after Carl Straw's pass for Al Jones on third and goal was broken up in the end zone.

"The play was supposed to go the other way to the wide side of the field," Jackson said. "We had a mix-up."

The confusion helped Missouri build a 17-3 at intermission.

Straw, who threw for 228 yards on 23-of-44 attempts, brought the 'Cats back late in the third quarter. He accounted for 47 of K-State's 61 yards on an 8-play scoring drive and finished the march by pitching to Jackson on a lead option for a 14-yard touchdown. Jackson used a punishing block from fullback Rod Schiller to break free.

"I thought at the time we had a really good chance to get back in it," Snyder said. "I wasn't very pleased with Carl's performance, but I thought he was starting to make a little bit of a comeback in the second half."

But as Straw got stronger, so did Kiefer. He found Bailey in the middle of zone coverage for 57 yards, which set up a one-yard touchdown run by Ronnell Kayhill on the first play of the fourth quarter.

Later in the period, Missouri marched 93 yards, with freshman Jason Oliver finishing the drive on a 35-yard run. The score was set up when Kiefer hit senior tight end Tim Bruton for 31 yards.

"K-State's defense is like a chess game, and you don't know where they're coming from," Missouri coach Bob Stull said. "We gave them some different looks, and we had to check off on some of our routes.

"We just wanted to see what they would do."

STATISTICS

WILDCAT FOOTBALL

GAME IN FIGURES

STATISTIC	KSU	MU
First Downs	22	29
Rushing Yards	95	198
Passing Yards	228	300
Total Offense	323	498
Return Yards	12	9
Att.-Comp.-Int.	44-23-2	34-20-2
Fumbles-Lost	2-1	3-1
Penalties	5-45	3-35

K-State	0	3	7	0	— 10
Missouri	7	10	0	14	— 31

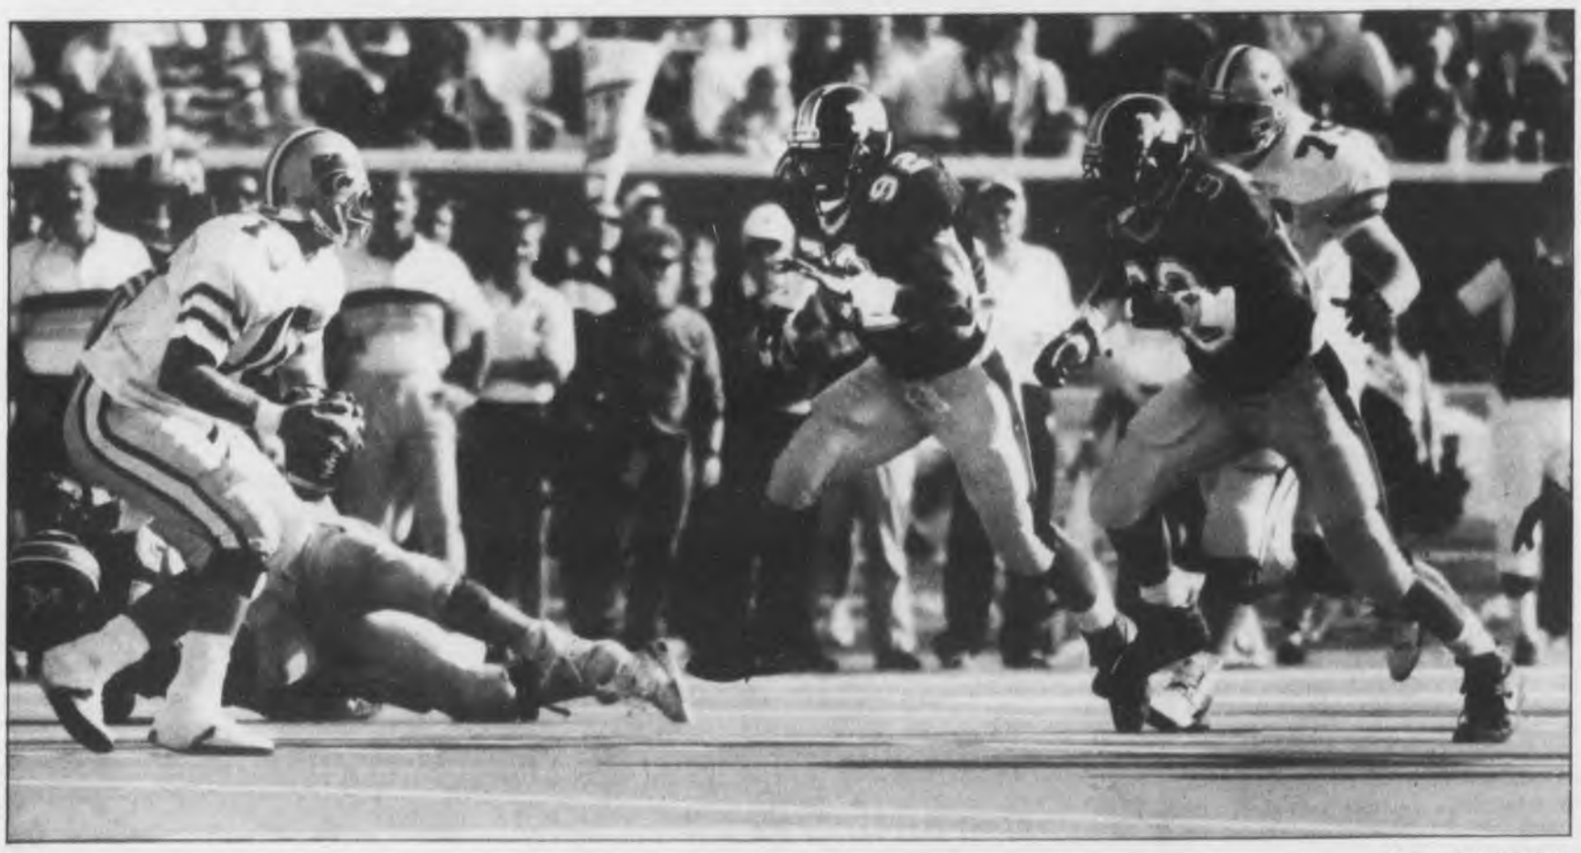
MU — Jones 23-yard pass from Kiefer (Jacke kick)
KS — Wright 20-yard FG
MU — Collins 14-yard pass from Kiefer (Jacke kick)
MU — Jacke 46-yard FG
KS — Jackson 14-yard run (Wright kick)
MU — Kayhill 1-yard run (Jacke kick)
MU — Oliver 35-yard run (Jacke kick)



RUSHING —K-State: Jackson 10-49, Schiller 9-42, Straw 12-4. Missouri: Jones 7-65, Kayhill 15-65, Oliver 8-51, M.Washington 3-31, Moore 5-17, Kiefer 4-(-31).

PASSING — K-State: Straw 23-44-2-228. Missouri: Kiefer 17-30-1-287, Johnson 3-4-1-13.

RECEIVING — K-State: Campbell 4-35, Smith 5-86, Schiller 5-19, Hernandez 5-58, Coleman 1-5, Jones 1-9, Jackson 2-16. Missouri: Jones 5-46, L.Collins 3-57, Bruton 3-54, Bailey 2-83, Moore 3-42, Frisch 1-8, J.Collins 1-6, Linthacum 1-5, Leach 1(-1).

PUNTING — K-State: Cobb 5-35.0. Missouri: Plunkett 3-32.3.

A — 47,181.

Margaret Clarkin/Staff

Missouri defenders attempt to chase down K-State quarterback Carl Straw during action in Saturday's 31-10 Tiger win. Straw battled the flu prior to the contest, but he said he felt no ill effects during the game. The loss dropped K-State to 4-3 on the season.

Straw battles flu, stingy MU defense

By Scott Paske
Sports Reporter

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Carl Straw would have rather gone to work under different circumstances Saturday.

The K-State quarterback battled a stomach virus and the lowly-regarded Omniturf at Faurot Field, in addition to a Missouri defense that became stingy when backed against a wall. Still, the Wildcat signal caller completed 23-of-44 attempts for 228 yards in a duel of the Big Eight Conference's best arms with Tiger quarterback Kent Kiefer.

"I still could have done much better in the passing game, either in scrambling or making big plays," Straw said of his effort in the 31-10 loss to the Tigers. "Collectively, the offense is going to have to step it up a couple of notches next week, and put the ball in when we get inside the 30."

Straw's latter statement was K-State's Achilles' heel Saturday as the Wildcats sputtered the entire game after crossing into Missouri territory. Straw threw an interception and fumbled on consecutive possessions in the first quarter and slipped while making a cut on a second-and-goal play on a drive that resulted in a 20-yard field goal by Tate Wright.

"Their defense just seemed to suck it up harder than our offense did in those situations," Straw said. "We did what we wanted to do going into the game as far as moving the ball, but just didn't make the big plays when we needed to."

The playing surface played a part in throttling K-State's offense. In addition to slipping on K-State's first-half scoring drive, Straw lost his footing on a third-and-six play from the Missouri 11 and threw behind Michael Smith. On the next play, Tiger lineman Mario Johnson blocked a 29-yard field goal attempt by Wright.

"I guess their turf is just like another player for them," Straw said. "At Kansas State, we've got our Wil-

■ See LOSS, Page 7

Snyder's troops not ready for prime time

David Svoboda
SPORTS EDITOR

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Yes, Bill Snyder, you're right. The corner is still a few steps from being turned.

After each impressive K-State football victory this season, the Wildcat coach has reminded the writers assembled for postgame interviews that "we haven't turned the corner," or "we may have turned it, but if we have, we're in a maze."

On Saturday, with an Independence Bowl scout and 47,181 others looking on, Snyder's troops showed us that he obviously knows more about them than we do.

They're not ready for prime time just yet.

K-State's football program has made huge strides in 1990. Wins over teams the Wildcats should have defeated in the non-conference portion of the schedule helped assure the truth of that statement.

In previous seasons, K-State didn't even take care of the Austin Peays, Northern Iowas and Louisiana Techs of the college football world.

And, in 1990, the Wildcats have won a conference game over an Oklahoma State program that just two seasons ago ran them clear out of KSU Stadium in a 45-27 shellacking.

But — and this is a big but — this team has not in its two road games demonstrated an ability to cut through distractions and become focused enough to gain a "W."

Not since 1985, under interim coach Lee Moon, has K-State won a road game — conference or non-conference.

And, from a realistic standpoint, there appears to be just one more shot at turning that trick in 1990.

Welcome to Memorial Stadium in Lawrence. Bring on the 'Hawks.

Snyder's "do it one week at a time" routine allows us to take a careful look at Saturday's matchup without losing sight of the task at hand. KU is the task at hand now.

Offensively, K-State must continue doing the variety of things it has in its four victories this season. On Saturday against Missouri, Pat Jackson had just 49 yards rushing, 14 of which came on his run for the lone Wildcat touchdown.

I'm not a coach, but it sure seemed like K-State could have used the option a bit more to test the Tiger cornerbacks. Jackson darn near could have walked into the end zone on his touchdown scamper.

At times, however, it appeared Snyder was locked into maintaining too careful of a balance between run and pass. But far be it from me to question a man who has more wins on the board in 1½ seasons than the Wildcats had in the previous four.

Defensively, coordinator Bob Cope's crew needs to guard against the backbreaking big play, this team's downfall for so many seasons that most of us are now numb to them.

Against the Tigers, K-State had just gone in for Jackson's score when, on first down, Mizzou quarterback Kent Kiefer made a less-than-impressive fake of a pitch, drew back and launched a 57-yard strike to a wide-open Victor Bailey.

Bailey ran free in a Wildcat zone that found Rogerick Green covering a man he said he wasn't supposed to be covering. As Cope quipped after the contest, the biscuits were burnt badly on this day. He can't be forced to cut the bottoms off too many more this year.

Kansas would appear — on paper — to be a team capable of providing the Wildcats with a needed tonic. KU allowed Colorado's Eric Bieniemy 174 yards rushing Saturday. The 'Cats rushed for 168 yards — easily a team, single-game high — against Kansas last season.

With Jackson and Kitt Rawlings running from the tailback slot and with Rod Schiller opening holes in front at fullback, K-State needs to give the Jayhawks a lesson in defending against the option pitch. The Wildcat offensive line has proved it's up to the task on most occasions.

But just as the Jayhawk defense might provide K-State a medicine with a sweet taste, the KU offense might leave the 'Cats with a bitter taste in their mouths.

Defensively, K-State must face a team that is capable of doing a great number of things. With Chip Hilleary at quarterback, KU has a field general with a big-time arm. Kenny Drayton has been one of Hilleary's favorite targets.

But if the Wildcats think for a moment that they can play soft against the run, all they need to do is look at how they made Tony Sands a star in 1989.

Sands rushed for 217 yards — including touchdown romps of 59 and 62 yards — in last year's 21-16 Kansas win. Only Colorado's J.J. Flannigan — who gained 246 in the season's final contest — gained more against the Wildcat defense last year.

KU's offense is as balanced as — dare I say — Missouri's. The 31 points the Tigers scored Saturday are an indication of what a team with balance can do to the Wildcat defense.

Only because Earl Wheeler and Kenny Ford threw passes above, behind and between receivers did the Wildcats fail to learn that lesson against Oklahoma State a week ago.

This is not, however, the time for K-State fans to exit the bandwagon en masse. If you've jumped on, stay in your seat. This Saturday provides the 'Cats the chance to take the next logical step toward the corner Snyder talks about.

A road win would be big. It wouldn't, as Snyder points out often, be a win that would make the program, but it would be a confidence builder of the first order.

And confidence, as Snyder is finding out, means a lot more in these parts than it does anywhere else.

J. Matthew Rhea/Collegian

Valery Roberts yells happily as the Wildcats down Missouri Saturday night in Ahearn Field House. The team split a pair of weekend matches.

Mike Welchhans/Staff

Sophomore Julie James concentrates on the dig as freshman Alison Murphy prepares to back up the play Saturday night in the three-game win over Missouri. The team rebounded from Friday's three-game loss to Colorado. K-State battles Wichita State Wednesday.

Spikers split weekend conference matches

By Russ Ewy
Sports Reporter

The K-State volleyball squad won its first conference match of the season by sweeping Missouri at home in three games Saturday night.

After losing their fifth-straight Big Eight match Friday night to Colorado in straight games, 15-4, 15-9, 15-2, the 'Cats split their home matches by overpowering the Tigers 15-11, 15-8, 15-5.

"It's hard not to compare the two matches, but I thought we were much more focused and determined (in the Missouri match) in our different skill areas and our different team concepts than we were Friday night," K-State coach Scott Nelson said. "I think it shows a lot of character in the team that they may not feel real good about their performance and then turn around within 24 hours and perform at a much better level."

The Lady Buffs, 11-9, extended their perfect conference record to 4-0, while the Tigers dropped to 5-13 overall with a 0-6 Big Eight start.

"Colorado and Missouri are a little bit different (in terms of difficulty), but the quality of our execution and intensity — things we control within ourselves — I thought were much improved (against the Tigers)," Nelson said. "We needed to pick up a Big Eight win."

Although K-State won in three games, Missouri never let the 'Cats run away with the match.

After struggling with the Tigers early in game one, the 'Cats pulled to a 12-5 lead and fought off a late run by Missouri for the win. In the second game, K-State jumped out to a 6-0 start before Missouri answered with a five-point run, but a Val Roberts' kill capped K-State's late surge.

Missouri gave K-State yet another scare in game three when the Tigers overcame a 4-0 deficit to lead the 'Cats 5-4, but stalled there as K-State hit a string of six points before winning the match.

"Missouri played pretty loose," Nelson said. "They felt they were in the role of the spoiler and there wasn't a lot of pressure on them. I thought they played pretty scrappy and pretty hard."

Roberts led K-State's offensive attack with 11 kills and a .667 hitting percentage, while Betsy Berkley hit .588 with 11 kills.

According to Nelson, K-State was without the concentration that they showed against Missouri when they allowed Colorado to tear though Friday night's match.

"The obvious thing was our execution wasn't on, but there is some things Colorado dictated with their tough serving and their superior offense," Nelson said. "They kept us on edge and off guard all the time."

After exchanging side-outs with the Lady Buffs throughout the first game, the 'Cats couldn't get their offense going while letting Colorado piece together the win. K-State rallied back from five points down to tie Colorado at nine before giving up six unanswered points and game two. Colorado swept through the final game, leading the 'Cats 9-0 and 13-1, before closing out the match.

Option hitter Tiffany Jestadt led the Lady Buffs offense with a .727 hitting percentage and 17 kills. As a team, Colorado hit .495

Cyclones upset OU

Iowa State ends 29-year drought with win in Norman

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Week after week, signs of big changes abound in the Big Eight.

It started last year with Colorado's breakthrough at the top, ending an Oklahoma-Nebraska domination that began the year the Soviets built the Berlin Wall.

Then, this season, K-State and Missouri have shown definite signs of putting their sordid football pasts behind them while Oklahoma State seems to be slipping out of the league's upper echelon.

Now, a new and unmistakable sign of change. For the first time since 1961, Iowa State has beaten Oklahoma.

Oklahoma is traditionally flat the week after it plays Texas. But Iowa State quarterback Chris Pedersen gave the No. 16 Sooners fits and scored the winning touchdown on a 1-yard sneak Saturday as the Cyclones erased 29 years of frustration with a 33-31 victory in Norman.

"I'm almost overwhelmed," said Iowa State coach Jim Walden. "This is Oklahoma we're talking about, where football was invented. I could die happy right now."

Elsewhere in the Big Eight, No. 4 Nebraska (7-0, 3-0) easily beat Oklahoma State (2-5, 0-3) by a score of 31-3, and No. 14 Colorado (6-1-1, 3-0) had an easy time for a change and dispatched Kansas (1-5-1, 0-2-1) by a score of 41-10.

At halftime, Oklahoma had an 11-point lead and had put Blaise Bryant, Iowa State's star runner, on the bench with injured ribs. But Pedersen helped the Cyclones score 13 fourth-quarter points.

Oklahoma had beaten Iowa State 56 of the 62 times they had played.

"This is for all the teams that all those years have kept getting beat up by Oklahoma," said Pederson, who ran for 148 yards and tossed a touchdown pass.

It was the second-straight demoralizing loss for the Sooners, who bowed last week to arch-rival Texas.

"During the course of the game, we let points slip away that obviously came back to haunt us," said Oklahoma coach Gary Gibbs.

Everybody's been talking about the nation-leading defense of Nebraska. But for the second time since they opened the Big Eight season, it was the kicking game that did the Huskers proud. Two kick returns by Tyrone Hughes and the recovery of a fumbled kickoff by Robert Hicks for a touchdown wiped out a good defensive effort by the Cowboys.

"The kicking game was probably the biggest difference today. That was a big plus for us," said Coach Tom Osborne. "We had good kickoff returns, good punt returns and good kickoff coverage. We recovered one today."

Eric Bieniemy rushed for 174 yards and three touchdowns and became Colorado's all-time scoring leader as the Buffs enjoyed an easy time with the Jayhawks. Bieniemy, who became Colorado's career rushing leader two weeks ago, has scored 218 career points, breaking the record of 212 held by Bobby Anderson.

STANDINGS
Big Eight Conference

	Big 8	Pct.	Total	Pct.
Nebraska	3-0	1.000	7-0	1.000
Colorado	3-0	1.000	6-1-1	.813
Oklahoma	2-1	.667	5-2	.714
Iowa St.	1-1-1	.500	3-3-1	.500
K-State	1-2	.333	4-3	.571
Missouri	1-2	.333	3-4	.429
Kansas	0-2-1	.167	1-5-1	.214
Okla. St.	0-3	.000	2-5	.286

Saturday's Games
Missouri 31, K-State 10
Iowa State 33, Oklahoma 31
Nebraska 31, Oklahoma State 3
Colorado 41, Kansas 10

Reds shock baseball observers with 4-game thrashing of A's

By The Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — There are probably people still waiting for the Cincinnati Reds to blow the World Series, or expecting the Oakland Athletics to rally to win it.

One day after one of the most stunning upsets ever, there's only one question going around baseball: How did the Reds do it?

How did this team, which had played below-.500 ball since the first week in June, manage to beat the defending champions in such easy fashion?

"It has to do with how you're peaking as you come into the series," Oakland manager Tony La Russa said after the Reds finished a shocking sweep with a 2-1 victory. "I give credit to Lou. He had his club peaking at the right time."

Nevertheless, it was Oakland that came into the World Series with a 10-game winning streak in the postseason after a sweep of Boston. It was Cincinnati that had to struggle in the playoffs, beating Pittsburgh in six games.

But from the instant Eric Davis hit a two-run homer off Dave Stewart in the opener, the Reds seized control. They became the first team to sweep a club that has swept through the playoffs.

"We were the aggressive ballclub for four games," Cincinnati manager Lou Piniella said.

Hitting, pitching, fielding — the Reds were better by a lot. And, in somewhat of a surprise, Piniella, managing for the first time in the World Series, was far better than the more experienced La Russa, on and off the field.

In the battle of the bullpens, it was Piniella who made the moves to get the Nasty Boys into the game while La Russa hesitated.

Going into the series, the A's were 91-2 when they took leads into the eighth inning. Twice they were ahead going into the eighth against Cincinnati, but Oakland blew it both times and Dennis Eckersley was not in the game either time when it slipped away.

"How can you go wrong when you have a Randy Myers and a Rob Dibble out there?" Piniella said. "They've done the job for us all year. They are one of the major reasons we are here."

In the clincher, Jose Rijo was pitching a two-hitter and had retired 20 straight batters when left-handed hitting Harold Baines came to the plate in the ninth with one out and nobody on base.

"Baines is a great hitter. We only had 14 complete games all year. With Randy and Dibble out there, you're almost in a situation where you're forced to bring those guys in," said Piniella, who brought in the left-handed Myers. Jose Canseco, who did not start because of an injured finger, batted for Baines.

"I knew (La Russa) was going to hit for Baines with Canseco, but it was only a situation where the game could be tied, as opposed to having a situation later on where someone was on and (Canseco) could win the game," Piniella said. "Myers came in and did the job and we had Dibble ready behind him."

Eckersley, the most dominant reliever in the majors this season, never got into the game. Instead, he was warming up all through the eighth as the Reds loaded the bases with no outs on a single, a bunt hit and a bad throw on a bunt by Stewart, his first error of the season.

So Eckersley, La Russa and the A's watched as the Reds tied the game on Glenn Braggs' forceout and then went ahead on Hal Morris' sacrifice fly.

Overall, Reds relievers pitched 13 shutout innings in the series, giving up just seven hits with three walks and 12 strikeouts.

So instead of winning consecutive championships, the Athletics lost the World Series for the second time in three years. They may be a great team, but so was Baltimore from 1969-71, and all anybody remembers is that the Orioles also went 1-for-3 in the series for those three seasons.

The Reds may not match up with Oakland position-by-position, but they did what the neither A's nor any other team could do — they won when it counted.

Loss

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

lie the Wildcat painted out there, and that's pretty slick, too."

Straw brought the 'Cats back from a 17-3 deficit in the third quarter by mixing short passes with a pair of quarterback draws. He went 4-of-5 for 30 yards during an 8-play drive, and ran for 17 more to set up a 14-yard touchdown run by Patrick Jackson.

"Carl showed great toughness because he was throwing up all morning," K-State coach Bill Snyder said. "He wasn't mentally into the game as much as I wanted him to be, but I thought he was more becoming a little more effective in the second half."

Straw said the virus didn't affect his play.

"Once I stepped out on the field, I guess my body went numb," he said. "I didn't feel any pain in my stomach."

SPORTS BRIEFLY

Riniker falls in opener

By losing in the opening round of the qualifying meet Saturday morning, Michele Riniker failed in her attempt to qualify for the Volvo All-American Tournament to be played Oct. 25-27 in Pacific Palisades, Calif.

In the Riviera Women's All-American Championships at Pepperdine University, Riniker won the first set of her opening match 6-4, but dropped the next two 6-0 and 6-4, losing to Julie Willett of Northwestern. The loss knocked Riniker out of the meet and spoiled her bid to enter the Volvo tournament.

Coach Steve Bietau, who returned from a recruiting trip to Australia for the tournament this weekend, was pleased with the freshman's performance, despite the loss.

"At times, she played well enough to win the match, but she couldn't sustain it," Bietau said.

Concentration and mental toughness have been the main focus for improvement for Riniker since she came to K-State this fall from Unterkulm, Switzerland. The lone K-State representative in the All-American qualifying meet, Riniker displayed determination and extra effort, battling to overcome a disappointing second set, Bietau said.

"She was able to make some adjustments on her serve and came back after a tough second set and fought her way back into the match," Bietau said.

Golfers finish 3rd

The K-State women's golf team set new records for low team score in a tournament and low team score in a round this weekend at the Hawkeye Classic in Iowa City, Iowa.

Host Iowa won the five-team event with a 949 total. Iowa State was next at 958, followed by K-State at 970. The team total was 20 strokes lower than the previous school best. K-State shot 322 in each of the first two rounds to nip the old school mark of 323.

The top K-State finisher was Chris Adams, who had rounds of 79, 76 and 78 for a 233 total. She was third in the tourney. Adena Hagedorn finished fifth with a 240 total. Other Wildcats included Valerie Hahn at 249, Theresa Coyle at 254, Denise Pottle at 266 and Ashley Johnson at 268.

"Overall, I'm very pleased," said K-State coach Russ Bunker. "We set two records and achieved some goals for the team. Individually, Chris is playing the way I knew she could."

Tryouts set for hoops

Walk-on tryouts for the men's basketball team will be at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday in the Ahearn Gymnasium.

Chiefs fall

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Kicker Norm Johnson is back on target and so was the Seattle Seahawks' defense Sunday.

"Give the Seahawks some credit," Kansas City fullback Christian Okoye said after Seattle's 19-7 victory over the Chiefs in an error-filled game. "They tried hard to shut down our running game. They had great penetration."

Johnson kicked four field goals and Seattle's defense held Okoye and Barry Word in check.

Dave Krieg was intercepted four times, but Seattle recovered three Kansas City fumbles. Rufus Porter sacked Steve DeBerg and recovered DeBerg's fumble on the Kansas City 11 to set up a clinching four-yard touchdown run by John L. Williams.

Sidewalk advertising on campus regulated by University guidelines

By The Collegian Staff

Campus sidewalks are becoming popular vehicles for advertising by K-State organizations.

"We have noticed a lot more sidewalk writing, both legally and illegally," said Loleta Sump, special services manager and special events coordinator.

There are University guidelines that must be followed when writing on campus sidewalks, said Diane Novak, office assistant for room scheduling.

"There is a lot of writing that has not been processed through our department. I don't know if we will put further restrictions on our policies, but we are trying to monitor it carefully," Sump said.

Students cannot be prosecuted for illegally placing chalk ads on campus at this time, Sump said. She said, however, the Division of Facilities will enforce stricter policies if abuse of the rules continues.

"First of all, you have to be a registered organization or department to get permission to write on the sidewalks," Novak said. "Also, a buildings and grounds request form should be filled out and signed by a department head or adviser."

Novak said all request forms must go through the facilities division for approval. The office also asks that approved groups use washable chalk to write on the sidewalks.

The same rules for posters and banners set by the University Activities Board should be used when creating and drawing sidewalk ads, Sump said.

"It should be like a banner promoting a group, neat and in good taste," she said. "You have to use sidewalk chalk because we want to maintain a campus that looks neat."

Sump said she tries to discourage writing all over campus. She would like to see ads in front of the Union or on major walkways where there is a lot of traffic because that way the chalk wears off the pavement quicker.

"You can write on the sidewalk only," Sump said. "You can't write on the planters, benches or buildings. We want to stick to the commitment of keeping the University looking nice."

Banners can be put up on campus three days before the event they publicize, she said. The facilities division tries to apply the same policies for sidewalk writers.

> "We have noticed a lot more sidewalk writing, both legally and illegally."
>
> —Loleta Sump
> special services manager > and special events coordinator

"We usually don't ask them to go back and wash off the ads unless it is before a big event such as Parents' Weekend. Then, we will ask them to wash it off," Sump said.

Many campus organizations and departments, such as U-LearN, use sidewalk writing as an inexpensive and effective means for advertising, Sump said.

"The phone rang immediately after we put it up," said Laura Birrell, public relations coordinator for U-LearN. "We have people call all the time and say they have seen the ad. It is really a cheap way to advertise. It only cost $2 for sidewalk chalk, which can be purchased at the Union Bookstore."

Birrell said they have faced some problems with sidewalk advertising.

"I think a lot of people are doing it without permission. The last time, both of our places were filled," she said. "It is frustrating because we go through three to four days of getting it approved, and our assigned spot is taken."

Sidewalk ads around campus grab people's attention, said Marcia Oliver, senior in psychology.

"I didn't know you could advertise, but I think it is a good idea," Oliver said. "I think we should restrict what they say because I wouldn't want to read anything damaging or offensive."

Physics conference to come to K-State

Meeting leaves Europe for 1st time

By Angie Schrock
Collegian Reporter

K-State will be the first American site for a physics conference that has never left Europe.

Physicists from around the world will converge on K-State in 1992 for the sixth Highly Charged Ions Conference.

K-State was selected for the 1992 conference three weeks ago at the last conference in Giessen, Germany.

"We have some of the best facilities in the country for this kind of work, with a strong basis of research which helped us attract this conference," said Lew Cocke, professor of physics.

Some of the other places in the United States considered for the 1992 conference were Cornell, Oakridge National Laboratory and Livermore/Berkley National Laboratory, he said.

Work currently being done in the field of highly charged ions will be the content of the five-day conference. Physicists will present research work and findings they accumulate from now until the conference is held in two years, said Martin Stockli, research assistant for K-State's MacDonald Laboratory.

The conference will bring together physicists who work with beams of a few ions, such as a beam of light from a laser. Those physicists study the interaction of ions with other neutral atoms and molecules.

"A highly charged ion is an atom from which many electrons have been removed, which is what happens to atoms in very hot gasses such as you would find at the center of the sun," Cocke said.

Usually, Stockli said, about 40 people are invited to present their research, and a large number of other

■ See PHYSICS, Page 12

"BEST DAMN PIZZA"

Walter Payton's Pool Room

Also: Pool Room & Sports Bar

16" Extra Large Pizza
ONLY $6.25
Dine In or Carry Out.
"premium pizza for a cardboard pizza price"
523 S. 17th 537-1484

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Plaza Lpc Bigg

Aggieville, behind EeGee's

A dance hall, flexible enough to meet your individual requirements.

We also provide party DJs.
To reserve The Plaza, or a Lunar Tunes DJ, call Dan Schirer, 776-9140.

15 words—5 days—$5.50 KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ClassADS

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577

PIZZA SHUTTLE

"NO COUPON SPECIALS"

Prime Time Special
3 - 10 in. Pizzas
1 - Topping
4 - Cokes
$10.00

Everyday Two-Fers
2 - 10 in. Pizzas
2 - Toppings
2 - Cokes
$8.00

Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

WITH THIS COUPON:
$3 OFF ADULT Costume Rental
$2 OFF CHILD Costume Rental

Marie's Costumes
2011 Ft. Riley Blvd. • 539-5200
Hours: M-Sat. 10-6
Sun. 12-5

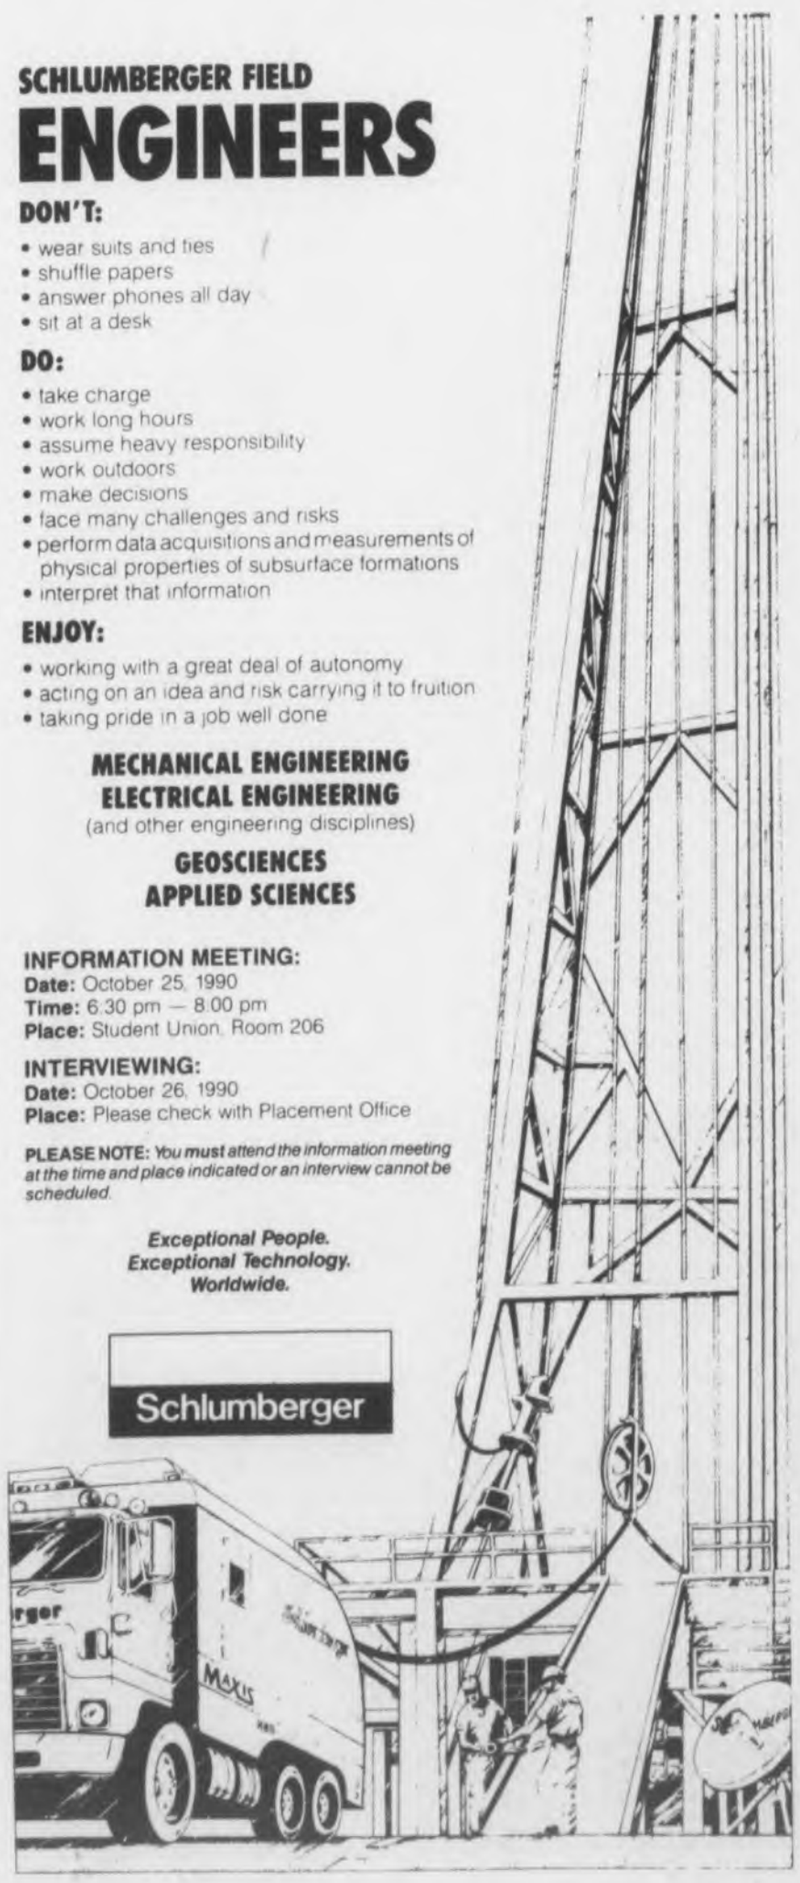
SCHLUMBERGER FIELD
ENGINEERS

DON'T:
- wear suits and ties
- shuffle papers
- answer phones all day
- sit at a desk

DO:
- take charge
- work long hours
- assume heavy responsibility
- work outdoors
- make decisions
- face many challenges and risks
- perform data acquisitions and measurements of physical properties of subsurface formations
- interpret that information

ENJOY:
- working with a great deal of autonomy
- acting on an idea and risk carrying it to fruition
- taking pride in a job well done

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING
ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING
(and other engineering disciplines)
GEOSCIENCES
APPLIED SCIENCES



INFORMATION MEETING:
Date: October 25, 1990
Time: 6:30 pm — 8:00 pm
Place: Student Union, Room 206

INTERVIEWING:
Date: October 26, 1990
Place: Please check with Placement Office

PLEASE NOTE: You must attend the information meeting at the time and place indicated or an interview cannot be scheduled.

Exceptional People. Exceptional Technology. Worldwide.

Schlumberger

Try Hardee's New
CLAM

We don't really have CLAMS! But it's all that we could spell with our delivery phone number. And now that you know our number, we'll be ready to deliver your favorite biscuit, sandwich or salad (sorry no clams) anytime between 7 am - 1 am, anywhere in Manhattan, 7 days a week.

537-CLAM or 537-2526.

Hardee's. DELIVERS

Campus Organizations
LINE UP YOUR MEMBERS

and get your group picture taken for the 1991 Royal Purple

Sept. 17 through Oct. 25
6:30 to 9 p.m.
Fairchild Hall 202

Maximum number of people in one photo is 30. Larger groups will require extra photo. Minimum number in photo is 10 unless proof of smaller membership is shown.

$10 per photo

Schedule appointment and pay for photo
8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday
Kedzie Hall 103

QUESTIONS? CALL 532-6555

FIRST IN AQUARIUM PRODUCTS

Whisper aquarium air pumps

NOW
#100 $8.79 Reg. $10.99
NOW
#200 $10.39 Reg. $12.99
NOW
#300 $11.99 Reg. $14.99
NOW
#400 $14.39 Reg. $17.99
NOW
#600 $23.19 Reg. $28.99

Second nature Whisper Bio-Bag Reg. $6.99 Limited Supply $5.59

Second nature Whisper Power Filters

C—Reg. $25.99 NOW $20.79
I—Reg. $31.99 NOW $25.59
II—Reg. $38.99 NOW $31.19
III—Reg. $52.99 NOW $42.39

SALE!

Sale Oct. 18-25
or while supplies last

PETS 'N' STUFF

1105 Waters 539-9494

'Prairie Popcorn' maker honored by peers

Kansas Entrepreneurial Showcase recognizes small-business owners, inventors

By Scott Levendofsky
Collegian Reporter

Entrepreneurs and inventors all have one thing in common — they all start with a dream. Linda McDiffett's and Don Landoll's dreams came true.

The Kansas Entrepreneurial Showcase recognized Landoll and McDiffett at its banquet and lecture series Thursday night in the K-State Union Little Theatre. The lecture was sponsored by the Kansas Rural Enterprise Institute, the KSU Small Business Development Center and the K-State ACE Club.

Fred Rice, director of the Kansas Rural Enterprise Institute, introduced Landoll and McDiffett by saying their dreams had several successful elements.

"They had a dream that you can do something better, more creatively, with more care and personal attention, more profitably or more uniquely than is presently available in your market area," Rice said.

McDiffett started the Prairie Barn in Alta Vista four years ago. Her dream was to use a barn on her farm as a store to sell antiques and food products grown on the family farm.

Her first product was a premium, home-grown "Prairie Popcorn," which she packaged in plastic and cloth bags and sold to retail stores. Next she started selling fresh beef, pork, bacon and sausage under the "Best of the Sweet Country" label.

In 1987, she was named the "Innovator of the Year" by the Kansas State Board of Agriculture.

McDiffett said Kansas is an exciting state to start a business in.

"The lifestyle and friendships are terrific. If you have an idea that you believe in, people are here to help you," McDiffett said.

She said she didn't begin with the intention of becoming an entrepreneur.

"I was actually forced into making a contribution. Our farm was hit pretty hard in the 1980s. The price of wheat today is about the same as it was in 1951. We were just trying to stay in the ballgame," McDiffett said.

The marketing stage of entrepreneurship is often the most difficult to overcome. McDiffett said finding a way to reach the public with your idea is the most difficult task.

"Most people get discouraged at the marketing phase. You must sell your personality and persuade the market that you have a good product. Most importantly, you must stay with your idea," McDiffett said.

Don Landoll's father taught him an important lesson — hardwork could be fun. After graduating from Marysville High School in 1963, he worked for a small company that produced playground equipment. After working for the company for two years, a friend asked him if he wanted to start a welding service.

"I will never forget the day I decided to start the welding company. It was the day President John F. Kennedy was shot. I was legally too young to borrow the money, so my partner loaned me the $12,500 needed to start the company," Landoll said.

> "The lifestyle and friendships are terrific. If you have an idea that you believe in, people are here to help you."
>
> —Linda McDiffett
> owner of Prairie Barn

The plant has since grown and expanded several times. It now employs more than 430 people in a 250,000 square-foot facility.

Landoll was named the Small Business Prime Contractor of the Year in 1986 and Marysville citizen of the year in 1987.

Landoll said young entrepreneures should be cautious and careful when initially taking out loans.

"Don't let impulse buying talk you into anything. When I was first beginning, every time I went to take out a loan for new equipment or expansion, my banker told me to go home and sleep on it. If it still sounded good in the morning, the bank would be willing to consider my loan," Landoll said.

Landoll did not make the mistake of quickly hiring best friends as coworkers. He obtained a more profitable working relationship by hiring people that have different interests than he has, creating diversity among his employees.

"When competing with the toughest and biggest competitors, it's much like a K-State-KU ballgame — you rise to the occasion," Landoll said.

IT'S NOT TOO LATE

to get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple.

OCT. 26 IS THE FINAL DAY

If you live off campus or missed the scheduled time for your sorority, fraternity or residence hall, you may still get your picture taken from now until Friday, Oct. 26. Don't wait until it's too late. Make an appointment today!

Call 532-7808

Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.
Location: K-State Union 209
Sitting Fee: $4
(Receipt must be shown if this was paid at registration.)

1991 ROYAL PURPLE

PREGNANCY TESTING CENTER
539-3338

•Free Pregnancy Testing
•Totally Confidential Services
•Same Day Results
•Call For Appointment
Walk-ins Welcome
•Located across from Campus in Anderson Village

Monday-Friday
9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
or by appointment

Cats

STUDENT SEASON TICKETS STILL AVAILABLE

Ahearn Fieldhouse Ticket Office
532-6920

REMINDER!!

Student season ticket holders can return their voided vacation game tickets to the ticket office between Nov. 12-20. You will receive either a $5 rebate or a ticket to one of the three holiday games.

BURGERS BY THE BAG

4 Hamburgers for $2.82

Served with ketchup, mustard, pickle, onion.
Cheese and bacon extra.
LIMITED TIME ONLY!

Vista DRIVE IN Vista EXPRESS

1911 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Village Plaza Shopping Center

MCAIN

Coppelia

Royal New Zealand Ballet
Thursday, November 1, 8 p.m.
To celebrate its 150th birthday, New Zealand sends us a company of 40 sprightly dancers in a charming Romantic ballet set to a delightful score. Join the fun as a young man's infatuation with a life-size mechanical doll and a toymaker's attempt to bring the doll to life almost spoil a girl's wedding plans.

"A perfect Coppelia. . . It was a magical night." (Sunday Mail, Brisbane, Australia)

Students/Children: $9, 8, 6
General Public: $18, 16, 12
Senior Citizens: $16, 14, 10

Presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency. Additional support by the Jeanne Welles Durkee Memorial Fund.

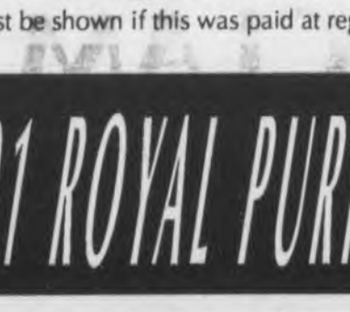
McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays. Tickets also available (with service charge) at Bramlage Coliseum, K-State Union, Manhattan Town Center, and ITR (Fort Riley).

McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

SKI

JANUARY [illegible] BREAK

LAST CHANCE!



STEAMBOAT from $177
JANUARY 2-12 ★ 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS

BRECKENRIDGE from $184
JANUARY 2-9 ★ 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS

VAIL/BEAVER CREEK from $247
JANUARY 2-12 ★ 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS

Call Today!

LODGING • LIFTS PICNICS • PARTY • MORE!

Sunchase
9TH ANNUAL
COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS
1991

MORE WINTER COLLEGIATE SKI BREAK SPACE ADDED!

Whew, just when you thought you might be left out in the cold during January break — Sunchase comes through again. Your response to our quality and low priced 9th Annual Collegiate Winter Ski Breaks has been overwhelming.

So, we've been able to add limited additional space at each destination but don't wait too much longer as in year's past, it's sure to be a sell out soon.

Ski Break by yourself, with your friends or organize a group of 19 and SKI FREE! All ski breaks include your choice of Fully Equipped Condominium or Hotel Lodging for 5, 6 or 7 nights; all Lift Tickets, Welcome Party, Mountain Chicken Barbecue, Ski Race, all Taxes and welcome Goodie Bag full of participating corporate sponsor product samples and area information.

Steamboat, Breckenridge or Vail/Beaver Creek. The hardest part is choosing which destination to "conquer" this coming season!

SKI & BEACH Sunchase BREAKS

9th ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS
TOLL FREE INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911

THE LOOK OF CONFIDENCE . . .

THE BEGINNING OF A SUCCESSFUL CAREER

Mon.-Sat. 9:30-5:30
Thur. till 8:00
Sun. 1-5

Woody's ladies

1125 Moro
Aggieville

J. Kyle Wyatt/Staff

Members of the Pi Beta Phi sorority remove trash and debris from a beach at Tuttle Cove Sunday morning. The cleanup was part of the Adopt-A-Shore Program at Tuttle Creek Dam and Reservoir, which is similar to the Adopt-A-Highway Program along Kansas highways.

Exxon donates grant to engineering college

By Rob Batchman
Collegian Reporter

The K-State College of Engineering has received a $14,000 grant from the Exxon Corporation. The grant was part of a program that provides money to universities from which Exxon recruits.

Allen Cogley, head of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, said the grant was a thank-you from Exxon.

"Exxon appreciates the students that they recruit from K-State," he said. "To show that appreciation, they give us grants to help us do our job."

Cogley said that Exxon has worked closely with K-State for many years.

"Exxon has hired K-State students in engineering for more than 100 years," he said. "As you would expect, most of these students work their way up to executive positions and then come back to recruit more students."

The amount of the grant was determined by the number of graduates that Exxon recruits from an individual school or department. Each year, the company recruits at more than 100 universities and provides more than $20 million in educational grants.

"It is all done by a formula," Cogley said. "The grant is based upon how successful the corporation has been in recruiting at that university in the years before."

Ron Thomas, director of Exxon's engineering team at K-State, explained that the grant was given in appreciation for K-State's engineering program.

"The award reflects a desire to give something back to specific university departments that provide people with the qualities Exxon and its affiliates need," he said. "The grant indicates the high regard we have for Kansas State University and its graduates."

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
CLASS ADS
Kedzie 103 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $3.00, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.25, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.50, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193 after 5:30p.m.

I LOST 18 lbs. in three weeks! You can too! Guaranteed! Call 776-4764.

(Continued on page 11)

Ad It Up! in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

WOW — FOR $3, you can run 15 words for one day in the COLLEGIAN ClassAds.

AXΩ CONGRATULATES their New
GREEK PLAYBOY
Bart Brooks ΑΓΡ

Thanks to the following sororities for judging:

ΑΔΠ ΚΑΘ
ΑΞΔ ΚΔ
ΧΩ ΠΒΦ
ΔΔΔ ΣΚ

Thanks to the following businesses for their donations:

Campus Theater
Chuck's Car Wash
Nautilus
Pyramid Pizza
Southern Sun
Tropical Tan

Thanks again to our sponsors.

BUSHWACKERS · POWER FM 94.5 · UNIVERSITY PHOTOGRAPHY · BRENTWOOD

proceeds go to Cystic Fibrosis

RE-ELECT YOUR STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Sheila HOCHHAUSER

YOU WORK HARD FOR KANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY.
I WORK HARD FOR YOU.

Classified employees are a vital part of our community. I worked for and helped pass

- Phase IV pay increases
- Additional step-increases at the top of the pay scale
- Longevity pay

HOCHHAUSER FOR REPRESENTATIVE
YOUR REPRESENTATIVE WORKING FOR YOU

Paid for by Hochhauser for Representative; Phil Becker, Treasurer.

THIS AFTERNOON . . . KMKF 101.7 will disappear forever . . .

MOVE IT OVER MANHATTAN!

KMKF 101.5 POWER PARTY

From 4 to WHENEVER . . .
at THE SPOT in AGGIEVILLE . . .

—50¢ Budweiser Draws . . .
—FREE Pizza from Pyramid Pizza . . .
—Prizes, Giveaways, Total Party Fun!!!

Turn it to the left for the NEW KMKF!!!

THE SPOT · Budweiser KING OF BEERS · PYRAMID PIZZA "We Pile It On!"

Right Now, The Savings Are As Big As The Servings.

Only $5.49 — 15 Piece Shrimp Dinner With FREE Freshtastiks® Food Bar and Soft Serve Dessert
Offer includes entree, potato, hot breads and all you can eat from our fabulous Freshtastiks Food Bar. Not valid with any other coupon or discount. Coupon good for all members in party only at participating BONANZA Family Restaurants.
Good all day, 7 days a week. Offer expires November 15, 1990. BONANZA

Only $3.49 — Freshtastiks Food Bar And Soft Serve Dessert
Offer includes all you can eat from our fabulous Freshtastiks Food Bar. Not valid with any other coupon or discount. Coupon good for all members in party only at participating BONANZA Family Restaurants.
Good all day, 7 days a week. Offer expires November 15, 1990. BONANZA

Only $4.39 — Chicken Fried Steak Dinner With FREE Freshtastiks® Food Bar and Soft Serve Dessert
Offer includes entree, potato, hot breads and all you can eat from our fabulous Freshtastiks Food Bar. Not valid with any other coupon or discount. Coupon good for all members in party only at participating BONANZA Family Restaurants.
Good all day, 7 days a week. Offer expires November 15, 1990. BONANZA

Only $4.69 — Ranch Steak Dinner With FREE Freshtastiks® Food Bar and Soft Serve Dessert
Offer includes entree, potato, hot breads and all you can eat from our fabulous Freshtastiks Food Bar. Not valid with any other coupon or discount. Coupon good for all members in party only at participating BONANZA Family Restaurants.
Good all day, 7 days a week. Offer expires November 15, 1990. BONANZA

2 for $6.99 — Freshtastiks Food Bar And Soft Serve Dessert
Offer includes all you can eat from our fabulous Freshtastiks Food Bar. Not valid with any other coupon or discount. Coupon good for all members in party only at participating BONANZA Family Restaurants. Freshtastiks for one $3.49 each with coupon.
Good all day, 7 days a week. Offer expires November 15, 1990. BONANZA

Only $5.29 — One Piece Chicken Monterey Dinner With FREE Freshtastiks® Food Bar and Soft Serve Dessert
Offer includes entree, potato, hot breads and all you can eat from our fabulous Freshtastiks Food Bar. Not valid with any other coupon or discount. Coupon good for all members in party only at participating BONANZA Family Restaurants.
Good all day, 7 days a week. Offer expires November 15, 1990. BONANZA

EMPORIA Hwy. 50 & Industrial · SALINA 527 S. Broadway · MANHATTAN 622 Tuttle Creek Blvd. · JUNCTION CITY 426 Golden Belt Drive · HUTCHINSON 1528 E. 17th

Two Kids Eat Free Every Tuesday With the Purchase of Each Adult Meal

(Continued from page 10)

Fraternities, sororities, campus organizations, highly motivated individuals— Travel free plus earn up to $3000+ selling SPRING BREAK trips to: Cancun-South Padre Island-Orlando/ Daytona Beach: 1-800-258-9191.

NEW MUSIC
TONIGHT!
$1.50 Wells
ONLY AT
Baystreet

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

ARE YOUR health insurance premiums continually increasing? Health conditions keeping you from getting adequate coverage? Call for more information. Billie Gallaher. 539-5676.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

SENIORS— FRIDAY Oct. 26 is the last day the official Royal Purple portrait photographer will be on campus. Don't miss your chance to have your portrait taken for the yearbook, and to get extras for your family, friends and potential employers. Call 532-7808 for an appointment. Walk-ins will be accepted on Oct. 26 on a first-come, first-served basis. Don't wait until it's too late!

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial, Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

2 Apartments—Furnished

RENT FREE country living in exchange for occasional assistance to wheelchair bound landlady. Some lifting. 1-494-8201.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

AVAILABLE NOW. One-bedroom near campus, $325, year lease, no pets, laundry facilities, central air. Call for appointment 776-3804.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

ADULT MALE needed, non-smoker, rent $187.50 and utilities. Call (913)537-2939 nights after 4p.m.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY! Nice one-bedroom apartment close to campus and Aggieville. Heat paid. 537-4515.

TWO-BEDROOM APARTMENT. $330 per month, utilities paid except electricity. Call 539-2017 evenings.

Brittnay Ridge Townhomes
—More Than Your Basic Apartment—
•4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, study room
•Wired for cable, phone, computer
•Hot tubs & volleyball court
•Bus service to campus
•Monthly rent as low as $195
DWC
Dan Weir Co.
2601 Anderson Ave. 776-5599

5 Automobile for Sale

1966 CHEVY pickup, standard transmission, strait 6, runs and looks great, $2,300 negotiable. 539-3461.

1970 PONTIAC Bonneville 455, four-door hardtop, good tires, runs well, 86,000 miles, $600. Call 539-1845.

1986 MERCURY Cougar, excellent condition, digital dash, AM/FM cassette, V-6 automatic. Call 532-3380.

1986 SE Turbo Coupe Sunbird hatchback, AM/FM seek stereo, manual shift, great condition. 537-2097.

6 Child Care

CHILD CARE in our home. Needed immediately loving care for an adorable one-year-old, approximately four hours per day (mornings), live in Jardine Terrace. Good pay and lunch provided. Call weekends or afternoon weekdays 776-7718.

7 Computers

HP 41CX, extra books, batteries, plus charger, $100. Call 539-3426 after 7p.m. Ask for Kip.

IBM— COMPUTER, printer, disks and manuals. Price negotiable. 539-3242.

NEED LETTER-QUALITY or wide carriage? DWP 220 daisy wheel printer for sale. Serial/ parallel, extra ribbons and box of paper included. 537-2143.

USED HEWLETT Packard 28S calculator. Excellent condition! Call 539-5231.

8 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such 'employment opportunity' with reasonable caution.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ATTENTION: STUDENTS! Earn $15/ hour working in your spare time on campus. Flexible hours, 1-800-688-4733.

ATTENTION: AGGRESSIVELY expanding marketing company is looking for high quality individuals who desire excellent part-time income with possible rapid advancement into management. Send resume or letter by Oct. 31st, Box 981, Garden City, KS 67846.

BARTENDER, PART-TIME, apply: Clyde's, 2304 Stagg Hill Road, across from Holidome.

BAYSTREET NEEDS waitresses, bouncers and bartenders. Apply in afternoons at Baystreet.

CUT EDUCATION costs— College girl— live in and do duties in family home this semester and second. This in exchange for private room and meals. Write Box 1, Collegian.

DRIVERS NEEDED full or part time. Good M.V.R. Must be 25 or older. 539-2284.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EVENING AND Daytime office and telephone sales help needed. Pleasant working conditions, hourly wage and excellent bonuses. Call 537-6163, 9a.m.— 4p.m.

HOME TYPISTS, PC users needed. $35,000 potential. Details. 1-805-687-6000, Ext. B-9701.

IMMEDIATE OPENING for a director of our dietary department. Must be a registered dietician or registry eligible. Should have menu planning, personnel development, clinical and community education skills. Competitive salary and benefits. Send resume to: Geary Community Hospital, Attn: Cathy Witt, P.O. Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441. EOE.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. Federal, CIA, U.S. Customs, D.E.A., etc. Now hiring. Listings. 1(805)687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. CIA, U.S. Customs, DEA, etc. Now hiring. Call 1-805-687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

RESORT HOTELS, Cruiselines, Amusement Parks and Summer Camps, Now accepting applications for Spring, Summer and Career positions. To receive an application and information, please write: National Collegiate Recreation Services, P.O. Box 7832, Hilton Head Island, SC 29938.

TWO NANNIES needed by Jan. 1 for two families in Brewster N.Y. Must drive, swim. Non-smoker preferred. One year commitment. Excellent living conditions plus salaries. (914)279-5963.

9 Food Specials

Bobby J's
Mondays:
Play Monday Night Football
Every TD pays up to 50¢ on food purchases
$1 Draws
Chicken Fried Steak
$2.49
539-1571

Every Monday
½ Price Nite
Order any dinner or sandwich and receive the 2nd at ½ price
Evenings 5-8:30 p.m.
The CHEF Cafe
111 S. 4th

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

COUCH AND matching chair. Like new. Call 539-1452.

KING-SIZE WATERBED. Soft-side contains mattress and box springs. $200 or negotiable. Call 537-7820.

12 Houses for Rent

FOR RENT: Mobile Trailer, two-bedroom, central air, partly furnished. Phone 776-7857 or 537-9303 after 5:30p.m.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND IN the vicinity of Bluemont Hall. Very young yellow cat. Inquire 532-5579.

FOUND: KEYS in west Waters first floor. Tag says Andy. Claim in room 122.

FOUND: MALE cat, black and grey striped in Westloop area. 776-8606.

FOUND: TAN Cocker Spaniel at 10th and Vattier, Thursday (Oct. 11th). Call 776-7125.

FOUND: VERY expensive textbook in Lafene Health Center Thursday. Please come in to identify.

I LOST 18 lbs. in three weeks! You can too! Guaranteed! Call 776-4764.

LOST: DENIM jacket with hood, St. John's Bay. HP-325 calculator in pocket. Reward $20. 776-4997.

LOST: NFL Football on roof of Union 10/13. Possibly blown off and found Sunday or Monday. 776-6800 anytime.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

OWN THIS 12' wide, two-bedroom, $135 monthly for 24 months. Large selection. Countryside. 539-2325.

18 Motorcycles/Bicycles for Sale

TAKARA MIXLE frame, 10-speed touring bike, perfect for commuting to K-State, $50. 537-7070.

21 Personals

We require a form of picture ID (KSU or driver's license or other) when placing a personal.

AZD PLEDGES— To the best. From the rest, The sophomores came up with this really cool rhyme, To let you know the place and time, Monday 7:30— Coco and Smores will be the treat. The Xi House is where we'll meet. Fuzzy Love.

HEY, BRIAN— I like it long. Leave the cuffs and cream at home though. DMM.

PIA Y Edith son un par de incantadoras Argentinas con un gran sentido del humor. Mas aun adoran locamente a Julio Iglesias —Bertrand.

SWEET LITTLE Kitty— Surprise! Congratulations for completing those two exams and I wish you luck on the rest. I cherish the time I spent with you! I have a couple of tickets, will you help me use them? PGSWMFSSS. Let's go for a walk. Love Always, Bubba.

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

FOR SALE— Registered Persian kittens. Shaded silver, camco and cream. AKC Sheltie puppies. 1-632-3201.

TROPICAL FISH AND AQUARIUMS
PETS N STUFF
1105 Waters 539-9494
OPEN Thur. til 8 p.m.

23 Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

SUFFERING FROM Abortion? Write: HeartsRestored, Box 94, Grinnell, Kansas 67738. Confidential response will follow

New Sunbed
Tanning 10 for $25
HARDBODIES GYM
Laramie Plaza Basement 539-7095

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— More than just typing— we create the resume with you, so it reflects your best. Then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience in University Career Center.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851. Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE: $142.50/ month. One-half utilities. Rest of October rent free. Park Place Apartments. 539-8391.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted, condo, one-half block west of campus. 776-9026. Nice.

26 Stereo Equipment

CD PLAYER— Fisher, excellent condition, $85. 776-4215.

FOR SALE: Home subwoofer, 200 watts, built-in amp, crossover, volume, protector, $400. 539-3732.

27 Sports/Recreation Equipment

SAILBOARD— 10'4" transition board with rig, 5.6m2 sail, centerboard, excellent condition, $450. 776-6073 after 5p.m.

28 Sublease

FEMALE ROOMMATE for furnished house. Spring semester or now. Lots of privacy. $162.50. Amy 539-3886.

30 Travel/

STATE KSU vs. KU
Oct. 27
$10
Round trip transportation to Lawrence. Join other K-State fans and watch the game from the hill.
Classic Travel & Tours
1212 Moro • 537-7546

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS— Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. Boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more. Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday— Saturday 9a.m.— 5p.m. St. Mary's Surplus Sales, St. Mary's, Kansas 1-437-2734.

NEW, FULL length men's black leather trench coat, $400 or best offer. 539-1182.

UNUSUAL ANTIQUES for sale: Baby stroller with metal frame, canvas cover, two large and two small wheels, $75; portable Phonola phonograph in wooden case, $50. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m. If no answer, leave message.

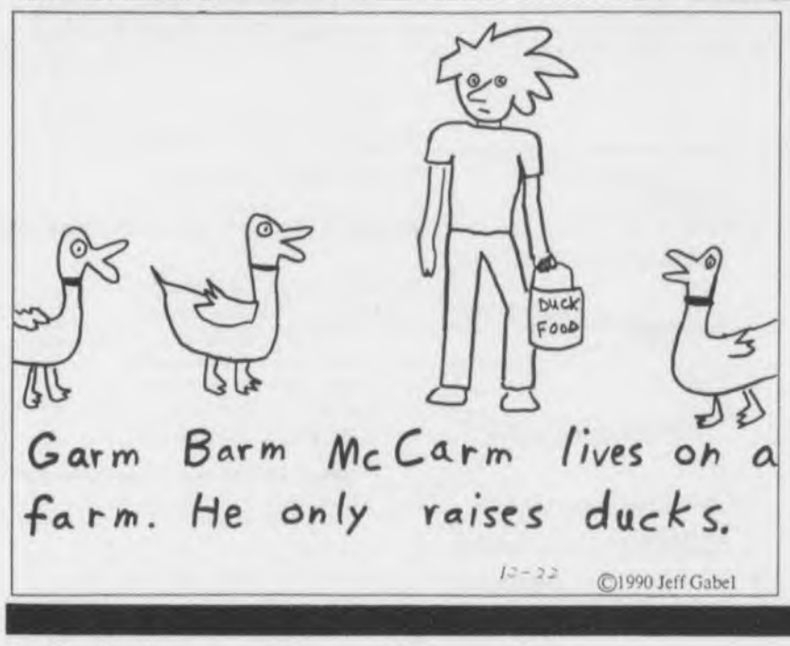
33 Tutor

TUTOR: PHYSICS and chemistry. Please leave a message if I'm out. 537-0356.

34 Wine and Beer Supplies

WINE MAKING cheap and easy. Free recipes and supply list included. Follow the instructions in this book and you too can make fine wine in your own home. Satisfaction guaranteed. Send $5 to: Excessive Endeavors, P.O. Box 10075, Columbia, MO 65205.

36 Nanny



EXPERIENCED NANNY looking for family, full-time. For information call 776-9649, Mandy.

37 Political Personals

STAN HOERMAN, The Margin of Excellence. Stan Hoerman, Believes In It. Stan Hoerman Will Vote to Fund it. Stan Hoerman Can Work with Leadership. Stan Hoerman Needs Your Vote Nov. 6! Pd. Adv. Stan Hoerman, Bren Abbott, Treasurer.

Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

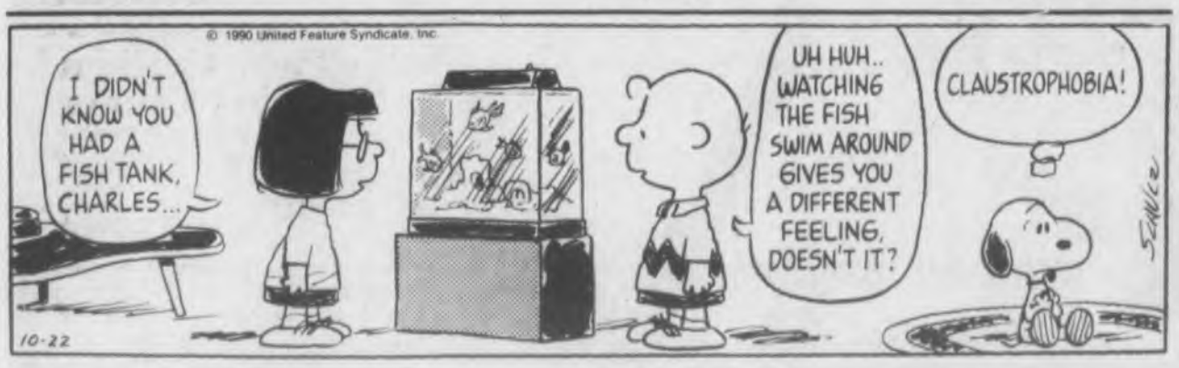
By Bob Berry

Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind

Jim's Journal

By Jim



Calvin and Hobbes

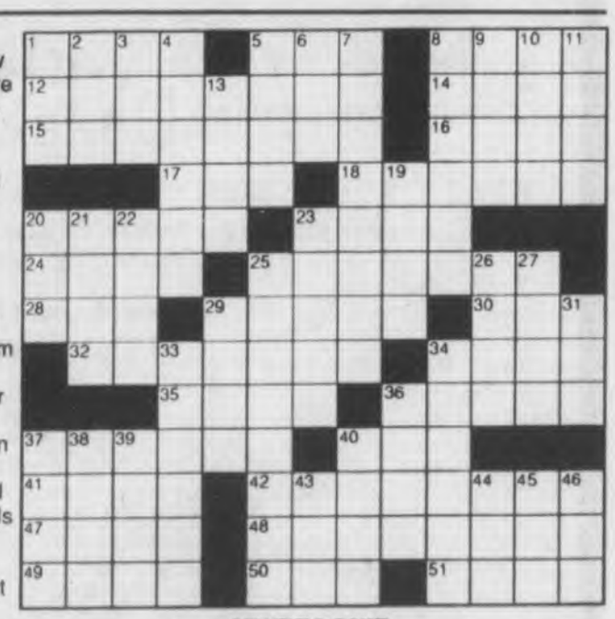
By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Sulk coyly
5 Dance step
8 Zigzag course
12 Mirage, for one
14 Soviet river
15 "Lonely Boy" singer
16 Irritate
17 White House nickname
18 Ignite
20 Range of action
23 Early Persian
24 " — and the Man" (play)
25 Redid the room
28 U.S. poet/ author
29 Newsman Pyle
30 Actor DeLuise
32 Official in charge
34 Grotto
35 Male parent
36 Cud-chewer
37 Buff-colored paper
40 Rhine feeder
41 Swan genus
42 "She's a Lady" singer
47 Hindu garment
48 Ballpark figure?
49 Afternoon parties
50 " — Kapital"
51 Petty row

DOWN
1 Dickensian lad
2 Palm leaf
3 Eskimo knife
4 Harbingers of spring
5 Languish
6 In good working order
7 Place of horror
8 Tina or Lana
9 Barren
10 Summon to duty
11 Swiss painter
13 Sushi wash-down
19 — fixe
20 Weaken
21 Riding whip
22 Hebrew measure
23 Clergyman's house
25 Divided proportionally
26 Dutch treat?
27 Peace symbol
29 Anagram of live
31 Blanc or Gibson
33 Egyptian god
34 Hits and rebounds
36 Cuban fish
37 Greatest amount
38 Wings
39 Asta's mistress
40 Danish land divisions
43 Explorer Johnson
44 Forty winks
45 Depot info.
46 "Desk — (movie)

Solution time: 25 min.

A	B	C		S	L	O	B		J	A	V	A
R	O	O		T	A	I	L		A	N	O	N
C	O	W	A	R	D	L	Y		I	N	I	T
		S	W	A	Y		B	L	A	D	E
A	G	L	O	W		M	O	R	E
F	A	I	L		P	A	P	E	R	C	U	T
A	L	P		F	I	X	E	D		O	R	O
R	A	S	P	U	T	I	N		S	W	A	N
			R	E	A	M		R	E	P	L	Y
C	A	R	O	L			T	H	E	O
A	B	E	L		C	O	W	O	R	K	E	R
D	E	L	I		O	V	I	D		E	L	A
S	T	Y	X		D	A	N	A		S	K	Y

Yesterday's answer 10-22

CRYPTOQUIP

10-22

J K L H J A T H M K I A P F L Z W Z U P Z W O L Z C F — O L Z C F I. Z M W. I P T I Z W.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: CLUMSY CHEF WHO FELL INTO THE DILUTED SOUP FOUND HIMSELF IN HOT WATER.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: H equals I.

Physics

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

physicists contribute their works to the conference. The contributed works will be presented as posters.

"Since the conference is being held in the United States, we hope to attract more participants from this country, but we may lose some of the European participants because of cost," Stockli said. "We do expect to have people from Russia, Japan and Western Europe participating.

"We hope to have 100-200 participants, which is a fairly big conference for such a specific physics conference, and I'm very happy we can host the conference," he said.

Stockli and Patrick Richard, distinguished professor of physics, will be planning the 1992 conference.

Accident

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8

Edvy said.

Edvy said the accident is still under investigation and the police department is looking for more witnesses. He emphasized that based on the facts found Sunday night, Ingram was not at fault.

"I don't foresee enforcement against the driver of the car," Edvy said. "Based on our reconstruction, the driver committed no traffic offense."

Opera

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5

experienced students an opportunity to improve their dramatic skills.

"We've always done musicals, and it was felt that for voice majors we needed to get them into the styles of singing opera," said Jerry Langenkamp, professor of music and musical director for the Opera Workshop. "We do the workshop to give students educational and technical experience in a range of different styles."

Langenkamp said K-State has been one of the most active schools of its size in providing students with opera experience. Students like the opportunities the workshop provides because it allows them to concentrate on their technique without the pressures of having costumes and makeup, he said.

"The workshop is great," said Rob Fann, senior in music. "You don't have to spend as much time on this as a full production. It allows you to concentrate on small, specific parts and improve on the little things without doing an all-out opera."

Fann said this is the first time he has played a romantic lead. He will be performing scenes from "The Bartered Bride."

"The learning experience has just been incredible," Fann said. "I had to learn to act and sing at the same time without losing vocal technique, and that can be pretty hard."

Learning to act as well as sing was a concern for other students as well.

Lori Zoll, graduate student in vocal performance, said she liked the workshop for just that reason.

"I had to learn to portray the emotions of what I was singing," Zoll said. "That's an important part of opera."

The 12 students singing in the workshop have been practicing six to eight hours a week for the last 10 weeks, Langenkamp said.

"Most of the students in the workshop would like to pursue a career in opera," Langenkamp said. "Opera is real competitive. I tell my students that the odds of making it in opera are about the same as becoming an astronaut."

Langenkamp said it's important to get students involved in opera as soon as possible because the world of opera is so competitive. The workshop is one way of giving students experience.

"The workshop can be tailored to fit the students' needs."

Navy fails to prosecute rapes at training center in Florida

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — There were at least six rapes of female students or recruits at the Orlando Naval Training Center during the 18 months ending June 30, but the Navy has not prosecuted anyone for them, according to a published report.

Citing a Navy inspector general's report it obtained Friday by request, The Washington Post said 24 rapes or sexual assaults were reported during the 18-month period and that Navy law enforcement officials substantiated or resolved eight of the rape cases and five instances of sexual assault — including indecent exposure and attempted rape.

The report in Monday's editions of the paper said only one of the 13 cases, an assault case, resulted in court-martial proceedings.

The Post said the investigation found that some alleged offenders, often instructors of supervisors of the women involved, were returned to their jobs and continued working near the victims. It said others were transferred from Orlando or released from the Navy — avoiding prosecution — an that some victims may have been so intimidated by investigators that they did not press charges.

The Inspector General's report was quoted as saying that the Navy's failure to move against offenders in numerous sex-related cases has contributed to an atmosphere at the Florida facility that makes women "feel like they are second-class members of the Navy."

The Post quoted Vice Adm. John S. Disher, the Navy's chief of education and training, as characterizing the problems cited at Orlando as occurring throughout the entire Navy and saying much more must be done to solve the problem.

We Take Tips!
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6556

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6556

Have "You" Had Your Frozen Yogurt Today??
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY.
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers
Aggieville

MOTORCYCLE SUPPLY
Soft Saddle Bags $69.95
Tank Bag $59.95
Motorcycle Cover $45.00
Full Vetter Helmet $60.00
Cargo Net $4.00
Shoei & Bieffe Face Shields
Winter Gloves
776-6177
OPEN Mon.-Sat. 9:30-6:30
1221 Moro on alley Aggieville

Eric Wisdom, D.D.S.
NEW PATIENT SPECIAL
Cleaning, Exam and 2 X-rays
ONLY $28 reg. $59
24 hr. Emergency Number
1445 ANDERSON 776-1771

PREGNANT? NEED HELP?
For confidential help call
Birthright
FREE Pregnancy Tests
103 S. Fourth 537-9180
1-800-848-LOVE

Open House for
Sally Thompson
Candidate for State Treasurer
5:00 to 6:30 p.m., This Evening
Monday, October 22, 1990
Riley County Democratic Headquarters
312 Poyntz, Downtown Manhattan
"Sally Thompson would bring both a human touch and a background of financial experience to the sometimes complicated world of finance in the state treasurer's office." -- The Wichita Eagle, Oct. 7, 1990
Authorized by Thompson for Treasurer Committee

MCCAIN
Kathleen ni Houlihan's Sons and Daughters
Scenes from the 20th Century Irish Theatre
Actors from the London Stage
Thursday, October 25, 8 p.m.
Brian Friel's Faith Healer, a scintillating tale of a traveling medicine man, headlines an evening that probes the treasure trove of Irish theatre. Join five British players as they explore Sean O'Casey's Plough and the Stars and Red Roses for Me and J.M. Synge's Playboy of the Western World and Riders to the Sea.
No leprechauns or shamrocks here! Just some of the most exciting, passionate, comical, hopeful, exasperating, and engaging theatre in the English language.
General Public: $12
Senior Citizens: $10
Students/Children: $6

McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays.
McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

Arts and Sciences Student of the Semester
Applications available in Dean's office, Eisenhower Hall
Applications are due Oct. 26 by 4 p.m.

Force is never friendly.
"KSU policy prohibits not only those acts commonly understood to constitute 'sexual assault,' but all attempts to coerce sexual activity as well."
KSU Policy Prohibiting Sexual Violence.
Call 532-6444 for more information.

UPC Arts Lectures Movies Outdoors Performances Travel
ALL ABOARD WITH UPC

January 7-12 ,1990
Steamboat
CHRISTMAS BREAK SKI TRIP
$252 / $290 With Ski Rental
(Convenient Payment Plan)
TRIP INCLUDES:
* 5 Nights Lodging At Timber Run
* 4 Days Steamboat Lift Tickets
* College Party Pak:
-Nuts and Bolts Party
-His or Her Gift Pack
Sign up today in the UPC office.
Less than seven spots left.
Sign up deadline
Friday, Nov. 2nd.
THINK SNOW
$33
Trip Includes:
caving permits
camping
MISSOURI
Columbia, MO
CAVING
NOV 10th
Sign-up Begins:
Wed. Oct. 24
k-state union upc outdoor rec.
k-state union upc travel

The story of a rebel & his mike.
"One of the year's 10 best! Easily one of the most entertaining films of the year."
Siskel & Ebert
Roger & Me
Showing Wednesday, Oct. 24th, 7 p.m. in Forum Hall; Thursday, Oct. 25th, 3:30 p.m. Little Theatre, 7 p.m. Forum Hall; Friday, Oct. 26th, 7 p.m. Little Theatre. $1.75 with KSU ID
RESISTANT: An Invited Show
Oct. 15-Nov. 2
Kansas State Union Gallery
Hours: Mon.-Fri. 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
k-state union upc arts
Jeff George Rene Diaz Trebor Aidnoc Catherine Closer John Lanae Hunter Greene Ben Leabetter Var Vladimir Krstic Joy Swallow Salento Ralph Roseling Richard Hansen

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Tuesday, October 23, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 42

Numbers down for candidates

STUDENT SENATE '90 ELECTIONS

By Kelly Berg
Staff Reporter

Several positions on Student Senate and Board of Student Publications have fewer candidates filed to run than there are openings.

There is one fewer candidate than openings for Board of Student Publications, architecture and design, education, and veterinary medicine, and two fewer positions for the graduate school.

"That's actually pretty normal," said Doug McIver, student government elections committee chairman. "There's usually quite a few write-in candidates."

To qualify for student-elected positions, a student must be recognized as a full-time student for fee purposes or be a graduate student enrolled in six or more graduate hours, the student cannot graduate anytime during the spring or summer of the term to which they will be elected, and the student may only represent the college or school in which the student is enrolled.

A student running for the Board of Student Publications must also be recognized as a full-time student and can't graduate the semester of or the summer following the election.

After turning in the applications, the candidates are allowed to campaign.

The maximum amount allowed for campaign costs for student body president candidates is $785.60, 100 percent of tuition and fees paid by a full-time, instate student. If a run-off election is necessary, another $196.40 is allowed.

Student Senate or Board of Student Publications candidates are allowed to spend 10 percent of tuition and fees — $78.56.

"All candidates are required to turn in campaign expenditure reports, even if they don't spend any money on their campaign," said Chris Kern, Student Senate chairman.

Kern said the Student Government Association watches the papers and cuts out any ads bought by the candidates.

"Other than that, though, we pretty much have to rely on the receipts the candidates give us and their reports of the fair market price for anything that might be donated to their campaign," he said.

The deadline for candidacy applications was Oct. 16 at 5 p.m. After the deadline, anyone wanting to run for one of the positions has to run as a write-in candidate.

Anyone can run as a write-in, but, if elected, the student will have to turn in an expenditure report.

Elections will be Oct. 30-31, and the newly elected senators will be expected to start attending meetings after Nov. 1.

If none of the student body president candidates obtain a majority, the two candidates with the most votes will have a run-off election, and the candidate with the most votes in that election will become the new student body president. If a run-off election is necessary, it will be held the following week, Nov. 7.

"Last year, there were about 2,500 people who voted," McIver said. "But since there's a referendum on the ballot this year, we're expecting even more people to vote."

Positions Available In Student Senate

School	Positions Available	Number Filed to Run	Number Filed to Run Last Year
Agriculture	4	15	5
Architecture	3	2	0
Arts and Sciences	18	42	31
Business	9	18	19
Education	5	4	7
Engineering	8	12	20
Graduate	6	4	3
Human Ecology	4	4	7
Vet. Med.	1	0	0
Board of Student Pub.	4	3	5
Student Body President	1	6	5

Source: Student Governing Association

Bush vetoes civil rights bill

President argues measure may force adoption of quotas

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush vetoed a major civil rights bill Monday and seemed assured of winning a battle in Congress to override him. "I deeply regret having to take this action," Bush said.

The president called on lawmakers to enact his version of the measure before they quit for the year, expected later this week.

The administration argued that the bill, as passed by Congress, would force businesses to adopt quotas in hiring and promotion. Supporters of the measure rejected the White House argument and portrayed Bush's stand as a measure of his commitment on human rights.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., the chief Senate sponsor, called the veto "tragic and disgraceful."

"When the chips are down, the White House is against civil rights," Kennedy said. He urged Congress to override the president.

The bill was approved by substantial margins in both the House and Senate, but both votes fell short of the two-thirds needed to override.

Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., the prime House sponsor, said he would not even ask for an override vote without the two-thirds needed by supporters. "I'm just not going to waste any more time," Hawkins said, adding that civil rights forces might even lose support in an override fight.

In his veto message, Bush said, "The temptation to support a bill — any bill — simply because its title includes the words 'civil rights' is very strong.

"But when our efforts, however well-intentioned, result in quotas, equal opportunity is not advanced but thwarted," he said. "The very commitment to justice and equality that is offered as the reason why this bill should be signed requires me to veto it."

He said, "I deeply regret having to take this action with a bill bearing such a title, especially since it contains certain provisions that I strongly endorse."

The measure would nullify six Supreme Court decisions that have made it more difficult for women and minorities to prove and win job discrimination suits. It would ban racial harassment in the workplace and allow punitive damages in the most serious discrimination cases.

It was passed by the Senate 62-34 and by the House 273-154 — strong majorities, but not reaching the two-thirds required to override a veto.

Bush said there were many similarities between the bill he vetoed and the version that the administration supports. Civil rights advocates denounced the latest version of Bush's bill as a sham for permitting challenged hiring practices to stand if they could be justified on such grounds as "customer relations," justifications they said were used to support the separate-but-equal "Jim Crow" laws of the first half of the 20th century that kept blacks in segregation.

Summing up his key argument, Bush said, "Despite the use of the term 'civil rights' in the title ... the bill actually employs a maze of highly legalistic language to introduce the destructive force of quotas into our nation's employment system."

Mike Venso/Staff

Cherese Emery, Fort Riley, center, collects signs to distribute to marchers participating in the Bring Back the Night March from the K-State Union Plaza to City Park Tuesday evening. The event was part of BrotherPeace Week activities sponsored by Women and Men Against Rape.

6 students run for presidency

By Charlie Gatschet
Collegian Reporter

Six students have announced plans to run for student body president in the Oct. 30-31 general elections.

The candidates are: John Buchanan, sophomore in premedicine; Johnny Gaffney, senior in pre-law; Todd Giefer, senior in architectural engineering; Todd Heitschmidt, graduate student in agricultural economics; David McIntyre, senior in electrical engineering; and Jonathan Morris, junior in mathematics.

Buchanan is from Leavenworth and attended Boys' State while in high school. He has also been involved with a statewide voter registration drive in Kansas and is treasurer for Minority Assembly of Students in Health.

Gaffney is from Anthony. He is a cabinet and lobby team member for Student Body President Todd Johnson and president of the Interfraternity Council. Gaffney was an arts and sciences senator last year and has been a member of the Legislative Affairs Committee. Last year, he was chairman of the Kansas State University/Student Governing Association High School Leadership Conference.

Giefer is from Wellington, Co., and is an engineering senator. He is also chairperson for Academic Affairs and the University Relations Committee and has served on the College of Engineering Student Council for the past two years.

Heitschmidt is from Holyrood and is the campus director for Associated Students of Kansas. He also serves on the Academic Affairs and University Relations Committee and has twice been an engineering senator. In addition, he has been a student representative to Faculty Senate and serves on the council on parking, traffic and police operations.

McIntyre is from Plainville and is in his second year as an engineering senator. He is a three-year member of the Student Affairs and Social Services Committee and two-year member of the Athletic Ticket Sales Committee. He was committee chairman this year. He is also an active member of ASK.

Morris is from McPherson and is president of Students Acting to Save a Vulnerable Environment. He has also served as public relations manager for Spurs sophomore honorary and as a member of Union Program Council's Issues and Ideas committee.

Women protest unsafe conditions with 'Take Back The Night' march

By Paul Noel
Staff Reporter

Women marched by candlelight from the K-State Union Plaza to City Park Wednesday evening to represent the fear and danger of being alone at night.

A men's march followed to show support for women.

Women and Men Against Rape and the National Organization for Women organized the march as a part of BrotherPeace Week.

The "Take Back The Night" march was to symbolize women's right to be out at night without fear of being attacked verbally or physically, said Catherine Olevnik, graduate in psychology and member of Women and Men Against Rape.

About 50 people marched through campus and Aggieville to City Park chanting, "Who decides women's fate, not the church and state," and "Together united, we'll never be divided."

Men and women marched separately because the march has traditionally been to show women taking back the night, not men giving it back, said Mary Slack, NOW member.

The march was also for men because many men also have a reason to be afraid, Olevnik said. If men and women are not united to preserve safe conditions at night, nothing will be accomplished, she said.

"I can sympathize with homosexuals who have been victims of violence. Although it has never happened to me, no one should have to worry about it. I would like to see an end to all violence," said Chris Turner, senior in horticulture who represented the Bisexual and Gay and Lesbian Organization in the march.

Women's rights is a pertinent issue and that was the intent of the march, Turner said.

Kim Blubaugh, director of the Crisis Center, thanked the group for trying to put a stop to the problem.

"I would like to see enough of this kind of work that would put the Crisis Center out of business," Blubaugh said. "It's sad to me that we have to teach women to stay safe, and we have to tell men what would keep them safe."

Matt Narramore, senior in political science and economics and Women and Men Against Rape member, said the idea of the march is to support women's rights and to oppose rape.

"The march is more about women than it is about men," Narramore said. "Women shouldn't have to be caged — they should have the right to be out at night, free from fear."

Station switches format, adds DJs

By Shannon Helm
Collegian Reporter

KMKF added 47,000 watts of power and officially changed its format from Top 40 to Album Oriented Rock 5 p.m. Monday.

The station's frequency changed from 101.7 to 101.5 FM, but its call letters will remain the same, said Jim Steele, program director.

Rumors circulated earlier this semester that the station might change format. The rumors were denied by Robert Elfman, who was then program director.

"To be quite honest, we haven't even considered it," Elfman said in the Aug. 28 Collegian. "We're doing well right now, so I don't see any reason to change."

Steele said the station has been planning the change for a long time but wanted to keep it a secret so other stations could not copy any of the new program ideas.

"This area is flooded with the same type of music," said M.J. Stevens, disc jockey and music director. "We said, 'Let's give them something they don't get.' We won't be doing what other stations are doing.

"There won't be any M.C. Hammer, New Kids on the Block or any of that kind of stuff," he said.

Steele said that the power increase to 50,000 watts will enable KMKF to reach cities such as Manhattan, Topeka, Junction City and Wichita.

KMKF went off the air at 9 a.m. Monday and did not return until 3 p.m.

"From 3 to 5 p.m. we just tried to fill the airway with nonsense as our way of signing on," Steele said. During this time, KMKF's broadcast everything from movie sound clips to show tunes and garbled music.

At 5 p.m., as a final tribute to their old format, KMKF DJs played "Tonight" by New Kids on the Block with altered lyrics. A brief announcement of the new change

■ See RADIO, Page 8

BRIEFLY

World

Israeli forces block entrance

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli forces blocked Palestinians from entering Jerusalem on Monday to prevent clashes following the murders of three Jews by a knife-wielding Arab.

A Palestinian teen-ager was killed and 19 others were hospitalized with wounds suffered in clashes with Israeli troops Monday throughout the occupied West Bank, Arab reports said.

Despite the heightened security in Jerusalem, a Palestinian stabbed a Jew, slightly injuring him. Police searched a nearby village for the assailant.

Also Monday, an 18-year-old Palestinian died of wounds suffered in an August 1988 clash. Mohammed Naim Abu Akar was known among Palestinians as the living martyr for surviving on intravenous feedings after Israeli bullets destroyed his intestines.

Report links Hussein, prophet

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — A Kuwaiti newspaper reported that Saddam Hussein dreamed the prophet Mohammed appeared before him and told the Iraqi president his country's missiles were pointed in the wrong direction.

Reports on the dream that circulated in international financial circles are said to have accounted in part for the largest one-day drop ever on New York markets of oil prices — a fall of $5.41 a barrel to $28.38. Oil prices plunged $5.65 a barrel to close at $26.75 in London.

Saddam is said to have told an audience of top aides who murmured "God be blessed" how Mohammed appeared before him swathed in white robes, the newspaper Al-Seyassah said Sunday.

Nation

Supremacist to pay damages

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — White supremacist Tom Metzger must pay $5 million in damages to the family of a black man beaten to death by racist skinheads he is accused of inciting, a jury ruled Monday.

Metzger, 52, a former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, was assessed $5 million and his White Aryan Resistance was ordered to pay $3 million in damages. His son John, 22, was must pay $1 million in damages.

Metzger, 52, and his son John, 22, are accused in the lawsuit of inciting the murder by sending an agent to Portland to organize skinheads and teach them how to commit violence on minorities.

The jury decided that Kenneth Mieske and Kyle Brewster, two skinheads who pleaded guilty in the slaying, must pay $500,000 each in damages.

Senators argue over taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats considered dropping their call for a surtax on millionaires Monday as lawmakers dickered over Medicare cuts and gasoline taxes in a drive to resolve the yearlong budget standoff by week's end.

In the face of adamant opposition by Republican senators to a surtax on the rich, Democrats were weighing a GOP alternative that would limit the deductions millionaires can itemize on their income taxes. House Democratic leaders were sounding out their rank-and-file to see how much support there was for that idea.

With the two sides advancing otherwise similar proposals to raise taxes on the wealthy, agreement on this matter would be a major step toward completion of a $250 billion deficit-reduction pact. Leaders would like to bring a compromise bill to the House and Senate floors by midweek.

Cocaine may speed AIDS virus

ATLANTA (AP) — Cocaine speeded the growth of the AIDS virus in laboratory tests, prompting concern that it could increase infected people's chances of developing the deadly disease, researchers reported Monday.

Microbiologists at the University of Minnesota Medical School exposed cells that are the primary target for the AIDS virus to doses of cocaine. The virus, HIV, was found to grow as much as three times faster in the cocaine-laced tests than in control studies.

While about 150,000 AIDS cases have been reported in the United States, researchers say a million or more other Americans are infected and at risk of developing AIDS.

Region

Quayle stumps for Hayden

OLATHE (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle said Monday that he supports Gov. Mike Hayden for re-election despite their disagreement over the abortion issue.

"(Hayden) strongly supports the Republican message," Quayle told reporters at Johnson County Industrial Airport, where he was greeted by about 200 Hayden supporters and the Olathe North High School band.

"He's kept taxes down, employment up and the budget balanced," Quayle said. "Too bad we can't take the recipe for what Mike Hayden has done in Kansas back to Washington."

But Quayle, wearing a red, white and blue "I Like Mike" sticker on his lapel, declined comment on the abortion issue.

"I'm not going to get in a debate in Kansas," he said.

First Lady Barbara Bush will come to Kansas on Nov. 1 to campaign for Hayden.

Stephan sues discount store

TOPEKA (AP) — Kansas Attorney General Bob Stephan Monday sued one of the state's largest discount stores for allegedly misrepresenting the octane rating of the gasoline it sells.

Stephan alleged in a suit filed in Shawnee County District Court that Hypermart U.S.A. was selling gasoline with an octane level of 88 when the label on the pump said the octane level was 89, a violation of the Kansas Consumer Protection Act.

Campus

Forensic team members place

The K-State Forensic team will travel to Northeast Missouri State University in Kirksville, Mo. Nov. 27.

The team competed in a swing tournament last weekend at Bethel College on Saturday and hosted a tournament here Sunday.

"We had 132 schools representing 19 schools attend the tournament," Craig Brown, director of forensics. "It was the best all-around turnout in a long time. The students were very helpful."

On Saturday, the team competed at Bethel College against 18 teams. Six students from K-State went to the finals.

In informative speech, Stacie Schrock, sophomore undecided, won fourth place, which qualified her for nationals.

In persuasion, Laura Camien, sophomore undecided, received first and Laura Pelletier, senior in speech, won third.

In prose, Jason Brown, senior in speech, won first, which qualified him for nationals, and Camien took fourth.

In duo, David Carson, sophomore in speech, and Amy Wichman, junior in pre-professional secondary education, took sixth place.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

Announcements

■ Arts and Sciences Council Student of the Semester applications are available until Oct. 26 in the dean's office in Eisenhower Hall.

■ KSU Bloodmobile will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the K, S and U rooms of the Union until Oct. 26.

■ Metaforum, the English undergraduate organization, is accepting submissions of poetry, artwork, prose and cartoons for its semesterly creative writing publication until Oct. 31. Mail submissions to 311 N. 14th St. or drop them off in Denison 101.

23 Tuesday

■ FENIX Adult Student Program/OWLS will meet from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Union Stateroom 1.

■ SAVE will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Union 206.

■ Intramural Volleyball begins at 7 p.m. in the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex.

■ Mortar Board will meet at 9:30 p.m. in the Union Big 8 Room.

■ Intramural Individual Sports begin at 8 p.m. in the Rec Complex.

■ National Agri-Marketing Association will meet at 7 p.m. in Union 213. Pictures will follow the meeting.

■ Metaforum/Women and Men Against Rape will sponsor a poetry reading at 7 p.m. in Espresso Royale as part of BrotherPeace Week. If you are interested in reading, sign up this afternoon in Denison 101.

■ Astronomy Club will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Cardwell 407.

■ HALO will meet at 8:30 p.m. in Union 203.

■ The Graduate School has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Joseph S. Benson at 1:30 p.m. in Bluemont 368. The dissertation topic is "Kansas Public Schools Principals' Roles in and Perceived Ideal Roles in Special Education in Their Buildings."

■ Department of Geology will present "Quantifying Agricultural Effects on Water Supplies" by Jim Koelliker at 4 p.m. in Thompson 101.

■ Counselor Ed/Ed Psych Graduate Student Club will sponsor a forum on careers in student affairs at noon in Union 207.

■ BrotherPeace/Women and Men Against Rape will have an open panel discussion on homophobia at 3 p.m. in Union 207.

■ Black Student Union will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union Little Theatre.

■ Sustainable Agriculture Discussion Group will have a panel discussion, "Real Versus Perceived Dangers of Agricultural Chemicals," at 11:30 a.m. in Throckmorton 313.

■ Hospitality Management Society will meet at 8 p.m. in the Justin Hall Lobby.

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, partly cloudy. High 65 to 70. Northerly winds 10 to 15 mph. Tonight, partly cloudy. Low in the upper 30s. Wednesday, mostly sunny. High 60 to 65.

Fed Up . . .
with health insurance premiums that continually increase? If so, I have a policy for you.
If you're interested call . . .
Billie Gallaher
539-5676.
Physicians Mutual Insurance Company
PMA-467

KSU Center for Leadership
presents
a panel discussion on
"Leadership: From the Perspectives of Academia and the Business World."
Panelists:
President Jon Wefald, KSU
Ms. Jan Ray, Winning Concepts, Inc.
Dr. Randolph Pohlman, Koch Industries
Dr. David Darling, KSU
K-State Union Little Theater
Friday, Oct. 26 1-3 p.m.
All are Welcome.

Arts and Sciences Student of the Semester
Applications available in Dean's office, Eisenhower Hall
Applications are due Oct. 26 by 4 p.m.

Cats
STUDENT SEASON TICKETS STILL AVAILABLE
Ahearn Fieldhouse Ticket Office
532-6920
REMINDER!!
Student season ticket holders can return their voided vacation game tickets to the ticket office between Nov. 12-20. You will receive either a $5 rebate or a ticket to one of the three holiday games.

Spooktacular SALE
at the K-State Union Bookstore
October 22 - 28, 1990
31% Off all regular priced Halloween merchandise
Includes masks, costumes and novelty items.
10% Off orange and black construction paper, matboard and tempera paint
10% Off special Halloween selection of terrifying paperbacks
Monday - Thursday ..... 7:45 a.m. - 8:00 p.m.
Friday ..... 7:45 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Saturday ..... 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Sunday ..... 12:00 noon - 5:00 p.m.
Closed for inventory until 1:00 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 27
K-State Union Bookstore

Margaret Clarkin/Staff

Linda Richter, professor in political science, has been appointed to the National Travel and Tourism Advisory Board. Richter will help advise President George Bush and the U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration on marketing domestic and world tourism.

Professor receives appointment for national travel, tourism board

By Jenifer Scheibler
Collegian Reporter

Researching and addressing the issues of comparative public policy in tourism has earned Linda Richter, professor of political science, a three-year appointment on President George Bush's National Travel and Tourism Advisory Board.

Many issues will be addressed by the board, including marketing American tourism abroad and rural tourism, Richter said.

"We will be meeting about four times a year, attempting to advise the U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration and President Bush with regard to marketing, U.S. tourism and world tourism," she said.

Richter said the board is particularly interested in the issue of rural tourism.

"One of the main interests of the U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration is rural tourism," she said. "Our effort is in helping small towns and communities develop another economic base."

In response to the lack of rural tourism in the United States, Richter said the Midwest needs to be emphasized to foreign tourists, such as Europeans and the Japanese, because of their interest in the Old West.

The low crime rates found in the Midwest also appeal to tourists, Richter said.

"The Midwest could be a potentially attractive area for them," she said.

Richter said the board will also have the chance to work with similar boards on international travel and tourism projects.

"What they try to do is give people an opportunity to work where a large overseas promotional effort is being made," Richter said. "The advisory board can see what is going on and make recommendations and also interact with advisory boards from other countries."

The board will be working with other governmental departments to examine current situations and issues, she said, and coordinating its efforts with those of the Department of Energy and Commerce Department.

Richter said reports to the board from these departments have featured the effect of the gulf crisis on the issues of terrorism, foreign travel and fuel costs.

University Provost James Coffman said Richter's appointment to the board brings recognition to both Richter and the University.

"We are very proud," Coffman said. "The appointment stands both her and K-State in good stead."

> "We will be meeting about four times a year, attempting to advise the U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration and President Bush with regard to marketing, U.S. tourism and world tourism."
> —Linda Richter
> professor of political science

Richter will serve as the academic adviser on the 15-member board required by the National Tourism Policy Act. The remaining board members represent other various areas of travel and tourism. They include Peter Uberoth, chairman of the 1988 Los Angeles Summer Olympic Committee, and representatives from Hyatt Regency Hotels, Walt Disney World and Pan American Airlines.

Richter said it is important to have board members that represent all areas of the industry.

"There are a lot of liaison type of activities that need to have input from a group that represents a wide variety of travel-related sectors," Richter said.

She said that although the board doesn't have the authority to pass legislation, they will formulate policies on travel and tourism for consideration by Congress.

Richter has completed in-depth research on the travel and tourism policies of 19 countries. She has also be involved with rural tourism in the United States and overseas and was active in the development of a national tourism policy that is now being considered by Congress.

"The long-term objective we have is to get the National Rural Tourism Policy Act through Congress and also to increase the marketing effectiveness of the U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration," Richter said.

UPC weekend in Chicago set

Weather, fall class schedule taken advantage of on trip

By Amy Hadlock
Collegian Reporter

The Union Program Council will be heading to Chicago on its annual trip this weekend.

"We will be departing from Kansas City on Friday and will be arriving in Chicago later that afternoon," said Stanley Winter, program adviser of UPC.

The trip usually is taken during the fall semester. This year, UPC chose to leave a month sooner than in previous years.

"The Chicago trip was in November last year, but we moved it up an entire month this year do to several things," Winter said. "We moved the trip because the trip was right before Thanksgiving last year and because it was so cold in Chicago. We also moved it up because it is a nice time to have a break between Labor Day and Thanksgiving."

Sarah McFadden, co-sponsor of the Chicago trip and UPC travel committee member, said the committee likes to make it easy for students to get off campus.

"We like to provide the trip for the students because it is an easier and cheaper way for the students to take a trip," McFadden said.

Winter said the council receives airline tickets and hotel accommodations at a group rate.

There are 24 people going on the trip, and Winter said they are on their own in deciding what they will do in Chicago.

> "We like to provide the trip for the students because it is an easier and cheaper way for the students to take a trip.
> —Sarah McFadden
> UPC travel committee member

"The trip is $125 and includes round-trip airfare to Chicago from Kansas City and two nights lodging at the Lenox House Suites. The trip does not, however, have structured events planned," Winter said. "What we try to do is let the people do what they want, but we will also have a sign-up sheet in Chicago so that people can get in group activities."

The travel committee has two more trips planned. Sign-up for the Dec. 1 Kansas City Shopping trip begins Nov. 7, and sign-up for the Jan. 7-12 Christmas Break Ski Trip to Steamboat ends Nov. 2.

BUY-HIRE-SELL-RENT KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

The Amazing MICRO DIET

Developed & endorsed by international physicians & nutritionists, The Amazing Micro Diet is a proven common sense, full-spectrum approach dedicated "to improve the health and quality of life of all the peoples of this planet."

We have tried the Micro Diet personally - It works.

Sponsored by Horst Pharmacy

Call 1-800-325-4489
511 N. Main Newton, Kans.
for your Manhattan advisor or 537-3840.

Moment of Truth:
Douglas vs. Holyfield
Thurs., Oct. 25, 8 p.m.
Closed Circuit TV only!
2 giant 8-foot TV's
-Fast Eddy's-
Limited seating
Tickets: $20
For more info. call
539-4323

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special: 3 - 10 in. Pizzas, 1 - Topping, 4 - Cokes, $10.00
Everyday Two-Fers: 2 - 10 in. Pizzas, 2 - Toppings, 2 - Cokes, $8.00
Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

Right Ribbon System
Smith Corona
Series H
Correctable ribbons
(dual pak ..... $6.95)
SMITH CORONA
We keep all Smith Corona ribbons in stock! Stop in and check our low prices!
Hull Business Machines 715 N. 12th 539-1413

Limited Edition
—Exclusive—
Eat 'Em Up
T-Shirts

Only $10.99 OR FREE*

EAT 'EM UP

Show your support, get your Eat 'Em Up T-Shirt today at Brentwood.

*Get your T-Shirt FREE when you make other purchases at Brentwood—it's EASY.
SPEND $50 → get T for 6.99
SPEND $75 → get T for 5.00
SPEND $100 → get T for FREE!!

Hours: Mon.-Fri. 10-6, Thurs. 10-8, Sat. 10-6, Sun. 1-5

BRENTWOOD FOR MEN & WOMEN
700 N. Manhattan Ave. Manhattan, KS. 66502 Ph. 539-1414

IT'S NOT TOO LATE
to get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple.
OCT. 26 IS THE FINAL DAY
If you live off campus or missed the scheduled time for your sorority, fraternity or residence hall, you may still get your picture taken from now until Friday, Oct. 26. Don't wait until it's too late. Make an appointment today!
Call 532-7808
Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.
Location: K-State Union 209
Sitting Fee: $4
(Receipt must be shown if this was paid at registration.)
1991 ROYAL PURPLE

McCAIN
Kathleen ni Houlihan's Sons and Daughters
Scenes from the 20th Century Irish Theatre
Actors from the London Stage
Thursday, October 25, 8 p.m.
Brian Friel's Faith Healer, a scintillating tale of a traveling medicine man, headlines an evening that probes the treasure trove of Irish theatre. Join five British players as they explore Sean O'Casey's Plough and the Stars and Red Roses for Me and J.M. Synge's Playboy of the Western World and Riders to the Sea.
No leprechauns or shamrocks here! Just some of the most exciting, passionate, comical, hopeful, exasperating, and engaging theatre in the English language.
General Public: $12
Senior Citizens: $10
Students/Children: $6

McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays.
McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

EDITORIALS

Gulf crisis solution calls for larger perspective

The implications of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait are starting to surface throughout the Middle East. The aggressive actions of Iraqi president Saddam Hussein have further complicated some of the long-standing problems that plague the region.

Take, for example, the Arab-Israeli conflict. For more than 45 years, the Arabs and the Israelis have been unable to settle their political and territorial differences. The intifada, the Palestinian uprising, has been going on for nearly three years.

Now, the resolution of the Arab-Israeli conflict is being linked to the invasion of Kuwait. Part of the reason for this linkage lies with Saddam Hussein. He has, in the interest of Arab nationalism, supported the Palestinian cause and the Palestine Liberation Organization. But so have other Arab countries that are now lined up to put Hussein back in his place.

The United States and other western governments have hinted they would seriously look into solutions to the Palestinian issue if Hussein's venture into Kuwait ends without a war. The plan is designed to offer Hussein a face-saving exit from Kuwait.

The United States is the power that holds the multinational forces in the Persian Gulf together. It is also the power that can force the Israeli government to the negotiating table with the Palestinians. Continuing U.S. support for Israel while strengthening ties with key Arab countries was almost possible — until last week, when Israeli police and soldiers opened fire on Palestinians protesters gathered at the Haram al-Sharif, also known as the Temple Mount, killing 21 Palestinians.

All 15 members of the U.N. Security Council condemned the massacre, and the vote raised the stakes a little higher for the United States. For the United States, condemnation of the massacre was a test of its bonds with Arab countries supporting Operation Desert Shield. It showed how far the United States was willing to go in support of its Arab allies.

Connecting a solution to the Arab-Israeli conflict with an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait might have worked if the Israelis had been willing to back it up. Linkage also demonstrates the need for a comprehensive U.S. policy toward the Middle East, rather than one that shifts from trouble spot to trouble spot.

Other problems include the civil war in Lebanon, terrorism and a conflict between Syria and Iraq. These problems, along with the invasion of Kuwait and the intifada, should be viewed as symptoms of a larger, more complicated issue that is quickly reaching crisis levels.

Peace in the Middle East will not come as a result of Operation Desert Shield. A successful resolution to the situation needs to have a larger perspective, regionally and globally.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Ellen Dayton
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, David Frese, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel,
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koel
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little, Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff, Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

Student Publications Staff

DIRECTOR/NEWS ADVISER ..... Ron Johnson
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR/ADVERTISING DIRECTOR ..... Gloria Freeland
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR ..... Linda Puntney
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Ann Foster
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE ..... Jackie Harmon
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Linda Weatherly
OFFICE MANAGER ..... Pat Hudgins
ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT ..... Connie Fulkerson
NEWS PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Carla Jones
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Wanda Haynie
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS ..... Tammi Landis, Dana Franklin, Chris Tucker, Britt Owen, Deanna Adams
OFFICE STAFF ..... Shanta Bailey, Matt FitzGerald, Christa South
CARRIERS ..... Joe Cook, Minda Dowdy, John Fulkerson, Norm LeComte, James Seymore

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged and are given the highest priority.

Letters should be kept as brief as possible, preferably under 300 words. All letters are subject to editing for space, style and taste.

SEND SUBMISSIONS to the Collegian in Kedzie 116. Students will be asked to show their I.D. card upon submission when done in Kedzie 116.

Blond option pressing

Jana Leep

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

I have prepared a summary for you of key points that women must address and internalize if we are to become New Women. You wonder how this knowledge is within my reach. I know these things because I read "New Woman." Yes, this is an actual magazine. Perhaps I am not Cosmopolitan, and not even in Vogue, nor deserving of much Glamour, but that doesn't matter because I am a New Woman.

I may not have figured myself out, but I do know what I should and should not do to myself in order to fufill the New Woman requirements. I have found inspiration from within the pages of the October and November issues of "New Woman." So allow me now to share this womanly wisdom straight from the horse's mouth.

"Why men cheat?" The question of the day. The headline of a most informative article. As "New Woman" states, "A man cheats for a lot of reasons" ... (let's hope so) ... "Understanding why won't excuse him, but it can enrich your bond" ... (How can that enrich a bond? Please, "New Woman," tell me more).

And along a similar theme, "Mending broken ties," an article that asks each of you New Men to tell "your wife about an affair she would never have suspected ... (for it) can be seen as a request for closeness and for understanding."

Yes, this is it. Forgiveness. Sex with other women is actually a call for mutual affection, intimacy and commitment. I never would have thought of this without "New Woman." Men do have strange ways of expressing their emotions, don't they? Why did I not think of this earlier? It is so obvious.

And "Loving the Moody Man." What a great article. OH MY GOD!!! Get this girls. "Everyone has bad days. But if he's using his moodiness as a power ploy — and if you think you really love him — you can benefit from learning how to avoid being tossed by the ups and downs of his whims." And I thought that his power plays meant he didn't respect me or love me. Wow.

What is especially cool about this article is that the Marlboro Man endorses the message, looking out from the page, cigarette slipped under the top lip, eyes glazed in cold, uninteresting sex appeal. We women know we would just do anything to make him blink. What a challenge this magazine presents to New Women — to accommodate ourselves to a moody man, to love that moody man no matter what, to welcome his power trip and to take it like a man.

And then, have you ever wondered what he is really saying when he says, "I like you in that." It is so egalitarian of "New Woman" to include the male point of view on such a pivotal question in male-female relationships: "What is he really saying when he comments on the way you dress?" But what if wearing what he likes means wearing nothing at all? I don't understand how "New Woman" could have overlooked this dilemma.

Well, never fear, "New Woman" is here with a survey that answers all the questions we New Women ponder as we put on our pantyhose. "Who is the 1990's woman? What makes her happy? What makes her feel feminine? And what kind of man does she admire today, as compared to 20 years ago?" Isn't it wonderful that equality has brought women so close together, so bonded, so that we can all be grouped under one personal pronoun. That we don't even need to think of ourselves as individuals but as one big she-woman.

Guess what? Ninety-seven percent of women surveyed said that they feel feminine when they like how they look. And 89 percent of men surveyed said that they feel masculine when they feel confident. Thank God for cosmetics, hair spray, surgery, aerobics, and diets — how could we women feel feminine without them? And thank God for "New Woman," for without its direction, I would never have understood the tender "moody man syndrome." Now that I know he is just feeling confident, I can no longer think of sabotaging his right to be masculine.

The most "inciteful" article that "New Woman" has to offer is boldly titled, "Blond Ambition." The author shares the self-discoveries that emerged from her life as she went lighter and lighter. The author really makes a case for becoming blond. Get this: "The other addictive and seductive part of being a blond is that people automatically assume blonds are on the dumb side, so they tend to think of you as a supergenius if you're the least bit intelligent."

What a ploy. Perhaps this blond option could pay off.

The author works to dispel a number of myths that surround blonde bombshells, that prevent other women from doing the blond thing. For instance, did you know that your hair does not fall out from bleaching? It only breaks an inch above the root. (Phew, I feel better. I am now more inclined toward the blond option than I ever have been).

But the "Blond Ambition" article provides more than just an impetus for the bleaching of hair for the sake of self-discovery. The article contains a message about how women feel about themselves, about how New Women feel about themselves:

"I suppose the truth of the matter is that people ultimately react to the way your hair color makes you feel."

Wow.

LETTERS

Discretion needed

Editor,

This is in reference to Steve Franzen's article in Monday's paper about the Topeka man who was killed in a traffic accident Sunday. I suggest that he use more discretion in writing his news stories and the details to be included.

Two paragraphs irritated me. The first explained how "as police moved the car, a piece of the man's skin was still lodged in the Mustang's cracked windshield." The other said that after police had secured the area and the ambulance and family had left the scene, "all that remained was the idling truck, a lone shoe 30 feet behind the trailer and a pool of blood."

Is this type of detail necessary and/or appropriate for a story in a newspaper? I am not naive to the fact that these details exist, but are they needed in the reporting of this tragedy? I'm sorry, but I think the facts could have been presented without mentioning what parts of the fatality victim remained on the vehicle afterwards.

It comes down to a matter of taste, and I found this in bad taste. I am not advocating censorship, just the use of common sense and discretion. I would hate to think that our society's morals have dwindled to the point that newspapers are competing with the current horror novel on who present gore more graphically. Anyone who likes to read such details about a tragic loss of human life is a sick individual.

Casey E. Dodd
junior in business management

All diversity vital

Editor,

I agree with the main point Lowell Bliss makes in his Oct. 18 letter to the editor in the Collegian, that is, "You are someone who has a defined standard of taste and morality, and you have the freedom to live by that standard and to argue for it." Absolutely. I want to point out, however, that Bliss's apparently open-minded argument conceals what's known in political circles as a "hidden agenda," which in turn calls into question a good deal more than one's right to accept or reject an alternative lifestyle.

Bliss objects to the participation of the Bisexual and Gay and Lesbian Organization in Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week, a time set aside as a celebration of diversity. He argues: "It is a shrewd, but false, move to link their lifestyle to issues of racial discrimination." False, because sexual preference — as opposed to race — is a matter of choice, "by which I mean the homosexual chooses to identify with and act upon those homosexual urges which all of us could, at times, experience."

Obviously, by the same definition, heterosexuality is also a matter of choice, "inherently a matter of taste and/or morality" — as is any other lifestyle or identity which involves an element of active volition. So as long as we're at it, we may as well replace the term homosexual with Republican, feminist, Christian or skinhead. In fact, while a person's race is biologically determined, that person's ethnicity is at least as much a matter of active engagement in a culture — of identity, morality, practice, and politics — as a heterosexual or homosexual lifestyle. Otherwise, why should one white Kansas community identify itself as Catholic and German and affirm those values, while another white community identifies itself as Swedish and Lutheran? Of course, we're under no obligation to defend and affirm an identity or lifestyle with which we disagree. I only wonder why Bliss chose to single out sexual identity and sexual lifestyle when so many other alternatives — according to his own definition — should present themselves.

Racial/Ethnic Harmony Week is promoted as a celebration of diversity. In the long run, it may confront us with the question of whether we should, or whether we even can, celebrate human diversity. If we answer "yes" to that question — and put on the air of self-righteousness which our answer confers — then we need to bear in mind that a celebration of diversity becomes just a little absurd when we start to quibble over which kind of diversity we should celebrate. Bliss's letter is effectively argued and sometimes enlightening. His final point is sound, but in the end he only manages to convince me that a narrow-minded moralist who's taken Composition II is still a narrow-minded moralist.

George Rueckert graduate in English

Article nauseating

Editor,

On Monday morning, I was waking up to my bowl of Fruit Loops and the Collegian when my attention was brought to the headline and article "Topeka man killed in traffic accident." I read on as I shoveled my breakfast hastily into my mouth. I came to the ninth paragraph when I was overtaken with nausea. It wasn't rotten milk or old Fruit Loops that brought this feeling on; it was the unnecessary, graphic description of "a piece of the man's skin was still lodged in the Mustang's cracked windshield." This Geraldo Rivera description caused undue nausea in several persons' stomachs. It was a description meant for a Stephen King novel.

I wish that the news editor would have been more cautious of this and other graphic descriptions so the grieving family members of the victim and the driver himself were not hit with such vivid, unnecessary memories of this tragic incident. Let us use this as an example of how not to glorify or sensationalize the tragic.

Jeffrey D. Norling
sophomore in animal science and industries

Expansion can wait

Editor,

I'm concerned about last week's article "Senators asked to consider Rec Complex referendum." According to the article, a Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex "task force" found that 72 percent of the student body is in favor of a tuition increase for the Rec Complex expansion. What I would like to know is where did they find this 72 percent? Did they go into the weight room on a Friday night and conduct their survey?

Raydon Robel, Rec Complex director, wants to spend $8.5 million to improve the Rec Complex. Has he forgotten that Farrell Library is the worst in the Big Eight? Was he affected by any classes dropped from the line schedule? Maybe he doesn't know about the lack of funding for the campus police.

I would love to see our Rec Complex improved. Yet, when there are so many other needs our University has, I believe that it would be stupid to spend more money on an unneeded expansion.

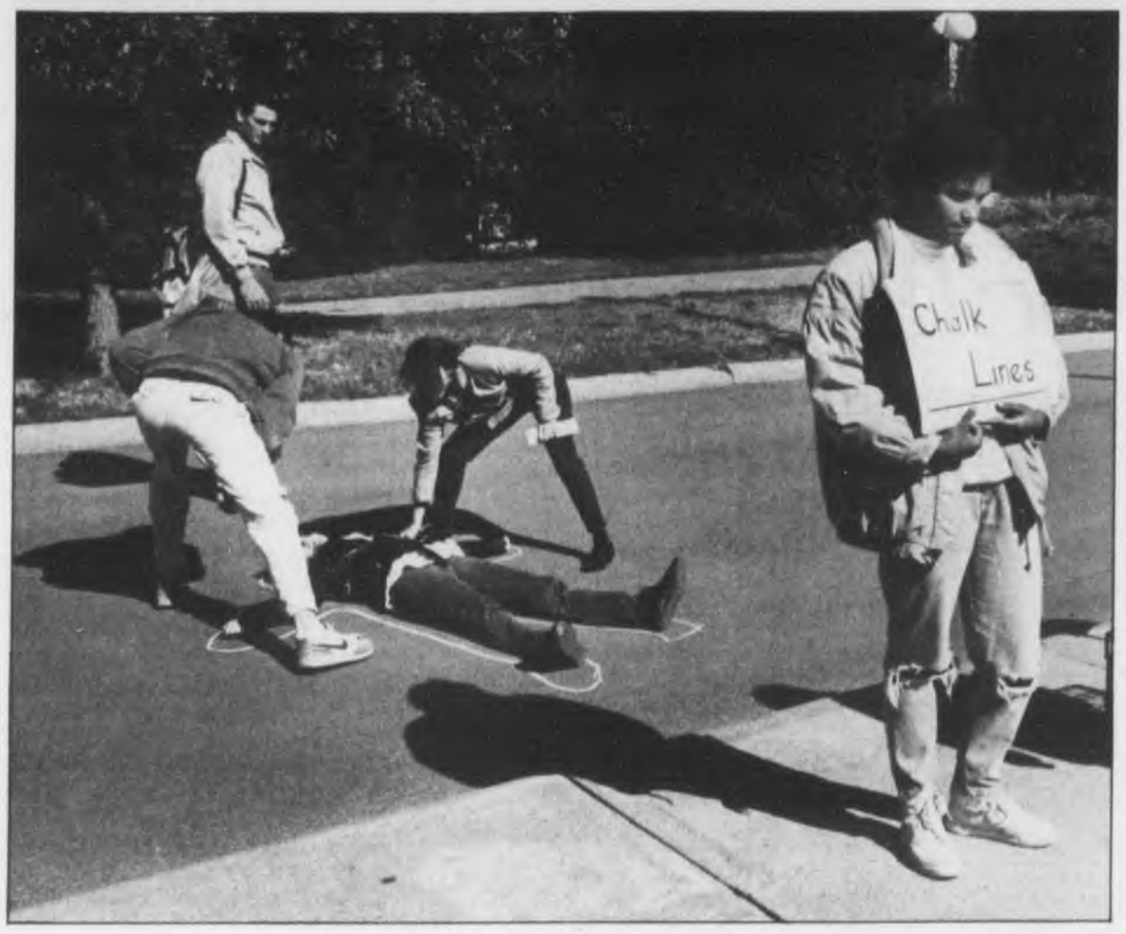
Shawn Kitchen
sophomore in history and pre-law

Column remarkable

Editor,

Please express my congratulations to Dwayne Lively for his "Government shutdown" column. His talent for cynical thought and trivialization of major issues is quite remarkable.

Unfortunately, the current budget crisis will not be solved by Lively's chatter. Like many of the Congressmen debating the budget, Lively seems more interested in criticizing others than finding real solutions. After asking "If the U.S. government shuts down, how would we be able to tell?" he proceeds to question the need for most of the federal government. The FDA, DEA and NASA are each mistake-ridden, so he implies we would not miss their absence. American foreign policy, the CIA and the armed forces conflict with his political views, so they are also considered to have dubious value. Even the White House and both houses of Congress fail to escape suspicion; Lively is not sure if they contain "essential personnel."



Finally, he asks the reader if closing down the entire government (apparently permanently) is "necessarily such a bad idea," and implies the only result would be less taxes to pay.

I realize that much of the column was not meant to be taken seriously. However, questioning the necessity for a federal government and trivializing the current budget crisis is a bit irresponsible. There are more than a few people in this state who would "be able to tell" if the federal government shut down. The wheat farmer who expects the USDA to guarantee a market for his grain, for example, or the engineer in Wichita designing planes for the Air Force, the unemployed parent dependent on food stamps would notice the absence, as would the retired couple waiting for a social security check. There might even be a few Manhattan businessmen who would miss the flow of federal dollars from Fort Riley.

All of these products of government — farm programs, welfare, military contracts and bases, Social Security — are currently jeopardized by the budget crisis and the federal treasury's increasingly weak financial status. It is hard to understand how anyone could suggest this is a trivial matter. The future of our country, state and a many K-State graduates will be determined by the solutions (or lack of them) which Washington applies to the current crisis.

There is no point in questioning the importance of the federal government or the programs which it implements. What we need now are long-term solutions to the budget crisis. It is difficult to determine what those solutions might be, but they certainly can not be found in the "Goverment shut-down" column.

Marion Schlatter
freshman in engineering

Gary Lytle/Staff

Every three minutes

Members of the Guerilla Theater perform an anti-rape skit Monday at Union Plaza. The performers drew chalk outlines to represent the rape cases reported by women every three minutes in the United States.

INXS remains consistent with latest recording of 'X'

Diversity of styles produces hits for rock group

COLLEGIAN Report Card
"INXS - X"
B

By Heather Anderson
Collegian Reviewer

Like the saying goes, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

If you liked INXS's past two albums, "Listen Like Thieves" and "Kick," chances are you'll like their latest album, "X."

Most albums can be described as sounding like something. This one sounds like, well, INXS.

It's a great combination of funk, blues, rock and new wave. Best of all, it has a great beat and you can dance to it.

This album has a bit more acoustic guitar and blues harmonica than previous albums. This is apparent when comparing the recent release "Suicide Blonde" to previous slick chart-toppers "Need You Tonight" and "Devil Inside."

"Suicide" is a good example of an intelligent having-sex-with-a-blonde-chick theme, if that is possible. But there are definitely other tracks on the album that deserve more attention.

Following "Suicide" on side one is a great song about escaping from the sad state of the world. "Disappear" is sure to be a hit, featuring short, meaningful phrases in the true INXS style.

Here's a sample: "Words are healing/Sweet anticipation/Making spells/As the shadows close in/Fall across all out our yesterdays/You're so fine/Lose my mind/And the world seems to disappear/All the problems/All the fears/And the world seems to disappear."

The pulsating beat of "Lately" is hypnotic. It's interesting how the strong bass line and eerie keyboards seem at home in this rock tune.

The lyrics fit the description as well: "Yeah lately/You look around/You're wondering what you're seeing/What you're doing/The taste of your freedom/Was sweeter than love/'Cause you never had the chance to live/Your blue sky calls/To seduce and bewitch/And give you the wings of your fate."

"Who Pays the Price" features great blues guitar and harmonica solos by blues artist Charlie Musselwhite. This is another good combination of cool sounds with thought-provoking lyrics.

Musselwhite also contributes in the track "On My Way." This is another sex-inspired track that only INXS can get away with.

Any other band would look foolish singing these lyrics: "Blood's getting hotter/Thinking about your hips/I feel all the hunger/The minute you turn away/I think it's getting better/But I can't wait another day/I'm on my way." Somehow this song sounds much more intelligent than it reads.

In all, "X" is an album with 11 different but consistently strong songs. None of them, however, jump out as exceptional.

There's no reason for anyone who doesn't like INXS to listen to this album. It's not going to attract any new fans or break any new ground. It's just consistent with the band's winning formula.

Department hires new geologist

She came with a thermal ionization mass spectrometer lab

By Rob Batchman
Collegian Reporter

The Department of Geology has acquired a new professor and lab, all at once.

Lois Jones, professor of geology arrived recently from Ponca City, Okla., bringing with her the geology department's newest lab, a thermal ionization mass spectrometer.

Jones, who has worked with Conoco Inc. for the last 13 years, said she was ready to come to K-State.

"Conoco's exploration programs were changing so that the facilities of my lab weren't being used," Jones said. "Rather than just put the equipment into storage, they decided they would like to give it to a university. I got to pick the school, and I said I would like to go with the equipment."

She said she got in touch with a few schools she was interested in, and out of those, K-State showed the most enthusiasm for acquiring the lab.

Jones is in charge of the mass spectrometer lab and is also teaching physical geology this semester.

The thermal ionization mass spectrometer measures isotope composition of given elements. Those measurements are used in order to determine the age of rock and minerals and trace various natural processes.

"This machine will analyze samples at a much greater rate than the old machine," Jones said. "The old machine might take one or two days to get one bit of data — now we can do it overnight."

"We get a lot more information, of a lot better quality, in a shorter length of time," she said.

Joe Graf, head of the geology department, said the department was enthusiastic about Jones' move to K-State.

"I think it's really an exciting opportunity for our program, the chance to get a first-rate researcher who is also an excellent teacher, and at the same time to upgrade our equipment capabilities," he said.

Some applications of the mass spectrometer will be to find the ages of various rock formations, as a groundwater tracer, and use in waste-site management.

Uses of the mass spectrometer should even reach into other departments on campus, Graf said.

Fee retains ticket price at lower cost

Extra cash helps avoid inflation

By Erika Parker
Collegian Reporter

The fine arts/athletic fee might have saved students a few dollars on their basketball tickets.

Instead of increasing prices due to inflation, the tickets were sold at the same price as last year — $5 per game — and will remain at $5 for the first three years of the fee.

Steve Miller, athletic director, said the tickets would have increased in price this year if the fine arts/athletic fee wasn't implemented.

He declined to say how much prices would have increased.

"Ticket prices would have had to go up to meet the costs of inflation and other things," Miller said.

Also less expensive to students this year will be the price of volleyball, women's basketball and baseball tickets, which were $10, $10, and $12 respectively, per season last year, said Carol Adolph at the ticket office.

This year, tickets to these events are free to any student with an ID card. These sports divide 40 percent of the funds generated from the athletic fee.

The football program receives 30 percent, and the basketball program receives 10 percent of the athletic fee.

Another 10 percent goes toward academic counseling and tutorial services, and the last 10 percent goes toward drug testing and drug education.

Football tickets will remain at $7 per game during the first three years of the athletic fee.

Based on the 20th-day enrollment figures, $180,245 was generated by the athletic fee this semester, said Sally Routson, coordinator of student activities.

In total, the fine arts/athletic fee generated $312,418.05 this semester.

Next semester's fee revenues are expected to reach about $166,730, she said.

This means that the basketball program will probably receive $34,697.50 from one year's fee revenues, she said.

Full-time students paid $10 this semester for the athletic fee and $7.40 for the fine arts fee. Part-time students paid $5 and $3.25, respectively.

Music department faculty perform in recital featuring trumpet player

By Heather Anderson
Collegian Reviewer

Although he is an experienced conductor and musician, Gary Mortenson says the the thought of performing his own trumpet recital makes him nervous.

"They say as you get older, you can't learn to make the butterflies go away," he said. "You just teach them to fly in formation."

Mortenson, an assistant professor of music, will perform at 8 p.m. Wednesday in All Faiths Chapel. Admission is free for the performance, which is part of the Faculty Recital Series.

The concerto will be performed in antiphonal style, which is basically an echoing duet, Mortenson said. He will be assisted by Craig Parker, associate professor of music, who will complete the trumpet duet, and organist Mary Ellen Sutton, professor of music.

The recital will open with "Concerto for Two Trumpets and Organ" by Antonio Vivaldi. Berthold Hummel's "Sonatine" is second, followed by William Schmidt's "Turkish Lady," a theme-and-variations of an old whaling song.

The program will conclude with Fisher Tull's "Three Bagatelles" and "Divertimento" by Boris Bacher.

Trombonist Jack Flouer, professor of music, and pianist William Wingfield, assistant instructor of music, will assist Mortenson on the final piece. Each performer will play as a soloist.

Mortenson recently conducted the K-State Trumpet Ensemble before the 1990 International Trumpet Guild Conference. During the summer, he performed as the principal trumpet in the Blue Lakes Fine Arts Camp Festival Orchestra in Twin Lakes, Mich.

Most performing faculty give recitals each year, Sutton said. She will give her own recital next semester.

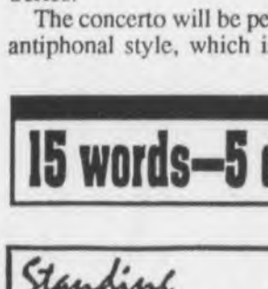
Sutton said the faculty recitals have academic and personal advantages.

"It's an important aspect of our creative work," she said. "In order to be a good teacher, we need to be continually learning new music and performing to better teach our students.

"It's important for students to hear professional performers. It's an important part of the educational process outside of the classroom," she said.

"And of course, we're in this because we love it," Sutton said. "If we didn't love to perform, we would have chosen another profession."

15 words–5 days–$5.50 KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN ClassADS



Standing Room Only
$59.99
Dale
Fudge or Tan
Dexter USA
1222 Moro
Aggieville
Manhattan

HUNAM Restaurant & Lounge
Open 7 Days
Mini-Lunch Buffet
$4.50
11:30-2 M-F
1304 Westloop
539-8888 or 539-0888
We Deliver

MOTORCYCLE SUPPLY
Soft Saddle Bags $69.95
Tank Bag $59.95
Motorcycle Cover $45.00
Full Vetter Helmet $60.00
Cargo Net $4.00
Shoei & Bieffe Face Shields
Winter Gloves
776-6177
OPEN Mon.-Sat. 9:30-6:30
1221 Moro on alley Aggieville

UNITED ARTISTS Theatres
$3.50 ALL SHOWS BEFORE 6:00 P.M.
SETH CHILDS 6 776-9886
Seth Childs at Farm Bureau Rd.
Tuesday Bargain Day All Seats All Day All Movies $3.00 Admission
Quigley Down Under (PG-13) Daily 7 & 9:30
Marked For Death (R) Daily 7:10 & 9:25
Ghost (PG-13) Daily 6:50 & 9:25
Goodfellas (R) Daily 6:40 & 9:30
Memphis Belle (PG-13) Daily 7:15 & 9:20
Postcards From The Edge (R) Daily 7:05 & 9:20

McCAIN
As You Like It
Actors from the London Stage
Saturday, October 27, 8 p.m.
Explore the cruel reality of life at court and the idyllic beauty of life in the Forest of Arden. See five top-notch British players who've performed with such troupes as the Royal Shakespeare Company, the Royal National Theatre, and the BBC Shakespeare Series play multiple roles in this splendid comedy of love. Let your imagination set the stage as the actors bring to life Shakespeare's majestic and moving words.
"The Elizabethans would have understood and appreciated such imaginative stage work. How lucky for us to be able to experience it." (The Boston Herald)
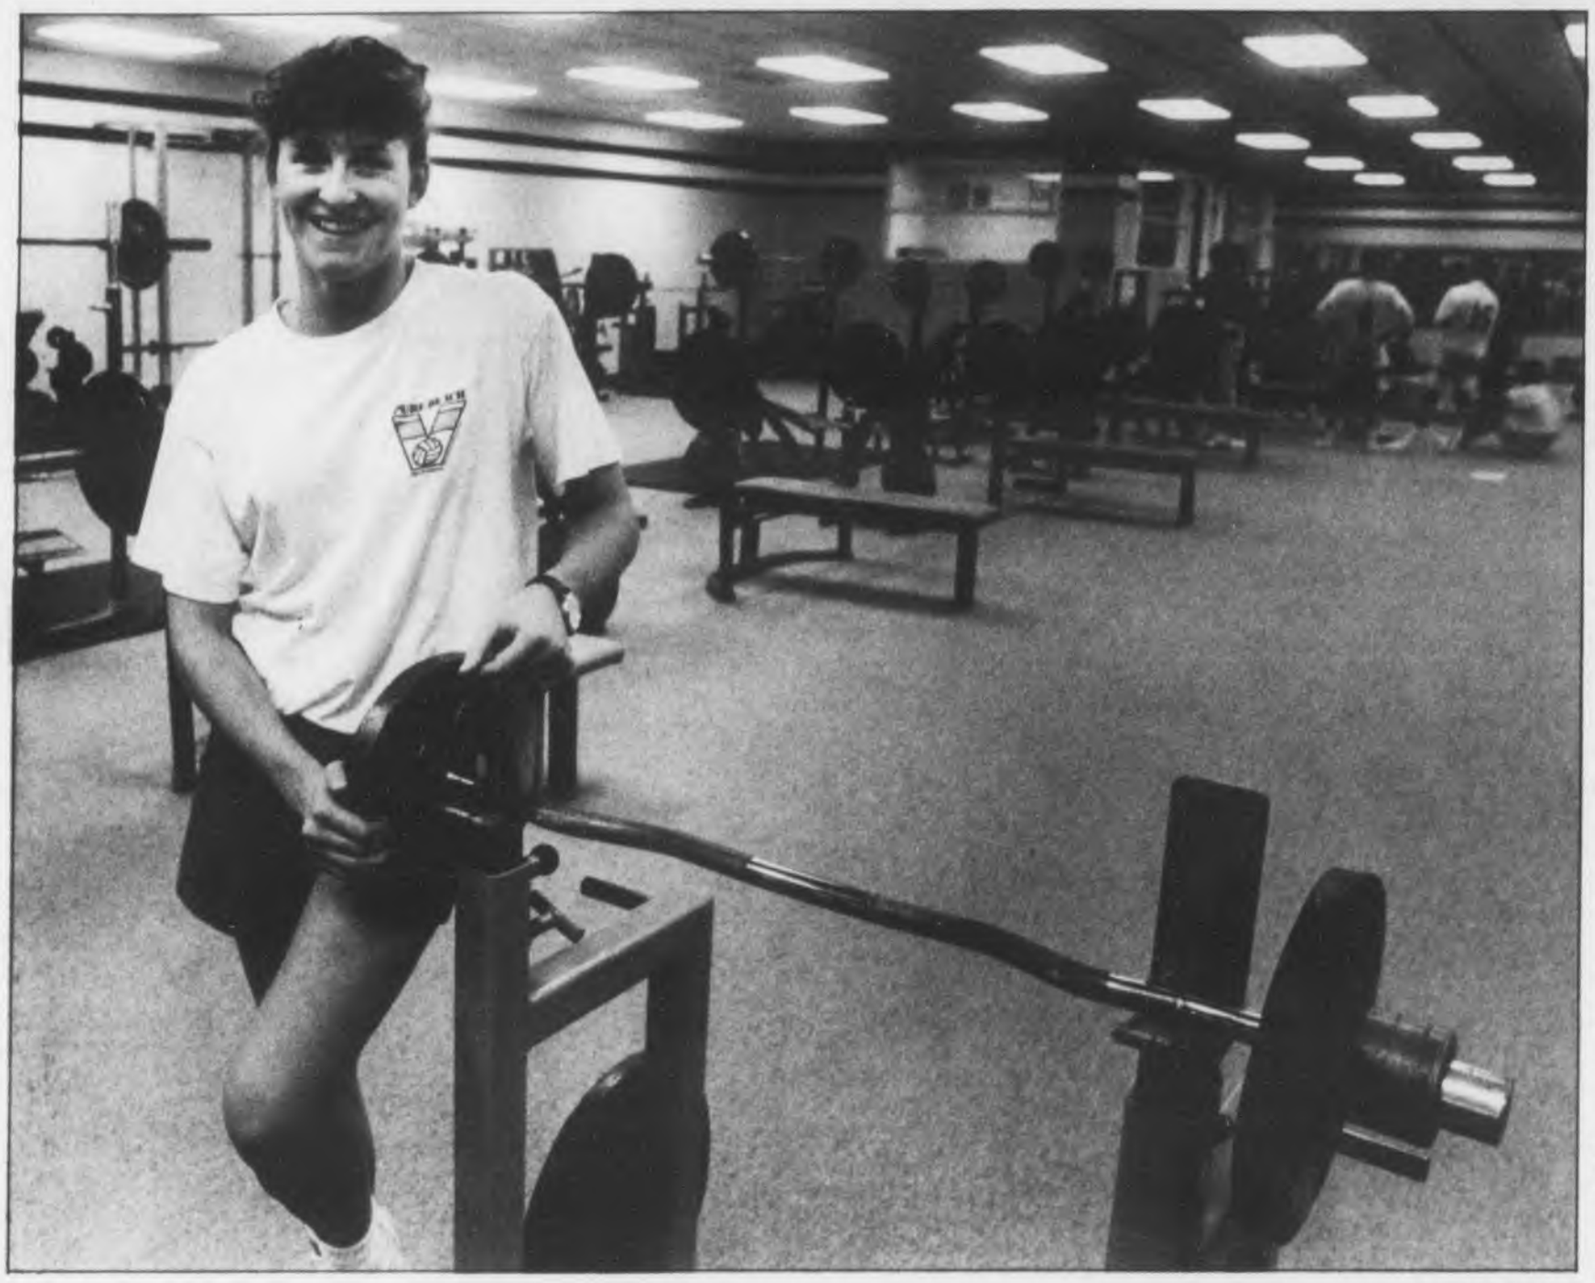
General Public: $12
Senior Citizens: $10
Students/Children: $6
McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays and from 3 p.m. day of performance.
McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.



BUSHWACKERS THE FUNDRINKERY
Comedy Invasion
Mon., Tues., & Wednesday
Greg Travis
Rodney Dangerfield's HBO Special
18 to enter, 21 to drink
Before 5 p.m. 539-4321
Call for Reservations
531 N. Manhattan
After 5 p.m. 539-9727

Arts & Science Council Elections
Are You Interested In The College of Arts & Sciences or Student Government? Arts & Science Council Applications are now available in Eisenhower 117. Applications due back in Eisenhower Friday, Oct. 26 by 5 p.m.
•Vote in the Union Oct. 31, 9-5

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS

Roberts returns to volleyball in style

David Mayes/Staff

Volleyball player Valery Roberts has included weight training as part of the regimen that has made her one of the top players in the Big Eight Conference this season. Roberts returned to volleyball after a short layoff at the urging of a former K-State student assistant.

By Russ Ewy
Sports Reporter

After giving up volleyball two years ago, senior middle hitter Valery Roberts returned to become one of the Big Eight's top hitters.

The Buhler native earned Big Eight Player-of-the-Week honors last week by hitting .328 with 15 kills, 38 attacks, 12 digs and six blocks in two matches, but Roberts didn't plan on playing volleyball after her two seasons at Hutchinson Community College.

"I stayed (at HCC) for a year and a half then came up here and just decided not to play anymore," Roberts said. "Everybody told me I should really think about it because you'll get to where you'll regret it later on."

Her separation from volleyball was somewhat short-lived after transfering to K-State during the second semester of her sophomore year.

"I was playing volleyball in intramurals on a co-rec team and Ryan Finney (then a student assistant coach) was the referee that night and he just came up to me and asked me if I had played before," Roberts said. "He told me to call (then-assistant Michael Denardo) — and I knew him — so when I did he said that he was looking for me.

"It was funny because I wasn't playing anymore, but I visited the team during the off-season and started practicing with them. I was out of it from not playing for a while, so it took me a while to get back into it."

Roberts, who's .297 hitting percentage is third in the conference, decided to stay close to home after looking at K-State in high school.

"I came up (to K-State) my senior year thinking about coming here," Roberts said. "I talked to Scott (Nelson) and Michael and was kind of interested, but then again, I didn't want to be a freshman and sit the bench. I had a volleyball, basketball and track scholarship (at HCC), so I just went there. It was a nice change from high school, but it wasn't a drastic change."

Roberts said it was hard to get started again after playing in 20 matches last year, picking up 47 kills and hitting .141.

"I had a rough time with it last year," Roberts said. "There were two or three girls ahead of me, and I had a rough time getting used to the team concepts and how much faster it is compared to high school and juco. Staying here over the summer and working out with (the team), we got really close. This year has been really super."

Against Missouri Saturday night, Roberts led the 'Cats with a .667 hitting percentage, but she hasn't been too concerned with the numbers.

"I've just been working on my blocking a lot and my back-row (play)," Roberts said. "My hitting (has just fallen into place), and I think it has to do with a lot of things. In order for the (middle hitters) to be able to hit and get a lot of kills, there has to be a perfect pass, and that comes from Julie (James) and Rhonda (Hughes). The only way I can be a threat is if (the ball) is right up there. We all just try to help each other so much."

K-State, despite a 1-5 start in the conference, is still in a position to make the Big Eight tournament, Roberts said.

"We've been (in a lot of matches), but things just didn't fall our way. (Coach Nelson) keeps telling us we're right there and we just have to take it now," Roberts said. "I think it's going to change in the second half of the Big Eight (schedule)."

New role suits runner

Goertzen likes '5th man' job, accompanying pressures

By Dan Wicker
Sports Reporter

The K-State men's cross country team has begun to make some of the long strides that Coach John Capriotti believed it was capable of making.

Before the season began, Capriotti knew that he had four strong runners in Todd Trask, David Warders, Ron Smith and Phil Byrne, but the question mark remained with the fifth scorer, the difference in a team being good or being great.

Jason Goertzen has seized the opportunity of being that fifth man and is making a strong showing. The Salina South graduate was the fifth scorer in only three meets last season, but has had sole ownership for the entire 1990 season.

"I feel pretty comfortable with this spot. It is a pretty high-pressure spot to be in," Goertzen said. "If you have four good guys, and your fifth man doesn't come through, then you don't have a team."

Goertzen seems to thrive on the pressure that is related to the fifth scorer. Like most runners, he continues to improve with the season.

"Pressure can be good or bad. I just try to get in a situation where it helps me run better and gets me more pumped up," Goertzen said. "It seems to me that the bigger the race, the better I run, which is great because I peak at the end of the year."

Goertzen is only in his second cross country season after being redshirted his freshman season. Capriotti feels that Goertzen was not convinced he could run the five-mile cross country course in his first season but that he is much more confident than last season.

"Last year, I really did not know what was going on. This year, I know the sport a little better," Goertzen said. "If I train well, I can run good in cross country, and I expect to do good."

Capriotti has said since the beginning of the season that the top five runners all need to finish within 45 seconds to one minute of each other. As the season progresses, Goertzen is gradually closing that ground.

On Oct. 13 at the Indiana Invitational, Goertzen closed the gap to only one minute and 11 seconds and showed the signs that he will be in range when K-State competes in the Big Eight championships this weekend in Lincoln, Neb.

"He ran a 26:28 on the hilly Indiana course, which was the same time he ran two weeks before at Oklahoma State. Everybody else ran 30 seconds slower, so he really ran about 30 seconds faster," Capriotti said. "He is going to be there when the time comes. I started to see that last week at Indiana."

The time to be there for Goertzen will be this weekend at the Big Eight meet. K-State has been picked in the conference coaches poll to finish third, but they could give No. 2 Kansas all the trouble they want. Kansas was ranked No. 18 in the nation, and K-State received an honorable mention after beating No. 16th-ranked Kentucky at Indiana.

"I kind of have a time goal, and I would like to be in the top 25 and in contact with the top pack more than I have in the past," Goertzen said. "Another thing is that KU has a real close pack, and I would like to get in the middle of that and break it up."

COACHES POLL

WOMENS CROSS COUNTRY

1. Villanova	14. N.C. State
2t. Brigham Young	15. Iowa
2t. Providence	16. N. Arizona
4. UC-Irvine	17. Baylor
5. Indiana	18. Washington State
6. Oregon	19. K-State
7. Georgetown	20. Yale
8. Tennessee	21. Kentucky
9. Clemson	22. Iowa State
10. Arkansas	23. William & Mary
11. Michigan	24. Weber State
12. Nebraska	25. Auburn
13. Wisconsin

Change in seasons complete as intramural volleyball opens

By Dan Wicker
Sports Reporter

It is off the gridiron and onto to the volleyball courts for the K-State intramural program.

After the all-University flag football championships were concluded last Friday with fraternity champion Tau Kappa Epsilon claiming the title over the independent champion Phi Wacka Jacka, gears switched toward volleyball.

Haymaker Penthouse and Kappa Kappa Gamma emerged as the football champions among the residence halls and women's leagues, respectively.

Participants easily make the transition, but for the intramural staff, many things must take place to make the transition a smooth one.

"There are whole lot of things going on in that two-week transition. It is really hectic," said Steve Martini, director of intramurals. "We have to finish the (football) leagues up, set up any tiebreakers and the playoffs and supervise all those games. On the other side of it, is the entry week."

There are a total of only four days between the end of the flag football season and the beginning of the volleyball, which starts tonight. Within those four days, the intramural staff finalizes the scheduling, meets with managers and officials, and gets the season underway.

> "There are whole lot of things going on in that two-week transition. It is really hectic. We have to finish the (football) leagues up, set up any tiebreakers and the playoffs and supervise all those games. On the other side of it, is the entry week.
>
> —Steve Martini
> director of intramurals

As in organizing any large event, there are problems which will arise.

"The biggest problem is the things that do not usually occur. If I had to deal with a bunch of problems on intramural football the last night, then it would cause a bunch of other problems," Martini said. "The transition is a problem because you are finishing and beginning at the same time."

The organization and planning for the intramural season starts a year in advance. The hard-core planning for volleyball starts about three weeks before football season ends and grows more intense each week, Martini said.

"It is like going to class, and the teacher just shows up and teaches it. You don't really think about what really goes into organizing an event," Martini said. "It takes more time than meets the eye."

With a change in sporting events comes a change in officials. Martini said there is a complete changeover in the officials from football to volleyball.

"They are brand new officials. We train our officials from ground zero," Martini said. "There are about 5½ to six hours of training before the season starts, and we will meet for two more hours during the season."

Hatcher, Sabo, Davis earn respect

Scott Paske
SPORTS REPORTER

For those who predicted a World Series sweep, a tip of the hat is yours to enjoy.

Now, let's be honest. How many of you fortune tellers said the Cincinnati Reds would be the team swinging the broom?

What culminated in Oakland Saturday night was not a script drafted by baseball's conservatives. In fact, the shockwaves felt by Athletics' fans after the Reds' 2-1 title-clinching victory probably rivaled those felt after last October's Bay Area earthquake.

It was truly an awesome display by the underdog.

Cincinnati pitcher Jose Rijo, with two wins over Oakland's Dave Stewart, was named the Most Valuable Player of the Series. After leading the Reds to a 7-0 win in Game 1, and retiring 20 straight batters in Saturday's win, it's difficult to argue with the selection of the Reds' right-hander.

But Cincinnati, as the great coaching cliche goes, won this title as a team.

When the Reds defeated Pittsburgh for the National League crown two weeks ago, two of Cincinnati's bullpen aces — Nasty Boys Rob Dibble and Randy Myers — were chosen as co-MVPs.

Both were good choices, considering the Pirates were unable to make a dent in any of Cincinnati's leads after Reds manager Lou Piniella pulled one of his starters. The Nasty Boys were, without question, a manager's best insurance policy this season.

But the offensive performances of left-handed hitters Paul O'Neill and Hal Morris were overlooked. They deserved chunks of the award because of their brutal treatment of Pittsburgh pitching. O'Neill hit .471 against the Pirates, while Morris batted .417.

The pair cooled off against Oakland, but a different cast of offensive characters took their places.

It's a shame that outfielders Billy Hatcher and Eric Davis and third baseman Chris Sabo won't receive anything more than World Series rings for their performances. The jewelry will probably suit each of them just fine, but these guys deserve keys to the city of Cincinnati or something of equal value.

Hatcher's bid for the MVP award succumbed to a fast ball from Stewart in the first inning of Game 4. Stewart planted a pitch on the back of Hatcher's left hand in an attempt to establish a territorial claim to the inside part of home plate. The result was a contusion that knocked Hatcher out of the game.

It didn't, however, erase Hatcher's effect on the Series. The stocky, journeyman outfielder was a huge pain in Oakland's side, setting a World Series record for consecutive hits with eight. He slapped singles, hit to the gaps with power and laid down perfectly-placed bunts.

Hatcher's ability to get on base kept Oakland pitchers working out of the stretch and kept rallies alive that resulted in key runs the first three games.

Davis joined Hatcher at the hospital during Game 4, but he also left his mark on the Series' outcome. His two-run blast off Stewart in the opener was the first punch the Reds landed against Oakland, and the flurry continued. The homer made amends for a dismal NL Championship Series in which Davis repeatedly struck out.

Sabo, who turned in several great defensive plays during the playoffs, cranked up his bat against the Athletics. His two home runs off Mike Moore in Game 3 allowed Cincinnati to establish command of the Series and backed the defending champions into a corner.

Throughout the season, Cincinnati spread the wealth when it came to game-winning heroics, outstanding pitching performances and spectacular defensive plays. While Davis was the closest thing the Reds had to a superstar, the balance that the NL West champs had was unparalleled by any major league team.

And, in the end, Cincinnati proved that a great team effort will beat a great team.

FAN FORUM

Move on

Sports Editor,

Soon we will begin a new basketball season. Many things have remained the same. We still have the campout for tickets, we still have Midnight Madness, we still have some very good players from last year's team. But there is one thing we do not have — Steve Henson.

Unfortunately, we still have to read about Henson in every story about the basketball team. Please don't misunderstand me — Henson was a good player and a great free throw shooter, but he wasn't half the player that Mitch Richmond was, and I don't recall nearly as many "Gee, we sure miss you Mitch" articles or comments after his graduation.

We have a new team this year with many new players and a new coach. But there seems to have been less focus on the new players than there has been on a former player.

Do the team a favor and quit talking about Henson in all of your basketball write-ups. That way they won't have to be victims of the "big brother" scenario (living up to expectations established by an older sibling).

Do your readers a favor by not writing about Henson so that we don't have to read that garbage. Do yourselves a favor by not writing about Henson so you have to do some real reporting and be creative.

Finally, do a young man (whom you ironically felt it necessary to mention in your write-up of Midnight Madness) named Brian Henson a favor by not writing about Steve so that people and fans don't expect him to be Steve (another example of the "big brother" scenario).

Ken Roberts

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

CLASS ADS

Kedzie 103 532-6555

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

ARE YOUR health insurance premiums continually increasing? Health conditions keeping you from getting adequate coverage? Call for more information. Billie Gallaher. 539-5676.

BEST FUNDRAISER on campus! Looking for a fraternity, sorority or student organization that would like to earn $500 to $1,000 dollars for a one week on-campus marketing project. Must be organized and hard working. Call Jeanie or Ashley, 1-800-592-2121.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE GIRL— Private room and meals this semester in exchange for assistance in small family home. Two blocks from campus— Write P.O. Box 652, Manhattan, Kansas 66502.

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193 after 5:30p.m.

CAVALIER CLUB
WEDNESDAY
$2 Pitchers
$1 Longnecks
1122 Moro 776-7726

I LOST 18 lbs. in three weeks! You too can lose weight, guaranteed! Call 776-4764.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

TONIGHT!
$1.25
32 oz. Draws
only at
BAYSTREET

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

SENIORS— FRIDAY Oct. 26 is the last day the official Royal Purple portrait photographer will be on campus. Don't miss your chance to have your portrait taken for the yearbook, and to get extras for your family, friends and potential employers. Call 532-7808 for an appointment. Walk-ins will be accepted on Oct. 26 on a first-come, first-served basis. Don't wait until it's too late!

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial. Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

2 Apartments—Furnished

RENT FREE country living in exchange for occasional assistance to wheelchair bound landlady. Some lifting. 1-494-8201.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY! Nice one-bedroom apartment close to campus and Aggieville. Heat paid. 537-4515.

QUIET, EFFICIENCY apartment, 1131 Vattier, one block from campus, new kitchen, $240 per month, lease required, beginning about Dec. 1. Call Professor McGuire 776-5682 evenings and weekends.

ROOMMATE WANTED. Washer/ dryer, $125 per month plus utilities. Near campus. Call 579-5727.

TWO-BEDROOM APARTMENT. $330 per month, utilities paid except electricity. Call 539-2017 evenings.

5 Automobile for Sale

1966 CHEVY pickup, standard transmission, strait 6, runs and looks great, $2,300 negotiable. 539-3461.

1970 PONTIAC Bonneville 455, four-door hardtop, good tires, runs well, 86,000 miles, $600. Call 539-1845.

1984 CUTLASS Ciera, blue four-door, air, power steering, AM/FM, cassette, $4,000. Call 532-3389.

1986 MERCURY Cougar, excellent condition, digital dash, AM/FM cassette, V-6 automatic. Call 532-3380.

1986 SE Turbo Coupe Sunbird hatchback, AM/FM seek stereo, manual shift, great condition. 537-2097.

7 Computers

HP 41CX, extra books, batteries, plus charger, $100. Call 539-3426 after 7p.m. Ask for Kip.

IBM— COMPUTER, printer, disks and manuals. Price negotiable. 539-3242.

NEED LETTER-QUALITY or wide carriage? DWP 220 daisy wheel printer for sale. Serial/ parallel, extra ribbons and box of paper included. 537-2143.

USED HEWLETT Packard 28S calculator. Excellent condition! Call 539-5231.

8 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such 'employment opportunity' with reasonable caution.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ATTENTION: AGGRESSIVELY expanding marketing company is looking for high quality individuals who desire excellent part-time income with possible rapid advancement into management. Send resume or letter by Oct. 31st, Box 981, Garden City, KS 67846.

BAYSTREET NEEDS waitresses, bouncers and bartenders. Apply in afternoons at Baystreet.

COORDINATOR OF Art To Stop Violence theatre project, part-time, $7.50/ hour. Proven understanding of women's issues, especially violence against women, and experience in theatre are required. Send letter of application, resume, and names and addresses of three references to: Women's Resource Center, Holton Hall 206. For more information, call 532-6444. EEO/AA Employer.

CUT EDUCATION costs— College girl— live in and do duties in family home this semester and second. This in exchange for private room and meals. Write Box 1, Collegian.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EVENING AND Daytime office and telephone sales help needed. Pleasant working conditions, hourly wage and excellent bonuses. Call 537-6163, 9a.m.—4p.m.

GRADUATE ASSISTANTSHIP, Women's Resource Center, .4 time, beginning immediately. To apply, send letter of application, resume and names and addresses of three references to: WRC, Holton Hall 206. For more information, call 532-6444. EEO/AA Employer.

HOME TYPISTS, PC users needed. $35,000 potential. Details. 1-805-687-6000, Ext. B-9701.

IMMEDIATE OPENING for a director of our dietary department. Must be a registered dietician or registry eligible. Should have menu planning, personnel development, clinical and community education skills. Competitive salary and benefits. Send resume to: Geary Community Hospital, Attn: Cathy Witt, P.O. Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441. EOE.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. CIA, U.S. Customs, DEA, etc. Now hiring. Call 1-805-687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

PLEASANT, ENERGETIC, personable. Salesperson for unique ladies apparel store. Send resume to: Spellbinders, P.O. Box 1103 by 10/26/90.

TWO NANNIES needed by Jan. 1 for two families in Brewster N.Y. Must drive, swim. Non-smoker preferred. One year commitment. Excellent living conditions plus salaries. (914)279-5963.

WORK-STUDY POSITION available immediately, 15 hours/ week, at the Women's Resource Center. Must be comfortable interacting with a variety of people. Prefer computer and other clerical skills. Call 532-6444 for an interview.

9 Food Specials

Bobby J's
Tuesdays:
TACO NACHO NIGHT
39¢ Tacos
Homemade flour
chicken or beef tacos
$1.25 margaritas
539-1571

Tuesday Special
RIB-IT NIGHT
All the BBQ Ribs, Fries and Salad Bar you can eat!
$4.95
Every Tuesday 5-8 p.m.
The CHEF Cafe
111 S. 4th
Downtown

10 Furniture to Buy or Sell

COUCH AND matching chair. Like new. Call 539-1452.

12 Houses for Rent

FOR RENT: Mobile Trailer, two-bedroom, central air, partly furnished. Phone 776-7857 or 537-9303 after 5:30p.m.

14 Lost and Found

FOUND IN the vicinity of Bluemont Hall. Very young yellow cat. Inquire 532-5579.

FOUND: KEYS in west Waters first floor. Tag says Andy. Claim in room 122.

I LOST 18 lbs. in three weeks! You too can lose weight, guaranteed! Call 776-4764.

LOST: DENIM jacket with hood, St. John's Bay. HP-325 calculator in pocket. Reward $20. 776-4997.

LOST: NFL Football on roof of Union 10/13. Possibly blown off and found Sunday or Monday. 776-6800 anytime.

15 Meetings/ Events

SPURS SOPHOMORE Honorary will meet at 6:45p.m. in Fairchild 202 in uniforms for pictures. The meeting will be at 8:30p.m. in Union 204, not at 7p.m. as previously announced.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

AFFORDABLE LIVING across the street from nice pool. 12x60 mobile home, $4,750. 539-3513 leave message.

OWN THIS 12' wide, two-bedroom, $135 monthly for 24 months. Large selection. Countryside. 539-2325.

21 Personals

We require a form of picture ID (KSU or driver's license or other) when placing a personal.

CARRIE A.— "Happy 21st Birthday" Oct. 23rd. Love, The gang at Home.

CRAIG, GOT you good, now for Steve. Love, Hans & Franz.

DANA— GOOD morning, Sunshine! Have a very Happy Birthday! —Your "Big Sis," Laura.

DAVE M.— Thanks for the Great basketball tickets! The check is in the mail.

EUGENE (EDD): Have you lost that lovin' feelin'? I hate it when that happens. I feel the need, the need for a falling star hunt. P.S. My cookies are better than yours! Darlene.

FH— SI: A year for us has now gone by, but you're still my one and only guy. Happy year anniversary. Love, B.B.

HAPPY 21ST, one week late, Sigma Nu Todd— We love you. Don't worry, the checks won't stop! Mom, Dad and Seth.

HEY, PIZZA Man, Happy 40th. Welcome to Prime Time, you're the best! The Mysterious M.

JOL— HAPPY 22nd! I hope it's a Great one! Thinking of you! Love, Karlene.

MISS SOFT Serve— Just a little note to make your day. Happy 19 from the Wolf's lair.

PUKE N Dukensteensteinster— We'll buy you fingerprints next time —Ting.

SNUGGLE PIG— On this day, 7 months ago, you entered my life. You have found a very special place in my heart, and I thank you for the wonderful memories. Think of me. Love, Pumpkin Kitty.

THE KEG party is over. I want my grey trash can back!!

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

FOR SALE— Registered Persian kittens. Shaded silver, camco and cream. AKC Sheltie puppies. 1-632-3201.

23 Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

SUFFERING FROM Abortion? Write: HeartsRestored, Box 94, Grinnell, Kansas 67738. Confidential response will follow.

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES- Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— More than just typing— we create the resume with you, so it reflects your best. Then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience in University Career Center.

COMPUTER TYPED papers. $1.25 per page. Call 539-1690.

DISSERTATIONS, THESES (APA, MLA, Turabian styles). $1.25 double. Free draft. Quality print. Betty 539-6851. Claflin.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE: $142.50/ month. One-half utilities. Rest of October rent free. Park Place Apartments. 539-8391.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted, condo, one-half block west of campus. 776-9026. Nice.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share two-bedroom across from campus. Sublease required. 539-7494.

THREE ROOMMATES wanted for four-bedroom apartment, next to campus, $145 a month, utilities included. A real bargain! Call 539-1720.

26 Stereo Equipment

CD PLAYER— Fisher, excellent condition, $85. 776-4215.

FOR SALE: Home subwoofer, 200 watts, built-in amp, crossover, volume, protector, $400. 539-3732.

27 Sports/Recreation Equipment

SAILBOARD— 10'4" transition board with rig, 5.6m2 sail, centerboard, excellent condition, $450. 776-6073 after 5p.m.

28 Sublease

FEMALE ROOMMATE for furnished house. Spring semester or now. Lots of privacy. $162.50. Amy 539-3886.

29 Tickets to Buy or Sell

FOUR KU— K-State general admission football tickets. Will sell all or in pairs. Call Gloria, 539-4915, after 5:30p.m.

M.C. HAMMER ticket for sale. 539-2372 Jennifer.

30 Travel/

SKI
LAST CHANCE! JANUARY [illegible] BREAK
STEAMBOAT from $177
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
BRECKENRIDGE from $184
JANUARY 2-9 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
VAIL/BEAVER CREEK from $247
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
9th ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS
Ski & Beach Breaks
TOLL FREE INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS— Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. Boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more. Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday— Saturday 9a.m.— 5p.m. St. Mary's Surplus Sales, St. Mary's, Kansas 1-437-2734.

33 Tutor

TUTOR: PHYSICS and chemistry. Please leave a message if I'm out. 537-0356.

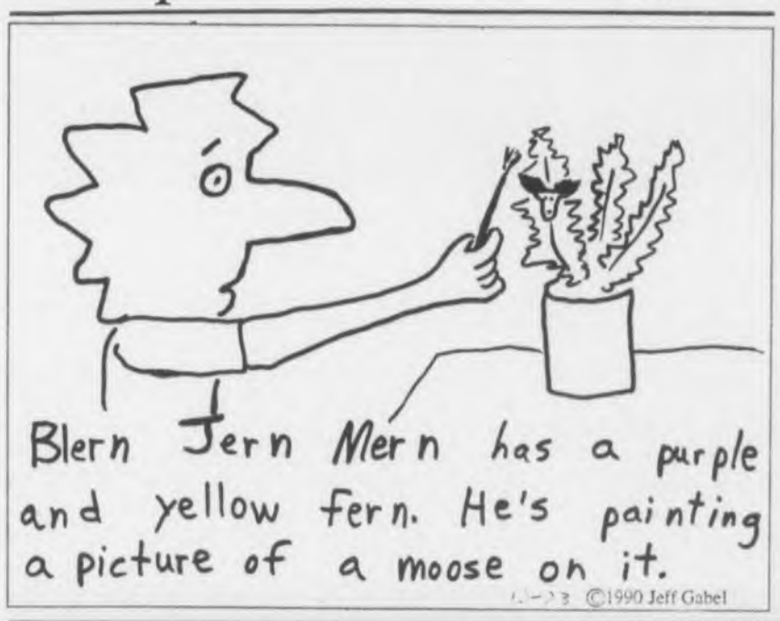
34 Wine and Beer Supplies

WINE MAKING cheap and easy. Free recipes and supply list included. Follow the instructions in this book and you too can make fine wine in your own home. Satisfaction guaranteed. Send $5 to: Excessive Endeavors, P.O. Box 10075, Columbia, MO 65205.

35 Martial Arts

KEMPO KARATE— Self Defense Kempo Karate is modern and traditional self-defense fro men and women of all ages. It blends traditional Katas with modern day self-defense against punches, kicks, grabs and holds. Training takes place in relaxed atmosphere on revolutionary padded spring floor to make injuries virturally non-existant.

36 Nanny



EXPERIENCED NANNY looking for family, full-time. For information call 776-9649, Mandy.

37 Political Personals

STAN HOERMAN, The Margin of Excellence. Stan Hoerman, Believes In It. Stan Hoerman Will Vote to Fund it. Stan Hoerman Can Work with Leadership. Stan Hoerman Needs Your Vote Nov. 6! Pd. Adv. Stan Hoerman, Bren Abbott, Treasurer.

Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Making the Grade

By Bob Berry

Jim's Journal

By Jim

Calvin and Hobbes

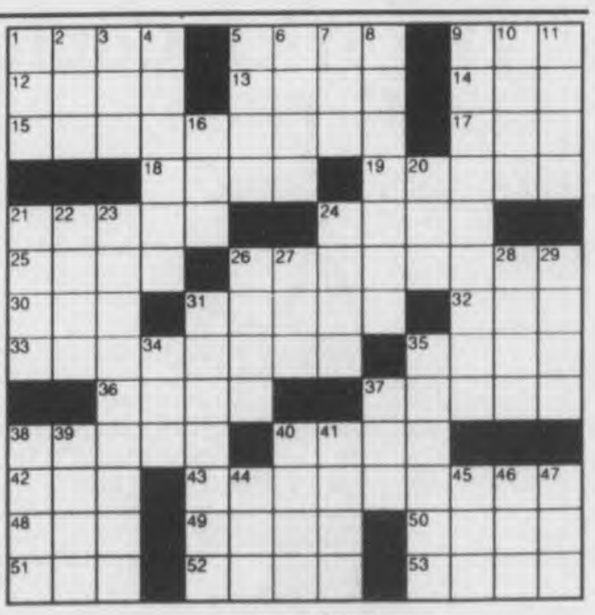
By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Chirp
5 Lovers' quarrel
9 Beaver's pride
12 Teen follower
13 Buddhist religious language
14 " — You Sincere?"
15 N.L. pitcher
17 Cistern
18 Dogs of a small breed
19 Detergent's target
21 Trainee
24 Dressed
25 Minor prophet
26 Made quiet
30 Part of a min.
31 Former Spanish port
32 Palm leaf
33 Like some invitations
35 Winged insect
36 Band on a shield
37 Sphere of action
38 Poetry's counterpart
40 River in France
42 Cover
43 N.L pitcher
48 Pindar work
49 Gem stone
50 Farm building
51 Old English rune
52 Anagram for rate
53 Discharge

DOWN
1 Cake or handle
2 Source of "I" strain?
3 Slippery one
4 Chatters idly
5 Nimble
6 Picks up the check
7 Chicken — king
8 Prickles from cold
9 N.L. pitcher
10 Ancient Syria
11 Distribute
16 "To Have and Have —"
20 Sought
21 Word after pillow or packing
22 The last word
23 N.L. pitcher
24 Lump of earth
26 Except
27 French island
28 Verve
29 Computer "food"
31 Overcoat, once
34 "Monopoly" holdings: abbr.
35 Broadway musical
37 Enzyme
38 Farm tool
39 Carnival lure
40 Gen. Bradley
41 Man or Wight
44 WWII org.
45 Energy
46 Yale man
47 Get too ripe

Solution time: 24 mins.

P	O	U	T	■	P	A	S	■	T	A	C	K
I	L	L	U	S	I	O	N	■	U	R	A	L
P	A	U	L	A	N	K	A	■	R	I	L	E
■	■	I	K	E	■	K	I	N	D	L	E	■
S	C	O	P	E	■	M	E	D	E	■	■	■
A	R	M	S	■	P	A	P	E	R	E	D	■
P	O	E	■	E	R	N	I	E	■	D	O	M
■	P	R	O	V	O	S	T	■	C	A	V	E
■	■	■	S	I	R	E	■	C	A	M	E	L
M	A	N	I	L	A	■	A	A	R	■	■	■
O	L	O	R	■	T	O	M	J	O	N	E	S
S	A	R	I	■	E	S	T	I	M	A	T	E
T	E	A	S	■	D	A	S	■	S	P	A	T

Yesterday's answer 10-23

CRYPTOQUIP

10-23

BWKZN RZ MBE WHNZY. KRZ WTNHQTE MZBKRZN WQNZSBE-KZN VHSVZY TU B EKQNP.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: OUR LOCAL BUTCHER IS IN HIS PRIME — PRIME RIBS, THAT IS.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: W equals F

Radio

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

was followed by the first song of the new format, "Rock 'n' Roll" by Led Zeppelin.

KMKF threw a party at The Spot in Aggieville to celebrate the format change. When the first song was played, the crowd danced and broke records by New Kids, M.C. Hammer and others.

Steele said the changes are an effort to better serve an audience in the age range of 18 to 34.

"The median age in this area is 22.6. We'll be playing adult music, none of that teeny-bopper stuff," he said.

Competition from a new rock format does not worry Jim Johnson, music director at KSDB-92.

"DB will keep the same audience," Johnson said. "They listen to it for diversity — that won't change."

Other local stations, however, will be touched by the change.

In fact, Steele said various DJs were hired away from other stations as part of the new program.

"We hired Jeff Wilson and Chris Taylor — KQLA's two most popular announcers," Steele said.

Steele said he is confident the new program would go over well.

"It'll change a lot of things for this community," he said.

Kasparov maintains chess lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Chess champion Garry Kasparov sustained his edge over challenger Anatoly Karpov as the two agreed to a draw Monday in the fifth game of the world chess title match.

Kasparov went into the game leading by 2½ points to Karpov's 1½ points.

When the game ended just after 10 p.m. after Karpov's 36th move, the score was 3 to 2 in Kasparov's favor.

The champion's Game 2 victory was worth a full point. The three other games were draws, worth one-half point each to the two contestants.

"Kasparov is trying to create many problems for Karpov in each game," said grand master Sergey Kudrin, of Stamford, Conn. "Even when they draw, Karpov has to work very hard for it."

Kasparov took one of his three allowed timeouts on Friday, postponing Game 5 until Monday. Karpov had used one of his timeouts a week earlier to recuperate from his Game 2 loss.

The first player to reach 12½ points in the 24-game series will win the championship. Kasparov, who dethroned Karpov in 1985, would retain his title if the match ended in a 12-12 tie.

The first 12 games are being played in New York and the remainder will be played in Lyons, France.

The winner will receive $1.7 million and the loser will get $1.3 million.

We Take Tips!
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6556

Solutions to funding discussed in debate

CAMPAIGN 1990
Kansas House

By Elvyn Jones
Staff Reporter

A candidate for the Kansas House of Representatives proposed a tuition increase as a solution to funding problems of Board of Regents' schools.

Incumbents Sheila Hochhauser, D-Manhatttan, and Katha Hurt, D-Manhattan, and their Republican challengers, Stan Hoerman and Kent Glasscock, took part in a debate sponsored by the Manhattan chapter of the League of Women Voters Monday night.

In response to a question on how to best fund higher education, Hoerman said he favored increasing in-state tuition from the present 22 percent to 30 percent of the total cost of education. Hoerman said he endorsed a similar increase for out-of-state tuition.

"Tuition for someone from New Jersy in Kansas is less than the cost of tuition in New Jersey," he said.

Both incumbents said they favor an income-tax increase for higher-income brackets to help fund education.

Hochhauser said she would add an income-tax surcharge to households with incomes of more than $100,000.

This would provide a stable, reliable revenue source for higher education, she said. The surcharge could be done quickly without restructuring the state's tax system.

Hurt said that she would also support a higher income tax for households with incomes of more than $100,000, but she said she would also agree to go as low as $70,000 if needed to bring in the desired revenue.

Money could also come from the 3.7 percent of state's general fund now being transfered for new highway construction, Hurt said.

Glasscock said he favored funding the Margin of Excellence through a cigarette tax. He said he would also ensure the regents' base budget was funded from the state's general fund.

The candidates expanded on their tax proposals when asked how the state's tax system could be made fair, equitable and also reduce the property-tax burden.

"I believe income tax is the fairest and best way to raise revenue," Hochhauser said.

She said states that have primarily relied on income tax as a source of revenue face fewer up-and-down cycles in revenue collection, such as the Kansas Legislature revenue shortfall of the 1990 session.

Hochhauser said she would support the inclusion of two new tax brackets for individuals making more than $100,000 a year and a corporate income tax of those corporations with earnings of more than $1,000,000.

In addition to supporting an tax increase on the higher-income brackets, Hurt said she might support a sales tax if it was structured in such a way as to make it progressive. A progressive sales tax would eliminate the sales tax on food and have a higher scale for taxing luxury goods and services, she said.

Hoerman said Kansas ranks in the top third of states that rely on property tax and is in the lower third that rely on sales taxes. He said a poll of the voters in his district showed more than 50 percent would favor an increase in sales taxes.

Hochhauser questioned the reliability of Hoerman's poll. She said he received 76 responses to the questionaire he sent to 3,500 households in the district.

Hochhauser said she didn't feel that Hoerman had enough responses for an accurate representation.

Hoerman said he now has 125 responses to the poll.

Glasscock said he would create a more equitable tax policy by supporting a 1-percent sales-tax increase and by looking at user fees and excise taxes.

When asked if they would make highways or higher education a priority in the budget, Hochhauser and Hurt said their records show they voted against the $2.7 billion highway bill because they said it would reduce the chances for funding the third year of the MOE.

Glasscock said he would support deferring the highway construction bill one or two years if the money was used for higher education.

Hoerman said he would look at cutting the budget of the Department of Social and Rehabitational Services before cutting either highway or higher education.

Both Hochhauser and Hurt said they supported the creation of a legislative task force to look into the operations of the SRS and make recommendations for steamlining and consolidating its services.

"We need to pare down the administrative bureaucracy in SRS and make sure the dollars saved go into programs and program functions and not administrative cost," Hochhauser said.

Glasscock said he also supported the task force. He said the top priority of the SRS should be for children's programs that had the best chance to correct problems before they grow.

Hoerman said Kansas had to compare their programs to those of surrounding states. He said Kansas SRS programs are attracting the wrong kind of people to Kansas.

"We are attracting people who know the opportunities in Kansas for public assistance," Hoerman said.

Candidates' debate devoid of verbal jabs

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — A debate by the candidates for state treasurer Monday was calm and free of the verbal barbs that characterized their other joint appearances.

Shawnee County Commissioner Eric Rucker, the Republican candidate, said he and his Democratic opponent, Sally Thompson, both were qualified to hold the office.

Absent from the debate taped at the studios of KTKA-TV, channel 49, were references to Thompson's tenure as former president of a failed Topeka savings and loan company. The debate will be aired at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Rucker emphasized his government background, and the experience he acquired developing rules and regulations for investing idle Shawnee County funds.

"I've had an opportunity to do exactly what the state treasurer does," Rucker said.

Thompson underscored her academic background in finance and her business experience, saying the state treasurer should be the chief financial officer for the state. Thompson is a certified public accountant.

"We're going into some really tough times, where the cash flow is going to be really short," Thompson said.

She said she does not want the treasurer's office to be strictly one of political oversight, but believes the treasurer should provide financial leadership in state government.

"The state treasurer is not the chief financial officer in the state," Rucker said, adding that those duties have been delegated to other state officials over the years.

Rucker, a former assistant secretary of state and former executive director of the state Republican Party, said he has a proven record of public service.

He also said he has been endorsed by the Kansas Bankers Association, the Kansas League of Credit Unions and the Kansas-Nebraska League of Savings Institutions.

"What we need in our state is a business perspective," Thompson said. She called the treasurer's office the largest bank in Kansas, handling $10 billion in funds and requiring strong, impartial leadership.

The present state treasurer, Joan Finney, is the Democratic nominee for governor . She has held the office since January 1975.

Thompson was president for four years of a failed federal savings and loan company in Topeka. She has said she was part of a rescue team to save Shawnee Federal Savings and Loan, and saved the institution $10 million during her tenure.

Rucker has disputed that fact in other joint appearances, resulting in some acrimonious exchanges.

However, at today's debate the savings and loan issue never surfaced.

Rucker said he would like the treasurer to appoint at least one person to the Pooled Investment Board, which oversees the state's investment of much of the idle funds. The treasurer is presently chairperson of the three-member board, with the governor appointing the two members.

Rucker said the treasurer should continue to sit as chairperson and appoint one of the other two board members.

"That ensures continued competency on the board," he said.

COLLEGIAN
Auto Directory

GOODSON AUTO TRIM
Headlining
Tonneau Covers
Boat Covers
Window Tinting
Convertible Tops
Vinyl Tops
Complete Auto, Truck & Boat Upholstery
201 Sarber Lane
(behind Wal-Mart)
Manhattan, Kansas 66502
Phone 776-7679 Res. 776-7614

ROSE MUFFLER HOUSE
• MUFFLERS • TAILPIPES • DUAL SYSTEMS • AUTOS (AMERICAN & FOREIGN)
• RV'S • LIGHT & HEAVY DUTY TRUCKS • CUSTOM PIPE BENDING
Mon-Fri 7:30-5:30 • SAT. TILL NOON
FREE ESTIMATES
Call
776-8955
700 NORTH THIRD ST.
MANHATTAN, KS
"Our Business Is Exhausting"

Complete Collision Work & Refinishing
Staten's Auto Body
1621 Pillsbury Dr.
537-9072

Treat Yourself To A "Triple Whammy"!!
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE – NATURALLY.
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Tower
Aggieville

SU carburetor $250
(for shovelhead) reg. $275
10% off seats in stock
Leather Jackets $150 & $166.95
Free koozie with purchase of $5 or more (excluding above items)
WHEATLAND MOTOR CYCLE CO.
521 N. 3rd • 539-8500

Budget Car Care
Winter Coat Special
Wash, wax, interior cleaning, deodorizing, and buffing.
just $30.00!
Offer expires Nov. 23, 1990
Call 537-1496 or 537-3981

Hunam Chinese Restaurant

Wayne's Quik Lube
Home of the 10 min. oil change.
2304 Sky Vue Lane
2 Blks. South of Holiday Inn
539-5431

Oppy's
Since 1953 776-9940
"Your Friendly Neighborhood Amoco"
3rd & Ft. Riley Blvd., Manhattan, Ks.
Hours: Mon.-Sat 5:30 a.m. to 10 p.m.
Sun. 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.
•Allen Computer Diagnostic Tune-ups
•Domestic & Foreign Car Repair
•Complete Brake Service
•Auto Air Conditioning
•Tire Repair
•Electronic Spin Balancing
•Interstate Battery Dealer
•Pick up and delivery service
We Accept:

MEDICINE...
The Trick Could Be On You.
Over the counter drugs can play tricks too. Antihistamines can cause drowsiness and can be additive when a patient is on other medication. An example of this includes someone taking a cough preparation that includes codeine. Know exactly what medications you are presently on, WHAT they are being taken for, and WHAT type of side effects to look for in case they should occur.
THE GREAT MANHATTAN SWEEP OUT.
Don't let the trick be on you...On October 31, sweep out your old medicine and bring it to The Saint Mary Hospital between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. for proper disposal.
the saint mary hospital
1823 College Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502 • (913) 776-3322
KMKF 101.7
KMAN 1350 am

TOYOTA TRIUMPH VOLVO AUDI
BMW MERCEDES MG FIAT JAGUAR
COMPLETE LINE OF FOREIGN PARTS
IMPORT CAR PARTS & SERVICE
EXPERT MECHANICS ON DUTY
BECK/ARNLEY WORLDPARTS
Call 539-0577
315 S. 3rd
8-5:30 Mon.-Fri., Sat. 9-1
PORSCHE MAZDA TOYOTA MG

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Wednesday, October 24, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 43

Palestinians stab, batter 4 as tension mounts in Israel

By The Associated Press

TEL AVIV, Israel — A West Bank Palestinian knifed two unarmed women soldiers and another Arab bludgeoned two Israelis with a hammer Tuesday in part of a wave of attacks on Jews in Israel, police said.

The knife-wielding Arab was chased and captured by soldiers and civilians, police said. There were reports he was beaten, and hospital officials said he was in critical condition with head injuries.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said the attacks on Israelis, which began Sunday with three stabbing deaths in Jerusalem, resulted from unusual hysterical incitement of Arabs under Israeli rule.

Tension has risen since Oct. 8, when police fired on stone-throwing Palestinians at Jerusalem's hallowed Temple Mount, killing at least 19 Arabs.

Clandestine leaflets have urged Arabs to step up attacks on Jews, and the violence since Sunday's killings raised fears that the 34-month Palestinian uprising may be entering a more dangerous phase.

A leaflet distributed Tuesday by Hamas, a Moslem fundamentalist group, praised as a hero the Palestinian laborer who killed an unarmed woman soldier, a gardener and an off-duty policeman Sunday in Jerusalem.

It said the laborer had killed three enemy soldiers and added: "This is only the beginning."

The daily Yedioth Ahronoth reported a rush by Israelis on gun shops, and reporters pressed Shamir to say what his government was doing to protect the public.

Shamir said security was being increased in all parts of the country, but he insisted the violence would die down in a matter of days.

Tuesday's trouble began at about 9:30 a.m. when an Arab shouting "Allahu Akbar" (God is great) stabbed two women soldiers hitchhiking near Kiryat Tivon in northern Israel.

One of the women, a youth instructor whose name was withheld, was in serious condition with a punctured lung, said Dr. Albert Suttinger, deputy director of Rambam Hospital in Haifa.

The other, Cpl. Limor Ben-Shaul, suffered a superficial back wound, Suttinger said.

Radio reports said several citizens helped capture the assailant.

"We chased him and then he threw down the knife and we grabbed him," civilian Eli Koman told Israel radio. "We held him down and shouted at the soldiers to shoot and kill him. They wouldn't. I asked one of them to give me his rifle. He refused."

Off-duty bus driver Albert Ben-Ezra told army radio that he pursued the assailant and exchanged punches with him.

"I saw him throw the knife and then I grabbed him. Then I heard shots fired in the air, and the soldiers came and helped me," said the bus driver, who added that he has two daughters in the army.

The suspect was identified as a 39-year-old Palestinian from the West bank town of Jenin, where a 14-year-old boy was killed and eight other people injured in a clash with soldiers Monday.

He was taken to Afula Hospital in central Israel, and then to Rambam, where Suttinger said he was in critical condition.

Later Tuesday, in the southern coastal city of Ashkelon, an Arab wielding an 11-pound hammer battered two Israelis in their 40s as they worked in a machine shop, police said.

Both were hospitalized, and details of their condition were not immediately available. The 23-year-old Arab, who worked at the shop, was arrested, police said.

Grissom identified by 2 trial witnesses

By The Associated Press

OLATHE — A witness Tuesday identified Richard Grissom Jr. as the man he saw walking away from an apartment complex where a woman was attacked by a whispering intruder.

And the woman, who suffered a head cut when struck by the intruder's gun, said Grissom's physical characteristics were consistent with those of her assailant.

Grissom had once worked as a painter at the apartment complex in Kansas City, Mo. A former manager said he had a master key that would open the doors of all 103 units.

The attack took place early on June 12, 1989, six days before the disappearance of the first of three suburban Kansas City women Grissom is accused of killing. The bodies of the three, Joan Marie Butler, 24, of Overland Park, Kan., and roommates Christine Rusch and Theresa Brown, both 22 and from Lenexa, have never been found. He is charged with first-degree murder in their presumed deaths.

Michelle Katf, 25, testified she awoke about 2:30 a.m. on July 12 to find a man in her bedroom. She said that after a struggle the man ordered her to come with him, but she resisted as they were walking down the stairs. She said she thought the gun he carried was not real because it felt like plastic, not metal.

Katf said she told the man the gun was not real, and he responded by firing at her, but she was not hurt.

"In my mind it went 'snap-snap,'" she said. "I was real relieved."

She said she began screaming, and the man hit her on the head with the gun, causing a wound requiring seven stitches.

Photos By J. Matthew Rhea/Collegian and Mike Welchhans/Staff

Poster pin-up

ABOVE: Scott Walker, sophomore in accounting and pre-law; Laura Vetter, sophomore in philosophy and pre-law; and Julia Eussen, junior in history, hang student body president and Senate campaign posters in the center of campus Tuesday. ABOVE RIGHT: Scott Finkeldei, sophomore in political science, finishes his chalk slogan with help from Craig Cartwright, sophomore in finances, Tuesday outside of Denison Hall.

Short lines offer alternative

Local rail firms may provide better community service

Editor's note: this is the final part of a three-part series about railroad abandonment in Kansas.

By Susan Boos
Collegian Reporter

Short-line railroads could be the answer for small towns whose railroads are in danger of being abandoned.

If Santa Fe Railway's plan to abandon 719 miles of rail in Kansas is approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, Kansas farmers and shippers will face economic hardship.

"Short lines are potentially the solution to lines Santa Fe doesn't want to operate anymore," said John Scheirman, chief of the Bureau of Rail Affairs. "Short lines are able to operate more economically on a local scale."

Short-line operations conduct business locally. They often operate the shorter, low-density lines without much traffic that the large railroad companies have chosen to eliminate.

Rick Webbe, treasurer of Watco Inc., said the possibilities the short lines have right now excite him. Watco is a short-line company in Coffeyville that owns 71 miles of line in Kansas.

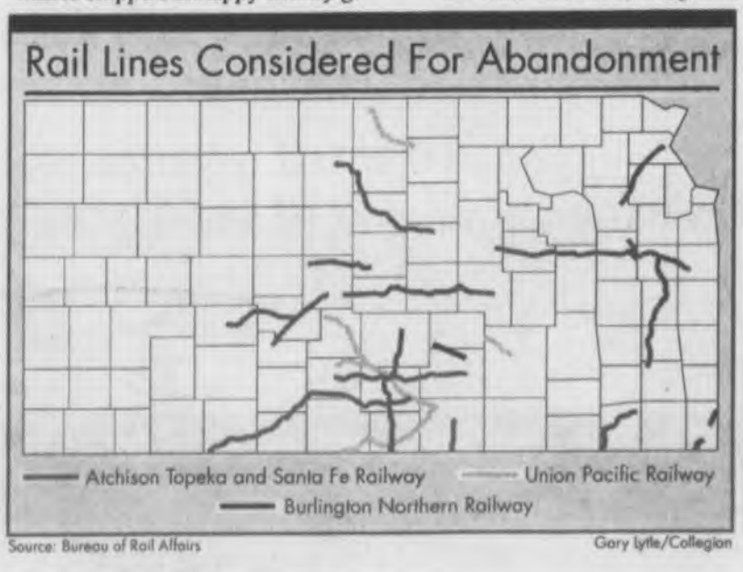
"We are very interested in the lines Santa Fe is putting up for sale," Webbe said. "We see these opportunities as a chance to take part of the railroad industry that has been neglected and abused. We want to regenerate business that was once on the line."

Because the short lines are locally based, they will be able to offer certain advantages and attract business the large railroad companies can't.

"Short lines are concerned with small communities because they are the blood lines of the short lines and are their key to success," Scheirman said. "They are much more a part of the community, and this puts them in a better position to attract the business they'll need to be successful."

Scheirman said shippers are usually more satisfied with the short lines. Shippers may even find themselves better off than they were when they were depending on the large railroad companies, Scheirman speculated.

"Short lines offer us more advantages because they are more responsive," Byron Ulery, general manager for Farmway Co-op Inc. "If we need a line at Tipton, they know where Tipton is. The big lines don't know where Tipton is, and they don't care."



Webbe said the success of the short lines depends on the satisfaction of the local shippers.

"To be successful you must be customer-oriented and cost-effective," Webbe said. "The major companies have lost their customer-serving attitude, and this makes shippers unhappy so they go to trucking."

Trucking is the biggest competition for the short lines. Rick Cecil, senior vice president of Kyle Railroad, said trucks are such good competition because they don't have to meet the same requirements the railroads do making trucks cheaper to operate.

"Trucks don't have to pay for highway maintenance, even though

■ See SHORT, Page 10

Red Cross' goal for Bloodmobile equals daily need

By Scott Berg
Science Reporter

The annual K-State Bloodmobile, sponsored by the American Red Cross, started Tuesday and will continue through Friday in the K, S and U rooms on the second floor of the K-State Union.

The blood received in the blood donation drive is kept in the state and used by the 130 hospitals in Kansas, said Cindy Burke, director of health education at Lafene Student Health Center and blood drive supervisor.

"The goal is to collect enough blood to meet the state need for each day that the drive is on campus," Burke said. "This translates to 350 units of blood per day."

One unit of donated blood can save the lives of four people, Burke said. The blood is taken to Wichita and broken down into four components: white and red blood cells, plasma and platelets.

The K-State drive is the biggest one in the state, Burke said. It usually has the largest number of units donated, most days in operation and most volunteer workers.

"The Red Cross brings all three of its mobile donation units to K-State for the drive," Burke said. "Each unit brings with it eight beds for donors and 10 Wichita Red Cross staff members to help with the drive. Extra help comes from the volunteers in the community."

"The staff talks to you and makes you feel comfortable while you give blood," said Peter Iseman, freshman in business. "People should come in. It's easy to do and helps out a lot of people."

"I have given blood six times and never had them make a mistake yet," Iseman said. "It takes about an hour depending on how fast the blood flows."

Burke said due to the California earthquake preceding the Bloodmobile last year, 1989 became the drive's record-setting year. But she said that if donations continue at current rates, K-State will fall short of its goal.

"The first day of the drive tends to be slow," Burke said. "It usually picks up as the week goes on. But, if it continues for the rest of the week we will fall short of our quota by 400 units."

BRIEFLY

World

Boat capsizes during storm

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — A boat carrying about 100 passengers, mostly women and children, capsized over the weekend, and authorities fear more than 50 people drowned.

The accident occurred Sunday during a rainstorm in the oil-rich midwestern coastal region, Lagos newspapers reported Tuesday.

Police said they were investigating reports the boat was overloaded. No other details were immediately available.

Several similar mishaps have been reported on Nigeria's coast in recent years. Authorities say overcrowding has contributed to most of them.

Course helps officials to laugh

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sweden's bureaucrats will start learning to laugh and be happy next month at a course designed to lighten up their lives.

"A bureaucrat works a lot with laws and contracts and is very much controlled, which stops him from really opening up," said Ulla-Christin Svensson, whose humor courses will be offered through the Federation of Civil Servants.

She said the courses will start in November and several institutions have shown interest, including the National Road Administration and the National Board of Agriculture, where she works as an official.

"We confront problems better by being happy," she said in a telephone interview Tuesday from the city of Halmstad on the southwest coast.

Nation

Pan Am plans to sell assets

NEW YORK (AP) — Pan Am Corp., one of the oldest and financially weakest U.S. airlines, will sell important trans-Atlantic routes and other assets to larger rival UAL Corp. for $400 million, the companies announced.

The agreement announced Tuesday came months after fruitless efforts by Pan Am to find a merger partner or buyer for the airline, which pioneered world air travel more than a half-century ago but lost hundreds of millions of dollars over the past decade of heightened competition inspired by airline deregulation.

It also marks a major expansion by UAL, the parent of Chicago-based United Airlines, which bought Pan Am's prized Pacific routes five years ago for $750 million and has since become a key airline in that part of the world.

Superman pops question

NEW YORK (AP) — After a half century of avoiding commitment as if it were kryptonite, Superman has popped the question to Lois Lane, and she said yes.

"They've played games long enough," "Superman" editor Michael Carlin said Monday. "This story had to happen."

No wedding date was announced, and complications can be expected: The Man of Steel proposes as mild-mannered Clark Kent, and Lane, who accepts in the Nov. 1 issue of "Superman" comics, is unaware of his true identity.

Superman asks for Lane's hand after he is exposed to red kryptonite, loses his super powers and becomes convinced he can finally lead a normal life.

"It's not a gag, not a one-issue trick story," according to an announcement from DC Comics. "This time, for the first time since the characters were created by Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster, it's for real."

Whale returns, gets stuck

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Humphrey the wandering whale, freed from one spot in the mudflats of San Francisco Bay, spent most of Tuesday stuck in another spot before he began wandering again.

Five years after the 40-foot humpback's much publicized voyage through the bay to the Sacramento River, he drew a crowd of thousands to a cove near Candlestick Park, where he lay beached by rocks bearing a "No Trespassing" sign.

A team of marine biologists, veterinarians and the Coast Guard nudged the 45-ton whale with their hands, splashed him with buckets of water, towed him with a harness and used an air compressor to suck mud from below him.

"Essentially we were trying to tease him off that mud rock," Frank Griffith of the California Marine Center said.

Region

Company buys another bank

WICHITA (AP) — Fourth Financial Corp., the holding company of Bank IV banks, will buy back 300,000 shares of its stock for use in the purchase of another bank, the company says.

The stock will be used in the acquisition of American State Bank & Trust Co., the biggest of four banks in Great Bend, the company said Monday.

Fourth and American State officials announced Aug. 1 that Fourth would buy American State in a stock exchange valued at $16.5 million.

At the market's close Monday, Fourth's stock was unchanged at $16.75. The price has dropped from an April high of $29. Fourth stock is traded on the over-the-counter market.

Under the purchase agreement, Fourth Financial will acquire the stock of American Bank Shares, American State's holding company, through a stock exchange. Fourth will give 6.276 shares for each share of American Bank Shares' stock.

Lawyer charged with theft

WICHITA (AP) — A Wichita lawyer was placed under a five-year diversion program and ordered to make restitution for money he was accused of taking from his former law firm.

Steven R. Smith, 41, was charged with two counts of felony theft and two of misdemeanor theft. He was accused of taking $1,429 by falsifying expense accounts and submitting fake bills while working at Kahrs, Nelson, Fanning, Hite and Kellogg, one of Wichita's biggest law firms.

On Monday, Sedgwick County District Judge Paul Clark placed Smith on five years' diversion, meaning his criminal record will be clean after five years if he meets the terms of the agreement. Smith must repay the money, said Patrick Connolly, deputy district attorney.

During a hearing in September before the Kansas Board for Discipline of Attorneys, Smith admitted taking $26,600 from his former firm between 1984 to 1988.

Topeka attorney disbarred

TOPEKA (AP) — The Kansas Supreme Court has disbarred a Topeka attorney who was under investigation for allegedly misappropriating funds from the trust department of a local bank.

The order signed by Chief Justice Richard W. Holmes, which became public Tuesday, disbars Robert W. Green, former vice president of Merchants National Bank.

Green had voluntarily surrendered his law license while the administrator's office of the state Board for the Discipline of Attorneys still was investigating a complaint against him.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

24 Wednesday

■ Brother Peace/Women and Men Against Rape will present "Watching the Courts Watching Incest: Is Justice Possible?" at 1:30 p.m. in Union 207.

■ Brother Peace/Women and Men Against Rape will present "Eco-Feminism and the Changing Man," a discussion by Bruce Blanc at 7:30 p.m. in Union 212.

■ Departments of Sociology, Anthropology and Social Work will present a speech by Werner Fornos on global population issues at 3:30 p.m. in Waters 137.

■ Pre-Physical Therapy Club will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for pictures. A tour of the Memorial Hospital physical therapy department will be at 7 p.m.

■ Students For Life will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Union 204.

■ PRIMO will have a student body presidential debate at 7:30 p.m. in the Putnam living room.

■ Southwind will sponsor a debate between Kent Glasscock and Katha Hurt at 8 p.m. in the Union Flint Hills Room.

■ Association of Collegiate Entrepreneurs will meet at 7 p.m. at Subs-N-Such.

■ German Table will meet from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Union Stateroom 2.

■ Off-Campus Association will sponsor speeches by the student body presidential candidates at 7 p.m. in Holton Hall 16. A pizza party will follow.

■ Resume/Interview Skills Workshop sponsored by Steel Ring and Caterpillar will be at 7:30 p.m. in Durland 152.

■ SAVE will sponsor an information table in the Union for Rainforest Week.

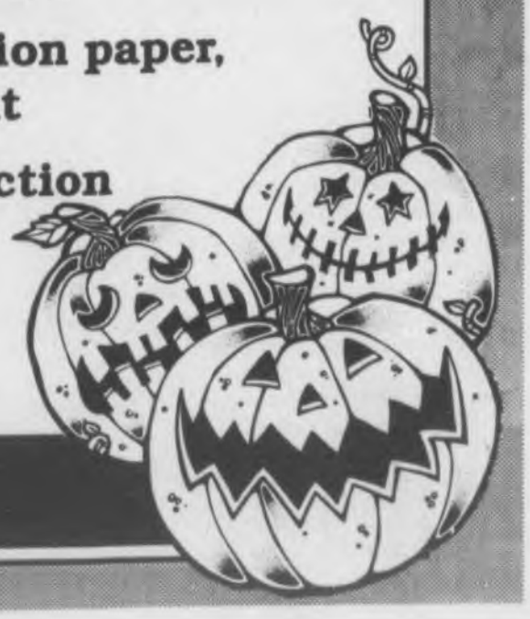
■ Tau Beta Pi will meet at 8 p.m. in Fairchild 202 for pictures.

CORRECTIONS

Tuesday's Collegian incorrectly listed Todd Heitschmidt as a current member of the Academic Affairs and University Relations Committee. He was also incorrectly listed as being an engineering senator. Heitschmidt was on the Academic Affairs and University Relations Committee two years ago. He was a senator from the College of Agriculture.

Tuesday's article about KMKF incorrectly listed Jim Steele as program director. Jason Wright is the KMKF program director. The article also incorrectly states the KMKF signal will reach Wichita. Lastly, the article incorrectly states Jeff Wilson and Chris Taylor were hired away from KQLA. Wilson and Taylor both quit working at KQLA in July and began working for KMKF that same month.

MANHATTAN WEATHER



Today, becoming mostly sunny. High 60 to 65. Northerly winds 10 to 20 mph. Tonight, clear. Low 30 to 35. Thursday, mostly sunny. High 60 to 65.

JONATHAN
MORRIS
FOR STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT
Paid for by the Students for Morris

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special
3 - 10 in. Pizzas
1 - Topping
4 - Cokes
$10.00
Everyday Two-Fers
2 - 10 in. Pizzas
2 - Toppings
2 - Cokes
$8.00
Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

BUSHWACKERS
THE FUNDRINKERY
Comedy Invasion
Mon., Tues., & Wednesday
Greg Travis
from Rodney Dangerfield's HBO Special
18 to enter, 21 to drink
Before 5 p.m. 539-4321
Call for Reservations
531 N. Manhattan
After 5 p.m. 539-9727

Performances & Lectures during a week's residency by Actors from the London Stage
Kansas State University
The activities during the week's residency by Actors from the London Stage include:
■ Yeats: A Passionate Life
Wednesday, October 24, 4 p.m.
Little Theatre, K-State Union
■ This England: A Personal Anthology of English Poetry
Friday, October 26, 4 p.m.
Little Theatre, K-State Union
■ Kathleen ni Houlihan's Sons and Daughters: Scenes from 20th Century Irish Theatre
Thursday, October 25, 8 p.m.
McCain Auditorium
■ As You Like It
Saturday, October 27, 8 p.m.
McCain Auditorium
The lectures are co-sponsored by SAGE, Student Association of Graduates in English. The residency is made possible in part with funds from the Fine Arts Fee.

Spooktacular SALE
at the K-State Union Bookstore
October 22 - 28, 1990
31% Off all regular priced Halloween merchandise
Includes masks, costumes and novelty items.
10% Off orange and black construction paper, matboard and tempera paint
10% Off special Halloween selection of terrifying paperbacks
Monday - Thursday ..... 7:45 a.m. - 8:00 p.m.
Friday ..... 7:45 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Saturday ..... 9:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.
Sunday ..... 12:00 noon - 5:00 p.m.
Closed for inventory until 1:00 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 27

K-State Union Bookstore

David Mayes/Staff

Linda McDiffett is the owner of the Prairie Popcorn Barn near Alta Vista. McDiffett's business sells many varieties of natural foods, most of which she and her employees make in the shop's kitchen. McDiffett began the popcorn business as a result of poor wheat returns.

Prairie Palace pancake mix made from unusual ingredient: popcorn

By Rob Batchman
Collegian Reporter

Popcorn pancakes, apple-gooseberry-raisin pie and pumpkin marmalade jam — Linda McDiffett's kitchen offers them all.

McDiffett, owner of Prairie Popcorn Barn, sells natural foods to the public, ranging from bread made from ground popcorn to oat bran crackers. Made under the "Best of the Sweet Country" label, she markets her products from a shop five miles east of Alta Vista.

"We manufacture top-quality grains into a flour mix and make it available to people," McDiffett said. "We have three flavors of pancakes and bread, which are oat, popcorn and wheat. They come in one-pound packages clear up to 50 pound sacks — if you'd like it."

McDiffett also sells various meats, fruit pies, meat pies and many jams and jellies.

"We have pork products, beef products and 10 to 12 flavors of jellies," she said.

All the food McDiffett sells is natural, and most is made in her own kitchen. She began her business in 1986 in a barn. Her husband supplied the popcorn from their 3,000-acre ranch.

"That was when the wheat was a disaster," McDiffett said. "There was no wheat harvest, and you could tell that no wheat was going to come. We took a few acres and started to raise popcorn."

McDiffett started to sell the popcorn in one- and two-pound sacks and soon decided to see what else could be done with it.

"We started grinding the popcorn and using it as flour, and we used the flour in pancakes and bread," she said. "That was the only two things I had."

McDiffett then added whole hog sausage and other meat products to her line of foods.

"One thing started leading to another," she said.

McDiffett, with the help of other women in the community, started producing fruit pies to sell. The pies are from the womens' recipes for everything from apple-gooseberry-raisin pie to blackberry pie. When she started to run out of freezer space for her fruit, McDiffett decided to try something else.

"I decided to make the rest of our fruit into jelly," she said.

Flavors such as cherry butter, pear honey, elderberry and Kansas wild plum stock her shelves. McDiffett said she has a special way of gathering some of her ingredients.

"I pay 50 cents a pound for plums," she said. "The kids in the community go out and shake a tree over a sheet, and here they come. It's a salary for them."

Oat bran pancakes are her biggest seller because of their nutritional value. Popcorn pancakes come in second mainly because of their uniqueness, McDiffett said.

"At first, I didn't think it would rise. I thought the grain was going to be heavy. But it does rise, and it rises just fine," she said.

McDiffett said she is no longer a solitary worker in her business.

"I have five off-and-on community ladies," she said. "Two are full-time workers, and the rest is volunteer work. Those two ladies can produce 125 pies a day."

Out-of-state travelers are usually her most frequent customers, McDiffett said.

"They are travelers that heard about me as they crossed the state line, because I am registered with the

■ See POPCORN, Page 10

Hussein permits some sick, older hostages to leave

By The Associated Press

Saddam Hussein allowed a trickle of foreigners — including 14 Americans — to leave Iraq on Tuesday, but showed no sign of dismantling the human shield at strategic sites.

More than 1,000 Americans and thousands of other foreigners are being denied permission to leave Iraq or occupied Kuwait.

Five Finnish men also left Iraq on for home, and 33 ailing or elderly Britons were scheduled to depart with former British Prime Minister Edward Heath.

Also Tuesday, the Iraqi parliament endorsed Saddam's proposal to allow all 300 French citizens to leave Iraq. Saddam's move was seen in Paris as an attempt to divide the West's anti-Iraqi alliance, and the French government called on Iraq to free all foreign hostages.

In Washington, meanwhile, the Saudi ambassador denied that his kingdom wants Kuwait to concede territory to bring about a peaceful settlement to the Persian Gulf crisis.

"You cannot make aggression pay," Prince Bandar said. "If you make aggression pay, that's the law of the jungle."

He was summoned to the State Department after reports quoting the Saudi defense minister, Prince Sultan, had raised the possibility Iraq might gain territory in return for ending its occupation.

Prince Sultan is Prince Bandar's father.

None of the Americans who left Iraq Tuesday had been part of Saddam's human shield against attack.

"I'm just thrilled that I'm going," William Hollingsworth, 64, said in Baghdad before boarding an Iraqi Airways flight to Jordan.

"It's a strange coincidence, but I'm leaving the gulf and my son is in Saudi Arabia," said Hollingsworth, of Huntsville, Ala. He explained that his son is with the U.S.-led multinational force assembled after Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

"I was waiting for this moment. I am extremely happy, but sad at the same time because I am leaving many of my friends and colleagues," said 53-year-old Jack Fraser of Santa Ana, Calif.

Another American, 44-year-old John Thompson, said he was eager to see his 68-year-old mother in Germany because she is going blind. "I'm her only child and she wanted to see me badly," he said.

Also leaving Iraq was Lloyd Graham, 48, who said he was going home to his wife, three daughters and son in Houston.

No list of the 14 Americans was released by officials, and no other names were available immediately.

Upon arrival in Amman, the 14 Americans were taken to a VIP lounge at Queen Alia airport. Reporters were barred.

The Americans left Baghdad with a seven-member delegation from the American-Iraqi Foundation that obtained their release. Also in Baghdad seeking the release of their citizens were Vice President Atanas Semerdjiev of Bulgaria and two former Greek Cabinet ministers.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said of the release of the 14 Americans: "We always hope that there will be more, and the history is that when it suits him (Saddam) he lets people go."

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said that of the 14 Americans, six are ailing, two have critically ill relatives and six are students. She said 63 Americans with health problems have not been allowed to leave.

Prince Bandar, the Saudi envoy, spoke in Washington after meeting with Secretary of State James A. Baker III.

"Saudi Arabia has not suggested there should be concessions made to anyone," Bandar said.

His remarks were an apparent attempt to erase any impression that the Saudi defense minister was proposing that Kuwait make a deal with Iraq.

Of his father's comments, Bandar said, "He was not implying Kuwait should do one thing or another. He was talking about what we have done with other countries, negotiating as friends. Saddam did not choose that route."

We Take Tips!
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6556

NEEDED
VOLUNTEER PEER AIDS EDUCATORS
STUDENTS INTERESTED IN JOINING TEAM OF VOLUNTEERS IN EFFORTS TO TEACH OTHER STUDENTS ABOUT AIDS.
REQUIREMENTS
SELF MOTIVATING, CREATIVE, ABLE TO TALK TO GROUPS.
INTERESTED STUDENTS MUST ATTEND TRAINING SESSION
OCTOBER 30
3:30
LAFENE HEALTH CENTER
ROOM 3
CALL 532-6595
FOR MORE INFORMATION

KSU STUDENT SPECIAL!
$1 OFF COUPON
World's Greatest Haircut
Reg. $7 BUT WITH COUPON
ONLY $6
Also on SALE HIS or HER PERM $23
SNIP N' CLIP
MIDWEST'S FAVORITE HAIRCUTTERS
OPEN NIGHTS & SUNDAYS, JUST DROP IN
3035 ANDERSON
V.P. -539-4043
431 POYNTZ - BY K-MART
776-6410
Expires 12-31-90

BRUSH UP ON YOUR DANCE STEPS
BALLROOM DANCE CLASSES
Starting now
SHARRON WASHINGTON DANCE STUDIO
412 Houston St. * Manhattan
537-2549

IT'S NOT TOO LATE
to get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple.
OCT. 26 IS THE FINAL DAY
If you live off campus or missed the scheduled time for your sorority, fraternity or residence hall, you may still get your picture taken from now until Friday, Oct. 26. Don't wait until it's too late. Make an appointment today!
Call 532-7808
Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.
Location: K-State Union 209
Sitting Fee: $4
(Receipt must be shown if this was paid at registration.)
1991 ROYAL PURPLE

THE Palace Cards & Gifts
Halloween's Coming— are you ready?
We are ready for Halloween
Candy, Stickers, Decorations
Treat Sacks, Balloons, Partyware
Costume Accessories, T-Shirts, And more
704 N. MANHATTAN • IN AGGIEVILLE • 539-7654
MON.-THURS. 8:30-8:30 • FRI.-SAT. 8:30-5:30 • SUN. 12:00-5:00

THE SPOT
Live Tonight:
The Twisters
702 N. 11 776-0077 Aggieville, USA

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

EDITORIALS

Rec Complex addition shouldn't be passed

Four extra basketball courts, an added weight and fitness room, new administration offices, another indoor fitness track and a nice, new building front.

That's what we, the students of K-State, will get for a meager $8.7 million.

The logic behind spending this small fortune on the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex is that the Rec Complex is crowded during peak times. That during basketball season, people have to wait for a half hour to get on a court in the evenings. That the weight room is crowded from the late afternoon to the middle of the evening.

We are going to spend $8.7 million on something that is an extra. We already have one of the best Rec Complexes in the Big Eight. Sure, it gets crowded during peak hours, but so do most grocery stores at about 5 p.m., so does the mall at Christmas time, so does the bathroom at halftime.

It is not logical to spend this kind of money on such a luxury item. Do we, as students, just take for granted that Farrell Library is bad and there is nothing we can ever do about it? Here is an opportunity to improve our library by $8.7 million.

The hands-off policy student government is taking toward putting some cash into the library is the wrong attitude when we have $8.7 million to spend.

Our state financial condition isn't the prettiest in the nation. Some experts are predicting Kansas will be bleeding red in Topeka after the next fiscal year. The state will not be helping our library situation in the near future.

We should take care of it ourselves. We have the money; we need to have the direction to know where to spend it.

A note about K-State Student Government referendums. If one-third of the students vote, then Student Senate can theoretically push the issue through even if the students vote "no."

A referendum is when an issue is put on a ballot for a vote. At K-State, a third of the total students must vote for the referendum to be valid. A majority of the voters must approve the issue for the referendum to pass.

But at K-State, an issue can be pushed through even though the referendum fails. Does everybody remember the Fine Arts/Athletic Fee? Even after the student body voted against the Athletic Fee in the referendum, Student Senate tacked a fine arts fee onto it and passed the reworked bill without another referendum or voter approval.

This leaves voters opposed to the expansion at the crossroads. One road will be to vote "no" on the expansion and hope Senate doesn't push it through by themselves. The other road will be not to vote at all so there will not be the one-third majority.

Student Senate should make us decide to vote or not just so we can make our voice heard. The Rec Complex is not a good idea. We should vote "no" on this issue. But then, we should make sure Senate doesn't try to slip another one under our noses. It's our $8.7 million.

Clowns, angels inspiring

Kevin Zwink

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

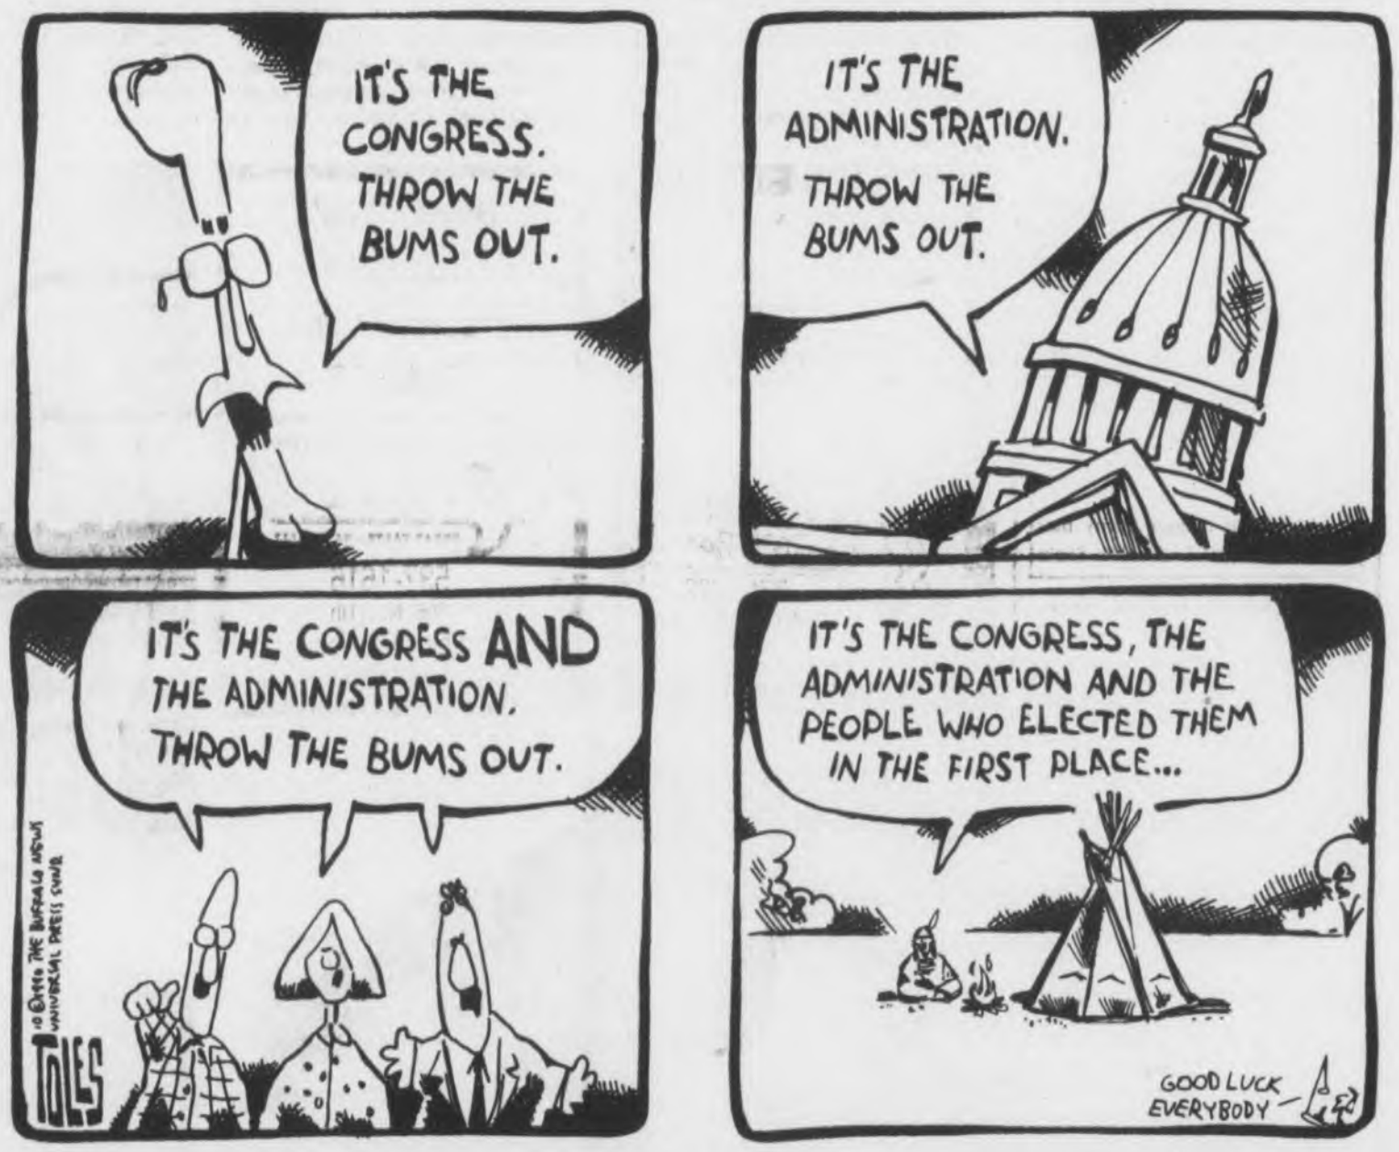
I entered the realm of higher education with a characteristic youthful ignorance and naivete, believing somehow I would be nurtured and shaped by great individuals. My singular plane of understanding, that singular mode of comprehending and reacting so normal in initial periods of learning, was slowly dissolved.

The transition from a mediocre and vulgar education to the lofty heights of "higher" education was almost entirely motivated by the belief that higher education was a mountain worthy of climbing. There were hopes that somehow I would be surrounded by people who could offer keys that would open doors within. I've learned to affirm the inane belief that the university offers a quality education.

The only true understanding I have acquired has come from clowns and angels. Clowns and angels are the only true educators in this world. Fortunately, clowns and angels exist within the university. They are scarce and rarely sought after. They educate in the subtlest of ways. People need not learn much from a clown or an angel to realize they have been given a gem. Clowns offer ways to solace oneself, and angels whisper in your ear to remind you that all you learn comes from yourself.

What have I found in the university besides these rare interactions with clowns and angels? I have found dark rooms filled with dusty books, men and cobwebs all attesting to the spider-web delicacy of reason. Old men, mostly, covered with the wrinkles of erudition flipping spoonfuls of information expertly, yet disinterestedly from habit. Classes full of young peers with eyes closed and mouths open hoping to satiate their hunger for the keys to living. The hungriest sit at the front of the class. All these students get up wiping information from their faces, pushing the last few extra bits into their mouths.

Rubbing their eyes and patting their stomachs, yet still hungry, they move to the next class, where the feeding continues. This time the graduate teaching assistant sloppily mimics a generic teacher's role. More of the information falls at our feet than goes in our mouths.



But every now and then you learn something from a clown, while an angel whispers in your ear to let you know that your new understanding comes from within. The angel tells you, "Although the clown teaches, it is you that learns. You get the credit."

What is it we learn in the university? We learn how to exist mundanely. We learn to work a set number of hours in the day in preparation for the work force. We are taught guidelines and paths of least resistance. We get glimpses of mountains, and rather than climbing, we take the gondola. We're overwhelmed by the din of applause as we step off the gondola. Everything mediocre is positively reinforced. Long live mediocrity.

If quality education is defined by mediocrity, then we have almost reached the flatness of that plateau. How does the University teach us to live? We're taught minimal personal interaction. We're taught bits of information. We're taught that excellence and quality are middle points. We're taught to make it to appointments on time and to turn in assignments on time. We're taught to rise with the tide and fall with the tide. We're taught the discipline of hollowing ourselves.

It is sheer stupidity that our monetary system regulates the quality of education. The least qualified persons fill the most important positions. Except for a few clowns and angels, it is the flunkies that teach. They teach our youngest. They teach our oldest. They teach us nothing.

What do clowns and angels teach us? They teach us ourselves. They teach us that we are not who we are. They teach us to become who we are. They teach us to live. They offer us keys to ourselves. They teach us to forget. They teach us to laugh. They teach us to cry. They teach us life. They teach us to fulfill our potential. They teach us to flower. They teach us to love our body. They teach us to love our spirit. They teach us to climb mountains.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Ellen Dayton
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, David Frese, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjitimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel,
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koel
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

Student Publications Staff

DIRECTOR/NEWS ADVISER ..... Ron Johnson
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR/ADVERTISING DIRECTOR ..... Gloria Freeland
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR ..... Linda Puntney
BUSINESS MANAGER ..... Ann Foster
ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE ..... Jackie Harmon
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Linda Weatherly
OFFICE MANAGER ..... Pat Hudgins
ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT ..... Connie Fulkerson
NEWS PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Carla Jones
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION COORDINATOR ..... Wanda Haynie
ADVERTISING PRODUCTION ASSISTANTS ..... Tammi Landis, Dana Franklin, Chris Tucker Britt Owen, Deanna Adams
OFFICE STAFF ..... Shanta Bailey, Matt FitzGerald, Christa South
CARRIERS ..... Joe Cook, Minda Dowdy, John Fulkerson Norm LeComte, James Seymore

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $30
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $54
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $60

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

LETTERS

Details unneccesary

Editor,

As a victim of being struck by a vehicle while walking, I was appalled at the insensitivity of the Collegian and Steve Franzen in printing the article reporting the traffic fatality.

The graphic details that were included in the story were not only unnecessary, but were highly thoughtless on the part of the reporter and editor. I know that after my recovery, I worried about gore mongers such as yourselves who looked at me in "my pool of blood" and hoped they were there for more than turning my accident into a freak show — not only at that moment, but on the news and in papers as well. The article could have been handled merely as a traffic accident without including particulars about how far the body was thrown, where skin was found, etc.

Looking at the back of the front page, I also noticed Franzen is on the editorial board. If journalism is your chosen career, you have a great deal to learn about human dignity and respect. I weep for you.

I think a letter of apology to the victim's family and the driver would be in order.

Beth Scaglione
graduate student in biology

Library pressing

Editor,

I can't help but notice all of the campaigning being done by individuals running for Student Body President. As in every election, many promises are being made. Expanding the Chester E. Peters Recreational Complex is the biggest issue of the coming election. Many candidates seem to be overlooking a more important issue — Farrell Library.

I was under the impression that students at K-State are here to learn. Contrary to that belief, many seem to be more concerned about building an addition to the Rec Complex than working to update the library. Apparently, we are paying thousands of dollars each year to attend a glorified health spa.

With the worst library in the Big Eight, I would assume we want to do something to improve the problem. I would be more inclined to vote for paying extra fees for library renovations than to add more weight rooms at the Rec Complex. The proposed $3 fee hike to put plans on the drawing board for the new and improved Rec Complex could just as easily be used for the library. Most current K-State students will never even get to use the Rec Complex additions because they won't be started until 1992.

I believe in exercising and having a good time just as much as anyone else. I find it ridiculous to add onto an already excellent facility just to accommodate a few people. As stated by Todd Heitschmidt, candidate for student body president, "as the 'hub' of all academic pursuits, the library is still well below standard." At one time or another, all students will use the library. It is centrally located on campus and is a must for many classes, as opposed to the Rec Center, which sits on the far northwest corner of campus and is accessible only to those who live near it or have a car to drive.

I would like to see more coverage of the library issue both by candidates and in the Collegian. A large article about Student Senate's approval the Rec Complex referendum appeared on the front page last Friday. Isn't there anyone who would like to see some plans for library improvemnent? If K-State is better known for its rec complex than for its library, the purpose of a college education has been defeated.

At least one-third of K-State students must vote either for or against expanding the Rec Complex Oct. 30 and 31. If a majority of that one-third vote for the Rec Complex referendum, plans for expansion will be initiated. Students may not realize that even though they are voting against expansion, they are helping to obtain the one-third quorum. there any candidates who feel this way? If not, I will not be voting for anyone on election day.

Nancy Fleming
freshman in computer engineering

Vote for expansion

Editor,

On Oct. 30 and 31, students across campus will go to the polls to decide the fate of a number of issues. One of these issues is the future of the Chester E. Peters Reacreation Complex. Anyone who has visited the Rec Complex lately knows that it is in dire need of expansion. All areas are extremely crowded. You have to reserve racquetball courts days in advance, and at times getting on volleyball or basketball courts can be impossible.

One issue that has been raised is that of the University's priorities. It has been said we must solve our other problems (i.e. Farrell Library and base budget cuts) first. My response to this argument is that student monies shoud never be spent on projects for which the state is responsible. If the students take the initiative to fund these projects, then the state will rely increasingly on student tuition dollars and special fees rather than making higher education a state funding priority. As for the Rec Complex, it is up to the students to provide the necessary funding for the project. The state would never consider paying for this, just as we should never consider paying for something that is a state responsibility.

In a week, we have an opportunity to make a real contribution to K-Staters of the future. I encourage all students to get the real facts and vote "yes" on the Rec Complex referendum.

Derek Nelson
sophomore in business administration

High-tech rawhide products may cut waste, boost economy

By Scott Berg
Science Reporter

Two K-State engineering professors are designing alternate uses of rawhide by-products that are shipped from Kansas slaughter houses.

"We have been working on this project for six months," said John Schlup, associate professor in chemical engineering. "The work is still in the first stages."

Schulp said he and Liang Fan, professor in chemical engineering, have been working with the idea of impregnating the hide or leather with polymers.

"We are trying to make a composite material which will offer alternate uses for the leather," Schlup said.

The polymer used is an epoxy similar to those used in the aircraft industry, he said, and it is a standard system well known in the composite industry.

The epoxy is in two components, Fan said. A hot press is used to mix them and drive the polymer into the hide while the heat cures it.

The use of leather was decided upon because it is flexible material, Schlup said. They wanted to find what properties it would have if polymers were added.

The possible advantages of this research are not having to throw away slaughterhouse by-products or sending them out of state for processing, Schlup said, which could help the state economy.

Fan said he knew the rawhide was shipped elsewhere to be worked into products and wanted to find a way of keeping it in the state.

"Right now we are in the primary stages of the research," Schlup said. "We chose one polymer system to use and luckily it was a correct one that works good in the hide."

> "We are trying to make a composite material which will offer alternate uses for the leather."
> —John Schlup
> associate professor > in chemical engineering

A number of samples are being made to see if anything unique appears, Schlup said. After this, tests will be run with moisture and other systems to see how well the hide survives.

"L.T. Fan started the idea," Schlup said. "He has been active to create value-added products and is on the value-added committee."

Fan said his goal was to create a different material, and brainstorming was the easy part.

"Generating the idea was easy compared to getting funding to do the research," he said.

Once the polymers are pressed into the rawhide, the leather acquires the characteristics of plexiglass, Schlup said.

A grant from the Kansas Value Center and funding from the Margin of Excellence program made it possible to buy the equipment to do in-house testing of the new material properties, Schlup said. K-State is the only university in Kansas to have such machines.

Finney proposes late voter sign-up

Hayden, Republican party opposed despite Legislature's support last session

By The Associated Press

TOPEKA — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Joan Finney Tuesday proposed election-day voter registration for Kansas, an idea rejected by her Republican opponent, Gov. Mike Hayden and Secretary of State Bill Graves.

However, the proposal had moderate support in the Legislature last session.

Noting that registration for the Nov. 6 general election closed last Sunday, Finney said in a campaign statement, "I am afraid that many Kansans otherwise eligible to vote have not registered."

She said 43 percent of Kansas' citizens over 18 years old are not registered.

However, Kansas has an estimated 1.8 million eligible voters, and Graves' figures showed that 1.166 million of them were registered ahead of the August primary, or about 65 percent.

"We have everything to gain by making access to the polls more easily available," Finney said in her statement. "When I am elected governor, I will propose that Kansas consider adopting a same-day voter registration law."

Finney, who has served nearly 16 years as state treasurer, was Shawnee County election commissioner in the early 1970s. Having served in that post, she said, "I believe that such a system can be run without fraud."

As the law now stands, with registration closing 15 days before the election, she added, "There is presently not enough time to detect or prevent fraud as it is."

She concluded, "I do not believe there is voter fraud in Kansas. There is no history of voter fraud in Kansas, and I don't believe that trend would reverse if we removed the barriers that keep many Kansans from the polls."

Graves was not available for comment Tuesday, but his spokesman, John Reinhart, said the secretary of state did not oppose election-day registration on the basis of potential fraud, although that risk does exist.

"We don't think in Kansas that is a huge argument against it," Reinhart said. "Mainly, it's an administrative nightmare, and it's very expensive to implement. States that have it have not seen an increase in voter turnout."

Bhutto may win Pakistani vote

By The Associated Press

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — The army-backed caretaker government made a last-ditch attempt Tuesday to stem the sympathy wave that many feel puts Benazir Bhutto within striking distance of returning to power.

As the ballot boxes were being readied, the caretaker government filed a seventh corruption charge against the 37-year-old former prime minister before a special one-judge tribunal in the eastern city of Lahore.

President Ghulam Ishaq Khan used his constitutional powers on Aug. 6 to oust Bhutto and install a hand-picked caretaker government comprised of her most outspoken critics.

The latest charge alleges Bhutto abused her power by making illegal appointments in some 10,000 government jobs. A hearing was set for Nov. 5.

Later Tuesday, the president issued a blistering speech on nationwide TV and radio in which he recounted the charges against Bhutto and her former administration.

He urged the estimated 50 million eligible voters not re-elect her party when they vote Wednesday.

"You need not fear anyone but God Almighty for his fear alone will give you courage to make the right decision," said the 73-year-old bureaucrat and stalwart of Pakistan's last military dictator, Gen. Mohammad Zia ul-Haq.

Ishaq Khan was once considered the standardbearer of Pakistan's infant democracy. But that image has been largely tarnished by the special tribunals set up to try Bhutto and her government.

More than 100,000 soldiers in full combat gear fanned out across the country Tuesday to prevent what many have predicted will be Pakistan's most violent election.

At stake in Wednesday's poll are 217 seats in the National Assembly, the law-making lower house of Parliament that will choose Pakistan's next prime minister. Polls open at 8:00 a.m. local time (11 p.m. EDT) and close at 5:00 p.m. (8:00 a.m. EDT)

Bhutto's populist Pakistan People's Party and three smaller allied parties are pitted against the Islamic Democratic Alliance, a loose-knit coalition of 18 parties with little in common but contempt for Bhutto.

Most analysts say the election is too close to call, but her opponents insist the People's Party will win no more than 75 seats, far from an outright majority.

Despite a host of economic and social problems, Wednesday's poll is seen as a referendum on the dismissal of Bhutto's popularly elected government after only 20 months in power, and on the future course of a democracy struggling to emerge for the past 43 years.

Even before the first votes were cast, Bhutto's loyalists were accusing the caretaker government of cheating.

COME TO PEOPLE'S GROCERY FOR HALLOWEEN TREATS

We have specially packaged yogurt covered pretzels unsweetened carob peanuts tropical trail mix
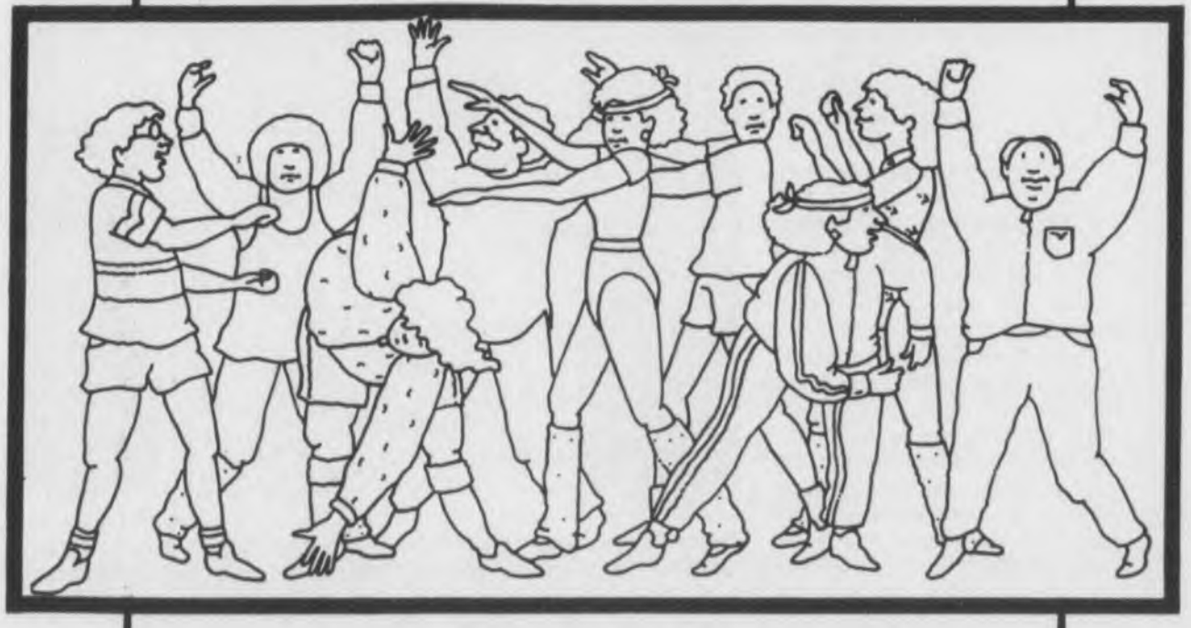
our own Trixter mix
Little Slugger Cherry Bats
Nellie's Fruit'n Nut Sticks

PEOPLE'S GROCERY
Co-Op
811 Colorado
10-6:30 Tues.-Fri., Sat. 9-5, Closed Sun.& Mon.



SPORTS • SPORTS
Wednesday
$2.25
Pitchers
BoWinkle's
A Sports Bar
776-1022
3043 Anderson

Have "You"
Had Your Frozen Yogurt
Today??
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Towers
Aggieville

VOLLEYBALL vs. WICHITA STATE
TODAY
7:30 p.m. at Ahearn Fieldhouse
Free admission with Student ID
*A free T-shirt will be given away to the first 50 students with completely painted faces.

WINTER INTERSESSION
Watch for the Winter Intersession Course Listing in the October 29 Collegian
- Intersession is January 2-15, 1991. It offers over 40 credit courses in a wide variety of departments for both undergraduate and graduate credit.
- Registration for Intersession will be in 217 Willard Hall, December 11, and in 131 College Court, December 12 and later.

For more information call the Division of Continuing Education, 532-5566.
Kansas State University

BACK PAIN
Sometimes you can turn just right, or lift something light, or just sneeze and you have back pain. Find out the correct way to lift, sit, and walk to help alleviate the back pain. Special exercises all will be demonstrated. If you suffer from back pain or never have had back pain plan on attending this luncheon.

Join us for a Luncheon on Back pain given by JACKIE RAWLINGS, RPT
Friday, November 2, 1990
Noon-1 p.m. • Luncheon

Due to hospital construction the luncheon will be held at The St. Thomas More Catholic Church.

Pre-registration is required.
Call Susan Noblett, RN, MSN at 776-2855.

the saint mary hospital
Member CSJ Health System of Wichita
1823 College Ave, Manhattan, KS 66502

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS

Spikers to host WSU

Team hopes to avenge earlier loss

By Russ Ewy
Sports Reporter

After finishing the first half of its Big Eight schedule, the K-State volleyball squad will try to regroup during two non-conference matches.

K-State, 1-5 in the Big Eight and 7-10 overall, looks to avenge its Sept. 25 loss to Wichita State at 7:30 tonight in Ahearn Field House, before traveling to Tulsa for a Friday night match.

Coming off a three-game sweep of Missouri to end an 0-5 conference start, the spikers will face a WSU squad that has won three of its last four matches — the loss was to Missouri.

The two teams have split matches for the last two years, each winning at home. K-State will try to make it three years after losing in four games at WSU, 15-6, 15-0, 10-15, 15-8.

"We have an intrastate rival coming up, and I think we're looking forward to having a rematch at our place," Coach Scott Nelson said. "I think they embarrassed us somewhat at their place when we played them."

K-State made 12 service errors and combined for only a .100 hitting percentage in the WSU match, but, according to Nelson, the Shockers, 13-8, will face a much more solid K-State team in this meeting.

"In our first match, we had an inordinate amount of unforced errors, and I think we're a much different team right now. We're more focused and more intense right now," Nelson said. "Our execution of our skills are much different than they were at the beginning of the season, so as a team I think we're looking forward to letting Wichita State see our development."

Nelson sees the conference break as favoring his squad by giving it the opportunity to build steam without the necessity of getting a Big Eight win.

"The Wichita State and Tulsa matches in the middle of the Big Eight season can be real positives for us, because there's not the pressure to perform," Nelson said. "It's more about playing as well as we can, developing some confidence and getting on a roll."

Nelson feels the 'Cats still have a shot at postseason play by stealing back wins on the road and that, he said, will demand his team to sustain its new confidence level.

"We're gaining more and more confidence in ourselves — individually and as a team," Nelson said. "We need to play real well in a match and finish strong in the games or match to build confidence.

"I think we may continue to do that, because some of our Big Eight matches we'll be playing, to even the score, will be real tough, and we need to be fairly focused and playing with some determination. Maybe the momentum that we gained in the Missouri match will carry over."

J. Matthew Rhea/Collegian
Betsy Berkley sets a ball during a recent volleyball match. Berkley leads the 'Cats against Wichita State tonight in Ahearn Field House.

Here's everything you need to make this feud complete

Dan Wicker
SPORTS REPORTER

It happens only one time a year and causes ordinary Kansas people to have soaring tempers and exhibit uncontrollable amounts of hatred.

That one time a year is this Saturday, and it will be the result of an event taking place only 85 miles east on I-70. At 1 p.m. at Memorial Stadium in Lawrence, our fighting Wildcats will tangle with the Kansas Jayhawks for the bragging rights of football in the state of Kansas.

Kansas has had a rough and tumble schedule in 1990, and just as all purple and white fans like to see, the 'Hawks have suffered because of it. They sport only one win — against Oregon State — and have been thrashed by Virginia (59-10), Miami (34-0) and Colorado (41-10).

I know every K-State fan hates to see these blowouts as much as I do, but an additional loss for Kansas would definitely be something to celebrate about.

The K-State—Kansas rivalry ranks as the 15th longest in Division I football, and dates back 87 games. The series is led by Kansas, 59-23-5.

To heighten this longstanding rivarly even more, I thought I would present the facts and stats about K-State—Kansas football.

■ In the most recent decade, Kansas owned a 6-3-1 lead over K-State. The Jayhawks have won the past two matchups and have not lost since K-State triumphed 29-12 in 1986.

In between is the ridiculed K-State—Kansas 17-17 deadlock of 1987, which was called by many a contest between the two worst programs in college football. K-State went through the 1987 season without a win, and Kansas had only one, beating Southern Illinois 16-15.

■ The winner of the rivalry takes home the Governor's Trophy, which was instituted in 1969 with then-Governor Robert Docking. It is presented to the winning team in the locker room following the game.

Kansas has had the trophy for the past two years, but it is time it is returned to its original owner. That owner would have to be K-State, which claimed a 26-22 victory in 1969. Kansas leads the Governor's Trophy series 14-7.

■ K-State has had its largest problems on the road this season, where it has yet to seal a victory. The road problems continue into the rivalry, where the 'Cats have not won in Lawrence since 1969. But, in the 23 victories in the Kansas series, K-State has won 13 in Lawrence and 10 in Manhattan.

■ The leading rusher for K-State is Pat Jackson, who has rushed for 531 yards and an average of 75.9 yards per game. Tony Sands is Kansas' leading rusher, with 492 yards and an average of 70.3 per game.

■ In the quarterback slot, Carl Straw has passed for 1,260 yards and four touchdowns, and Chip Hilleary for Kansas has passed for 920 yards with four TDs.

■ K-State thrives in receiving, where it has three receivers with more yards than Kansas' leading receiver. Michael Smith leads K-State with 616 yards, followed by Frank Hernandez with 381 and Russ Campbell with 269. Chad Fette leads Kansas with 266 yards.

All the facts lead to another notch in the infamous K-State-Kansas rivalry.

"I believe it is a good rivalry. I think it is wholesome, and I think it is good for the state," Wildcat coach Bill Snyder said. "There is more interest in this ballgame than any other ballgame throughout the state. The fact that there are some good feelings about the two teams heightens the rivalry."

Fielder leads AP stars

Sandberg, pair of Pirates join AL homer champ on team

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Cecil Fielder, the first major-leaguer in 13 years to break the 50-home run barrier, and Ryne Sandberg, only the third second baseman ever to hit 40, top a power-laden 1990 Associated Press baseball all-star team.

The 12-man team, selected in a nationwide vote of sports writers and broadcasters and based only on regular-season performances, is evenly divided with six National Leaguers and six American Leaguers.

Three teams had two players each — the Pittsburgh Pirates' dynamic outfield duo of Barry Bonds and Bobby Bonilla, the Chicago White Sox's battery of catcher Carlton Fisk and relief pitcher Bobby Thigpen, and Oakland Athletics outfielder Rickey Henderson and right-handed pitcher Bob Welch.

The team averaged almost 29 home runs, ranging from Fielder's 51 for the Detroit Tigers to Barry Larkin's seven for the World Series champion Cincinnati Reds.

Sandberg led the NL in home runs with 40 for the Chicago Cubs and was the leading vote-getter with 165, only three shy of being unanimous. He and Milwaukee Brewers designated hitter Dave Parker were the only repeaters from last year.

Completing the team are San Francisco's Matt Williams at third base and the New York Mets' Frank Viola as the left-handed pitcher.

Sandberg was named to the team for the third consecutive year and the fourth time in five years, and Parker was chosen for the second year in a row. The closest vote was for catcher, with Fisk beating Cleveland rookie Sandy Alomar Jr., 59 to 45.

Fielder made a sensational comeback to the majors this year after spending the 1989 season with the Hanshin Tigers of the Japanese League. In addition to his 51 homers, the most in the majors since Cincinnati's George Foster hit 52 in 1977, he led the majors with 132 RBIs and a .592 slugging percentage, tied for second in the AL with 104 runs scored and batted .277.

Sandberg, the 1984 NL most valuable player, led the league in home runs and runs scored (116), was second in hits (188) and slugging percentage (.559), drove in 100 runs and batted .306.

He was the first second baseman to lead either league in home runs since the St. Louis Cardinals' Rogers Hornsby in 1925. The other second basemen to hit 40 homers were Davey Johnson with 43 for the Atlanta Braves in 1973 and Hornsby with 42 in 1922.

Sandberg was also only the third player, with the Milwaukee Braves' Hank Aaron in 1963 and the Oakland Athletics' Jose Canseco in 1988, to hit 40 homers and steal 25 bases in the same season.

Larkin, one of the key performers for the Reds' NL West and World Series champions, batted .301 with 85 runs scored, 25 doubles, 67 RBIs, 30 stolen bases and 185 hits.

Williams became the third straight Giants player to win the NL RBIs title, following Will Clark and Kevin Mitchell. He had 122 RBIs, along with 33 homers, 87 runs scored, 27 doubles and a .277 batting average.

The 42-year-old Fisk had a standout season, his 19th in the majors. He hit .285 with 21 doubles, 65 RBIs and 18 homers, making him the all-time home run leader for catchers with 333, six ahead of Hall of Famer Johnny Bench. He also was the steadying influence for a young White Sox pitching staff that had the second-lowest ERA in the American League.

The flamboyant Henderson moved within two of Lou Brock's all-time stolen base record of 938 by stealing 65 bases, tops in the American League.

Bonds was among NL leaders in several offensive categories. His numbers included a .301 batting average, 104 runs scored, 32 doubles, 33 homers, 114 RBIs, 52 stolen bases, a .406 on-base percentage and a league-leading .565 slugging percentage.

His outfield counterpart, Bonilla, was nearly as proficient, even outdoing Bonds in a couple of categories. Bonilla hit .280 with 112 runs scored, 39 doubles, 32 homers and 120 RBIs, second-best in the league.

Parker, 39, the NL MVP with Pittsburgh in 1978, was the Brewers' most productive offensive player overall. He hit .289 with 71 runs scored, 30 doubles, 21 homers and 92 RBIs.

Welch, 27-6, was the biggest winner in the major leagues since Denny McLain won 31 for Detroit in 1968. He also had a 2.95 ERA and was third in the AL in innings pitched with 238.

Viola, 20-12, was the only lefthander in the majors to win 20 games this season. The 1988 AL Cy Young Award winner, when he was with Minnesota, Viola led the NL this year in innings pitched with 249 2-3, while compiling a 2.67 ERA.

Thipgen, the workhorse of the White Sox bullpen, had a record 57 saves — 11 more than the previous mark of 46 held by Dave Righetti. He also was 4-6 with a 1.83 ERA in 77 games.

NCAA adopts tourney revenue plan

By The Associated Press

OVERLAND PARK — The NCAA on Monday announced an "equitable but not equal" formula to distribute the money from the rich contract it got for television rights to the popular basketball tournament.

The formula to spend the first $69.9 million of the seven-year, $1 billion contract with CBS was designed to reward schools with broad-based programs — schools that sponsor many sports and award many scholarships, NCAA executive director Dick Schultz said.

Smaller schools would receive about a 180 percent increase over the way money is currently shared, while the larger schools would probably get a 65 percent increase, Schultz said.

A plan to distribute $31,250,000 million to conferences based on the success their member teams had in the basketball tournament was announced earlier.

On Monday, the NCAA announced the second part of the plan — individual schools will share in another $31.25 million depending on how many sports they sponsor and how many athletic scholarships they give.

The third part of the plan is a direct $25,000 payment to schools that is to be used for programs that aid athletes academically.

The "broad-based" distribution announced Monday will be weighted one-third towards the number of sports and two-thirds towards scholarships. As the number of scholarships increase, the payment formula increases.

For example, a school that gives 50 scholarships will be paid $87 for each scholarship while a school will be paid $3,480 for each scholarship above 250.

The NCAA declined to say what payments individual schools would get. But Schultz offered three examples of unnamed schools.

A small school sponsoring 12 sports and giving 27 scholarships would get $2,350. An average-sized school sponsoring 20 sports and giving 66 scholarships would get $61,700. A very large school sponsoring 29 sports and giving 268 scholarships would get $450,000.

Those figures are exclusive of any money schools would receive from the basketball tournament portion of the pool.

The time schedule for making the payments, assuming the plan is given final approval by the NCAA Executive Committee in December, calls for the basketball pool to be made in April, the $25,000 academic enhancement payment in June and the broad-based payment in August, Schultz said.

The plan developed by a special advisory committee was designed to eliminate the "$300,000 free throw" — rewarding schools for their advance in the basketball tournament rather than for their overall athletic and academic programs, Schultz said.

Each game in the basketball tournament last year was worth $294,000 to each team, Schultz said. Each "unit" of the tournament under the new formula will be worth $40,000, he said.

"There are going to be some schools that are happy and some schools that are unhappy," Schultz said. "It's easy to say let's distribute the money broad-based. But how do you determine that. They had a lot of ideas, but when you start to put it together it might be $2 billion instead of $1 billion."

The basketball tournament portion of the pool will be distributed to conferences, and each conference will at least initially determine how to distribute the money to its members.

The broad-based portion of the pool will go directly to individual schools.

The NCAA estimated that the Big Ten would receive the largest amount of money at $7.1 million. The Atlantic Coast Conference would get $6.33 million, The Big East $5.2 million and the Big Eight $4.2 million.

Some other estimates include $4 million for the Pac-10, nearly $3 million for the Southwest Conference, and more than $2 million for the Atlantic 10, Big West, Metropolitan, Mid-American and Western conferences.

Independents were expected to receive about $2.3 million.

Schultz said he believed that the formula would remove some of the pressure to win at all costs, particularly in the basketball tournament.

"It's probably as close as we'll get to playing (only) for the trophy, at least for the next several years."

SPORTS BRIEFLY

Tickets still available

Season tickets are now on sale for K-State's 1990-91 men's basketball season. Good seats are still available for the 16-game home slate.

"Because of the great tradition of fan support that our basketball team has achieved, many people just assume that Bramlage Coliseum is already sold out," said Steve Miller, athletic director. "No doubt, we will have big crowds again this season. However, fans who want to see the games should recognize that seats are available at this juncture."

For more information on tickets, contact the ticket office in Ahearn Field House.

Big 8 officials reinstated

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Seven football officials who were suspended for mistakenly giving Colorado a critical fifth down against Missouri have been reinstated.

"We have determined the seven will be assigned to officiate," John McClintock, supervisor of Big Eight Conference football officials, said Tuesday.

The seven officials will not work together as a crew for the remainder of the season, McClintock said. He also said it is standard policy not to announce in advance which games officials are working.

The crew was suspended after the Oct. 6 Missouri-Colorado game in Columbia, Mo. Colorado was mistakenly given a fifth down on the final play and scored the go-ahead touchdown in a 33-31 victory.

The Big Eight reviewed tapes of the game and suspended all seven officials for what amounted to one game. Field judge Terry Turlington of Kennett, Mo., returned last weekend to work the Oklahoma-Iowa State game.

Movie traces comedy, tragedy of GM's plant abandonment

COLLEGIAN
Report Card
"ROGER & ME"
A

By Heather Anderson
Collegian Reviewer

"Roger & Me" is billed as a comedy, but don't expect to have a hearty "from-the-gut" laugh. The UPC Kaleidoscope film opens tonight at 7 p.m. in Forum Hall and will also be shown Thursday and Friday.

Michael Moore's documentary focuses on the relationship between General Motors and its plant workers in Flint, Mich. After the city builds its economy around the industry, GM abandons Flint-based plants in favor of Mexican plants where they can pay workers lower wages. The resulting layoffs during the '80s have a devastating effect on the working-class people of the city.

After the purposely corny opening clips of Pat Boone and Dinah Shore hawking Chevrolets in the good old days, the atmosphere of the film spirals downward into hopelessness and despair.

The plot charts Moore's efforts to get GM chairman Roger Smith to visit Flint and observe the effects the layoffs have had on the people and economy of the city. Hence the title, "Roger & Me."

After more than a year of repeated denials to his requests for an interview, Moore resorts to visiting yacht clubs and exclusive dining clubs where Smith is a member, filming all the way.

The kind of comedy to expect from this film is footage of doormen and receptionists so snooty they put Ferris Bueller-types to shame. The nature of these people is incredibly funny, until the viewer realizes these are real people, not actors. Amusement quickly shifts to nausea.

Contrasting the excuse GM uses for the layoffs — economic setbacks — with Smith's $2 million raise the same year, Moore does an excellent job of illustrating the saying, "the rich get richer while the poor get poorer."

This theme becomes graphically clear near the end of the film, when Smith is giving his annual Christmas Eve address to GM workers. The shots go back and forth between Smith talking about the love, joy and generosity of the season and a family in Flint being evicted from its home.

Additional footage includes an interview with the wives of GM executives. One of the women says, "I can't understand (the former workers') problems. Why, with the great Social Security program we have and all, they just don't want to work."

Various characters highlight the film, and none are actors — just real people. Included is Flint's hometown hero Bob Eubanks, as well as Anita Bryant, Pat Boone and Miss Michigan — and later Miss America — Kaye Lani Rae Rafko.

Although this isn't the happy-go-lucky comedy you might expect, it is still an excellent film that deserves viewing. Professional credentials include awards from the National Society of Film Critics and the National Board of Review.

Lean beef in demand

Researchers seek less fat, same taste in processed meats

By Angie Schrock
Collegian Reporter

Low-fat is a common term in diets these days and the meat industry is no exception.

The idea of a leaner meat with fewer calories is the focus of K-State research for a low-fat ground beef or sausage that would still taste like the real thing.

"Consumers are interested in leaner food of all types, which is nothing new. In the last few years, however, the meat industry has been trying to respond to those needs by trying to create a new product with less calories than before," said Melvin Hunt, professor of animal sciences and industry.

The process is often perceived as an easy task, such as trimming the fat off a steak or roast, he said, but the task isn't so easy with processed hamburger or sausage. Getting the desired traits of a high-fat processed meat in a low-fat processed meat is not as simple as it may seem.

Fat, its absence and/or its presence, is an important part of making a meat product acceptable to the consumer. Fat plays several key roles in making a meat product palatable to the consumer's taste. Color, texture, juiciness and flavor are all important in making a meat what the consumer considers normal, Hunt said.

The research has shown that a low-fat ground beef will definitely have a different eating palatability than a higher fat product, but that's not necessarily bad. People who are used to the taste, texture and juiciness of the higher fat meat may not like the low-fat meat as well, but those who are used to the low-fat meat like it better, Hunt said.

Retail stores offer ground beef that ranges from 30 percent down to five percent fat. Meat considered as truly low-fat ground beef is 10 percent fat or less, he said.

The low-fat meat can also be restructured for portion control as well as fat content.

"We can take a portion of the carcass that is normally ground into hamburger, cut it into pieces, which helps tenderize it and then put it together as a restructured product. This enables us to produce a restructured steak or roast item to get the maximum value from a lower value raw material," said Curtis Kastner, research coordinator in the Department of Animal Sciences and Industry.

The restructuring process also allows additives to be combined to modify the palatability of the product.

"We have added starch, dietary fiber and complex carbohydrates to make this product appear to be more juicy and resemble the regular higher fat ground beef," Hunt said. "The only problem with this is under current regulations it can no longer be labeled pure ground beef or hamburger."

Low-fat ground beef is being served in some restaurants already, and more are showing interest in the product.

"Some restaurants are already advertising that they serve a 90 percent-lean hamburger and by the time you put the bun and the condiments with it, you have a really good low-fat ground beef sandwich," Hunt said.

Dick Williams / Nancy Kassebaum Debate
Watch Tonight
Wed. Oct. 24, 8:00 on Public TV
Not all races are between Tweedle Dee and Tweedle Dum

Placing The Student First
Morris
FOR STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT
Paid for by the Students for Morris

FLYING RABID MONKEY . . .
KILLER CHICKENS . . .
ONLY AT SUNSET ZOO.
SPOOKTACULAR OCT. 26, 27 & 28
2333 OAK • 6:30-10:30 NIGHTLY
$3 ADULT/ $1 OFF COUPON MIDWEST FAMILY DINING AREA'S ONLY OUTDOOR "TERROR TRAIL"
KQLA 104

BAYSTREET AND THE PIT
.25 KAMIS
.50 WELLS
NO COVER!!

Campbell's
China
Crystal
Silver
Use our bridal gift registry.
Complete selection of Wedding Invitations and Announcements
October Special
Swarovski—20% off
5th & Poyntz Downtown 776-9067

CHARLIE'S NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
DOLLAR PITCHERS
UDDERLY COOL
MOO
CHARLIE'S NEIGHBORHOOD BAR
COME TRY OUR (ROAST COW) SANDWICHES
THE TWISTERS FRIDAY & SATURDAY
ROCK N' ROLL N' RHYTHM N' BLUES

MCCAIN
Coppelia
Royal New Zealand Ballet
Thursday, November 1, 8 p.m.
To celebrate its 150th birthday, New Zealand sends us a company of 40 sprightly dancers in a charming Romantic ballet set to a delightful score. Join the fun as a young man's infatuation with a life-size mechanical doll and a toymaker's attempt to bring the doll to life almost spoil a girl's wedding plans.
"A perfect Coppelia. . . It was a magical night." (Sunday Mail, Brisbane, Australia)

Students/Children: $9, 8, 6
General Public: $18, 16, 12
Senior Citizens: $16, 14, 10
Presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency. Additional support by the Jeanne Welles Durkee Memorial Fund.
McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays. Tickets also available (with service charge) at Bramlage Coliseum, K-State Union, Manhattan Town Center, and ITR (Fort Riley).
McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

Need money for college?
ASK ABOUT STUDENT LOANS
CITIZENS BANK & TRUST CO.
Sixth & Humboldt
Manhattan, KS 66502
776-9400
Lender Code *804581
EMPRISE BANK Originator
Member FDIC

Build your resume and your income. Be a leader on a winning team.
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
APPLY NOW FOR SPRING
EDITOR IN CHIEF: Supervises all areas of Collegian news planning, training, personnel and production. Has significant reporting and editorial responsibilities. Delegates duties in the best interest of the publication. Assists with staff recruitment, training and retention programs. Serves as liaison between newspaper and its readership, the K-State community.
ADVERTISING MANAGER: Supervises all areas of advertising planning, training, personnel and production. Is responsible for conducting weekly staff meetings, planning special sections and supplements, logging and laying out ads. Should work well with people and be well organized. Previous staff experience preferred. Experience or coursework in advertising is expected.
Obtain application forms in Kedzie 103.
DEADLINE: 5 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 7
INTERVIEWS:
1:30 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 15, in Union 209.

Recital provides musicians outlet

By Liz Anne McElhaney
Staff Reporter

Talk about killing two birds with one stone — the monthly General Student Recital is an entertainment opportunity for some students and a chance to improve performing skills for others.

This month's recital, featuring the works of Beethoven and Chopin, begins at 11:30 a.m. Thursday in the All Faiths Chapel and is open to the public.

Various talents are displayed by music students during the monthly student recitals. Jack Flouer, professor of music, said the recital serves as laboratory experience for students.

"This is a part of the training for musicians, the recital experience," Flouer said.

Chris Erker, senior in music education, described the format for the student recital.

"The recital is supposed to be within 50 minutes," he said. "It's first-come, first-serve if you want to perform. Non-music majors can perform also."

Music majors are required to perform at least one recital each semester, Erker said.

Erker will perform one movement from "Trumpet Concerto" by J.N. Hummel. He will be accompanied by pianist William Wingfield, assistant instructor in music.

Other students on the program include pianist Julie Schweitzer, senior in music education, who will perform Beethoven's "Sonata No. 8, Op. 13, in C minor;" Jan Dolezal, sophomore in music, who will perform Telemann's "Fantasia No. 1 in B-flat for Solo Violin."

Rounding out the recital will be organist Robert Boozman, junior in music appreciation, who will perform Jean Langlais's "Hommage A Frescobaldi"; a performance of Lars-Erik Larsson's "Concertino, Op. 45, No. 7 " by Wingfield and trombonist Jason Bond, sophomore in music education; and a rendition of Frederic Chopin's "Concerto in E minor, Op. 11" by pianist Yun Chung Yang, freshman in music.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
CLASS ADS
Kedzie 103 532-6555

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE GIRL— Private room and meals this semester in exchange for assistance in small family home. Two blocks from campus— Write P.O. Box 652, Manhattan, Kansas 66502.

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7465.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193 after 5:30p.m.

GOING TO A PARTY?
Check out our Blue Room
Large Selection of Costumes & Related Items
Unicorn Treasure Chest Thrift Shop
431 South 5th
10-6 Mon-Sat.

DID YOU know? Each year, 32 million acres of rain forest are destroyed. To find out how you can help save the rain forests, stop by the S.A.V.E. table in the Union on Wednesday and Thursday.

When you vote in the upcoming election, and you're getting ready to make your selection, give some thought to the issues at hand, and vote for the candidate that truly understands. Vote Jonathan Morris for student body president.
Paid for by Students for Morris

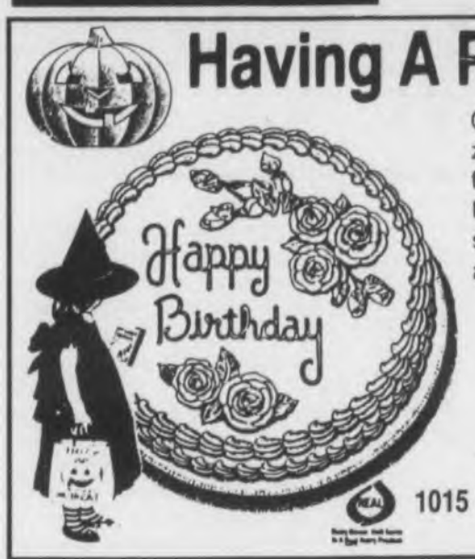
(Continued on page 9)

Arts & Science Council Elections

Are You Interested In The College of Arts & Sciences or Student Government? Arts & Science Council Applications are now available in Eisenhower 117. Applications due back in Eisenhower Friday, Oct. 26 by 5 p.m.

•Vote in the Union Oct. 31, 9-5

TKE Powder Puff All Star Classic



"American" vs. "National"

A		N
Vickie Licktenhan	Rachel Ratzlaff	Kim Rogers	Megan Morton
Heidi Chadd	Kathy Hayden	Greta Weichman	Nicole Fry
Amber Romans	Joycelyn Lucas	Karen Malir	Elyse Funk
Jennifer Liliedahl	Jennifer Flax	Amy Wiexelman	Angie Dunshee
Tiffany Strawhecker	Hawley Hoffman	Susan Wiexelman	Nicole Oliver
Shelly Wallace	Kelly Brown	Angie Terry	Janice Puls
Amy Beasley	Christin Quillin	Jami Benkelman	Yellena Jobanabic
Shelly Goddard	Coach: Andy Hill	Melissa McGraw	Coach: Mark Powell

Halftime spectacular-Crowning of Miss Puff
7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct 25-Griffith Park

Sponsored by: Last Chance · Power FM 94.5 · Pizza Shuttle

Having A Party?

Order a delicious Frozen Ice Cream Cake from us! Decorate in Halloween Style sure to spook any ghost or with a special birthday wish!

Dairy Queen
brazier.
WE TREAT YOU RIGHT
1015 N. Third, Manhattan
776-4117

MCCAIN

Kathleen ni Houlihan's Sons and Daughters
Scenes from the 20th Century Irish Theatre

Actors from the London Stage
Thursday, October 25, 8 p.m.
Brian Friel's Faith Healer, a scintillating tale of a traveling medicine man, headlines an evening that probes the treasure trove of Irish theatre. Join five British players as they explore Sean O'Casey's Plough and the Stars and Red Roses for Me and J.M. Synge's Playboy of the Western World and Riders to the Sea.

No leprechauns or shamrocks here! Just some of the most exciting, passionate, comical, hopeful, exasperating, and engaging theatre in the English language.

General Public: $12
Senior Citizens: $10
Students/Children: $6

McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays.

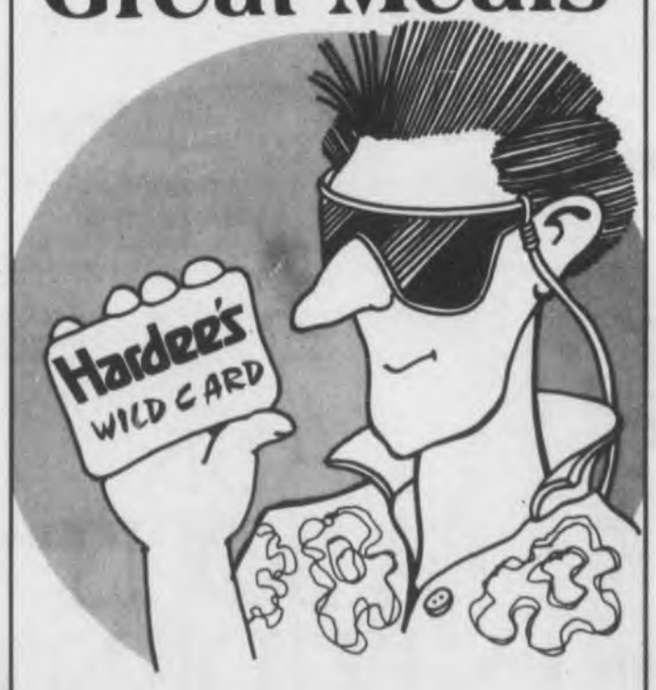
McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

CELEBRATE!
CELEBRATE YOUR STYLE

during a Celebration of savings at Manhattan Town Center October 25-28. Shop over 60 stores, including Sears, Dillard's and JCPenney. Enjoy a light snack or meal in Picnic Place ...then let us entertain you.

•SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27•
Fashion Show, 1:00 & 3:00, Picnic Place

•SUNDAY, OCTOBER 28•
Fashion Show, 2:00, Picnic Place
Birthday Cake! 2:30, Picnic Place



WIN A $250 SHOPPING SPREE!

Pick up your entry form in any store and enter at the Customer Service Desk. Be present on Sunday at 2:30 in Picnic Place and win a $250 shopping spree. Non-present winner receives a $150 spree.

THANKS TO YOU FOR THREE GREAT YEARS OF MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER!

MANHATTAN TOWN CENTER
DILLARD'S JCPENNEY SEARS SPECIALTY SHOPS PICNIC PLACE
Monday through Saturday, 10-9, Sunday 12-5:30
539-9207
3RD AND POYNTZ

Cool Deals on Great Meals

Get your Hardee's Wild Card™ free for the asking - and head down to Hardee's. The Hardee's Wild Card™ is good for weekly "cardholder" specials all year long.

This Week's Wild Card Special
Grilled Chicken Sandwich
Large French Fry & Large Drink
$3.19
Hardee's

(Continued from page 8)

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

SENIORS— FRIDAY Oct. 26 is the last day the official Royal Purple portrait photographer will be on campus. Don't miss your chance to have your portrait taken for the yearbook, and to get extras for your family, friends and potential employers. Call 532-7808 for an appointment. Walk-ins will be accepted on Oct. 26 on a first-come, first-served basis. Don't wait until it's too late!

TONIGHT!
25¢ KAMIS
NO COVER
ONLY AT
BAYSTREET

I LOST 18 lbs. in three weeks! You too can lose weight, guaranteed! Call 776-4764.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial, Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

WOULD YOU like to run your own business? The Association of Collegiate Entrepreneurs (ACE) is meeting at Subs-N-Such tonight at 7p.m. All majors welcome.

2 Apartments—Furnished

RENT FREE country living in exchange for occasional assistance to wheelchair bound landlady. Some lifting. 1-494-8201.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

AVAILABLE IMMEDIATELY! Nice one-bedroom apartment close to campus and Aggieville. Heat paid. 537-4515.

QUIET, EFFICIENCY apartment, 1131 Vattier, one block from campus, new kitchen, $240 per month, lease required, beginning about Dec. 1. Call Professor McGuire 776-5682 evenings and weekends.

ROOMMATE WANTED. Washer/ dryer, $125 per month plus utilities. Near campus. Call 579-5727.

5 Automobile for Sale

1966 CHEVY pickup, standard transmission, strait 6, runs and looks great, $2,300 negotiable. 539-3461.

1970 PONTIAC Bonneville 455, four-door hardtop, good tires, runs well, 86,000 miles, $600. Call 539-1845.

1984 CUTLASS Ciera, blue four-door, air, power steering, AM/FM, cassette, $4,000. Call 532-3389.

1986 MERCURY Cougar, excellent condition, digital dash, AM/FM cassette, V-6 automatic. Call 532-3380.

1986 MITSUBISHI Colt E, four-door, AM/FM, air conditioning, new tires, five-speed, runs great. 776-2174 after 5p.m.

1986 SE Turbo Coupe Sunbird hatchback, AM/FM seek stereo, manual shift, great condition. 537-2097.

CLASSIC 1971 Monte Carlo. Fully restored. Must see to appreciate. $2,500 Firm. 776-0774.

7 Computers

HP 41CX, extra books, batteries, plus charger, $100. Call 539-3426 after 7p.m. Ask for Kip.

IBM— COMPUTER, printer, disks and manuals. Price negotiable. 539-3242.

USED HEWLETT Packard 28S calculator. Excellent condition! Call 539-5231.

8 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such 'employment opportunity' with reasonable caution.

47 WAYS to beat the high cost of college! Make $12-$20-$50 an hour! Be Your Own Boss! Amazing 24 hour recorded details (406)756-5134.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ATTENTION: AGGRESSIVELY expanding marketing company is looking for high quality individuals who desire excellent part-time income with possible rapid advancement into management. Send resume or letter by Oct. 31st, Box 981, Garden City, KS 67846.

BAYSTREET NEEDS waitresses, bouncers and bartenders. Apply in afternoons at Baystreet.

COORDINATOR OF Art To Stop Violence theatre project, part-time, $7.50/ hour. Proven understanding of women's issues, especially violence against women, and experience in theatre are required. Send letter of application, resume, and names and addresses of three references to: Women's Resource Center, Holton Hall 206. For more information, call 532-6444. EEO/AA Employer.

CUT EDUCATION costs— College girl— live in and do duties in family home this semester and second. This in exchange for private room and meals. Write Box 1, Collegian.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EVENING AND Daytime office and telephone sales help needed. Pleasant working conditions, hourly wage and excellent bonuses. Call 537-6163, 9a.m.— 4p.m.

EXCELLENT INVESTMENT Opportunity— Nice 16-unit apartment building, very close to growing KSU. 100% full, excellent history, very good net cash flow of $58,000/ year plus $4,600/ year management fee. 80% financing available with good borrower. This is a high enough quality property the selling real estate broker has held a continuing ownership interest for the last six years. Price $550,000. Contact The Curtin Companies 776-1222.

GRADUATE ASSISTANTSHIP, Women's Resource Center, .4 time, beginning immediately. To apply, send letter of application, resume and names and addresses of three references to: WRC, Holton Hall 206. For more information, call 532-6444. EEO/AA Employer.

HOME TYPISTS, PC users needed. $35,000 potential. Details. 1-805-687-6000, Ext. B-9701.

IMMEDIATE OPENING for a director of our dietary department. Must be a registered dietician or registry eligible. Should have menu planning, personnel development, clinical and community education skills. Competitive salary and benefits. Send resume to: Geary Community Hospital, Attn: Cathy Witt, P.O. Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441. EOE.

IMMEDIATE OPENING for part-time employee to help answer telephone and receive visitors at a local funeral home. Hours would include a couple of evenings each week and some weekend hours. Must have excellent communications skills, and get along well with all ages of people. Call 539-7481 for appointment.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. CIA, U.S. Customs, DEA, etc. Now hiring. Call 1-805-687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

PLEASANT, ENERGETIC, personable. Salesperson for unique ladies apparel store. Send resume to: Spellbinders, P.O. Box 1103 by 10/26/90.

SUMMER JOBS Outdoors, over 5,000 openings! National parks, forests, fire crews. Send stamp for free details. 133 East Wyoming, Kalispell, MT 59901.

THINKING OF taking some time off from school? We need Mother's Helpers/ Nannies. We have prescreened families to suit you. Live in exciting New York City suburbs. We are established since 1984 and have a strong support network. 1-800-222-XTRA.

TWO NANNIES needed by Jan. 1 for two families in Brewster N.Y. Must drive, swim. Non-smoker preferred. One year commitment. Excellent living conditions plus salaries. (914)279-5963.

WORK-STUDY POSITION available immediately, 15 hours/ week, at the Women's Resource Center. Must be comfortable interacting with a variety of people. Prefer computer and other clerical skills. Call 532-6444 for an interview.

9 Food Specials

Bobby J's
WEDNESDAYS:
STEAK NIGHT
$3.99 Filet Mignon
$4.99 K.C. Strip
$5.49 T-Bone
with baked potato and salad
539-1571

Every Wednesday
FREE
PIE ALA MODE with any dinner purchase
Wednesdays 5-8:30 p.m.
The CHEF Cafe
111 S. 4th

12 Houses for Rent

FOR RENT: Mobile Trailer, two-bedroom, central air, partly furnished. Phone 776-7857 or 537-9303 after 5:30p.m.

14 Lost and Found

CAROLYN G.— Your license has been rescued from the gutters of Aggieville. Call 776-1497 to claim. Ask for Dan.

FOUND IN the vicinity of Bluemont Hall. Very young yellow cat. Inquire 532-5579.

FOUND: KEYS in west Waters first floor. Tag says Andy. Claim in room 122.

I LOST 18 lbs. in three weeks! You too can lose weight, guaranteed! Call 776-4764.

LOST: DENIM jacket with hood, St. John's Bay. HP-325 calculator in pocket. Reward $20. 776-4997.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

AFFORDABLE LIVING across the street from nice pool, 12x60 mobile home, $4,750. 539-3513 leave message.

OWN THIS 12' wide, two-bedroom, $135 monthly for 24 months. Large selection. Countryside. 539-2325.

21 Personals

We require a form of picture ID (KSU or driver's license or other) when placing a personal.

A DATE'S not a date unless it's with me, meet me at the Town Center Mall for, "Nightmare on the Plaza III." Frightfully yours— The Manhattan Jaycees.

ALPHA CHI Dee— Since I took the risk of being seen with you in public, I will thank you publicly for a great time boppin' at the sock hop. Thanks for the studying and gift also. Sincerely, Curly.

BRENDA B.— Happy 21st Birthday! From your two favorite roomies. Also from your many admirers: T, S, R, K, and everyone else.

BRUNETTE GIRL with big smile walking by Bluemont and later cashing check at Union Friday afternoon. Same day, time and place this week? —Guy in blue Toyota.

CRAIG, GOT you good, now for Steve. Love, Hans & Franz.

HEY! AYE, Hi! From your, Tropical Storm.

HEY, YA big ol' Goof! "When you kiss me, baby, I come undone, tell me what part of heaven did you come from?... Darlin' you made life good again!" Happy Birthday! Love, Your "Little" Sweetie.

HOUSEBOY BART— From boxers model to Greek Playboy. Ooo, what a stud! Carla J.

JEN— Medium rare will do. I love you. Jen Grin. —Stu.

PAUL— GET Out! Before it gets worse. P.S. I'd call Pat. SEB.

SNUGGLE PIG— On this day, 7 months ago, you entered my life. You have found a very special place in my heart, and I thank you for the wonderful memories. Think of me. Love, Pumpkin Kitty.

THE KEG party is over. I want my gray trash can back!!

TKE PLUNGERS— Thanks so much for your enthusiasm Sat. What dedication! You guys were awesome. We love you! Your Pi Phi Coaches.

22 Pets and Pet Supplies

TROPICAL FISH AND AQUARIUMS
PETS 'N STUFF
1103 Waters 539-9894
OPEN Thur. til 8 p.m.

23 Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

SUFFERING FROM Abortion? Write: HeartsRestored, Box 94, Grinnell, Kansas 67738. Confidential response will follow.

Traveler's Limousine Service
Call 539-2284

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— More than just typing— we create the resume with you, so it reflects your best. Then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience in University Career Center.

COLLEGE PAPERS, resumes, letters. $1.25 double; $2.50 single. Quality work and print. Betty 539-6851. Claflin.

COMPUTER TYPED papers. $1.25 per page. Call 539-1690.

COMPUTER TYPED papers. $1.25 per page. Call KM 776-3090.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE for spring semester to share beautiful apartment. Must be neat and responsible. Call 537-4595 for more information.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted, condo, one-half block west of campus. 776-9026. Nice.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share two-bedroom across from campus. Sublease required. 539-7494.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: $167.50/ month plus one-half utilities. Must be tidy and clean. 776-0774.

ONE OR two male roommates needed, spring semester, $160/ month, next to campus. Call 537-2368.

THREE ROOMMATES wanted for four-bedroom apartment, next to campus, $145 a month, utilities included. For spring semester. Call 539-1720.

28 Sublease

FEMALE ROOMMATE for furnished house. Spring semester or now. Lots of privacy. $162.50. Amy 539-3886.

29 Tickets to Buy or Sell

M.C. HAMMER ticket for sale. 539-2372 Jennifer.

30 Travel

SKI
JANUARY LAST CHANCE! BREAK
STEAMBOAT
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS from $177
BRECKENRIDGE
JANUARY 2-9 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS from $184
VAIL/BEAVER CREEK
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS from $247
9th ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS
Sunchase Ski & Beach Breaks
TOLL FREE INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS— Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. Boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more. Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday— Saturday 9a.m.— 5p.m. St. Mary's Surplus Sales, St. Mary's, Kansas 1-437-2734.

33 Tutor

TUTOR: PHYSICS and chemistry. Please leave a message if I'm out. 537-0356.

34 Wine and Beer Supplies

WINE MAKING cheap and easy. Free recipes and supply list included. Follow the instructions in this book and you too can make fine wine in your own home. Satisfaction guaranteed. Send $5 to: Excessive Endeavors, P.O. Box 10075, Columbia, MO 65205.

35 Martial Arts

KEMPO KARATE— Self Defense Kempo Karate is modern and traditional self-defense for men and women of all ages. It blends traditional Katas with modern day self-defense against punches, kicks, grabs and holds. Training takes place in relaxed atmosphere on revolutionary padded spring floor to make injuries virturally non-existent. On-going classes Monday and Friday 7:15 to 8:45p.m., $15 monthly. Contact Gary Roza 1-944-3691, Ken Schafer 539-3306, Little Apple Gymnastics 539-3613.

36 Haunted House

MANHATTAN JAYCEES presents, "Nightmare on the Plaza III," on the corner of Third and Poyntz, Manhattan Town Center Mall, 7p.m. to ?

37 Political Personals

STAN HOERMAN, The Margin of Excellence. Stan Hoerman, Believes In It. Stan Hoerman Will Vote to Fund it. Stan Hoerman Can Work with Leadership. Stan Hoerman Needs Your Vote Nov. 6! Pd. Adv. Stan Hoerman, Bren Abbott, Treasurer.

Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind

Making the Grade

By Bob Berry

Jim's Journal

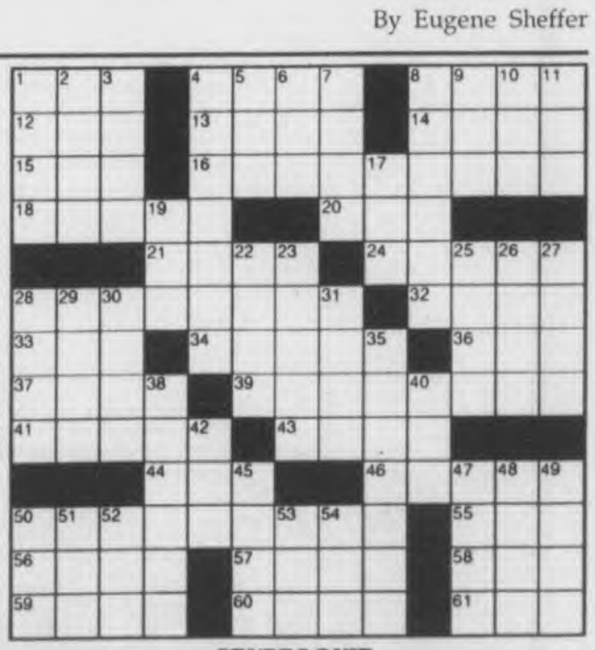
By Jim

Calvin and Hobbes

By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz



Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer

ACROSS
1 Builder's parcel
4 Castle ditch
8 Part of q.e.d.
12 Cuckoo
13 Heraldic bearing
14 Corporate symbol
15 Sorority topic?
16 Noted playwright
18 Hat or band material?
20 Smoked salmon
21 Minute particle
24 Ancient gold coin
28 Popular novelist
32 Western city
33 River barrier
34 They're on the make
36 Envelope abbr.
37 Always
39 Popular novelist
41 Spanish gentleman
43 Unexpected obstacle
44 Pan-handle
46 Land or stone lead-in
50 Popular novelist
55 TV actor Tony
56 Genus of maples
57 Song-writer's topic
58 Lyric poem
59 Gone by
60 Passe
61 Irish sea god

DOWN
1 Gentle one
2 Anagram for Nero
3 Louise or Turner
4 Imaginary creature
5 Mine yield
6 — Baba
7 " — that to the Marines..."
8 Panacea
9 Not ital.
10 See 59 Across
11 Weight unit
17 Square of turf
19 Girl of song
22 Office in D.C.
23 Tyson and Wallace
25 Close at hand
26 Against
27 Decays
28 Caesar's fatal date
29 Four-star review
30 Prayer closer
31 Broadway illuminant
35 Spoke harshly, in anger
38 Young or Mitchum
40 "That's awful"
42 Gun the engine
45 Overlay with gold
47 Object of worship
48 Swelling
49 Pitcher
50 Mountain pass
51 Wood sorrel
52 Legal matter
53 Female antelope
54 Miss Gardner

Solution time: 28 mins.

P	E	E	P		S	P	A	T		D	A	M
A	G	E	R		P	A	L	I		A	R	E
N	O	L	A	N	R	Y	A	N		V	A	T
			T	O	Y	S		G	R	I	M	E
C	A	D	E	T			C	L	A	D
A	M	O	S		S	I	L	E	N	C	E	D
S	E	C		P	A	L	O	S		O	L	A
E	N	G	R	A	V	E	D		G	N	A	T
		O	R	L	E			A	R	E	N	A
P	R	O	S	E		O	I	S	E
L	I	D		T	O	M	S	E	A	V	E	R
O	D	E		O	P	A	L		S	I	L	O
W	E	N		T	A	R	E		E	M	I	T

Yesterday's answer 10-24

CRYPTOQUIP

10-24

Z ' W G X S G Z V O Q G O G I I X G S W Q G Y V U W C U O L Y C T L I K C Y V K S .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: AFTER HE WAS FIRED, THE FURIOUS WEATHER FORECASTER KICKED UP A STORM.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: W equals M

Program assists parents

By Jerry Sapp
Collegian Reporter

The New Directions program gives single parents and displaced homemakers an opportunity to upgrade their employment skills before entering the work force.

"It is, more or less, an opportunity to help people who have cut incomes or have been out of work for a long time get back into the work force," said Lynn Hausmann, associate professor in the Department of Adult and Continuing Education. "The program is to help mostly women or men, who are primary bread-winners for a household, receive education, skills and work experience."

The program offers free workshops and seminars on interviewing techniques, resume development and job search activities, said Shirley Marshall, director of the New Directions program.

"The key thing is job preparation," Marshall said. "Women with low incomes and very little work experience and education don't know what their interest and skills are. We let them know what opportunities exists, where money is available, who they are and where they need to go. These women have low self-esteem and need a lot of support emotionally, financially and vocationally."

The program has a limited budget to help people with tuition, childcare and transportation while in training, Marshall said. She said financial assistance is only available to single parents and displaced homemakers that qualify by application, however.

"It is not neccessary to apply for information, training or referral services," she said. "They are available to anyone needing to enter the job market."

Marshall said financial assistance is funded by the Carl Perkins Vocational and Applied Education Act. She said it issues federal grant money used for vocational education.

"Last year we gave around $3,500 in $200 to $300 pieces," Hausmann said.

The New Directions program is available to residents in a seven county area, Marshall said. The counties are Washington, Marshall, Clay, Riley, Pottawatomie, Geary and Wabaunsee.

"We operate out of an office at K-State, but we do our teaching at different places in the community," Marshall said. "We take our program to where the people are. We teach at various times and places such as the job service center in Junction City, the Douglas Center and the Adult Learning Center in Manhattan, to name a few.

"There is a real need for it in the community, these people need all the help they can get," she said.

Popcorn

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3

"Linger Longer in Kansas Campaign," she said. "They can win a free Coleman cooler if they visit certain areas in the state, and I seem to be one of them that they like to visit."

Shirley Carroll, a volunteer worker and friend of McDiffett's, said she's excited about the business the Popcorn Barn is doing.

"She has certainly come up with some great products," Carroll said. "My husband likes all the pies. He's also a popcorn pancake fiend."

McDiffett also offers gift boxes of chemical free products under the "Best of the Sweet Country" label.

The Popcorn Barn has various gifts and community-oriented antiques for sale. The items come mostly from the surrounding area and are usually homemade crafts. Antiques such as dining room chairs and glassware stock the barn. McDiffett said, however, that her customers usually end up purchasing other items.

"They come looking for antiques, but they walk away with food," she said.

Short

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

they greatly accelerate highway deterioration. We have to pay for all of our track repairs," Cecil said. "The shorter the distance, the more competitive trucks are."

Theoretically, Webbe said railroads should be more cost-effective than trucks.

"It's supposed to be cheaper to run steel wheels on steel tracks than rubber wheels on a highway, but that's not necessarily the case," Webbe said. "Railroads should have the upperhand, but we don't because of labor agreements and federal regulations."

Webbe said another reason trucks are such good competition is the door-to-door service they can offer.

"The trucking business has the right attitude," Webbe said. "We need to do what the trucking industry has been doing and put the customer first."

Even if customer service improves, it is unlikely that short lines will be the solution for everyone.

The Bureau of Rail Affairs estimates that 3,000 miles of low-density line in Kansas will be abandoned in the next several decades. With only eight bona fide short-line operations in Kansas, some rail service will be lost completely.

"Realistically, short lines may be able to pick up half of the 3,000 miles," Scheirman said.

Webbe remains optimistic and believes short lines will be able to compete with trucks and be an alternative to abandonment.

"We have great opportunities right now that we have to take advantage of," Webbe said, "but only time will tell how profitable the short lines will be and what will happen to the rail industry."

15 words
5 days
$5.50
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
ClassADS
Kedzie Hall 103 8 a.m.-5 p.m.
532-6555

Hunam Chinese Restaurant
For Delivery
7 days a week
11 a.m. to 10 p.m.
539-8888 or 539-0888

Pizza Hut®
DELIVERY
Makin' it great!®
CALL THE LOCATION NEAREST YOU.
•AGGIEVILLE 539-7666
•WESTLOOP 539-7447
•3RD & MORO 776-4334

THE K-STATE UNION BOOKSTORE WILL BE CLOSED UNTIL 1 P.M. SATURDAY OCT. 27 FOR INVENTORY
K-State Union Bookstore

UPC Arts Lectures Movies Outdoors Performances Travel
ALL ABOARD WITH UPC

MISSOURI CAVING
November 10th-$33
Devil's Ice Box Cave, Columbia, MO
Trip includes: camping and caving permits, use of canoes, caving instruction and meals.
Sign-up begins: Today in UPC Office, 8 a.m.-4 p.m.
Driver's Meeting: Tuesday, Nov. 6, Union Room 205, 7 p.m.
k-state union upc outdoor rec.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, October 24, 25 & 26
Roger & Me
Roger & Me is a highly original, personal and funny account of the tough times of Flint, Michigan, director Michael Moore's hometown. Moore gives cinematic teeth to his razor-sharp compassionate and often wryly humorous perceptions of what went wrong in Flint. WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY, 7 p.m., Forum Hall, THURSDAY, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre & FRIDAY, 7 p.m. Little Theatre $1.75 with KSU ID.

Roger & Me
"ONE OF THE YEAR'S 10 BEST! TWO JUBILANT THUMBS UP FOR THIS TRIUMPHANT COMEDY. AN AMERICAN CLASSIC. EASILY ONE OF THE MOST ENTERTAINING FILMS OF THE YEAR. IT HAS A CHANCE AT BEING NOMINATED FOR ONE OF THE BEST PICTURES OF THE YEAR."
k-state union upc kaleidoscope

UPC

Friday and Saturday, October 26 & 27
USED CARS
Rival used-car dealers (Jack Warden, in a dual role) pull out all the stops in this outrageous salute to the super salesmen whose persuasive pitches transform rattling wrecks into "pre-owned" dream mobiles. Also stars Kurt Russell. FRIDAY and SATURDAY, Midnight, Forum Hall. $1.50 with KSU ID.
Trust us.
k-state union upc feature films

THE MIGHTIEST MOTION PICTURE OF THEM ALL!
WALT DISNEY presents
20,000 Leagues UNDER THE Sea
Saturday and Sunday, October 27 & 28
20,000 LEAGUES UNDER THE SEA
Plunge in spell-binding Academy Award- winning adventure in Jules Verne's high seas underwater tale of Captain Nemo, a scientific genius who offers his technological secrets to humanity. . .but, at a price. Rated G. SATURDAY and SUNDAY, 2 p.m., Forum Hall. $1.50 with KSU ID.

5/15/91
Kansas State Historical Society
Newspaper Section
120 W 10th
Topeka KS 66612

KANSAS STATE
COLLEGIAN

Thursday, October 25, 1990 | Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas 66506 | Volume 97, Number 44

Margaret Clarkin/Staff

Jonathan Morris, junior in mathematics;Todd Giefer, senior in architectural engineering; Johnny Gaffney, junior in pre-law; David McIntyre, senior in electrical engineering; Todd Heitschmidt, graduate student in agricultural economics; and John Buchanan, sophomore in pre-medicine, speak at a Political Reactions to Issues of Modern Order-sponsored student body presidential candidate debate in Putnam Hall Thursday.

Presidential candidates discuss issues

STUDENT SENATE '90 ELECTIONS

By Kelly Berg
Staff Reporter

The six student body president candidates agreed that funding for the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex and Farrell Library should be kept separate issues.

The candidates met at Putnum Hall for the first debate of the election.

Each candidate gave a five-minute introductory speech to open the debate. They were then presented with questions and allowed three minutes to respond.

Chris Ralph, representative of the Political Reactions to Issues of Modern Order, and Cynthia Engle, president of Putnam Hall Governing Board, mediated the debate. Each candidate received a different question picked randomly by the mediators.

Candidate Todd Giefer said it was important not to lump the funding of Farrell Library improvements and the Rec Complex into the same issue because they are two different questions.

"The Rec Complex is student-funded and should remain that way," Giefer said. "The library is state-funded, and the funding of it should remain the responsibility of the state."

Candidates John Gaffney and David McIntyre voiced similar opinions, and no one voiced opposition to that stance.

A main focus of candidate Jonathan Morris's campaign is the environmental issue. He suggests a University-wide energy audit to establish K-State's energy consumption and waste levels. He also expressed student involvement on campus as a major concern.

Giefer also voiced student participation in student government and on campus as a major theme to his campaign. Gaffney, McIntyre, Todd Heitschmidt and John Buchanan agreed on the importance of student input.

Another issue was the campus parking dilemma.

"We need to do something with what we already have available to us," Morris said. He urged students to take advantage of the carpooling-parking tickets that are available.

He said he didn't feel the proposed parking garage in the Union parking lot was a good solution to the problem, considering the budget cuts the University is facing.

Buchanan also thought using current resources was the best answer to the parking problem. He suggested the use of the Bramlage Coliseum parking lot and a shuttle service for students.

Gaffney said student involvement and representation at all levels of reorganization planning is a major concern.

Following the question, each candidate was given two minutes of rebuttal time to address the questions asked of the other candidates.

There was a 10-minute period open to questions from the audience. During this time, questions were asked about how the candidates were funding their campaigns, and if the candidates thought there is equitable student representation in the Student Senate.

Bush kills controversial bill

Many black voters say veto last straw, switch political party

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Alicia Crews is a black Republican, but not for long. President Bush's veto of a civil rights bill was the last straw for her.

"It was a very needed bill," said Crews, who has been a GOP voter for nine years. She plans to change her affiliation to the Democrats.

What was the message of the veto to her? "That there isn't a visible slavery but there's still a mental slavery," Crews, 31, said as she headed home from work Tuesday, briefcase in hand.

A sampling of black voters around the nation found some defending Bush's decision to kill the legislation that he said would impose racial hiring quotas. More often, however, they echoed Crews' disappointment or said blacks would take their anger at Bush to the polls.

"He's lost all the black vote," said Mike Ward, who works at a cabinet-making business on Atlanta's Martin Luther King Drive.

Ward said he had been undecided in Georgia's upcoming gubernatorial election, but now he's inclined to vote Democratic.

Heavy black turnout helped Democrats win midterm congressional election victories when Ronald Reagan was president, and Bush's veto may send more blacks to the polls Nov. 6, black observers predicted.

"It's one of the many things that shows us that we must vote as a group to show our support," Bernard George said at a Democratic rally Tuesday night in New Bern, N.C.

Cindy Turrentine, also at the rally, said she had mixed feelings about the veto. "There's a misconception that the civil rights movement is there to set quotas," she said.

Nonetheless, the veto will help galvanize the black community, she said.

"I think our race in North Carolina will push them out even more," Turrentine said. Her reference was to the U.S. Senate contest between incumbent Republican Jesse Helms and Democrat Harvey Gantt, who is black.

Greater black turnout is likely elsewhere, too, because of the veto, said Wayne Bryant, the majority leader of New Jersey's state assembly.

"Folks really do feel threatened," said Bryant, a black Democrat. "We fought these battles in the 1950s, and here we are fighting them again just before the 21st century."

Paul Hubbard, president of New Detroit Inc., a coalition of business and community leaders in the motor city, said he was surprised Bush "would have the nerve to veto something like that in 1990, and I think voters will show their feelings at the polls."

Bill Chappell, chairman of the Georgia Black Republican Council, said he doubts the president's veto will have a major impact on elections two weeks hence, though it could hurt the GOP among blacks in the long term.

"I'm very disappointed that he vetoed the bill, understanding all the implications and complications of it," Chappell said.

Keith Butler, a black Detroit City Councilman who has met with Bush to discuss civil rights legislation, doubted most blacks would turn against the president.

Elizabeth Dole resigns to seek new challenges

From Staff and Wire Reports

WASHINGTON — Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole, the first member of President Bush's Cabinet to resign, said Wednesday she was leaving for new challenges and not because of reports that she lacked influence at the White House.

Dole, the highest-ranking woman in the Bush administration, said that after 25 years of government service, she was looking forward to focusing on humanitarian causes at her new job as president of the American Red Cross.

Charles Reagan, chairman of Landon Lectures and executive assistant to the president, said that Dole's appointment will have no effect on her visit to K-state. Reagan said Dole will be here as the Secretary of Labor and her appointment is not effective until Nov. 6. Reagan said Dole's office called and confirmed the lecture is scheduled for 1:30 p.m., Oct. 31 in McCain Auditorium.

In a press conference, Dole denied she was frozen out by White House policy-makers. Aides and union leaders have said she had little clout at Bush's Cabinet table, and many labor policy decisions were left to Chief of Staff John Sununu.

"I can't imagine who was saying this. ... Most definitely, I feel very much a part of the circle that's making the decisions here at the White House," Dole said after announcing her resignation with the president at her side.

Later, in an interview, Dole testily labeled those reports totally erroneous.

"It's been a wonderful relationship," she said of her ties to the White House.

Dole, 54 and wife of Senate Republican leader Bob Dole, also denied she might use the Red Cross position to lay the groundwork for long-term political goals.

"I'm on my way to the Red Cross. I have no plans to run for anything," she said.

Rumors have been rampant that she would eventually step down to run in 1992 for the Senate seat now held by Democrat Terry Sanford of her native North Carolina.

In the interview, she did not rule out some future bid for elective office.

"You learn in this town never to say never," she said.

Bush said Dole had "earned the respect of the American people and as secretary of labor has made the work place safer, healthier and more secure."

Four women are among people mentioned as possible successors. They are Constance Newman, head of the Office of Personnel Management; Rep. Lynn Martin, R-Ill., should she lose her bid for the Senate in the Nov. 6 election; Elaine Chao, who holds the No. 2 job at the Transportation Department; and Constance Horner, undersecretary at the Health and Human Services Department.

As labor secretary, Dole offered few new initiatives. Some union leaders argued that she was limited by what they perceived as a pro-business administration. Others criticized her low profile within the administration, citing last year's debate on the minimum-wage bill when, they say, Sununu — not Dole — took the lead role. Dole contends she was in charge.

Dole, a Harvard-educated lawyer, got mixed reviews regarding labor disputes. She and Bush took a hands-off approach toward the Eastern strike and the violent Greyhound bus walkout earlier this year. But she was lauded for her appointment of a supermediator to settle a bitter strike by Appalachian coal miners against the Pittston Co. in 1989.

Dole also proposed mandatory seat-belt use for all job-related travel and reviewed ways to help women advance in their careers and crack what she called the glass ceiling that stopped their upward mobility.

Dole said she made her decision now, even though the Red Cross vacancy has been open for some time, because the organization's board meets this week.

Earthquakes rock California, Illinois

Landslides block highways leading to national park

By The Associated Press

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. — A strong earthquake spooked tourists and loosened rockslides that blocked roads, the second time this year that natural disaster has blocked access to the park.

Some tourists said they were jolted awake by the 5.8-magnitude quake about 11:15 p.m. Tuesday that was felt as far away as San Francisco and in northern Nevada casinos.

No injuries were reported and damage apparently was limited to the closure of three of four roads leading into Yosemite.

Also Wednesday, a quake measuring 3.5 on the Richter scale jiggled southern Illinois. It rattled windows, woke residents and roused pets into a frenzy, but no damage was reported.

Roads into Yosemite were closed for 11 days this summer when forest fires burned out of control. Bureaucratic wrangling in Washington over the federal budget closed the park to campers during the Columbus Day weekend.

Spokeswoman Mallory Smith said visitors were full of talk of the quake Wednesday, but there was no mass exodus and travelers continued to enter the park on Highway 41, which remained open.

"Some visitors, especially from foreign countries and other states who haven't felt very many earthquakes, tended to be very frightened," Smith said.

National Park Service crews worked to clear several granite boulders about 50 tons each that tumbled onto highways 41 and 120 about a half mile from each other on the park's western edge.

The slide on Highway 120 wrecked a 3-foot section of it and destroyed part of a retaining road, said ranger Scot Bowen.

At the eastern approach to the park, crews worked to clean up another slide on Highway 120.

The quake was centered at Lee Vining, a small Mono County town east of Yosemite National Park and about 190 miles southeast of San Francisco.

Candidate wants taxes on wealthy

CAMPAIGN 1990
Kansas House

By Alan Wilds
Staff Reporter

Katha Hurt, D-Manhattan, said her experience as a school teacher and her life as a native Kansan has enabled her to take strong stands on education and the environment.

Hurt spoke to a small audience 8 p.m. Wednesday in the K-State Union Flint Hills room. The event, which was sponsored by Southwind and the Ecumenical Campus Ministry, was scheduled to be a debate between Hurt and her opponent Kent Glasscock.

Glasscock, a current city commissioner, informed the organizers of the debate Tuesday that he would be unable to attend.

Paul Davidson, ECM co-president, read a statement from Glasscock saying his absence was not a reflection of his willingness to work with K-State students.

Hurt mentioned several problems affecting public and higher education. She said the 1990 legislative session was disappointing because education issues were not backed by the majority of the House of Representatives, Senate or Gov. Mike Hayden.

Hurt called on state government to return the windfall and make the wealthy pay their share of taxes.

"When the federal-income tax system changed, Kansas did not change with it," she said, adding the middle-to lower-class pay most of the taxes. "Kansas lost about $70 million by stopping the windfall, which would have been enough to fund all regents schools and the Margin of Excellence."

The state's $2.6 billion highway program has also taken away about $32 million from education, Hurt said.

"Education has taken the brunt of the cuts," she said. "The state has lost as little as $89 million that could have been spent on education, to the highway programs and not restoring the collective income tax."

She said this, along with reappraisal, has led to problems with the public school-finance formula, which a legislative committee plans to look into in the 1991 session.

"I really believe education is important enough in this state to have a

■ See HURT, Page 14

BRIEFLY

World

Bhutto's party loses elections

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Benazir Bhutto's party suffered a stunning defeat at the hands of her right-wing foes in parliamentary elections Wednesday, unofficial returns indicated. The electoral rout was widely seen as a verdict on her dismissal as prime minister.

She refused to concede defeat late Wednesday night and accused President Ghulam Ishaq Khan and the army-backed caretaker government of large-scale vote-rigging in what most analysts and opinion polls predicted would be a close contest.

"This election is a fraud," Bhutto said, fighting back tears.

"She's a sore loser," said Hussein Haqqani, a spokesman for the caretaker government. "She's finding it hard to accept that she's no longer on the pedestal and that she is no longer the heroine of democracy. After a few days, she'll have to accept it."

Bhutto herself ran for two seats. She overwhelmingly won reelection in Larkana in southern Sind Province but suffered a humiliating defeat in the northern city of Peshawar, losing by nearly 12,000 votes.

Clashes in India continue

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — At least 29 people were killed Wednesday in clashes between Hindus and Moslems, and Prime Minister V.P. Singh said he will seek a vote of confidence to see if his government can survive.

The deaths came during a nationwide strike called by the right-wing Hindu party, whose defection has jeopardized the future of the Singh government.

Singh said his minority centrist government would survive despite the loss of support from the Bharatiya Janata Party. But other members of the prime minister's Janata Dal party were less optimistic.

Nation

Cheap condoms condemned

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The budget-conscious city is handing out a cheaper brand of condom that is too tight, too thin and breaks too easily, anti-AIDS groups complained Wednesday.

David Fair, former director of the city's AIDS Activities Coordinating Office, said he feared the product is being used by poor people, drug users and others likely to be exposed to AIDS and sexual diseases.

"The city has 600,000 of them on the street, giving them out to people with higher levels of sexual activity," he said. "It's exactly the wrong product to give to these people."

The condoms in question, named Crown, are made by Okamoto Industries Inc., in Tokyo. Hisayuki Naito, vice president for marketing of its American subsidiary, Okamoto U.S.A., in Stratford, Conn., said he hadn't received any complaints.

Test dispute ends in stabbing

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — Police charged an honor student with attempted homicide after he allegedly stabbed his high school physics teacher with a kitchen knife in an argument over a test grade.

David Pologruto, a teacher at Taravella High School, was listed as stable at Coral Springs Medical Center, said nursing supervisor Linda Economou.

The 16-year-old student, whose name was not released, had met with Pologruto, 41, after school Tuesday in his classroom, police said.

"That discussion turned into an argument where the student pulled out a large knife and struck the teacher with the knife," said Police Sgt. Jeffrey Maslan.

Lukens resigns from House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Donald Lukens, R-Ohio, resigned from the House Wednesday, sparing himself a second sexual misconduct investigation and possible disciplinary action.

"Effective immediately, for the good of the Congress and the integrity of the institution, I resign my seat in the U.S. House of Representatives," Lukens said in a letter to Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste that was read on the House floor.

Republican leaders in the chamber had warned Lukens, defeated for renomination in Ohio's May primary, that he risked being expelled if he tried to finish out his term.

Lukens resigned two days after the House ethics committee revived its dormant case against him to include a new accusation that he had fondled a House elevator operator earlier this month.

Anti-obscenity curbs rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate decisively rejected a move Wednesday to slap tough, new anti-obscenity curbs on the National Endowment for the Arts and voted instead to penalize artists whose federally subsidized works are deemed obscene by the courts.

Ignoring charges by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., that the endowment is financing obscenity produced by sleazeballs at the taxpayers' expense, the Senate approved scrapping current restrictions on the kinds of art eligible for federal support.

On a 73-24 roll call, the Senate embraced a bipartisan compromise offered by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, that would require the endowment to recoup its money from grant recipients who are subsequently convicted of violating obscenity or child pornography laws.

Guilty artists would be barred from receiving any new federal grants for three years.

Dole, Kassebaum support veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kansas Sens. Bob Dole and Nancy Kassebaum supported President Bush on Wednesday and voted to uphold his veto of civil rights legislation.

The override effort failed in the Senate on a 66-34 roll call.

Kassebaum and other critics contended that the legislation went too far in shifting legal burdens of proof and court remedies in favor of workers against employers in job discrimination cases.

"I don't regard myself as a right-wing extremist. I really feel very strongly about this issue. But I think we have to be careful and considerate in the larger impact just as we are attempting to end discrimination," Kassebaum, R-Kan., said in a speech on the Senate floor.

Dole praised the president's tough decision in vetoing the legislation, and said "Congress had dropped the ball" in not accepting a possible compromise advanced by the White House.

Region

Finney refines tax program

WICHITA (AP) — State Treasurer Joan Finney continued to refine her tax program here Tuesday, acknowledging that some items now exempt from the state sales tax should be taxed at the full 4.25 percent state rate.

Finney, the Democratic nominee for governor, proposed at the start of the fall election campaign that nearly 50 goods and services now exempt from the sales tax be placed on the tax rolls, but at only a 1 percent rate.

She said that would generate some $800 million for property tax relief and beefing up the state budget. However, she later amended her proposal to say she wanted to raise $460 million by repealing some of the tax exemptions through negotiation with the Legislature.

CAMPUS BULLETIN

Announcements

■ Arts and Sciences Council Student of the Semester applications are available until Oct. 26 in the dean's office in Eisenhower Hall.

■ KSU Bloodmobile will be open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the K, S and U rooms of the Union until Oct. 26.

■ Metaforum, the English undergraduate organization, is accepting submissions of poetry, artwork, prose and cartoons for its semesterly creative writing publication until Oct. 31. Mail submissions to 311 N. 14th St. or drop them off in Denison 101.

■ Community Service Program needs volunteers for the Sunset Zoo Haunted Trail. For information, call Michelle Dutton at 532-5701.

■ Center for Basic Cancer Research deadline for research-award applications is Dec. 10. Applications are available in Ackert 234.

■ Touchstone, KSU's small literary magazine, will release its fall 1990 issue soon in Denison 114 or 116.

25 Thursday

■ Intramural Entry Deadline for bowling and inner-tube water polo is at 5 p.m. in the Recreational Services Office at the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex.

■ K-State Table Tennis Club will meet from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the ECM building on Denison Avenue.

■ KSU Wildlife Society will present "Non-game Fish and Wildlife" by Ken Brunson at 7 p.m. in Ackert 221.

■ The Graduate School has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Mary Rubeck at 10:30 a.m. in Bluemont 368. The dissertation topic is "A Path Analytical Model of Variables that Influence Science and Chemistry Teaching Self-Efficacy and Outcome Expectancy in Middle School Science Teachers."

■ BrotherPeace/Students For Choice will present the movie, "Abortion Denied," at 7 p.m. in Bluemont 102.

■ BrotherPeace/Women and Men Against Rape will sponsor a presentation on sexual harassment by Skip Saal at 4 p.m. in Union 206.

■ AIChe will meet at 1:30 p.m. in Ackert 120.

■ Collegiate 4-H will have yearbook pictures at 7:45 p.m. in Fairchild 202.

■ The Graduate School has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Ethel Pettijohn at 10:30 a.m. in Bluemont 364. The dissertation topic will be "Skill Expectations and Perceptions of Learning Disabled Workers: A Study of Topeka, Kansas, Employers."

■ The Graduate School has scheduled the final oral defense of the doctoral dissertation of Sharon A. Ford at 9 a.m. in Bluemont 257. The dissertation topic will be "Study of the Role of Distance Education Teaching Facilitators Participating in the Satellite Educational Resources Consortium in Louisiana."

MANHATTAN WEATHER

Today, sunny and warmer. High 60 to 65. Light west to southwest winds. Tonight, clear. Low 35 to 40. Friday, mostly sunny and warmer. High 70 to 75.

AIDS AIDS AIDS

NEEDED

VOLUNTEER PEER AIDS EDUCATORS

STUDENTS INTERESTED IN JOINING TEAM OF VOLUNTEERS IN EFFORTS TO TEACH OTHER STUDENTS ABOUT AIDS.

REQUIREMENTS

SELF MOTIVATING, CREATIVE, ABLE TO TALK TO GROUPS.

INTERESTED STUDENTS MUST ATTEND TRAINING SESSION

OCTOBER 30

3:30

LAFENE HEALTH CENTER

ROOM 3

CALL 532-6595

FOR MORE INFORMATION

GET YOUR CAR READY FOR FALL

LUBE, OIL (UP TO 5 QTS.), FILTER

MOST POPULAR BRANDS

$15.95

by appointment only

537-1201

1026 Poyntz

Parkside conoco & U-Haul

If you need abortion or birth control services, we can help.

Confidential pregnancy testing•Safe, affordable abortion services•Birth control•Tubal ligation•Gyn exams•Testing and Treatment for sexually transmitted diseases. Providing quality health care to women since 1974.

Insurance, VISA & Mastercard accepted.

Comprehensive Health for Women

4401 West 109th (I-435 & Roe) Overland Park, Kansas

For information and appointments (913) 345-1400

Toll Free 1-800-227-1918

IT'S NOT TOO LATE

to get your portrait taken for the Royal Purple.

OCT. 26 IS THE FINAL DAY

If you live off campus or missed the scheduled time for your sorority, fraternity or residence hall, you may still get your picture taken from now until Friday, Oct. 26. Don't wait until it's too late. Make an appointment today!

Call 532-7808

Studio Hours: 8:30 a.m.-noon & 1-5:30 p.m.

Location: K-State Union 209

Sitting Fee: $4

(Receipt must be shown if this was paid at registration.)

1991 ROYAL PURPLE

TONIGHT!

.99 PITCHERS

.75 LONGNECKS

.50 WELLS

.25 KAMIS

BAYSTREET AND THE PIT

Trying to hide your beautiful hair?

It's hats off at

HAIR EXPERTS DESIGN TEAM

1323 Anderson Avenue • Manhattan, KS 66502

Today's perms are formulated to help you achieve the look you want. Call now, for a free consultation.

776-4455

SAVE SAVE SAVE SAVE SAVE SAVE SAVE SAVE

This coupon is good for any regularly priced product or services.

$5 off

This coupon cannot be used in connection with any other discount or offer.

This coupon must be used before 11 22 90

HAIR EXPERTS DESIGN TEAM 1323 Anderson Ave. • 776-4455

SAVE SAVE COUPON SAVE SAVE

THEY'RE A PART OF YOUR LIFE

Collegian Royal Purple Campus Directory

STUDENTS SEEK SOLUTION

Student employees of Student Publications Inc. formed a committee Tuesday to seek solutions to the impending budget deficit.

More than 50 employees from the Kansas State Collegian and Royal Purple met to review cuts already made and to determine if additional cuts are feasible. The meeting came after students questioned the future and direction of the publications.

Reduced press runs, smaller newspapers and increased advertising rates have all been implemented in the fall semester. The yearbook has been reduced 32 pages and will have one-half the color pictures as in previous years.

David Svoboda, Board of Student Publications member and Collegian sports editor, said he called the meeting to give students an opportunity to express their concerns.

"It gave students — not just editors or upper-level management — a chance to get things off their chests," Svoboda said. "It brought to a focus some solutions to some of our problems."

One issue addressed by the students was damage to product quality.

"We've had to run smaller papers with more advertising and less news in order to generate more advertising revenue to compensate for Student Publications' financial crisis," said Eric Henry, Collegian editor. "I think it's had a direct and visible effect on the Collegian."

The Collegian has been hampered in its efforts to maintain the level of excellence of past semesters, Henry said.

"I think we're at a point where any additional cuts would damage the quality of the yearbook," said Margo Keller, Royal Purple editor. "We don't want to compromise quality coverage and information."

Dan Golden, advertising manager, said ad sales have been declining for three years due to a weak economy, and people have fewer advertising dollars. He said each advertising representative services between 125 and 150 clients.

Svoboda, the 1986 spring Collegian editor, said there is a noticeable difference in current Collegians as compared to previous years. Shortened stories and fewer national and international wire stories were illustrations he used.

The party most injured, he said, is the readers.

"Ultimately, we owe it to the readers and to ourselves to ensure the quality doesn't slip more than it already has," Svoboda said.

Student participation at the meeting gave hope that a solution can be found.

"The neat thing I thought of the turnout was that some of the people most concerned about the future of Student Publications are the people who may not be around to see the results of their actions," Henry said. "I think it shows how valuable experience at Student Publications is to the students.

"When this many people show this strong, heart-felt concern, it says something," he said.

Golden said the intent of the student committee is to make people aware of the problem.

"We need to make the student body aware that there is a possibility one morning they are not going to go get their morning paper," he said. "It won't be there because the machines went down or we're just out of money."

People started working together at the meeting, Keller said, and the students received a chance to see how other sections of Student Publications are dealing with the crisis.

"It's going to take a combined effort," she said. "This isn't just the future of Student Publications, but the future of how we get our information. People have to be aware of the consequences."

The Collegian is more than ink and paper. It is the tangible expression of the K-State community's interests and concerns. It defines your daily conversations, be they complaints about the administration or pleasure with the performance of the Wildcats on Saturday. It guides you through public controversy and explains to you how to interact with the institutions of your society. It's what's on your minds each and every day.

The Royal Purple is more than pictures within a bound cover. It captures a year in your life at K-State for as long as you live. It allows you to remember friends and events after they are gone. It is a document of your youth and the means to touch again the foundations of your life as an adult.

Unfortunately, the cost of producing your newspaper and yearbook, which are among the top one percent in the nation, isn't cheap. And if money isn't found soon, the quality of the Collegian and the Royal Purple will decline rapidly and greatly. More than a good newspaper and yearbook will be lost.

A part of your life will be lost.

The student employees of the Collegian and the Royal Purple have already accepted cuts in pay and operating budgets to keep the quality high. We have identified further cuts in salary to make. That isn't enough.

More drastic steps, like cutting the frequency of Collegian publication from five days a week to four, might have to be taken — and taken soon.

We need your help.

Call your student senators or the Student Senate office (532-6541) and tell them you support emergency funding for this academic year and an increase in the line-item fee which supports the Collegian and the Royal Purple. Talk to Senate and Student Body President candidates about your feelings as to the importance of these publications in your life — and the lives of those who will follow you to K-State.

Thank you.

The student employees of the Collegian and the Royal Purple.

Student Publications in financial crisis

Ron Johnson

GUEST COLUMNIST

If you're not on campus early enough, the Collegian box is empty. When you get your 1991 Royal Purple, it will be 32 pages shorter than the 1990 book.

The reason?

Student Publications Inc., the corporation that publishes the Kansas State Collegian, the Royal Purple and the Campus Directory, is in a financial crisis. And, unfortunately, our readers and student journalists are feeling the ill effects.

It isn't the norm for the director of the corporation to address the University via the Collegian's editorial page. However, this isn't a normal financial crisis. Thanks to the newspaper's editorial board, I can use this opportunity to outline the situation, address a question or two and describe the difficult dilemma we're battling.

The Problem.

A. Advertising revenue has declined. Our expenses have increased.

Display advertising revenue in the Collegian has slumped primarily because of a soft retail economy, property reappraisal and increasing competition from other advertising media.

Conversely, the costs of printing, newsprint, student salaries, staff salaries, travel and production supplies have steadily climbed.

The result? Student Publications had a $54,195.26 operating deficit at the end of fiscal year 1990, which ended in July.

B. Our 12-year-old newsroom equipment is on the verge of collapse.

The Mycro-Tek word-processing system, which serves both the Collegian and the Royal Purple, was struck by lightning last year. After costly repairs, the equipment has locked up three times during news production this semester. The equipment could die without warning, discontinuing publication of the Collegian.

The funding needed? Estimates for replacement equipment range from $250,000 to $400,000, and Student Publications has no money for this purchase. All reserves were swallowed by the operating deficit.

The Resolution.

A. The corporation has already made cuts in its services to K-State.

The Collegian press run has been cut 1,000 papers already, and it soon will be cut another 1,000. As you can probably tell, advertisements and news stories have been crammed into smaller newspapers.

Travel to cover off-campus events has been curtailed. Next-day sports coverage is no longer financially feasible. Also cut is travel to national conventions and workshops, where we represent the University and stay atop the trends in collegiate journalism.

Collegian advertising and Campus Directory copy rates have been increased. The Royal Purple has been cut 32 pages just to keep its printing bill in check. The summer Collegian will go from twice- to once-weekly, and spring 1991 Collegian student staff salaries will be cut $800 per month.

Despite these cuts, other expenses continue to increase. Student Publications still projects a $31,296 deficit at the end of FY 1991.

B. To offset the projected deficit, Student Publications is asking Student Senate for an emergency infusion of funds this academic year.

Unless the corporation receives an immediate shot in the arm, further cuts will be made in the Collegian and the Royal Purple. The five-day Collegian publishing schedule could be cut to four days. Drop-off points could be cut. The 1991 Royal Purple, already purchased by thousands of students, might be trimmed even further. Student Publications must not run in the red.

The need? Funding to offset the projected $31,296 deficit.

C. Student Publications is also seeking an increase in its student fee allocation.

Full-time students now pay $4.80 per semester for Student Publications. Part-time students now pay $2.40.

After discussions with Student Senate leaders and full debate in the Board of Student Publications, we propose a $10 and $5 rate for academic year 1991-92.

The result? The Collegian and the Royal Purple could eventually restore all services to K-State students, and, at the same time, purchase dependable equipment on which to produce the daily newspaper and yearbook.

The Justification.

A. The Collegian and the Royal Purple are efficient operations.

The student fee allocation goes to three publications. However, if you calculate only the Collegian's share of the allocation, students pay just 3 cents each for a single issue of the Collegian.

On top of that, students get a massive yearbook for just $13, cut rates on advertising and a Campus Directory for just $1.50.

K-State students get a big bang for their publication bucks.

B. The Collegian and Royal Purple consistently rank as some of the top publications of their kind in the nation.

The Collegian was named the nation's best overall full-sized college newspaper in 1989 and in 1990, according to College Newspaper Business and Advertising Managers.

With 24 All-American ratings in 12 years, the Collegian is the only Big Eight paper in the Associated Collegiate Press Hall of Fame.

The Royal Purple has received ACP's prestigious Pacemaker award seven times since 1980. Both the Collegian and the Royal Purple won Pacemakers in 1984, the first time any university had done so. They repeated the feat again in 1987.

C. Even more importantly, student demand for the newspaper and yearbook has never been greater.

Just walk through the Union Stateroom during the morning or the lunch hour and notice how many students have Collegians with them. The newspaper informs. It entertains. It challenges. It provides a forum for diverse opinion. It does all the things a thriving, independent collegiate newspaper should do.

As for the Royal Purple, well, there are no 1990 editions left. Student interest was so strong, the book sold out.

The timing of this crisis is poor. The Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex addition, the Equal Opportunity Fund, the library — each is a crisis meriting the University's full attention.

All the same, Collegian and Royal Purple readers need to know our situation. We apologize for any inconvenience caused by our budget or by our damaged equipment. Student senators have already heard our plea, and they're learning more about our operation, our challenges and our commitment to quality.

We welcome your advice. We appreciate your help. We thank you for your continued readership.

Paid for by the Students of Student Publications, Inc.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

EDITORIAL

Numbers prove severity of budget crisis

Brad Seabourn

COLLEGIAN COLUMNIST

"A statesman is a politician who places himself at the service of the nation. A politician is a statesman who places the nation at his service." Georges Pompidou (1911-1974), French statesman.

A trillion dollars is what you get when you borrow a million dollars a million times. The current federal deficit is a little over three times that amount — or 3,000,000,000,000 (that is a 3 followed by 12 noughts, to use a Jethro Bodeen parlance), and it is beyond comprehension.

Then, of course, so is most of the elected population of Washington, D.C.

Let's place the deficit in terms most of us can deal with. If the federal government were to decide today — right now — to pay off the debt and assess each man, woman and child in America an equal amount to balance the books, we would each get a bill for about $12,000. That is roughly the cost of one brand-new, built-to-last, high quality, fuel-efficient, Japanese automobile.

The most recent crisis in the now monthly occurrence of American "crises" is the "Budget Crisis." And once again, Congress is panting and flatulating about having to make serious decisions concerning an even more serious budgeting crisis, as though the entire fiasco blossomed overnight.

The debt limit was $935 billion when former President Reagan took office in January 1981. Just to show how serious he was about the problem, RRRRRRRonny signed legislation raising the ceiling by $50 billion. Seven months later, he allowed the debt ceiling to be raised another $80 billion.

By the time President Bush took office in 1989, the federal debt ceiling had soared over 50 times that amount to $2.8 trillion in just 8 years. By comparison, the federal debt was barely $50 billion in 1940, but only quintupled to $270 billion by 1945 at the end of the largest and most expensive war in human history.

It took this country about 190 years to pile up a trillion dollars of national debt. It took only five years to amass the second trillion, and only four years for the third.

In just four more years, experts predict we will add another $2 trillion — for a grand total of $5 trillion in federal debt. By that time, we will be spending more for interest on that debt than for Social Security, the military or any other federal program.

Again, let's put this in terms your average American schmuck who manages to pay his taxes before the April 15 deadline, gets by on an occasional cost-of-living pay increase and survives on "road-kill" chili every Saturday night, can understand. If the monthly minimum balance on your credit card is the largest item in your monthly expenses, you are in deep doodoo.

Thus the reason for all the Congressional panting and flatulating. They finally know we are in deep doodoo.

How is this for a crisis: The 1991 federal budget deficit is now projected to be $169 billion — much more than the $100 billion deficit projected last January. And that is not counting the $100 billion the government says that it will need next year for the S&L bailout, or the $1 billion per month currently being spent on the "crisis" in the Persian Gulf.

With elections just two weeks away and a budget-compromise supposedly designed to cut the deficit nearly finalized, Congress would have us believe they are about to seriously address a problem that has this country on the brink of ruin.

A number of things make me doubt this.

For instance, a recent proposal in Congress to raise the debt ceiling to $5 trillion barely made the news. And you watch, it will unceremoniously be approved.

In my mind, this is comparable to MasterCard raising the credit line on my credit card after I have exceeded the $1,000 credit limit by a few hundred thousand, rather than freezing my spending and melting down my card into something a little more useful — like a plastic, multi-purpose crucifix and compass to stick to the dash of my car. Obviously, Congress intends to continue its trend of spending money it hasn't got.

And how does the proposed budget intend to solve the current deficit mess? Not by severe spending cuts, but largely by raising taxes. Raising taxes for wise expenditures like $700,000 on calendars for congressional members to give to constituents; or $1.5 million for training orthodox rabbis in Israel; or $2.1 million to study prostitution in Peru; or $219,000 to teach college students how to better watch television; or $700,000 to the Census Bureau to count trees, shrubs and ornamental flowers.

That's not all. The highly touted budget plan our tax dollars have payed Congress to concoct is based upon some laughable assumptions about the economy as well.

According to Congress and the White House, oil prices will fall more than 40 percent next year (any hints as to what is in store for Saddam Hussein in the near future?) and interest rates in the 5 percent range by 1992. According to Congressional hallucinations, by the end of 1993, if the budget is passed, the nation should be enjoying a balanced budget, treasury bill rates will be 4.4 percent and inflation 3 percent, and the economy will be cruising along with nearly 4 percent annual growth.

I suppose a budget has to be based upon something, but following the barnyard bull around with a bag and shovel is not what we pay them to come up with.

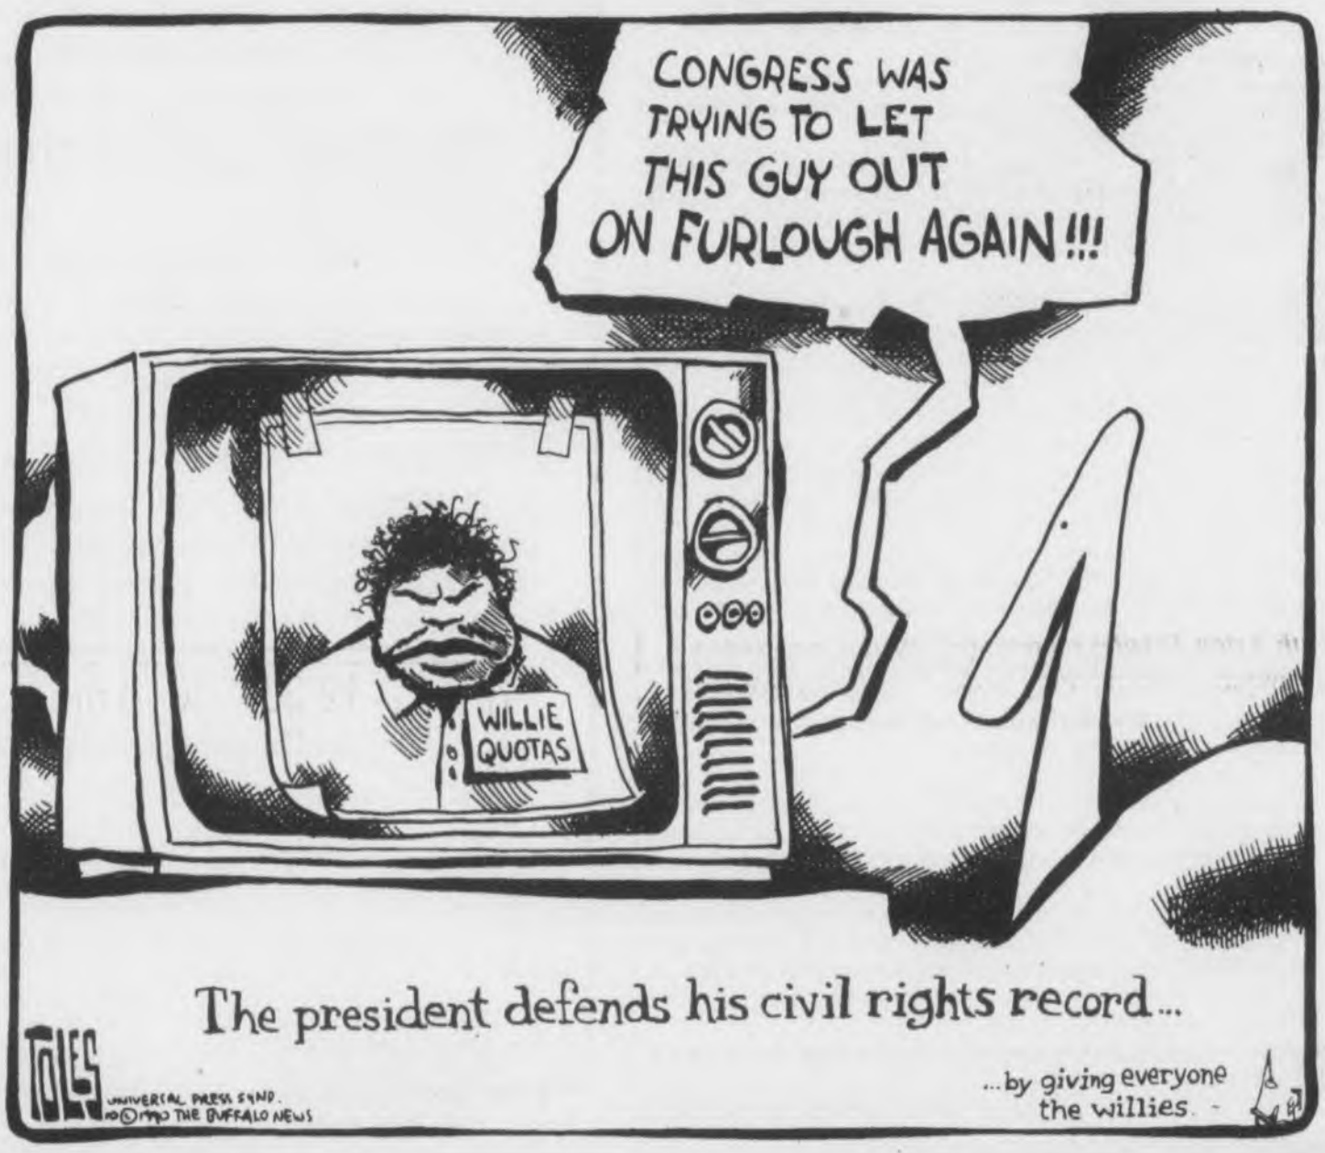
Hussein isn't the only one trying to dream his way out of a tight situation. We've got a place in Washington chock full of people who like to dream ... and they get paid for it.

EDITORIALS

Women in Navy not given equal treatment

This week, The Washington Post disclosed a Pentagon report on rapes and sexual harassment at the Orlando Naval Training Center, the Navy's only female boot camp.

The Pentagon report found that at least six rapes of female students or trainees have occurred at the training center since January 1989, but the Navy has not prosecuted any of the accused.



Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn authorized a congressional investigation of sexual harassment of women in the Navy in response to a request from Sen. Richard Shelby, D-Ala. Shelby had been following news reports suggesting that sexual harassment of women sailors is increasing.

The armed forces claims to offer women the equality they deserve. And they do — most of the time. Most of the time, women in the military manage to get equal treatment, promotions and honors by working twice as hard as their male counterparts. But not all of the time.

Women in the military are accustomed to working hard for their equality, but it takes only six unprosecuted acts of sexual harassment to take the Navy back to the Dark Ages. Or, in the widely publicized case of Gwen Dreyer, it only takes one act to ruin her Naval career. Dreyer resigned from the Naval Academy in April after being dragged from her dormitory, handcuffed to a urinal and photographed. All in the name of fun.

The Navy Inspector General's report said that the Navy's failure to prosecute has contributed to an atmosphere at the Florida facility that makes women "feel like they are second-class members of the Navy." Failing to prosecute acts of sexual harassment puts the Navy in a class by itself — beneath the other armed forces and far beneath the offenders.

The Navy tells its trainees "It's not just a job. It's an adventure." The female trainees would probably settle for some ordinary, mundane justice.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

News Staff

EDITOR ..... Eric Henry
MANAGING EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
NEWS EDITOR ..... Chris Koger
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/DESIGN ..... Brad Camp
ASSISTANT MANAGING EDITOR/GRAPHICS ..... Gary Lytle
EDITORIAL PAGE EDITOR ..... Wendy Snider
PHOTO EDITOR ..... Mike Venso
SPECIAL PROJECTS EDITOR ..... Ellen Dayton
GOVERNMENT EDITOR ..... Greg Branson
SPORTS EDITOR ..... David Svoboda
CAMPUS EDITORS ..... Steve Franzen, Lori Stauffer
FEATURES EDITOR ..... Tomari Quinn
ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT EDITOR ..... Rod Gillespie
COPY CHIEF ..... Mark Schreiner
COPY EDITORS ..... Amy Cox, Ellen Dayton, Angela Waltz
SCIENCE REPORTER ..... Scott Berg
STAFF REPORTERS ..... Kelly Berg, David Frese, Amy Hadlock, Kimis Hatjtimotheadis, Elvyn Jones, Erika Parker, Jan Puls, Alan Wilds, Paul Noel,
COLUMNISTS ..... Karin Dell'Antonia, Jana Leep, Dwayne Lively, Brad Seabourn, Kevin Zwink
REVIEWERS ..... Richard Jones, Heather Anderson, Stacy Lentz, Rebecca Sack
PHOTOGRAPHERS ..... Brad Camp, Margaret Clarkin, Brian Kratzer, Gary Lytle, Dave Mayes, Mike Welchhans, J. Kyle Wyatt
STRIP CARTOONISTS ..... Bob Berry, Jeff Gabel, James Smith, David Whitson-Lind
EDITORIAL BOARD ..... David Svoboda, Greg Branson, Steve Franzen, David Frese, Eric Henry, Tomari Quinn, Ellen Dayton, Chris Koger, Lori Stauffer, Wendy Snider, Amy Cox, Mike Venso

Advertising Staff

ADVERTISING MANAGER ..... Dan Golden
ASSISTANT MANAGER ..... Amy Zick
MARKETING/PROMOTIONS MANAGER ..... Johan Koel
CAMPUS/TEARSHEET MANAGER ..... Ronnie Metz
ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES/ACCOUNT EXECUTIVES ..... Elizabeth Latham, David Little, Mark Neely, Jayme Wall, Allyson Schaff, Amy Sall, Karen Lind
GRAPHIC ARTIST ..... Angie Humphrey
GRAPHIC ARTIST/PHOTOGRAPHER ..... Scott Boyd

The Kansas State Collegian (USPS 291 020), a student newspaper at Kansas State University, is published by Student Publications Inc., Kedzie Hall 103, Manhattan, Kan. 66506. The Collegian is published Monday and Thursday during the summer session. Second class postage paid at Manhattan, Kan. 66502.

POSTMASTER: Send address changes to Kansas State Collegian, Circulation Desk, Kedzie 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506-7167.

News contributions will be accepted by telephone, (913) 532-6556, or at the Collegian newsroom, Kedzie Hall 116.

Inquiries concerning local, national and classified display advertising should be directed to (913) 532-6560. Classified word advertising questions should be directed to (913) 532-6555.

Kansas State Collegian Subscription Rates

One Semester (Fall or Spring) $30
Two Semesters (Fall and Spring) $54
Summer Session $10
One Year (Fall, Spring and Summer) $60

To charge by VISA or MasterCard, call (913) 532-6555

Send orders and address changes to Student Publications, Kedzie Hall 103, Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kan. 66506.

LETTERS

System unfair

Editor,

We all know that we are living in a democracy. In this democracy, the majority rules but the rights of the minority are protected. Usually, in the past, I have been in the majority (pun intended). A letter from my adviser, however, reminded me that in at least one aspect, I am not. The issue is early enrollment.

I assume that most of the students here like early enrollment. For most, it is convenient. They already have a major and with that, a prescribed schedule. Enrollment is just a formality that moves the classes from a requirement sheet to a class-schedule form. Enrolling in early November is quick and easy.

But what about undecided students, students unsure of the grade they will receive in a certain class, or students thinking about retaking a class? As a member of the first and second groups, I find early enrollment inconvenient and unfair. How can I choose next semester's classes before finishing or even getting started in this one? If I need to retake a class, I have no option but to drop/add in January. Someone retaking gets punished twice: once for having to retake a class and then again for going through the drop/add process. The unfairness could be eliminated if enrollment took place later, after grades have been reasonably predicted and decisions concerning majors have been made.

Some may argue that drop/add is not that bad. That may be true, but the disadvantages it does cause are unfair. The minority should be treated as fairly as the majority. Those who must drop/add are not treated fairly. What about closed classes that would have been open if enrollment had been later? What about the two-hour wait in Willard Hall? What about having to drop a class in January that was enrolled in in November to retake one flunked in December? These questions show the discrimination caused by early enrollment.

Yes, I realize that there is a late enrollment in January. Again, this option penalizes those that must choose it. Classes are closed, and it's inconvenient to enroll when residence halls are closed.

Why not just move enrollment back a few weeks? Give us more time to analyze our current semester before forcing us to regiment the next. No one would be hurt, people with majors could still get the classes that have been spelled out for them, and some will be helped. After all, fairness in the enrollment process is a goal of our administrators. Maybe a later enrollment will help them reach it.

Tim Hubin
freshman undecided

Acquittal victory

Editor,

Although 2 Live Crew has been acquitted on charges of obscenity, without a doubt this will not be the last case of its type brought against a musical group. Although I am not a fan of 2 Live Crew, I do not detest them. I feel that the judge made the correct decision. The group should be allowed to put whatever they wish in their album. After all, if people do not like the album or finds it offensive, they are not compelled to buy it.

While protesters against the album contend it is crude and offensive, the question must be asked of whose opinion carries the most weight. This dilemma is answered by the First Amendment. Although the amendment permits freedom of speech, an implied understanding is that this right may not infringe upon the rights of others. Due to parental-concern groups and other associations, warning labels are already required for albums that are considered questionable. These are the same groups which wished to silence 2 Live Crew. If these groups are allowed to gain total control of obscenity regulations, is this not just the oppression of views to the other extreme?

Consider what would have been started if the group had been convicted. The situation would have snowballed. Groups such as Winger, The Boyz, and YBT are currently receiving criticism for their albums' content. Who is to say that these groups would not have been on the list of prosecutors if 2 Live Crew had been convicted?

The irony about the whole issue is what the protesters actually accomplished. In reality, they hurt their cause more than they helped it. By calling attention to the album, they heightened the awareness of the public and thrust the group into the national spotlight. Sales of the album increased because of the recognition. They also spread pamphlets which advocated their cause but listed the "offensive" lyrics for all to see. This is the same thing done by the album they were so set against.

While 2 Live Crew is not my first choice in music, I still do not feel they should have been prosecuted for their album. They have a right to produce their form of art. After all, one of the best forms of censorship is simply not to buy something.

Daran Lemon
freshman in accounting

No to Rec Complex

Editor,

On Oct. 30 and 31st, you will have a chance to go to the polls for Student Government elections. One of the issues on this year's ballot is the expansion of the Chester E. Peters Recreation Complex. I ask that all students turn out and vote no to the proposed expansion based on the following ideas:

- We already pay enough in additional fees per semester and any more is too much.
- Farrell Library needs our attention first.

Please turn out and vote no.

Jerold W. Spohn Jr.
junior in agronomy

Collegian Editorial Policies

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR are always encouraged. Those which pertain to matters of campus and/or public interest are especially encouraged and are given the highest priority.

Nightnoise releases best album to date

Delightful jazz music in 'The Parting Tide'

COLLEGIAN Report Card
"THE PARTING TIDE"
A

By Stacy Lentz
Collegian Reviewer

The fourth release by Nightnoise, "The Parting Tide," proves to be their finest recording to date, demonstrating a full, rich quality sound that makes it a consequential jazz album.

"The Parting Tide" carries the listener into a tranquil, peaceful world of music that can best be summed up as sheer delight.

Nightnoise creates a complex cross-cultural sound that meshes together but retains the separate bits and pieces of four talented but stylistically diverse musicians. The music is hard to describe and might be termed "classical Celtic pop." The group itself calls a mix "Irish-flavored, jazzy chamber music."

The group has demonstrated their instrumental and compositional skills in previous albums "Something of Time," "At the End of the Evening" and "Nightnoise."

The group is comprised of Brian Dunning, Micheal O Domhnaill, Triona Ni Dhomnaill and Bill Oskay. The members take turns playing various instruments, ranging from the flute to the electric guitar. The album contains original pieces by all four members of the group.

Nightnoise taps into its members' instrumental skill on "The Parting Tide," combining it with computer-triggered synthesizers that expand the sound to its fullest potential. At times it is easy to forget that you are listening to a four-piece jazz quartet — Nightnoise could easily be mistaken for a full-scale orchestra.

"The Parting Tide" only has two songs with lyrics, but these songs prove to be the album's best. The songs mix moving lyrics with soulful, relaxing music that surrounds the listener.

The ballad "Island of Hope and Tears" tells the story of Irish immigrants and their journey to America. The piece has lyrics that makes you feel their hardships: "Prisoner of home/We who could not stay/ Orphans of the storm how could we be turned away/My bed I carry in this sack/All that I own never to look back."

Other tracks on the album are less riveting but are still wonderful jazz compositions. They have a rich, warm, mellow sound with an Irish twist.

With its fourth release, the band demonstrates that they are a band not only noteworthy for their compositional skill but also enjoyable to listen to.

Granted, "The Parting Tide" is one of those albums that you definitely have to be in a certain frame of mind to enjoy, but Nightnoise is an up-and-coming group that is worth a listen.

Dot's Wonderful!
Surprise your pledge daughter with a
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Personal ClassAD
Kedzie Hall 103
8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday-Friday
ID must be shown when placing a Personal ad.

FLYING RABID MONKEY . . .
KILLER CHICKENS . . .
ONLY AT SUNSET ZOO.
SPOOKTACULAR OCT. 26, 27 & 28
2333 OAK • 6:30-10:30 NIGHTLY
$3 ADULT/ $1 OFF COUPON MIDWEST FAMILY DINING
AREA'S ONLY OUTDOOR "TERROR TRAIL"
KQLA 104

BRUSH UP ON YOUR DANCE STEPS
BALLROOM DANCE CLASSES
Starting now
SHARRON WASHINGTON DANCE STUDIO
412 Houston St. * Manhattan
537-2549

JONATHAN MORRIS
Placing The Student First
Paid for by the Students for Morris

WITH THIS COUPON:
$3 OFF ADULT Costume Rental
$2 OFF CHILD Costume Rental
Marie's Costumes
2011 Ft. Riley Blvd. • 539-5200
Hours: M-Sat. 10-6
Sun. 12-5

776-5577 1800 Claflin Rd. First Bank Center 776-5577
PIZZA SHUTTLE
"NO COUPON SPECIALS"
Prime Time Special: 3 - 10 in. Pizzas, 1 - Topping, 4 - Cokes, $10.00
Everyday Two-Fers: 2 - 10 in. Pizzas, 2 - Toppings, 2 - Cokes, $8.00
Fast Delivery...Anywhere in Manhattan

THE RIDE
KSU STUDENT TRIPS TO ART MUSEUMS
THE K. S. U. ART DEPARTMENT IS OFFERING A DAY TRIP TO KANSAS CITY NOVEMBER 3.
THE RIDE will take in :
sculpture by Jacques Lipchitz, works by Jim Dine, color prints from Cassatt & Whistler to current artist, South Asian Textiles representing dyed & embroidered techniques, contemporary work at the Leedy-Voulkos and Morgan Galleries
There will be a lunch break in West Port.
Students.....$6.00 Faculty & Friends.....$10.00
The bus will leave the south side of the Union at 8:00 AM, with return planned for 5:30 PM..
For information and reservations call or come to the Art Department, K.S.U., 532-6605, by November 1.
Made Possible Through The FINE ARTS FEE

ICAT/KQLA
WILDCAT SENDOFF
12:30-1:30 p.m.
at the Football Complex
KSU Band, Cheerleaders, Door Prizes
Smokey J's lunch stand
Proceeds go to Mike Ahearn's Scholarship Fund.

TKE Powder Puff All Star Classic
"American" vs. "National"

A		N
Vickie Licktenhan	Rachel Ratzlaff	Kim Rogers	Megan Morton
Heidi Chadd	Kathy Hayden	Greta Weichman	Nicole Fry
Amber Romans	Joycelyn Lucas	Karen Malir	Elyse Funk
Jennifer Liliedahl	Jennifer Flax	Amy Wiexelman	Angie Dunshee
Tiffany Strawhecker	Hawley Hoffman	Susan Wiexelman	Nicole Oliver
Shelly Wallace	Kelly Brown	Angie Terry	Janice Puls
Amy Beasley	Christin Quillin	Jami Benkelman	Yellena Jobanabic
Shelly Goddard	Coach: Andy Hill	Melissa McGraw	Coach: Mark Powell

Halftime spectacular-Crowning of Miss Puff
7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct 25-Griffith Park
Sponsored by: LAST CHANCE, POWER 94.5 FM, PIZZA SHUTTLE

UPC Arts Lectures Movies Outdoors Performances Travel
ALL ABOARD WITH UPC

MISSOURI CAVING
Cost: $33. Devil's Ice Box Cave. Columbia, MO. Trip includes: camping and caving permits, use of canoes, caving instructor, and meals. Sign up in the UPC office, 3rd floor Union between 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Driver's meeting: Tuesday, Nov. 6, Union Rm. 205, 7 p.m.
Nov. 10th

DIE HARDER NOW! "THE MONSTER HIT OF THE SUMMER!" DIE HARD 2
Oct. 26, 27 & 28
A major international airport becomes an arena for terror as Detective John McClane (Bruce Willis) is drawn into a deadly game of cat-and-mouse with an elite special forces unit which has seized a bustling airport in Washington, D.C. One of the best movies of the summer! FRIDAY and SATURDAY, 7 & 9:30 p.m. and SUNDAY, 7 p.m., Forum Hall. $1.75 with student ID.

20,000 Leagues Under the Sea
October 27 & 28
Plunge in spell-binding Academy Award-winning adventure in Jules Verne's high seas underwater tale of Captain Nemo, a scientific genius who offers his technological secrets to humanity . . . but, at a price. SATURDAY and SUNDAY, 2 p.m., Forum Hall. $1.50.

K-STATE UNION GALLERY
ResistANT
Kansas Architectural Club
Now through November 2

Oct. 24, 25 & 26
The story of a rebel & his mike
Roger & Me
"Roger and Me" is a highly original, personal and funny account of the tough times of Flint, Michigan, director Michael Moore's hometown. Moore gives cinematic teeth to his razor-sharp compassionate and often wryly humorous perceptions of what went wrong in Flint. WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY, 7 p.m., Forum Hall, THURSDAY, 3:30 p.m., Little Theatre & FRIDAY, 7 p.m., Little Theatre. $1.75 with student ID.

USED CARS October 26 & 27
Rival used-car dealers (Jack Warden, in a dual role) pull out all the stops in this outrageous salute to the super salesmen whose persuasive pitches transform rattling wrecks into " pre-owned" dream mobiles. Also stars Kurt Russell. FRIDAY and SATURDAY, Midnight, Forum Hall. $1.75 with student ID.

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

SPORTS

Former 'Cat harrier continues running

By Dan Wicker
Sports Reporter

It's not easy for an athlete that graduates from K-State to leave a mark so distinct it is remembered for years to come.

Jacque Struckhoff, a recent graduate and a former cross country and track performer, has accomplished this.

Struckhoff, who hails from the small Kansas town of Grinnell, made the transition from the small-town atmosphere to become one of the best national collegiate runners. Her years of eligibility ended in 1988, and she now resides in Oklahoma City.

Along with All-American Chris Vanatta, Struckhoff led K-State cross country and track to some of its best finishes in the past decade. During her four-year tenure, her wall of accomplishments included capturing eight Big Eight track titles and becoming a two-time All-American in cross country and track.

Struckhoff was also a leader on a cross country and track team that never finished lower than second in the Big Eight and along the way she set and still holds three K-State records. Struckhoff owns the 5,000- and 10,000-meter records in indoor track, the 2-mile record in outdoor and has the second-fastest 3.1 mile cross country time behind her teammate, Vanatta.

Royal Purple/File
Former K-State runner Jacque Struckhoff holds several school records.

Struckhoff does not hold any one of her accomplishments above the rest, but instead carries a load of fond memories about her college days in Manhattan.

"I don't think I could pick out just one thing. It was overall a lot of fun," Struckhoff said. "It was a lot of time and a lot of work, but I enjoyed it. I think it even helped me land my job."

Her employment in Oklahoma City carries on the health and fitness she practiced in college. She works on a program called SCORE, which Struckhoff said is a team of physicians, exercise physiologists and a dietitian. Struckhoff is the program's dietitian.

"The program is geared to preventing heart disease by putting people on diet programs to reduce their risk factors. It is basically a wellness program," Struckhoff said.

Recently Struckhoff made a trip back to her alma mater to help compose the list of the first inductees into the newly created K-State Sports Hall of Fame. She was the most recent graduate and the only woman selected to be on the Hall of Fame committee.

"When I first walked into the room, I felt a little bit out of place, but it was interesting," Struckhoff said. "I maybe didn't have as much input in selecting the famous players from way back when, but it was a lot of fun."

"She was selected because she is very intuitive. Although she may not talk much, she comes up with ideas that are very good," athletic director Steve Miller said. "We needed an athletic perspective, a contemporary person perspective and a female perspective, and Jacque brought all three of those."

Miller, who was the cross country and track coach for three years of Struckhoff's college career, was one of the most instrumental tools in that career, Struckhoff said.

"(Miller) knew what I needed and what motivated me. If I would have gone somewhere else, and the coach would have been different, I'm not sure I could have done that," Struckhoff said.

Miller said Struckhoff was one of his favorite athletes that he tutored during his coaching days. He said that he likes to see athletes come from small surroundings and make a climb to be a national caliber runner.

"The thing about Jacque was that she was painfully shy in the sense that she was almost non-communicative with coaches. My relationship with her was trying to communicate by her listening. It made our relationship very tricky," Miller said. "I knew that she had great skills, and I knew she would do what I asked because Jacque is an overachiever."

Having a health-oriented job has helped Struckhoff remain in fairly good condition. She said her love for the sport of running will never die.

"I run quite a few miles and compete in some road races. Where I work, health and fitness is real big," Struckhoff said. "I'm not in nearly as good as shape as I was in college, but I still love to do it."

Gary Lytle/Staff
Wildcat volleyball player Melissa Berkley digs a serve during K-State's 3-1 victory over Wichita State Wednesday night in Ahearn Field House. K-State now takes to the road for a pair of matches in Oklahoma over the weekend.

Spikers win thriller

By Russ Ewy
Sports Reporter

After stopping Wichita State dead in its tracks late in the fourth game, K-State came back from an eight-point deficit to take Wednesday night's match 3-1.

The Shockers built a 12-4 lead in the final game and looked to take the match to five games, but the 'Cats climbed back to tie the game at 12-12 with middle hitter Betsy Berkley's backcourt kill.

"I thought it was a typical indicator of what can happen in volleyball, in that K-State continued to side out real well once we got behind," Coach Scott Nelson said. "I kept telling them to side out and we'll be alright, and we gradually worked our way back in it. We got into a rhythm once we started siding out, and then we put a string of points together.

"That would not have been possible had we not had enough confidence and character to continue to execute and side out and not to become frustrated that we were behind 12-4."

After downing K-State in Wichita earlier this season, the Shockers started the match where they left off by winning the first game 15-12. K-State fought off Wichita State late both the second and third games to win, 15-11, 15-11.

"My impression was that we didn't look as determined in the first game as we did in the rest of the match," Nelson said. "In the second game, when we made a little run and came from behind to tie it up, all of a sudden we looked like the team we saw when Nebraska turned it on late in the first game and the second and third. We turned it up a notch and all of a sudden we were competing and determined, as opposed to playing and kind of feeling it out.

David Mayes/Staff
Kathy Saxton and Valery Roberts reach for a block during Wednesday's win over the Shockers in Ahearn Field House. Saxton led the Wildcats in attacks with 40.

"This was a much tougher Wichita State team than we played earlier in the year. I felt their defense and offense was real crisp. I thought the first time around with Wichita State, we made so many errors and they played steady, that they weren't challenged like they were tonight."

Nelson saw his team's offense spin its wheels after strong performances in the second and third games.

"We weren't able to score any points in the first part of the (fourth) game," Nelson said. "We made several unforced errors which contributed to that, but Wichita State played some great defense in the start of the fourth game. They created their opportunities for points as well as us giving them opportunities.

"Early in that fourth game we had a lot of service errors, and just a lot of unforced errors, our focus and concentration were lacking, but yet we had several plays go back and serve multiple, tough serves that were limiting Wichita State's offense and giving us the opportunity to score some points."

■ See VOLLEY, Page 14

Campbell emerges as one of league's best

By Todd Fertig
Sports Reporter

Backpeddling quickly to keep Michael Smith from blowing by on a deep pass route, the defensive back suddenly stops and directs his momentum back toward the line of scrimmage.

Just beyond the line, tight end Russ Campbell has caught a short pass and has turned upfield, shedding tacklers. The small, quick defender races to make the tackle, but Campbell, at 6-5 and 255 pounds, has had nearly 15 yards to gain speed.

The defensive back dives at the tight end's ankles and is able to trip him up, but not before Campbell lowers his shoulder and drives for several more yards.

Defensive backs have been diving at Campbell's ankles a lot this season. The junior from Wichita has registered 18 receptions for 269 yards this year, the best numbers of any tight end in the Big Eight.

After catching only eight passes in his first two seasons, Campbell's candidacy for all-conference recognition may surprise some people.

Campbell attributes much of his success to the Wildcats' balanced offense and to big-play producers like Smith, Frank Hernandez and Pat Jackson, who attract most of the attention of opposing defenses.

"It hasn't been real surprising," Campbell said of his success. "The way our offense sprinkles the ball around,, if you're getting to play, you're going to contribute, because it's so balanced."

Possessing experience and confidence this season has allowed him to produce more than in past years, Campbell said. He credits tight end coach Nick Quartaro for guiding his development.

"Now I've really learned the offense and have had time to really grow and mature as a player," Campbell said. "The fact that Coach Quartaro has had confidence in me has helped me have confidence in myself."

A late start in football, injuries and an experiment at the defensive tackle position his freshman year have all slowed Campbell's progress as a tight end. He said that he still hasn't produced like he is capable of and that he has room to improve.

"Overall, I see every area of my game can improve a lot," Campbell said. "When I came here as a freshman, I had a lot that needed to develop because I only played two years in high school."

While attending Wichita North High School, Campbell was better suited for the basketball court than the football field. He had yet to develop the stature of a tight end, and he played forward and center on the basketball team. Campbell was a member of the team that won the 6A state basketball championship and was recruited to play on the junior-college level.

"I was always real skinny, and my parents didn't want me to play football. Mom said I would get hurt, and I have," Campbell said with a laugh. "But I went out my junior year, and I had a really good coach named Dale Burkholder that encouraged me to play football."

Although he only played two seasons of football, Campbell was named all-city at tight end and defensive tackle and earned all-state status as a tight end.

Campbell comes from a part of Wichita that has produced numerous Christian athletes, including the Detroit Lions' Barry Sanders, Campbell's high school teammate. For Campbell, the importance of success on the football field pales in comparison to that of his Christian beliefs.

"I have had a lot of hard times with football because it's a rough sport, and I have learned a lot about pain and perseverance," Campbell said. "I really thank God for letting me do something that I enjoy, and he's been able to teach me a lot through football."

For Campbell, the sport and his convictions go hand-in-hand in many ways, and he relates the battles one must fight on the field with those of every-day life.

"The Bible refers to a Christian as a soldier and an athlete. By that it shows the need for discipline and perseverance," Campbell said. "Football has helped me to learn to be a fighter. As it takes perseverance to play football, you also need to be able to persevere in your walk with God, and it's not always going to be easy."

On the field, the struggles in the pits that never make the highlight film are just as enjoyable for Campbell as catching passes and breaking tackles. For that reason, Campbell enjoys the tight-end role, which calls for blocking defensive linemen and linebackers.

"The fact that you get to go catch the ball and still get to block people and get dirty makes it fun," Campbell said. "I can get a lot of pleasure out of driving someone off the line. That charges me up just as much as catching a pass."

In the Wildcats' win over Oklahoma State, Campbell gave the finest performance of his career, catching six passes for 97 yards. The game reassured Campbell of his abilities as a receiver.

"It reaffirmed my confidence that I could really contribute, because the two previous games I hadn't had a catch and just to be a part of a big win was great.

"It felt good that I got the chance, and I feel like I can contribute a lot more if I can play with more intensity." Campbell said. "In football, you have the chance to do something to make a big contribution on every play if you just do it with total concentration and intensity."

Mike Welchhans/Staff
Wildcat tight end Russ Campbell catches a pass during football practice. Campbell has caught 18 passes this year for a total of 269 yards. He ranks 10th in the Big Eight in receptions per game.

Backstage crews play important role

By Dan Scott
Collegian Reporter

The lights darken and the theater audience hushes in anticipation of the opening curtain as months of backstage work are about to be revealed.

The only problem is that the backstage personnel often go unnoticed unless there is a mistake in the performance, said Dana Pinkston, graduate student in speech and scenic designer.

"Backstage crews make or break what a designer does," said Pinkston, who has worked on between 30 to 40 plays over the past four years. "I would never overlook the backstage crews because sometimes they aren't even thanked."

Although they call it a thankless job, many students still show up to do the work. K-State students make up most of the backstage crews, said Kate Anderson, associate professor in speech and director of more than 15 plays at K-State. Some of the students join the backstage crews to fill a requirement for a theater class, she said. Others simply volunteer.

"Some people just enjoy it," said Marta Gilberd, assistant professor in speech. "It's a lot of fun."

Performing some of the jobs properly requires extensive training, Anderson said. The designing jobs, including lighting, sound, costume and scenic, require classroom training and theater experience. The stage manager also needs this type of training.

Other jobs, such as prop runners, need little theater background or special training. The prop runners are responsible for getting the props in the correct spaces at the proper time during a performance.

Because discipline and dedication are vital to putting on a quality show, all of the jobs require people with special characteristics, Anderson said,.

"They need to understand that it's a collaborative effort between the crews and the actors," Anderson said. "The cast must understand the problems the crew has, and the crew must understand the cast's problems."

An upbeat and cooperative personality also come in handy, Gilberd said.

"They need to be very well organized and need to have a kind of personality that works well with the actors," Gilberd said. "They need to be very supportive."

The problems start for directors many months before opening night, Anderson said. It starts with researching the script. This can take anywhere from several weeks to several months, depending on the complexity of the play.

For instance, in the upcoming play "Amadeus", Director Charlotte MacFarland, assistant professor in speech, needed months to research the play. Since the characters in the play are historical figures, care was taken to portray them truthfully while still keeping the play entertaining, MacFarland said.

Meanwhile, the lighting, sound, costume and scenic designers are researching their roles. In costume and scenic design, research must be done to get the scenery and clothing to fit the time period.

"We also spend a lot of time looking into past productions," said Gilberd, who has served as costume designer for several K-State productions. "We start that long before the actor gets a script or is even chosen sometimes."

Following the research, the designers do what they do best — design.

"The actual designing process is simple compared to the research," Pinkston said. On the average, the research takes a month or two and the actual designing takes two to three weeks, she said.

"By the time it comes to start designing, you should know the play and characters well enough for it to come naturally," Pinkston said.

While the process happens in two or three weeks, the schedule over that period can be extensive. Gilberd said that once she begins designing she will work 12 hours a day, six days a week, finding fabrics and doing the necessary fittings.

The directors find little spare time once rehearsals begin. The rehearsals last for about six weeks. During this time, the cast and crew rehearse for three hours a day and sometimes more, MacFarland said. An onslaught of meetings also begins.

"We like to touch bases every day," said MacFarland, who has directed more than 25 plays at K-State. "I don't think people appreciate the blood and sweat on the stage. There's no such thing as an easy production."

The meetings can be about seemingly frivolous things, MacFarland said. In "Amadeus," the main character continually eats gourmet candies while on stage so MacFarland needed someone to make them.

"We had to have a meeting just on that," MacFarland said.

HUNAM Restaurant & Lounge
Mini-Lunch Buffet
$4.50
11:30-2 M-F
Open 7 Days
We Deliver
1304 Westloop
539-8888 or 539-0888

Treat Yourself To A "Triple Whammy"!!
I Can't Believe It's Yogurt!
GREAT TASTE - NATURALLY.
537-1616
705 N. 11th
Nautilus Tower
Aggieville

Macs for Rent.
Come into Kinko's today and use one of our self-service Macintosh®
1/2 OFF
Self-Serve
Mac Time
Exp. 10/29
kinko's
the copy center

MOTORCYCLE SUPPLY
Soft Saddle Bags $69.95
Tank Bag $59.95
Motorcycle Cover $45.00
Full Vetter Helmet $60.00
Cargo Net $4.00
Shoei & Bieffe Face Shields
Winter Gloves
776-6177
OPEN Mon.-Sat. 9:30-6:30
1221 Moro on alley Aggieville

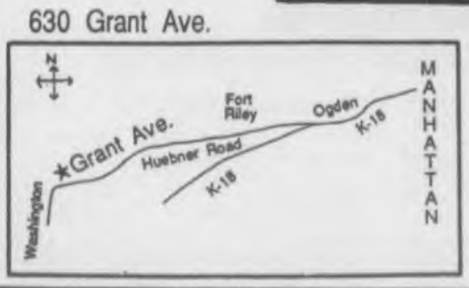
PREGNANCY TESTING CENTER
539-3338
•Free Pregnancy Testing
•Totally Confidential Services
•Same Day Results
•Call For Appointment
Walk-ins Welcome
•Located across from Campus in Anderson Village
Monday-Friday
9 a.m. - 5 p.m.
or by appointment

NORTHWEST DISCOUNT COMPUTER SUPPLY
Laramie, Wyoming
Mail Order Prices
with Hometown Service
Sales & Service
now available in Manhattan.
Complete AT286 $649
& 386 Systems & up
9 Pin Star $179
24 Pin Star $299
Color Printers $235
44 meg IDE drives with/H/F cont. $319
82 meg SCSI drives w/H/F cont. $499
BGA Paper White Monitor $139.95
Pick up a flier at King Clone/ Motorcycle Supply
Call 776-6177 or (307) 742-7218
1221 Moro (Behind Hardee's)

BUSHWACKER'S
· THE · FUNDRINKERY
THURSDAY
99¢ Pitchers
99¢ Wells

Arts & Science Council Elections
Are You Interested In The College of Arts & Sciences or Student Government? Arts & Science Council Applications are now available in Eisenhower 117. Applications due back in Eisenhower Friday, Oct. 26 by 5 p.m.
•Vote in the Union Oct. 31, 9-5

LORDS 'n LADYS
Hair Design & Skin Care Studio
218 S. 4th (V.F.W. Plaza)
776-5651
½ off Facials
½ off Perms (excluding designer perms)
½ off Colors
½ off Haircuts & Style
offer expires Oct. 31 with this ad
Ask for: Rita April Jennifer



MCCAIN
Coppelia
Royal New Zealand Ballet
Thursday, November 1, 8 p.m.
To celebrate its 150th birthday, New Zealand sends us a company of 40 sprightly dancers in a charming Romantic ballet set to a delightful score. Join the fun as a young man's infatuation with a life-size mechanical doll and a toymaker's attempt to bring the doll to life almost spoil a girl's wedding plans.
"A perfect Coppelia. . . It was a magical night." (Sunday Mail, Brisbane, Australia)

Students/Children: $9, 8, 6
General Public: $18, 16, 12
Senior Citizens: $16, 14, 10
Presented in part by the Kansas Arts Commission, a state agency, and the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency. Additional support by the Jeanne Welles Durkee Memorial Fund.
McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays. Tickets also available (with service charge) at Bramlage Coliseum, K-State Union, Manhattan Town Center, and ITR (Fort Riley).
McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.

CPI photo finish
one hour photo
Save 50%
on color processing & 4x6 prints
Each picture is the best it can be or we reprint it free... now!
4x6 Color Prints
50% off
regular one-hour price
No limit on number of rolls discounted with this coupon. Print length varies with film size. C41 in lab process only, not combinable with other processing and print offers.
Coupon good through Nov. 10, 1990
CPI photo finish
1010203
11x14 Color Enlargements
$9.95 each
(reg. $13.49)
Free Custom Cropping! 11x14 enlargements from 35mm and 126 negatives only. No limit, not combinable with other enlargement offers.
Coupon good through Nov. 10, 1990
CPI photo finish
1250203
one hour services: photo finishing • enlargements • reprints • double prints
also available: wallet photos • instant color passport photos • video transfer • copies from prints • cameras and accessories • film
Manhattan Town Center
main entrance by food court

Decorate for Fall
KSU Horticulture Club
Pumpkin Sale!
Pumpkins and gourds of all sizes.
Today, Oct. 25 & tomorrow, Oct. 26.
Outside Union and West Corner Waters

KENWOOD KENWOOD KENWOOD
Complete System $799.00

AUDIO JUNCTION, INC.
630 Grant Ave.

HI FI-Car Stereo-Video
Car Stereo Installation
Stereo and Video Repair
1-762-4447
Mon.-Fri. 10-7, Sat. 10-5
SYSTEM-290
KRX-89 Receiver with Cassette Deck
■ 100 Watts Per Channel ■ Discrete Power Amplifier ■ CD and AUX Input ■ Motorized Volume Control ■ Mic Mixing ■ Switchable between Speakers A and B ■ Muting ■ Dual 5-Band Graphic Equalizer with ± 12dB Variable Range ■ Digital Synthesizer Tuner ■ 20 Random Station Presets ■ Preset Scan via Remote Controller ■ Dual-Step Frequency Beat Reducer ■ In/Out Adaptor Jack ■ Double Auto-Reverse Full-Logic Cassette Deck ■ Dobly* B NR ■ C.C.R.S. (Computer Controlled CD Recording System) ■ D.P.S.S. (Direct Program Search System) ■ Relay Play ■ Timer Recording and Timer Play ■ Dual Speed Dubbing (Real and Double Time) ■ Fully Remote Controllable
JL-690 Speaker System
■ 140 Watts Maximum Input Power ■ 3-Way, 3-Speaker Bass Reflex Configuration ■ Rear Tuned Bass Port ■ 10-Inch Woofer ■ Teak Woodgrain Finish
SRC-590 Audio Cabinet
■ New Rounded Edge Design ■ Safety Glass Door ■ Teak Woodgrain Finish
DP-49 Compact Disc Player
■ C.C.R.S. (Computer Controlled Recording System) ■ D.P.A.C. (Digital Pulse Axis Control) ■ Optimum Servo Control ■ 4-Times Oversampling Digital Filter ■ Twin 16-Bit D/A Converters ■ 3-Beam Laser Pickup ■ 20-Track Random Program Memory ■ Inner Track Audible Search ■ Timer Play ■ 3" CD Single Compatible ■ System Remote Controllable ■ Auto Function

Recital shows trumpet talent

By Christy Gritton
Collegian Reporter

Kathy Wogan can play three instruments, but it is her talent with the trumpet that she will display this weekend as part of the Student Recital Series.

Wogan, a senior in music education, will perform on the trumpet at 3 p.m. Sunday in All Faiths Chapel. The 45-minute performance is free.

The program includes "Rondino" by Allan Street, "Concerto in D Major" by G. Torelli, "Suite for two Woodwinds," by Wilfred Roberts and "Sonata for trumpet and piano" by Halsey Stevens.

Wogan's music career began when she started playing the violin and viola when she was four. When Wogan was in the eighth grade, her family moved to a rural area and she changed school districts.

The change could have put a damper on Wogan's budding musical career — her new school didn't have an orchestra. The school did have a band, however, but this ruled out string instruments.

She was unable to continue playing violin, so Wogan switched instruments. Her father's old coronet was still under the bed, and he told his daughter she could use it.

"I guess it was a good horn in its day," Wogan said.

When Wogan was a sophomore in high school, she switched to the Bach Stradivarius trumpet which she plays today.

"I got first chair in the district, so Dad decided I could have a good horn," she said.

Wogan said there aren't many things that sound worse than a beginning trumpet player. When she first took up the trumpet, her parents made her practice in the barn. After a few months, she was permitted to practice in the garage.

Wogan plays both the trumpet and the piano. The trumpet is her major. She occasionally picks up the violin but stopped playing it seriously eight years ago.

The thought of playing violin in public makes her shudder.

"I wouldn't ever want anyone to hear me," she said.

"The hardest thing about playing is the same for all instruments," she said. "It's developing the discipline to get into the practice room."

Wogan is also a waitress, a drum major and a member of the Kansas State Symphony Orchestra, so her time is limited. She has, however, managed to fit some preparation for the recital into her busy schedule.

"I've tried to get in at least one hour a day," said Wogan.

Gary Mortenson, Wogan's teacher of two years, said that "Sonata for trumpet and piano" is usually performed by graduate-level students.

"It's commendable that she's taking on such a difficult work," said Mortenson, an assistant professor of music.

"She's improved a lot," he said. "She's pretty serious about what she does. She should make a fine music educator when she graduates."

KANSAS
for information on membership call:
JOY C. LOVIN
MEMBERSHIP REPRESENTATIVE
1-800-365-5222
EMERGENCY ROAD SERVICE

Hunam Chinese Restaurant

ROCKY FORD TAVERN
THURSDAY
1.50 Pitchers of OLD MIL
FRI.-SAT.
SUN.
3.25 Pitchers of Coors Lite & Bud
70¢ Draws
Go North on Barnes Rd.
1 mile from bridge

THE K-STATE UNION BOOKSTORE WILL BE CLOSED FROM 7 A.M. TO 1 P.M. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27 FOR INVENTORY
K-State Union Bookstore

Three new ways to survive college.

The Macintosh Classic
The Macintosh LC
The Macintosh IIsi

With Apple's introduction of three new Macintosh® computers, meeting the challenges of college life just got a whole lot easier. Because now, everybody can afford a Macintosh.

The Macintosh Classic® is our most affordable model, yet it comes with everything you need—including a hard disk drive. The Macintosh LC combines color capabilities with affordability. And the Macintosh IIsi is perfect for students who need a computer with extra power and expandability.

No matter which Macintosh you choose, you'll have a computer that lightens your work load without giving you another tough subject to learn. Every Macintosh computer is easy to set up and even easier to master. And when you've learned one program, you're well on your way to learning them all. That's because thousands of available programs all work in the same, consistent manner. You can even share information with someone who uses a different type of computer—thanks to Apple's versatile SuperDrive,™ which reads from and writes to Macintosh, MS-DOS, OS/2, and Apple® II floppy disks.

See the new Macintosh computers for yourself, and find out how surviving college just got a whole lot easier.

Available at the K-State Union Bookstore.
Call 532-6583 for more information.

K-State Union Bookstore

The power to be your best.™

© 1990 Apple Computer, Inc. Apple, the Apple logo, and Macintosh are registered trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. SuperDrive and "The power to be your best" are trademarks of Apple Computer, Inc. Classic is a registered trademark licensed to Apple Computer, Inc. MS-DOS is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corporation. OS/2 is a registered trademark of International Business Machines Corporation.

Population growth to affect US cities

By Charlie Gatschet
Collegian Reporter

The world's population problem may center in countries other than the United States, but the effects still hit home.

"The problem may be far removed, but the fallout from it will not escape us," said Werner Fornos, president of the Population Institute. "We will suffer with the rest of the world if our environment becomes so depleted that the planet is no longer habitable."

Fornos spoke at a luncheon sponsored by the Flint Hills Chapter of the United Nations Association of the United States of America Wednesday in the K-State Union. UNA-USA sponsored the luncheon as part of World Population Awareness Week, said Joann Goldstein, president of the group.

Fornos told the group in his speech titled "Global Population: Gaining People, Losing Ground" that five factors contribute to the world's population and hunger problem.

■ Deforestation. One half of the world's forests will be gone by the year 2000. They fall at a rate of 150 acres per minute. Fifty percent of all remaining forests are in countries that do not have forest-conservation plans.

"What we fail to focus on is the fact that these forests are the lungs of the Earth," Fornos said.

■ Top-soil erosion. More than 25 billion tons of top soil were lost last year due to urbanization, farming and desert expansion.

"One half of the world's population will be living in cities, urban cesspools really, by the 21st century," Fornos said.

■ Desert expansion. Africa's deserts are growing by six miles every year while the population grows at an alarming rate, Fornos said. Africa's population is expected to reach 1.4 billion by 2020, up from 661 million now.

■ Global warming. Before this year, Argentina had recorded five days hotter than 95 degrees; this year, they had 52 days. Singapore had never had a day above 95 degrees; this year, they had 91 days. Tokyo had had five recorded days of 95 degrees or higher; this year, they had 54 days. Rome had had seven days of 95 degrees or higher; this year, they had 81 days.

"Because of our tremendous appetite for wood-burning fuels, we are causing a warming of the planet that can have irreparable damages," Fornos said.

■ See FORNOS, Page 14

Thompson touts experience

Candidate defends record with bought-out savings and loan

By Alan Wilds
Staff Reporter

Democratic candidate for Kansas State Treasurer Sally Thompson believes the government should be run like a business.

Thompson met with University officials, the local media and the Kansas Association of Public Employees during her campaign stop in Manhattan Monday.

During an interview, Thompson said she plans to draw on her previous financial and business experience to bring a new perspective to the state treasurer's office.

"The fact the state treasurer deals with $10 billion of tax money dictates taxpayers want somebody with financial experience who can run the government like a business," she said. "In business, you cannot just raise prices without reason, and the government cannot just raise taxes."

Thompson said her experience as a financial consultant for banks, savings and loans, real estate, the Security Exchange Commission and various other businesses provides a hands-on knowledge for running an effective state treasurer's office.

"I understand how all major industries work," she said. "In order to balance the state's budget, you must be able to estimate state revenue, which comes from industry."

Thompson

In 1985, Thompson was recruited to lead recovery efforts of Shawnee Federal Savings and Loan. Although Shawnee Federal never recovered and was eventually acquired by Bank IV last May, Thompson said the experience has not damaged her credibility as a candidate.

"I was hired to re-evaluate Shawnee Federal, and that's exactly what I did, as well as saving the taxpayers $10 million," she said. "It's just another example of how I can come into a tough job and make the most of it, although I wasn't able to turn the lemon into orange juice."

Thompson's Republican opponent, Eric Rucker, said he disagrees.

"If indeed she made the savings and loan better, why does she refuse to produce documents to prove it," he said. "Obviously, these are serious questions that must be raised before anyone can consider her credible."

Rucker also disagreed with Thompson's statements concerning indebtedness on the Kansas highway bond program, which seemed to be of concern to her.

She said that Kansas has gone from a state with one of the lowest debts to a state with one of the highest and that an analysis needs to be done.

"We need to figure out how much the state should be in debt and what future resources have been committed to paying it back," she said, adding there is no plan beyond 1997 for the 20- and 30-year bonds committed for the highway program.

Rucker called this statement irresponsible and said there would be no accurate way of analyzing the bond in the distant future.

"To say there is no analysis being done is wrong. It is being done, but interest rates fluctuate over time," he said. "The further out you try to make predictions, the foggier it gets."

Assistance for the Margin of Excellence funding is another area in which Thompson said her experience would be valuable, especially to students.

"Education should be a major issue, and with someone like me, we can provide assistance," she said.

Thompson believes her qualifications for the state treasurer's position outweigh those of Rucker.

"He has spent all his time in a political environment and sees the office as strictly administrative," she said. "I see it as needing both administration and extensive financial experience."

Rucker said he agreed that the majority of his experience is with government, but he said that the state treasurer's office should not be thought of as only the chief financial office.

"I am a government administrator, and I understand what the treasurer's office is, but, more importantly, I realize what it is not," he said.

BRYAN TRAVEL COLLEGES
"Your Passport To A Career"
Travel Agent • Corporate Travel Mgmt. • Tour Operator
Convention Planner • Hotel & Airline Industry • Car Rental Agent
• Cruise-Line Reservationists • Travel Promotions
24 Credit Hours • Travel Geography • Correspondence Classes
Computer Training • Financial Assistance • Placement Assistance
CALL TOLL FREE
1-800-255-3507
1527 Fairlawn
Topeka, KS
66604

Placing The Student First
Morris
FOR STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT
Paid for by the Students for Morris

KSU Center for Leadership
presents
a panel discussion on
"Leadership: From the Perspectives of Academia and the Business World."
Panelists:
President Jon Wefald, KSU
Ms. Jan Ray, Winning Concepts, Inc.
Dr. Randolph Pohlman, Koch Industries
Dr. David Darling, KSU
K-State Union Little Theater
Friday, Oct. 26 1-3 p.m.
All are Welcome.

COOL SAVINGS!
Sanchos & Burritos 98¢ each
(reg. $1.50)
Taco Dinners $1.77
(reg. $2.50)
Sun.-Thurs. 11 a.m.-10 p.m.
Fri.-Sat. 11 a.m.-Midnight
Good Through 10-27-90
TACO HUT
Overlooking Westloop
2809 Claflin
539-2091

JOYCE'S HAIR TAMERS
Joyce's Hair Tamers
WARM & GENTLE PERM....$43 regular $48
QUANTUM PERM.....$35 regular $38
BIO-LAGE.....$40 regular $50
MEN'S PERMS.....$30
All perms include cut & style
Haircuts
Gals $12 Guys $8.50 Kids $6.50
All cuts include shampoo & style
2026 Tuttle Creek Blvd. Call: 539-TAME
JUNGLE TALK
Time for a stylish new look? An out-of-date hairdo can make a woman look older.
Apply and blend foundation with a damp sponge, then blot and buff off excess with facial tissue.
Our experts have the answers to your beauty questions.

Snookies
Tonight
25¢ Draws
75¢ Wells
Live Rock 'n' Roll featuring
"The Twisters"
This Sunday, Oct. 28
776-7726 • 1122 MORO • Upstairs

Treat Your Punkin' To A Personal and the COLLEGIAN will treat you to
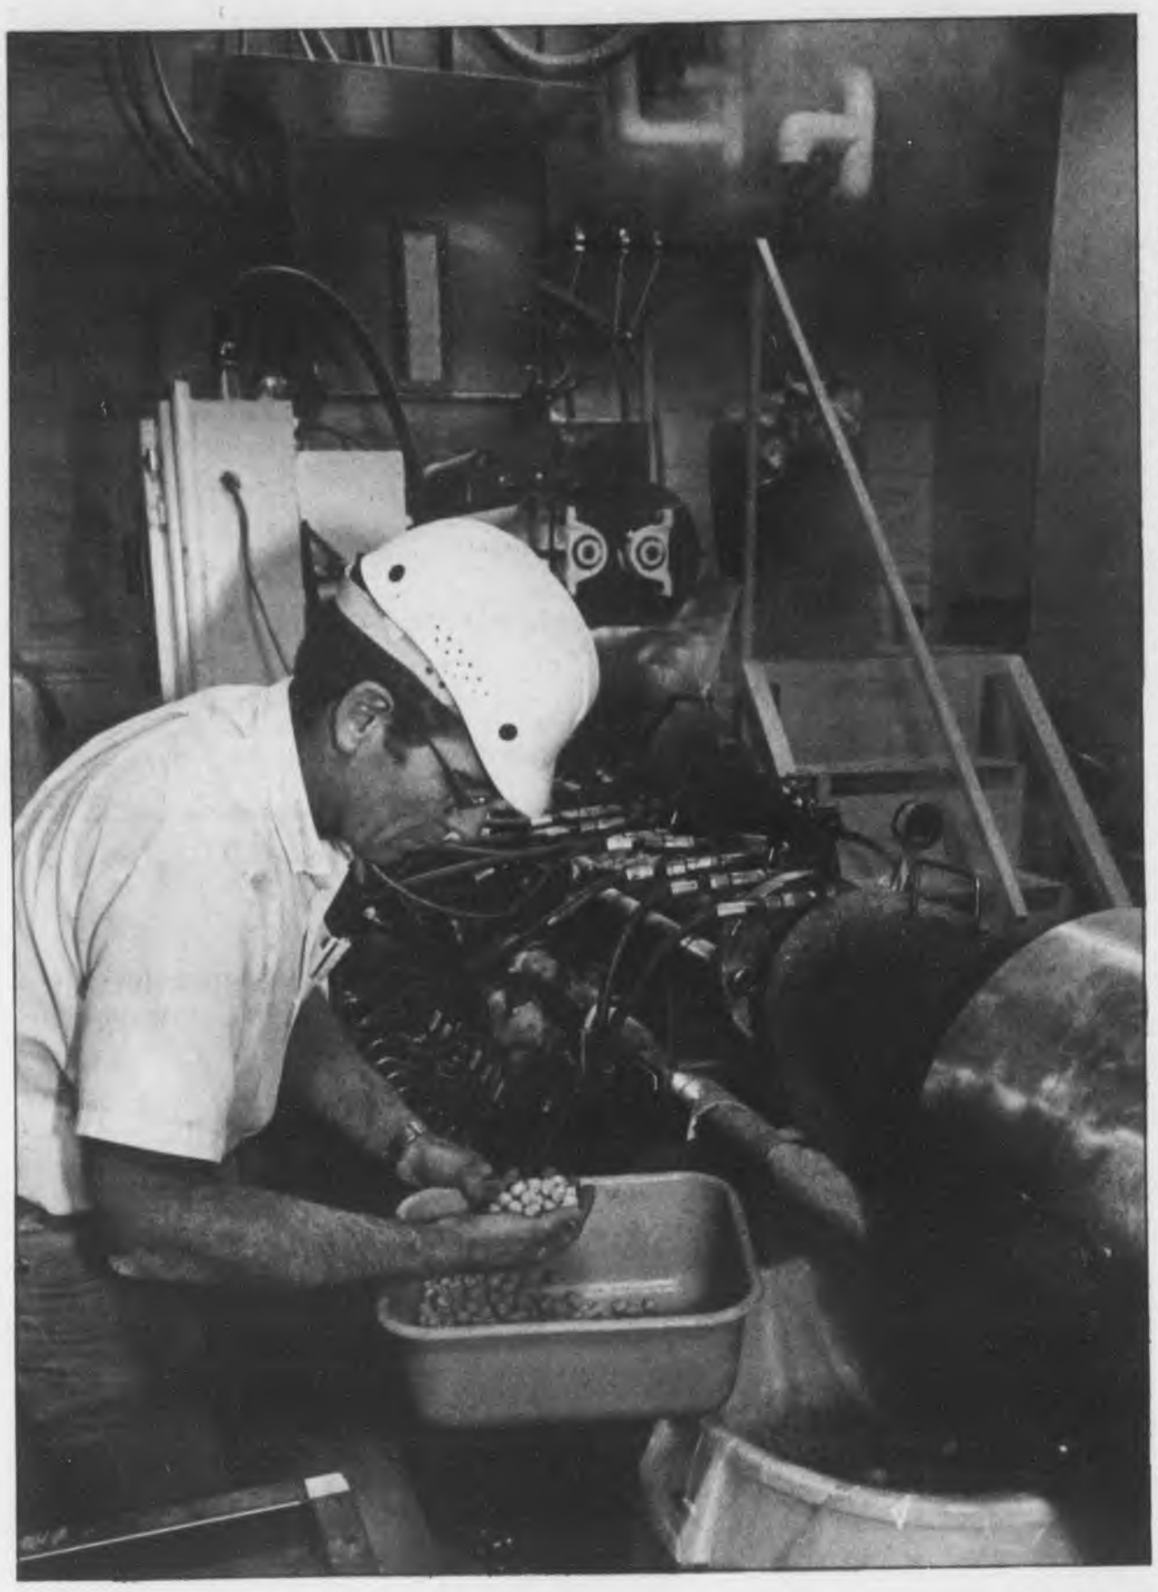
$1 off
your prepaid personal classified ad
Clip the purple coupon from the 1990-91 KSU CAMPUS DIRECTORY and bring it to Kedzie 103 by noon Tuesday, Oct. 30.
Coupon good for Oct. 31, 1990 issue only.
ID must be shown when placing Personals.

JOHNNY'D BE GOOD FOR...
UNIVERSITY FUNDING
"With my experience with state legislature and KSU administration, I have the knowledge to establish a base for higher education funding."
JOHNNY GAFFNEY
Student Body President
VOTE OCT. 30 and 31 in the UNION
Paid for by Johnny Gaffney

MCCAIN
As You Like It
Actors from the London Stage
Saturday, October 27, 8 p.m.
Explore the cruel reality of life at court and the idyllic beauty of life in the Forest of Arden. See five top-notch British players who've performed with such troupes as the Royal Shakespeare Company, the Royal National Theatre, and the BBC Shakespeare Series play multiple roles in this splendid comedy of love. Let your imagination set the stage as the actors bring to life Shakespeare's majestic and moving words.
"The Elizabethans would have understood and appreciated such imaginative stage work. How lucky for us to be able to experience it." (The Boston Herald)
General Public: $12
Senior Citizens: $10
Students/Children: $6

McCain Auditorium, Kansas State University
For best available seats, call (913) 532-6428 and charge your tickets to MasterCard or VISA, or come to the box office. Box office hours: noon to 5 p.m. weekdays and from 3 p.m. day of performance.
McCain Auditorium is accessible to the physically impaired. Call the box office before performance dates to secure appropriate seating or to arrange for a sign language interpreter.



ONE HOUR MOTOPHOTO
Photo Processing At Its Best
40% off Processing
(35 mm, 110, 126, Disc, C-41)
Expires Oct. 31, 1990
Mon.-Fri. 9 a.m.-6 p.m., Sat. 9 a.m.-5p.m.
Not valid with any other promotion
1134 Garden Way
Across from Westloop
C-28
776-9030

October
PORTRAIT Special
Sitting and 8 Original Proofs
Only! $9.95
Proofs are available for viewing in just One Hour!
Appointments are appreciated.
ONE HOUR MOTOPHOTO PORTRAIT STUDIO
1134 Gardenway Manhattan 913 776-9030

STEP Aerobics can burn up to 30% more fat than traditional aerobics.

STEP up to the challenge only at
The Ladies Club
"Manhattan's only fitness club exclusively for women."
1104 Waters 776-6469

Extruders shape food of tomorrow

Gary Lytle/Staff

Keith Behnke, associate professor of grain science, checks the quality of soy protein pellets being produced in the single-barrel extruder at K-State's Extrusion Center in Shellenberger Hall.

By Danette King
Collegian Reporter

The College of Agriculture's department of grain science has the capabilities to make everything from cereal to dog food — using one machine.

K-State's Extrusion Center is on the back side of Shellenberger Hall in a room about the size of a two-car garage. In this center are two extruders, a single and a twin-screw, and a dryer. These machines can make everything from Fruit Loops to cheese curls to food bars for rats traveling in space.

The machines form the products by combining moving agitation with heat and pressure. The heat and pressure determine how much a product will expand.

Extruders can also add water, steam, flavors and oils to shape the food in different sizes and textures, including round balls, flat squares, letters and stars.

"The extruders are not new," said Charles Deyoe, head of the department of grain science and industry. "What's new is the interest in extrusion processing."

Deyoe said he believes the rising interest is due to many companies' desire to cut production costs. In the past, snack foods, cereals and pet foods were made through extensive baking processes, usually using large equipment. As the equipment ages, companies are considering replacing it with extruders.

Deyoe said the center is valued at about $500,000, but part of that value comes from remodeling costs. The center's walls and floor are made of a washable material to help control contamination.

> "The extruders are not new. What's new is the interest in extrusion processing." —Charles Deyoe, head of the department of grain science and industry

"This way, we don't have to worry about products for human consumption," Deyoe said.

Research for the department and outside the University is constantly being conducted in the center, Deyoe said.

"We are often working with interested people from outside the University who come in and do test runs," Deyoe said.

The companies use the test runs to see what the extrusion process does to such things as different ingredients and flavors, Deyoe said. They also test for whether the pressure and heat of the extruders will effect the stability of vitamins in products such as cereal.

Paul Neumann, research associate for the department and director of the center, said companies test-run pet, snack and breakfast foods and process animal by-products to be marketed as feed.

The center recently finished extruding whole hard white wheat into small balls which look and taste like cereal without the coating, Deyoe said. A coating will be added later.

Neumann said the center runs an average of three to four days a week.

Recent research includes pet and zoo food. One project focused on exotic birds who need their food in a special shape and texture to maintain their weight and reproductive cycle, Deyoe said.

He said when consumers buy cereal for their breakfast and pet food for their dog they are buying extruder technology.

2 federal grants given to College of Agriculture

By Danette King
Collegian Reporter

The College of Agriculture's grain science and agricultural economics departments have received two grants from the United States Department of Agriculture totaling $75,000.

USDA's program, sponsored by USDA Cooper State Research Service Higher Education Programs office, accepted proposals from land-grant universities to fund undergraduate courses and research.

A two-year grant for $31,000 will enable the grain science department to offer a semester course this spring and next spring on extrusion processing.

"This is the first time a course will devote the entire time to extrusion processing," said Paul Neumann, research associate for the grain science department who is also in charge of the extrusion center.

The course, Extrusion Processing in the Food and Feed Industry, will be a multidisciplinary course open to any junior or senior. Neumann said the class will cover the basic principles and applications of extrusion processing.

"The class will be divided in two segments," Neumann said. "One will be devoted to the applications of extrusion and the making of basic extruder products such as cheese curls and breakfast food.

"The other segment will be devoted to the process and product development, as well as problem analysis," he said.

Neumann said he encourages students in grain science, feed science, chemistry, physics and engineering to enroll in the class.

Although the class will be offered this spring, it will not appear on the line schedule, Neumann said.

Any student interested in taking the class or wanting more information should contact the Department of Grain Science, he said.

The original proposal asked for $41,000 over three years. It was cut to two years and $31,000 when the department of agricultural economics received a $44,000 grant through the same program. USDA limits funding to one institution through this program to $75,000.

"CONTINUE THE COMMITMENT"

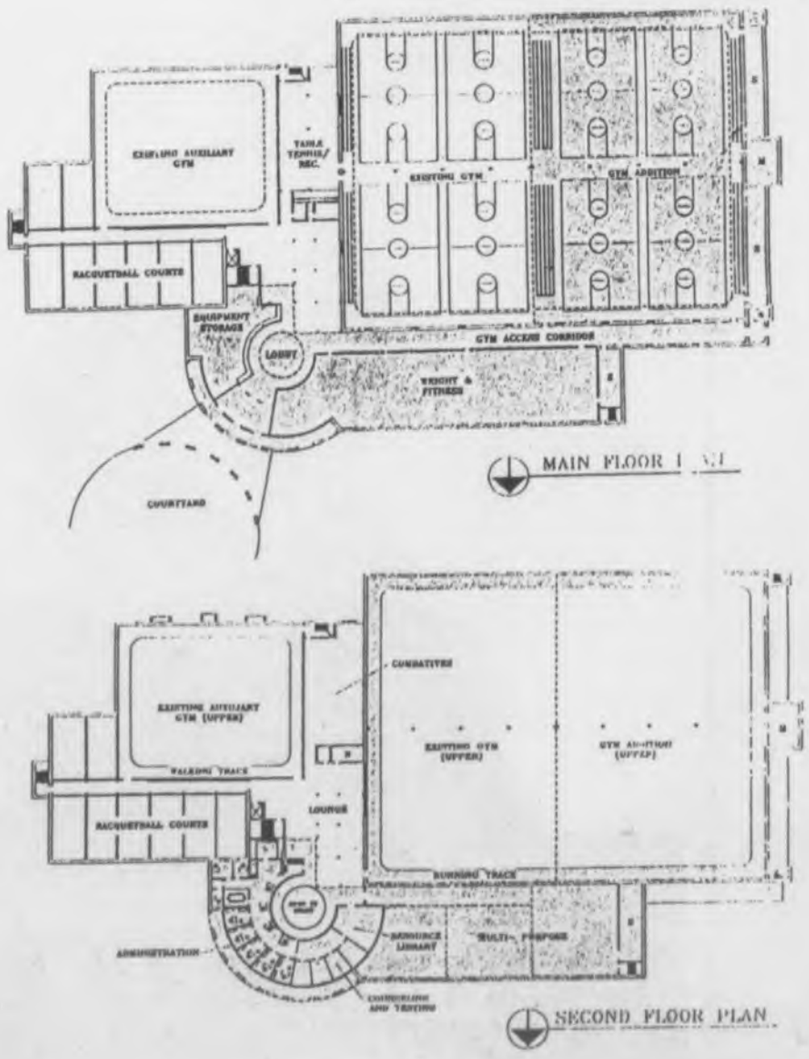
REC COMPLEX EXPANSION & OUTDOOR IMPROVEMENTS

INFORMATION SHEET
Rec Complex Expansion & Outdoor Improvements

PROJECT PLANS:

BUILDING EXPANSION
Add 4 additional basketball courts
More than double size of weight/fitness areas
Large multi-purpose room for fitness sessions, meetings, etc.
Longer running track (approximately 6 laps to mile)
Air condition the building
Wellness center/resource library
Spectator seating in large gym for intramural events
Re-surface handball/racquetball court floors and gyms
Renovate combatives area and lounge
Additional administrative offices

OUTDOORS
Re-surface tennis courts and upgrade lighting
Light playfields
Underground irrigation for playfields
Portable spectator seating for playfields
Add sand volleyball courts



FUNDING PROPOSAL:
Currently students pay $22.25 listed as "Refunding Bonds" which cover bonds on the Rec Complex, Union, and Stadium. These will expire in 1992. THIS PROJECT WOULD BE FUNDED BY RE-COMMITTING THE $22.25 FOR A PERIOD OF 20 YEARS.
THE ADDITION OF A $3.00 OPERATIONAL FEE BEGINNING IN THE FALL OF 1991 WOULD HIRE THE ARCHITECT AND THEN BE USED FOR EQUIPMENT AND STAFFING COSTS BY REC SERVICES.
Part time students would pay half these amounts as they do currently.

CONTROL:
The building will continue to be operated by Rec Services and governed by the Rec Services Council. It will continue to serve the intramural/recreational sports and fitness needs of the campus with no athletic or academic use.

DESIGN:
The final design is yet to be determined and will be done by an architect appointed by the State.

TENTATIVE TIME TABLE:

Oct. 30-31	Successful referendum
Fall '91	$3.00 operational fee begins and is used to hire architect
Summer '92	Bids let and construction begins with current building still being used during the construction with some adjustments
Fall '93	Building opens

YOUR VOTE IS IMPORTANT

The commitment started in 1976 when a record number of students voted in favor of the Rec Complex. It is now time to " Continue the Commitment."

PLEASE:
Be informed
Inform others
Encourage students to vote

YOUR VOTE COUNTS . . . GET OTHERS TO VOTE

We need over one-third of the student body to vote and a majority of this one-third voting in favor to pass the referendum.

IT IS UP TO YOU!!
VOTE—OCT. 30-31, 1990

Paid Advertisement

Mike Venso/Staff

Wm. Reed Benedict, Monica Franz and Pamela Evans, all graduate students in sociology, have helped Dennis Roncek, associate professor of sociology, right, plot criminal activity in Cleveland and San Diego to support their theory that crime can be controlled by zoning.

Researchers to address FBI

Group to present report on San Diego, Cleveland crime

By Mary Skinner
Collegian Reporter

A K-State professor and four of his former and current students will present their research findings Nov. 7-10 at the National FBI Crime Convention in Baltimore.

Dennis Roncek, associate professor in sociology, anthropology and social work, will be accompanied by William Benedict and Pamela Maier, graduate students in sociology, and former K-State students Monica Franz and Kevin Bryant. The group will present their findings on specific points, or hot spots, where crime is common in Cleveland and San Diego.

Over the past 10 years, Roncek has worked with the Cleveland and San Diego police departments in identifying the areas within the cities that have high crime rates. He has also studied the effect institutions, such as hospitals and schools, have on crime rates.

"When the 1980 census data came out, I wrote a proposal and received a grant from the National Institute of Justice to check on and see trends on the streets in Cleveland and San Diego," Roncek said.

The students going to Baltimore will confirm the trends found in Roncek's work from 1980 using data from 1970 by their own replication of his work using data from 1980, Roncek said.

"What's amazing is that the results are the same from the data collected in 1970 and 1980," Roncek said.

The cities were selected because they are entirely different, and if something is found that can cut crime in both of them, it can be used in other cities, he said.

The research discovered the patterns of crime and what elements of those patterns can be controlled.

Roncek and his students have studied non-residential land units, such as schools, taverns, convenience stores and housing projects.

"Anytime you bring more people into a residential area, you make the idea of social control difficult, because there are too many people to keep an eye on, which makes the situation right for crime," he said.

Roncek's studies show that the non-residential land units bringing people into areas also raise the crime rate. This could be controlled by zoning.

"Nothing will stop crime, but finding something that can be done on a short-term basis and make a small dent in it will be worthwhile," he said.

After the group gathered the data from the census bureau and police reports, it made maps identifying the city's hot spots for crime.

The area being researched was

■ See CRIME, Page 14

Bart T-shirts allowed into Missouri school

By The Associated Press

WILLARD, Mo. — Bart and the rest of the Simpsons have been welcomed back into schools in this small southwestern Missouri community, as long as clothing featuring the television cartoon family isn't too smart-alecky.

The Willard Board of Education voted Tuesday night to allow students to wear Simpson T-shirts and other clothing as long as it doesn't contain offensive graphics or slogans.

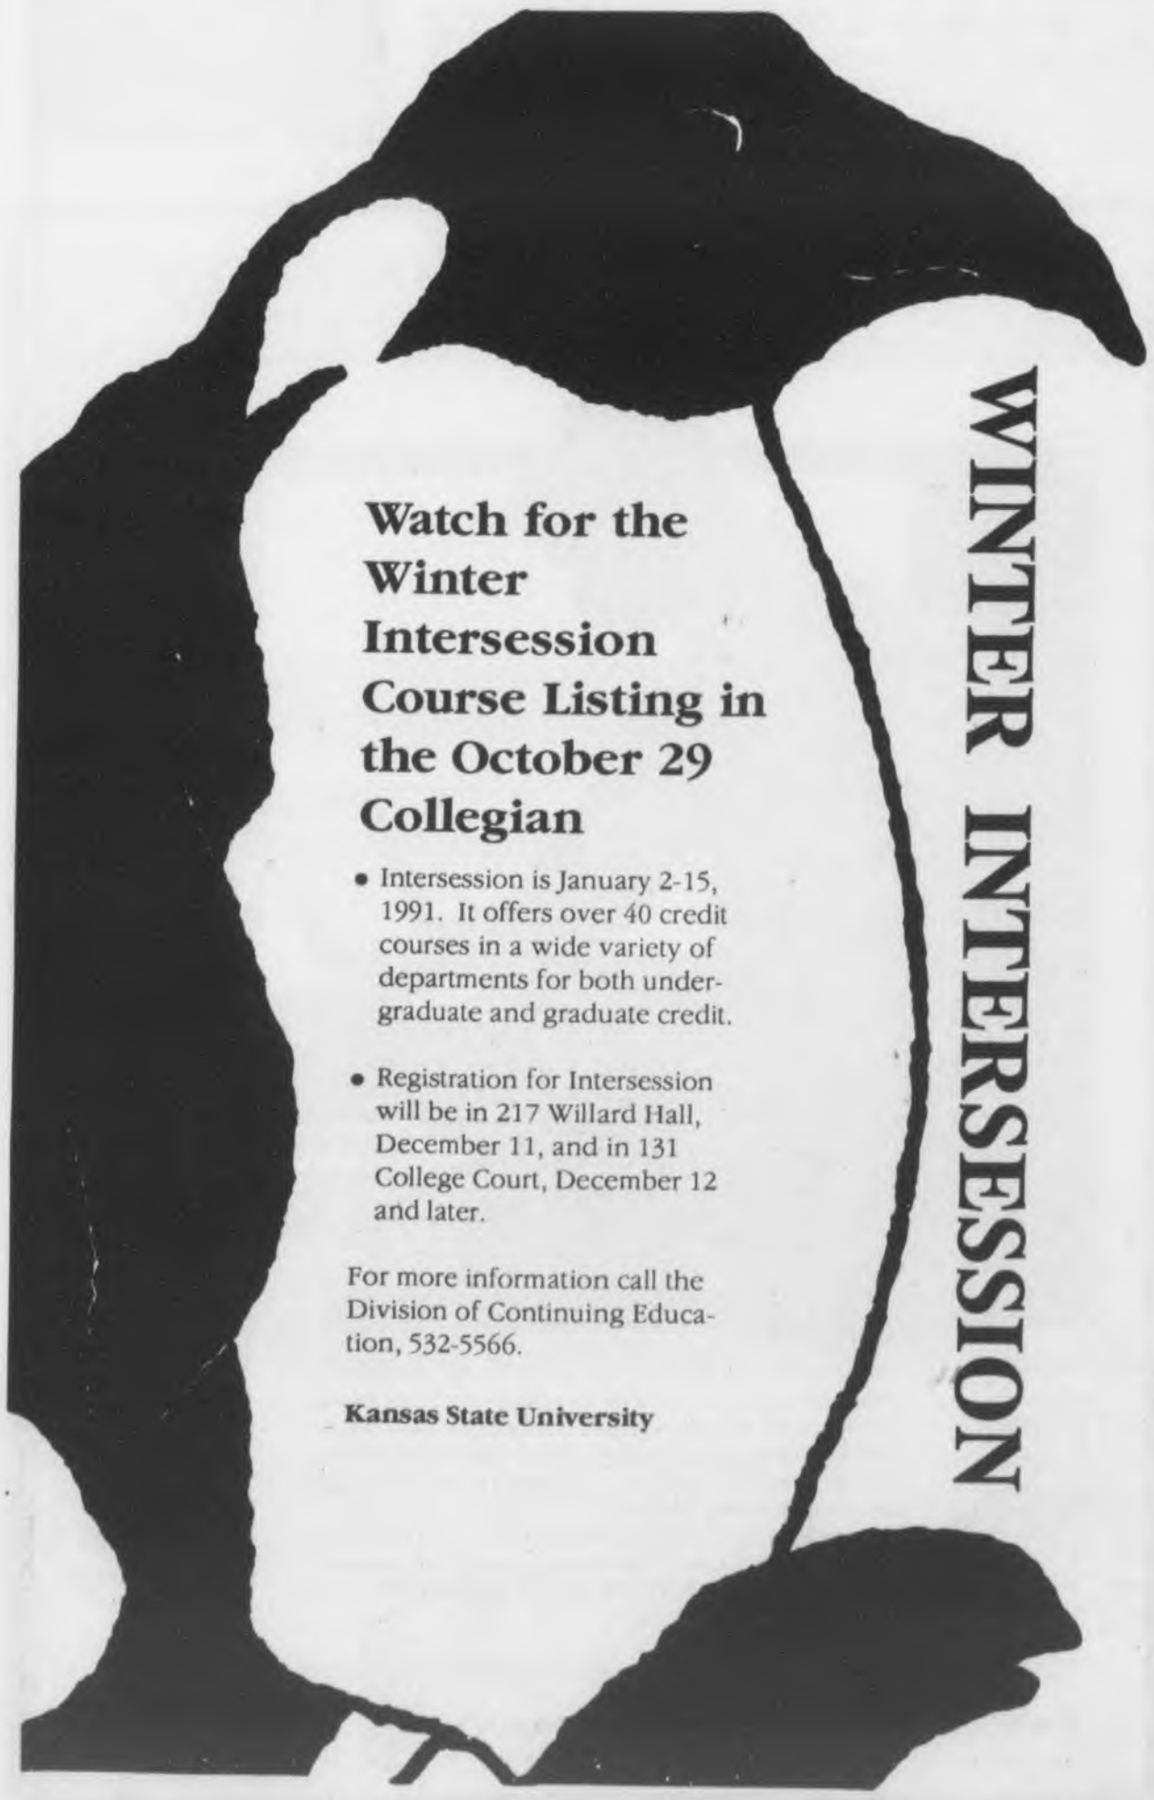
A temporary ban on Simpson shirts had been in effect since Sept. 18.

School officials were concerned that some Simpson clothing sent the wrong message to students, including T-shirts depicting Homer Simpson choking his son Bart and Bart proclaiming to be an "Underachiever and Proud of It."

"Any clothing that is offensive in nature or portrays a negative concept

■ See BART, Page 14

Halloween Savings



Kitchens Plus
Manhattan's "Fun" Place To Shop

COUPON
40% OFF
Halloween Merchandise
Cash or Check Only Supplies Limited

Kitchens Plus
Manhattan's "Fun" Place To Shop

COUPON
2 DAYS ONLY!!
20% OFF
All Regular Priced Merchandise
Except Christmas Items
Cash or Check Only! Expires 10/26/90

1110 Westloop Shopping Center
537-4046

WINTER INTERSESSION

Watch for the Winter Intersession Course Listing in the October 29 Collegian

- Intersession is January 2-15, 1991. It offers over 40 credit courses in a wide variety of departments for both undergraduate and graduate credit.
- Registration for Intersession will be in 217 Willard Hall, December 11, and in 131 College Court, December 12 and later.

For more information call the Division of Continuing Education, 532-5566.

Kansas State University

111 State Legislators voted for drug-free school zones

Katha Hurt was 1 of 10 who voted against them

Thankfully, for our children and for all Kansans, the bill to get tough on the sale of drugs on or near a school zone passed. No thanks to Katha Hurt. But that's not all. Katha Hurt voted against property tax relief time and again. And while our property taxes were going up, she was one of four who voted for up to a 40% increase in legislators' free postage. She even voted for a bill that would have reduced funding for K-State's Center of Excellence.

It seems the 62nd District has not been represented by someone who shares our values.

Kent Glasscock's record is clear. Kent has given a voice to those who haven't been heard. Kent Glasscock has been part of efforts to improve our lives with service to the Riley County Senior Center, United Way and the Flint Hills Bread Basket, to name but a few. And he took a strong stand on behalf of renters for safe and decent housing. As City Commissioner, Kent Glasscock supported the facelift for Aggieville–the front door to our university.

Strong leadership. Shared values. It's time we had them. Vote for Kent Glasscock November 6.

Paid for by Glasscock for State Representative, Bill Varney, Treasurer.

KENT GLASSCOCK
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Bus rides available to area art exhibits

By Tammy Rose
Collegian Reporter

Thanks to the Fine Arts Fee, students can now hitch a ride to artistic awareness and enjoyment.

The Art Department has implemented a program to carry K-State students by bus to artistic events in Kansas. The program, called "The Ride," was designed to enhance learning and enjoyment of art.

Gary Woodward, head of the art department, said the program was part of a proposal made to the Student Governing Association in relation to the fee.

This fall, a fine arts fee of $7.40 was assessed to students. The money is distributed through the departments of music, theater and art, McCain Auditorium, Ebony Theatre and the Office of Multicultural Student Organization. The visual arts receive 11 percent to fund art exhibits or trips to exhibits or museums.

Becky Brown, junior in business administration and business senator on the fine arts council, said the fee helps alleviate the cost of student tickets to events within the art, music and theater departments.

"It is an opportunity for students to receive a wide range of artistic influences at a low cost," Brown said.

Woodward said that the Fine Arts Fee covers about 40 percent of the costs of the trips and that the students have to pay the rest.

The first trip took 32 students to the Salina Art Center to observe American drawings on loan from New York City and to nearby Lucas, Kan. to see the Garden of Eden.

Woodward said that a 46-passenger bus was rented for the first and second trips but that vans may be used in the future.

The next trip, scheduled for Nov. 3, is to Kansas City to see the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art. Woodward said ads will be in the Collegian telling where and when students can sign up. The trip will cost $6 and admission into the museum is free with a K-State I.D.

The museum will feature three special exhibits during the time of the trip. Cubist sculptor Jacques Lipchitz' exhibit will feature 102 sculptures and 33 drawings spanning 1911-72. American artist Jim Dine will have 57 of his Glyptotek drawings on display as part of the Horizons contemporary series. A third exhibit will feature 100 years of American printmaking, including woodcuts, etchings and engravings.

Woodward said he hopes that "The Ride" program catches on and that students become aware of the opportunities to see art in the region.

Sisters stow away in van; set off neighborhood search

By The Associated Press

HUTCHINSON — Two young sisters who accidentally stowed away in a neighbor's van frightened their mother and set off a frantic search by police and neighbors before being discovered.

Jayme Mesa, 5, and her 3-year-old sister, Crystal, took an unexpected drive to Wichita Tuesday in a van belonging to Stephan Bailey, their neighbor.

Terri Mesa, the girls' mother, spent three long hours fearing that the girls were lost or had been abducted, before Bailey discovered the stowaways.

It began about 12:15 p.m., when Teri Mesa and the girls returned home after walking a third daughter, Amity, 6, to Faris Elementary School. Teri Mesa went inside while the two youngsters were taking their shoes off on the back porch.

Before Teri Mesa came back outside, the girls climbed into Bailey's unlocked van, which he bought this week. The girls probably didn't realize that he owned the van, Bailey said.

"They got in to scope it out. They hid in it," Mesa said.

Bailey and two friends drove the van to a nearby restaurant for lunch. Then they left for Wichita at about 1:15 p.m. In Wichita they ran errands and did some shopping. The girls never made a sound, he said, and might have fallen asleep.

When she realized the girls were missing, Mesa called police. The call for help was heard, and volunteers began combing the neighborhood.

"It's shocking how many people will start looking for your kids when you need them," Mesa said. "There haven't been this many people on the streets in a long time."

Eventually, copies of the girls' photographs were distributed and five radio stations were airing their descriptions.

About 3 p.m., Carma Schneider, one of Bailey's friends, spotted two heads behind the van seat as Bailey pulled out of a Wichita parking lot. Bailey called Wichita police, who called Hutchinson police to report the girls' whereabouts.

Hutchinson Police Detective Sam Walker brought the news to the Mesa house at 3:45 p.m.

The girls weren't scared once they recognized their neighbor, Bailey said. He finished his business in Wichita and took the girls for a meal at McDonald's before arriving at the Mesa house at 6 p.m.

"What a way to get a free meal," Mesa said, who had no shortage of hugs and kisses waiting for her daughters when they arrived.

Troops try to live comfortable life

Football, volleyball, playing cards ways to cope with difficult life in desert

By The Associated Press

IN EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA — Soldiers in the desert find creature comforts any way they can. A water bag is turned into a shower. A 55-gallon drum and a block of ice converts into a cooler. An overturned stretcher is a card table.

They may have no choice about being in a scorching desert, but the troops try small touches to make their hardscrabble home as comfortable as possible.

"This is either the world's biggest beach or the world's biggest ash tray," said Pvt. Scott Tenhagen, 19, of the 92nd Field Artillery.

"We're waiting for our grass to grow, but since we don't have a lawn mower, we hope it doesn't," Tenhagen, of Burlington, Ky., said from his tent.

The division, normally based in the arid lands of central Texas at Fort Hood, has been encamped in Saudi Arabia's fierce desert for 10 days. The 2nd Platoon calls its area "Six Flags Over Saudi Arabia," although it hardly looks like an amusement park.

Their olive-colored military tents are one of the few green things sprouting from a tortured landscape that supports only the hardiest camels, goats and sheep.

"These guys really know how to adapt. They'll do anything they can to make life a little easier," said Lt. William Moore, 23, of Orange County, Calif.

The platoon has erected wooden mail boxes outside their tent flaps. Inside, a section of canvas serves as wall-to-wall carpet to cover the sand. Gear is stored in cardboard boxes that once contained food rations.

Nearby, the group has created a shower with a water bag hung from a tent pole and protected by two ponchos. A couple of planks serves as a floor.

For recreation, the soldiers have a football, a volleyball court and playing cards.

Soldiers are getting two hot meals a day and eat field rations for lunch. They say they're getting plenty of water and the mail is getting through.

There's also training to keep them occupied.

Senatorial candidate uses humor in TV commercials

Challenger parodies documentary in ad

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — If he doesn't make it to the Senate, Paul Wellstone might consider a comedy career. The Minnesota Democrat with the droll Woody Allen demeanor is a clear standout in the field of funny political ads.

It's a narrow field this year, but Wellstone's shtick in his tightening race against Sen. Rudy Boschwitz is a little different.

The unassuming-looking candidate, a political science professor at Carleton College, races from one photo opportunity to the next in one ad and ends up chasing his campaign bus down the road.

He takes a leisurely cinema verite romp in search of Boschwitz in another spot, and in a third advises television viewers to look closely at his face because he doesn't have the money to buy much TV time.

"So when you get tired of seeing this face," Wellstone says as the distinguished, silver-maned Boschwitz turns into the curly-topped challenger onscreen, "just imagine it was the face of someone who was better prepared and in a better position to represent your interests ... not to mention better-looking."

A dogged search for campaign humor — the intentional kind — leads most often to Senate commercials, and almost never to gubernatorial races.

"There's really not too much to laugh about, I'm sorry to say," said Michele Davis, spokeswoman for the Republican Governors Association.

"The Senate has the luxury of doing a lot more that focuses on character and past votes," she said. "The governors are wrestling with abortion, they're wrestling with some economies going South. They're wrestling with taxes, which no one's laughing about these days."

The season's piece de resistance has to be Wellstone's two-minute "Looking for Rudy," a takeoff on "Roger and Me," the quasi-documentary about trying to find the chairman of General Motors.

In the Wellstone version, the candidate misses no chance to stress his underdog, outsider status as he fruitlessly pursues his two-term opponent.

"First I tried his campaign headquarters," Wellstone says in a voiceover. "I'll give you my home phone number, OK?" he tells nonplussed Boschwitz campaign workers. "Nice car," he comments outside in the parking lot.

A receptionist at Boschwitz's office tells him the senator is returning from Milwaukee. "I'll leave my home phone. Is this your pen?" Wellstone says. "I'm not sure, probably not," the receptionist replies. "I don't have a lot of money so I'll keep this one for our campaign, OK?" Wellstone says amiably as he exits.

Back at his own headquarters, Wellstone feigns desperation. "Did Rudy Boschwitz call? Did anybody get a call from him?" he asks his staff. "If you see a silver-haired gentleman in a plaid shirt," he tells TV viewers, "mention I'm looking for him."

Mark Anderson, a Wellstone spokesman, said the ads are designed to cut through "the self-important posturing that people have grown tired of in politicians" and to be creative enough to attract attention.

At least one of the goals has been reached. "Looking for Rudy" ran only twice in the Twin Cities area, but "everyone's talking about it," Anderson said. "It's on the local news. CNN did a story. ABC called. It's been a real boost for the campaign." Wellstone is now within 3 points of Boschwitz.

We Take Tips!
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
532-6556

KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN CLASS ADS

Kedzie 103 — 532-6555

CLASSIFIED RATES

One day: 15 words or fewer, $3.00, 20 cents per word over 15; Two consecutive dates: 15 words or fewer, $4.00, 25 cents per word over 15; Three consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $4.75, 30 cents per word over 15; Four consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.25, 35 cents per word over 15; Five consecutive days: 15 words or fewer, $5.50, 40 cents per word over 15.

Classifieds are payable in advance unless client has an established account with Student Publications.

Deadline is noon the day before publication; noon FRIDAY for Monday's paper.

Student Publications will not be responsible for more than one wrong classified insertion. It is the advertiser's responsibility to contact the paper if an error exists. No adjustment will be made if the error does not alter the value of the ad.

Items found ON CAMPUS can be advertised FREE for a period not exceeding three days. They can be placed at Kedzie 103 or by calling 532-6555.

Display Classified Rates

One day: $5.20 per inch; Three consecutive days: $5.00 per inch; Five consecutive days: $4.80 per inch; Ten consecutive days: $4.60 per inch. (Deadline is 4:30 p.m. two days before publication.)

Classified advertising is available only to those who do not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, age, sex or ancestry.

1 Announcements

ALL YOUR Mary Kay needs —skincare —glamor —nails —gifts for all seasons. Floris Taylor, 539-2070.

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

COLLEGE GIRL— Private room and meals this semester in exchange for assistance in small family home. Two blocks from campus— Write P.O. Box 652, Manhattan, Kansas 66502.

COLLEGE MONEY. Private Scholarships! Your receive a minimum of eight sources, or your money refunded. Guaranteed! College Scholarship Locators, P.O. Box 1881, Joplin, MO 64802-1881. 1-800-879-7485.

COME FLY with us. K-State Flying Club has five airplanes. For best prices call Sam Knipp, 539-6193 after 5:30p.m.

DID YOU know? Each year, 32 million acres of rain forest are destroyed. To find out how you can help save the rain forests, stop by the S.A.V.E. table in the Union on Wednesday and Thursday.

I LOST 18 lbs. in three weeks! You too can lose weight, guaranteed! Call 776-4764.

1991 ROYAL Purple yearbooks may be purchased for $13 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday in Kedzie 103.

SCHOLARSHIPS/ GRANTS for college are available. Millions go unclaimed yearly. 1-800-334-3881.

SENIORS— FRIDAY Oct. 26 is the last day the official Royal Purple portrait photographer will be on campus. Don't miss your chance to have your portrait taken for the yearbook, and to get extras for your family, friends and potential employers. Call 532-7808 for an appointment. Walk-ins will be accepted on Oct. 26 on a first-come, first-served basis. Don't wait until it's too late!

Hardee's DELIVERS 537-2526

Fraternities, sororities, campus organizations, highly motivated individuals— Travel free plus earn up to $3000+ selling SPRING BREAK trips to: Cancun-South Padre Island-Orlando/ Daytona Beach: 1-800-258-9191.

Don't Forget 99¢ Pitchers Tonight only at Baystreet

(Continued on page 13)

WANT PIZZA P.D.Q.?
SOUND THE CALL!
Call: 539-5303
1118 Laramie
We have a platoon of cars on alert to deliver your choice of our rich, luscious pies P.D.Q..
WE'LL MARCH RIGHT OVER.

USE THE MONEY-SAVING COUPONS BELOW FOR YOUR NEXT MESS.

2 Medium Family Pack — One Combo and One Single-Topping — $10.99
Medium All Meat Combo — Beef • Sausage Pepperoni • Ham Bacon — $7.99
2 Medium One-Toppers — Cheese plus one topping on each — $8.99 or 2 Large $11.99
$4 OFF Any Large Pizza or $3 OFF Any Medium

Not valid with Sunday FREE drinks or any other discount offers. Limited delivery area and times. Add $1 for delivery. EXPIRES: 11/11/90 KSU
Godfather's Pizza®

WE CAN MAKE YOUR JOB EASIER!
IT'S A PROVEN FACT!

Taking notes is one thing. Pulling a mental coup, now that takes something extra. You've got to lay the groundwork. Do the legwork. Follow through. Piece of cake, right? Assuming you've got the tools. A PC from Zenith Data Systems, of course! Our full line of PC's are available at the lowest price ever, which makes it more afforable than ever to own your own computer!
Come see what Zenith Data Systems has to offer you at the price that fits your budget! For more information, stop by the computer area on the upper level of the K-STATE UNION BOOKSTORE, or call 532-6583.

We also offer local installation and service through our authorized service center:

K-State Union Bookstore
MIDWEST APPLIANCE
624 Tuttle Creek Blvd.
776-6650

ZENITH data systems
Groupe Bull

Graphics simulate Microsoft® Windows™ Version 3.0 a product of Microsoft Corporation
© 1990 Zenith Data Systems Corporation

(Continued from page 12)

Ad It Up!
KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN
Display Advertising
532-6560

WELCOME TO KSU. Call for complimentary facial, Mary Kay Cosmetics. 539-9469, Janet Milliken.

2 Apartments—Furnished

RENT FREE country living in exchange for occasional assistance to wheelchair bound landlady. Some lifting. 1-494-8201.

3 Apartments—Unfurnished

NICE, CLEAN, first floor, one-bedroom apartment for rent from January— August. Laundry facilities, air conditioning and front door parking. Call John at 539-8143 evenings.

4 Apts.—Furn. or Unfurn.

Brittnay Ridge Townhomes
—More Than Your Basic Apartment—
•4 bedrooms, 2½ baths, study room
•Wired for cable, phone, computer
•Hot tubs & volleyball court
•Bus service to campus
•Monthly rent as low as $195
DWC
Dan Weir Co.
2601 Anderson Ave. 776-5599

AVAILABLE NOW. Quiet, convenient locations, various sizes, off-street parking. Absolutely no pets. 539-4087.

QUIET, EFFICIENCY apartment, 1131 Vattier, one block from campus, new kitchen, $240 per month, lease required, beginning about Dec. 1. Call Professor McGuire 776-5682 evenings and weekends.

ROOMMATE WANTED. Washer/ dryer, $125 per month plus utilities. Near campus. Call 579-5727.

5 Automobile for Sale

1970 PONTIAC Bonneville 455, four-door hardtop, good tires, runs well, 86,000 miles, $600. Call 539-1845.

1977 VOLKSWAGON van. Excellent condition. Rebuilt engine. $1,450. 539-9435 evenings.

1984 CUTLASS Ciera, blue four-door, air, power steering, AM/FM, cassette, $4,000. Call 532-3389.

1986 MITSUBISHI Colt E, four-door, AM/FM, air conditioning, new tires, five-speed, runs great. 776-2174 after 5p.m.

1986 SE Turbo Coupe Sunbird hatchback, AM/FM seek stereo, manual shift, great condition. 537-2097.

CLASSIC 1971 Monte Carlo. Fully restored. Must see to appreciate. $2,500 Firm. 776-0774.

7 Computers

HP 41CX, extra books, batteries, plus charger, $100. Call 539-3426 after 7p.m. Ask for Kip.

IBM— COMPUTER, printer, disks and manuals. Price negotiable. 539-3242.

USED HEWLETT Packard 28S calculator. Excellent condition! Call 539-5231.

8 Employment

The Collegian cannot verify the financial potential of advertisements in the Employment classification. Readers are advised to approach any such 'employment opportunity' with reasonable caution.

47 WAYS to beat the high cost of college! Make $12-$20-$50 an hour! Be Your Own Boss! Amazing 24 hour recorded details (406)756-5134.

ACCOMPANIST WANTED— For dance— either pianist or percussionist. Prefer someone with accompanying or improvisational experience. Must be free Tuesday and Thursday 11:30a.m.— 1p.m. Call Dina in KSU Dance Program at 532-6887.

ADDRESSERS WANTED immediately! No experience necessary. Excellent pay! Work at home. Call toll-free: 1-800-395-3283.

ATTENTION: AGGRESSIVELY expanding marketing company is looking for high quality individuals who desire excellent part-time income with possible rapid advancement into management. Send resume or letter by Oct. 31st, Box 981, Garden City, KS 67846.

COORDINATOR OF Art To Stop Violence theatre project, part-time, $7.50/ hour. Proven understanding of women's issues, especially violence against women, and experience in theatre are required. Send letter of application, resume, and names and addresses of three references to: Women's Resource Center, Holton Hall 206. For more information, call 532-6444. EEO/AA Employer.

CUT EDUCATION costs— College girl— live in and do duties in family home this semester and second. This in exchange for private room and meals. Write Box 1, Collegian.

EARN $300 to $500 per week reading books at home. Call 1-615-473-7440 Ext. B288.

EVENING AND Daytime office and telephone sales help needed. Pleasant working conditions, hourly wage and excellent bonuses. Call 537-6163, 9a.m.— 4p.m.

GRADUATE ASSISTANTSHIP, Women's Resource Center, .4 time, beginning immediately. To apply, send letter of application, resume and names and addresses of three references to: WRC, Holton Hall 206. For more information, call 532-6444. EEO/AA Employer.

HOME TYPISTS, PC users needed. $35,000 potential. Details. 1-805-687-6000, Ext. B-9701.

IMMEDIATE OPENING for a director of our dietary department. Must be a registered dietician or registry eligible. Should have menu planning, personnel development, clinical and community education skills. Competitive salary and benefits. Send resume to: Geary Community Hospital, Attn: Cathy Witt, P.O. Box 490, Junction City, KS 66441. EOE.

IMMEDIATE OPENING for part-time employee to help answer telephone and receive visitors at a local funeral home. Hours would include a couple of evenings each week and some weekend hours. Must have excellent communications skills, and get along well with all ages of people. Call 539-7481 for appointment.

INTELLIGENCE JOBS. CIA, U.S. Customs, DEA, etc. Now hiring. Call 1-805-687-6000 Ext. K-9701.

PLEASANT, ENERGETIC, personable. Salesperson for unique ladies apparel store. Send resume to: Spellbinders, P.O. Box 1103 by 10/26/90.

ROOM AND Board for help around home. 539-1656 or call Lavender and Lace 539-8705.

SUMMER JOBS Outdoors, over 5,000 openings! National parks, forests, fire crews. Send stamp for free details. 133 East Wyoming, Kalispell, MT 59901.

THINKING OF taking some time off from school? We need Mother's Helpers/ Nannies. We have prescreened families to suit you. Live in exciting New York City suburbs. We are established since 1984 and have a strong support network. 1-800-222-XTRA.

WORK-STUDY POSITION available immediately, 15 hours/ week, at the Women's Resource Center. Must be comfortable interacting with a variety of people. Prefer computer and other clerical skills. Call 532-6444 for an interview.

9 Food Specials

The Fishbowl
50¢ Tacos
99¢ Margaritas
105 N. 3rd • 776-9879

Bobby J's
Thursdays
Booga Booga Night
Any Burger and Fries Only
$1.99 + drink specials for the ladies
16 oz. Mason Jar of draft $1.25
539-1571

14 Lost and Found

CAROLYN G.— Your license has been rescued from the gutters of Aggieville. Call 776-1497 to claim. Ask for Dan.

I LOST 18 lbs. in three weeks! You too can lose weight, guaranteed! Call 776-4764.

17 Mobile Homes for Sale

AFFORDABLE LIVING across the street from nice pool, 12x60 mobile home, $4,750. 539-3513 leave message.

21 Personals

We require a form of picture ID (KSU or driver's license or other) when placing a personal.

A DATE'S not a date unless it's with me, meet me at the Town Center Mall for, "Nightmare on the Plaza III." Frightfully yours— The Manhattan Jaycees.

BETA SIGS Chad/ Steve— Tonight's the night we'll treat you right. Dinner's at eight, don't be late. Love Your Little Sisters.

DAVE M.— Got my b-ball tickets— Can you get me some for AC/DC.

(ECONOMIST) SHELLEY, Remember Farrell at 4 last Thursday? We were talking, vator hit 4th, you missed 3rd, we forgot time n place! Sweet! Looked for you since you've left Moore/ Derby, found you, lost you again. Don't know your whereabouts. Please reply. (Mathematician) Trig.

FRIENDS OF the Hartford House: This isn't in a neat little rhyme, but we're having a party anyway. Saturday night— in costume— Be there!

HEY, LOUIE— Good luck in your Powder Puff All-Star game! Love, B.I.

JARIV— THE last three years have been the best of my life; I hope we have at least a lifetime more. Happy Anniversary! I love you! —All my love, Boo.

KAPPA SIG Paul: Happy Birthday, honey! We'll celebrate all week long. Can't wait either. Love, Sandra.

KITTEN— FOUR years is a long time, but well worth it! Happy Anniversary! —Cube.

LAURA, IT'S our lives, we met each other at The Ranch. I'm glad you danced with me, or I'd had to miss the dance. Thanks, Andy.

LEVON— INCEST is best, put your brother to the test! Bimbalt, it's 4 to 4, Happy Birthday! —Suzi & Tommi.

PRIMOMAN— PLEASE don't have the blues, or think that we make fun of you 'cause this definitely isn't true. Beyond a doubt, We love you! Your sisters in Christ, Primowomen.

SEARCHERS: WHAT time is it now? Time to Pass It On! We love you!

SIGMA CINDY W., Some clues have been false, some clues have been true, but believe this one baby, your mommy loves you! Sigma Love, Mom.

TALL AND Paul: Thanks for the body pose! Your Search Family.

THE KEG party is over. I want my grey trash can back!!

TO KRISTEN and Mike "Wierslinger": Thanks for all you do, this day's for you! —Love, your "Crew."

23 Services

CONFIDENTIAL: FREE pregnancy test. Call for appointment. Hours: 9a.m.— 5p.m. Pregnancy Testing Center. 539-3338.

PREGNANT? BIRTHRIGHT can help. Free pregnancy test. Confidential. Call 537-9180. 103 South Fourth St., Suite 25.

PROFESSIONAL WRITER, editor will type/ edit your papers. 537-6009.

SUFFERING FROM Abortion? Write: HeartsRestored, Box 94, Grinnell, Kansas 67738. Confidential response will follow.

24 Resume/ Typing Service

AAA— RESUMES Plus. Personalized, laser-printed desktop publishing of almost anything. Rush service available. Resume only $19.50— you're satisfied or you don't pay! 776-2383, 7— 10p.m.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT Services— More than just typing— we create the resume with you, so it reflects your best. Then we computer typeset and laser print. Call for appointment. 776-1229. Owner, Kathleen Lowman has nine years experience in University Career Center.

COLLEGE PAPERS, resumes, letters. $1.25 double; $2.50 single. Quality work and print. Betty 539-6851, Claflin.

COMPUTER TYPED papers. $1.25 per page. Call 539-1690.

INTERVIEW COMING up? The Resume Service/ Graphics Plus offers a wide variety of services including: Typing or composition of your resume and cover letter, laser or letter-quality printing. Permanent computer storage and typing of data sheets. Stop by 343 Colorado Street or call 537-7294 or 539-6027.

LETTER-QUALITY $1.25 double. Reports/ letters/ resumes. Same day available. Please call Susan Lawson, 776-0676.

TYPEWRITER RENTALS and Fax. Also Sales and Service for Smith Corona, IBM, TA Royal and Silver Reed. Advanced Business Systems in Aggieville next to Chuck's Car Wash. 539-7931.

TYPING USING word perfect 5.1/ laser printer. Reasonable rates. Call Judy at 539-7100.

25 Roommate Wanted

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted, condo, one-half block west of campus. 776-9026. Nice.

FEMALE ROOMMATE wanted to share two-bedroom across from campus. Sublease required. 539-7494.

FEMALE ROOMMATE: $167.50/ month plus one-half utilities. Must be tidy and clean. 776-0774.

FEMALE ROOMMATE for spring semester to share beautiful apartment. Must be neat and responsible. Call 537-4595 for more information.

ONE OR two male roommates needed, spring semester, $160/ month, next to campus. Call 537-2368.

ROOMMATE: $131.25/ month, one-sixth utilities, own room, one and one-half blocks from campus. 776-2074.

THREE ROOMMATES wanted for four-bedroom apartment, next to campus, $145 a month, utilities included. For spring semester. Call 539-1720.

TWO FEMALE roommates for spring semester. Nice apartment, close to campus. $136/ month plus utilities. Christy 539-3387.

26 Stereo Equipment

TECHNICS SA-R921 stereo receiver, 45 watts per/ch. excellent condition. $200 or offer, 776-2220 ask for Tracy, leave message.

28 Sublease

FEMALE ROOMMATE for furnished house. Spring semester or now. Lots of privacy. $162.50. Amy 539-3886.

29 Tickets to Buy or Sell

KU/ K-STATE football tickets: Sec. 10, Row 55, Seats 9-12. Best offer from $12. Call 776-8677.

30 Travel/Car Pool

SPRING BREAK— Cancun!! Complete vacations including round-trip air from $269. Call International Tours 776-4756.

LAST CHANCE!
JANUARY SPRING BREAK
STEAMBOAT from $177
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
BRECKENRIDGE from $184
JANUARY 2-9 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
VAIL/BEAVER CREEK from $247
JANUARY 2-12 • 5, 6 OR 7 NIGHTS
9th ANNUAL COLLEGIATE WINTER SKI BREAKS
Sunchase Ski & Beach Breaks
TOLL FREE INFORMATION & RESERVATIONS
1-800-321-5911

32 Wanted to Buy or Sell

CAMPUS DIRECTORIES are here. Available in Kedzie Hall 103. $1.50 for students (limit two with ID). $2 for non-students. Campus offices may purchase directories from KSU Office Supplies. Check out the coupons in back!

DID YOU still want to purchase a 1991 Royal Purple yearbook? They are available for $13 in Kedzie 103 between 8a.m. and 5p.m. Monday through Friday.

EXCELLENT INVESTMENT Opportunity— Nice 16-unit apartment building, very close to growing KSU. 100% full, excellent history, very good net cash flow of $58,000/ year plus $4,600/ year management fee. 80% financing available with good borrower. This is a high quality property that the selling real estate broker has held a continuing ownership interest for the last six years. Price $550,000. Contact The Curtin Companies 776-1222.

FOR SALE: Maytag dryer, good condition. Call Sherri 776-2495.

FOR SALE: Stove, $75 or best offer. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m.

GOVERNMENT SURPLUS— Camouflage clothing, overcoats, G.I. Boots, field jackets, sleeping bags, much more. Also Carhartt workwear. Open Monday— Saturday 9a.m.— 5p.m. St. Mary's Surplus Sales, St. Mary's, Kansas 1-437-2734.

UNUSUAL ANTIQUES for sale: Baby stroller with metal frame, canvas cover, two large and two small wheels, $75; portable Phonola phonograph in wooden case, $50. Call 539-1371 before 8p.m. If no answer, leave message.

WE NEED your quality, used clothing. Exactly Right! Consignment Shop, opening next week in Aggieville, will sell your used clothing. Call 537-6009 for information.

33 Horses

HORSE BOARDING— Lots of TLC, hay, grain, plenty of room. $75/ month. 532-6946, 1-293-5684.

34 Wine and Beer Supplies

WINE MAKING cheap and easy. Free recipes and supply list included. Follow the instructions in this book and you too can make fine wine in your own home. Satisfaction guaranteed. Send $5 to: Excessive Endeavors, P.O. Box 10075, Columbia, MO 65205.

35 Martial Arts

KEMPO KARATE— Self Defense Kempo Karate is modern and traditional self-defense for men and women of all ages. It blends traditional Katas with modern day self-defense against punches, kicks, grabs and holds. Training takes place in relaxed atmosphere on revolutionary padded spring floor to make injuries virturally non-existent. On-going classes Monday to Friday 7:15 to 8:45p.m., $15 monthly. Contact Gary Roza 1-944-3691, Ken Schafer 539-3306, Little Apple Gymnastics 539-3613.

36 Haunted House

MANHATTAN JAYCEES presents, "Nightmare on the Plaza III," on the corner of Third and Poyntz, Manhattan Town Center Mall, 7p.m. to ?

37 Political Personals

STAN HOERMAN, The Margin of Excellence. Stan Hoerman, Believes In It. Stan Hoerman Will Vote to Fund it. Stan Hoerman Can Work with Leadership. Stan Hoerman Needs Your Vote Nov. 6! Pd. Adv. Stan Hoerman, Bren Abbott, Treasurer.

Glimpses

By Jeff Gabel

Campus Blues

By J. Smith & D. Whitson-Lind

Making the Grade

By Bob Berry

Jim's Journal

By Jim

Calvin and Hobbes

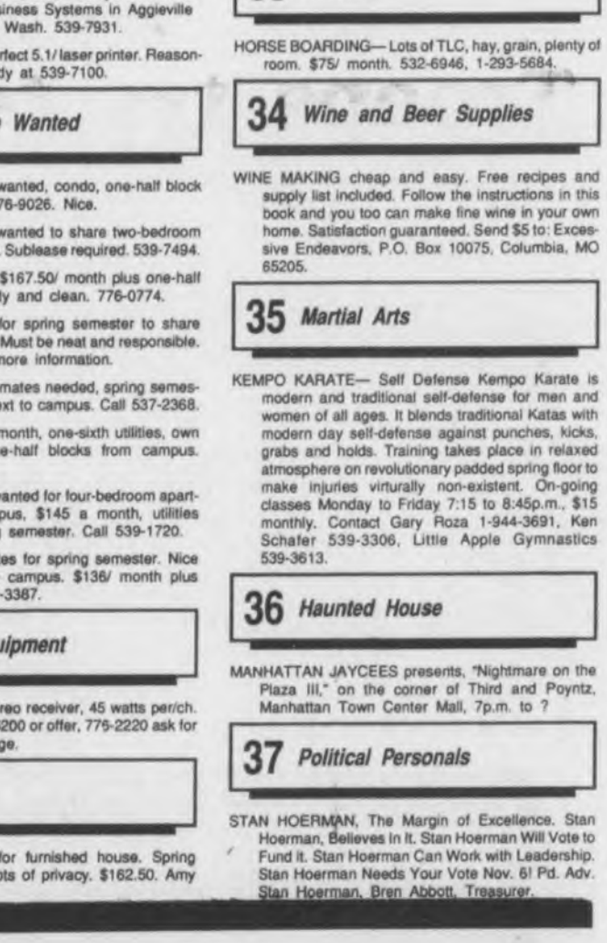
By Bill Watterson

Peanuts

By Charles Schulz

Crossword

By Eugene Sheffer



ACROSS
1 Agent, for short
4 Skiers' mecca
8 Home for Columbus
12 Actress MacGraw
13 Land in the ocean
14 See to
15 48-card game
17 Mexican munch
18 Sternward
19 Learned individual
21 Canadian island
24 Bees do it
25 I love: Latin
26 Smear-campaign need
28 Saturday night specials?
32 Irish county
34 Fiddle stick
36 Uncluttered
37 Zoo howler
39 Station stuff
41 Inlet
42 Sort
44 Van Gogh's "— Night"
46 Sell illegally
50 Oklahoma city
51 Somewhat
52 Reverse English
56 A "Golden Girl"
57 Hand-lotion additive
58 "— been had!"
59 Bambi, e.g.
60 Serenades the moon
61 Loony Louis

DOWN
1 Urban music style
2 Actor Wallach
3 G. & S. ship
4 To whom-dunnit?
5 Bat material
6 Misfortunes
7 Parasite
8 Fluffy footstool
9 Make sound?
10 Erstwhile Peruvian
11 Skunk's defense
16 Vacationing
20 Boston nickname
21 Baroque composer
22 Chinese port city
23 Gist
27 Obedience-school attendee
29 Freshwater turtle
30 '60s musical
31 Command to 27 Down
33 Mme. Defarge, e.g.
35 Existed
38 Every last crumb
40 Anti-vampire arsenal
43 Skewered meal
45 Commercials
46 Avon calling?
47 Reed instrument
48 Seine feeder
49 Festive
53 Demure
54 Wall climber
55 Born

Solution time: 23 mins.

L	O	T		M	O	A	T		E	R	A	T
A	N	I		O	R	L	E		L	O	G	O
M	E	N		N	E	I	L	S	I	M	O	N
B	R	A	S	S			L	O	X
			A	T	O	M		D	I	N	A	R
I	R	A	L	E	V	I	N		R	E	N	O
D	A	M		R	A	K	E	S		A	T	T
E	V	E	R		L	E	O	N	U	R	I	S
S	E	N	O	R		S	N	A	G
			B	E	G			R	H	I	N	E
G	O	R	E	V	I	D	A	L		D	O	W
A	C	E	R		L	O	V	E		O	D	E
P	A	S	T		D	E	A	D		L	E	R

Yesterday's answer 10-25

CRYPTOQUIP

10-25

PK TYKAPKO IEQK ATW ZGI-WI ZWQWS ATPWDWH. QW'SS SWGDW KE HAEKW YKAYUKWI.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: I'M AFRAID THAT ALL FARM HANDS MUST KNUCKLE UNDER.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: Q equals W

Volley

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6

Breaking her own four-game record of 73 assists, freshman Alison Murphy recorded 74 assists to lead the K-State's offense.

"I thought our setter, Alison, did a real nice job in her selections," Nelson said. "She exploited some weaknesses of Wichita State. The assists-kills are directly tied to her set selection, and I thought it was real smart."

The 'Cats were led in hitting by Berkley's 24 kills and .538 hitting percentage.

"Betsy is doing a great job of focusing in her game," Nelson said. "She just doing such a good job of execution, and she's very determined. I don't know how many times we went to her and she came up with clutch kills from the right side and the middle."

Fornos

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9

■ Lack of family-planning education in Third World countries. The United Nations is pushing the $2.5 billion United Nations Population Fund to provide education and birth-control services to Third World countries. Fornos said this amount is necessary to stabilize the world population at eight billion people by the year 2000. He said the United States is the only country in the United Nations that does not support the fund.

"How anyone can be opposed to that kind of humanitarian assistance, when we look at the environmental and resource challenges we are facing in this world, is beyond me," Fornos said. "We need to realize that the technology that we in the Western world take so for granted is really something we should share with the poorest people of the world as well so they can improve the quality of their lives."

Fornos said that family planning is necessary for bringing global population under control.

Goldstein said she agreed.

"I think it's the only way to control population growth and possible famine," Goldstein said.

Fornos, a native of Liepzig, Germany, escaped the Nazi country as a 9-year-old boy and came to the United States as a stowaway. He served four years in the Army and was a Maryland State Legislator from 1966 to 1970. He has been president of the Population Institute since 1982.

Bart

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11

or alcohol, drugs or tobacco will not be permitted," Superintendent Jerry Bouse said Wednesday. "Bart Simpson, Batman, Bugs Bunny or whatever is fine, as long as it doesn't physically display something that is offensive."

Most students agreed with the policy, Bouse said.

However, a junior high student wore an inappropriate Simpsons T-shirt to school Wednesday and was ordered to change it, the superintendent said.

Bouse said he did not know what message was featured on the shirt.

Hurt

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1

stable source of revenue to provide for it," Hurt said.

On the environment, Hurt said she has supported a series of recycling bills that included a bill requiring the state to purchase a certain amount of recycled paper each year.

Programs like this are encouraged, Hurt said, but there are problems finding markets for recycled paper because of its high cost.

"The Legislature is very supportive of preserving the environment," she said. "However, they do not want the state doing recyclingprojects that would interfere with those of the private sector."

Crime

■ CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11

mapped block-by-block with different colors representing different levels of crime. Red indicated high-crime areas, and blue indicated low-crime area.

The maps were sent to the police departments in Cleveland and San Diego to help them decide what areas of the city may or may not need more patrolling officers.

"The maps will be beneficial to the departments by showing exactly where the crimes are occurring," Franz said.

The maps can also save the departments money by stationing officers on specific blocks where they are needed most instead of simply in a general neighborhood, so they aren't patrolling constantly where little crime occurs, Roncek said.

Ad It Up! in the KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

BUY-HIRE-SELL -RENT KANSAS STATE COLLEGIAN

DELTS WANT YOU!
The KSU Blood Drive leaves TOMORROW
All students, faculty and staff are reminded to donate blood or volunteer time from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. in the K, S & U rooms on the 2nd floor of the Union.
YOUR HELP SAVES LIVES!
Co-Sponsored by Delta Tau Delta

BLUE RIVER PUB
THURS., OCT. 25
MANTIS
SAT., OCT. 27
HALLOWEEN BASH
COSTUME CONTEST AT MIDNIGHT
1ST PLACE- $50 CERTIFICATE AT HIBACHI HUT
2ND PLACE- $25 CERTIFICATE FOR TOWN CENTER MALL
3RD PLACE- MOVIE TICKETS FOR TWO SPOOKIE DRINK SPECIALS

You might miss
Drug Music Friday... but don't miss
False Faces
(Live Rock 'n' Roll!)
Saturday at...
No foo foo drinks... just live Rock 'n' Roll!
BOGARTS
843-9625
611 Vermont
Lawrence, KS
A Private Club

TACO BELL'S GUIDE TO
EXCELLENT EXTREMES
Lesson Number 6
Now A lot More for Less
Steak & Chicken Soft Tacos
$1.19 each plus tax
New Steak Soft Tacos and Chicken Soft Tacos. Delicious strips of steak or tender chicken grilled to perfection. And wrapped up with crisp lettuce and cheddar cheese in a soft flour tortilla. Only Taco Bell® gives you so much delicious food for such a great price.
ORIGINAL TACOS ONLY 59¢
AND OUR GREAT TASTING VALUE MENU YOUR CHOICE ONLY 59¢
You can enjoy our great tasting Tostadas, Bean Burritos, Pintos & Cheese or even Soft Shell Tacos.
TACO BELL.
1155 Westport Road

BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND
THRIFTY THURSDAY
PYRAMID PIZZA rolls back the prices
Only $3.49 for a small pizza (one topping)
(additional toppings are 75¢ each)
COUPON
"THRIFTY THURSDAY"
$3.49 for a Small One-topping Pizza
Good Every Thursday
"We Pile It On!"
PYRAMID PIZZA
Carryout/Dine In Only
539-4888
12th & Moro
Aggieville, USA

FEUDING FOOD
LARGE PIZZA SINGLE TOPPING 8.95 GET A 2ND PIZZA ONLY 3.95
LASAGNA OR MANNICOTTI OR SPAGHETTI PLUS GARLIC TOAST PLUS 32 oz. COKE $4.95
MEDIUM PIZZA SINGLE TOPPING $6.95 GET A 2ND PIZZA ONLY $2.95
THE "ROUNDTABLE" HAMBURGER, SAUSAGE, ONION CANADIAN BACON, BLACK OLIVE GREEN PEPPER, MUSHROOM, PEPPERONI, EXTRA CHEESE. LARGE: $9.95 MEDIUM: $7.95
PIZZA Shoppe
Lawrence
DINE-IN • CARRY-OUT • DELIVERY
6th & Kasold
Westridge Shopping Center
842-0600

ROCKTOBERFEST
THURSDAY 25
$1.25 Coors LIGHT CANS
101 FREE
LAST CHANCE T-SHIRTS
Coors PRIZE GIVEAWAYS
Come down and enjoy the best BBQ in the Midwest.
9 p.m.-1 a.m.
LAST CHANCE
1213 MORO, AGGIEVILLE
776-6451
101.5

MEDICINE...
The Trick Could Be On You.
When medicine is prescribed or dispensed be sure to ask:
1. What the medicine is supposed to do;
2. How and when to take it, and for how long;
3. What to do if side effects occur;
4. What foods, drinks, other medicines or activities should be avoided while taking the medicine, and
5. Is there written information available about the medicine.
THE GREAT MANHATTAN SWEEP OUT.
Don't let the trick be on you...On October 31, sweep out your old medicine and bring it to The Saint Mary Hospital between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. for proper disposal.
the saint mary hospital
1823 College Ave., Manhattan, KS 66502 • (913) 776-3322
KMKF 101.5
KMAN 1350am